22761 LAKESHORE PRESS, BIRMINGHAM, ALA. 35209

WORK ORDER

MICROFILM DEPARTMENT

SAMFORD UNIVERSITY LIBRARY
800 Lakeshore Drive
Birmingham, Alabama 35209

For: Special Collection
in Samford University Library
and Chilton Co. Library

Date of Order: 5/17/84

Date Promised:

Pages Filmed:

- [x] M/f Neg.
- [x] M/f Pos.
- [ ] X/c loose
- [ ] X/c bound
- [ ] Photocopies

QUANTITY	DESCRIPTION	UNIT PRICE	EXTENSION
	ALABAMA NEWSPAPERS-to mircofilmed and two pos. and one neg. made
	CHILTON CO. CALL - Thorsby, AL, Chilton Co. Ap 23-D 31, 1897 280
	CHILTON CO. COURIER - Clanton, AL, Chilton Co. Ja 5,S 14, 1877 112
31	The Peoples Party Banner-S 22-O 20, 1892;Ja 12, 1893 THE BANNER - Clanton, AL, Chilton Co. Ja-D, 1893; Mr24-D 27, 1894; Ja 3-Je 20, 1895; Ja-D, 1896-1911; Ja 4-Mr 21, 1912	(becomes	THE BANNER)
	Return to Betty Collins

INVOICE NO.:

Photographic reproductions are made by the Samford University Library solely for the research or private study of the applicant; extracts copied are not to be reproduced or distributed in full or in part; and no part of the photocopy will be quoted by the applicant for use in his own works or elsewhere without the permission of the copyright owner. The applicant assumes all responsibility for possible infringement of copyright, or, in the case of manuscripts, literary property rights, in the act of copying the materials or in the subsequent use of them.

The applicant agrees to make proper acknowledgment to the publication from which the photocopy is made, or to the Samford University Library in the case of manuscript material in its collections. He further agrees to secure permission from the Library, in advance, to publish any part of such manuscript materials.

Microfilming–Xerox–Positive Prints–Photo Copies

Authorization Signature _____

No. M 5843

Microphotographed by

SAMFORD UNIVERSITY
DEO ET DOCTRINAE
1842

Harwell Goodwin Davis Library
Samford University
Birmingham, Alabama

ALABAMA NEWSPAPERS

THE BANNER

CLANTON, AL, CHILTON CO.

1910

BINDING PREVENTS PROPER FILMING

ORIGINALS ARE DEFECTIVE

NEWSPAPER CHECKLIST MICROFILM HOLDINGS Clanton, AL The Banner Chilton Co.

	1908	1909	1910	1911	1912
Ja	1 8 15 22 29	1 8 15 22 29	1 8 15 22 29	1 8 15 22 29	1 8 15 22 29
F	5 12 19 26	5 12 19 26	5 12 19 26	5 12 26	5 12 19 26
Mr	4 11 18 25	4 11 18 25	4 11 18 25 31	4 11 18 25	4 11 18 25
Ap	1 8 15 22 29	1 8 15 22 29	7 14 21 28	1 8 15 22 29	— — — —
My	6 13 20 27	6 13 20 27	5 12 19 26	6 13 20 27	— — — —
Je	3 10 17 24	3 10 17 24	2 9 16 23 30	3 10 17 24	— — — —
Jl	1 8 15 22 29	1 8 15 22 29	7 14 21 28	1 8 15 22 29	— — — —
Ag	5 12 19 26	5 12 19 26	4 11 18 25	5 12 19 26	— — — —
S	2 9 16 23 30	2 9 16 23 30	1 8 15 22 29	2 9 16 23 30	— — — —
O	7 14 21 28	7 14 21 28	6 13 20 27	7 14 21 28	— — — —
N	4 11 18 25	4 11 18 25	3 10 17 24	4 11 18 25	— — — —
D	2 9 16 23 30	2 9 16 23 31	1 8 15 22 29	2 9 16 23 30	— — — —

THE BANNER

1910

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1910 | No. 14

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

And here we are, fairly started into 1910, the second decade of the twentieth century, with a fair prospect of a year of prosperity before us. Cotton, our great staple, is bringing a good price at present, but that does not mean that every acre should be planted in the fleecy staple this coming season, for if it should be so planted that means a fearful reduction in price next fall. I reckon that every farmer can do his own figuring and will raise a crop to suit himself, but nevertheless, a word to the wise is sufficient.

NOTICE.

Thorsby Savings Bank.

In reply to all rumors or statements that the business of Thorsby Savings Bank will be closed or interrupted on account of the death of the president, we wish to give notice that the business of the bank will be carried on as usual, without interruption. The bank is incorporated, and all business can and will be carried on by the present officers, and directors. The duties of the president will be performed by A. K. Horn and L. V. Stabler until the next stockholders' meeting, at which a k president will be elected.

The business of the bank is controlled by the following directors:

M. J. Barrett,
A. K. Horn,
Sam Kaufman,
L. V. Stabler,
Guy H. Gerald.

Guy H. Gerald, Cashier.

Thorsby, Ala., Jan. 4, 1910.

Resolutions adopted by the Directors of Thorsby Savings Bank on the death of its President, Whereas God in his providence saw fit to take from us our beloved President, Iver S. Gerald, we humbly bow in submission to His will knowing that He doeth all things for the best.

Therefore be it Resolved: That in the death of our beloved President, Thorsby has lost a good and upright citizen, and our Bank has suffered the loss of a safe and conservative business manager and counsellor.

Resolved: That we extend to the bereaved wife and children our sincere sympathy in this their sad hour, and point them to Him who is ever ready to succor and heal the saddened and broken heart.

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions, be spread on our minutes and that a copy be given to the bereaved family.

L. V. Stabler, A. K. Horn, } Committee.

One of the most important of the new provisions of the revised penal code which became effective today is that designed to prevent the sale of liquor, under the form of shipments in states which have adopted prohibition. Imprisonment for not more than two years and payment of a fine of not more than $5000 is the penalty provided in one of the sections to be imposed upon any officer, agent, or employe of any common carrier who shall knowingly deliver or cause to be delivered to any person other than the person to whom it has been consigned, unless on the written order of the bonafide consignee, or to any fictitious name, any intoxicating liquor shipped from another state or territory, or from a foreign country.

Another section prohibits any common carrier, including railroads and express companies, from collecting the purchase price, or any part of it, from the consignee in connection with the transportation of intoxicating liquor from one state to another or from acting in any way as the agent for the buyer or seller of liquor. A penalty of $5000 is attached for violation. A third section affecting interstate shipments of liquor requires the marking of all such shipments on the outside with the name of the consignee and the quantity and kind of intoxicants. Liquor which is shipped and not so labeled is subject to seizure and confiscation, and the person responsible is liable to a fine of not more than $5000.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.			LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts		$55,248 64	Capital Stock Paid in		$15,000 00
Overdrafts		1,849 54	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid		13,373 74
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank		18,736 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$68,098 69
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures		4,467 00	Savings Deposits	9,418 80
Other Real Estate		147 50	Cashier's Checks	101 02
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$14,502 32		Bills Payable	5,000 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	3,703 17				84,723 71
Currency	6,940 00
Gold	1,085 00
Silver, Nickles and Pennies	1,098 96
Checks and Cash Items	251 00
		27,541 85
Total		$113,089 43	Total		$113,089 43

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

Jno. A. THOMAS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 23d day of October, 1909.

J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAMUEL KAUFMAN } Directors.
M. L. GREIL

Statement of the condition of the Clanton Bank, located at Clanton, Ala., at the close of business October 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.			LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts		$ 91,972 62	Capital Stock Paid in		$ 15,000 00
Overdrafts		333 33	Surplus Fund		10,000 00
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank		21,250 00	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid		6,220 65
Furniture and Fixtures		5,616 33	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$ 73,722 17
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$16,889 77		Time Certificates	14,667 48
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	3,729 37		Cashier's Checks	185 00
Currency	4,945 00		Bills Payable	30,000 00
Gold	200 00				118,574 65
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,287 05
Checks and Cash Items	510 10
		26,559 52
Total		$149,881 80			$149,881 80

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of the Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 22nd day of October, 1909.

E. B. DEASON, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. H. SARTOR
W. I. MULLINS } Directors.
F. D. WILSON

CORRESPONDENCE.

Jemison.

Editor Banner:—Please give me space in your paper to say a few words. Some one writing over signature of "Sane Old Coon," in your last week's issue stated that this part was very much stirred up on account of stock law. Therefore I would like to state here that the st r does not seem to be so very great. I suppose the party who wrote that letter surely resides in Beat go as we are to vote on stock law in this Beat on February 3rd., next. They said they had never seen as many poor cows and hogs in all their life as they had seen this year, and that there had been the most fine grass that they had ever seen. Now I ask you, the Same Old Coon, how is this, that poor cows and fine grass all go loose in the same range. This sounds like the Fish tal to me, for I know you haven't got stock law, because in the stock law beats there is practicaly no complaint. Of course, I saw the most fine grass in 1909. I ever saw, but it was not on the range. And now, in regard to stock law being such a bad thing, will say that I can't see it that way. Who can object to a law that would only compell him to do his duty? It's nothing but right for each of us to take care of the stock we own. Our neighbor has no right to furnish us grazing lands for cows or hogs, and we who have our land all fenced up should not be worrying about the fine grass that may be growing on the other fellows land. It doesn't belong to us, and if stock law is so bad why is it when people in a beat get it that they want to keep it and would hate so much to give it up. I can show you men who live in stock law that will tell you that they would rather give up a horse than give up their stock law, they say they could better afford it, will close with best wishes to the Banner and its may readers.

S. D. McCarg.

Plantersville.

As I have moved into Plantersville to spend the remainder of my days with the good people of Plantersville you will please send the Banner to Plantersville from this on.

Plantersville is a thriving little town situated on the Southern R. R., 20 miles north of Selma, and is still on a mighty building boom.

Mr. J. E. Barnes has his new fine dwelling house about completed which cost him $3000., it is a daisy. He is the leading merchant of the place and buys a great deal of cotton.

Plantersville now has 4 churches and 6 dry goods stores, and has a large steam ginnery and a first class hotel. Has a drug store and 4 doctors and 2 preachers. Has 2 large schools, the large $10.000 college of the county built here and is an up-to date college. We have a large lumber planer here.

Mr. James Johnson, who lives here, had the misfortuner of getting his residence burned up at noon December 29th but by the help of the people most all of his stuff was saved.

Mr. James Campbell, of Moro, north Dallas, lost his youngest son. Arthur, by accient. He was out duck hunting when accidently his gun was discharged the load entering his arm and he died from the effects of it.

Yours Truly,
M. H. Barnes.

Harbury.

Will drop a few items from this place. Christmas passed off nicely; no serious damage was done.

The big mill is nearing completion, it is a good deal better than the former one.

The post office has been removed to the Company's store.

Mr. D. H. Marbury and family of Birmingham are back at their old home for awhile.

Rev. "Bob" Jones and wife, the new pastor of the Baptist church, are away spending the holidays.

Mr. W. L. Price, who has been confined to his room with rheumatism for some time, is up again.

Mrs. Vernon and son, Master Emmett, of Woodlawn, visited Mr. Price's family near here the past week.

Citizen.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of Chancery Court of Shelby county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain decree recently obtained against Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als. out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, I have levied on the following property, to wit:

The nw 1-4 and the w 1-2 of the sw 1-4, and the sw 1-4 of sw 1-4, Section 6; the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4; the se 1-4 of the sw 1-4, Section 15; the se 1-4 of the se 1-4, Section 16; the s 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4, Section 19; the nw 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and s 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the e 1-2 of the se 1-4 Section 21; the n 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and e 1-2 of the sw 1-4, Section 22; the w 1-2 of ne 1-4 and w 1-2 of sw 1-4, Section 25; the e 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the se 1-4, the s 1-2 of the nw 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the sw 1-4 of Section 35, as the property of the Defendant, Thos. E. Lappage.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, in and to the above described property on Monday, the 7th day of February, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House in Clanton.

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 27th day of December, 1909.

John S. Catts,
Sheriff of Chilton county, Ala.

Notice. Notice. Notice.

Default having been made in the payment of the debts secured by two mortgages made by Burwell Bailey and Hattie Bailey, his wife, one for the year 1905 and one for the year 1906 to Suttles and Siegel, and by Suttles and Siegel duly transferred to the undersigned, I Burwell Bailey Jr., the transferee of said mortgage, will, on Saturday, the 29th day of January, 1910, sell in front of the market house in the City of Selma, Alabama, at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, the following real estate, situated in the county of Chilton, State of Alabama, and described as follows, to wit:

The east half of the southeast quarter, Section sixteen, Township twenty, Range eleven, the north half of the northwest quarter of Section twenty two, Township twenty, Range eleven, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less.

The said sale is made for the purpose of paying, first: the debts secured by said mortgage; second: the cost of advertising, selling and conveying, and attorney's fee provided for in said mortgage.

Burwell Bailey, Jr.
A. D. Pitts, Attorney.

Stomach Trouble Cured.

If you have any trouble with your stomach you should take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. P. Klote, of Edina, Mo., says: "I have used a great many different medicines for stomach trouble, but find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets more beneficial than any other remedy I ever used." For sale by all druggists.

NOTICE.

Application will be made to the Governor of Alabama for the pardon or parol of Lula Beadlescombe, who was convicted in Circuit Court of Chilton county at the Spring term thereof, in 1907, for murder.

STRAYED

From my place, known as the Stewart place, one mile west of Clanton, November 29, 1909, a dark chestnut mule, about twelve years old, with scar on left shoulder. Any information should be sent to E. M. Pinckard & Co., Clanton, who will pay a reward of $10 for his delivery.

H. Lockhart.

STRAYED

From four miles north of Jemisor, Saturday, December 11, 1909, one Small Dark Colored Mare Mule about four years old, supposed to be making its way back to Birmingham. Reasonable reward gived for delivery of Mule or wiring information to Oliver & Gulledge Bros., Verbena, Ala., who will send for Mule.

NOTICE.

There will be a singing at Samaria church, Sunday evening, January 9; all singers are invited to come. Prof. H. M. Eagle and other good singers will be with us in a song service.

DEATH OF Mr. JAMES M. ROBINSON, Sr.

Mr. Jas. M. Robinson, Sr., after a few weeks illness, passed away at his home seven miles east of Clanton, last Saturday, aged about 68 years. Mr. Robinson was born and reared near Providence church and was highly respected by all who knew him. He served with gallantry throughout the war between the States in the Confederate army. The deceased leaves two daughters, Misses Laura and Zonie Belle, to mourn the loss of a kind and devoted father, his wife having preceded him to the grave about three years ago. The remains were laid to rest in Providence cemetery with Masonic honors on Sunday morning. Peace to his ashes.

Maple Springs

Mr. W. H. Askins died at his home near here Wednesday night, Dec. 29. He had been in failing health for a long time and was confined to his bed five weeks. He was between 35 and 40 years of age, and a wife and eight children survive him, who have the sympathy of the entire community in their great affliction.

DEATH OF Mr. W. H. MERRITT.

W. H. Merritt died at his home in Birmingham last Friday, after a short illness of pneumonia.

The deceased was 55 years old, having been born in Henry county, Georgia, in 1854. He left his place of birth at the age of 9 to become an adopted son of Alabama.

For several years he was a citizen of Clanton where he had many friends.

The funeral took place at Birmingham, Saturday, N. A. Kicker and John W. Stanfield being among the pall bearers.

The Attraction.

Most men in marrying are not attracted by rosy cheeks, but by greenbacks.—Buffalo Express.

CLAY TO BE TRIED FOR KILLING OF EUGENE CHESNUTT

The January term of the circuit court was convened at Meridian, Miss., Jan. 3, 1910, for the trial of criminal cases. Judge J. L. Buckley delivered a stirring charge to the grand jury urging the indictment of all violators of the law, including social clubs, gamblers, pistol toters and blind tigers. Probably the most interesting feature of the day was the announcement that the trial of Abner L. Clay, charged with the murder of Conductor Eugene Chesnutt of Birmingham, will come up for trial Thursday morning. A special venire of fifty jurymen was ordered drawn.

Mortgage Sale.

Under the power given in a mortgage deed executed by Jno. F. Clark to this Company on September 18, 1908, to secure a debt therein named which is due and unpaid, we will sell for cash at public outcry in front of the County Court House door in Anniston, Calhoun County, Alabama, on the Northeast quarter of Southwest quarter (No. ¼ sw. ¼) of Section nineteen (19), Township twenty-three (23) north, Range thirteen (13) east, in Chilton County, Alabama.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1910,

Alabama Mineral Land Company.
Jan. 3, 1910.

STOCK LAW ELECTION

In accordance with the statute in such cases made and provided, notice is hereby given that application has been made to Commissioners Court of Chilton county, Alabama, for an election to be held in Precinct No. 9 in said county, on Thursday, the 3d day of February, 1910, to determine whether or not stock shall be permitted to run at large in said Precinct.

Said application has been granted by the Court.

This notice is given to notify all parties concerned that said election will be held at the usual place of voting Precinct on Thursday, the third day of February, 1910, to determine said question.

Signed by S. D. McCary and others.

Dated this 21st day of December, 1909.

STOCK LAW ELECTION.

Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of an order made by the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, on the 16th day of December, 1909 an election will be held in precinct No 15 in Chilton County, Alabama, at Pletcher and Culp School house, the places where general elections are held in said Precinct, on Thursday the 3rd day of February, 1910, to determine whether or not hogs, goats, sheep, geese, etc., and such like, shall be permitted to run at large in said Precinct No 15 in Chilton County, Alabama.

This the 16th day of December, 1909.

R. P. Kendrick and others.

WANTED.

FOR SALE—Two Four acre lots with 3 roomed houses on them, good wells of water, and one Store House and lot—all in Coopers, Ala. will sell them cheap. Apply to J. W. Clark, Cooper, Ala.

WANTED—A good man to solicit business for Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. Will pay big commissions to right man to begin work immediately. Must furnish good reference. Home office, Montgomery. Address C. E. Black, Montgomery, Ala.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by all druggists.

FOR SALE.—Three yoke of Oxen, from five to six years old; weigh between 800 and 1000 lbs. and in good condition; also one Dray. Apply to Steve Atchison, Jemison, Ala., Route 1.

HOGS FOUND—A sow and four shoates have strayed on to my place, known as the old Davey White place, at Jonestown; three of the shoates are marked. I have had them up three week. Owner can get same by giving proper description and paying expenses of this advt. M. C. Fox.

WANTED—15 or 20 teams to haul iron ore at Wessington. Pay 85c per ton; 3 mile haul; pay every two weeks. Miners also wanted. Call or write Tom Walker, or C. H. Durham, Jemison, Ala., care Shelby Iron Co.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, ever day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

FOR SALE.

240 acres of land, 70 in cultivation and under good fence; a good five room dwelling house; good well of water in yard; good barns and stalls for stock; blacksmith shop and a store house near dwelling house. I will sell cheap and on reasonable terms. Situated on rural route, four miles east of Maplesville. For particulars apply to L. B. Broadhead, Maplesville, Ala., Route 2.

SALESMAN WANTED.

An honest, sober, energetic man to handle our business in Chilton county. Good proposition offered to right man. Must be able to furnish horse and buggy and give bonesty bond. Position open Jan. 1st, 1910. Address Box 426, Montgomery, Ala.

A Wild Blizzard Raging

brings danger, suffering—often death to thousands, who take colds, coughs and lagrippe—that terror of Winter and Spring. Its danger signals are "stuffed up" nostrils, lower part of face sore, chills and fever, pain in back of head, and a throat-gripping cough. When Grip attacks, as you value your life, don't delay getting Dr. King's New Discovery. "One bottle cured me," writes A. L. Dunn, of Pine Valley, Miss., "after being 'laid up' three weeks with Grip." For sore, lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, its supreme. 50c. $1.00. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co.

Does not Color the Hair

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Stops Falling Hair
Destroys Dandruff

An Elegant Dressing
Makes Hair Grow

Composed of Sulphur, Glycerin, Quinin, Sodium Chlorid, Capsicum, Sage, Alcohol, Water, Perfume. Ask your doctor his opinion of such a hair preparation.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

Does not Color the Hair

J. C. Ayer Company, Lowell, Mass.

SCHOOL COURSE IN GOOD MORALS

Philadelphia Superintendent and Teachers Urge New Idea.

PLAN MAY BECOME NATIONAL.

Many Virtues Embodied in Proposed System, Mr. Brumbaugh Asserts—If It Is Successful, New York Millionaire Will Urge Its Adoption Throughout America.

Love, humor, courage and economy are a few of the virtues which will be taught to the pupils of the Philadelphia schools if the present plans of Superintendent Brumbaugh and a committee of twenty teachers are approved by the board of education.

The committee met the other afternoon to discuss a prospective course in good morals, and Superintendent Brumbaugh intimated in addressing the members if the system of instruction proves a success James F. White, the New York millionaire who is willing to donate a small fortune for the advancement of this kind of training, will urge its adoption throughout the United States.

Other Virtues Approved.

Some of the other virtues indorsed by the committee and which in all probability will be included in the course of moral instruction are Cleanliness neatness, politeness, gentleness, kindness to mankind and to animals, truthfulness, fidelity to duty, nobility, obedience, respect and reverence, gratitude and thankfulness, forgiveness, confession, honesty, honor, humility, self respect, self control, prudence, good name, good manners, health temperance, civic duties, industry, politeness, cheerfulness, appreciation, contentment and practicality.

"Mr. White has urged me to accept the presidency of the Character Development league, in which he is interested," said Mr. Brumbaugh to the committee. "That matter is still in abeyance. Mr. White has his ideas as to the best methods of procedure and I have mine. But we are unanimous that something should be done to inculcate in the pupils of the United States the principles of true manhood and womanhood. We will try and do something in this city, although it is an experiment, whether we go into it extensively or not. Mr. White wishes us to try it out in Philadelphia, and if it is a success he will do likewise elsewhere.

Suggestion to Teachers.

"In both the instruction to be given and the text books to be used in the regular courses. The teacher can give the instruction by talks of moderate length, forms of essays by the pupils, the study of words, etc. Not more than three minutes a day will be required for its recitation."

On the suggestion of Dr. Brumbaugh it was agreed to assign each month to some teacher for one or more of the seven virtues indorsed. The members will report at the next committee meeting, which probably will be held in January.

MRS. TAFT'S SKUNK COAT.

Remarkable Garment Made by Massachusetts Hunter For President's Wife.

Mrs. Taft, wife of the president, recently received a present of a remarkable fur coat. It is made of skunk, but no charge of cheapness or commonness can be brought against it when it is known that no fewer than 185 skins were employed in its making. Of course only parts of each skin could be used, and James A. Taff, a Bay State hunter, who collected the furs, has cut them with a stylish wastefulness in such a way that only the black parts have been used in the making of the body of the coat. With no sign of the white streaks that usually are the mollifying marks of skunk skins, any one except an expert in furs might be puzzled to say what breed of animal had given its life for this coat of Mrs. Taft's, but just a tell-tale hint is left in the collar and cuffs.

Here again the skins have been specially selected and cut with extra care, so that only the parts that are of the purest white were reserved for use, and as collar and cuffs alike are four and a half inches wide they afford a striking contrast with the jet black of the sheen of the rest of the coat. Inside the collar is a reproduction of the seal of the United States made entirely out of tiny porcupine quills interwoven and dyed red, white and blue.

New Deep Well Record.

The record for deep well boring has for some time been held by one at Rybnick, in Silesia, which reaches the depth of 2,003 meters (6,569 feet). This record has now been beaten at Czuchow, not far from Rybnick, where a well has reached 7,048 feet and will be carried 315 feet deeper. No trouble in working this extreme depth is anticipated. The diameter at the bore at the top is sixteen inches, decreasing at intervals.

Prizes For Fine Corn at National Show.

Fred C. Palin of Newton, Ind., exhibited the best single ear of corn the world ever produced, while another Indianan, J. R. Overstreet of Franklin exhibited the best ten ears of corn ever raised, according to the judges at the National Corn exposition in Omaha, Neb., who recently awarded the $50,000 offered in prizes by the show. G. L. Kerlin of Franklin won the prize offered for the best bushel of corn.

KING AS A STEVEDORE.

Sweden's Ruler, in Disguise, Carried Coal to Learn Workmen's Views.

King Gustave of Sweden, who recently disguised himself as a stevedore and spent most of the day carrying sacks of coal from a lighter at Stockholm, said after it was all over that this was only the beginning. He intended to mix with all classes of laborers so that he might ascertain their opinions and wishes. Already, he added, he had obtained many valuable hints from the men with whom he worked.

The determination of King Gustave to learn of the conditions of the workingmen by mingling with them and taking part in their labors has resulted from the recent great tieup of the business life of the country by a general strike. King Gustave intervened last August in an endeavor to secure a compromise, but without avail. The strike continued for months and involved thousands of men, the employers' association paying $40,000 daily to support its weaker members, while the trades unions and other workingmen's associations exhausted their entire funds to keep strikers from starving.

Eventually arbitration was undertaken by the Swedish government to settle the dispute, and in the interim many of the workmen returned to their tasks, although the number unemployed remained very great. King Gustave, the queen and other members of the royal family, as well as the cabinet ministers, contributed to a national fund for the purpose of providing loans to the working classes. Homesteads have already been apportioned among the unemployed, but conditions remain such as to cause the king and his government grave anxiety.

The king found difficulty in ascertaining facts and made arrangements to join the craftsmen and laborers at their work in order to get his information at first hand.

HOME SCENERY FOR SCHOOLS

Movement to Banish Foreign Art For American Pastoral Pictures.

Foreign pastoral scenes are to be superseded in the west and especially in schoolhouses by scenes of American farm life if an movement now under way is carried out. It has become objectionable that most rural works of art deal with scenes in foreign lands, the wooden shoes of Holland being prominent, and a movement is now under way to encourage art dealing with rural scenes in the United States, said to be far more beautiful in the west.

All country schoolhouses will be asked to take copies of the pictures of Dutch life and substitute pictures of American country life. James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, has ordered down all these pictures in his department and has given orders for the walls to remain bare until paintings of American country life are brought out to take their place.

The movement is meeting with the hearty accord of all art students, who say there is no reason for not working among American lines, as the United States has abundant material for paintings far superior to any to be found in the old world.

Several such schemes have been started in New York city, but they have fallen through because of the location and the league promoters think the only way to succeed is to interest those living in the agricultural communities.

PIPES THAT GROW IN FIELDS

Government Experimenting Successfully With African Calabash Plants.

Smokers of tobacco may in the near future go into the fields and pluck from plants pipes to their own liking, provided work being done by the department of agriculture at Washington realizes results confidently anticipated by those having it in charge.

Efforts to introduce into the United States the South African calabash, or gourd, are meeting with marked success. The use of the calabash as a pipe bowl was discovered by the Boers, who attempted to monopolize the product and prevent the exportation of seed. Some were obtained for experiments in the United States, and it is found the vine grows luxuriantly and produces large crops of gourds under our soil and climatic conditions.

The pipes are graceful and distinctive in shape, according to a report from the department. Imported pipes made from the calabash sell at from $8 to $12 each. They color like the meerschaum and are delightful smokers.

The high cost of the pipes is caused by the amount of hand work necessary in preparing them, the shapes varying so that machine work is not practicable.

The gourds can easily be made into pipes by buying inside bowls and mouthpieces.

Big Prize For Consumption Cure.

The following formal announcement was recently made at Yale university that an anonymous alumnus of Yale has offered a prize of $100,000 for the person who first discovers an adequate remedy for tuberculosis. The prize fund has been placed in the custody of Yale university, and the Yale Medical school faculty is to act as its trustee.

International Exhibition For 1915.

An international exhibition to be held in California in 1915 in celebration of the opening of the Panama canal and in commemoration of the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Pacific ocean by Balboa is authorized in a bill offered in the house the other day by Representative Kahn of California.

CROCKER WEALTH TO CURE CANCER

Its Victim Gave $1,500,000 to Columbia University.

FOR SPECIAL RESEARCH FUND

Bequest of George Crocker, Youngest Son of Charles Crocker, California Millionaire, One of Many Gifts in His Lifetime For Education—How He Helped Students With Loans.

George Crocker, youngest son of Charles Crocker of California, who died from cancer the other day in his home in New York, made a large bequest to Columbia university to investigate the disease and to try to find a real cure for it. For that purpose he created the "George Crocker Special Research fund."

Mr. Crocker's will did not specify any sum of money for this purpose, but directed that his house at Fifth avenue and Sixty-fourth street, with its contents, as well as his country place at Darlington, N. J., should be sold and the proceeds turned over to the trustees of Columbia university for investment as a permanent fund. This will net about $1,500,000.

Mr. Crocker some time ago gave $50,000 to Columbia to start this work. Mrs. Crocker also died from cancer, which had much to do with the plans which Mr. Crocker had been making for a long time to give a fund for special research.

Made Many Charitable Gifts.

Mr. Crocker inherited from his father $6,000,000 as his share of the $20,000,000 estate which the former railroad king left. He had a reputation before his father's death of being a reckless young man, but in accordance with a clause in his father's will, which stipulated that his son should abstain from drink for five years, he turned over a new leaf and at the end of that period came into the inheritance.

Captain John Hays Hammond of 71 Broadway, New York, one of the executors of Mr. Crocker's will, said that Mr. Crocker had made many charitable gifts in his lifetime, but had always kept them a secret as he was unwilling to become known as a public benefactor.

At one time Mr. Crocker gave $20,000 to start a school for postgraduate work in mining among the colleges. This school was known privately as the Mining Field school, and graduates from Harvard, Yale, Columbia, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Golden School of Mines in Colorado attended it for one year. Mr. Crocker leased a mine near Bowlder, Colo., as an aid to his experiment about four years ago, and about a hundred graduates from the different universities went there under the instruction of Professor Munroe of Columbia and some from other institutions. They occupied houses near the mine which Mr. Crocker put up for them and lived the life of miners for a year, going down into the mine and learning drilling, blasting and all the other operations.

How He Helped Peary.

Mr. Crocker at another time also gave several thousands to start a student loan fund for men in the different colleges in the east who found themselves unable after a year or so at college to continue their course through lack of finances. Mr. Crocker lent these men money and they were put upon their honor that, as soon as they began to make money after graduation, they should turn over the borrowed amount to the fund so that it might be reloaned to those in a like predicament.

At the time that Commander Peary was about to set out on his last and successful dash for the north pole Mr. Crocker was approached on the subject of funds. He was strongly opposed to the project, as he considered that Peary was about to throw his life away. However, friends of the commander persuaded Crocker to meet the explorer, and when the two did meet and Crocker had sized up his man and found that he was determined to embark on the expedition, whether properly fitted out or not, the young man contributed $50,000 to the expedition. In honor of his benefactor, Peary has named a large tract of land in the polar zone Crocker Land.

The Christmas List.

And now once more we list our friends,
On each a value place.
We write them down, and by each name
A certain price we trace.
A few there are we hold most dear.
Two dollars each we'll spend
On Christmas gifts for them this year
This makes "the two spot friend."

Now, then, a few we like real well.
We oft seek their advice.
We must not mean appear to them;
A dollar is their price.
This list too large must never grow
Or ruin will attend.
And thus it is we come to know
The Christmas "case note friend."

Now comes a list, the longest list
Of all, and note it well,
For it contains more honest friends
Than I have space to tell.
In gifts that we shall send to them
No thought of favor enters;
A necktie or a handkerchief
Must do for "fifty centers."

And yet when summing up the list
The "two spot gifts" for show,
The "dollar present" goes to pay
A friendship debt we owe.
But most of love and sentiment
I'm certain always enters
Into the simple little gifts
We send to "fifty centers."
—Detroit Free Press.

CALHOUN FOR CHINA.

Glimpses of Chicago Lawyer Appointed Minister to the Far East.

In appointing William J. Calhoun of Chicago as minister to China President Taft has selected a man of wide experience and one well qualified to fill that important post, which requires a statesman combining both business and diplomatic qualifications. He is a member of the new firm of Calhoun, Lyford & Sherman of Chicago, his home city. He was born in Pittsburg on Oct. 5, 1848. He was admitted to the bar in 1875 and practiced for many years at Danville, Ill. He was a close friend of the late President McKinley, by whom he was intrusted with the important mission of investigating affairs in Cuba just before the Spanish war. In 1898 he was sent by President Roosevelt as a special envoy to investigate the cause of the trouble between the United States and Venezuela, which grew out of the dispute of the Venezuelan government with the Herndez Asphalt company.

Mr. Calhoun is a distinctly likable man, whose cardinal outward characteristic is simplicity. He is without affectation.

Mr. Calhoun now is in the full vigor of his powers. His strong face, with its broad forehead and keen eyes, is that of a successful man.

When the civil war opened he was a boy of sixteen years, and his patriotism was fired by tales of heroism brought back from the front. He offered himself at a recruiting station and twice was repulsed, his youth being the bar to entering the service of the country. A third time Calhoun was successful in enlisting, and he became a member of the Nineteenth Ohio volunteers.

Mr. Calhoun knew President McKinley long before either of them came into public life. They were intimates at school, and the friendship then commenced was not severed until President McKinley's death. As a young man Calhoun taught school in Danville, Ill. He had trouble with the big boys, who called him a "strayling from the east" and objected to letting him boss them. In later years he had delighted to tell how his diplomatic career had its beginning there. He went out into the playgrounds one day, where the boy that made most of the trouble for him was the crowd's leader. He suggested that they play throwing the hammer, a game in which he was an adept.

The boys agreed, and he threw the hammer, but not with all his strength. Then the big boy threw it and passed his mark, much to the delight of the others. After that the schoolteacher tried again, and not only put the hammer twenty feet farther than the next best throw, but threw the big boy after it.

Mr. Calhoun was a member of the interstate commerce commission from March 8, 1889, to Oct. 1, 1900. The first Mrs. Calhoun died on Aug. 17, 1888. Five years ago Mr. Calhoun married Miss Lucy Monroe of Chicago.

EXCHANGE OF PROFESSORS.

Secretary Knox's Plan to Promote Better Feeling With Other Republics.

An exchange of professorships and students between universities and academies among all the American republics has been proposed by Secretary Knox.

The suggestion has commended itself to the governing board of the international bureau of American republics, which has recommended that the proposed interchange shall figure in the program of the fourth pan-American congress, to be held at Buenos Aires next summer, and the director of the bureau of American republics has been instructed accordingly.

The aim of the proposal is declared to be not merely to maintain the friendly relations between Latin America and the United States, but to increase and strengthen them by enlisting the co-operation of the intelligence and intellectual resources of the various countries of the western hemisphere.

CHURCH OPENS MEAT MARKET

Will Try to Make Enough to Pay Debts—No Short Weights.

The congregation of the Twelfth Avenue Baptist church in Evansville, Ind., has opened a grocery store and meat market in a building near the church, and the proceeds of the sales will be used to pay off the church debt, which amounts to about $4,000.

There will be no short weights, and the goods will be sold at a small profit. The pastor of the church, the Rev. F. G. S. Burdette, has appealed to the members to patronize the venture.

Seeing Sights In Washington.

Representative Tim Ansberry of Ohio had a number of his constituents in tow at the house of representatives the other morning. He showed them many strange and interesting things, and they were most enthusiastic. Homer Davenport and his Arab slave boy, who were meeting all comers, proved the center of attraction for a time until the rollicking Representative Hughes of New Jersey entered the lobby.

"That is Billy Hughes of New Jersey," Mr. Ansberry informed his party. "My goodness," remarked one of the women, "they come from all over, don't they?"

Prize For Taft, Giant Turkey.

Taft, a turkey gobbler weighing fifty-five pounds, won the grand prize over 150 competitors from twenty-three states and Canada at the Missouri state poultry show, which opened recently at St. Louis. Taft is owned by S. C. Havens of Shelbyville, Ind.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Bonhag Wants More Records.

It is evident that George Bonhag, the ten mile champion, is anxious to establish new marks for all the distances he possibly can before he quits the running game for good, which is not a very long way off. Bonhag, it will be remembered, created a new slate of records for the distances from five and a half to ten miles in the race he won recently. It is very likely, therefore, that he is anxious while he has reached his best form to hold all amateur records from two to ten miles. Bonhag says he will not attempt to run if the weather is not to his liking, but if conditions are as favorable as they are now he can be expected to establish brand new figures from the two mile mark to the finish of his five mile special.

GEORGE BONHAG.

Police to Control Football.

Legislation which would require all football games in the District of Columbia to be played under a license of the police, who would be privileged to stop any game when it became dangerous to life and health, has been suggested by Corporation Counsel Thomas as one of the direct results of this year's long list of fatalities on the gridiron. The effect of the legislation which is proposed would make the police the immediate supervisors of the game. While the game proceeded according to rules which did not endanger life and limb the struggle would be allowed to continue, but when the lives of the players were endangered the police would have power to step in. Supporters of the suggestion point out that it imposes no hardship upon the game which has not been imposed upon a kindred sport—boxing—by the police of many cities.

Stricklett Barred From Brooklyn.

"Spitball" Elmer Stricklett will not be in the lineup of the Brooklyn baseball team next year, according to information given out at the headquarters of the national baseball commission in Cincinnati.

"Stricklett can't play with Brooklyn next year or the year after," declared Chairman Herrmann of the national commission recently. "According to the agreement between the California league and the National association, none of the contract or agreement jumpers now playing on the coast can leave that circuit in less than two years, and some of them have to remain out there for four years before they can be sold."

New Race Track In Mexico.

Colonel Robert Pate, a well known St. Louis turfman, has returned from Mexico City, where he was granted the privilege of operating a race track. Colonel Pate wants to interest capital in his venture. The parimutuel system will be used. Other tracks are to be operated in Mexico, but Pate's venture will be independent of the others, and he declares that he can have racing all year at his plant if he so desires.

Americans to Race Abroad.

American turfmen will be well represented in the big racing fixtures in England for the season of 1910, judging by the liberal nominations that have been made in both the Two Thousand Guineas and the One Thousand Guineas of 1912. With several more to be heard from, the latest English racing calendar shows a particularly good list in both of these rich stakes.

Record Price For Green Trotter.

George H. Easterbrook of Denver bought Nellie Willis, a green trotter, from J. O. McAllister of Lexington, Ky., for $7,500. This is the best price of the year for a green trotter.

Murphy Tops List of Winners.

The stable of Tommy Murphy tops the list of money winners this season with $63,000 to its credit. Lou McDonald's pulled down $49,000 and Ed Geers' $40,000.

FORGETMENOT APRON.

A Charmingly Dainty Gift For a Pretty Girl.

The daintiest apron that could be made as a gift is one of the new forgetmenot effects in sheer white lawn or Paris muslin, much befrilled and trimmed with blue baby ribbon and embroidered forgetmenots to match.

The apron shape is a small oval, reaching about to the knees and no wider than the front of the waist. This is edged with a ruffle two and a half inches deep, put on with a heading and baby ribbon.

The ruffle may be of fine lace, either left plain or with the figures picked out here and there with threads of blue silk to match the forgetmenots.

Quite as effective and cheaper is a ruffle of the material with tiny three tucks run in by hand with blue silk to match embroidery. Sometimes there can be a fine brier stitching or a continuous back stitch.

On the body of the apron is the main decoration. Four rows of bottomless eyelets, rather small and worked in blue mercerized cotton or filo, are arranged lengthwise on apron from waistband to head of ruffle. The two inner rows, an inch or inch and a half to the side of the middle fold, are longer than the outer rows. These rows are about the same distance away as the others are from the center. The length is gauged by slope of ruffle.

Through the eyelets is run blue baby ribbon or the next width wider if possible. It is taken from the bottom of one row to the top, over to outer row and down. It ends at bottom in embroidered clusters of forgetmenots, one at foot of each row of eyelets.

In the central space and between the rows of eyelets are occasional scattered flowerets. Tiny clusters are on ends of strings just above the hemstitched finish.

These flowers are worked in two shades of blue. Do not attempt to shade a flower, but make some of a bunch darker than others. The centers are of yellow French knots, the petals being padded slightly and done in satin stitch.

AN ORIGINAL DRESSING SACK.

A Holiday Present That Requires Little Time and Money in the Making.

This dainty dressing sack would make a mighty acceptable Christmas gift that is inexpensive and practical. For its manufacture is required one and one-fourth yards of material thirty-six inches wide, and it may be fashioned from a straight piece of goods.—No pattern is necessary. The length of the piece is folded in the middle; slit the front from the bottom through to the center of the material, bollowed out in a circle for the neck, and, lo, the foundation is completed. Your folded piece will be square across the shoulders. But, never mind; that is what gives the graceful shape after the lace is applied. Ordinary tea cent challie was used to develop the sack pictured and wash ribbon for the binding brier stitched on. The waist shirring may be in big empire effect or drawn in at the normal line. The joining under the arms is made with wash ribbon, and the armholes are trimmed with a fall of lace.

DRESSING SACK IN ONE PIECE.

Fad For Miniatures Set In Rings.

It being established that fads are fashionable, it is a cause of thankfulness when the passing fancy is one that has charm. That of wearing miniature portraits in rings certainly is an attractive one. Bracelets containing miniatures were worn by fashionable women many years ago, and the ring fad itself really is only a revival of an old custom. That the rings are of necessity large is the only objection to the fad. This fashion is not confined to women, for men also have taken kindly to it.

How to Stuff Sweet Potatoes.

The housewife who neglects to serve sweet potatoes with a palatable stuffing for Christmas dinner will miss giving her family a delectable treat. They are made by choosing large extra sweet potatoes and baking them. After this cut a slit in the side of each and remove the pulp. Season it with butter, salt, pepper, a little lemon juice and a dash of sugar. Beat this together until it is quite light, put back into the skins and bake until the top is brown.

How to Make a Sewing Case.

A useful Christmas gift for any woman, young or old, would be a sewing case. Take a piece of cretonne 6 by 12 inches and line it with plain color, binding the edges with same; then fold it into an envelope shape with a clasp or tied with a ribbon. The inside space divide into small pockets for needles, pins, buttons, thread, thimble and scissors.

THE CHILDREN

A Story

New Year's Game.

...game is intended for the New ...ason. It is a method of making ...resolutions that are called for ...perfect. The object is to write ...ing that is ridiculously impossible.

...y paper and pencil to each of ...rty and request them to ...ive or six resolutions for the ...ear. They may write those that ...one else ought to make.

...player then signs his slip and ...e all folded and collected. Each ...says the People's Home Journal, ...en draws a slip and reads it ...and he must if it be possible ...ute what he reads by action. ...example, A holds a paper signed ...which reads as follows:

...e are the resolutions that I ...for the coming year.

...f I can't do as I like I'll do as ..., so now I read this paper aloud ...'ll hope in a circle before I sit ...(He does so.)

...I must walk with my right foot ...y left side. (He must try to do ...

...I must strike a match on the wa... a glass.

...I must carry water in a sieve ...ile awake player will do this by ...a piece of ice.)

...I must wind the clock on the ...very morning before I awake."

...things that A cannot do will ...a laugh. The game may be ...very amusing if every one writes ...resolutions.

Boy's New Year's Resolutions.

...olve first. He never fight less time ...t.

...olve two. He never spin sass ...er less she Gits on My nerves ...illy. He try being Pasheut in ...t.

...olve three. He never eat another ...after time full. Enuff is enuff for ...Ole pursin.

...olve four. He try to live so as to ...ected Some Day as kaptin of Our ...all team. Its a Honerable Job, ...I want to be honerble most al...

...olve five. He never, never tell ...a. The old Bad Man has got it ...r fellers what Fib to their Maws ...Paws.

...olve six. He not make ugly faces ...augh at gurls Any More. They ...help being Gurls. Natcher made ...what they are, and Boys should ...sorry for em.

...uess this is enuff for This year. ...e ring off and shut up my Resolve ...till next year.

Game In Shadows.

...ide the company of players into ...parts, one part of which is to be ...udience, while the other half acts ...e next room. The acting half ...guess and perform a certain ac...tion which the audience have de...on among themselves, but do not ...e the acting half. As a guide the ...g half should be told the number ...ters in the name of the trade. ...ween the two rooms a sheet should ...awn so that the shadows of the ...rs may fall where they can be ...in the next room. If the occupa... is correctly guessed the sides ...ge places; if incorrectly guessed ...her trial is made. For all shadow ...e the players must act between ...ght, which should be placed low, ...the sheet. A bicycle lamp is use...convenient and very successfully ...in such games.

A Game of Fate.

...ve three glasses nearly filled with ...r. Into one pour enough vinegar ...olor it. Into another pour milk, ...leave the third with pure water in ...blindfold the players in turn and ...change the position of the glass...ut leave them in a row. Turn the ...blinded player around twice and ...lead him up to the table, where ...aces a finger in one of the glasses ...ns his fate. If the glass with the ...ar is chosen the player will re... unmarried. The glass with the ... water means a marriage, while ...lear water denotes marriage and ...th.

Six Times Thirteen In Twelve.

...ce your figures thus:

1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12.

...taking always the first and last ...e together, you say:

1 and 12 make 13
2 and 11 make 13
3 and 10 make 13
4 and 9 make 13
5 and 8 make 13
6 and 7 make 13

Same Thing.

...certain Irishman, though a bad ...ey, was nevertheless very fond of ...es. One day, riding through a ...et, he was accosted by a would be ...

"...ay, do you know what happened ...alaxy?"

"...me as happened to me—an ass ...p to him," came the answer sharp ...uick.

Physicians A...

...e of a laxative, to keep the bowels open and ... from getting into your system.
...The latest product of science is VELVO Laxative Liv... ...ts and of a pleasant, aromatic taste. Velvo act... ...ch and bowels, and is of the greatest possible ef... ...ases, such headache, biliousness, sallow complexion, ...

VELVO L...

FORGETMENOT APRON.

A Charmingly Dainty Gift For a Pretty Girl.

The daintiest apron that could be made as a gift is one of the new forgetmenot effects in sheer white lawn or Paris muslin, much befrilled and trimmed with blue baby ribbon and embroidered forgetmenots to match.

The apron shape is a small oval, reaching about to the knees and no wider than the front of the frock. This is edged with a ruffle two and a half inches deep, put on with a beading and baby ribbon.

The ruffle may be of fine lace, either left plain or with the figures picked out here and there with threads of blue silk to match the forgetmenots. Quite as effective and cheaper is a ruffle of the material with tiny thread picks run in by hand with blue silk to match embroidery. Sometimes this is a fine briar stitching or a couching back stitch.

In the body of the apron is the main decoration. Four rows of horizontal eyelets, rather small and worked in fine mercerized cotton or filo, are arranged lengthwise on apron from waistband to head of ruffle. The two outer rows, an inch or inch and a half on the side of the middle fold, are longer than the outer rows. These last are about the same distance away as others are from the center. The length is gauged by slope of ruffle.

Through the eyelets is run blue baby ribbon of the next width wider if possible. It is taken from the bottom of the cross to the top, over to outer row and down. It ends at bottom in embroidered clusters of forgetmenots, one at the end of each row of eyelets.

In the central space and between the rows of eyelets are occasional scatterings of flowerets. They clusters are on short strings just above the hemstitched finish.

These flowers are worked in two shades of blue. Do not attempt to make a darker, but make some of a lighter than others. The centers are yellow French knots, the petals are slightly outlined in satin stitch.

ORIGINAL DRESSING SACK.

DRESSING SACK IN ONE PIECE.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A New Year's Game.

This game is intended for the New Year season. It is a method of making resolutions that are called for the period. The object is to write something that is ridiculously impossible.

Supply paper and pencil to each of the party and request them all to write five or six resolutions for the coming Year. They may write those that no one else ought to make.

Each player then signs his slip, and they are all folded and collected. Each one, says the People's Home Journal, then draws a slip and reads it aloud, and he must, if it be possible, illustrate what he reads by action.

For example, A. holds a paper signed B., which reads as follows:

"These are the resolutions that I make for the coming year:

"If I can't do as I like I'll do as I must, so now I read this paper aloud.

"I'll hope in a circle before I sit down. (He does so.)

"I must walk with my right foot and my left side. (He must try to do so.)

"I must strike a match on the wall of a glass.

"I must carry water in a sieve.

"I must wide awake player will do this by using a piece of ice.)

"I must wind the clock on the moon every morning before I awake."

Such things that A. cannot do will cause a laugh. The game may be made very amusing if every one writes out resolutions.

A Boy's New Year's Resolutions.

Resolve furst, He never fight less I die right.

Resolve two, He never agin kuss a girl her less she Gits on My nerves awful awful. He try being Pashent in skool.

Resolve three, He never eat anuther pie after ime full. Enuff is enuff for a Ole pursin.

Resolve four, He try to live so as to be elected Some Day as kaptin of Our Base Ball team. Its a Honerable Job, and I want to be honerable most all the time.

Resolve five, He never, never tell enny lies. The old Bad Man has got it in for fellers what Fib to their Maws and Paws.

Resolve six, He not make ugly faces and laugh at gurls Any More. They cant help being Gurls. Natcher made them what they are, and Boys should be sorry for em.

I guess this is enuff for This year. I'll ring off and shut up my Rezolve Book till next year.

Game In Shadows.

Divide the company of players into two parts, one part of which is to be the audience, while the other half acts in the next room. The acting half must guess and perform a certain action which the audience have decided on among themselves, but do not tell the acting half. As a guide the acting half should be told the number of letters in the name of the trade. Between the two rooms a sheet should be drawn, so that the shadows of the players may fall where they can be seen in the next room. If the occupation is correctly guessed the sides change places; if incorrectly guessed another trial is made. For all shadow scenes the players must act between the light, which should be placed low, and the sheet. A bicycle lamp is usually convenient and very successfully used in such games.

A Game of Fate.

Prepare three glasses nearly filled with water. Into one pour enough vinegar to color it. Into another pour milk, and leave the third with pure water in it. Blindfold the players in turn and then change the position of the glasses, but leave them in a row. Turn the blindfolded player around twice and then lead him up to the table, where he places a finger in one of the glasses and so his fate. If the glass with the water is chosen the player will remain unmarried. The glass with the vinegar means a marriage, while the clear water denotes marriage and wealth.

Six Times Thirteen In Twelve.

Place your figures thus:

3, 5, 2, 4, 6, 8, 7, 9, 10, 11, 12.

Taking always the first and last figure together, you say:

1 and 12 make 13
2 and 11 make 13
3 and 10 make 13
4 and 9 make 13
5 and 8 make 13
6 and 7 make 13

Same Thing.

A certain Irishman, though a bad speller, was nevertheless very fond of books. One day, riding through a forest, he was accosted by a would be robber:

"Say, do you know what happened to Adam?"

"The same as happened to me—an ass was given to him," came the answer sharp as a whip.

SUPPRESSED.

A Story That Won a Prize and Yet Was Never Published.

A number of years ago a series of prizes for the best detective story was offered by a certain well known western newspaper, and the late F. H. Burton, in collaboration with a fellow craftsman, entered the competition. Their story, the theme of which involved an ingenious method of robbing a safe in spite of the protection afforded by a time lock, was one of the five which won prizes, and the authors' portraits were duly published in the issue of the paper which announced the result of the competition. The prize money, constituting a considerable sum, was promptly paid over, but to the author's surprise, although the other four winning stories were published, that of the time lock failed to appear. After a few weeks a representative of the paper called upon Mr. Burton, explaining that the editor was anxious to know what authority he had for his story and whether it would really be possible to rob a bank after the fashion that he had set forth. With the help of a pencil and a few diagrams Mr. Burton easily proved the accuracy of the method to the apparent satisfaction of his interviewer and thereafter looked forward to a prompt appearance of the story. But a few days later the secret of the delay was revealed. A special envoy of the paper waited upon him, full of consternation and apology, and prepared to make any amends within reason, but was emphatic in announcing that it was absolutely impossible to publish the story, because after expert investigation they had become convinced that if it should appear in print it would destroy the protective power of every time lock safe in the country, and the representative of the newspaper did not take his leave until he had obtained what Mr. Burton under the circumstances easily granted—a signed agreement releasing the paper from its obligation to publish the story and solemnly pledging himself not to attempt to publish it elsewhere. Accordingly the curiosity piqued by this bit of inside history is likely never to be gratified.—Bookman

KNOCKED FOR RAIN.

And Within an Hour the Wind Veered and the Shower Came.

Frances Gostling, author of "The Britons at Home," has this curious tale of the dolmen of Rocenaud, with its curious cup shaped impressions like the constellation Pleiades: An old woman, a bystander, was asked what the marks were for. "Folks say," said she, "that they were made by the elbows and knees of St. Rock. He fell down on this stone when he landed from Ireland." And then the old woman added: "We use the holes now when we want the wind to change. We knock in them." The story continues: "'Do ask her to knock!' I cried eagerly. There was a moment of hesitation on the part of the old woman, a half franc shown in a careless way, and 'What wind would madam like to have?' 'Southwest,' said I, looking at the cloudless sky.

"The old woman took up a flint and went slowly to the dolmen. Without any pause for reflection she knocked three times in a particular depression, murmuring some words I should not have understood even had they been audible. 'Come,' observed my friend; 'we have yet time to see the rest of the peninsula.'

"The old woman said something, at which M. le Rouzic laughed. 'She says that if we are going farther it will be best to be quick,' said he. 'Why?' 'The rain you asked for will be here shortly.' And in less than an hour it was raining."

Duty.

Duty is a power which rises with us in the morning and goes to rest with us in the evening.—Gladstone.

Task of Being Grateful.

Oh, dear, the holidays are gone
And New Year's day is here—
The day when mother says we should Plan conduct for a year!

* * * * * * *

"Now, Ada, dear, remember that You've notes of thanks to write.
How fine you'll feel with all well done
On this the year's first night!

"Your grandpa and your grandma gave
You books and toys enough
To stock a good sized city shop.
Aunt Nellie sent your muff.

"Thank Uncle Dick for roller skates,
Your Uncle Will for sled,
Aunt Alice for the handkerchiefs
And Hal for dolly's bed.

"'Twas Teddy Green who sent the cat,
And Lottie made the basket.
Now, daughter, dear, begin at once.
This New Year's day—I ask it."

* * * * * * *

Oh, dear, if anything I hate
It is to write a letter!
I really like the old way best;
I do a great deal better.

For then 'twas Santa Claus who brought
The joys of Christmas day.
There were no awful notes to write
When one would rather play.

—Washington Star.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Keep the House Air Moist.

There is such a thing as having a house, or its air at least, too dry. The effect of very dry air is to take moisture too rapidly from skin and mucous membranes. This has two bad results—it produces a feeling of chilliness, making rooms that are really too hot seem too cold, and it injures the throat and air passages. As yet no satisfactory scheme has been devised for keeping the air in a house properly moist in the winter time. Water in furnace pans or in dishes set on radiators supplies only a fraction of the moisture needed. And yet these attempts should not be abandoned; they are far better than nothing. Use pans or dishes of generous size, remembering that the larger the surface of the water the more rapidly it evaporates.—La Follette's Magazine.

Italian Cabbage.

Italian cabbage is a very appetizing dish. Slice two onions and fry them in a little butter, add two cupfuls of boiled rice and one-half cupful of meat stock or hot water, simmer until heated through and then take from the fire and sprinkle with one-half cupful of grated cheese. Parboil cabbage leaves of uniform size, spread them with the rice paste, roll them up, and tie them with white string. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a stewpan and cook until the cabbage is tender. Sprinkle with more grated cheese and serve with tomato sauce.

Carrot Preserves.

Wash the carrots and boil just long enough to enable you to peel them easily. Peel and slice crosswise into pieces about one-quarter of an inch thick. Put into boiling sugar sirup flavored with either lemon or sliced ginger root. Cook until the carrots can be pierced easily with a fork. Pack in jars and seal. For the sirup use three-fourths of a pint of sugar to a pint of carrots and an ounce of ginger root to one-half gallon of sirup.

Safety For Window Washers.

Much of the risk in the calling of window cleaning has been eliminated by the invention of a New York man. This invention is a safety appliance which enables a window washer to go about his or her work without fear of meeting a sudden and horrible death on the pavement eighteen or twenty stories below. First there is a belt, with rings around it. Then there is a cable of two strands which join in a loop, to which a hook is attached. The cable fastens to the belt by the rings. The washer straps the belt around his waist and takes his position on the window sill. The cable, as shown in the illustration, hangs inside, and the hook can be anchored to some heavy piece of furniture or to another hook in the floor or surbase near the window. While this device was designed primarily for professional window cleaners, it will be found useful in private houses.

HOOK HOLDS WORKERS.

Boston Baked Beans.

Pick over beans enough to make two cupfuls, put in a kettle of hot water and boil for five minutes after they begin to boil. Drain and put one small or one-half of a large onion and one-half pound of salt pork in bottom of the pot, then beans, one-half teaspoonful of mustard, one-half teaspoonful of salt (or more) and a large spoonful of molasses. Put in oven and keep covered with hot water six hours or more.

To Steam Brown Bread.

For steaming brown bread use the round pound coffee cans for molds. Butter cans and covers well and pour in batter, leaving room for bread to rise. Be sure covers are on tight and place cans in as small a kettle as will hold them, and fill kettle hot quite half full of water, keeping it at this height all the time. Steam for three hours, and if not brown enough to suit remove cover and bake in a moderate oven about thirty minutes.

Potato Omelet.

One cup of mashed potatoes, three eggs, yolks and white beaten separately; a scant teaspoonful of salt, a dash of white pepper, one-half cup of sweet milk and a heaping teaspoonful of flour. Heat and grease a large saucepan or frying pan and pour the mixture into it. Keep on top of stove at moderate heat till set and browned on underside, then set on the rack in the oven to brown on top.

Candied Orange Peel.

A new way to prepare candied orange peel is to boil the peel, changing the water two or three times, until the bitter taste is removed. Drain dry, weigh and cover with sugar allowing [illegible] to a pound of peel. Put in a saucepan with enough water to dissolve the sugar, and boil slowly until the peel is transparent. Lift out the pieces with a fork, roll in sugar and dry in the sun or in a warm oven.

CUPBOARDS OF TODAY.

More Compact Though Not as Artistic as Old Fashioned Style.

The cupboards of today are unlike the artistic old fashioned creations, inasmuch as they are liberally provided for, and consequently are more compact in construction. The idea now seems to be to intrude all sorts of odd niches into all our apartments rather than limit cupboard space to one capacious jog in one certain room. It is really a good idea, too, for odd nooks filled with china, pottery or books are always pleasing additions to a room, no matter how attractive it may already be. The arrangement of spaces to ensconce these cupboards is now as carefully thought out as the equipment of the house itself, and present day architects are beginning to realize the importance of carefully planning these nooks in the most artistic manner possible.

A model frequently employed for use in the dining room and sometimes in the living room as well is the old time buffet above described, but decreased in size to accommodate the less commodious dimensions of twentieth century rooms. It is generally entirely glassed in rather than partly, as were the original receptacles, sometimes with broad panes, but generally with the diamond shaped lights, to carry out further the old time idea. If the room where it is ensconced, says the Boston Cooking School Magazine, is colonial in character it is sure to prove charming, and the bits of grandmother's beloved china that have stood the test of years will look familiar behind the primly leaded panes.

AN OLD CHINA CABINET.

Spaces beside the fireplace present excellent opportunities for the arrangement of built in cupboards, wherein may be stored books or china, and it is a matter of small difficulty to have them recessed and fitted with shelves. Whether or not they should be inclosed with doors is a matter of personal taste. In either case they are sure to fill in a bare spot most acceptably. Sometimes the same cupboard can extend into two rooms on opposite sides of the partition, a set of shelves being arranged on either side and used for different purposes. The Adams cupboard seen in the illustration is a delightful example of old fashioned effects that are much sought after today.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS.

"If I am out of furniture polish," said a woman who owns some beautiful old oak pieces, "all I do to my chairs, tables and chests is to dust them thoroughly, wash them when washing is needed with vinegar and water and rub them well with a few drops of paraffin oil on a cloth and finally with a clean cloth. This treatment polishes them just enough and keeps the grain showing beautifully."

"For a long time," said a young housekeeper, "our clothes kept coming up from the laundry looking not quite clean and with dun colored stains on them here and there. I reasoned with the laundress, but it didn't do any good, so I decided to investigate the laundry. And what do you think I found? Simply that Annie hadn't cleaned the tubs properly. You know, we haven't the modern porcelain tubs. We have the zinc tubs which are still found in so many houses and eke these out with portable wooden tubs. When I found that the laundress in her hurry generally put these tubs away dripping and slimy with soapsuds I didn't wonder at the stains on our clothes. I always inspect the laundry the day after wash day now."

"Do you inspect the kitchen saucepans?" asked the physician of the mother whose child was ailing. "In more cases than you would imagine illness is caused by lack of care of kitchen utensils. The maid, ignorant or overworked or careless, doesn't take time to go into the corners and crevices of pots and pans, which, by the way, are made with far too many corners. The Chinese are wiser. Many of their cooking utensils are round, with no places where fragments of food can catch and decay and breed microbes. [illegible] Chattanooga.

WARREN TOPPAN, Lynn, Mass.

Cured of severe compound cold and cough by

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

Your Money Back If You Are Not Satisfied.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

That Necessary Magazine

—for the thinking man—for the professional man—for the busy business man—and his family; in short, it's for You

25 cents per copy

$3.00 a year

The Review of Reviews

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

¶ It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

OUR 1909-10 CATALOGUE

of all American magazines is a money-saver. You can't afford to order for next year without first seeing it. If you appreciate superior agency service, and demand maximum magazine value for the fewest dollars, write for it—today. It's free to YOU.

The Review of Reviews Company, New York

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps

Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades,

Crockery, Glass and

Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies
We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE

Physicians Advise

use of a good laxative, to keep the bowels open and prevent the poisons of undigested food from getting into your system.

The latest product of science is VELVO Laxative Liver Syrup, purely vegetable, gentle, mild and of a pleasant, aromatic taste. Velvo acts on the liver, as well as on the stomach and bowels, and is of the greatest possible efficacy in constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache, feverishness, colic, flatulence, etc. Try VF 1

VELVO LAXATIVE LIVER SYRUP

Miniatures Set In Rings.

It is established that fads are durable, it is a cause of thankfulness that the passing fancy is one of wearing miniatures in rings certainly is an agreeable one. Bracelets containing miniatures were worn by fashionable ladies many years ago, and the ring now really is only a revival of an old fashion. That the rings are of necessity small is the only objection to them. This fashion is not confined to women, for men also have taken to it.

to Stuff Sweet Potatoes.

[illegible] sweet potatoes to serve [illegible] with a palatable stuffing [illegible] Christmas dinner will [illegible] a delectable treat [illegible] by choosing large ex[illegible] and boiling them [illegible] the side of [illegible] the pulp. Season it [illegible] pepper a little lemon [illegible] of sugar. Beat this [illegible] it is quite light, put [illegible] skins and bake until the [illegible]

to Make a Sewing Case

[illegible] Christmas gift for any woman [illegible] or old, should be a sewing [illegible] a piece of cretonne 6 by 12 [illegible] and line it with plain color, [illegible] the edges with same; then [illegible] an envelope shape with a [illegible] tied with a ribbon. The inside [illegible] divide into small pockets [illegible] pins, bodkins, thread, [illegible] and scissors.

Clanton Furniture [illegible] living on his reputation. Mankitch—No wonder he looks so thin. —Illustrated Bits.

[illegible] it contains fat, and profitable [illegible] fats will not be produced unless cows [illegible] are fed on rations rich in the elements [illegible] that produce cream.

THE BANNER

FRANK CRICHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. Loyd Tate.

The political pot is beginning to boil thus early in the year, soon it will be simmering and we would not be surprised if it shortly boils over.

Big, busy, bustling Birmingham is very much elated at its promising future. good luck to it say we.

Miss Montgomery presents a pretty picture in the Advertiser cartoon, and while she is not so big a girl as Sister Birmingham, she is proud of her antecedents and secure in her present position.

Raise your own home supplies—hog and hominy are good, wholesome good for man, and corn and oats help your help; when you raise it yourself it is far better than paying out cash for it.

Thousand Dollar Illustration

Income, $1,000; expenditure, $999.99—happiness.

Income, $1,000; expenditure, $1,000.00—misery.

Income, $1,000; expenditure, $1,500—gay time.—Puck.

The Name "Pepys."

How should "Pepys" be pronounced? Percy Lubbock, who wrote a biography of Samuel Pepys, declares "Peeps." But there are many people living and talking who call themselves "Peppis." In 1679 was published a volume called "Lucida Intervalla," by James Carcasse, who was a clerk in the office of Pepys. He did not like Pepys and would have been glad to spell it "Peeps." But he didn't. He wrote:

Get thee behind me, then; dumb devil begone!
The Lord hath Ephthatha said to my tongue.
Him I must praise who opened hath my lips,
Sent me from navy to the ark by Pepys.

From this the London Chronicle concludes that to his contemporary Pepys was "Pips."

Joe Miller Was Not a Joker.

Joe Miller, who is generally believed to have been the soul of wit, never made a single joke in his life. He was an actor and so grave in manner as to become the butt of other people's hilarity. When any witticism went the round Miller was accused of its authorship, and he would never deny it. He lived an exemplary life and died universally respected. But no sooner was he dead than appeared "Joe Miller's Jests; or, The Wits' Vade Mecum," compiled by "Elijah Jenkins, Esq."—that is to say, forged by John Mottley, the Jacobite, just as years before Hobson's "Polly Peachum" and Ben Johnson's "Jests" had been forged.

The Masculine Wig.

Civilization has to thank the French revolution and the subsequent wars for masculine emancipation from the wig. It was partly the scarcity of flour and the war tax on hair powder that banished the powdered wig, but partly also the leveling influence of Jacobinism. "I do not know the present generation by sight," wrote Walpole in 1791, complaining that the young men "in their dirty shirts and shaggy hair have leveled nobility as much as the nobility in France have."

Unfair.

Hazel, aged seven, while feeding the cat at the dinner table was reproved by her father, who told her that the cat must wait until later, whereupon the small girl wept and said:

"I think it is a shame just because she is a poor dumb animal to treat her like a hired girl."—Harper's Magazine.

But Did She?

"My 'head aches awfully," she sighed. "If you weren't here I'd take my hair off and rest it."

"My heart," he said, [illegible] the prize offered for the best bushel of corn.

TAKING THE CENSUS.

"The simple test which candidates for enumerators' places will undergo February 5 does not take away the supervisors' right under the census law to designate suitable persons for such positions," said Supervisor of Census George W. Parsons at his office today.

"It is designed to aid the supervisors in the exercise of that discretion and to enable the Census Director intelligently to use the power of approval of the supervisors' designations conferred upon him by law.

"It is very well understood that President Taft, Secretary Nagel, and census director Durand all hold the supervisors responsible for the enumeration. There is no doubt, therefore, that our first and most important duty is the selection of honest, capable and active persons to make the count.

"The census will be taken, not by the census bureau officers or the supervisors, but by the enumerators. They are the ones who come in contact with the people and get the facts. Unless every single enumerator does his whole and proper duty there can not be a correct census. There can not be anything of greater scientific value to this country than accurate statistics as the basis of a study of the existing conditions regarding our population, agriculture, manufactures, and mines and quarries.

"All persons, unless specifically disqualified, are entitled to apply to take the test. Only those under 18 years of age and over 70, and those who have not become citizens of the United States, are barred. Otherwise, all persons, regardless of sex and political affiliations are eligible. It is left to my judgment whether it is wise to appoint women in my district. They can do the work, I have no doubt, especially in certain parts of the district. There were a good many employed all over the country in the twelfth census.

"The time for closing the consideration of applications is January 25. Those received after that date will have to be ignored. Applications should be addressed in writing to me at this office and not to the census director. I will send inquirirs the necessary form and instructions concerning it. Afterward I will send those on the list, prior to the test, a set of directions for filling out the test papers. This will enable everyone to come well prepared. Nothing could be fairer or better calculated to insure a satisfactory applicant passing the test.

"The test itself need not deter anyone. Any person with common sense and a common-school education can pass it. All it consists of is giving the candidates sample population and agricultural schedules, upon which are to be written in the proper columns the required details, which are found in printed descriptions, in narrative form, of typical families and farms supposed to be in a district. There will be some instances requiring the exercise of judgment to decide whether a given entry should be made under one column heading or another. You can see how simple and elementary it is.

"The test will be held all over the country and in every supervisor's district February 5. There will be several places in each district for taking it. One place would be insufficient. It would not hold all the candidates. As supervisor, I shall have the direction of all, and the test examination at each, no matter under what official agency it is held, will be that sole and simple one prescribed by the census director.

"I am given until February 22 to rate the papers in a very simple way, and to gain an idea of the qualifications of those rated as having passed. Next I will forward the papers of the successful candidates, with my recommendations or designations, to the census director He will, if satisfied that suitable persons have been selected, give his consent to their appointment, and they will be commissioned. The middle or latter part of March should see everything settled, and the selected and commissioned enumerators will be sent more circulars and books of instructions relative to the interpretation or meaning of the questions on the two schedules.

"April 15 the census army will move forward in the enumeration.

"Certainly the Federal census taking is as necessary and as honorable as jury duty, and, as all good and useful citizens do not hesitate to respond to the call for such duty, I therefore ask the same highgrade citizenship to come forward and help me have the census taken accurately and expeditiously.

"As President Taft has said, the pay is not large but the work is [illegible] well, and some day we [illegible]

AGAINST STOCK LAW.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to stock law. I notice that there is an election ordered the 18th of this month, then it will be left to the qualified voters to say whether stock shall run at large in Beat 10 or not, and I want to say that I oppose stock law on general principles. I think it will injure a greater number than it will benefit. While I never lived in stock law, it has been my lot to travel through stock law districts at different times, and I seen so much of its evil effects until I think the voters of Beat 10 should consider this question well before they vote for stock law. It is no strange sight in a stock law district to see some frail woman or little little child dragging along under a blazing sun after an old cow, staking her out on some hedge that they may get the milk to sustain life, and no doubt in my mind that if they get stock law in Beat 10, in a short time some of the men that voted for it will have their wives running after old cows, worrying their lives away, all on account of stock law; and I wouldn't blame these good women when it comes to throw hot water on everything, commencing with the "old man."

Now, Mr. Editor, we had an election on stock law in this Beat about a year ago and it was discussed pro and con in your paper until I think everybody got tired of it, and the greatest argument the advocates of stock law could put up was, "It is not right for my cows to eat the grass off my neighbor's woodland." Oh yes, these land kings are so honest until they had rather their land would grow up in briars and be inhabited by varments and other deadly reptiles than for some poor old widow's cow to eat their grass.

Let me say to the boys to give this question some thought, for it is worthy of your consideration as it will affect every individual more or less in the Beat, and go to the polls on the 18th and vote your convictions and we will snow the advocates of stock law under so deep until it will be two years before they rise again.

Let me say, in conclusion, that I am not writing from a selfish motive, for I am fixed for stock law, I say, without fear of being successfully contradicted, that there are not ten men in the Beat that can fix for stock law as well as I am, for I have pasture land in abundance already fenced, but I can make more out of my pastures to have the range and I am sure some of my neighbors can.

Respectfully,
M. C. Williams.

THE RIBBON SANDWICH.

An Appropriate Dainty to Serve During Christmas Holidays.

An unusually pretty sandwich is of the "ribbon" variety, says the Delineator. To make it cut five slices of white bread about half an inch thick and spread each with softened sweet butter before slicing it from the loaf. Trim off the crust from the slices and shape the latter into squares of even size, about 3 by 3 inches.

Lay each slice, buttered side up, upon a pastry board. Spread the first one with cream cheese rubbed smooth with minced parsley and cress, the latter previously sprinkled very slightly with lemon juice. Cover the next slice with a thin layer of smoked tongue freed from skin and gristle. Strew the third with riced yoke of a hard egg seasoned with salt, pepper and a bit of dry mustard and put a layer of smoked salmon or of rosy ham on the fourth slice.

Pile the slices one upon the other evenly and in the order mentioned and top them with the fifth slice laid with the buttered side downward. Wrap carefully in a cheesecloth binder which has been slightly dampened and weight with a book for an hour or so.

When ready to serve remove the cheesecloth and divide the little brick into thin slices, cutting downward with a keen edged carving knife. The result will be a square formed of half inch strips of bread pressed together and crossed by lines of green, red, yellow and pink. A different style of ribbon sandwich is made with a number of slices of brown bread and of white bread piled alternately, each slice previously spread with cream cheese blended with finely minced nuts and overlaid with a crisp leaf of lettuce. When sliced downward the sandwich shows a pretty medley of brown and white crossed with hair lines of light green.

Ancient Eyeglasses.

"Indeed, the ancients did have eyeglasses," said the schoolgirl. "My history says, 'The Romans were extremely fond of spectacles.'"—New York Post.

The Yard.

Myer—Try one of these long cigars. They measure four to the yard. Gyer—What yard—the graveyard?—Chicago News.

A 50-cent bottle of

Scott's Emulsion

given in half-teaspoon doses four times a day, mixed in its bottle, will last a year-old baby nearly a month, and four bottles over three months, and will make the baby strong and well and will lay the foundation for a healthy, robust boy or girl.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a "Good" Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, N. Y.

PROGRAM

For S. S. Convention, District No. 6, to be held at Pleasant Grove Baptist church, four miles west of Maplesville, Jan. 29, 1910.

9:30 a.m. Devotional exercise by N. W. Latham.

10. How can the opening service of the Sunday School be made attractive? Discussed by W. O. Perry, P. G. Maness.

10:30. What can be done with a teacher who cannot get through with the lesson on time? Discussed by T. U. Crumpton, W. J. Ruddick. Song.

11. a.m. What are some of the most serious hinderances to the Sunday School? Discussed by W. H. Connell, G. W. Fox. Song.

11:30. Enrollment of delegates. Dinner.

1.30 p.m. What part of the Sunday School service should be conducted by the assistant superintendent? Discussed by P. G. Maness, W. H. Connell and others. Song.

2:30. Select next place of meeting; miscellaneous business and adjournment.

It is earnestly requested that all parties who are interested in Sunday work be present and help us, especially those of District 6, for this is a meeting of great interest to the district work. Come over and help us.

N. L. Broadhead, Dist. Pres.

Railway Mail Clerks Wanted

The Government pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1200, and other employees up to $2,500 annually.

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks and other government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in city or country can get instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 11 Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.

Her Position Here and Its Influence in the Old World.

There is no doubt that the most interesting thing to the European who lands on the northern shores of the new world is the American woman—that happy, victorious heroine of modern femininism who has discovered how to extract from the new condition of woman all the advantages with almost none of the inconveniences; that being who has known how to assume the masculinity in all that regards independence and liberty of action and remain feminine in grace, charm and altruism; that American beauty, that American genius, whose wonders are seen and felt in all the American and European reviews, whose writers declare her to be engaged almost entirely in severe study, in masculine work, sport and similar occupations.

Europe, moreover, is right. The American woman is not only one of the most interesting phenomena of North America, but is also the phenomenon of the new world that might have the greatest and gravest effect on the old, shaking on their foundations the essential principles of our female instruction and training, overthrowing the society of the old continent or continents, which rest to a greater extent than is realised on the antique functions of woman in the family and in society.—Gina Lombroso Ferrero in Putnam's Magazine.

Taught by Experience.

"We shall need," said the officer who was arranging for the government expedition, "food supplies for six men and a boy."

"Supplies for eight men," said the secretary, jotting it down. "What else?"—Chicago Tribune.

J. C. JONES & CO.

—DEALER IN—

Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, Hats, Etc.

AND COTTON BUYER

LET YOUR CHRISTMAS GIFTS BE SERVICEABLE GIFTS

We have a line of substantial merchandise good for Xmas presents that will be valuable after the holidays are over.

BUY SOMETHING THAT WILL LAST

J. C. JONES & CO.

CLANTON - - - ALA.

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Is one of the latest additions to Clanton's business center, and one of the most attractive and commodious places of its kind in town, situated on southeast corner of the square. They invite you to call on them when in town and make their store your headquarters. Their stock of Millinery is complete; their Trimmer from St. Louis is right up to-date. If its quality, style and prices you are looking for, their store is the place for you. Mrs. Clara Mullins is general manager, and will be glad to wait on you.

C. R. Mullins will continue his same old business, of Fire Insurance, Life Insurance, Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs, in the new Company's store. He thanks you for past favors and solicits your future business.

Yours truly,
THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO

NEW FEED STORE

At Goodgame's Old Stand, near Lowe's Shop

Handle Loose Hulls, Sacked Hulls, also a good quality of Cotton Seed Meal, Corn, and Hay

I also buy Scrap Iron, Hides, Green and Green Salted and Flint Hides.

BEST PRICES BOTH WAYS

CALL AND SEE ME
N. B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

Are You Honest?

With your land when for the sake of saving a few dollars you use a fertilizer whose only recommendation is its analysis. It requires no special knowledge to mix materials to analyses. The value of a fertilizer lies in the materials used, so as not to over feed the plant at one time and starve at another. This is why Royster brands are so popular. Every ingredient has its particular work to do. Twenty-five years experience in making goods for Southern crops has enabled us to know what is required.

See that trade mark is on every bag

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

TOWN ITEMS.

County court meets second Monday, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in September and first Monday in December.

CLANTON COTTON MART
Price to-day ..... 13½ @ 13½c
Same date last year ..... 9 @ 10c

No. Bales received to date
Warehouse receipts to 5 p.m. Wednesday 3512

Mr. W. K. Mullins left Monday to re-enter the Georgia Military Academy, at College Park, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Higgins visit relatives at Huntsville during the holidays.

Mr. C. Fenn Jones visited relatives at Wetumpka Thursday.

Miss Leta Chewning of Roanoke, Ala is visiting Mrs. W. W. Lavy.

Misses Ada Stanley, Ola Sample and Julie Lawrence returned Sunday after to take up their work in the school here, after having spent the holidays at their respective homes.

Dr. and Mrs. E. G Hyman visited relatives at Jemison during the holidays

Misses Ruby Dauns and Carrie Little John left Tuscaloosa to finish the term at the A. C. F. C.

Mr Sam Latham returned to Tuscaloosa to enter University of here.

Mr and Mrs F. C. Dennis attended a family reunion at Dr Dennis in Montgomery Sunday and Monday.

Mr. Crit Jones, who for years past has been clerking with some of the principal merchants of Clanton has entered into partnership with his brother, and will be pleased to see his friends at the store of B. F. Jones & Bro.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Kendrick of Verbena were visitors to Clanton Wednesday.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Misses Carrie Little John and Rubie Downs returned to school at Tuscaloosa Tuesday.

Capt W A Middleton is spending a few days with his sons in Birmingham.

Mrs Gamma Anderson, we regret to say, is on the sick list this week.

Mr and Mrs. John C. Oates have removed to Birmingham.

Mr Burns Marsh of Maplesville was a visitor to Clanton this week and says he is well pleased with his new location.

Mr Sam Latham returned to the State University Monday.

Misses Sula Greer and Sallie Goggins, of Cooper, visited Mrs Mary Foshee the past week.

Misses Ellen Baldwin and Ruth DeRamus, two of Verbena's most attractive young ladies were in Clanton last week, visiting Mrs J. Mills. Come again we are always glad to have you.

Miss Lurline Harper left Monday for Autaugaville, where she has accepted a position as teacher. The charming young lady will be sadly missed by her many friends in Clanton

Miss Emma Guin, of West Point, Ga., has accepted a position as stenographer in the law office of Hon Tipter Mullins

Mr George Wilkins of Maplesville has removed his family to Clanton We welcome them in our midst

If you have a good country dwelling, well cared for and unincumbered, I can insure it for you in an old line company. C. R. Mullins Agent.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr Jasper Glass and Miss Nevada Cobb; Mr Harvey Simmons and Miss Cora Checkler; Monroe Smith and Miss Lee Childress; Mr Bennie Morris and Miss Ida Kliner; Mr H E Barr and Miss Maudie Jones; Mr Davis and Miss Zadie Wilson

Colored: Joe Hill and Sarah Smitherman; Noah Melton and Pearlie Peoples; Walter Gibbs and Ardonie Gentry

Making Life Safer.

Everywhere life is being made safer through the work of Dr. King's New Life Pills in Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver troubles, Kidney Disorders and Bowel Disorders. They're easy but sure, and perfectly build up health. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER Office

NES & CO.

LER IN—g, Shoes, Hats, Etc.

TON BUYER

AS GIFTS
SERVICEABLE GIFTS

stantial merchandise good ill be valuable after the bol

THAT WILL LAST

ES & CO.

- - ALA.

MILLINERY CO.

Clanton's business center, and one o
s places of its kind in town, situated
They invite you to call on them your headquarters. Their stock of mer from St. Louis is right up toes you are looking for, their store is lins is general manager, and will be same old business of Fire Insur-chines, Pianos and Organs, in the you for past favors and solicits your truly,

NTON MILLINERY CO

STORE

and, near Lowe's Shop

ked Hulls, also a good
d. Meal, Corn, and Hay

Hides, Green and Green lint Hides.

BOTH WAYS

O SEE ME

B. TRAYLOR

CLANTON, ALA.

You
st?

d when for the
a few dollars rtilizer whose ndation is its quires no speto mix mates. The value
es in the mao as not to plant at one e at another.
oyster brands
r. Every in-its particular Twenty-five ce in making hern crops has know what is k is on every bag

MARK
S.R.
ERED

Guano Co.

K, VA.

at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

...hors' court meets second Monday, first Monday in April, first June, second Monday in July ...day in August and first Monday ...r.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...to day..... 15¼ @ 15½c
same date last year 9¼ @ 10c

No. Bales received to date
Warehouse receipts
to 5 p.m. Wednesday....5802

Mr. W. K. Mullins left Monday to re-enter the Georgia Military Academy, at College Park, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Higgins visited relatives at Huntsville during the holidays.

Mr. C. Fenn Jones visited relatives at Wetumpka Thursday.

Miss Leta Chewning of Roanoke Ala is visiting Mrs. W. W. Lawry.

Misses Ada Stanley, Ola Sample and Julie Lawrence returned Sunday after to take up their work in the school here, after having spent the holidays at their respectivec homes.

Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Hyman visited relatives at Jemison during the holidays

Misses Ruby Dauns and Carrie Little John left Tuscaloosa to finish the teum at the A. C. F. C.

Mr Sam Latham returned to Tuscaloosa to enter University of here.

Mr and Mrs P. C. Dennis attended a family reunion at Dr Dennis in Montgomery Sunday and Monday.

Mr. Crit Jones, who for years past has been clerking with some of the principal merchants of Clanton, has entered into partnership with his brother, and will be pleased to see his friends at the store of B. E. Jones & Bro.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Kendrick of Verbena were visitors to Clanton Wednesday.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Misses Carrie Littlejohn and Rubie Downs returned to school at Tuscaloosa Tuesday.

Capt W A Middleton is spending a few days with his sons in Birmingham.

Mrs Gamma Anderson, we regret to say, is on the sick list this week.

Mr and Mrs. John C. Oates have removed to Birmingham.

Mr Burns Marsh of Maplesville was a visitor to Clanton this week, and says he is well pleased with his new location.

Mr Sam Latham returned to the State University Monday.

Misses Sula Greer and Sallie Goggins, of Cooper, visited Mrs Marion Foshee the past week.

Misses Ellen Baldwin and Kate DeRamus, two of Verbena most attractive young ladies were in Clanton last week, visiting Mrs R, J. Mills. Come again we are always glad to have you.

Miss Lurline Harper left Monday for Autaugaville, where she has accepted a position as teacher. This charming young lady will be sadly missed by her many friends in Clanton

Miss Emma Guin, of West Point Ga., has accepted a position as stenographer in the law office of Hon Tipter Mullins

Mr George Wilkins of Maplesville has removed his family to Clanton We welcome them in our midst

If you have a good country dwelling, well cared for and unincumbered, I can insure it for you in an old line company. C. R. MULLINS, Agent.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr Jasper Glass and Miss Nellie Nevada Cobb; Mr Harvey Sammons and Miss Cora Cleckler; Mr Monroe Smith and Miss Lenora Childress; Mr Bannie Morris and Miss Ida Kliner; Mr H E Barnhill and Miss Mandie Jones; Mr A T Davis and Miss Zadie Wilson

Colored: Joe Hill and Sarah E Smitherman; Noah Melton and Pearlie Peoples; Walter Gibbons and Ardonie Gentry

Making Life Safer.

Everywhere life is being made more safe through the work of Dr. King's New Life Pills in Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver troubles, Kidney Diseases and Bowel Disorders. They're easy, but sure, and perfectly build up the health. 25c at Upchurch Drug co.

New Goods

Our Mr. E. M. Pinckard and Mr. Harvey Chandler are now in the Northern market selecting a stock of the latest goods.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.

At a live and let live price

FONE 317

W. H. SARTOR

Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

CLANTON, ALA.

B. E. JONES — CRIT JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

Wish all of their friends a

HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF

Dry Goods, Shoes, Hats, Notions

FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully

B. E. JONES & BRO.

CLANTON, ALA.

NOT BURIED AT SEA.

The Humane French Boatman and the Dead Englishman.

A long expected French lugger was seen making for the roadstead, and the Lowestoft free traders were on the alert, anxiously seeking an opportunity for communicating with her crew. While they waited for a lapse of vigilance on the part of the excise men a boat was lowered from the lugger and rowed toward the shore. A curious crowd of beach men and excise men assembled to meet her, and as she came in on the crest of a roller it was observed that she contained a coffin.

The French boatmen had a mournful tale to tell. On board the lugger had been an Englishman suffering from an illness which soon proved fatal. In his last moments of consciousness he had begged the captain not to bury him at sea, but to keep his body until a resting place could be found for it under the green turf of a churchyard in his native land. Sympathy with his sad fate and the knowledge that the lugger was not far from the English coast had induced the captain to consent, and now he had sent the body ashore for burial. In spite of his broken English the Frenchmen's spokesman told his tale well.

Both excise men and beach men—especially the latter—loudly expressed their admiration of the captain's conduct. A parson was summoned, and in a little while a mournful procession made its way from the beach to the churchyard. Even the chief officer of the excise men was present and is said to have shed tears.

That night the local "resurrectionists" were busy, and at dawn the churchyard contained a desecrated grave. A little way inland, however, in the midst of the marshes, a smugglers' store received the addition of a coffin filled with silks and lace.—"Highways and Byways in East Anglia," by W. A. Dutt.

Worse Yet.

Mamma—Johnny, you bad boy, you've been fighting again! Your clothes are so badly torn that I'll probably have to get you a new suit. Johnny—That's nothing, mamma. You just ought to see Tommy Jones. I'll bet his mamma will have to get a new boy.—Chicago News.

Flying Fishes.

A dazzling silvery splendor pervades the surface of the body of the best known species of the flying fish. The summit of its head, its back and its sides are of azure blue. This blue becomes spotted upon the dorsal fin, the pectoral fin and the tail. This fish is the common prey of the sea birds and the more voracious fishes, such as the shark. Its enemies abound in air and water. If it succeeds in escaping the Charybdis of the water the chances are in favor of its meeting its fate in the Scylla of the atmosphere. If it escapes the jaws of the shark it will probably fall to the share of the seagull.

Too Honest.

Woggs—Young Smith has failed in business again. I'm sorry for the boy, but too close adherence to high principles ruined him. Boggs—How so? Woggs—He advertised, "Our product is thoroughly tested before it leaves the factory," which is a very hard thing to live up to when you are manufacturing dynamite.—Puck.

Quite at Home.

Bacon—And did you feel at home traveling in Russia? Egbert—Oh, quite at home. When the brakemen called out the stations I couldn't understand them any better than I can over here.—Yonkers Statesman.

American Farm Tools.

American plows and cultivators are turning up the soil in more than seventy countries and colonies of the world—in Japan in 1908 $22,000 worth, in Asiatic Turkey $14,000, in New Zealand $50,000, in British South Africa $222,000, in Portuguese Africa $31,000, in Cuba $85,000 worth, while Argentina took $780,000 worth, Canada $474,000, Russia in Europe $230,000 and Asiatic Russia $750,000 worth.

Trend Toward the Farm.

It begins to look as though the farmer has got to pay the prices that other people pay for labor. The panic made the situation a little easier, but it has not relieved it permanently. It will be easier for a few years, but manufacturing and other enterprises will again absorb the supply of labor and leave the farmer just as he was.

Personal.

Dr P. I. Hopkins made a professional visit to Birmingham Tuesday.

Messrs. N. A. Kicker and J. W. Stanfield attended the funeral of Mr W. H. Merritt in Birmingham last week.

Messrs. E. M. Pinckard and Harvey Chandler have returned from a business trip to Louisville.

For old line Fire Insurance, Life Insurance and Singer Machines, call on C. R. MULLINS, Agent.

Messrs. Geter and Lee McMillian have sold out their turpentine distillery interests and have gone to Florida to engage in business

Mr Joe Teel returned to Birmingham to resume his studies at the business college after spending the holidays at home

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by all druggists.

A meeting of the Peoples Telephone Company was held on Monday and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J M Potts; Secretary, Archie Mahan; Treasurer, J M Robinson

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into Joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purgative. Sold by all druggists.

Hon J O Middleton spent Tuesday in Birmingham

Mr H H Smith and wife of Birmingham, who have been spending the holidays here, returned home Wednesday

Mrs Renfroe Mullins has gone on a visit to her grandmother in Arkansas

Mrs Clara Beasley, of Jemison, was a visitor here Monday

Mr Guy Higgins and family spent the new year at Huntsville

Mr W H Killingsworth gave us a pleasant call Wednesday

Mr G T Brigance, of Billingsley, was in town Tuesday

A Wretched Mistake

to endure the itching, painful distress of Piles. There's no need to. Listen: "I suffered much from Piles, writes Will. A. Marsh, of Silver City, N. C., "till I got a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and was soon cured." Burns, Boils, Ulcers Fever Sores, Eczema, Cuts, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, vanish before it. 25c. at Upchurch Drug Co

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Children who suffer from swelling of the glands should have abundance of fresh air both by day and night and a complete change of air as often as possible. Plenty of good, nourishing food should be given them, and cod liver oil or emulsion is also helpful in putting things right.

Women who have prominent ears may modify their size by the individual dressing of the hair, bringing it low and partially concealing them. At night a rubber bandage may be employed, which is brought down to cover the ears and a piece adjusted at the back to hold it in place.

A simple exercise which may be indulged in at almost any time of day when the woman is at leisure is the contraction and expansion of the abdomen to keep it flat. Sit very erect in a chair or stand with the shoulders well back. Clasp the hands across the abdomen and without moving any other part of the body quickly contract the abdominal muscles. Hold a second and then relax quickly. Do not lift the chest in the exercise.

Nothing is uglier than a skin that is coarsened by enlarged pores. With all one's care it is bound to get clogged and add blackheads to its unsightliness. A good lotion that has been known to relieve this tendency in many instances is made by mixing one dram of boric acid with four ounces of witch hazel. Apply night and morning. Any one with pores of this kind should make it a point to use an astringent wash of some kind after the face has been washed in hot water, as the heat opens the pores.

Are You Bilious?

The most of people sometimes are. This gives rise to many diseases and unfits a man or woman for the duties and enjoyments of life. Ask a general Liver Medicine, good for the whole family, one that has been long tried and endorsed, there is none that is equal to Granger's Liver regulator. It rids the system of all poisons and effete matter and gives good health Druggists sell it in.tin boxes at 25 cents per box. Every family should have this remedy on hand and use it as occasion requires. It will save suffering and doctors bills. Send for booklet to th. Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Watch this space for our 1910
special adv.

A. HEADLEY & SON

CORNER SECOND AVE., AT DEPOT.

CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—

A M. JOHNSON'S

CASH GROCERY STORE

THORSBY, ALA.

FOR BARGAINS IN

Staple and Fancy Groceries

ON THE FLAT SHELL

Oysters Opened That Way With a Purpose, the Waiter Said.

The waiter had taken a long time in getting the oysters, but as he was well known to his guests and his guests to him that occasioned no comment When the oysters were brought the waiter set them down before his customer and asked:

"Do you like them better that way?"

The diner looked, but he didn't notice any difference, so he asked, "What way?"

"Why, on the flat shell," replied the waiter. "Don't you see they aren't on the curved part of the shell, as usual?"

"I see it now that you tell me about it," said the diner, "but I don't exactly get the significance."

"Well, you see," said the waiter, "they always keep them upstairs on the round shell, and when any one calls for oysters if they do come on the round shell it isn't a certainty that they have been opened fresh. Sometimes they aren't good, just because they have been standing. When I call for them on the flat shell, as I do for some of my customers, then they have to open them specially for that order In that way you get them fresh."

"Ah, I see!" remarked the diner.

But when he told the professional cynic about it the cynic said something about betting that they kept them standing opened in both ways.

"Besides, any one knows they look fatter on the flat shell, which is all the more reason they'd be likely to serve them to some folks that way. If they asked for extra large oysters they'd get them on the flat shell. The same oysters on the curved shell would go as ordinary sized oysters," remarked the cynic gloomily.—New York Sun.

The Humble Librettist.

In the history of opera there are many curious anomalies, but perhaps the strangest is the role played by the librettist. For the most part obscure and unimportant and generally unremembered, his ranks have nevertheless been recruited from the ablest and most brilliant men of letters. Among those who have undertaken the part are such unlikely names as Voltaire, Goethe, Wieland, Addison and Fielding, while others of considerable poetic talent, as, for example, Metastasio, Calzabigi, Rinuccini, Boito and Coppee, have tried their hand at libretto writing with assurance, giving to it their best efforts. And yet the successful librettists are few—the merest handful out of a harvest of three centuries—Forum.

How Sunshine Beats Down.

It is a common thing on hot days to hear people say that "the sun beats down." But few suspect that the rays of light actually do beat down upon the surface they strike. Light is a wave motion in the ether, and waves, whether of sound or water, press on bodies in their way. Clerk Maxwell calculated the pressure of light, and experiments of Herr Lebedew have shown that he was right. The pressure is very slight, as may be supposed, but it really exists.

Poor Living.

Madder Brown—There goes old Dauber. He's living on his reputation. Mauldick—No wonder he looks so thin.—Illustrated Bits.

SPIGENER'S
CASH STORE

A WORD TO MY MANY
CHILTON COUNTY FRIENDS

I have just gotten in a line of Dry Goods, Notions, Shoes, etc. These goods are bought right, and priced to sell, not to keep. I especially invite the ladies to call and inspect my stock, as they will see that I remembered the wants and needs of the women, children and babies as well as the men and boys.

This store will be continually receiving fresh goods the year round. You will find many things here for sale that you will not find at other stores in the country. You will also be astonished at the VERY LOW prices on many articles that I am able to make you; money saved is money made. Come and be convinced that I can save you money on many things that you have to buy. There are several reasons why I can save you money on your cash purchases.

1st. This is strictly a cash store thus doing away with the expense of a book-keeper, which is a saving of from six to nine hundred dollars a year.

2nd. This store will not have any bad account to lose and to be put on to the price of goods that you buy.

3d. I will have no collection agency to pay.

4th. This is a one price store, goods will be sold to everyone at the same price.

When the people once find this out, half the force can wait on the same trade, which will lessen the expense of running any business.

This store is located next door to new Post Office building.

Yours, anxious to please,
W. D. SPIGENER.

Fat in Milk.

It cannot be that the butter fat in milk is obtained from the fat stored in the tissues of the cow, otherwise the animal would soon become emaciated. Cows obtain the butter fat in milk from the food they eat and digest and not from the reserve or accumulation of fat in their bodies. Reason as well as observation teaches that cows extract butter fat from the food they consume and digest, and to produce a large percentage of cream the rations of the cow should be rich in the elements of nitrogen and carbohydrates, which are found in linseed meal, middlings, bran, cornmeal and ground oats. At the Cornell university cows that yielded 200 pounds of butter fat annually under ordinary feeding yielded 350 pounds when given liberal rations of food rich in nitrogen and carbohydrates. Cream will not make butter unless it contains fat, and profitable fats will not be produced unless cows are fed on rations rich in the elements that produce cream.

The Redemption of Tramp Kelly.

A Lesson That Was Taught by His Brother In Misery.

By WILLIAM ALFRED COREY

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Milwaukee Red had just rolled out of a box car, having arrived on a night freight from Seattle, and was thumping back doors for breakfast.

With one foot very conspicuously bound up in rags, an arm in a sling and an expression of countenance to correspond, he had applied at several doors without success when at the door of a poor little shack in a side street a woman with a foreign accent bade him enter.

"Holy smoke!" thought Milwaukee Red. "Is me power house workin' right? A warm set down already! Dat's sure goin' some. Dat beats de cold handouts a mile. Now, jes' watch little Willie punish de grub!" And he hesitated not the fraction of a second; but, with a cheerful willingness born of a two days' fast, he followed the woman into the house.

But Red's bright vision of a table loaded with savory dishes only lasted until he got inside the door. The table was there all right, but in place of the smoking breakfast that Red's hungry imagination had conjured up there were only some fragments of loaves of black bread and a pitcher of water, while seated about the table were four half starved children.

The woman explained to Red that they were themselves nearly starving, that she was a widow and that a grown son, her sole support, had wandered off months since in search of employment, but that she never turned a hungry man away unfed at least with such as she had [illegible] ended by bidding him sit up to their frugal board.

But Red did not move. He stood in the middle of the floor and stared as though hypnotized. He stared at the partly eaten pieces of dry bread, at the famished looking children, at the pale faced woman and at the room in general, wherein want was written everywhere. He stared for a full minute, and then, without a word, he turned and strode out of the room. And the woman noticed that he did not limp as he went out as he had done when he came in.

Outside, Red made for the nearest alley, divested himself of his "make-up," stored the bandages in a bundle for future use and started uptown. An inspiration had come to Mr. Red of Milwaukee.

He had been in Frisco many times before, and he knew the ropes at a certain cheap eating place south of Market street. Once in a moment of weakness he had accepted a position in the place for a few days washing dishes.

Red went boldly into a meat market and said: "I'm after de meat for Johnnie's hash factory. Johnnie sent me. Dey wants ten pounds."

The butcher looked at Red. "Just some tramp dishwasher at Johnnie's," he thought to himself. "He acquires a new one every other day. I'll chance it's being all right."

Red hiked with the meat, but not to Johnnie's. He next lay for a baker's wagon. Pretty soon one rattled past and stopped in front of a house. Red watched his chance, and as the driver ran around the house with two loaves of bread he helped himself to four nice, fresh warm ones from a box up on top.

Butter and milk were next on his shopping list, and these he stole from back doors where the articles had been left, it being yet early in the morning and Red being an artist in this kind of foraging.

A half hour later the kind hearted though poverty stricken woman who had offered Red a share of what she had was surprised to find on her back porch the food he had collected, together with the following crudely written note:

Deer Madam—Dese tings are for you. Don't say nothin' about it to nobody. Jes' turn de kids loos on it. A FREND.

The next morning another and similar offering was found on the porch and eagerly appropriated, the poor family supposing it to be the work of some charitably disposed person, as in fact it was, though the tramp who had called at their door was farthest from their thoughts.

These early morning donations continued with scarcely an interruption for three weeks. Some mornings there would be articles of clothing for both children and adults as well as food. Of the latter there was a great variety as great a variety, in fact, as the source from which it came.

"Wat yer rustlin' so hard fer all de time, Red?" asked Kelly the Bum one night when they met in an alley where some empty barrels afforded free lodgings.

"Got a fambly to support," was Red's terse reply.

"A which?" exclaimed Kelly, scarcely crediting his ears.

"A fambly," repeated Red.

"You sure must be nutty," said Kelly with alarm, as though in fear of Red's family harm.

Then Red had to explain the situation. "I ain't goin' to see them kids go hungry," he said, "not as long as I can rustle."

"You'll git pinched an' sent over de road fust thing yer know," warned Kelly.

"Can't help it none," said Red. "Them kids is goin' to eat as long as I'm here."

"Where does yer fambly reside, Mr. Milwaukee Red?" inquired Kelly, with a mock obeisance.

"Out Russian Hill way," Red told him, ignoring the other's sarcastic manner.

"Russian Hill?" echoed Kelly, the cynicism in his voice changing to a note of interest.

"Yes, Russian Hill," repeated Red. "Wat's remarkable about those?"

"Nothin'," said Kelly, with forced effort to appear unconcerned. And then, after a moment during which neither spoke, he asked: "Where does them people live? Worked that section meself once."

Red told him the street and described the house, wondering the while, though not appearing to notice the strange effect the information seemed to produce upon his pal.

"An' yer been feedin' 'em fer a month," mused Kelly.

"Yes, an' I'll be feedin' 'em fer another month unless—unless her 'son comes back. Reckon he's bummin' somewhere same as you an' me. Didn't like to tell the old woman, though. Say, pal, if I had some kin folks o' me own to hustle fer I'd—I'd quit the road an' go to work."

Kelly did not answer at once. He seemed to have lost the power of speech and to be lost in thought, though Red knew him too well to try to force his ragged friend to unbosom himself.

Finally Kelly pulled himself together and said: "Well, must be goin'. Got a hen on. No, don't need no help. See yer tomorrow." And then he added impressively: "Red, whatever yer do, don't git pinched. Hear me? Keep yer eye peeled an' don't git pinched. S' long."

"S' long, Kelly," said Red. "Look out yer don't git pinched yerself."

There was no denying it was a grim risk Red was running, as was indicated by the following news item which appeared prominently the next day in a city paper:

SNEAK THIEVES INFESTING HILL DISTRICT.

Recently sneak thieves have been plying their trade in the Russian Hill district so industriously that there is an insistent call for more police protection. Articles of food and clothing have been disappearing so rapidly in that neighborhood of late that it would seem a small army of these gentry are at work there. Groceries left at back doors in the early morning hours are being taken, clotheslines are being denuded and small neighborhood stores even are being entered and robbed in broad daylight. The police are laying for these miscreants, and a good, healthy penitentiary term awaits all caught in the dragnet.

And besides the risk which he knew he was running Red felt the weight of the responsibility which he had voluntarily assumed. Looking out for himself was an easy matter. Long experience had made him a past master in the high art of living without working. But looking out for himself and supporting "a fambly" were two different propositions.

However, he had not long to carry the burden. One morning—it was a week since Kelly's sudden disappearance—Red was surprised to find the poor woman awaiting him on the oft visited back porch.

Their surprise was mutual, for the woman at once recognized in Red the tramp with whom she had offered to divide her crust several weeks previous.

"And is it really you who have been doing this?" she questioned, as though doubting her senses.

"I reckon 'tain't nobody else, mum," said Red.

"How can I thank or ever repay you?" she said, her lips trembling.

"Don't try to do neither one, mum," advised Red, longing for some avenue of escape. "How's yer littin' erlong? How's the kids?"

"Oh, that is what I was waiting to see you or whoever brought the things about," said the woman. "We don't need help any more. My dear son Will"—and tears of happiness shone in her eyes—"has returned, and he got work yesterday. He's going to take care of us now. He was gone so long, and we didn't know where he was. But he says he'll never leave us again. We're all so happy! It seems as though you have brought us good luck. I want you to come this evening and see my Will. He'll be so glad to see you."

Red looked past the woman and saw a coat which he easily recognized as Kelly's hanging upon a peg just within the kitchen door. And his pal's strange behavior on the night of their last conversation was at once explained.

"Don't see how I can come, mum," he said, "but tell Kelly—I mean Will—that I'm glad he's doin' so well and to stay with his new job."

And before the happy woman could detain him or press upon him more words of gratitude Red was out the gate and gone.

But one day they saw an item in a newspaper about a tramp being run over by an automobile and lying in a hospital with a broken leg. Something in the reporter's reference to the man led those whom Red had befriended to think it was he. Going to the hospital true enough there was their old friend. As soon as he was able to be moved they took him home with them, and as they were now in a more prosperous condition they kept him till he had grown strong again. Then he insisted on going out to resume his tramps. They tried to persuade him to stay with them and get work, but he shook his head grimly and walked away.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Winter Feed For Cows.

Every one who knows anything about the tastes of the cow knows that she prefers good, succulent grass, such as grows in the summer. But in the winter this cannot be provided. An excellent substitute, however, can be made in nearly every section of the country. Many of the roots, if given in connection with hay or corn fodder, add a great deal of succulence.

Mangels, carrots and the like make a very good substitute. Pumpkins and potatoes even will do when other roots cannot be obtained. Turnips are very good, but if too many are fed the milk will have a very objectionable taste.

The following ration is an excellent one for the dairy cow in winter: Eight to ten pounds of good clover hay, thirty pounds of corn silage, fifteen to twenty pounds of mangels and eight to ten pounds of corn and oats chop. This is a maximum amount. Some animals may not require so much feed as this.

The next requisite is pure water in plentiful supply.

Then the cow should have plenty of salt and be treated kindly. It is usually the case that when a man attends properly to salting the cows he will treat them kindly in other respects.—Farm Progress.

The Farm Ice Supply.

Avoid slush or snow ice as much as possible. Watch for those several days of continuous hard freezing, then tap the ice field at its best, writes a Michigan farmer in American Agriculturist. Six inch ice is, of course, good, but eighteen inch is better, as the thicker the cake the better its keeping quality. Clear the field of snow and with either line or straight edge mark off the cakes to be cut, using any sharp pointed instrument for the marking. An old file makes a good tool for the purpose. Mark the field off into eighteen inch squares, being careful to have the cakes cut exactly to measure, for in no other way can close storage be accomplished. Cut out corner cake with an ax and start the saw exactly on the line, holding saw straight up and down. Remove one handle from the saw and in its place attach a small weight, said weight adding much to the rapidity of the sawing. Two pairs of ice tongs at about 50 cents each complete the outfit for the farmer's ice harvest.

Horse Notes.

A horse cannot rest well lying down in a narrow stall.

It is just as easy to speak kindly to a horse as to swear at him.

If manure smells very strong when voided, something is wrong with the feeding.

Scrape the dried sweat from the collars every day and keep them smooth and pliable.

Horses stabled in a close, badly ventilated barn will come out in the morning dull and stupid.

If your horse comes into the stable warm and tired, feed him no grain for at least an hour.

When a long drive is expected, do not feed quite as much as usual. The horse will travel better.

Trimming Fruit Trees In Winter.

With apples and most fruit trees and shrubs trimming may as well be done in winter as at any other time. There are two decided advantages in winter trimming. One is that there is more time for the work at that season, and the other is that foliage and fruit do not interfere with the work. Since the cuts are made some weeks before new growth and healing begin it is well to paint the scars to keep out water, dust and germs that might cause decay.

Diseases of Fowls.

Most of the diseases that afflict fowls are the result of carelessness and indifference on the part of the owner as regards the surroundings and conditions of his poultry, says American Cultivator. No poultry will show to advantage on the credit side of the cash account unless they are healthy and well cared for. How to prevent disease should be the watchword rather than how to cure disease.

Beef and Dairy Cattle.

When a dairyman has faced the actual practice of selling cows from his herd for beef he will not feel encouraged over the outlook of combining beef and dairy qualities in the same herd. There is a popular prejudice against eating beef from an old played out dairy cow, and there is no advantage in trying to combine the two qualities in one animal.—American Cultivator.

Oats the Best Grain For Horses.

Horses nurtured on oats show mettle which cannot be reached by the use of any other feeding stuff. Then, too, there is no grain so safe for horse feeding, the animal rarely being seriously injured if by accident or otherwise the groom deals out an oversupply.

Prevention of Rust.

A mixture prepared as follows will keep the agricultural implements from rusting: Melt together lard and powdered resin, one part of the latter to three of the former, and, if it is desired, add a little lampblack. Paint the iron or steel with a brush.

In the Orchard.

All the rubbish in the orchard and garden should be raked up and burned. Many insect pests may be destroyed in this way.

Scrub stock in the orchard is as worthless as scrub stock among the farm animals.

A Constipation Remedy Free

There is no action of your daily life of greater importance than to see that your bowels move. They should move at least once a day naturally, and by that is meant without any help. If they do not move at least once a day you can consider yourself constipated and it is time you did something about it.

You will be glad to know there is a way out of the difficulty. Lemuel Landerdale, an old soldier at Quincy, Ill., Elmer McMillan, of Speed, Mo., Mrs. Monahan, of Stonewall, Miss., and many others were as you are now. But one day they awoke to the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was curing their friends, so they bought it too and it cured them. Today they are loud in praise of it.

What Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin did for them it should do for you. Surely your constipation is no worse than theirs, one of whom had it since '61. It only remains for you to realise that salts are of but temporary good, and what you want is a permanent cure; that purgative tablets, cathartic pills and such violent things make a great show of doing something but do nothing that is lasting. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific preparation, a laxative-tonic, a mild syrupy liquid that contains ingredients that not only cure the constipation, but tone the intestinal muscles so that they learn again to work without help. A bottle can be bought of any druggist for the small price of 50 cents, and there is a dollar size for families who have already found out its wonderful value in stomach, liver and bowel troubles, in old or young.

Send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you so that you can test it before buying.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Uponurch Drug co.

NEWSPAPER BARGAIN DAYS

The Birmingham Ledger

Leading Newspaper of Alabama

One Year

$3.48

(By Mail)

Bargain Days—January 5th to 15, 1910.

Get ready to take advantage of this offer. You want a daily newspaper—it is no longer a luxury but a necessity—you should keep posted on current events, political and otherwise.

The Birmingham Ledger, the peer of any newspaper in the South, is offered you at about half the price of most high class newspapers. Don't miss this opportunity. Those who take advantage of this offer now will receive this paper from time subscription is sent in until January 15, 1911. ACT AT ONCE!

Address Birmingham Ledger.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all druggists.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone shoul take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.0C.

Cured of Seven Years Suffering

Many letters are on file from grateful women who have been cured with VIN O-VITÆ, the great female remedy. Mrs. S. E. Lord, of Glenwood, Ala., writes: "After trying two good doctors and patent medicines and all other remedies and suffered untold agony. I tried your remedy, Granger's VIN-O-VITÆ, and found relief. I suffered seven years before I became a woman. I don't know how to express my thanks to you and to your agent, Mr. Ike N. Douglas, from whom I procured the remedy that cured me."

Send for free booklet giving full information with many wonderful testimonials of cures. Druggists sell VIN-O-VITÆ at $1.00 per bottle. If your Druggist can not supply you, write to the Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Medicinal Value of Whiskey

is admitted by the highest medical authorities. Indeed for many slight disorders it is a safe and certain cure. But to be effective, it must be the genuine, pure, natural article like

Sunny Brook
THE PURE FOOD
Whiskey

SUNNY BROOK is unsurpassed as a wholesome pleasant stimulant or an invigorating healthful tonic. Every drop is distilled, aged and bottled under the direct supervision of U. S. Government Inspectors and its absolute purity and mellowness make its use perfectly safe and free from harmful effects. The "Green Government Stamp" over the cork of each bottle states the correct age, proof and quantity.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

4—FULL QUARTS—$5

BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	416, W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.
M. Markstein	123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	626 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St. "
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd	541 Magazine St. "
Estate of Charles Feahney	511 Pampart St. "
Greil Trading Co.	Pensacola, Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar	Jacksonville, Fla.
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER. NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 100,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

THE

Southern Ruralist

OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the Southern Ruralist is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The Ruralist pays $30.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; F. J. Merriam, Garden Department; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station, Dairy Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment Station, Horticulture Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Apiculture; Professor C. A. Cary, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station, Veterinary Department; Judge F. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Miss J. Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one. By special arrangement with the Southern Ruralist we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

WELLS Bored and Drilled

T. B. TEEL

Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells

CLANTON, ALA.

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

Farm and Garden

SCIENCE ON THE SOIL

An Increase in Yield Obtained Chemical Treatment

This is the age of science. Take the results from the application of phosphates and [illegible] soil. The lack of phosphates [illegible] Limited to the older [illegible] country. In Wisconsin [illegible] It has been customary in [illegible] districts to clear [illegible] crop these fields [illegible] number of years very [illegible] on for hay, chiefly [illegible] tice has had the effect of [illegible] ducing the available phosphates [illegible]

GOOD EFFECTS ON CORN FROM A [illegible]

soil, and in such cases [illegible] care will be needed to [illegible] ply of available phosphates [illegible]

In the spring of [illegible] Wisconsin made a [illegible] ment with [illegible] land which [illegible] yields the [illegible] purpose he [illegible] phosphate [illegible] clover and on [illegible] amounts name [illegible] pounds per acre. [illegible] experiment is [illegible] quotation from [illegible] permanent [illegible]

"I am [illegible] was thick [illegible] were more [illegible] the lower [illegible] apparent [illegible] later in [illegible] the corn [illegible] the second [illegible] formation [illegible] date and [illegible] that where [illegible] were used it [illegible] and also [illegible] results were [illegible] was even more [illegible] than in the oats, the stand [illegible] better and more vigorous, [illegible] above the other beside it, and [illegible] or, too, was different, being [illegible] green of a darker hue."

WHERE NO ACID WAS USED

Similar experiments have been [illegible] in Illinois and Ohio.

The cuts here presented show [illegible] beneficial effect of acid phosphate [illegible] corn. An increased yield of [illegible] well filled ears resulted where [illegible] phate was used compared with [illegible] yield and nubbins where [illegible] used.

Electricity on Farms.

Electric power companies are [illegible] formed in Pennsylvania and [illegible] eastern states which are thick [illegible] tied to supply light and power [illegible] farms. One Philadelphia company [illegible] now making contracts over six [illegible] ties.

alue of Whiskey

dical authorities. Indeed for e and certain cure. But to be ne, pure, natural article like

Brook
RE FOOD
key

ed as a wholesome pleasant
l tonic. Every drop is distilled, supervision of U. S. Government mellowness make its use perfectly
The "Green Government Stamp" correct age, proof and quantity.
CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

UARTS—$5
PREPAID

ving Distributors:

9, W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.
Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
oulas St., New Orleans, La.
hartres St.
agazine St.
ampart St.
Pensacola, Fla.
Memphis, Tenn.
Jacksonville, Fla.

REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
D C. O. D.

Your Home
THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

the Greatest Agricultural Paper in e South today. It covers every dertment of the farm and home. We ve examined it carefully, and con-
der THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
e most valuable premium we can fer our readers. It comes twice a nth—24 times a year. A sample py will be mailed free to any one request.

The most valuable thing about the RURAL RURALIST is the Prize Spe-which are published on the first ch month. The RURALIST pays each month for the best arti-
from its subscribers on special cts, such as Fall Plowing, Foul-
Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Garden-
Fruit Growing, Stock Raising,
ing, etc. These articles come every part of the country. They ritten by men who do the work give actual experience. They elp you as nothing else will.

D STAFF WR S
J. Merriam, G aririmental Statio lture ia Experiment airy;
n, Live Stock D. Dr.
a Agricultural Veter-Department; M J. Mer-
in every number.

rizes to the man who will take two papers for the price of one.
RURALIST we are able to offer
this paper at alist for $1.00.

and Drilled EL P Water Wells
A.

SOCIETY
A.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES.

you with Bibles. You publishers' cost price.
us.

Farm and Garden

SCIENCE ON THE SOIL.

An Increase of Yield Obtained by Chemical Treatment.

This is the age of scientific farming. Take the results from grain by the application of phosphates to the soil. The lack of phosphates is not limited to the older sections of the country. In Wisconsin, for example, it has been customary in the wooded districts to clear but small fields and crop these fields continuously for a number of years very largely to grasses for hay, chiefly timothy. This practice has had the effect of greatly reducing the available phosphates of the soil, and in such cases exceptional care will be needed to restore the supply of available phosphates.

GOOD EFFECTS ON CORN FROM ACID PHOSPHATE.

In the spring of 1908 a farmer in Wisconsin made an extensive experiment with phosphate on clay loam land which had not given satisfactory yields the preceding year. For this purpose he purchased four tons of acid phosphate, using it on oats seeded to clover and on corn in three different amounts—namely, 100, 200 and 400 pounds per acre. The result of this experiment is given in the following quotation from a letter from the experimenter:

"I am of the opinion the grain (oats) was thicker on the ground, and there were more oats at thrashing than where the fertilizer was not used. On the heavier soils the difference was apparent very early in the season, and later on, when the grain headed out, the pieces could be picked out readily, the stand was thicker and more uniform—in fact, some of it was as nice oats as I ever saw stand up. I found that where we used 100 pounds it was somewhat better, when 200 pounds were used it was very much better, and when we used 400 pounds the best results were obtained. The benefit was even more apparent in the corn than in the oats, the stand was far better and more vigorous, towering above the other beside it, and the color, too, was different, being a rich green of a darker hue."

WHERE NO ACID WAS USED.

Similar experiments have been made in Illinois and Ohio.

The cuts here presented show the beneficial effect of acid phosphate on corn. An increased yield of large and well filled ears resulted where phosphate was used compared with a light yield and nubbins where none was used.

Electricity on Farms.

Electric power companies are being formed in Pennsylvania and other eastern states which are thickly settled to supply light and power to farms. One Philadelphia company is now making contracts over six counties.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson II.—First Quarter, For Jan. 9, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. iii, 13, to iv, 11—Memory Verses, iv, 10, 11—Golden Text, Heb ii, 18—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

While the people were in expectation or suspense and men were reasoning in their hearts as to whether John was the Christ or not, Jesus, being about thirty years of age, came to John to Jordan to be baptized of him (Luke iii, 15, 23). The Jews had sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to John to ask him if he was the Christ or Elijah or that prophet, but John replied that he was neither the one nor the other, but only the voice of one crying in the wilderness, "Make straight the way of the Lord, as said the prophet Isaiah" (John i, 19, 23). Then after His baptism John pointed Him out as the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world and whom men are to follow, and men hearing John followed Jesus. We are not good witnesses unless those who see and hear us follow Jesus because of us. According to our lesson, John at first refused to baptize Jesus, feeling his own unworthiness, but Jesus said, "Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness" (verse 15). Remembering the first recorded utterance of Jesus, "I must be about my Father's business" (Luke ii, 49), how suggestive is this second utterance, "Suffer it to be so now." As believers in Him and therefore His representatives here we should always be about His business, and in reference to all that He appoints us, however unnecessary and uncalled for many things may seem to us, we should remember His words, "Suffer it to be so now." Whatever God appoints is right and best, and we manifest His high righteousness by cheerful submission to all that is right in His sight. Thus we shall be approved of Him in some sense as Jesus was. When Jesus began thus publicly to identify Himself with sinners, for those whom John baptized confessed their sins (verse 6), but Jesus had no sins to confess, the heavens were opened and the Father testified to His delight in His Son, and the Spirit came as a dove and abode upon Him. Thus we see the Father, Son and Holy Spirit in this great event. It seems to me that this testimony from the Father covers all the previous life at Nazareth, while the testimony at the transfiguration (xvii, 5) covers all His public life. He could truly say of Himself in relation to His Father, "I do always those things that please Him" (John viii, 29). We can never be satisfied with ourselves while we stay in these mortal bodies, but we can walk with God in fellowship if we are always well pleased with His Son Jesus Christ. In the seven chapters in which we find the phrase "Heaven opened" (Ezek i; Matt. iii; John i, Acts vii and x, Rev. iv and xix) we have in each a vision of Christ. He is always the center of adoration by the hosts in heaven and the redeemed on the earth. If Jesus, who must have been, like John, filled with the Spirit from His birth (Luke i, 15), needed a special filling or anointing for His public ministry is it any wonder that so few have any public ministry unto Him when so few seem to know or care anything about a special anointing of the Spirit? His desire is for many to stand before Him, to serve Him, to minister unto Him (II Chron. xxix, 11), but He has to say to the many: "I would, but ye would not;" "Ye will not come unto me." The same devil who blinded and led astray Adam and Eve is still blinding the minds of the lost to the light of the glorious gospel and the minds of the saved ones to the light of the glory of God and His kingdom. To submit to God means to resist the devil (Jas. iv, 7; I Pet. v, 8, 9), and until we have learned something of his devices and how to resist and overcome him we are not qualified for service as witnesses unto Christ. God did all He could for the comfort and happiness of Adam and Eve, but the devil told them that he would do better for them and make them like God. The devil's lie won and has been winning the crowd ever since by his suggestions on the same three lines. Something for the body, something for the mind and the power to lord it over others seem to cover the most of his devices—good [illegible] food, pleasant to the eyes, a tree to be desired to make one wise (Gen iii, 6). Bread for the body, the [illegible] the world and its glory. The [illegible] include all gratifications [illegible] the second all that might [illegible] from men and the third [illegible] of dominion over others. Whatever you desire get it; do or be something wonderful in the eyes of man; get power over men by gold or politics or in any way the devil may suggest. How does our Lord reply? Things for the body are not important in comparison with the life and health of the soul, the food of which is the word of God. To desire greatness in the eyes of others is called tempting the Lord our God. To bow down to the devil for the sake of worldly advantage is forbidden by "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and Him only shalt thou serve;" Would we live in fellowship with God and in the comfort of the ministry of the angels it must be by rejoicing in the Lord our righteousness and in a hunger for a greater manifestation of it in us; by seeking to magnify His name, not ours.

A MIRACLE OF THE SOIL.

Where Productive Farms Are Harvested Every Second Year.

The Palouse country in the far northwest is a panorama of rolling hills, checkered with sagebrush and great wheatfields. Close to these wastes of curious grayish tint are rich fields covered with thick stands of wheat. The soil seems to have performed a miracle in producing this lavish wealth, but those standing crops are an indisputable proof of the triumph of dry farming. The fields are harvested only every second year and always plowed very deeply, the soil being thoroughly pulverized in the odd years.

A thick blanket of dust covers the earth—good fairy in disguise, for that dust blanket protects the ground and preserves the moisture of the winter snows. Although very little rain falls during the growing season, this stored up moisture is sufficient nourishment for the production of a magnificent crop. The soil appears to have a volcanic ash that needs only seed and moisture to bear abundantly.

In raising wheat here loss is occasioned from the action of windstorms, which blow off the dust blanket and expose the seed, so every effort is made to keep the blanket on. Instead of sowing two bushels of seed to the acre, as in the east, one bushel is here sufficient. The grain is cut by headers and combination harvesters and thrashers, which also sack it right in the field.

There may be some waste from overripe grain, but this method saves the cost of stacking and shocking and in some cases reseeds the ground, resulting in a crop of young wheat very valuable for forage. This wheat grass has the same effect as clover in fertilizing, and the green fields add to the attractiveness of the landscape, standing side by side with fields of yellow wheat and black dust of summer fallowed tracts, with a touch of sagebrush now and then for contrast.

When the sturdy German farmers from California first experimented in this country they incurred a great deal of ridicule. Now those very methods are producing thirty to forty bushels an acre, while the maximum cost of cultivation an acre is $5. Such facts indicate why the western farmers are able to winter in California or other favorite American pleasure resorts; run automobiles or even tour Europe and winter on the Riviera.

Makes Feathers Fly.

T. G. Griggs of East Orange, N. J., is the inventor of a fowl plucking device which poultry raisers who have inspected it believe will fill a want in the industry. Other machines have been invented to do the work which Griggs provides for in his machine, but none has heretofore been anything more than an interesting piece of machinery with little practical worth.

Griggs departs from the lines followed in other machines and introduces an entirely new method. The fowl to be plucked is placed on an endless traveling belt and carried through a series of fingers, which are so arranged that they go over the entire bird, plucking it clean of feathers. The danger of tearing the skin is avoided by the simple expedient of having the fingers clutch only a few feathers at a time. The size of the bird is no factor whatever. It will stay in the machine until plucked, whether large or small. A pneumatic tube carries away the feathers as fast as they are removed. Griggs is a civil engineer and never raised a chicken in his life, but he noticed a few years ago, while visiting a friend who runs a poultry farm, that the labor of removing feathers from the birds was one of the chief items of cost in preparing the product for market. It is said that the owner of one of his machines will be able to reduce his expenses by 20 per cent.

The Caddie's Sneer.

Golfer—The day I get roond these links in under a hundred I'll give you a shilling, Sandy! Juvenile Caddie—Hoo will I want it when I'm drawin' me auld age pension?—London Punch.

EASY MONEY.

Picked Up by the Sharp Chap Who Got on a Word.

Just by way of showing how easy it is for some men to pick up a few dollars by their wits a young fellow strolled into a cafe the other afternoon and, joining in conversation that was being carried on by convivial spirits, declared he was the most "unfortunate" individual on earth. He immediately began telling a story of his personal troubles, but before he had got the narrative well under way there was a chorus of interruptions, and the talkative young man was politely informed that his English needed revising, since he should have used the word "unfortunate" instead of "unfortunate."

The newcomer insisted that unfortunate was the correct word to use, and the argument waxed warm. Finally, with a show of heat, the young man who started the trouble declared that while he had only a few dollars he would wager them that he was correct.

So anxious were his friends to lay wagers with him that he did not have money enough to meet all the demands, but he succeeded in putting up $15 in separate small bets. The men who were certain that the garrulous young man was wrong in the use of the word unfortunate sent out for a dictionary only to find that they had been "stung" on a "sure thing" bet, the big book on spelling showing that infortunate is perfectly proper and means unfortunate.

"Yes," said the winner of the bets as he pocketed his new portion of wealth, "I have won money on that before. I collected $10 this afternoon on a similar wager."—Philadelphia Record.

Telling the Time.

His horse had lost a shoe, and as it was being replaced by a Somerset blacksmith he asked the time. "I'll tell 'ee presently, sir," said the man. Then he lifted a hind foot of the horse and, looking across it attentively, said, "Half past 11."

"How do you know?" asked Coleridge.

"Do 'ee think I have shod horses all my life and don't know by sign what time it is?"

The poet went away puzzled, but returned in the evening and offered the blacksmith a shilling to show him how he could tell the time by a horse's hoof.

"Just you get off your horse, sir. Now do 'ee stoop down and look through the hole in yon pollard ash and you'll see the church clock."

Saved At Death's Door.

The door of death seemed ready to open for Murray W. Ayers, of Transit Bridge, N. Y., when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a dreadful condition," he writes, "my skin was almost yellow; eyes sunken; tongue coated; emaciated, from losing 40 pounds, growing weaker daily. Virulent liver trouble pulled me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that matchless medicine—Electric Bitters—cured me. I regained the 40 pounds lost and now am well and strong." For all stomach, liver and kidney troubles they're supreme. 50c at Upchurch Drug Co.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala., postoffice, for week ending Jan. 1, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

J. T. Onime, R. S. Fenn, Paul Kelly, W. I. Gandy, George Christon.

LADIES' LIST.

Minnie Clakley, Mattie Speigner.

These letters will be sent to the dead Letter office, Jan. 15, 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY, Postmaster

BULBS

PLANT YOUR BULBS NOW
FOR EARLY BLOOMS

We have Dutch Hyacintha, Roman Hyacintha, Narcissus, Jonquils, Tulips, Daffodils, Freesias, Snowdrops, Oxalis, Callas, Chinese Sacred Lilies and Easter Lilies.

Prices as cheap as any northern seed house.

After October 15th, or the first heavy frost, we can supply two-year old field and Southern grown Rose Plants, both Bush and Climbing Roses.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season.

Cut flowers, wedding boquets and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

A postal card will bring you a copy of our latest price list.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor

City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP

Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Gumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.

First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.

W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS
Alabama's Greatest Newspaper
BY MAIL
(Cash in Advance)
$3.40
A YEAR

On rural routes and small inland towns where we have no carrier delivery. For four months, $1.20 eight months, $2.30. For a lesser time than four months the rate is 50c per month. Cash must accompany order, otherwise the rate is same as in carrier or agency towns. 50c per month or $5.00 per year. The Birmingham News is recognized throughout the State and Nation as "Alabama's Greatest Newspaper."

Whatever happens of importance in the State, Nation, or throughout the world is printed in The News. Always read The News and keep posted.

Agents wanted. Remit by money order or registered letter, to

THE BIRMINGHAM NEWS.
Birmingham, Ala.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS
WITH Dr. King's New Discovery
FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c. & $1.00. Trial Bottle Free
AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.
GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands. Office: Room 1, Court House.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I. HOPKINS
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
Office Hours 9 to 12 A.M.
CLANTON

McCALL PATTERNS
10c AND 15c
NONE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
50c A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. Many special and other models. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—over a million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, fancy needlework, fancywork, entertaining, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

AWAY ABOVE EVERYTHING
Lewis 66 Rye
AWAY ABOVE EVERYTHING

FOUR FULL QUARTS $5.00, EXPRESS PREPAID

BLENDED GOODS
Express Prepaid
Lewis' 66 Hunter Harper
Echo Springs Cascade (Tennessee)
Wilson Murry Hill Club
Any of the Above Brands
4 Full Quarts $5.00 12 Full Quarts $12.00
Express Prepaid

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Blum's Monogram	$4.00	$12.00
Sheriden Club	2.75	8.00
Maryland Club	5.50	13.50
Mt. Vernon	4.00	10.00
	4 Quarts in the Case	12 Quarts in the Case
Four Roses	7.00	18.50
Three Feathers	7.00	18.50

CORN WHISKEY

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Tennessee Old Reserve	$4.00	$11.00
Black and Blue	3.00	9.00
Harvest Corn	3.50	10.50
Laurel Valley	3.50	10.50
Checker Board	3.25	9.00

BOTTLED IN BOND

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Clarke's Pure Rye	$5.00	$13.00
Sunny Brook	5.00
Early Times	5.00	12.00
Guggenheim	5.00	12.00
Melwood	5.00	12.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Mancrief Spring	4.00	11.00
Clark's Sour Mash	4.00	10.50

All the Above Goods are Delivered Express Paid

BULK WHISKIES
Express Paid
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $5.50, $6.00 per Gallon
BULK CORN WHISKEY
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 per Gallon, according to age.

We handle all Imported Wines and Liquors. Ask for Prices.

LONG DISTANCE PHONE 108
517-519 West Bay Street
CHAS. BLUM & COMPANY
Jacksonville Florida

FANCY WAISTCOATS.

Introduced by an English Monarch by Way of "conomy.

The waistcoat—when at most it is a "fancy vest"—is the last remaining vestige of the gorgeousness which was once displayed in men's dress, and on Oct. 15, 1666, Pepys chronicles its first appearance on the person of Charles II. The novel garment, or a "long cassock," as the diarist terms it, worn close to the body. It was of "black cloth, pinked with white silk under it."

Men will agree that the waistcoat is a convenient and commendable garment, the absence of which would deprive them, to speak of no other discomfort, of an invaluable set of pockets. It appears strange, therefore, that it should not have come into being at an earlier date.

Soon after the restoration a sleeveless vest, which likewise left the waist open, was worn under the doublet. It was not a true waistcoat. This style of dress was brought from France by Charles II. From beneath the fullness of shirt exposed by the open vest "the breeches displayed their expanded width," with bunches of ribbon at the waist and lace ruffles below the knees. The doublet worn over the vest was richly laced and embroidered. So costly was this mode of attire that the king resolved to give the lead toward a more economical and sober fashion, and in the fulfillment of this design he donned the new garment, which Pepys hailed with pleasure.

Such were the circumstances which attended the introduction of the waistcoat. It came in the name of economy and reform, but ere long it developed into as expensive and decorative a garment as any which man has ever taken to himself. Gradually it was extended downward till it almost reached the knees. It was made of the richest materials, and the outer coat was shaped to hang well open to display its magnificence.

Extravagance and love of finery were simply transferred from one style to another, and on the waistcoat was lavished all the embellishment which previously had been bestowed on the breeches. Those flowered and embroidered waistcoats of sheeny satin, with laced flaps, may certainly have been less troublesome and fantastic than the preceding fashion, but whether they reduced the wearer's account with his tailor is highly doubtful.

The long flapped waistcoat remained in favor many years. It was still worn by noblemen and gentlemen when George I. was king. In the following reign a somewhat shorter waistcoat was prevalent, and from this time the flap began to decrease in length. Instead of reaching almost to the knee it came only halfway down the thigh. As men's dress became more simplified toward the close of the eighteenth century and puffing, lace and embroidery were abandoned the flap disappeared.—London Globe.

Honduras Cotton.

Cotton plants require little care in Honduras. They produce [illegible] exuberant abundance [illegible]

THE RACE FOR RICHES.

Is Wealth That Cannot Be Enjoyed Worth the Price?

The writer once inquired of a very successful man:

"When do you ever get a moment's time for your own self—to be yourself and to think your own thoughts? Do you ever get a time like that?"

The very successful man hesitated for a moment and then replied:

"Why, yes, I get such a time while I am being shaved in the morning."

Is success really worth the price when it must be paid for at such a rate? Of what use are mansions and country houses and great estates if one has no time to visit them and enjoy their beauty? Why should one collect through agents the most exquisite works of art if he cannot find more than a casual half hour in which to view them? What are wife and children if you are always hastening about the world, far too preoccupied to give them any serious thought or to receive the pleasure which their company could afford you?

And yet there is one sole satisfaction—if it be a satisfaction. Millions of your fellow countrymen and countrywomen will believe beyond all doubt that you are really happy and will envy you.—Munsey's Magazine.

Icebergs.

Apparently ice is ice, of course; but, strangely enough, there is a marked difference in it. Sea water and salt water in general freezes at a lower temperature than pure water, in doing which a part of the salt separates and the ice when melted gives water that is fresher than the original, and along this same line there exists a marked difference in form between the icebergs of the two hemispheres. Arctic bergs are of irregular shape, with lofty pinnacles, cloud capped towers and glittering domes, whereas those of the southern waters are flat topped and solid looking. The former reach the sea by narrow fiords, while the latter are more regular in formation, reaching the open sea by the way of wide passageways and not subject to the grinding and breaking efforts of their northern relatives.—Pittsburg Press.

A Real Cute Dog.

A good dog story is attributed to a visitor to an English country inn on market day. "Now," he said, "I've got a dog here I wouldn't take £20 for. You can believe me or not, but what I am going to tell you is perfectly true. In the early part of last spring I lost six ewes and could find them nowhere. One day about three weeks later as I was looking across from my house to the edge of the moor about two miles away I noticed some sheep. I got my telescope and assured myself that they were mine. I placed the telescope in a suitable position and made Rob look through it. After about a minute the dog wagged his tail and looked at me as if he understood what I wanted and was off like a shot. In less than two hours he brought the sheep home safe and sound."

There can be no profit if the outlay exceeds it.—Plautus.

Nothing Like This Ever Happened BEFORE!

SPECIAL NOTIFICATION

A Tremendous Manufacturers Outlet Sale of

FURNITURE, RUGS & HOUSEHOLD GOODS

A Sale that All Montgomery has been waiting for

On MONDAY, JANUARY 10, 9 A.M. for TEN DAYS ONLY

We will begin the most Extraordinary Sacrifice Sale of Furniture, Rugs and Household Goods ever attempted in this section of Alabama. All sales past or present are insignificant in comparison to this great one. This entire stock is now being invoiced and at these prices everything will be sold out quickly. It is a sale that the public have an opportunity to attend but once in a lifetime and the people of Montgomery and vicinity will without doubt take advantage of and secure for tuemselves Furniture, Rugs and Household Goods practically at their own prices.

It will be a sale without a parallel in the history of Alabama and will attract thosands of people to Montgomery who will save one-half of their purchases. This store will be closed Friday and Saturday, January 7th and 8th, and will remain closed in order to get the entire stock invoiced and everything will be marked down in plain figures to the very lowest possible limit, in order to sell this stock as rapidly as possible, for it must be sold in ten days time. SO REMEMBER THE DAY AND DATE, MONDAY, JANUARY 10th, at 9 a.m. Think what this great sacrifice sale means to you right at the heighth of the season, when you really need the goods.

This will be a collosal event in FURNITURE BARGAINS and we predict that this stock will melt away very rapidly like a snow fall before a July sun, so we advise early trading. "A word to the wise is sufficient." Be on hand early and benefit accordingly.

LADIES LAY ASIDE YOUR HOUSEHOLD DUTIES and attend our opening day, Monday, January 10th. For 10 days only. IF YOU VALUE YOUR MONEY, let nothing keep you away.

Remember the Place,

ELLIS GRANT FURNITURE CO.

115-117 DEXTER AVENUE

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Railroad fare refunded to out of town purchasers under the regulations of the Montgomery Rebate Association.

INSTINCT AND REASON.

An Interesting Illustration of the Two Traits of Monkeys.

An illustration showing the difference between instinct and reason in monkeys came under the observation of David Starr Jordan, the famous naturalist. At one time he had two lively Macacus monkeys called Bob and Jocko. These were nut and fruit eating monkeys and instinctively knew just how to crack nuts and peel fruits. At the same time he had a baby monkey, Mono, of a kind that had the egg eating instinct. But Mono had never yet seen an egg.

To each of the three monkeys Dr. Jordan gave an egg, the first that any of them had ever seen. Baby Mono, descended from egg eating ancestors, handled his egg with all the inherited expertness of a long developed instinct. He cracked it with his upper teeth, making a hole in it, and sucked out all its substance. Then, holding the eggshell up to the light and seeing there was no longer anything in it, he threw it away. All this he did mechanically, automatically and just as well with the first egg as with any other he afterward had. And all eggs since given him he has treated in the same way.

The monkey Bob took his egg for some kind of nut. He broke it with his teeth and tried to pull off the shell. When the inside ran out and fell on the ground he looked at it for a moment in bewilderment, then with both hands scooped up the yolk and the sand mixed with it and swallowed it. Then he stuffed the shell into his mouth. This act was not instinct; it was reason. He was not familiar by inherited instinct with eggs. He would handle one better next time, however. Reason very often makes mistakes at first, but when it is trained it becomes a means far more valuable and powerful than instinct.

The third monkey, Jocko, tried to eat his egg in much the same way that Bob did; but, not liking the taste, he threw it away.—St. Nicholas.

Hard to Tell.

"If your mother bought four bunches of grapes, the shopkeeper's price being ninepence a bunch, how much money would the purchase cost her?" asked the new teacher.

"You never can tell," answered Tommy, who was at the head of the class. "Ma's great at bargaining."—London Answers.

Untimely Deaths

It is estimated that from eighty to ninety per cent of all disease are caused by diseased Kidneys or Liver. If you have symptoms of these diseases, you should at once take U-RA-CURA. It will relieve the system of the causes of these diseases, tone up the system and insure vigorous health. For many years it has stood the test of time and trial. Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Send for book of wonderful cures. Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Prevent and Relieve Headache

"It gives me great pleasure to be able to refer to Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills as the best remedy we have yet had in our house for the prevention and cure of headache. My wife who has been a constant sufferer for a number of years with above complaint joins me in the hope that they may fall into the hands of all sufferers."

JOHN BUSH,
Waterville, Me.

Used Them Four Years.

"Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are the best I ever tried for the relief of headache. I have used them for nearly four years and they never fail to give me relief. I have tried many other remedies, but have never found any better."

JOSEPH FRANKOWICK,
854 Trombly Av., Detroit, Mich.

There is no remedy that will more quickly relieve any form of headache than

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

The best feature of this remarkable remedy is the fact that it does not derange the stomach or leave any disagreeable after-effects.

Druggists everywhere sell them. If first package fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

"Around the fire, one wintry night,
The farmer's rosy children sat;
The hearth blazed with cheerful light,
And all around was pleasant chat."

What is more pleasant, these long, cold wintry nights, than for the family to gather around the blazing logs in an old-fashioned open fire place, with the logs flaring and spluttering, while the cold blasts rattle the windows, and you shiver at an open door.

Dad meditatively smokes his pipe in one corner and in his wise old head arranges the work for the morrow, and opposite him sits the good old mother, his companion of many years, industrially mending the garments of the young ones, who clustered around the fire cheerfully recite their lessons, or playfully indulge in a little quiet recreation.

In this sunny southland we escape many of the discomforts of colder regions. While we have been having cold, frosty nights, yet during the day the sun shines brightly and pleasantly, cheering us with his brightness and anticipating the time when he will again hold full sway. No snow has fallen in this section to discommode travel, and it is hard to realize that in the northern and western states families are isolated and cut off from communication with each other for long intervals by heavy falls of snow and trains are stalled sometimes for days in the snow drifts of the mountains.

Yes, we shiver with cold for a few days at a time, but it is never for long. True, we know very little of the joys of snow-balling and sleighing and skating are unknown luxuries, but the small boy may occasionally be seen enjoying a slide on real ice, it is not often that he gets the chance to glide along a frozen surface and he makes the most of his opportunity.

On the whole, it is rather a severe winter for the sunny South, and few of us will be sorry for a return of our genial climate. In the meantime, cluster around the fire, recall old times, recount former adventures, discuss politics, formulate plans for the coming spring, and have a good time generally.

For we don't kill a pig every day,
We don't kill a pig every day.
So let us be jolly, and let us be gay,
For we don't kill a pig every day.

With sincere sorrow we learn of the death of Dr. W. G. Curry at New Decatur, Tuesday. He was formerly pastor of Bapt st church at Clanton. The body was carried to Livingston, Wednesday, for interment. He was 67 years old.

NOTICE.

Thorsby Savings Bank.

In reply to all rumors or statements that the business of Thorsby Savings Bank will be closed or interrupted on account of the death of the president, we wish to give notice that the business of the bank will be carried on as usual, without interruption. The bank is incorporated, and all business can and will be carried on by the present officers, and directors. The duties of the president will be performed by A. K. Horn and L. V. Stabler until the next stockholders' meeting, at which a k president will be elected.

The business of the bank is controlled by the following directors:

M. J. Barrett,
A. K. Horn,
Sam Kaufman,
L. V. Stabler,
Guy H. Gerald.

Guy H. Gerald, Cashier.
Thorsby, Ala., Jan. 4, 1910.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE KITCHEN.

Stoves, Ranges and Kitchen Utensils that deserve to be trusted. Safe, efficient, durable and sanitary. That is the kind that we are offering at these low prices this season.

STEEL RANGES $20.00 TO $45.00

WHEN YOU BUY A RANGE

don't forget that economy of maintenance, working convenand durability are the points to be considered.

Buy a range that has a record of giving satisfaction in these points.

WHEN YOU BUY A RANGE

you can't do better than buy a Eureka. Thousands of them are in use every day and their records are ones of invariable satisfaction.

If you are going to buy a Cast Stove you cannot make a mistake by buying an "Arizona."

No. 7 Stoves $7.00 to $15.00

No. 8 Stoves $12.00 to $35.00

SUPERIOR STOCK! SATISFACTORY SERVICE! MAXIMUM WORTH! MINIMUM COST!

Upon these points we base our claim for your patronage. By buying our Stoves and Ranges from the best manufacturers in the whole country, and by buying them in such large quantities to supply our three stores—Clanton, Wetumpka and Alexander City—is it not reasonible to suppose that we can sell you cheaper than you can buy elsewhere, and that we can serve you to your advantage and entire satisfaction. All we askis a trial.

If it's Hardware We have it!

Gamble Hardware Co.

If we have it, It's the Best!

Prevent and Relieve Headache

"It gives me great pleasure to be able to refer to Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills as the best remedy we have yet had in our house for the prevention and cure of headache. My wife who has been a constant sufferer for a number of years with above complaint joins me in the hope that they may fall into the hands of all sufferers."

JOHN BUSH,
Waterville, Me.

Used Them Four Years.

"Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are the best I ever tried for the relief of headache. I have used them for nearly four years and they never fail to give me relief. I have tried many other remedies, but have never found any better."

JOSEPH FRANKOWICK,
854 Trombly Av., Detroit, Mich.

There is no remedy that will more quickly relieve any form of headache than

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

The best feature of this remarkable remedy is the fact that it does not derange the stomach or leave any disagreeable after-effects.

Druggists everywhere sell them. If first package fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

N.

able and sanitary.

es $7.00 to $15.00

es $12.00 to $35.00

IMUM COST!

y buying them in such large bay elsewhere, and that we

we have it,
It's the Best!

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1910 | No. 15

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

"Around the fire, one wintry night,
The farmer's rosy children sat;
The flames blazed with cheerful light,
And all around was pleasant chat."

What is more pleasant, these long, cold wintry nights, than for the family to gather around the blazing logs in an old-fashioned open fire place, with the logs flaring and spluttering, while the cold blasts rattle the windows, and you shiver at an open door.

Dad meditatively smokes his pipe in one corner and in his wise old head arranges the work for the morrow, and opposite him sits the good old mother, his companion of many years, industrially mending the garments of the young ones, who clustered around the fire cheerfully recite their lessons, or playfully indulge in a little quiet recreation.

In this sunny southland we escape many of the discomforts of colder regions. While we have been having cold, frosty nights, yet during the day the sun shines brightly and pleasantly, cheering us with his brightness and anticipating the time when he will again hold full sway. No snow has fallen in this section to discommode travel, and it is hard to realize that, in the northern and western states families are isolated and cut off from communication with each other for long intervals by heavy falls of snow and trains are stalled sometimes for days in the snow drifts of the mountains.

Yes, we shiver with cold for a few days at a time, but it is never for long. True, we know very little of the joys of snow-balling and sleighing and skating are unknown luxuries, but the small boy may occasionally be seen enjoying a slide on real ice, it is not often that he gets the chance to glide along a frozen surface and he makes the most of his opportunity.

On the whole, it is rather a severe winter for the sunny South, and few of us will be sorry for a return of our genial climate. In the meantime, cluster around the fire, recall old times, recount former adventures, discuss politics, formulate plans for the coming spring, and have a good time generally

"For we don't kill a pig every day,
We don't kill a pig every day,
So let us be jolly, and let us be gay,
For we don't kill a pig every day."

With sincere sorrow we learn of the death of Dr. W. G. Curry at New Decatur, Tuesday. He was formerly pastor of Baptist church at Clanton. The body was carried to Livingston, Wednesday, for interment. He was 67 years old.

NOTICE.

Thorsby Savings Bank.

In reply to all rumors or statements that the business of Thorsby Savings Bank will be closed or interrupted on account of the death of the president, we wish to give notice that the business of the bank will be carried on as usual, without interruption. The bank is incorporated, and all business can and will be carried on by the present officers, and directors. The duties of the president will be performed by A. K. Horn and L. V. Stabler until the next stockholders' meeting, at which a k president will be elected.

The business of the bank is controlled by the following directors:

M. J. BARRETT,
A. K. HORN,
SAM KAUFMAN,
L. V. STABLER,
GUY H. GERALD

GUY H. GERALD, Cashier.
Thorsby, Ala., Jan. 4, 1910.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$55,329 64	Capital Stock Paid in	$15,000 00
Overdrafts	1,820 54	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	12,313 76
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	13,750 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$26,626 49
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	6,461 02	Savings Deposits	9,435 50
Other Real Estate	147 50	Cashier's Checks	101 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$16,502 33	Bills Payable	5,000 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	8,795 17		54,323 71
Currency	6,975 00
Gold	1,760 00
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,686 95
Checks and Cash Items	781 89
	37,501 33
Total	$66,609 03	Total	$66,609 03

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

JNO. A. THOMAS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 21st day of October, 1909.

J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAM KAUFMAN
M. L. GRELL
} Directors.

Statement of the condition of the Clanton Bank, located at Clanton, Ala., at the close of business October 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$ 91,297 62	Capital Stock Paid in	$ 15,000 00
Overdrafts	643 55	Surplus Fund	10,000 00
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	21,625 00	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	6,230 20
Furniture and Fixtures	2,650 00	Individual Deposits subject to
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$26,000 77	Check	$ 75,822 17
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	2,720 87	Time Certificates	13,297 45
Currency	4,005 00	Cashier's Checks	115 00
Gold	320 00	Bills Payable	10,000 00
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,297 45		101,234 62
Checks and Cash Items	320 10
	35,663 10
Total	$151,464 82		$151,464 82

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of the Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 22nd day of October, 1909.

E. B. DEASON, Notary Public.

Attest:
WM. BARTON
W. I. MULLINS
F. D. WILSON
} Directors.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Thorsby, Jan. 11, 1910

Editor Banner—Please give the Old Coon a small space in your columns to make one growl at S. D. McCary on the stock law question, he made a heavy attack on me in last week's issue. But you know the Old Coon will fight for liberty and freedom till the end of her race. Mr. Mc, don't get too close on the Coon, if you do she will scratch your ears. I still say there is a considerable stir-up on account of stock law, but the stir-up will cease after Feb. 2, for the good people of Beat 9 will snow you under so deep until you will fix your fence up and stop your growling about stock law. I guess you did see the most fine grass you ever saw and I guess you had your full share of it. I never knew hogs to be as scarce in B at 14 as they are to day; people have killed all they had, men who were never known to be without plenty of hogs before. What is the cause of it? Simply because it is too expensive to feed them 365 days in the year from the corn crib. The year just passed out has been one of the best years on people's stock that were so unfortunate as to live in a stock law district that they will witness in years to come. I will ring off, with this one small growl, I may growl again if Mr. McCary punches at me too much.

Yours against stock law,
THE OLD COON.

THE NEW YEAR.

The morning was bright and cold, and while I slept a new guest came all muffled in furs and wound about with heavy robes, and too, she came without many of us thinking of the wondrous changes she brings. In thinking of the many changes she brings, it calls my attention to the scripture: The time and place that know us now will soon know us no more.

To how many of us is the New Year a welcome visitor? and, too, how many of us have done our duty to the dead year that has passed forever? How many are ready and can truly say that I did my best to make 1909 a success and are ready to clasp hands with 1910, and say "welcome delightful morn?" If we do our part in life and truly and willingly fill the places assigned us, the flight of time is not unwelcome, and when God shall see fit to call us we will be willing and ready to go. To the young with a long life seeming before them, the year seems long and full of sunshine; to the old who have but few days left, it seems indeed short, yet life is not measured by years alone, but by golden deeds and thoughts, by this standard some who live to be threescore and ten do not live as long as others who die in early youth. How necessary then is it for us to live an honest, upright, useful life. We may easily lengthen our days by living a refined serviceable life. What can one regret more, when the moon-tide of life has past, than a miss-spent life? Do you suppose that Dives when he realized his deplorable condition in a burning hell thought of a miss-spent life? Now, we should each of us think of the fleeting golden moments that God has given us, and utilize the time to our advantage and his glory. So here is a New Year wish for all; may we keep growing, you and I, learning sweet truths in sweetest way, living in sunshine every day.

MIS CANZADA WILLIAMS

Take care of the pennies, and the dollars will be blown in by your heirs.

Mountain Creek.

The entire community was made sad by the death angel, who visited the home of our dear friend on January 6th and took from us our beloved Mr. John Howard. Momentarily for three days the end was expected, as his life was despaired of by two of our oldest physicians. He leaves a devoted wife, who administered to his every want during his six weeks illness with typhoid fever. He also leaves a son and daughter and a host of friends to mourn his loss. He was laid to rest Saturday afternoon, Bro. Floe Long conducting the funeral services, in old Corinth church, where many relatives and friends were gathered together to pay their last respects to him who has passed from this world of sorrow.

A FRIEND.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of Chancery Court of Shelby county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain decree recently obtained against Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als. out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, I have levied on the following property, to wit:

The nw 1-4 and the w 1-2 of the sw 1-4, and the sw 1-4 of sw 1-4, Section 8; the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4; the se 1-4 of the sw 1-4, Section 15; the se 1-4 of the se 1-4, Section 16; the s 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4, Section 19; the nw 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and s 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the e 1-2 of the se 1-4 Section 21; the n 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and e 1-2 of the sw 1-4, Section 22; the w 1-2 of ne 1-4 and w 1-2 of sw 1-4, Section 25; the e 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the se 1-4, the n 1-2 of the nw 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the sw 1-4 of Section 35, as the property of the Defendant, Thos. E Lappage.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named Henry W Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, in and to the above describedproperty on Monday, the 7th day of February, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House in Clanton.

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 27th day of December, 1909.

JOHN S. CATTS,
Sheriff of Chilton county, Ala.

Notice. Notice. Notice.

Default having been made in the payment of the debts secured by two mortgages made by Burwell Bailey and Hattie Bailey, his wife, one for the year 1905 and one for the year 1906 to Suttles and Siegel duly transferred to the undersigned, I Burwell Bailey Jr., the transferee of said mortgage, will, on Saturday, the 29th day of January, 1910, sell in front of the market house in the City of Selma, Alabama, at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, the following real estate, situated in the county of Chilton, State of Alabama, and described as follows, to wit:

The east half of the southeast quarter, Section sixteen, Township twenty, Range eleven, the north half of the northwest quarter of Section twenty two, Township twenty, Range eleven, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less.

The said sale is made for the purpose of paying, first: the debts secured by said mortgage; second: the cost of advertising, selling and conveying, and attorney's fee provided for in said mortgage

BURWELL BAILEY, JR.
A. D. PITTS, Attorney.

Stomach Trouble Cured.

If you have any trouble with your stomach you should take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. P. Klote, of Edina, Mo., says: "I have used a great many different medicines for stomach trouble, but find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets more beneficial than any other remedy I ever used." For sale by all druggists.

NOTICE.

Application will be made to the Governor of Alabama for the pardon or parol of Lula Beadlescombe, who was convicted in Circuit Court of Chilton county at the Spring term thereof, in 1907, for murder.

STRAYED

From my place, known as the Stewart place, one mile west of Clanton, November 29, 1909, a dark chestnut mule, about twelve years old, with scar on left shoulder. Any information should be sent to E. M. Pinckard & Co., Clanton, who will pay a reward of $10 for his delivery.

H. LOCKHART.

STRAYED

From four miles north of Jemison, Saturday, December 11, 1909, one Small Dark Colored Mare Mule about four years old, supposed to be making its way back to Birmingham. Reasonable reward gived for delivery of Mule or wiring information to OLIVER & GULLEDGE BROS., Verbena, Ala., who will send for Mule.

IN MEMORY

of Miss Alice Rhodes, who was shot and instantly killed December 28, at Minooka, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Rhodes.

The life of a sweet girl; a life that should be held in sweet remembrance of all that knew her. She had such a sweet disposition. She was noble hearted, kind and true. I have known her for about four years and have been closely associated with her for two years, and I can't say too many good things about her. Miss Alice was always kind and loving to her father and mother, sisters and brothers; she prized them higher than every one on earth. She seemed to love everybody and wanted everybody to love her; she met all her friends with a smile and parted the same way. Such a girl with this disposition is rarely found in our community.

About six years ago Miss Rhodes joined the M. E. Church, South and she lived a peaceable, quiet and harmless life. But oh, just to think she was in the bloom of life and had to lie down in the icy arms of death without a moment's warning. She was only twenty-one years of age. Oh, what a horrible crime! Just to think she had to go as she did, it brings heartaches and tears. But, bless God, as she only budded here on earth, she will be found blooming beyond this vale of tears, in the beautiful city of God. As the death angel came and took her home, may the all-wise God watch over her remains, which were laid at rest in the Rock Spring cemetery.

At the great day of judgment may dear Alice be able to rise triumphantly over death, hell and the grave and be able to proclaim, Oh, death, where is thy sting! Oh, grave, where is thy victory!

Now, may the guardian angel guide and direct the broken hearted and bereaved family to their journey's end and land them safely on the other shore where they will meet their sweet Alice to never part no more.

W. A. CRUM.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purgative. Sold by all druggists.

SALESMEN WANTED to look after our interest in Chilton and adjacent counties. Salary or commission. Address the Victor Oil Company, Cleveland, O.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Hanlen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

Verbena Public School.

The Verbena Public School has an enrollment of nearly fifty pupils, with Miss Fannie E Pitts as principal and Miss Jeannette Shepard as assistant. The following is the honor roll for November and December:

November—Cordelia Scott.
December—John Deramus, Barnett Deramus, Cordelia Scott, Evelyn Scott.

STOCK LAW ELECTION

In accordance with the statute in such cases made and provided, notice is hereby given that application has been made to Commissioners Court of Chilton county, Alabama, for an election to be held in Precinct No. 9 in said county, on Thursday, the 3d day of February, 1910, to determine whether or not stock shall be permitted to run at large in said Precinct.

Said application has been granted by the Court.

This notice is given to notify all parties concerned that said election will be held at the usual place of voting Precinct on Thursday, the third day of February, 1910, to determine said question.

Signed by S. D. McCary and others.

Dated this 21st day of December, 1909.

STOCK LAW ELECTION.

Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of an order made by the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, on the 16th day of December, 1909 an election will be held in precinct No 15 in Chilton County, Alabama, at Pletcher and Culp School house, the places where general elections are held in said Precinct, on Thursday the 3rd day of February, 1910, to determine whether or not hogs, goats, sheep, geese, etc., and such like, shall be permitted to run at large in said Precinct No 15 in Chilton County, Alabama.

This the 16th day of December, 1909.

R. P. Kendrick and others.

WANTED.

FOR SALE—Two Four acre lots with 3 roomed houses on them, good wells of water; and one Store House and lot—all in Coopers, Ala. will sell them cheap. Apply to

J. W. CLARK, Cooper, Ala.

WANTED—A good man to solicit business for Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. Will pay big commissions to right man to begin work immediately. Must furnish good reference. Home office, Montgomery. Address: C. E Black, Montgomery, Ala.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by all druggists.

FOR SALE.—Three yoke of Oxen, from five to six years old; weigh between 800 and 1000 lbs. and in good condition; also one Dray. Apply to Steve Atchison, Jemison, Ala., Route 1.

HOGS FOUND—A sow and four shoates have strayed on to my place, known as the old Davey White place, at Jonestown; three of the shoates are marked. I have had them up three week. Owner can get same by giving proper description and paying expenses of this advt. M. C. FOX.

WANTED—15 or 20 teams to haul iron ore at Wessington. Pay 85c per ton; 3 mile haul; pay every two weeks. Miners also wanted. Call or write Tom Walker, or S. H Dutham, Jemison, Ala., care Shelby Iron Co.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

FOR SALE.

240 acres of land, 70 in cultivation and under good fence; a good five room dwelling house; good well of water in yard; good barns and stalls for stock; blacksmith shop and a store house near dwelling house. I will sell cheap and on reasonable terms. Situated on rural route, four miles east of Maplesville. For particulars apply to L. B. Broadhead, Maplesville, Ala., Route 2.

SALESMAN WANTED.

An honest, sober, energetic man to handle our business in Chilton county. Good proposition offered to right man. Must be able to furnish horse and buggy and give bonesty bond. Position open Jan. 1st, 1910. Address Box 426, Montgomery, Ala.

A Wife Blizzard Raging

brings danger, suffering—often death to thousands, who take colds, coughs and lagrippe—that terror of Winter and Spring. Its danger signals are "stuffed up" nostrils, lower part of nose sore, chills and fever, pain in back of head, and a throat-grioping cough. When Grip attacks, as you value your life, don't delay getting Dr. King's New Discovery. "One bottle cured me," writes A. L. Dunn, of Pine Valley, Miss., "after being 'laid up' three weeks with Grip." For sore, lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, its supreme. 50c. $1.00. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co.

Are Doctors Any Good?

Foolish question! Yet some people act as if a medicine could take the place of a doctor! The best medicine in the world cannot do this. Have a family doctor, consult him frequently, trust him fully. If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds, we would not offer it to you. Ask your doctor. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Pills for constipation, biliousness, sick-headache, we would not offer them to you. Ask your own doctor about this.

NICARAGUA, THE LAND OF MISRULE

Side Lights on That Central American Hornets' Nest Where President Zelaya Has Reigned Like a Tyrant and Despot for Several Years.

About the Size of New York State, It Has Great Natural Resources—Many of the People Live Like Savages. Officers Commanding Our Forces.

By ROBERTUS LOVE

WHAT do you know about Nicaragua? This is an intimate query, because the United States government recently sent some war vessels and marines down to that Central American hornets' nest to show the present head hornet, President Zelaya, that he cannot murder American citizens without being called to answer in a court of law. Intelligent observers express the belief that the United States will place an army of occupation on Nicaraguan soil until such time as there can be established in that volcanic bailiwick a government guaranteed not to erupt every six months. Our course in Cuba seems about to be repeated in Nicaragua.

That is why some real facts about Nicaragua are pertinent. Once upon a time a young American, William Walker of Nashville, Tenn., was president of Nicaragua. Fifty-three years ago Walker conquered the country with only fifty-six men at his back. Of course it didn't stay conquered. Walker was stood up and shot down. For half a century his bones have bleached in Nicaraguan sands. As Joaquin Miller, who in youth was one of Walker's fiery filibusters, has sung:

> He lies low in the leveled sand,
> Unsheltered from the tropic sun,
> And now of all he knew not one
> Will speak him fair in that far land.

The bones of Leroy Cannon and Leonard Grose, the two Americans recently executed by order of Zelaya, do not even bleach. Their bodies were burned, also by Zelaya's order. In a smaller way they were like Walker, the foremost of the filibusters. They fought against the prevailing government because it was a thing of shreds and tatters, so far as stability was concerned, and yet it was a thing of wrath and tyranny. Most of the time, before Walker's day and since, Nicaragua has been similarly misgoverned. Zelaya, against whom Secretary Knox has thundered and American warships seem likely to thunder presently, has misruled the country for sixteen years until he has come to imagine himself a czar. What the United States intends to do apparently is to teach Zelaya that a misruler is non persona grata to civilization.

Nicaragua New York's Size.

Nicaragua is not so much as to size, though it is bigger than Holland, Belgium and Denmark combined. Those are monarchies in Europe, and Nicaragua and her ilk are practically monarchies in America, though called republics by courtesy. But Nicaragua is so much bigger than Panama that the latter "nation" looks like Cattaraugus county in relation to the state of New York. In fact, Nicaragua is almost exactly the size of New York, being 49,200 square miles in area. The country is richer than Russia proper in coast lines, having 225 miles on the Pacific and nearly 300 miles on the Caribbean sea, the Atlantic side.

Nicaragua's greatest width is 275 miles, the distance from St. Louis to Chicago or from New York to Washington. In one place it is only 125 miles wide, the distance from Chicago across Illinois to the Mississippi river. Let us call Nicaragua it instead of she, as that might offend the ladies.

According to information supplied by the International bureau of American republics, Nicaragua has the smallest population of any Central American republic except Panama. There are about 600,000 people in the country. This is less than the population of St. Louis. Many of the Nicaraguans are aborigines, living in the interior fastnesses and as uncivilized as the savages of darkest Africa.

The chief cities on the Pacific side are Leon and Managua. Leon, the largest city in the republic, has 60,000 people. It used to be the capital. It is a picturesque old place and historically interesting. Managua, the present capital, has a population of 40,000—the size of Springfield, Mo. Then there are Matagalpa, 16,000; Granada, 12,000, and several other towns of from 5,000 to 10,000.

How to Reach Nicaragua.

There is only one railroad in Nicaragua, and that doesn't cut much space. It runs from Corinto, on the Pacific coast, to Managua, located on a lake near that coast, and from there to Granada, on Lake Nicaragua, the largest inland body of water in Latin America. The railroad is about 100 miles long—or short, as it looks to us.

It is said to be almost impossible for an American, unless he possess the intrepidity of Peary or Cook, to cross Nicaragua from coast to coast. The roads in some places are mere trails. The interior is mountainous and wild.

Corinto is the principal port on the Pacific side. The town has but 2,000 inhabitants. To get to Nicaragua perhaps the quickest route is through Mexico by rail to Salina Cruz and thence by steamship to Corinto. One may go by ship from San Francisco all the way. Steamers from New Orleans run direct to Bluefields, on the Atlantic side, a place of 5,000 people. Steamers from New York also touch Bluefields. Many persons from the eastern section of the United States get to Nicaragua by crossing Panama and taking ship to Corinto.

Like all Central and South American countries, Nicaragua is an undeveloped nation. The natural resources of the country seem to require only a stable government for development into wonderful wealth. On the eastern slopes four crops of corn are grown annually, though vast areas are unplanted. Cotton planted in October is picked in February. Coffee, rice and indigo are grown for export, while in late years the rubber industry has been systematized by outsiders and has become one of the most lucrative lines of endeavor in the whole country.

Bananas are the principal article of export. About a million dollars' worth are sent out every year from the eastern section. Most of those grown in the west are eaten at home.

Mahogany, ebony, light rosewood and other valuable trees abound. Vanilla, sarsaparilla and cacao (chocolate) are shipped to America for consumption.

Where Monkeys Grow.

It is interesting to know that humming birds abound in this turbulent land, though monkeys, wild hogs and buzzards are more in evidence. Zelaya's effort to make a monkey of the United States is the cause of the present trouble.

Nicaragua is misgoverned by a president, five cabinet ministers and forty representatives who comprise a national legislative assembly of one house. There is no check upon this one house congress except that supplied by the president, who possesses such power under the constitution and his own inclination that he can override the lawmakers and overrule them almost if not quite at will. Thus Zelaya has become a dictator, a despot, a czar, in his own bailiwick.

Universal suffrage is said to prevail. Universal suffering also appears to be the rule under the prevailing misrule.

There are few schools in Nicaragua. A few years ago it was reported authoritatively that Nicaragua's neighbor, Costa Rica, had more schoolteachers than soldiers and that Zelaya's country had three times as many soldiers as schoolteachers. The preponderance of soldiers has increased immensely since then, and it would be hardly possible for the intrepid William Walker to win the presidency now with only fifty-six Americans at his back. However, the Nicaraguan soldiery is not to be feared by any military person who can shoot straight, conform to discipline and eat enough quinine to fend off malarial fever.

Officers In Command.

Secretary Knox has "told it to the marines," who are expected to be able to teach Zelaya his proper place without the aid of soldiers proper. Rear Admiral William Wirt Kimball is in command of the naval expedition against Nicaragua. Lieutenant Colonel James E. Mahoney of the United States marine corps commands the combined marine force. In the event of the landing of the marines, Mahoney, whose full colonelcy is likely to be bestowed upon him by the time he goes ashore, will direct operations on land. It is not anticipated that any general will be required, except general efficiency, which Colonel Mahoney is known to possess.

Admiral Kimball, of course, is in full command of the expedition. He will reach the age limit of sixty-two years on Jan. 9 and be retired, but it is hoped by his department that the incident will be closed before that date. The admiral was selected for his experience and efficiency in dealing with Latin Americans. He commanded the gunboat Vixen in 1889 when she was sent to Bluefields to protect the interests of American merchants who had been ordered to pay customs duties to two Nicaraguans. That was during the Reyes revolution. Kimball went ashore and settled matters in about half an hour's straight talk.

Admiral Kimball is a Maine native, with forty-four years' navy service. He has spent twenty years at sea. During the war against Spain he commanded the Caesar.

Colonel Mahoney has been twenty-six years in the marine corps. He was brevetted captain for distinguished conduct and public service in the presence of the enemy at Guantanamo, Cuba, in 1898.

For eleven years Colonel Mahoney has been in command of the marine barracks in Washington. His long experience and efficient service recommended him for his present assignment.

One of the Bravest.

With Colonel Mahoney in the marine expedition is Major Smedley D. Butler, whose father is a Pennsylvania congressman. He was an officer in the volunteer army during the Spanish war. After he was appointed to the marine corps he served in the Boxer uprising in China. He was shot while carrying a wounded private to safety at the battle of Tientsin, but went to Pekin before his wound was healed and took part in all the fighting there. He was wounded again at Pekin, but refused to quit. For his bravery and pluck he was chosen to carry a message to Minister Conger within the beleaguered walls. He delivered this "message to Garcia," then collapsed and was sent to a hospital, where he fought a winning battle with the soldier's worst enemy, typhoid fever. Later he served in the Philippines.

Lieutenant Colonel Frank J. Moses and Major Philip M. Bannon of the marines are other distinguished officers detailed for Nicaraguan duty. Moses was in command of the first provisional regiment of marines in Cuba for several years. Bannon was brevetted for gallantry at Guantanamo in 1898.

Uncle Sam is confident that these officers and the men under them can hold down Zelaya and his entire outfit.

SCENES IN NICARAGUA AND OFFICERS IN COMMAND OF THE AMERICAN FORCES.

CARNEGIE'S OWN MUSEUM.

Cottage Where He Was Born to Hold Mementos of His Lifetime.

The accumulation of caskets containing addresses, gold keys and other mementos of Andrew Carnegie's benefactions has become so considerable that their storage is a serious problem. Friends of Mr. Carnegie propose that the cottage wherein the ironmaster was born at Dunfermline, Scotland, be razed and an appropriate museum be erected on the site.

It is also suggested that the surrounding property be cleared for the purpose of forming a pleasure ground.

Move to Save Mountain Laurel.

Maintaining that the beautiful mountain laurel is in danger of becoming extinct through its lavish use for Christmas decorations, the Boston Society For the Protection of Native Plants has issued an appeal to the public to give up its use. A leaflet devoted to the preservation of this evergreen says that the plant is gathered extensively twice a year. In summer the flowers are taken for church and house decoration. In winter the inroads are much more extensive and dangerous. Enormous quantities are then used for festoons, wreaths, etc., in the Christmas dressing of churches and the decoration of ballrooms.

The Nicaraguan Situation.

Zelaya: hark, Zelaya!
Now beat it quick, or, say,
Your Uncle Sam will show you
The way.
Perhaps you think you're mighty
And free beyond restraint,
But he is here to tell you
You ain't.
You ought to be some decent
To hold down what you've got,
But you are always proving You're not.
Perhaps you think you're proper,
A really truly saint,
But everybody's certain
You ain't.
Zelaya: hark, Zelaya!
It may be that you think
Your Uncle Sam is largely Gesink
And that he's merely showing
His feathers and paint,
But—mind your eye, Zelaya—
He ain't.

—W. J. Lampton in New York Tribune.

DR. CLAY'S NEW JEWISH THEORY

Radical Views on Israelitish Culture and Religion.

"NOT OF BABYLONIAN ORIGIN."

University of Pennsylvania Professor Maintains Israel's History, Religion and Culture Originated in Israel's Own Land—Disputes Opinion of Assyriologists.

By GEORGE E. NITZSCHE.

Every student of the Old Testament who is dependent upon the work of the specialists will be greatly interested in a revolutionary work which was recently written by the Rev. Dr. Albert T. Clay, professor of philology and Semitic archaeology in the University of Pennsylvania, because it presents an entirely new theory upon the question as to the origin of the religion and literature of the Israelites. The prevailing opinion of nearly every Assyriologist is that in Babylon is to be found the origin of the Israelitish culture and religion, that the story of the creation, the deluge, the antediluvian patriarchs, as well as the origin of the Sabbath, is a myth from Babylonia and that the Jews got their ideas from the Babylonians while in exile and used them in writing their own history of Israel and that which is known as Israelitish is only an adaptation by late Hebrew writers of Babylonia mythology. These theories have been carried into the New Testament. Even Christ is declared by some of the critics to be a transformed Babylonian "Bel" or "Merodach." The characteristic features of the life of Jesus—his passion, death, resurrection and ascension—they claim, are ideas which had their origin in Babylonian mythology.

REV. DR. ALBERT T. CLAY.

Reversal of Views of Scholars.

In Professor Clay's new work on "Amurru, the Home of the Northern Semites," he presents authoritatively that the history, culture and religion of the Israelites are not of Babylonian origin. The views of the critics who would dissipate the Bible into Babylonian myths are not only proved to be without foundation, but he shows that Israel's religion and culture are developments which had their origin in Israel's own land and that Semitic Babylonian culture also originated in the Bible lands. This is a complete reversal of the position taken by scholars in regard to the origin of the culture in many respects common to both the Babylonians and Israelites.

Presents Entirely New Theory.

The ordinary interpretation of ideas from one nation to another is acknowledged by Professor Clay, but he vigorously attacks the pan-Babylonian theory by rendering of no effect the few arguments advanced to support them, and then, with an enormous amount of historical, archaeological and philological material, he scientifically builds up his own theory, which is entirely new and revolutionary and opposite to those of every eminent Assyriologist. The creation story of the Babylonians, which is similar to the Biblical account, Dr. Clay states, had its origin in Syria. The theory of its Babylonian origin receives its deathblow in this book. The Babylonian story of the antediluvian patriarchs, he shows, had its origin in Bible lands. The deluge story of the Babylonians is also shown to have been an importation from this land.

Eminent as an Assyriologist.

In the first part of the book, which is readable to the intelligent layman, the author presents a careful analysis of the views of other scholars and his own. The second part of his work is reserved for the technical material upon which he bases his position.

Dr. Clay's eminent position among Assyriologists of the world and the many authoritative translations of Babylonian hieroglyphics and scientific works published by him oblige scholars to give Dr. Clay's theories serious consideration. In this book the author has attempted to overthrow the prevailing opinions of most Assyriologists and Old Testament critics, and he must expect that his contentions will be hotly contested at every point of contact as well as the scientific material which he presents in the confirmation of his position.

LEOPOLD'S GERMAN BATH.

Embarrassing Situation in Which the Belgian King Figured.

That kings have feelings and are subject to embarrassing situations quite as frequently as ordinary persons is proved by an incident in which King Leopold of Belgium was the chief figure. Henry W. Fischer in his work "The Private Lives of Emperor William and His Consort" tells of the incident as follows:

"Court Marshal Liebenau was all in a flutter when in August, 1880, his Belgian majesty came to return the kaiser's visit to Ostend, for his colleague of Brussels had informed him that the sovereign gentleman was addicted to the daily bathing habit and demanded a hot bath at that.

"At last Liebenau hit upon a plan. He set up a modern enough bath that was fed by a cold water faucet and placed under one end of it a row of gas jets intended to heat the water in the tub. Should his majesty find the bath too warm, calculated the official with true native acumen, he can moderate the heat by turning on the cold reservoir.

"Now, Leopold had enjoyed the previous night's festivities very much, and, observing in the morning that his slightest wishes in regard to bodily comfort had been anticipated, he rose in right good humor. Stepping buoyantly into his bath at the cool end and turning round, he sat himself down at the other, which, the gas having just been turned off, was nothing short of a furnace with the redhot coals removed.

"At the same moment an unearthly yell rent the castle from marble hall to scullery. The sentinels marching up and down before the great gate called out the guard, and dozens of officials and servants ran to the king's suit of apartments, thinking that his majesty had been attacked. At last, the cries not ceasing, Herr von Liebenau, together with the housekeeper and the king's adjutant, took courage and burst into the bathroom, where they found his majesty dancing an impromptu highland fling and warwhooping alternately in French and German for liniments and cold cream. What he said to the court marshal became known only after the latter's dismissal and disgrace.

"As a further consequence of the incident it might be recorded that King Leopold did not ride to the parade held in his honor that morning, but viewed the ceremonies from his window."

FEEDING BY FORCE.

American Suffragette Describes Her Strange Experience in English Jail.

Miss Alice Paul, an American, who is a master of arts of the University of Pennsylvania and the daughter of a judge of New Jersey, was discharged from Holloway prison in London the other day after serving thirty days at hard labor for raising the suffragette disturbance and breaking windows at the lord mayor's banquet.

While in prison she refused to eat or lie in bed to prevent her jailers making her well. She says she was fed by force in this manner:

"The largest wardress in Holloway sat astride my knees. Two other wardresses sat on either side and held my arms. A towel was placed around my throat, and one doctor from behind forced my head back, while another doctor put a tube in my nostril. When it reached my throat my head was pushed forward. The tube came through my mouth, and I got it between my teeth.

"My mouth was then pried open with an instrument. Sometimes they tied me to a chair with sheets. Once I managed to get my hands loose and snatched the tube, tearing it with my teeth. I also broke a jug, but they succeeded in forcing me to eat."

CARL SCHURZ MEMORIAL.

Wisconsin Society Plans to Establish One in Watertown, Wis.

A project to purchase the site near Watertown, Wis., which was the first American home of Carl Schurz, the late publicist, and to make it a permanent memorial to him was recently presented to the Wisconsin Society of New York. A number of men headed by Henry C. Davis and H. L. Horton have been discussing the idea among themselves, and at the informal dinner which was given the other night at the Hotel Astor, in New York, the society indorsed the idea and left it to Mr. Davis, who is its president, to appoint a committee at his leisure to finance the proposition.

The strip of land for the site of the memorial can be purchased, it was said, for something like $3,500, which Mr. Davis personally pledged would be raised. It is intended to collect the speeches and writings and other relics of Schurz and to preserve them in the house that stands on the ground. The society holds an option on the site. Carl Schurz, Jr., was elected an honorary member of the society.

"Jungle Dinner" For a Club.

The members of the Wells Hawks Press club in Brooklyn, formed at the end of the Dreamland summer season at Coney Island, will hold a "jungle dinner" at Bostock's animal arena on New Year's night, setting a precedent for unique feeding affairs. The diners will be caged like regular animals, and they will be fed through the bars by waiters dressed animal fashion. The waiters' costume will be obtained from the Hippodrome's wardrobe, and they will be garbed all along the line from possum to bear, according to size and disposition.

SCHEME TO MA... INVALIDS HA...

Good Cheer Club Plans a ... ty-eight Story Home ...

TO BE ERECTED IN NEW ...

Idea Came to the Club's P... When She Lay Friendless i... cago Hospital—Society Organ... Twelve Girls Has Grown ... Proportions.

A dozen young girls on the west side of New York ca... themselves together last ... and incorporated a tiny club they called the "Society of Cheer." Their avowed object ... ply the "cheering up" ... —of the convalescent sick ... only three months after ... they have branches in almost ... prominent city in America. The ... entered the tuberculosis ... the field of children's charities ... they have already ordered plans ... twenty-eight story skyscraper, ... erected in the very near future ... island of Manhattan and to be ... the "House of Good Cheer."

What have they done, and how ... they do it? Their president, Miss ... ora Carter, who has headquarters ... 131 West Seventy-fourth street, ... York, explained the matter.

"It all started simply," she ... "Last year I was ill in Chicago ... home is in Seattle, Wash., and ... all alone when I was taken sick ... weeks and weeks I lay in the ... pital utterly uncheered by any ... any one. It was the most lonely ... perience of my life. And I ... that hosts of other girls and ... children, even, are suffering the ... all the time. And I thought ... time something was done.

Primarily a Time Charity.

"I wished from the start to ... my movement truly national. ... knew I must begin it in New ... My people were used to have me ... though it meant going so far ... from them. So I just came on ... New York and got in touch with ... old friends and chose a few new ... and we began.

"From the first I made it clear ... we were primarily a time charity ... a money one. We planned at first ... ply to give so much of our time ... week to visiting the convalescent ... friendless sick. We had no treasury ... all to begin with. It was just understood that if you individually were ... to buy a bunch of violets for ... son you were cheering up you ... right to do so. But as a club we ... commit ourselves financially at ...

"We were only young girls, you ... not millionaires. But then—people ... gan to be so generous.

Use of Clubhouse Offered.

"Two automobile firms contributed ... machine apiece to take our sick ... riding. A gentleman on Long ... gave us the use of a beautiful ... house and estate of eighty acres, ... stables and all buildings entire ... our disposal. Another man offered ... $1,500 to buy some very desirable ... in Texas for a consumptives' ... We are negotiating for the purchase ... of that now, and next spring we ... to erect a tent city there for ... able tuberculosis patients. The ... can will pay us what they can, ... intend to help those who are destitute ... without money and without price.

"It was in talking to Mr. W... the chaplain at St. Luke's chapel ... York, where we've done a great deal ... of our visiting, that I first got the ... idea for our most wonderful plan ... all—the Good Cheer building. ... valescents. The architects of the ... building have already nearly completed ... the plans. The building will be ... ty-eight stories in height, and ... of ground on which it will stand ... be at least 75 by 100 feet. The ... will probably go into the millions, ... we have determined to build it ... where in the borough of Manhattan.

Will House 3,000.

"We should be able to house ... 2,500 or 3,000 people at once. We ... not going to have wards. We ... want a hospital. Each guest will ... have his own separate room. There ... shall have a general assembly room ... where famous doctors may come ... lecture to us and our patients on ... giene. We shall have an entertainment room with a tiny stage. We ... shall have offices and rooms for ... of our members. We shall have ... perfectly appointed kitchen, of course, ... and doctors and nurses in attendance ... day and night.

"I admit that we haven't as yet collected all our funds for the erection ... our home, but I know of several ... while people in New York who ... getting very much interested. ... have an uncle, Henry Calhoun, ... a millionaire, and I'm going ... a special trip to St. John, N. B., ... he lives, and do my very best to ... his enthusiasm. Oh, we'll get what ... want finally, and I don't believe ... will take us very long."

Tailored Saddles For Steeds.

General Crozier, chief of ordnance, ... in a report to the secretary of war ... Washington the other day recommends tailor made saddles for army ... horses. General Crozier observes that ... while horses' backs differ, all men ... are alike. He believes that the army ... could be made more comfortable and ... useful if a saddle were fitted to

ABILITY OF ALFALFA.

...duced in Most Climates of the United States.

...experts have been declaring ...fa would grow only in cer... and to certain climates. ... and adaptability ... and almost al... ...a rainfall as ... and in the gulf states ... with sixty-five inches. ... an elevation ... feet ... sweet, and in southern ... grows below ... six feet of ... a year aggregate ... An authority ... ...s a wonderful ... the irrigated deserts ... California sixty feet ... unmeasured quantities ... feet in height. ... raised. ... Vermont and Florida. ... grown it for over 100 years. ... clay and gravel. ... plowing, as does Nevada ... brush desert. The depleted ... of Alabama and rich corn ... Illinois and Missouri each re... ...eriously with profitable yields. ... enterprising farmer, while its ... ted nitrogen and the subsoil ... ...fects are making the rich land ... humble and giving back to the ... ...n land the priceless elements ... It has been in successive ... despoiled by a conscienceless ...ry.

Farm Value of Toads.

...uralist has found some very ...g facts concerning the diet ...ad, and it is found that it is ...ctor of the farmer and garden... ...ts caterpillars and cutworms, ...nowbugs, snails, grasshoppers, ...wirdworms and potato bugs all ...h damage a farmer's crop of ... to a serious degree. In the ... of one toad were found seven ...ssaid-legged worms, in an... ...ere thirty-seven tent caterpil... ...another sixty-five gipsy moths ...nd and in still another fifty ...y worms. It is said that ...g housewives have dispatched ...down the throat of one toad ...han ten minutes—and the re... ...uffing is held by another, who ...hungry after consuming nine.

According to this observer, ...y days a single toad may de... ...00 cutworms, 1,800 thousand ...00 sowbugs and 300 weevils.

...m Truck by Automobile.

...interesting to know that many ...conveniences and helps which ...posed to belong to city society ... making their way into the ... Water fixtures in the houses, ...d hot water heaters and many ...ings which fifty years ago were

...AR TRUCK FOR FRUIT FARM.

...ound outside a large town are ...mmon in many farmhouses ...ry which was thought to be of ... service only on smooth city ...ay now be found in the coun... ...e picture shows a large auto... which does the business for a ...m. It is shown in actual use ...wich, Conn., carrying peaches ...et some eight miles distant. ...chine has a fifty horsepower ...its maximum speed is fifteen ...h hour, and its approximate ...$4,000. The superintendent is ...leased with the machine in ...ay and says that it is very ... and serviceable and takes the ... at least six horses. Forty ...rrels of apples can be carried ...fect ease. It will carry a hun... ...bels of potatoes. In the load

In Bad

"I had a mishap at the age ..." writes Mrs. Georgia Usher, ... "I was unconscious for ... ould have fainting spells, dizziness, ...adache, heart palpitation and ... "I suffered greatly with ... e and had 3 doctors, but they ... try Cardui.

"Since taking Cardui, I am ... my housework."

Take CAR

The Woman'

Do not allow yourself to get ... t in so bad you would find it ... Better take Cardui while ... ll in moderately good health; just ... d keep you in tip top condition. ... In this way your troubles, ... ly grow smaller instead of larger ... -grade instead of the down—... ive at the north pole of perfect ... Get a bottle at your druggists.

ATH.

SCHEME TO MA INVALIDS HAP

Good Cheer Club Plans a T ty-eight Story Home

TO BE ERECTED IN NEW

Idea Came to the Club's Pr When She Lay Friendless in cago Hospital—Society Organi Twelve Girls Has Grown to Proportions.

A dozen young girls on the west side of New York city themselves together last Sep and incorporated a tiny club, they called the "Society of Cheer." Their avowed object w ply the "cheering up"—nonfi —of the convalescent sick. only three months after incorpor they have branches in almost prominent city in America. They entered the tuberculosis campai the field of children's charities. they have already ordered plans twenty-eight story skyscraper, erected in the very near future island of Manhattan and to be the "House of Good Cheer."

What have they done, and how they do it? Their president, Mis ora Carter, who has headquarte 131 West Seventy-fourth street, York, explained the matter.

"It all started simply," she "Last year I was ill in Chicago. home is in Seattle, Wash., and all alone when I was taken sick. weeks and weeks I lay in the pital utterly uncheered by any any one. It was the most horrib perience of my life. And I re that hosts of other girls and ma children, even, are suffering that all the time. And I thought time something was done.

Primarily a Time Charity.

"I wished from the start to my movement truly national, knew I must begin it in New My people were glad to have me though it meant going so far from them. So I just came on New York and got in touch with old friends and made a few new and we began.

"From the first I made it clear we were primarily a time charity a money one. We planned at first to give so much of our time week to visiting the convalescent friendless sick. We had no treas all to begin with. It was just stood that if you individually w to buy a bunch of violets for th son you were cheering up you right to do so. But as a club we commit ourselves financially at a

"We were only young girls, you not millionaires. But then—peop gan to be so generous.

Use of Clubhouse Offered.

"Two automobile firms contrib machine apiece to take our sick f riding. A gentleman on Long gave us the use of a beautiful house and estate of eighty acres stables and all buildings entir our disposal. Another man offer $1,500 to buy some very desirable in Texas for a consumptives' We are negotiating for the pur of that now, and next spring we h to erect a tent city there for re able tuberculosis patients. Thos can will pay us what they can, b intend to help those who are des without money and without pric

"It was in talking to Mr. Wh the chaplain at St. Luke's chapel York, where we've done a great of our visiting, that I first voic idea for our most wonderful pl all the Good Cheer building fo valescents. The architects o building have already nearly com the plans. The building will be ty-eight stories in height, and t of ground on which it will stand be at least 75 by 100 feet. Th will probably go into the million we have determined to build where in the borough of Manha

Will House 3,000.

"We should be able to house at 2,500 or 3,000 people at once. W not going to have wards. We want a hospital. Each guest have his own separate room. Th shall have a general assembly where famous doctors may com lecture to us and our patients e glene. We shall have an ente ment room with a tiny stage. shall have offices and rooms for of our members. We shall h perfectly appointed kitchen, of c and doctors and nurses in atten day and night.

"I admit that we haven't as y lected all our funds for the erect our home, but I know of several while people in New York wh getting very much interested. have an uncle, Henry Calhoun, a millionaire, and I'm going to a special trip to St. John, N. B., he lives, and do my very best to his enthusiasm. Oh, we'll get wh want finally, and I don't beli will take so very long."

Tailored Saddles For Steeds.

General Crozier, chief of ord in a report to the secretary of Washington the other day mends tailor made saddles for horses. General Crozier observe while horses' backs differ, all are alike. He believes that the could be made more comfortab useful if a saddle were fitted to STABILITY OF ALFALFA.

Produced in Most Climates of the United States.

Experts have been declaring alfa would grow only in cer ds and in certain climates, it ved adaptability to nearly all and almost all soils. It pro with a rainfall as scant as four hes and in the gulf states four ith sixty-five inches. It gives at an elevation of 8,000 feet ea level, and in southern Cali grows below sea level to a of six feet or over, with nine a year, aggregating ten to tons. An authenticated photo shows a wonderful alfalfa plant the irrigated desert of south California sixty feet below sea t measured considerably more feet in height. Satisfactory re raised, but on limited areas in Vermont and Florida. New as grown it for over 100 years clay and gravel. Nebraska it is her western sand hills plowing, as does Nevada on ebrush desert. The depleted oils of Alabama and rich corn f Illinois and Missouri each re generously with profitable yields enterprising farmer, while its ated nitrogen and the subsoili fects are making the rich land ilable and giving back to the orn land the priceless elements h it has been in successive gen s despoiled by a conscienceless dry.

Farm Value of Toads.

turalist has found some very ing facts concerning the diet toad, and it is found that it is ctor of the farmer and garden eats caterpillars and cutworms, sowbugs, snails, grasshoppers, wireworms and potato bugs, all h damage a farmer's crop or ds to a serious degree. In the of one toad were found seven sand-legged worms, in an ere thirty-seven fat caterpil another sixty-five gypsy moths ond and in still another fifty my worms. It is said that ix houseworms have disap down the throat of one toad han ten minutes, and the rec stuffing is held by another, who hungry after consuming nine According to this observer, y days a single toad may de 100 cutworms, 1,800 thousand 00 sowbugs and 360 weevils.

rm Truck by Automobile.

interesting to know that many conveniences and helps which pposed to belong to city society w making their way into the Water fixtures in the houses, nd hot water heaters and many ings which fifty years ago were found outside a large town are ommon in many farmhouses, ry which was thought to be of l service only on smooth city may now be found in the coun he picture shows a large auto hich does the business for a rm. It is shown in actual use nwich, Conn., carrying peaches ket some eight miles distant. achine has a fifty horsepower its maximum speed is fifteen h hour, and its approximate $4,000. The superintendent is leased with the machine in ay and says that it is very l and serviceable and takes the f at least six horses. Forty barrels of apples can be carried rfect ease. It will carry a hun shels of potatoes. In the load shown here there are 100 baskets of peaches, and considerably more could have been added. Both trips to market are made to count, as, returning, the truck takes back supplies for the farm and its operation. Such a truck as this will climb any grade that is found on traffic thoroughfares, and ordinary mud has no terror for it at all. By means of trucks like these markets are brought close to the farmers, thus insuring a quick disposal of the farm products. Much labor is saved, and much more work can be accomplished for less money.

AR TRUCK FOR FRUIT FARM.

Wanted His Money Back.

It is an old saying that "you cannot eat your cake and have it too." But a seasick person usually cares little for either side of the proposition. The captain of one of the steamships plying between this country and Italy, which arrived at New York with over 900 immigrants, tells a rather amusing story of a heated interview held between himself and one of them on the voyage across.

The vessel had been out a few days and had encountered some heavy seas. The first morning that calmer weather prevailed one of the steerage passengers appeared for the first time above deck and with a face as white as a sheet approached the captain.

"This has got to stop!" he said angrily.

"What has?" asked the captain, in surprise.

"This feeling of death. When I bought my ticket I was told it included meals, but I can't keep my food down. Now, it has got to stop, captain, or else I want my passage money back. You cannot break your contract in this fashion with me."

It took all the captain's ingenuity to pacify him during the rest of the trip. —Youth's Companion.

No Chance For the Truth.

"Be truthful," said the teacher.

"Always?" asked the boy.

"Always," answered the teacher.

"Never tell a lie?"

"Never."

"Not even a white lie?"

"Not even a white lie."

"Huh," ejaculated the lad scornfully, "it's a mighty good thing for you you ain't a boy with my dad for a father!"

"Why?" asked the teacher.

"Because," replied the boy, "if you was my dad's little boy, and you'd heard what he said about Aunt Eliza comin' to visit us with her children, and Aunt Eliza had asked you if you weren't all glad to see her, and you'd told the truth, like I did, you'd think there was a place where your trousers was mighty thin after dad had finished with you."

He went back to his desk, and as he sat down with great care there was an expression on his face that showed the great lesson of truth had been, at least in a measure, lost on him.—London Tit-Bits.

When Curates Were Wanted.

When one learns that curates are increasing so much more rapidly than benefices, wonder is excited as to the condition of affairs in the eighteenth century, when enterprising ladies offered livings to clergymen willing to marry them. An advertisement to this effect appeared in the London Chronicle in March, 1758. The lady was rather particular too. The curate was to be young, have a small fortune, be well recommended as to morals and good temper "and be firmly attached to the present happy establishment." The living was not rich—below £100 per annum—but the fair one was young and agreeable. There seems a touch of humility in the direction that answers "may be left at the bar of the Union Coffee House, Strand, directed to Z. Z." Confidence was created by the assurance that "the utmost secrecy and honor may be depended upon."—London Chronicle.

Once a Deer Paddock In Yonkers.

In the early days of the Philipse Manor House at Yonkers, N. Y., a deer paddock was maintained in the rear of the mansion. Sometimes they would escape and swim the Hudson river, disappearing in what is now New Jersey.

In Bad Fix

"I had a mishap at the age of 41, which left me in bad x," writes Mrs. Georgia Usher, of Conyers, Ga. "I was unconscious for three days, and after that I ould have fainting spells, dizziness, nervousness, sick eadache, heart palpitation and many strange feelings. "I suffered greatly with ailments due to the change of e and had 3 doctors, but they did no good, so I concluded try Cardui. "Since taking Cardui, I am so much better and can do l my housework."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Do not allow yourself to get into a bad fix. You might et in so bad you would find it hard to get out. Better take Cardui while there is time, while you are ill in moderately good health, just to conserve your strength nd keep you in tip top condition. In this way your troubles, whatever they are, will gradlly grow smaller instead of larger—you will be on the grade instead of the down—and by and bye you will rive at the north pole of perfect health. Get a bottle at your druggists' today.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Care of Window Shades.

New shades should be rolled up for awhile at first. The shading is apt to be new and fresh, which causes it to curl on the edges. Be sure to roll a new shade exactly straight and even on the roller, as it gets its set from the first rolling and will roll the same way afterward. If it is rolled crooked at first it will roll crooked as long as it can be rolled on a roller. In restitching a wornout hem on a shade use as long a stitch as can be made. A short stitch cuts, and the hem will tear off in a short time. A window shade may be made bright by laying on the floor and cleaning with a damp cloth or sponge and a little soapy water. Be careful not to soak it or make it too weak. Allow it to dry before putting back on the window.

Proper Use of the Knife.

The knife is invariably held in the right hand and is used exclusively for cutting. The small "butter spread," as it is called, is used only to place the butter upon the bread, and when you are eating it should rest upon the bread and butter plate, or the tip should rest upon the smaller butter dish. When you have cut the desired piece of meat, place your knife at the side of the plate and use the fork for conveying the food to the mouth. Never allow the knife to rest, after the fashion of a gangplank, with the handle on the table.

Spoon Etiquette.

Never allow your spoon to remain in the bouillon cup while drinking from it. It should only be used to stir beverages once or twice, and after the flavor or temperature has been tested lay it in the saucer. In taking soup the correct motion is from the body in an outward motion, and liquids should be taken from the side of the spoon. With grapefruit and fruit cups, hot puddings and custards, fruits served with cream and when eggs are served in a glass, the spoon is used.

Handy Clothesline Reel.

Whenever clothes are dried in small places and are difficult of access the clothesline reel designed by a Missouri man will be found a great help. With this reel a lineful of clothing can be drawn in to the post and the clothing removed with ease, obviating the necessity of making a round of the line and collecting the garments in a basket. In cases where clothes are hung out of high windows to dry and it is impossible to make rounds of the line on foot such a device is practically indispensable. At the top of the pole is a combination of pulleys through which the line passes, while near the bottom is the reel, around which one end of the line is wound. The clothes are hung on the line as it is paid out, and when the time comes to take them in all that is necessary is to wind up the reel and take them down as they approach the pole. This also saves the trouble of carrying a basketful of the garments around.

REEL FOR CLOTHESLINES.

Embroidery Frame For Mending.

In many instances an embroidery hoop will be found a great help when mending. Underwear will be found much easier to mend when put over the frame, because this holds it firmly in place, while if the frame is not used the garment is apt to be pulled out of shape in the mending. When mending any kind of a hole in any material be sure to press the mended portion carefully on the wrong side of the material, for this will make it less conspicuous.

Indian Bannock.

One cup of white cornmeal (if not white, yellow will do), one tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one pint of boiling milk. Add meal, sugar and salt to boiling milk and when cool add two eggs beaten separately. Bake in a shallow earthen dish in a very hot oven. Serve in the dish it was baked in at once. It is not good if it stands.

Meat and Potato Pie.

Pare and slice ten potatoes and six onions. Put them in a baking pan in layers, with a sprinkling of salt and pepper on each layer. Lay slices of salt or fresh pork over the top, cover with boiling water and bake until done, turning the meat once in awhile and sprinkling a little flour on it so it will brown nicely just before it is served.

Spanish Soup.

Soak one pound white beans overnight. Boil till tender one large white cabbage. Cut fine half a pound of bacon, a red pepper and salt. Boil the whole an hour. Fry one onion and put in soup little by little. Stir often. Add a little olive, butter and garlic.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Dissolution of Standard Oil.

Judge Walter H. Sanborn of St. Paul, who presided over the United States court of appeals of the Eighth judicial district, which decreed the dissolution of the Standard Oil company, has served seventeen years on the federal bench. The suit of the government to dissolve the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was filed in St. Louis in 1908 at the instance of the then attorney general, William H. Moody. Judge Franklin Ferris of St. Louis was appointed special examiner to hear the evidence, and hearings were held in many of the principal cities of the United States.

The evidence when completed was printed and forwarded to St. Louis, where it was filed with the clerk of the court. There are twenty-one volumes of evidence, more than 25,000 pages in all. In addition, there are 1,500 exhibits. The case was argued, beginning April 5 last, before the full circuit bench—Judges Walter H. Sanborn, Willis Van Devanter, William C. Hook and Elmer B. Adams.

WALTER H. SANBORN.

Judge Sanborn, who wrote the opinion and decree, was appointed to the bench in 1892, Senator Davis of Minnesota being his sponsor. He is a native of New Hampshire and was raised on a farm. After being graduated from Dartmouth he studied law, supporting himself meanwhile by teaching school. In 1870, after his admission to the bar, he removed to St. Paul, where he has since resided. At the time of his appointment to the federal bench he was regarded as one of the ablest lawyers in the northwest.

Senate Clerk Former Actor.

John C. Crockett, the reading clerk of the United States senate, was formerly an actor, and his reading of the bills is accomplished with great dramatic force and enthusiasm. He was clerk of the supreme court of Iowa, but resigned his position to go to Washington when he was notified of his choice by the senate committee. His voice and enunciation are unusually clear, and when it rises and falls with oratorical emphasis it soothes many a member of the senate.

A Farreaching Combine.

The recent absorption of the Western Union by the American Telephone and Telegraph company places Theodore N. Vail, president of the latter institution, at the head of the greatest combination of its kind in the world. Nearly every line of wire communication in this country is now controlled by the two great companies.

Mr. Vail was born in Ohio sixty-four years ago, but his childhood and youth were spent in New Jersey. At twenty-three he was a railway mail clerk, eventually becoming manager of the railway mail service. Tiring of government employ, he allied himself in 1878 with the Bell telephone interests. His success with that growing institution was immediate, and he soon was made general manager. In 1888 he retired and spent some years traveling in Europe. Later he went to South America and engaged in building street railways. He retained his interests in the telephone company, however, and two years ago was elected its head. Mr. Vail's chief pleasure is found on his farm in Vermont, where he owns 5,000 acres of land, one-third of which is under cultivation. He makes butter and raises horses, ponies and pigs.

THEODORE N. VAIL.

FATHER 80—MOTHER 76

The aged father and mother of a prominent Boston lawyer safely carried through the last two winters by,

Vinol

The son says: "My father and mother owe their present strength and good health to Vinol. During the last two trying winters neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of."

We want every feeble old person in this town to try Vinol. We will return their money without question if it does not accomplish all we claim for it.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

That Necessary Magazine

—for the thinking man—for the professional man—for the busy business man—and his family; in short, it's for You

25 cents per copy

$3.00 a year

The Review of Reviews

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

¶ It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

OUR 1909-10 CATALOGUE

of all American magazines is a money-saver. You can't afford to order for next year without first seeing it. If you appreciate reputable agency service, and demand maximum magazine value for the fewest dollars, write for it—today. It's free to YOU.

• The Review of Reviews Company, New York

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps

Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades,

Crockery, Glass and

Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies
We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

THE BANNER

FRANK CRICHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain.
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw.
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. LOYD TATE.

Some communications we are unavoidably compelled to hold over until next issue.

HON. EMMETT O'NEAL, of Florence, has announced himself a candidate for Governor of Alabama, and issued a straightforward declaration of his principles. He goes thoroughly into the present political situation, and talks out straight, pledging himself, if elected, to the enforcement of all laws.

Mr. O'Neal made an excellent reputation during the late campaign, which will doubtless stand him in good stead at this time, and of the candidates already announced for the governorship we believe him to be the best for the State.

THE State Democratic Executive Committee will shortly meet and the question of an early or late primary will be settled. It would seem that an early date for the primary would about meet the wishes of a large majority of the Democrats of the State, who are not desirous of being worried to death all through the summer, and would like to have the candidates nominated as soon as possible.

So far as Chilton county is concerned the political situation is remarkably quiet, and up to the present there is not the slightest talk of candidates. Next November there is to be elected a Probate Judge, Circuit Clerk, Sheriff, Coroner, and two Commissioners; Justices of the Peace and Constables for each beat.

The only name we have heard mentioned in connection with any of the offices is that of Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, who we understand will seek re-election.

In the Fourth Congressional district a successor to Hon. W. B. Craig has to be elected, that gentleman having announced his determination not to ask again for the suffrages of his constituents.

A Judge and Solicitor for this, the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, are to be elected; the only announced candidate so far being Hon. F. Loyd Tate of Wetumpka, for Solicitor, who formerly made an excellent solicitor and will be hard to beat.

Hard Hit.

Lord Fitzfoodle, casting himself on his knees before Araminta, gave utterance to the following: "Oh, that I could snatch a pine from some primeval forest! I would sharpen the end with my penknife, dip it in the molten crater of Vesuvius and write upon the azure wall of heaven in letters of living fire, 'Araminta, I love thee!'"

Theory and Practice.

"Dinglebat has original ideas about family government. He says every home should be a little republic, where universal toleration prevails and every one has a voice in the government."

"Yes; his family is managed on that plan. But he and Mrs. Dinglebat have the same old wrangle every day as to who shall be president."

The Foolish Man.

"I see," said the landlady, "that a man in Ohio has got himself into trouble by marrying two women."

"Huh!" growled the bachelor boarder. "Just as though one wife couldn't make trouble enough!"—Chicago News.

South African Diamonds.

According to official estimates, the value of diamonds yet in the ground in German South Africa is $250,000,000.

F. LOYD TATE
Spoken well of in his old County of Russell.

With pleasure we announce in this issue of The Banner the candidacy of F. Loyd Tate, the well known lawyer of Wetumpka for the position of Circuit Solicitor, for this, the 15th. District.

As Solicitor for the old District Mr. Tate made an excellent record for the prompt and fearless performance of the duties of his office, and his invariable politeness made him many friends which will stand him in good stead in this campaign.—Clanton Banner.

The Russell Register published in Seale Ala, Russell Co., Mr. Tate's old County, in quoting the above from the Clanton Banner.,

"Loyd Tate is a son of Col. J. F. Tate, and is an old Russell Co. boy, and is well known in this section of the State.

He is a young man of fine ability, and has hundreds of friends who would be glad to see him elected to the position to which he aspires.

Here's to you, Loyd, may you win in a walk."

This speaks well of Mr. Tate, and shows that he has friends in his old County who wish him well. It is sometimes a pleasure to know that the old saying that "No prophet is without honor, save in his own country", is not always true.

PROGRAM

Fifth Sunday Meeting, to be held at Pilgrims Rest church, Pletcher, January 29-30, 1910.

Saturday, 10 a.m. Devotional exercises by Calhoun Walker.

10:30. Is it to the best interest of the Master's Kingdom to enforce Gospel discipline? By Rev. M. J. Parrish and Rev. W. J. Bone.

11. Sermon by Rev. W. H. Connell. Recess until 1:30.

1:30 p.m. Does the annual call serve to the best interest of the church? By F. W. C. Bice.

2:15. Should the sisters be organized in denominational work? By Rev. P. G. Maness.

Sunday, 9 30 a.m. Devotional exercises by T. J. Baker.

9:45. Is it wise for the churches to co-operate with the boards of the Southern Baptist Convention? By Rev. S. R. Wood.

10:15. Sunday School talk by N. J. Calloway.

11. Sermon by W. B. Crumpton; alternate, W. J. Ruddick. Recess until 1:30.

1:30 p.m. The importance of family religion, by Rev. F. M. Woods.

2:15. Reports of delegates.

2:45. Time and place of next meeting, and committee to arrange program.

We invite everybody to come. These meetings are just what the brethren make of them.

J. L. DERAMUS }
T. J. DEASON } Committee.

FIRE AT CLANTON.
Home Of R. L. MarcusBurns

At midnight Wednesday the home of Mr. R. L. Marcus was found to be on fire and was burning furiously. Mr. and Mrs. Marcus had to make their escape through a window.

The house was an old one, having been built many years ago. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

CHILDREN

In disorders and diseases of children drugs seldom do good and often do harm.

Careful feeding and bathing are the babies' remedies.

Scott's Emulsion

is the food-medicine that not only nourishes them most, but also regulates their digestion. It is a wonderful tonic for children of all ages. They rapidly gain weight and health on small doses.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

COLUMBUS.

Far, far across the ocean lies the sunny land of Italy, with its fruitful vineyard and more precious than all its dark-eyed boys, and girls.

And in this fair country, nearly five hundred years ago a hero was born.

Now, when a king's son is born bells are rung, thanksgiving hymns are sung, flags were floating over the city.

But when Columbus was born there was no such rejoicing.

A tiny boy baby came to the woolcomber of Genoa, and nobody knew that a hero's life had just begun You must know of course that one does not become a hero all at once.

I am sure that some of these boys know how a hero grows, and I will leave them to tell.

This boy had much to learn.

He had need of a strong body; so he had much playing to do like other boys, in the open air and much work too which made his muscles strong. He learned, as you do to read and write. But he read and wrote the language of Italy, which was like sweet music. Then he had to learn about ships for the time was to come when he would command them.

He needed to know about the sea for his great work would lead him across the pathless ocean. He should know about men for the time would come when he must direct men, they must obey and most of all, he had to learn to be very brave and patient if he would do the hero's work for the world.

As you know Genoa is built by the sea, and I can imagine the young Christopher played by the water running over the ships, climbing the masts, helping the sailors, listening to the captain, and learned all the while.

At last he went to sea, and I have read that he saved the lives of a captain, and all his crew by his bravery in a great storm. And now I will tell you a queer thing. The people who lived in the time of Christopher Columbus thought that the earth was flat, like a plate "Of course it is" said the wise men; "We can see it with our eyes." I've heard a man say that it was round, said a small boy; but the older people said, "He is a fool., "We have always known that the earth is flat. If it was round we should fall off, of course." Christopher Columbus heard what the people said, he had learned of a man who believed that the earth was round. He studied and thought until he believed it too.

The people who lived in Europe did not know this great country of ours was in the world because they thought the earth was flat, and believed they would fall off if they came to the edge. There was another reason too why they dared not go far from land. They had no compass then, and they feared to lose their way. But by the time Columbus had grown to be a man the compass had been invented.

Meanwhile people had traveled to the far country called India, and had brought back rich jewels, spices curious shawls, and many beautiful things. This made every body long to go to India to get rich.

I shall tell you more of this true story. Columbus said to himself, I know that the earth is round.

The people have traveled east to go to India. It is a long journey. I will sail west, and I believe I shall reach India by a far shorter way. But nobody believed him. It was very hard to get money enough to go, and Columbus spent long weary years walking from place to place, trying to make people believe as he did; still he was patient and brave. At last Queen Isabella gave him money enough to buy three ships, and sent men to sail with him to find the shorter way to India.

What a glad day for Columbus when he saw his three ships in the harbor. They were named the Pinta, the Nina, and the Santa Maria. The sun shone brightly, flags floating bells rang, and the people cheered when the ships sailed from the harbor of Palos. The heart of Columbus swelled in his bosom. He knew that he was beginning a wonderful voyage. Day after day passed, the three ships were alone on the wide ocean. No land was in sight. The winds blew, and the waves ran high. The sailors were afraid, and begged Columbus to turn back. Why are we here on this foolish errand?" they cried, "we do not believe your foolish stories about a round earth, We shall come to the edge, and fall off, or else be buried in the unknown sea!" And in the dark nights they planned to throw Columbus overboard, and turn their ships toward home. But Columbus was not afraid. He talked with his men until they were quiet, and promised to sail on for three more days. One day passed: no land in sight a second: still no land. On the third morning there came toward the ship floating upon the water a branch of red berries. Hope rose in the fearful hearts. Before night they heard the welcome cry, "Land! Land! Land!" What shouts rang through the air! What joy filled the heart of brave Columbus! He led his men in small boats, to the land, and knelt upon the shore, Columbus took possession of the new-found country in the name of his queen Isabella.

A strange company of men crowded around Columbus and his sailors. They had copper-colored skins, erect and straight black hair. They had never seen white men before, and they thought the ships were great birds. Columbus called the people Indians because he thought he had reached India. But we know that he had found a new world. After a few months Columbus went back to Spain, his ships laden with curious treasures. He carried some Indians with him, to show what he had found. There was great rejoicing when the three ships sailed again into the little harbor of Palos. There the people said: "Ah! the great Columbus was right, after all" They sang his praises everywhere. Did the boy who on the wharf at Genoa, gazing over the blue sea, dream that boys and girls would tell the story of his life hundreds of years afterward in the great country which he discovered?

LOFTON HAND.

PROGRAM

For S. S. Convention, District No. 6, to be held at Pleasant Grove Baptist church, four miles west of Maplesville, Jan. 29, 1910.

9:30 a.m. Devotional exercise by N. W. Latham.

10. How can the opening service of the Sunday School be made attractive? Discussed by W. O. Perry, P. G. Maness.

10:30. What can be done with a teacher who cannot get through with the lesson on time? Discussed by T. U. Crumpton, W. J. Ruddick. Song.

11. a.m. What are some of the most serious hinderances to the Sunday School? Discussed by W. H. Connell, G. W. Fox. Song.

11:30. Enrollment of delegates. Dinner.

1.30 p.m. What part of the Sunday School service should be conducted by the assistant superintendent? Discussed by P. G. Maness, W. H. Connell and others. Song.

2:30. Select next place of meeting; miscellaneous business and adjournment.

It is earnestly requested that all parties who are interested in Sunday work be present and help us, especially those of District 6, for this is a meeting of great interest to the district work. Come over and help us.

N. L. BROADHEAD, Dist. Pres.

Railway Mail Clerks Wanted

The Government pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1200. and other employees up to $2,500 annually.

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks and other government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in city or country can get instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 11 Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y.

A Famous Temple.

The most magnificent work of architecture in the world is the Taj Mahal, in Agra, Hindustan. It was erected by Shah Jehan to the memory of his favorite queen. It is octagonal in form, of pure white marble, inlaid with jasper, carnelian, turquoise, agate, amethyst and sapphire. The work took 22,000 men twenty years to complete, and, though there were free gifts and the labor was free, the cost is estimated at $16,000,000.—Exchange.

Real Good Steak.

"We can't eat this steak; it's not good!" complained a young man who was spending his honeymoon in a Scottish village.

"Ye're surely jokin', sir," said the landlord of the inn. "It maun indeed be guid. It's a bit o' the minister's auld coo!"

Higher.

"But our ideals!"

"What of them?"

"Are they higher than they were a generation ago?"

"Sure. Everything is higher now."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

His Blunder.

"How did you enjoy the musicale?"

"Oh, I applauded at the wrong time, as usual; thought the orchestra tuning up was a classical number."—Kansas City Journal.

Easily Timed.

Read—Have you ever timed your automobile? Greene—Oh, yes! It stood perfectly still for forty-eight minutes on the road today.

Bogs of Sweden.

The bogs of Sweden, it is now estimated, would yield 10,000,000,000 tons of air dried peat.

There is more to a Fertilizer than Analyses

The mere mixing of materials to obtain analysis requires no special knowledge. The value of a fertilizer lies in the source from which the plant food is obtained.

Each ingredient in Royster goods is selected with a view of supplying the plant from sprouting until harvest. The plant is not overfed at one time and starved at another. Twenty-five years experience goes with every bag.

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

Sold by reliable dealers throughout the South.

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO.
—DEALER IN—
Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, Hats, Etc
AND COTTON BUYER

LET YOUR CHRISTMAS GIFTS BE SERVICEABLE GIFTS

We have a line of substantial merchandise good for Xmas presents that will be valuable after the holidays are over.

BUY SOMETHING THAT WILL LAST

J. C. JONES & CO.

CLANTON - - - ALA

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Is one of the latest additions to Clanton's business center, and one of the most attractive and commodious places of its kind in town, situated on southeast corner of the square. They invite you to call on them when in town and make their store your headquarters. Their stock of Millinery is complete; their Trimmer from St. Louis is right up to date. If its quality, style and prices you are looking for, their store is the place for you. Mrs. Clara Mullins is general manager, and will be glad to wait on you.

C. R. Mullins will continue his same old business, of Fire Insurance, Life Insurance, Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs, in the new Company's store. He thanks you for past favors and solicits your future business. Yours truly,

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO

NEW FEED STORE

At Goodgame's Old Stand, near Lowe's Shop

Handle Loose Hulls, Sacked Hulls, also a good quality of Cotton Seed Meal, Corn, and Hay

I also buy Scrap Iron, Hides, Green and Green Salted and Flint Hides.

BEST PRICES BOTH WAYS

CALL AND SEE ME
N. B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

Commissioners' court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in [illegible] second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MARKET
Price to day .... [illegible]
" same date last year [illegible]
No. Bales received to date
Warehouse receipts to 5 p.m. Wednesday

Mrs. F. W. Denty is visiting relatives and friends in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. [illegible] Billingsley, Route 1, were in town Saturday.

Postmaster F. O. Dudley is spending a few days with relatives and friends in South Alabama.

Miss Minnie Muse left last Friday to visit friends and relatives at Randolph, Lawley and Maplesville.

Mrs. Barrett of Cooper was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

Prof. E. C. Popwell of Kingcheon was in town Saturday.

Mrs. G. B. Wimberly of Reform, Ala., is visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Mathews.

Mr. C. Fenn Jones visited Jemison Friday.

Miss Bessie VanDeVeer has returned to Tuscaloosa to resume her studies, after spending several weeks at home.

Miss Julia Potts of Trinity, Ala., is visiting relatives in Clanton.

Mrs. J. R. Mullins is visiting relatives in Monroe, La.

Miss Lena Lucas has returned to her home in Blocton, after a pleasant visit to her grandfather Rev. F. M. Woods.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Mrs. J. E. Robinson, Jr., and sister, Miss Kate Aldridge, have returned from a pleasant visit to Birmingham.

Mrs. A. C. Luckie and children of Montgomery are visiting the family of Mr. R. E. Luckie.

Miss Linter Chewning of Roanoke is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Langley.

Mrs. O. Mastin, of Wetumpka, Okla., after an absence of several years from Clanton, is visiting relatives and friends here.

Mr. F. M. Wilson of Verbena was in town last Friday.

Mr. L. E. Littlefield of Jemison gave us a pleasant call Saturday.

Mr. J. A. Mitchell of Verbena was a visitor Saturday.

Mr. D. M. Martin of Maplesville gave us a pleasant visit Tuesday.

Miss Alec Stewart, who for past year has been in Nashville, Tenn., has returned, to the delight of her many friends, and is now stenographer for Messrs. Adams and Middleton.

Mrs. C. M. Davenport has returned to her home in Maplesville, after a pleasant visit to her father, Mr. J. W. Carwile.

Mr. O. H. Werner, of St. Louis, was in town Monday.

Mr. Parker, of Nashville, was in town Wednesday.

Mr. J. P. Smith of Maplesville was called to the bedside of his sister, Mrs. Mary Teel, who is very ill.

If you have a good counterfeiting, well cared for and unbothered, I can insure it for you in old line company. C. R. Mullins, Agent.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. W. T. Patterson and Miss Mary E. Rutland; Mr. J. Littlefield and Miss [illegible] Honeycutt; Mr. C. J. Eiland and Miss Mattie Headley; Mr. [illegible] Thomas and Miss Mabel Sc[illegible] Mr. J. P. Robinson and Miss Mattie Henley.

Colored. Pery Seymore and Lussie Payne.

Making Life Safe.

Everywhere life is being made safe through the work of Dr. King's New Life Pills in Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver troubles, Kidney Disorders and Bowel Disorders. They're gentle but sure, and perfectly build up health. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

is more ertilizer nalyses

e mixing of obtain analys no special
The value
r lies in the n which the s obtained.
ngredient in ods is selected of supplying om sprouting
t. The plant fed at one starved at an-venty-five ence goes with

DE MARK
S.R.
STERED dealers throughout South.
er Guano Co.
OLK, VA.

NES & CO.
ALER IN—
ng, Shoes, Hats, Etc.
TON BUYER

MAS GIFTS
E SERVICEABLE GIFTS ubstantial merchandise good will be valuable after the hol

G THAT WILL LAST

NES & CO.

- - ALA.

MILLINERY CO.

Clanton's business center, and one ous places of its kind in town, situated re. They invite you to call on them re your headquarters. Their stock o mmer from St. Louis is right up to rices you are looking for, their store i ullins is general manager, and will be his same old business, of Fire Insur Machines, Pianos and Organs, in the s you for past favors and solicits your rs truly,

ANTON MILLINERY CO.

STORE

Stand, near Lowe's Shop

acked Hulls, also a good eed Meal, Corn, and Hay
, Hides, Green and Green
Flint Hides.

ES BOTH WAYS

ND SEE ME
B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

ap at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

Commissioners' court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART
Price to day.....14½ @ 14¾
" same date last year 9½ @ 10c
No. Bales received to date
Warehouse receipts
to 5 p.m. Wednesday....5892

Mrs. F. W. Denty is visiting relatives and friends in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Boyd of Billingsley, Route 1, were in town Saturday.

Postmaster F. O. Dudley is spending a few days with relatives and friends in South Alabama.

Miss Minnie Muse left last Friday to visit friends and relatives at Randolph, Lawley and Maplesville.

Mrs. Barrett of Cooper was a pleasant visitor Saturday.

Prof. E. C. Popwell of Kincheon was in town Saturday.

Mrs. G. B. Wimberly of Reform, Ala., is visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Matthews.

Mr. C. Fenn Jones visited Jemison Friday.

Miss Bessie VanDerveer has returned to Tuscaloosa to resume her studies, after spending several weeks at home.

Miss Julia Potts of Trinity, Ala., is visiting relatives in Clanton.

Mrs. J. R. Mullins is visiting relatives in Monroe, La.

Miss Lena Lucas has returned to her home in Blocton, after a pleasant visit to her grandfather, Rev. F. M. Woods.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Mrs. J. E. Robinson, Jr., and sister, Miss Kate Aldridge, have returned from a pleasant visit to Birmingham.

Mrs. A. C. Luckie and children of Montgomery are visiting the family of Mr. R. E. Luckie.

Miss Linter Chewning of Roanoke is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Langley.

Mrs. O. Mastin, of Wetumka, Okla., after an absence of several years from Clanton, is visiting relatives and friends here.

Mr. F. M. Wilson of Verbena was in town last Friday.

Mr. L. E. Littlefield of Jemison gave us a pleasant call Saturday.

Mr. J. A. Mitchell of Verbena was a visitor Saturday.

Mr. D. M. Martin of Maplesville gave us a pleasant visit Tuesday.

Miss Alee Stewart, who for the past year has been in Nashville, Tenn., has returned, to the delight of her many friends, and is now stenographer for Messrs. Adams and Middleton.

Mrs. C. M. Davenport has returned to her home in Maplerville, after a pleasant visit to her father, Mr. J. W. Carwile.

Mr. O. H. Werner, of St. Louis was in town Monday.

Mr. Parker, of Nashville, was in town Wednesday.

Mr. J. P. Smith of Maplesville was called to the bedside of his sister, Mrs. Mary Teel, who is very ill.

If you have a good country dwelling, well cared for and unincumbered, I can insure it for you in an old line company. C. R. MULLINS, Agent.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. W. T. Patterson and Miss Mary E. Rutland; Mr. J. H. Littlefield and Miss Mattie Honeycutt; Mr. C. J. Eiland and Miss Mattie Headley; Mr. B. C. Thomas and Miss Mabel Smith; Mr. J. P. Robinson and Miss Mattie Henley.

Colored. Pery Seymore and Lussie Payne.

Making Life Safe.

Everywhere life is being made more safe through the work of Dr. King's New Life Pills in Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion Liver troubles, Kidney Diseases and Bowel Disorders. They're easy, but sure, and perfectly build up the health. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

New Goods

Our Mr. E. M. Pinckard and Mr. Harvey Chaudler are now in the Northern market selecting a stock of the latest goods.

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.
At 4 live and let live price
FONE 317

W. H. SARTOR

Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

CLANTON, ALA

B. E. JONES CRIT JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

Wish all of their friends a
HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF

Dry Goods. Shoes, Hats, Notion

FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully

B. E. JONES & BRO.

CLANTON, ALA

RATIONS ON THE FARM.

Principle Upon Which Regulated Stock Provender Is Based.

The farmer reads a great deal about feeding rations, much of which is all Greek. He is apt to class it among the "scientific talk" that does not directly appeal to his needed knowledge. This is a mistake. The agricultural colleges go deep into the matter and unearth truths that will greatly assist the farmer to reap a lot of good.

A little plain talk about what these rations mean may be of great worth to those who keep stock.

It is to be admitted that much is said in the agricultural journals on this subject that is not practical, but yet the application of a few primary principles to feeding suggests the way that practical feeds are doing things.

There are five classes of materials in feeding stuffs—viz. protein, carbohydrates, oil or fat, minerals and water. The mission of protein is to produce lean meats in the body, make blood, build up new tissues, etc. By carbohydrates is meant the starchy materials which give heat, fat and energy. They represent simply that part of hay, corn, potatoes and bread that goes to keep the body warm, produce energy for work and fat where the animal enlarges.

Cotton seed has a good deal of fat or oil, while corn has a moderate amount. The latter constituent, like starch, will also furnish heat, energy and fat and, being more concentrated than the starchy materials, will afford more than twice as much heat, fat or energy as will an equal amount of starch or sugar.

Mineral substances make teeth and bones and to a certain extent contribute to muscle and flesh. Professor Burkett of the Kansas experiment station says we take the bran from the wheat and give it to our cattle and pigs, giving only the soft white part of the wheat to our children, which is lacking in mineral materials. This is often the way with a good deal of our food. That explains why our children often have poor teeth and weak bones.

Plain common water is an important ingredient in foodstuffs. People must have protein for bone, muscle and blood. They must have starchy materials and fat to keep the body warm, to create energy and to make fat.

In corn alone there would not be sufficient protein to supply the wants of the body. To add timothy hay, for instance, to corn, as is so often done in feeding work horses, there would still be a lack of protein, as there is very little protein in timothy. But if, instead of feeding all corn, a few pounds of bran or cottonseed meal or linseed oil meal would be added, then you would more correctly balance the ration, supplying the protein.

The above ration is merely given to explain the point. That it can be improved upon there is no question. The secret in feeding, therefore, is to furnish the necessary ingredients in the proper proportion. When you feed corn, cottonseed meal, alfalfa and clover hays or the mixed ration you are supplying necessary materials for growth, maintenance and fat production.

Pumpkins That Talk.

Even the farmer, once the type of simplicity and now progressiveness, is learning how to advertise through his knowledge of the weaknesses of nature. One of these weaknesses is found in the lordly pumpkin. Bruise a growing pumpkin and the scar will never be cleared away, but will show in the ripe pumpkin in the shape of delicate little yellow warts. Starting with this principle alone, shrewd farmers have made their pumpkin farms valuable. After the vegetables get good sized and prove that they will be fine ones they go into the patch and with a sharp stick scar them so that when they are ready for market their happy faces bear in words of warts legends like these: "Eat me at Smith's," "Smith will make pies of me soon," "Brown's pies are best," "Jones' pies are delicious," "You can eat me inside."

The wily farmer hauls these warty fellows to market and, calling Smith, Jones and Brown from their respective restaurants, shows the strange freak of nature. Of course a sale is made on sight, and the pumpkin lies at the front of the restaurant for a few days to astonish passersby until it must be made into pies to save it. Then the farmer discovers another freak pumpkin, suitably marked, to replace it. Fancy prices are to be had for these pumpkins, and stony patches that would never pay taxes in any other crop produce wealth in pumpkins.

Personal.

Mr. Lone Smitherman of Bessemer is visting Mrs. Heath this week.

For old line Fire Insurance, Life Insurance and Singer Machines call on C. R. MULLINS, Agent.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will never disappoint those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by all druggists.

Death of Mr J. L. William

Mr. J. Leb Williams passed away at his home two miles west of Clanton, on Tuesday last after a brief illness of pneumonia.

He was in town only last Saturday and complained of feeling unwell, but it was not thought he was very ill. On returning home, he continued to grow worse until death relieved his sufferings at 12:30 p m. Tuesday.

In the death of Mr. Williams Chilton county loses one of its most useful citizens. Born and reared in Mulberry neighborhood (from where he recently removed) he was loved and highly respected by all who knew him. The deceased was about 50 years of age, and leaves a widow and 11 children to weep over the loss of a kind and affectionate husband and father.

The interment took place at Samaria cemetery Wednesday, attended by a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends.

A Wretched Mistake

to endure the itching, painful distress of Piles. There's no need to. Listen: "I suffered much from Piles," writes Will. A. Marsh, of Silver City, N. C., "till I got a box Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and was soon cured." Burns, Boils, Ulcers Fever Sores, Eczema, Cuts, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, vanish before it. 25c. at Upchurch Drug Co.

Got the Train Stopped.

When the late Robert Bonner purchased Maud S. he sent her to Charter Oak park to be trained. One day a friend of Mr. Bonner left New York to visit him at the park, but found that the train did not stop at that station. The conductor was polite, but said that he could not go against orders. At New Haven a halt was made, and Mr. Bonner's friend tried to bribe the engineer with a ten dollar bill, but in vain. He was then told that Charles P. Clark, the president of the road, was on the train, and he went to him.

"Why don't you see the conductor?" asked Mr. Clark.

"I have, but he will not disobey orders."

"Why not then go forward and bribe the engineer?"

"I tried bribery at New Haven, but it would not work."

The absence of evasion was the best policy. Mr. Clark not only gave orders to have the train stopped at Charter Oak, but promised some day to see Maud S. He had witnessed the attempt at bribery, and the frank confession of the offense seemed to please him.

Preparing For a Journey.

Jerome K. Jerome recalled with reverence a habit of his methodical uncle, who, before packing for a journey, always "made a list." This was the system which he followed, gathered from his uncle's own lips:

Take a piece of paper and put down on it everything you can possibly require. Then go over it and see that it contains nothing you can possibly do without.

Imagine yourself in bed. What have you got on? Very well; put it down, together with a change. You get up. What do you do? Wash yourself. What do you wash yourself with? Soap. Put down soap. Go on till you have finished. Then take your clothes. Begin at your feet. What do you wear on your feet? Boots, shoes, socks. Put them down. Work up till you get to your head. What do you want besides clothes? Put down everything.

This is the plan the old gentleman always pursued. The list made, he would go over it carefully to see that he had forgotten nothing. Then he would go over it again and strike out everything it was possible to dispense with. Then he would lose the list.

Straw Horseshoes.

Japanese horses wear sandals of straw, bundles of which are tied to the saddle for renewal when needed.

Are You Bilious?

The most of people sometimes are. This gives rise to many diseases and unfits a man or woman for the duties and enjoyments of life. As a general Liver Medicine, good for the whole family, one that has been long tried and endorsed, there is none that is equal to Granger's Liver regulator. It rids the system of all poisons and effete matter and gives good health. Druggists sell it in tin boxes at 25 cents per box. Every family should have this remedy on hand and use it as occasion requires. It will save suffering and doctors bills. Send for booklet to the Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Watch
this space for our 1910
special adv.

A. HEADLEY & SON

CORNER SECOND AVE., AT DEPOT.
CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—

A. M. JOHNSON'S
CASH GROCERY STORE

THORSBY, ALA.

FOR BARGAINS IN

Staple and Fancy Groceries

Getting Away From Land.

The question has been asked, Is it possible to sail 1,000 miles from land? This can be done at several points. By leaving San Francisco and sailing northwestward into the north Pacific a spot is reached where there is no land, not even an islet, for 1,000 miles in any direction. So, too, sailing from the southern point of Kamchatka southeastward ships reach a point equally distant from land of any kind, the nearest to the north being the Aleutian islands and to the south the outlying members of the Sandwich group. In the southern Indian ocean it is possible to sail 1,000 miles out from the southern points of Australia and New Zealand and still be as far from any other land, and the same may be done in a westerly direction from Cape Horn. Indeed, from this point a much longer distance might be reached, for the southern Pacific between the Horn and New Zealand covers a space of 80 degrees of longitude and 40 of latitude of absolutely unbroken sea, making its central point over 1,200 miles from anywhere.

How Every Man Should Vote.

"Anybody who doesn't vote my way is a darned fool!" exclaimed a little man on an outbound trolley car.

"What's that?" asked a big man, turning around in his seat and looking back.

"Anybody who doesn't vote my way is a darned fool!" repeated the little man.

"Did I understand you aright?" asked the big man, rising from his seat and coming back to the rear of the car where the little man was seated.

The little man looked the big man over, but he was game and said once more, "Anybody who doesn't vote my way is a darned fool!"

"Hold on a minute said the big man, who seemed on the point of starting something. "First tell me which way you are going to vote."

A foxy gleam shot into the eyes of the little man, and he piped as dauntlessly as ever, "I'm going to vote any way I darned please."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Trapping Baboons.

Hagenbeck in his book says that baboons are caught in traps made much like the huts of savages. Food is put into the huts, and once the baboons go inside a trapdoor closes behind them. Outside baboons make a great to do and urge the prisoners to escape. When the trappers come the captured baboons are terror stricken and try to force their heads through the walls of the huts. One baboon was caught three times in the same trap, and several when turned loose got back into the same trap a second time. When the baboons are carried away all their comrades thereabout climb into trees and scream out to the prisoners, who answer in sad, mournful voices. On one occasion some big Arabian baboons were trapped, when 2,000 or 3,000 baboons buried themselves upon the trappers, who had hard work to save themselves with firearms and clubs. As the trappers were forced back the victorious baboons tore up the trap and turned loose the captured baboons.

French Death Law.

French law requires that a human body, unless embalmed, shall be buried forty-eight hours after death.

SPIGENER'S CASH STORE

A WORD TO MY MANY HILTON COUNTY FRIENDS

I have just gotten in a line of Dry Goods, Notions, Shoes, etc. These goods are bought right, and priced to sell not to keep. I especially invite the ladies to call and inspect my stock, as they will see that I remembered the wants and need of the women, children and babies as well as the men and boys.

This store will be continually receiving fresh goods the year round. You will find many things here for sale that you will not find at other stores in the country. You will also be astonished at the VERY LOW prices on many articles that I am able to make you; money saved is money made. Come and be convinced that I can save you money on many things that you have to buy. There are several reasons why I can save you money on your cash purchases.

1st. This is strictly a cash store thus doing away with the expense of a book-keeper, which is a saving of from six to nine hundred dollars a year.

2nd. This store will not have any bad account to lose and to be put on to the price of goods that you buy.

3d. I will have no collection agency to pay.

4th. This is a one price store, goods will be sold to everyone at the same price.

When the people once find this out, half the force can wait on the same trade, which will lessen the expense of running any business.

This store is located next door to new Post Office building.

Yours, anxious to please,
W. D. SPIGENER.

England's Old Common Field System.

A "common field" is quite distinct from a "common." It is a field belonging to numerous owners. The land consists of long narrow strips, perhaps not more than ten yards wide and running parallel with one another. What are the exact rules of cultivation that obtain in Kent today we do not know, but of old it was usual to have a regular rotation, such as wheat one year, barley or oats the second and fallow the third. When the crops were harvested, each member of the community getting his or her share, all could put in their cattle, which roamed over the whole field, feeding on the stubble, etc. And this was termed the "right of suck." The "common field" system was gradually done away with by statutes in the reigns of George III. and William IV.—London Express.

The Result.

"What has society done for us?"
"Increased the number of our intervals."—Brooklyn Life.

Janet, the Factory Girl

The Ray of Brightness That Came Into Her Dull Life.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

"Dingle, dongle, dingle, ding, ding, d-l-n-g," ended the first summons to the factory workers, the last "d-l-n-g" being long drawn out, as though the bell ringer, who was also the night watchman, was becoming weary of the signal which ended and yet did not end his hours of labor. His regular visit to the peg clock in each room was over, but now he must wait another half hour to ring the last summons to the help.

Janet Ratcher was a sleepy head, and, though she heard and recognized the last drawling "d-l-n-g" of the first bell, she made no effort to rise, but continued to lie there, gazing sullenly at the window, through which a faint suggestion of daylight was beginning to appear. Rain was pattering against it, and the chill of a falling barometer had penetrated the room until the mere thought of stepping out upon a cold floor brought an anticipatory shiver, and the factory was nearly a mile away.

Janet was blue. She had gone to bed in that condition, and now she had awakened in the same way.

It was not until she heard a hesitating step below that she sprang from bed, repentant, ashamed, and hurried into her clothes and downstairs.

"Oh, mother," she cried, "you ought not to have got up till I had a fire started! Here, let me throw this shawl around you."

"I was afraid you'd be late, dearie," her mother said apologetically. "I meant to have got up sooner and had something warm for you, but overslept. It's too bad to have to go out on a morning like this."

"Well, I didn't oversleep," confessed Janet, forcing herself into temporary cheerfulness. "I was just lazy and lay there studying about things. Lucky I had everything ready last night. I'll put the water in this shallow pan so it'll heat quickly; then we'll have coffee." She glanced at the clock. "Twenty minutes, and it'll take twelve for me to walk to the factory. No, ma, you needn't put up a chair for me. I shan't sit down. I'll just take a bite and run. Don't you hurry, though. Wait till the victuals get warmed over and the coffee's good, then take your time. It'll help fill up the day. You must get awful lonesome here by yourself."

"N-no, not so very," the old woman answered. "I have my knitting, and there's the cat. But I do look forward to your coming home, dearie."

"I suppose so. I wish"— She paused abruptly. She must not make things any harder for the invalid, who already had to bear so much. She took a few bites hurriedly and in silence, then slipped some bread and an apple into a paper bag.

Janet was all ready, with the hood of the waterproof drawn over until it almost concealed her face, when her mother returned with the slippers and stockings rolled into a small package. This and the lunch she slipped under the folds of the waterproof. Then she pushed back the hood a little in order to kiss her mother goodby.

"Now I must hurry," she said, "for time's up. Tonight I'll cook up a lot of nice things—an Indian pudding, maybe, and some brown bread. And you know, mother, Sunday's only three days off, when we'll be together most all day."

Outside the depressed feeling returned in its full intensity. The rain beat in her face, the raw wind crept through the waterproof and thin clothing, the road was covered with two inches of soft, clinging mud, and it was still too dark for her to see her way clearly.

The next house was dark. The folks had not got up yet and would not have to any more until it was light. Mary Bosworth, her best friend, lived there, and the morning before Mary had joined her in the hurry toward the mill. But Mary was a very bright girl, who had studied drawing and other things and who was quick and imaginative in sketching designs and novelties. The day before she had been promoted to the position of assistant designer for the mill, and after this she would work in the office and not have to go in until 9 o'clock.

A depression in the road caused her to stumble, splashing the mud up to her waist. Her lips quivered. She was not bright, like Mary. She could not do anything except make Indian pudding and brown bread and coffee and things like that and spin. They did say she was the best spinner in the whole room. But spinning was no good to help one up to anything else. It meant that she could just spin and spin and spin all the rest of her life.

A halting footstep and an eager "Janet, Janet," caused her to slacken her pace a little. A lame girl was limping toward her, a girl younger than herself and far more thinly clad, but the sallow, pinched face was radiant.

"Isn't it fine, Janet!" she cried gleefully as she snuggled under the waterproof, which Janet promptly opened and shared with her. "I can go along with you to the mill now, and I'm to work in the same room. Just to think I spoke for a job six months ago and only got it now! It was awful nice that Mary Bosworth got her fine place—nice for her and me, too, for it gives me her job. Now I can get a lot of things that mother needs, and maybe next summer I can take music lessons."

Janet drew the frail, happy figure a little closer. A year before, when she first obtained her job, she had felt much the same. And the job had bought her mother and herself many nice things they had not had before. And now she was repining.

Janet's spirits began to rise. After all, she was glad that Mary Bosworth had been promoted. She had earned the place, and she was such a beautiful, sincere, thoroughly nice girl. It was not that she envied or was jealous of her and the book heroines; it was only that she could not go and do something that would make her like them.

The last bell had been ringing for several minutes now, and from its accelerating clangs and tumultuous jingles they knew it was racing on toward its final, "dinglety, dinglety, dinglety," the last notes of which would still be madly vibrating the air when the night watchman darted out, putting on his hat and coat as he ran. His speeding exit would be the signal for the last of the help to slip inside the yard gates, for then they would be locked. Janet and her companions were a dozen yards away when the final "dinglety" sounded and the watchman speeded out, but the gatekeeper saw them and fumbled clumsily with the fastenings until they could hurry in.

On damp days like this the ends ran badly, with much twisting and breaking, and, though Janet was nimble fingered and the best spinner in the room, she had all she could do to keep her sides pieced up. Especially was this the case after doffing, which occurred twice a day. With the bobbins nearly full the threads ran more smoothly, but with them empty or nearly so there was greater strain upon the threads, causing them to snap frequently. The doffers pieced up the first irregular breaks, but after that the spinner had to attend to her own sides.

This doffing of the full bobbins and replacing them with empty ones upon the spindles had always been an interesting operation to Janet, and she could doff as quickly and neatly as the experts themselves.

There were always two of these doffers, each taking a side of a frame and going up one row and down another until the room was completed. They use small sleds or carriages which could be pushed along the sides by the right knee as they worked. It took about two hours to doff the whole room, and then the doffers were allowed to leave the mill or do whatever they pleased until doffing time came again.

This long leisure between work made the position of doffers a very desirable one, and there was a saying among the spinners that "once a doffer, always a doffer." The present two had held their positions for years.

Soon after the morning doffing the overseer made one of his observation tours among the frames, reprimanding by blowing upon his shrill whistle any neglect of work he found. No matter where the operator of a side might be, when she heard that whistle she hastened back to her neglected duty with apologetic and crimson face. In Janet's alley this whistle was rarely heard. When he came to her now the overseer was smiling. He usually was smiling when he found good work.

"You had a hard morning coming down, didn't you, Janet?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. It was pretty wet and muddy."

"Well, why don't you ask for the Harding tenement? They're going to leave next week, and it would bring you to within a few rods of the mill gate. It's the same rent as your house out there in the country, I think, and would make it a lot easier for you this winter. Suppose I speak to the outside manager about it?"

"Thank you. I wish you would," she said gratefully.

She could leave her mother later and be back to her earlier in the evening, and it would save that long walk during the winter. But, on the other hand, there was the apple orchard at the country place and the big garden and the flowers around the house. Her mother loved flowers, and one of her chief pleasures was to be out among them in the spring and during the summer. And they had planned so many vines and beds for the next year. It was really beautiful out there, while the Harding tenement was only the counterpart of fifty others, without yard or even fence around it. And even if it was cold and disagreeable sometimes that mile walk would very likely be good for her to counteract the mill confinement. What had she been thinking about?

She went straight to the overseer.

"I don't believe you'd better speak to the manager about that tenement," she said. "You see, we've got an apple orchard out there and a big garden and flowers, and mother loves such things. I've been thinking it over, and I believe the walking will do me good."

"Yes, I don't know but you're right," he answered. "I'd forgotten the orchard and flowers. But wait a moment," as she was turning away. "About the Harding girl's job of doffing. There's been a dozen applicants after it already, but you know more about the work than any of them, so you are the proper one to have the place. You may commence Monday. You've done your work conscientiously, and I want you to feel the management appreciates it. This job will give you a lot of time next spring to look after your garden and the flowers, and you can get home earlier nights. Your mother will like that."

Janet turned away, smiled happily, but with something choking in her throat that prevented speech.

A STROKE OF FORTUNE

The Bit of Good Luck That Overtook Barney O'Connor.

WEALTH THRUST UPON HIM.

The Visitor That Called to See the Man Who Had Been Injured—The Sight That Greeted Him and the Hasty Proposition He Handed Out.

Several years ago two brothers named McDonald were in business in Halsted street. Among the habitues of their establishment was a man named O'Connor. A man named Anderson then was claim agent for the street railway company that connected Halsted with Chicago.

Barney O'Connor was a happy-go-lucky chap who didn't worry much about anything. He was partial to his beer, had no kith or kin to be responsible for, cared little for clothes and worked only when it was absolutely essential, which wasn't often.

McDonald Bros. liked to have Barney around on account of the wit he had brought with him from the ould sod, and so they found little tasks for him to do. One day Barney was loafing around McDonald's about half illuminated and in an extremely rosy frame of mind when they decided they wanted some goods over in the city. Barney was delegated to go after them. He stopped at the corner buffet, boisted another one and took a car for the loop.

The car was crowded fore and aft, and Barney got on the aft. He didn't get much more than halfway on the step when there came a jolt. The crowd surged back on Barney, and he, with several others, was dumped into the street. Barney suffered worse than the rest, as he was underneath. But he wasn't hurt badly. He was knocked unconscious, but after they carried him into a store and threw cold water on him he came out of it in good shape. All that remained were a few cuts.

The conductor, however, was excited. He was new at the business, and when he took the names and addresses of the victims of the crash he got considerably balled up. Perhaps he made Barney's injuries a little more grave than they really were.

After O'Connor got over his dizziness he went on uptown and bought his stuff for the McDonalds. He also visited a drinking place on Randolph street. It was there that he learned of a clam bake that was to be held that night at a saloon on lower Halsted. Celebrations of this sort appealed to Barney, and he resolved to be on hand.

He was. They had a lovely time. Along about 12 o'clock the festivities became superjoyous, and arguments arose. Barney was in the midst of these. Fisticuffs followed forensic froth, and O'Connor was numbered among the slain.

How he got to his room he couldn't explain coherently. He sure was some beat up. What they didn't do to him wouldn't take long to tell. It was the completest walloping he ever had experienced.

He slept late. When he woke up he wished he could have slept later. He found moving undesirable after an attempt or two at it, so he stayed in bed.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon the landlord of the rooming house came up and told Barney a man wanted to see him. Seldom had Barney had visitors, and his curiosity was aroused. But it wasn't strong enough to induce him to get up. He told the landlord to have the man sent up to the room.

Anderson, out to settle early and avoid the rush, came in and took a look at Barney. He nearly fainted.

"If I get out of this on less than $1,000 I'll be lucky," he told himself. Then he proceeded to business.

"It kind o' bunged you up, didn't it?" he began as a feeler. He couldn't say less, for he had a conscience.

"Well, some," acknowledged Barney, not grasping the pertinence of the question, but realizing its truth.

"You know, a suit always involves a lot of delay and trouble, and the company has better facilities, and it's better for the plaintiff to settle"—

"Wot are yez talkin' about?" Barney broke in.

"Why, I'm from the street railway, and we want to see if we can't fix this up for you for getting hurt. We want to do what's right; but, of course, you understand"—

Barney saw a great light. It made him forget his woes.

"Do yez mean ye want to pay me fer fallin' off the car yistiddy?" he asked.

"That's the idea," answered Anderson.

"Well, here I am," said Barney. "How much am I offered?"

Anderson hesitated.

"Uh—er—I think—er—how'd two fifty strike you?"

"I think it's worth at least five," he replied.

"Now, look here," explained Anderson, "if you fight this case it'll cost you at least $100 for a lawyer. You might get $300 in a trial, and still again you might get nothing. It's always a good idea"—

"D' yez mean ye'll give me $250?" interrupted O'Connor, sitting up quickly despite his aches.

"That's it," replied Anderson, so fascinated by the picture of war's horrors portrayed by Barney's face that he failed to notice the surprise in his tones.

"I'll take it," said O'Connor in a hurry. "Bring it to me all in quarters."—Chicago Tribune.

The period of deepest sleep varies from 3 o'clock to 5.

Cures Dyspepsia; Trial Is Free

It is a popular mistake that only wealthy people who eat rich and highly-spiced foods suffer from dyspepsia, or, as it is also known, indigestion. The laborer in the street, the worker in the field also finds himself a victim of this disorder. Among the very greatest sufferers from it are women.

Dyspepsia is indicated by a constant feeling of laziness, by loss of appetite and troubled sleep, by sour stomach and distress after eating, by bad complexion and lusterless eyes.

There is no surer and speedier cure for this trouble than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which dyspeptics have been using successfully for twenty years. This great herb laxative compound cured Capt. Clark, of Buffalo, Ia., of dyspepsia and sour stomach that he had had for forty years, or until the lucky day that he heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It cured Joel Adams, of Montgomery, Ala., after suffering continuously for sixteen months. These are only a few of the many. But it is not expensive to be cured with this grand remedy, as it can be bought at any drug store in a 50-cent or $1 bottle.

Your very neighbors are probably lifelong users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but if you want to know without expense what it will do for you personally, send your name to Dr. Caldwell and he will be glad to send you a free trial bottle. He is actually anxious to have you make a test of his remedy.

Thousands of families everywhere keep it in the house against such an emergency as constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia, heartburn, torpid liver, etc., which may come on a member of the family any day. It is pleasant to the taste, acts gently and does not gripe. It is the great children's laxative tonic.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug co.

NEWSPAPER BARGAIN DAYS

The Birmingham Ledger

Leading Newspaper of Alabama

One Year

$3.48

(By Mail)

Bargain Days—January 5th to 15, 1910.

Get ready to take advantage of this offer. You want a daily newspaper—it is no longer a luxury but a necessity—you should keep posted on current events, political and otherwise.

The Birmingham Ledger, the peer of any newspaper in the South, is offered you at about half the price of most high class newspapers. Don't miss this opportunity. Those who take advantage of this offer now will receive this paper from time subscription is sent in until January 1st, 1911. ACT AT ONCE!

Address Birmingham Ledger.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all druggists.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone should take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

Cured of Seven Years Suffering.

Many letters are on file from grateful women who have been cured with VIN O-VITÆ, the great female remedy. Mrs. S. E. Lord, of Glenwood, Ala., writes: "After trying two good doctors and patent medicines and all other remedies and suffered untold agony, I tried your remedy, Granger's VIN-O-VITÆ, and found relief. I suffered seven years before I became a woman. I don't know how to express my thanks to you and to your agent, Mr. Ike N. Douglas, from whom I procured the remedy that cured me."

Send for free booklet giving full information with many wonderful testimonials of cures. Druggists sell VIN-O-VITÆ at $1.00 per bottle. If your Druggist can not supply you, write to the Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Whiskey for the Sick Room

should be selected with the greatest care, as much depends upon its rich, nutritious properties and absolute purity. You can always rely upon

Sunny Brook
THE PURE FOOD
Whiskey

answering every requirement. It is distilled, aged and bottled with special care and for the express purpose of being used as a healthful stimulant or tonic in the home. SUNNY BROOK Bottled in Bond is U. S. Government standard (100%) proof and every bottle bears the "Green Government Stamp" showing the correct age and quantity.

Insist on getting the genuine, accept no substitute.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

4 FULL QUARTS $5
BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Hayman	416, W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.
M. Markstein	128 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	886 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St. "
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd.	541 Magazine St. "
Estate of Charles Foahney	511 Pampart St. "
Groll Trading Co.	Pensacola, Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar	"
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 250,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the Southern Ruralist is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The Ruralist pays $20.00 each month for the best article from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; F. J. Merriam, Garden Department; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station, Agriculture Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment Station, Dairy; Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock Department; Dr. C. A. Cary, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural College, Veterinary Department; Judge P. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Mr. J. Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.

By special arrangement with the Southern Ruralist we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

WELLS Bored and Drilled

T. B. TEEL

Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells

CLANTON, ALA.

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

Farm and Garde

ICE FOR THE FARM H

How to Secure and How to St... Crop For Future Use

Ice is an... be either... sections for handling... Commercial ice... carried on with an eye... ly rather than... mendous, so the ice plow... the cakes split off... under side of... making... storage... shower and better... farmer is the ice... the common... found on nearly all farms... pond ice has the preference... ice, due to the fact that... current beneath. Pond ice... thicker and is less liable to... bubbles, meaning clearer... uniform cakes.

Avoid slush or snow ice as... possible. Watch for those... days of continuous hard freezing... tap the ice head at its best...

STORING ICE IN WISCONSIN

Ice is of course good, but eight... is better, as the thicker the... better its keeping quality. ... field of snow and with either... straightedge mark off the cakes... cut, using any sharp pointed... ment for the marking. ... makes a good tool for the... Mark the field off into eight... squares, being careful to have... cut exactly to measure, for in... way can close storage be... ed. Cut out corner cake with... and start the saw exactly on... holding saw straight up and... Remove one handle from the... in its place attach a small... weight adding much to the... of the sawing. Two pairs of... at about 50 cents each complete... outfit for the farmer's use here...

In building an icehouse... smooth drop siding for the outside... paint it. For the interior any... ber will do, for all that is... something to hold the sawdust... packing from the outer walls... spaces between studding open... top. To accomplish this the... sheathing should stop at six... inches below the plate at top... ding, thus allowing the side... flow out and over the stored... thence out through small... which should be provided in... of the building and as near... as possible. These openings... be filled with upward slanting... thereby forcing inflowing air... upward and away from the ice... ing free circulation at all times... openings should never be shut... through them must escape... that stored ice always produces...

The size of the building... termined by the amount of... used. If for family use... 12 by 14 feet, with eight foot... will give ample storage space... dairy use the building should... larged in proportion to the... put upon it.

A Wisconsin farmer puts up... icehouse as is shown in the...

CHEAP AND TIDY FAMILY ICE...

...tion at a very low cost. Fa... he fills it when he could be... else. He has half a dozen... to whom he supplies ice... summer and makes a handsome... from the transaction.

Possum Hunting in Queensland.

Among the ways of earning... in the colony of Queensland... lecting of fur skins combined... erable profit with a fine... life in the open air in the... term which describes all country... plain, hill and forest, away... settlements. The possum is... by the government of Queensland... May 1, on which date young men... forth for a campaign against... animal whose skin makes the... tiful carriage and other rugs... the material for ladies' furs... Europe. Formerly shooting... sorted to, but now trapping... to be the most effectious method... curing a good bag. Most of... pers work in couples or even... tive, and snares of thin wire...

No Trespassing.

When you wish permission... across another man's land go... for it. Don't take it for granted... "it will be all right." You... be sure of that by going to... ters and talking with the...

Sick Room
st care, as much depends ies and absolute purity.

Brook
FOOD
key s distilled, aged and bots purpose of being used as a SUNNY BROOK. Bottled in proof and every bottle bears the correct age and quantity.

accept no substitute.
CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

ARTS—$5
PREPAID
g Distributors:

W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.
ycamore St., Cincinnati, O. oulas St., New Orleans, La.
artres St. agazine St. mpart St.
Pensacola, Fla.
Memphis, Tenn.
Jacksonville, Fla.

EMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.

Your Home
THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

the Greatest Agricultural Paper in he South today. It covers every deartment of the farm and home. We ave examined it carefully, and conider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can ffer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample opy will be mailed free to any one n request.

The most valuable thing about the outhern Ruralist is the Price Spe-ials, which are published on the first each month. The Ruralist pays
100 each month for the best artie from its subscribers on special ubjects, such as Fall Plowing, Pouly, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Garden-ng, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, pring, etc. These articles come rom every part of the country. They re written by men who do the work nd give actual experience. They ill help you as nothing else will.

AND STAFF WR[illegible]S
[illegible] P. J. Merriam, G[illegible]ard's Experiment Statio[illegible]ture
Poultry Experiment [illegible]dry's Station, Live Stock D[illegible]Dr.
Alabama Agricultural [illegible]rter-Poultry Department; Mr[illegible]J. Merrill in every number.

subscription to the man who will take two or two papers for the price of one.
Southern Ruralist we are able to offer you the two paper at Ruralist for $1.00.

ored and Drilled EEL
Deep Water Wells
ALA.

E SOCIETY
, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES.

supply you with Bibles. You pe at the publishers' cost price.
Write us.

Farm and Garden

ICE FOR THE FARM HOME.

How to Secure and How to Store the Crop For Future Use.

Ice is as workable as wood, so it can be either split or sawed into desirable sections for handling and storing. Commercial ice making is generally carried on with an eye single to rapidity rather than accuracy in cake dimensions, so the ice plow is used and the cakes split off, thus leaving the under side of each cake irregular, making close storage impossible. The slower and better process for the farmer is the ice saw or, in lieu of this, the common crosscut saw, which is found on nearly all farms. Lake or pond ice has the preference over river ice, due to the fact that there is no current beneath. Pond ice freezes thicker and is less liable to contain air bubbles, meaning clearer and more uniform cakes.

Avoid slush or snow ice as much as possible. Watch for those several days of continuous hard freezing, then cut the ice field at its best. Six inch ice is of course good, but eighteen inch is better, as the thicker the cake the better its keeping quality. Clear the field of snow and with either line or straightedge mark off the cakes to be cut, using any sharp pointed instrument for the marking. An old file makes a good tool for the purpose. Mark the field off into eighteen inch squares, being careful to have cakes cut exactly to measure, for in no other way can close storage be accomplished. Cut out corner cake with an ax and start the saw exactly on the line, holding saw straight up and down. Remove one handle from the saw and in its place attach a small weight, said weight adding much to the rapidity of the sawing. Two pairs of ice tongs at about 50 cents each complete the outfit for the farmer's ice harvest.

STORING ICE IN WISCONSIN.

In building an icehouse get good, smooth drop siding for the outside and paint it. For the interior any old lumber will do, for all that is necessary is something to hold the sawdust used in packing from the outer wall. Leave spaces between studding open at the top. To accomplish this the inside sheathing should stop at about four inches below the plate at top of studding, thus allowing the side air to flow out and over the stored mass, thence out through small windows which should be provided in each end of the building and as near the peak as possible. These openings should be filled with upward slanting blinds, thereby forcing inflowing air currents upward and away from the ice, insuring free circulation at all times. These openings should never be closed, for through them must escape dampness that stored ice always produces.

The size of the building must be determined by the amount of ice to be used. If for family use only, then 12 by 14 feet, with eight foot studding, will give ample storage space, but for dairy use the building should be enlarged in proportion to the demands put upon it.

A Wisconsin farmer puts up such an icehouse as is shown in the illustration at a very low cost. Each winter he fills it when he could be doing little else. He has half a dozen customers to whom he supplies ice during the summer and makes a handsome profit from the transaction.

CHEAP AND TIDY FAMILY ICEHOUSE.

Possum Hunting In Queensland.

Among the ways of earning a living in the colony of Queensland the collecting of fur skins combines considerable profit with a fine, adventurous life in the open air in the "bush"—the term which describes all country parts, plain, hill and forest, away from the settlements. The possum is protected by the government of Queensland till May 1, on which date young men issue forth for a campaign against the wily animal whose skin makes such beautiful carriage and other rugs and forms the material for ladies' furs all over Europe. Formerly shooting was resorted to, but now trapping is found to be the most efficacious means of securing a good bag. Most of the trappers work in couples or employ a native, and snares of thin wire are used.

No Trespassing.

When you wish permission to go across another man's land go and ask for it. Don't take it for granted that "it will be all right." You can only be sure of that by going to headquarters and talking with the master.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson III.—First Quarter, For Jan. 16, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. iv, 12-25. Memory Verse, 23—Golden Text, Matt. iv, 16—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Luke tells us that Jesus, being full of the Holy Ghost, was led by the Spirit into the wilderness, being forty days tempted of the devil, and that after the temptation Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee (Luke iv, 1, 2, 14). If we desire a sequence of the events in His life we may have to consider before His return to Galilee the whole of John i, 19, to iv, 54. But, confining ourselves as far as possible to our lesson portion, we should consider John's brief ministry and the reason of his imprisonment. He was filled with the Holy Spirit from his birth, and Jesus said of him, "Among those that are born of women there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist" (Luke i, 15; vii, 28). He was a Spirit filled, God sent man, in very truth the Lord's messenger. Yet his ministry was not what men count a success. Just a few months' public ministry, then imprisonment because he dared to rebuke sin in high places (Mark vi, 17-19), and then his martyrdom to please a wicked woman. But he was approved of God from first to last, and some time we'll understand. The devil could not conquer Jesus Christ, but he was permitted to torment and to kill His faithful messenger.

In connection with Jesus leaving Nazareth to make His home in Capernaum we must read Luke iv, 16-31, and note how, after He had in the power of the Spirit read the Scriptures and spoken in the synagogue at Nazareth, His own townsmen thrust Him out of the city and attempted to kill Him. Then He came and dwelt in Capernaum, and great was the privilege of that city; yet see His words concerning it in Matt. xi, 23, 24.

Notice the oft repeated phrase "that it might be fulfilled" (chapters i, 22; ii, 15, 23; iv, 14; viii, 17; xxi, 4; xxvi, 56; xxvii, 35, etc.) and remember His resurrection words in Luke xxiv, 44, "All things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses and in the prophets and in the Psalms concerning Me." The quotation in our lesson from Isa. ix, 1, 2, leads on to verses 6, 7, and the King and the kingdom. So also in Isa. xiii, 6, 7, where He is spoken of as a light of the gentiles, the context says that He shall not fail nor be discouraged till He have set judgment in the earth (verse 4), or, in other words, till His kingdom comes. The darkness is everywhere, and is increasing, and we are right into the apostasy of unbelief and the setting aside of the written word and the living word of which we have in the word been forewarned. "For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth and gross darkness the people, but the Lord shall arise upon thee (Israel), and His glory shall be seen upon thee, and the nations shall come to thy light and kings to the brightness of thy rising" (Isa. lx, 1-3). Jesus preached, as John had done, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (iii, 2; iv, 17), but both John and Jesus were slain and the kingdom was postponed till the risen and ascended Christ shall come again in power and glory preceded by the real Elijah, as foretold by Malachi and confirmed by Jesus (Mal. iv, 5, 6; Matt. xvii, 10-13). Read the last passage most carefully and see how the real Elijah shall be to Christ's second coming what John was to his first coming. Acknowledging that John had come in the spirit and power of Elijah and had been rejected, He says in unmistakable words, "Elijah truly shall first come."

Meanwhile He is calling unto Himself out of the world those who are willing to remain in the world as His witnesses, counting all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Himself and the glory of His kingdom. If we will follow Him it must be by denial or renunciation of self and a willingness to die daily that His life may be seen in us (Matt. xvi, 24, 25; II Cor. iv, 11). But He does not call us to this unworldly life without setting before us the kingdom, the glory and the rewards (Matt. xvi, 27, to xvii, 9). When Peter on one occasion said, "Behold, we have forsaken all and followed Thee—what shall we have, therefore?" Jesus told him of a new earth with the Son of Man in the throne of His glory and the twelve apostles on twelve thrones ruling the twelve tribes of Israel (Matt. xix, 27, 28). But listen to the last of the seven promises to the overcomers in Rev. iii, 21, and think of being with Him on His throne. He told Abram of the city which hath foundations; Moses had respect unto the recompense of the reward; Paul said that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us, but to the majority of believers today there seems to be no future glory worth mentioning, nothing and no one for which or for whom it is worth while to renounce the follies of this ungodly age and the pleasures of sin for a season. As Jesus went about all Galilee accompanied by His few faithful followers He preached the gospel of the kingdom and healed all manner of sickness and disease. He did not tell them to prepare to die, but told them of life eternal which He would freely give them, including the forgiveness of all their sins.

A Fish That Gives Paint.

The well known brown pigment called sepia is obtained from a ten armed octopus found principally in the Mediterranean and more especially at the head of the Adriatic sea, where it is caught by the natives for food.

The sepia is contained in a bag and is really the black fluid of which we have all read as being discharged by the creature to cover its escape. Some naturalists say that the fluid is brownish, which becomes more credible when we know that this is the source of sepia. The pigment is really a powder which dissolves in water. Its strength may be estimated by the fact that it will color 1,000 times its own bulk. When the octopus has been killed the sack or bag is removed and dried to prevent putrefaction. The sepia is treated with ammonia or caustic soda, washed and dried. It is one of the most durable of paints, except when fully exposed to the fierce rays of the sun, and an even surface can be obtained with it more easily than with most paints. Sepia has been obtained from a fossil cuttlefish thousands of years old and found to be quite good for paint.

The Change From Black to Red.

"See that little woman who just went out?" remarked a Fourth avenue milliner to a customer. "Noticed that red hat, did you? Well, as a milliner and a person whose business it is to study the different characteristics of women I have watched her for two years. It has been a kind of study of the 'evolutions of a widow.'

"Two years ago she came to me, recently bereaved, and had me make her a hat or deepest black. She was broken hearted and declared she would never again take an interest in the pretty things that women like to wear. A year ago she came again.

"'Don't you think I might have the least bit of white in my new hat?' she asked.

"'Yes,' I said; 'I think you might,' and the hat was made. Three months later she came for another hat, and she stood for a little touch of lavender. Next she had a big white plume, and last week I made her that red hat. It just shows what time will do in lifting up a heart bowed down."—Louisville Times.

The Releaser.

If he hadn't been a dreadful bore and the hour wasn't so late it is quite possible the lovely girl would have refrained from the exercise of a strategic scheme, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Hark!" she whispered as he paused in the midst of a long winded description of his camping outfit.

"What is it?" he whispered in return.

She smiled reassuringly.

"It's only papa. He must be oiling the releaser."

"And what is the releaser?"

"It's one of papa's ingenious schemes. Every night, at exactly 11 o'clock, he pulls up a brass chain that releases our brindle bull pup from his annex adjoining the kitchen; that's all."

And she laughed merrily. The caller glanced at the clock on the mantel. It indicated 10:57.

"I find I must go," he said in a slightly hurried manner. "And good night."

Punishment For Perjury.

Perjury is a crime more severely punished in Germany than in any other country in the world. Even an apparently trivial misstatement under oath carries a sentence of ten years in prison. Excepting murder, there are few crimes that carry as heavy a penalty as perjury. The German theory is that the entire system of jurisprudence rests on the respect for an oath administered under the forms of law and that this must be strictly guarded in order to secure the punishment of other crimes and insure justice in civil cases. Germany stands at one extreme and the United States at the other. Fewer people are punished in the United States for false swearing in the witness box than in any other country.—London Telegraph.

PACKING MADE EASY.

It Is Only a Matter of Lifting the Trunk to a Comfortable Angle.

There wouldn't be so many tired and cross women to start away on journeys if they would only exercise a little gumption and common sense about the way in which they pack their trunks. The average woman seems to think that she must break her back putting things in a trunk that stands on the floor. How seldom one sees a trunk elevated at a convenient height to obviate stooping over it in a back breaking fashion! Yet two chairs placed at proper distance apart will do the trick, or a steamer trunk may safely be packed on a strong table. Just try these methods the next time you are packing and see what a difference there is in convenience and comfort. Of course there are expensive trunks that open bureau style, with hat boxes and drawers on one side and hangers for gowns on the other, that make the work of packing a positive pleasure, but it is the exceptional woman who is fortunate enough to possess one of these treasures.

SHE DOESN'T HAVE TO STOOP—TO CONQUER.

Weeding Out Unprofitable Cows.

Dairy farms are continually advancing in value, which should be regarded as part of the profit. Grain farming is hard on the land.

With the case in test it will be possible to weed out the poor cheese cows on the same principle used in the Babcock butter test to weed out the poor butter cows. Instead of keeping cows for cheese which average 70 pounds of casein per 100 pounds of fat, one may breed cows that will produce milk containing close to 100 pounds of casein to 100 pounds of fat.

Saved At Death's Door.

The door of death seemed ready to open for Murray W. Ayers, of Transit Bridge, N. Y., when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a dreadful condition," he writes, "my skin was almost yellow; eyes sunken; tongue coated; emaciated from losing 40 pounds, growing weaker daily. Virulent liver trouble pulling me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that matchless medicine—Electric Bitters—cured me. I regained the 40 pounds lo t and now am well and strong." For all stomach, liver and kidney troubles they're supreme. 50c at Upchurch Drug Co.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala., postoffice, for week ending Jan. 8, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

J. D. Barnes.

LADIES' LIST.

Mrs. Ellen Logan.

These letters will be sent to the dead Letter office, Jan. 22, 1910, if not delivered before.

P. O. DUDLEY, Postmaster.

BULBS

PLANT YOUR BULBS NOW
FOR EARLY BLOOMS

We have Dutch Hyacinths, Romeo Hyacinths, Narcissus, Jonquils, Tulips, Daffodils, Freesias, Snowdrops, Oxalis, Callas, Chinese Sacred Lilies and Easter Lilies.

Prices as cheap as any northern seed house.

After October 15th, or the first heavy frost, we can supply two-year old field and Southern grown Rose Plants, both Bush and Climbing Roses.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season.

Cut flowers, wedding bouquets and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

A postal card will bring you a copy of our latest price list.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor

City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP

Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Gumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.

First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.

W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS
Alabama's Greatest Newspaper
BY MAIL
(Cash in Advance)
$3.40
A YEAR

On rural routes and small inland towns where we have no carrier delivery. For four months, $1.20, eight months, $2.30. For a lesser time than four months the rate is 50c per month. Cash must accompany order, otherwise the rate is same as in carrier or agency towns, 50c per month or $5.00 per year. The Birmingham News is recognized throughout the State and Nation as "Alabama's Greatest Newspaper."

Whatever happens of importance in the State, Nation, or throughout the world is printed in The News. Always read The News and keep posted.

Agents wanted. Remit by money order or registered letter, to

THE BIRMINGHAM NEWS.
Birmingham, Ala.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS
WITH Dr. King's New Discovery
FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c & $1.00
AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.
GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long-time loans negotiated on improved farm lands.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I. [illegible]
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
[illegible] Office
CLANTON

McCALL PATTERNS 10 15 NOW 10

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50 YEAR

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, fine stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash price offers. Address
THE McCALL CO., 238 to 246 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

THE EXPRESS MAN WILL RECEIVE YOUR PACKAGE
THE SAME DAY WE GET YOUR ORDER
PROMPT SHIPMENTS IS THE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS
WE WILL SHIP ANY OF THE FOLLOWING EXPRESS PREPAID

BLENDED GOODS

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Lewis' 66 Echo Spring Wilson — Hunter Canada (Tennessee) Henry Hill Club — Any of the Above Brands	$4.00	$12.00
Dixon's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Sheridan Club	3.75	9.00
Maryland Club	5.00	13.50
Mt. Vernon	6.00	16.00
Black Label	6.00	16.00

	6 Bottles in the Case, 6 Bottles 12 Bottles
Pure Rose	7.00 13.50
Three Feathers	7.00 13.50

CORN WHISKEY

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Tennessee Old Reserve	$4.00	$11.00
Rock and Rye	3.00	9.00
Harvest Corn	3.50	10.50
Laurel Valley	3.50	10.50
Choctaw Brand	3.25	9.00

BOTTLED IN BOND

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Clarke's Pure Rye	$4.00	$12.00
Sunny Brook	5.00	13.00
Early Times	5.00	12.00
Guggenheimer	5.00	12.00
Belmont	5.00	12.00
Dixon's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Memorial Spring	4.00	11.00
Clark's Rose Rock	4.00	10.50

BULK WHISKIES
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $5.50, $6.00 per Gallon.

BULK CORN WHISKEY
100 Proof
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 per Gallon, according to age.

On all orders for $3.50 or over goods will be shipped in handsome glass jars.

WE HANDLE ALL IMPORTED WINES AND LIQUORS. ASK FOR PRICES

PABST'S BLUE RIBBON BEER
Per Barrel, 10 doz. pints $12.00
Per Dozen, packed in Boxes 1.50
Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.

JUNG'S CINCINNATI BEER
Per Barrel, 10 doz. pints $8.50
Per Dozen, packed in Boxes 1.00
Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.

LONG DISTANCE PHONE 1000

517-519 West Bay Street
CHAS. BLUM & COMPANY
Jacksonville Florida

A Big Baby Farm.

What has been called the biggest baby farm in the world is situated at Moscow, and it is claimed that this institution shows an annual crop of some 14,000 babies, not to speak of that put out by a branch at St. Petersburg, which numbers 5,000. The Moscow Foundling asylum was founded by Empress Catherine II., and it is maintained, oddly enough, by a tax on playing cards. Servants in the red livery of the royal family guard its doors, and its accounts are carefully audited by the Russian treasury department. The buildings comprising this institution stand in a hollow square round a garden with trim lawn and trees, which forms a playground for the children. Youngsters of all sorts and sizes, from tender nurslings, who in the incubating rooms are just struggling into life, are tended by careful nurses and are as sure of good nourished and wholesome food as any baby can need. About fifty babies are received every day, and after four weeks the nurses take them to their own homes in the villages.—New York Tribune.

Opulence.

They numbered four. They absolutely exuded prosperity. The things which they ordered were such as to fill with envy the breast of the man at the next table engaged in consuming the most modest dish disclosed by the bill of fare.

The four were conversing—languid, plutocratic conversation. After awhile it turned to the question of money. Evidently they wanted to do something. How much money had they? One of the four took out his pocketbook and counted up a roll of bills.

"Oh, I have a hundred and forty," he said carelessly.

The second and third members of the party went through their pockets.

"I have two hundred and fifteen," remarked one.

"And I have three hundred," said the other.

The fourth waved his hand grandly.

"Never mind, you fellows," he said. "I'll lend you all you want."

Tenderly waiters bore the man at the next table out into the cold air. He will recover.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Thrilling Sport.

At Waikiki, the home of surfboating for pleasure, there is no danger from reef, but in the south Pacific often the reef is two miles from shore and is exposed at low tide. The waves form almost on the edge of the reef and drop down upon the hard coral perpendicularly, covering the reef for the time being with about two feet of rushing water. The canoe that must jump this reef places itself before a wave, every one paddles for dear life, and if the boat does not touch coral, but is held suspended until a cushion of water rushes onward to receive it, the jump is successfully negotiated, the reef is crossed, and there is but a two mile paddle across the quiet lagoon to the sandy beach. If the bow ... does touch the coral on ... there is a ...

and its occupants are shot flying in every direction. One might laugh at this at Waikiki, where there are no sharks, but not in the south seas.—Recreation.

Tons of Pins.

Nothing better shows the bigness of little things than the manufacture of pins. In England there are made each week between fifteen and sixteen tons of the small necessaries, the materials being iron, steel and brass. The yearly production would amount to about 730 tons. The number of pins included in this great weight would make any ordinary figures seem insignificant—would, in fact, defy realization or comprehension. Germany also makes great quantities of pins, her production totaling about 144 tons a year. The United States makes great quantities of pins and imports many from England. Most of the latter country's output is manufactured in Birmingham by two firms, one of which has been in existence nearly a century and the other over a century.—Philadelphia North American.

He Didn't Complain.

Young Wife—This talk about men being so impatient when a woman is getting ready to go anywhere is all nonsense.

Friend—Doesn't your husband complain at all?

Young Wife—No, indeed. Why, last evening I couldn't find my gloves and had a long hunt for half a dozen other things, and yet when I was finally dressed and went downstairs to my husband there he was reading and smoking as calmly as if I wasn't half an hour late.

Friend—Well, I declare! Where were you going?

Young Wife—To prayer meeting.

Method.

Method goes far to prevent trouble in business, for it makes the task easy, hinders confusion, saves abundance of time and instructs those that have business depending what to do and what to hope.

Blissful Ignorance.

"Shall I tell you a secret, Mr. Black?" asked a little boy. "My sister Louisa is to be engaged to your brother. Even your brother hasn't been told yet."

An Order Could Be Filled.

Customer (in Boston restaurant)—Waiter, have you any fried eels? Waiter—We have eels, sir, and they are susceptible of being fried.

Trust him little who praises all, him less who censures all, and him least who is indifferent to all.—Lavater.

Forges on the Farm.

The main advantage of having a small forge on a farm is not so much the saving of money as the saving of time. A little job of repairing can be done in the time that it would take to get to town and back, and the cost of the work is saved besides. A good portable forge can be bought for $1

A Free Present!

To every purchaser of One Dollar's worth of goods we will give a ticket entitling the holder to one chance for

HIGH GRADE STANDARD TALKING MACHINE

Now is the time. Come in and see this elegant present which we are Giving Away. Also a fine line of Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, Etc.

H. KANJUTZKY

CLANTON, ALA

Chicago the Danger Line.

"Speaking of fishballs," remarked an ardent New England admirer of that form of food who was eating in a Dearborn street restaurant the other day, "I will tell you a sad, sad truth about them.

"If you order them in Boston they are practically all fish. Yes, sir—solid, bona fide fish. Move west a bit—to Albany, say. What happens? The amount of fish in each fishball has dwindled. Proceed to Buffalo. A certain self assertiveness begins to be apparent with the fish. On to Cleveland: Fishballs there are half potato, half fish, with the accent on potato. On to Chicago! There potato has the upper hand!"

He groaned.

"How is it in the far west?"

He leaned forward.

"I've never dared travel farther west than Chicago!" he whispered hoarsely.—Chicago Tribune.

Golf in the Old Days.

Centuries back golf was a pastime of the royal family, though then usually played in Scotland. The Stuart family was very fond of the game, and the first English club was established at Blackheath in 1608 by James I. His eldest son, Henry, frequently played and on one occasion nearly struck by accident his tutor with a club, whereupon he coolly remarked, "Had I done so I had but paid my debts." Charles I. was playing golf when he received the news of the Irish rebellion. James, duke of York, afterward James II., was another ardent player. Golf is frequently mentioned in ancient Scottish records and in the fifteenth century was prohibited because it interfered with the practice of archery. Blount considered it the most ancient game at ball requiring a bat.—London Standard.

Vegetable Chat.

"I see that some college professor has been saying that he believes that vegetables can see and hear while growing in the garden."

"Is that so?"

"Yes; not only that, but he believes that ages hence they will be able to converse with one another."

"Oh, that's old!"

"What's old?"

"Vegetables conversing. I've often heard 'Jack and the Beans-talk!'"

Maid Worth Having.

The Mistress (entering the kitchen)—Jane, didn't I hear a dish break a minute ago. The Maid—I hope you did, mem. It made noise enough. If you hadn't heard it I should have thought you were getting deaf, and that, you know, would be awful.—Boston Transcript.

Cause and Effect.

The Earl of Hanui (dreamily)—Wish I just had er million and ten years ahead of me. Baron Beating It—Well, you grab the million and you'll get the ten years all right, all right.—Puck.

Then What?

Mrs. Hoyle—My husband doesn't care for money. Mrs. Doyle—That adds to the mystery as to the motive for his marriage.—New York Press.

Sure Thing.

Bill—When all the fools are dead I don't want to be alive. Jill—Well, don't worry; you won't be.—Tombstone Gatesman.

Life at $100 a Pound.

"The best India ink—it should really be called China ink—never leaves China," said a missionary. "It costs $100 a pound, and the scribes use it in writing the correspondence of the royal family and the mandarins. India ink is made of the oil of poisonous seeds of the sesamum or colza tree. Varnish and pork fat are added to the oil, and then, by means of combustion, all is changed to lampblack. The lampblack paste mixed with glue is beaten for days on an anvil, and musk is gradually mixed in to give perfume and the purest gold leaf to give a rich luster. Finally the ink is dried in molds for about a month. What makes the best India ink so costly is its purity and, above all, the long time given to its combustion and subsequent beating. If you saw its beauty you wouldn't think it dear at $100 a pound!"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Salesman.

Young man, I had decided upon your immediate discharge. One big redeeming trait of your character as just now revealed restrains me. Your loyalty is all that saves you. Stick up for your house every time. A salesman's five cardinal points are loyalty, enthusiasm, hard work, persistence and tact. You have much of the first four and none of the last. Smooth yourself down. You talked to the lumber company man at the wrong time. When he said he was too busy you should have smiled and got out. You can only sell to a man when he is in the right mood.—Bookkeeper.

The Alternative.

A tramp went into a farmhouse recently, and, seeing no one but an old woman, he said in very fierce tones, "Give me a drink of milk or else"—

But a man came behind him suddenly and, catching him by the neck, said, "Else what?"

"Else water," said the tramp humbly.—London Tatler.

Govern Yourself.

He who is his own monarch contentedly sways the scepter over himself, not envying the glory to the crowned heads of the earth.—Sir Thomas Browne.

How to Do It.

If you value your friendships, don't borrow money, don't lend money, don't advise others how to invest their money.—Albany Journal.

Untimely Deaths

It is estimated that from eighty to ninety per cent of all diseases are caused by disease of Kidneys or Liver. If you have symptoms of these diseases, you should at once take U-RA-CURA. It will relieve the system of the causes of these diseases, tone up the system and insure vigorous health. For many years it has stood the test of time and trial. Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Send for book on wonderful cures. Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Pain in Heart

"For two years I had pain in my heart, back and left side. Could not draw a deep breath or lie on left side, and any little exertion would cause palpitation. Under advice I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I took about thirteen bottles, am in better health than I ever was, and have gained 14 pounds."

MRS. LILLIE THOMAS,
Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

For many years Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been very successful in the treatment of heart troubles, because of its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles. Even in severe cases of long standing it has frequently prolonged life for many years after doctors had given up all hope, as proven by thousands of letters we have received from grateful people.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE KITCHEN.

Stoves, Ranges and Kitchen Utensils that deserve to be trusted. Safe, efficient, durable and sanitary. That is the kind that we are offering at these low prices this season.

STEEL RANGES $20.00 TO $45.00

WHEN YOU BUY A RANGE

don't forget that economy of maintenance, working convenand durability are the points to be considered.

Buy a range that has a record of giving satisfaction in these points.

WHEN YOU BUY A RANGE

you can't do better than buy a Eureka. Thousands of them are in use every day and their records are ones of invariable satisfaction.

If you are going to buy a Cast Stove you cannot make a mistake by buying an "Arizona."

No. 7 Stoves $7.00 to $15.00

No. 8 Stoves $12.00 to $35.00

SUPERIOR STOCK! SATISFACTORY SERVICE! MAXIMUM WORTH! MINIMUM COST!

Upon these points we base our claim for your patronage. By buying our Stoves and Ranges from the best manufacturers in the whole country, and by buying them in such large quantities to supply our three stores—Clanton, Wetumpka and Alexander City—is it not reasonable to suppose that we can sell you cheaper than you can buy elsewhere, and that we and serve you to your advantage and entire satisfaction. All we askis a trial.

If it's Hardware We have it!

Gamble Hardware Co.

If we have it, It's the Best!

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORN

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some Saw Not

The stock law election on ... day in Beat ... resulted in ... for the advocates of the law ... majority in favor of it being ...

There is but eleven more days ... which to pay poll tax, and as ... ables you to vote in all election ... stock law or other—of course ... will pay it before February 1.

The days are beginning ... lengthen, and as soon as we ... over this spell of cold weather ... gardening operations will be ... menced; farmers are already ... ning for a new crop and spring ... time will see everyone busy.

Just when cotton was getting ... a nice price, and there is no ... great deal left in the hands of ... farmers, the market must ... take a tumble and down goes ... price. Think of this when ... ning for the new crop.

Hon. Charles Henderson, ... dent of the railroad commission ... announced candidate for gov... or. This makes five already in ... race. Judge Weakley, Col. Mail ... W. D. Seed, Emmett O'Neal ... Charles Henderson. Come on ... the next one, the more the merr...

FIRE AT THE COURT HOUSE AT CLANTON

Wednesday Night About 7 o'clock

As Judge Reynolds was hold... an adjourned session of the Cou... Court Wednesday night, after ... per, some of the witnesses who ... waiting in the room over the Gr... Jury room, noticed a volume ... smoke arising through the fl... and rushing down stairs it was ... once seen that the Grand Jury ro... was in a blaze.

Breaking open the door, the fl... in front of the fireplace was fo... to be blazing furiously. The al... was given and in a very short ti... a hundred men, or more, was on ... scene with buckets of water ... the fire, which promised to be ... our, was soon extinguished.

The room had been occupied d... ing the day by Tax Assessor L. ... Pounds, and leaving a fire burni... in the open grate, a red hot c... had evidently rolled out of the f... place and set the floor afire. ... of the joists was nearly burn... through, and in a few minutes m... the fire would have got such a h... that would have been hard to ... the mastery of.

Willing hands; among wh... Will Armstrong was perhaps ... most conspicuous, wielding an a... cutting a hole through the floor ... get at the fire underneath, with ... plentiful supply of water, aver... a catastrophe which all Chil... County would have deplored.

It was fortunate that Judge R... nolds was holding court so late ... the fire would probably not ha... been discovered in its incipien... had it been later it is very proba... the fine court house of Chil... County would have been destroy... together with the books of the T... Assessor and possibly many ot... valuable documents.

Two men were left on watch ... prevent a recurrence of the ... break.

Pain in Heart

"For two years I had pain in my heart, back and left side. Could not draw a deep breath or lie on left side, and any little exertion would cause palpitation. Under advice I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I took about thirteen bottles, am in better health than I ever was, and have gained 14 pounds."

MRS. LILLIE THOMAS,
Upper Sandusky, Ohio.

For many years Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has been very successful in the treatment of heart troubles, because of its tonic effect upon the heart nerves and muscles. Even in severe cases of long standing it has frequently prolonged life for many years after doctors had given up all hope, as proven by thousands of letters we have received from grateful people.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

N.

ble and sanitary.

es $7.CO to $15.CO

es $12.00 to $35.00

IMUM COST!

y buying them in such large n buy elsewhere, and that we

f we have it,
It's the Best!

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1910 | No. 16

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The stock law election on Tuesday in Beat 10 resulted in victory for the advocates of the law, the majority in favor of it being eleven.

There is but eleven more days in which to pay poll tax, and as it enables you to vote in all elections—stock law or other—of course you will pay it before February 1.

The days are beginning to lengthen, and as soon as we get over this spell of cold weather, gardening operations will be commenced; farmers are already planning for a new crop and springtime will see everyone busy.

Just when cotton was getting to a nice price, and there is not a great deal left in the hands of the farmers, the market must needs take a tumble and down goes the price. Think of this when planning for the new crop.

Hon. Charles Henderson, President of the railroad commission, is an announced candidate fo. governor. This makes five already in the race. Judge Weakley, Col. Mallory, W. D. Seed, Emmett O'Neal and Charles Henderson. Come on with the next one, the more the merrier.

FIRE AT TRE COURT HOUSE AT CLANTON

Wednesday Night About 7:30 o'clock.

As Judge Reynolds was holding an adjourned session of the County Court Wednesday night, after supper, some of the witnesses who were waiting in the room over the Grand Jury room, noticed a volume of smoke arising through the floor, and rushing down stairs it was at once seen that the Grend Jury room was in a blaze.

Breaking open the door, the floor in front of the fireplace was found to be blazing furiously. The alarm was given and in a very short time a hundred men, or more, was on the scene with buckets of water and the fire, which promised to be serious, was soon extinguished.

The room had been occupied during the day by Tax Assessor L. B. Pounds, and leaving a fire burning in the open grate, a red hot coal had evidently rolled out of the fireplace and set the floor afire. One of the joists was nearly burned through, and in a few minutes more the fire would have got such a hold that would have been hard to get the mastery of.

Willing hands, among whom Will Armstrong was perhaps the most conspicuous, wielding an axe, cutting a hole through the floor, to get at the fire underneath, with a plentiful supply of water, averted a catastrophe which all Chilton County would have deplored.

It was fortunate that Judge Reynolds was holding court so late, or the fire would probably not have been discovered in its incipiency; had it been later it is very probable the fine court house of Chilton County would have been destroyed, together with the books of the Tax Assessor and possibly many other valuable documents.

Two men were left on watch to prevent a recurrence of the outbreak.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$55,238 64	Capital Stock Paid in	$15,000 00
Overdrafts	1,899 54	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	13,373 76
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	13,700 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$40,085 49
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	4,467 62	Savings Deposits	9,415 50
Other Real Estate	167 50	Cashier's Checks	101 62
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$14,502 38	Bills Payable	5,000 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	8,765 17		54,202 71
Currency	6 940 00
Gold	1,080 00
Silver, Nickles and Pennies	1,666 00
Checks and Cash Items	251 00
	27,561 85
Total	$97,090 44	Total	$97,090 44

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank. JNO. A. THOMAS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 23d day of October, 1909. J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAMUEL KAUFMAN
M. L. GREIL
} Directors.

Statement of the condition of the Clanton Bank, located at Clanton, Ala., at the close of business October 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$ 91,237 42	Capital Stock Paid in	$ 15,000 00
Overdrafts	633 35	Surplus Fund	10,000 00
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	21,725 00	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	9,219 33
Furniture and Fixtures	3,616 22	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$ 79,582 17
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$10,000 77	Time Certificates	13,057 43
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	8 720 57	Cashier's Checks	125 00
Currency	4 060 00	Bills Payable	10,000 00
Gold	297 50		102,364 60
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,317 45
Checks and Cash Items	310 10
	25 603 39
Total	$152,836 08		$152,836 08

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of the Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank. E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 22nd day of October, 1909. E. B. DEASON, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. H. SANTOR
W. T. MULLINS
P. D. WILSON
} Directors.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Clanton, Ala., Jan. 11, 1910

Editor Banner—Will you please allow me a small space in your valuable paper in regard to stock law in Beat 10? I want to say to you that stock law has the wrong name, that it means no stock, that it means no milk and no butter, and it means for your smoke house to be in the North. That isn't all yet, the homes that you now own will belong to the rich man and be tended in cotton by a negro. I don't know that I could amend what Mr. Williams said about the women and little children leading an old cow out in the grass, tied by the head to get a little milk; or a little muddy pig stuck off in the corner of the yard. This stock law reminds me of several things. It reminds me of an old field fence burnt from around it. I don't believe that God Almighty intended acorns and grass to be taken from the cows and hogs. You men in Beat 10 study these things over before you vote for stock law. Respectfully,

J. H. POPWELL.

Thorsby, Ala., Jan. 14, 1910

Editor Banner—Please give me space to say a few words against the Same Old Coon. He said some words put him in mind of a fish tale. Now, brother, if anything put me in mind of a fish tale, it is your letter which you wrote for stock law. Do you know anything about stock law? I feel sure you don't or you would not be fretting about Same Old Coon, as you call him. Now, I have been in stock law in the West, where they can raise more grass on ten acres of land there than we can on a section here and they don't want stock law. But I guess he is like Jesse's puppy, he wants to let some one know he is alive. He had better write now if he thinks they will get stock law, for when they get it, in a little while he will be so poor he can't get paper to write. The man that is so close that he don't want a neighbor's cow or hog to eat a little grass or a few hickorynuts on his land, must be hard up. A man told me that he was out buying beef cattle last summer and that he went down in stock law and he never in all his life saw as many poor cows and yearlings.

Yours against stock law.

VOTER.

Clanton, Jan. 14, 1910

Editor Banner—While we're shut in by the cold, and cannot do much but sit around the fire, the amendment election, Christmas and New Year day being over, the thought may now and then creep over us that we will have another election this year, and some of us may be looking for the people to call on us to serve them in some official capacity. If so, they need not be so mealy mouthed about it, we can't rest too long. May be some of us were so aggressive and some so reticent in the last election we hardly know how to jump. I will say, as a starter, if I should take a notion to become a candidate, my announcement will be something like this: I announce myself a candidate for the office of Probate Judge of Chilton county, feeling that I have the ability to discharge the duties of the office. I will run the race through, subject to the votes cast at the regular election. If you claim this a starter, when I come down I will set 'em up.

OLIVER MULLINS.

Cane Creek.

Editor Banner—Please allow us a small space in your paper to say a few words in regard to our school at this place. Our school is progressing nicely under the careful management of Prof. J. C. Merchant. He is sure a good teacher, and all of his pupils have learned to love him.

Mrs. Alicia Rhodes and children from Minooka is visiting her brother and mother, Mr. P. C. Weldon and Mrs. M. J Burnett.

They say the fruit supper at Mr. J Gentry's was all O. K. We don't know how it was, we were not there.

Misses Anna Odell Umson and Lurlie Giles visited Misses Rosie and Carrie Lambert Sunday.

CHUMS.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of Chancery Court of Shelby county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain decree recently obtained against Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et ala. out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said Henry W. Coffin, Richard W Massey, et als, I have levied on the following property, to wit:

The nw 1-4 and the w 1-2 of the sw 1-4, and the sw 1-4 of sw 1-4, Section 6; the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4; the se 1-4 of the sw 1-4, Section 15; the se 1-4 of the se 1-4, Section 16; the s 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4, Section 19; the nw 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and a 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the e 1-2 of the se 1-4 Section 21; the n 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and e 1-2 of the sw 1-4, Section 22; the w 1-2 of ne 1-4 and w 1-2 of sw 1-4, Section 25; the e 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the se 1-4, the n 1-2 of the nw 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the sw 1-4 of Section 35, as the property of the Defendant, Thos. E Lappage.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named Henry W Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, in and to the above described property on Monday, the 7th day of February, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House in Clanton.

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 27th day of December, 1909.

JOHN S. CATTS,
Sheriff of Chilton county, Ala.

Notice. Notice. Notice.

Default having been made in the payment of the debts secured by two mortgages made by Burwell Bailey and Hattie Bailey, his wife, one for the year 1905 and one for the year 1906 to Suttles and Siegel, and by Suttles and Siegel duly transferred to the undersigned, I Burwell Bailey Jr., the transferee of said mortgage, will, on Saturday, the 29th day of January, 1910.

sell in front of the market house in the City of Selma, Alabama, at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, the following real estate, situated in the county of Chilton, State of Alabama, and described as follows, to wit:

The east half of the southeast quarter, Section sixteen, Township twenty, Range eleven, the north half of the northwest quarter of Section twenty two, Township twenty, Range eleven, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less.

The said sale is made for the purpose of paying, first: the debts secured by said mortgage; second: the cost of advertising, selling and conveying, and attorney's fee provided for in said mortgage. BURWELL BAILEY, JR.

A. D. PITTS, Attorney.

Stomach Trouble Cured.

If you have any trouble with your stomach you should take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. P. Klote, of Edina, Mo., says: "I have used a great many different medicines for stomach trouble, but find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets more beneficial than any other remedy I ever used." For sale by all druggists.

STRAYED

From my place, known as the Stewart place, one mile west of Clanton, November 29, 1909, a dark chestnut mule, about twelve years old, with scar on left shoulder. Any information should be sent to E. M. Pinckard & Co., Clanton, who will pay a reward of $10 for his delivery.

H. LOCKHART.

Thorsby.

The Ladies' Guild of Thorsby is an organization of workers for civic improvement. "A Better Thorsby" is the motto inscribed on their banner and only "boosters" are eligible.

They employ any legitimate means to raise money for whatever object they decide to work for that will improve conditions in their home town. This year they have assumed the entire salary of one of the teachers, to aid in sustaining Thorsby Institute, as one of the forces for civic improvement, and so industrious and successful have they been that they now have in their treasury the entire amount pledged.

The officers elected at the annual meeting are: President Mrs. S. E. Norton; Vice President, Mrs William Foss; Secretary, Mrs. E. W. Butler; Treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Michelson who constitute the Executive Board.

Sardis.

Editor Banner—Please allow us a small space in the dear old Banner to say a few words in regard to stock law. What in the world is the people studying about, trying to get stock law in this country; it is the worst thing that ever was brought up. Boys, go and pay up your tax, and men who are behind with your tax go and pay up, and vote against stock law. We heard a man say that he was passing through a place where they had stock law and saw some pigs in a pen, and they had to lean up against the fence to eat their corn. If they get stock law through here, I think the cows and hogs will all die. Some hogs lean against a stump, and the cows stand in a fence corner to keep the wind from blowing them away. Now good people, think about this and vote against stock law. What would the poor widow women and little orphan children do that are depending on milk and butter for part of their living? When you got stock law they would not be able to keep their cows, and may be some poor little children would go hungry. If I was the men I would be ashamed to treat the poor widows and orphans that way.

Uncle Louis Patrick has moved from Sardis to J. D. Deason's saw mill; we will miss him around Sardis. The school at Vermont is progressing nicely under the management of Prof. Alphus Deason.

The spelling match and reading match at the school house Friday evening was fine and was enjoyed by all who were present.

With love to the Banner and its many readers.

THE SAME TWO GIRLS.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into Joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purgative. Sold by all druggists.

Subscribefor The Banner.

SALESMEN WANTED to look after our interest in Chilton and adjacent counties. Salary or commission. Address the Victor Oil Company, Cleveland, O.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Hanlen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,

J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

STRAYED

From four miles north of Jemisor, Saturday, December 11, 1909, one Small Dark Colored Mare Mule about four years old, supposed to be making its way back to Birmingham. Reasonable reward given for delivery of Mule or wiring information to OLIVER & GULLEDGE BROS., Verbena, Ala, who will send for Mule.

STOCK LAW ELECTION

In accordance with the statute in such cases made and provided, notice is hereby given that application has been made to Commissioners Court of Chilton county, Alabama, for an election to be held in Precinct No. 9 in said county, on Thursday, the 3d day of February, 1910, to determine whether or not stock shall be permitted to run at large in said Precinct.

Said application has been granted by the Court.

This notice is given to notify all parties concerned that said election will be held at the usual place of voting Precinct on Thursday, the third day of February, 1910, to determine said question.

Signed by S. D. McCary and others.

Dated this 21st day of December, 1909.

STOCK LAW ELECTION.

Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of an order made by the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, on the 16th day of December, 1909, an election will be held in precinct No 15 in Chilton County, Alabama, at Pletcher and Culp School house, the places where general elections are held in said Precinct, on Thursday the 3rd day of February, 1910, to determine whether or not hogs, goats, sheep, geese, etc., and such like, shall be permitted to run at large in said Precinct No 15 in Chilton County, Alabama.

This the 16th day of December, 1909.

R. P. Kendrick and others.

WANTED.

FOR SALE—Two Four acre lots with 3 roomed houses on them, good wells of water, and one Store House and lot—all in Coopers, Ala. will sell them cheap. Apply to J. W. CLARK, Cooper, Ala.

WANTED—A good man to solicit business for Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. Will pay big commissions to right man to begin work immediately. Must furnish good reference. Home office, Montgomery Address: C. E Black, Montgomery, Ala.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by all druggists.

FOR SALE.—Three yoke of Oxen, from five to six years old; weigh between 800 and 1000 lbs. and in good condition; also one Dray. Apply to Steve Atchison, Jemison, Ala., Route 1.

HOGS FOUND—A sow and four shoates have strayed on to my place, known as the old Davey White place, at Jonestown; three of the shoates are marked. I have had them up three week. Owner can get same by giving proper description and paying expenses of this advt. M. C. Fox.

WANTED—15 or 20 teams to haul iron ore at Wessington. Pay 85c per ton; 3 mile haul; pay every two weeks. Miners also wanted. Call or write Tom Walker, or C. H Durham, Jemison, Ala., care Shelby Iron Co.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, ever day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

FOR SALE.

240 acres of land, 70 in cultivation and under good fence; a good five room dwelling house; good well of water in yard; good barns and stalls for stock; blacksmith shop and a store house near dwelling house. I will sell cheap and on reasonable terms. Situated on rural route, four miles east of Maplesville. For particulars apply to L. B. Broadhead, Maplesville, Ala., Route 2.

SALESMAN WANTED.

An honest, sober, energetic man to handle our business in Chilton county. Good proposition offered to right man. Must be able to furnish horse and buggy and give bonesty bond. Position open Jan. 1st, 1910. Address Box 426, Montgomery, Ala.

A Wife Blizzard Raging

brings danger, suffering—often death to thousands, who take colds, coughs and lagrippe—that terror of Winter and Spring. Its danger signals are "stuffed up" nostrils, lower part of nose sore, chills and fever, pain in back of head, and a throat-grinding cough. When Grip attacks, as you value your life, don't delay getting Dr. King's New Discovery. "One bottle cured me," writes A. L. Dunn, of Pine Valley, Miss., "after being laid up three weeks with Grip." For sore, lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, its supreme. 50c. $1.00. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co.

70 Years with Coughs

We have had nearly seventy years of experience with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. That makes us have great confidence in it for coughs, colds, bronchitis, weak throats, and weak lungs. Ask your own doctor what experience he has had with it. He knows. He can advise you wisely. Keep in close touch with your family physician. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Be well; be strong. You cannot if your bowels are constipated. The best laxative is Ayer's Pills, all vegetable. Ask your doctor if he agrees with us. Do as he says.

FORECASTS MADE FOR 1910

Men of Prominence Predict a Brilliant Year.

MARKED ERA OF PROSPERITY.

South Pole to Be Reached This Year and Air Travel In Five Years, Says Professor Willis Moore—Much Progress In Aeronautics—Real Help For Poor Woman.

Predictions of continued prosperity and a continuation of the wonderful march in progress are contained in the following symposium of New Year's greetings from some famous men and a prominent woman:

By JOSEPH G. CANNON,
Speaker of house of representatives.

The year 1909 has closed with the people prosperous. They are earning more on the average than they ever earned before. I see no reason for a change during the new year.

By JAMES BRYCE,
British ambassador to United States.

The twentieth century will be renowned for commerce, for progress in the manner of living, for the successful extraction from this world of all the boons it offers to those who are willing to go after them. Every nation will strive for commercial supremacy, and this means that every one of its citizens will have to work toward this end. The competition that will follow will be but an incentive toward progress. The era of prosperity before us will be more substantial than any in the past.

By WILLIS L. MOORE,
Chief of United States weather bureau.

If I were to make a forecast for the coming year and longer I should predict that within twelve months the south pole will be reached and that within less than five years passengers will be carefully tucked away in aluminum compartments, with air cushions and electric lights and heat, and ride through the air at the rate of 200 miles an hour over the route followed by Peary, encircle the globe and return to civilization without having landed.

By MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT,
Prominent woman suffrage leader.

As the old year died some of the traditions that women have clung to died with it. A new awakening has come with the new year. This enlightenment will make slow but gradual progress with the women of the nation.

The more fortunate woman has awakened to the fact of her obligation to the self supporting woman not only in the way of charity, but in methods that do away with the necessity of charity. The woman who has everything is beginning to realize that she has it in her power to enforce conditions wherein women less fortunate may benefit by her influence. The woman suffrage movement is producing this effect. The anti-women, who are slow to appreciate this, are still satisfied with the subordinate position of women in general—praiseworthy, perhaps, in some respects, but far from an exalted standard.

If the suffrage bill, as now promises, will pass the legislature I should say, as the greatest boon of 1910, that the wise men of the United States have at last realized their inability to stand alone in the government of the country and that the extended help of the wise women is grateful to them.

By ORVILLE WRIGHT,
Famous aeronaut and inventor.

We are of the opinion that the new year will see much progress in aeronautics not only in America, but in all the civilized nations that have taken up the art of flying. Better motors, greater speed and improvement in details are some of the things we expect in connection with the aeroplane. It is almost certain also that flying will be taken up by amateurs to a great extent during the next few months. Two big events that will arouse world-wide interest will be held in America namely, the Gordon Bennett international balloon race and the Gordon Bennett flying machine cup event. Both of these will add much zeal to the flying business and are sure to put aeronautics on a stronger basis in the United States.

My brother and I will probably be busy manufacturing aeroplanes in 1910. We expect to do little if any flying ourselves and will devote what time we have to the scientific end of the business in the hope of bringing our machine to greater perfection. One other thing that we expect to do in the new year is to build some racing machines. We have never built a machine especially for speed. The one we built for the United States government was faster than our others, but it was not designed for speed as much as for capacity and long distance flying. But our intentions are to build a machine especially designed for racing.

By Brigadier General JAMES ALLEN,
Chief signal officer of U. S. army.

The new year should be signalized by the perfection of the inventions and discoveries which have so far added to the world's material and moral advancement. One of the possibilities of the near future is that the peace of the world may have to be preserved by the best aerial navy.

DELAGRANGE'S MISHAPS.

Frenchman Killed In Monoplane Flight Was Prominent Aviator.

Leon Delagrange, the Frenchman who was recently killed when his monoplane broke in midair at Bordeaux, France, was well known as an aviator, not only as having at various times held the record for speed and distance, but also for his daring. His career was marked by several serious accidents before the fatal one, but he continued his exploits, earning the reputation of a man who would run a good deal of risk rather than disappoint the spectators who had gathered to see him fly.

Well known already as an automobilist, Delagrange took up aviation in the early stages of the sport and made his first public ascent at Bagatelle, France, on March 16, 1907, in a biplane. He was satisfied then with a flight of thirty feet, but a few days later he took a passenger up and accomplished 453 feet.

On Nov. 5, 1907, he met with his first accident at Issy, France. His machine fell and was smashed, but he escaped with a few bruises and cuts. At Issy also in the following May he had a narrow escape, as with Farman he was competing for the Armengaud prize of $2,000 for a flight of fifteen minutes. He was traveling fast near the ground, and his machine swerved toward the crowd of spectators. He at once shut off power and in descending crashed into a motorcar. The machine was smashed to atoms, but Delagrange escaped almost uninjured.

Again he was hurt in the next spring in an exhibition flight at Milan before Queen Margherita of Italy, but so little was he unnerved that eleven days later he gave another exhibition before her majesty, remaining in the air for 16 minutes 11 seconds and covering a little over eleven miles. For this performance, a record at the time, he received a special gold medal.

At Issy, on Sept. 6, 1908, Delagrange made another record. He flew fifteen and two-fifth miles in 29 minutes and 54 4-5 seconds and came to the ground only because his petrol was exhausted. At that time this beat Wright's and Farman's records by twelve minutes.

In May last year Delagrange, at Juvisy, won the Lagatinerie prize, making three and six-tenth miles in 10 minutes 18 seconds. At the Rheims competitions in August he used for the first time a monoplane, but achieved no great success, being placed tenth for speed and eighth for distance. On one occasion his propeller broke, and he was badly bruised. He then visited Denmark and flew for fifteen minutes for King Frederick at Aarhus.

His first sensational flight, however, was made on Oct. 20, 1909. At Doncaster, in England, he covered six miles in 7 minutes 36 seconds, at a rate at times of over fifty miles an hour. He also established a speed record of 1 mile and 860 yards in 1 minute 47 1-5 seconds—that is, about fifty-four miles an hour. His machine on this occasion was a Blériot monoplane.

On Thursday, Dec. 30, 1909, he accomplished another world's speed record. At Juvisy in trying to win the Michelin cup he flew 124 miles in 2 hours 32 minutes, an average speed of forty-nine miles an hour.

Many honors were conferred on Delagrange for his achievements. Among them were the Order of the Legion of Honor, an enamel medal by the Academy of Sciences, Paris, and the presidency of the Aviation Club of France for 1907. His pastimes consisted in hunting, horseback riding and automobiling.

Fate of a Lincoln Car.

On the forty-sixth anniversary of the world famous Gettysburg address of Abraham Lincoln the car which conveyed the martyred president to and from Gettysburg was found five miles from town being used as sleeping quarters by a railroad repair gang. The car for many years was used between Hanover and Hanover Junction, where it was affectionately designated as "Old 74," that being its number. Recently it was found to be getting out of repair and was assigned to a repair gang. By a singular coincidence that particular gang was assigned to the Gettysburg division of the road, and the car was found at Seven Stars by persons who knew its history. There is talk of trying to have the car sent to Gettysburg and convert it into a historical museum.

Rogues' Gallery For Mashers.

Police in Detroit, Mich., have instituted a drastic method of suppressing "mashers" by making a separate "rogues' gallery" of them. They have been spurred to this action by recent assaults on women, one of which resulted in a murder.

Officers not in uniform are sent out to keep watch of men and youths who bow to women they don't know. When they are detected they are taken to a station and put through the same ordeal a criminal has to undergo. Hereafter when a woman or girl is annoyed and the masher gets away, if she will go to police headquarters she can look over this gallery, identify her man and the police will look him up and bring him in.

Husband Taming Club.

Young women of Grangerille, Ida., married during 1909 have formed the "1909 club." The brides refuse to tell the motive of the club, but it has leaked out. The object is for the exchanging of ideas as to the proper governing of a husband, the best things to make him eat and how generally to please him. At each meeting some one member of the brides' club delivers a dissertation on some specific branch of husband taming. Then all discuss what has been said and offer suggestions.

PRISON LIFE OF C. W. MORSE.

How Convicted Banker Will Fare In Atlanta Jail.

ENTITLED TO SOME PRIVILEGES

Placed In First Class Prisoners, but Must Undergo a Rigid Routine—Still Game and Determined to Fight on In Courts—He Takes Much Pleasure In a Poem.

When the big steel door of the United States penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., recently swung shut behind Charles W. Morse of New York, but yesterday a man of millions, he had ceased to exist socially. The quondam ice king, banker and master of great fleets, who was intrusted with the care of many millions and convicted of being faithless to the trust, had begun his fifteen year sentence. He had become convict No. 2814, and after all the formalities had been concluded, clad in an ill fitting suit of rough blue clothes, he was marched into the big dining hall and with negroes, Indians, Chinamen and whites of every condition took his first meal under the roof that is to shut out his liberty for fifteen years.

No. 2814 henceforth supplants Morse's name. He has been put in the first grade of prisoners, which entitles him to all the privileges that the best behaved may enjoy. As such he need not wear the stripes save when he is on the outside of the building, the warden, William H. Moyer, having discarded this mark in favor of the blue uniform.

CHARLES W. MORSE.

Morse must abide by rules that govern the employment of every moment of his day. Speech is denied him except at stated times, even at his meals.

Still to Fight For Freedom.

He is still full of fight and said to a reporter shortly before the prison doors closed on him:

My last words as a free man are to reiterate that I am an innocent man. I am the victim largely of circumstances and unscrupulous methods, but the battle is not yet over, although I have suffered a heavy defeat.

I shall protest against imprisonment on the ground that by commitment is illegal. But this is more or less a formal motion. There are other steps to be taken, and on these I am raising high hopes. Martin Littleton, my counsel, will be here in a day or two, and then we shall discuss in detail the plans to be pursued.

I detest whining, but in justice to myself I must say, what every man who is conversant with affairs in New York must know, that I was the victim of a clique who feared me. I incurred their enmity, and they set about to encompass my destruction. How they did it is a matter of history. But I have suffered reverses before and have survived them. I shall, I hope, survive this too. But it is hard, hard to make myself think this way at my time of life. I am an old man now, and fifteen years out of my life—oh, I cannot believe that it will have to be!

One of his companions recalled the lines from Oscar Wilde's beautiful "Ballad of Reading Gaol" running:

"His step seemed light and gay, but I never saw a man who looked so wistfully at the day."

Takes Pleasure In Poem.

Morse mused for a moment.

"I can feel those things now," he said. "They come straight home. While I was in the Tombs a friend sent me the verses called 'Invictus,' by W. E. Henley. I wish I had brought them with me."

He was glad when he learned that one of the party recalled them and wrote them out for him. The lines of the poem "Invictus" are as follows:

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods there be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced or cried aloud.
Under the bludgeonings of fate
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishment the scroll,
I am the master of my fate,
I am the captain of my soul.

He read the lines and as he put them in his pocket remarked that he hoped he would be permitted to keep them.

"Did I feel myself guilty my outlook would be black indeed," he said, "but I do not think my life a failure, at least not yet. No matter what they do to me, they can't kill my spirit. It is because of this sentiment that I love Henley's lines. Every man's voice, raised for me or against me, is of avail, and so I ask the aid of every man who may believe that a wrong has been done me. That is all I want to say. Goodby."

That was his valedictory.

Allowed Two Visitors a Month.

Morse is permitted two visitors each month, besides special calls of urgent nature, so long as he is in the first grade. He may receive letters and books and may write one letter every two weeks, but all of his communications are subject to the warden's scrutiny.

He can purchase out of the money he left with the warden, something like $200, a black tie and tooth paste and hairbrush and a looking glass, but he is not permitted to buy any additions to the menus. Here is the daily bill of fare:

Breakfast—Potatoes, bread, butter and coffee.
Dinner—Roast beef, sweet potatoes, bread and water.
Supper—Pie, bread, butter and tea.

A sample of the daily routine for convict No. 2814 is: 6:30 a. m., rising gong; 7:15, a. m., roll call; 7:20; a. m., sick report; 7:30 a. m., breakfast; 8 a. m., work; 11:45 a. m., recall; 12:15 p. m., dinner; 12:45 p. m., work; 4:15 p. m., recall; 4:35 p. m., supper; 6 p. m., musical hour; 7 to 9, quiet and reading, smoking permitted; 9 p. m., lights out, sleep.

At meals different motions of the hand indicate different wants. The hand upraised means water, extended to the right means something else, and then to the left it has another meaning.

It is likely Morse will be put to clerical work, as he is not strong enough to do outside work.

NEED OF MORE FARMERS.

Secretary Wilson Discusses Cause of Increased Cost of Living.

Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture at Washington says that what the United States needs are more farmers. Discussing the increased cost of living today, Mr. Wilson said that he was organizing his forces to make a thorough inquiry into the reasons underlying the difference between wholesale and retail prices of food products.

"Too many people are engaged in the business of distribution," Mr. Wilson said. "What we need is more farming. Too many people are rushing to the town and city and trying to make a living there, and not enough are staying in the country. Too many people are trying to get along without work, and not enough of them are in the business of producing something.

"One man could do the business of distribution where twenty are now engaged in it. That is the reason why the cost of living is high and people are complaining. People must learn that they cannot get along without work, and the best place for them is on the farm, where they can raise something."

THE CART BEFORE THE HORSE

New Southern Pacific Locomotives a Novelty In Motive Power.

The new locomotives of the Mallet articulated compound type for the Southern Pacific railroad are so long that if used in the ordinary way the engineer would have difficulty getting a good view of the track in front of him. So to obviate the difficulty the builders have placed the cart before the horse, as it were, and are building the locomotives to run backward with the tender attached to the pilot. The fifteen locomotives thus constructed are oil burners, as this arrangement would not be possible with coal burning engines of that type.

A bumper supporting a stub pilot and pilot coupler is secured to the main frame brace just under the cab. The cab, which is entirely inclosed, is fitted with sliding windows and is entered through side doors reached by suitable ladders. The cab fixtures are located within easy reach of the engineman, who occupies the right side of the cab, looking ahead.

Laymen's Great Mission Movement.

Men of Protestant churches in New York and within a radius of fifty miles of that city are taking keen and active interest in meetings recently begun which will continue until Sunday, Jan. 16. These meetings are arranged by the laymen's missionary movement, and the activity they arouse is significant, since they aim at world evangelization. Protestants of all denominations are working in unity to make the campaign one of tremendous success, showing that creed differences are being forgotten. The laymen's missionary movement was organized for the purpose of showing the men of America their duty to non-Christian lands and how to discharge that duty. It is hoped by the missionary movement that volunteers will be found who will go into the foreign fields to spread the work of evangelization. Pledges of large financial support to the movement have been made, and all through the United States the keenest interest is said to prevail in the work ahead. After the campaign in New York there will be rallies in many other cities, and a general convention will be held in Chicago next May, at which reports of the work will be made.

Wisconsin Seeks National Rifle Shoot.

Wisconsin, with the support of General Grant, will try to get the national army rifle shoots for Sparta, Wis., it was recently announced. The shoots have been held in Seagirt, N. J., and Camp Perry, Ohio.

"Soo" to Have Largest Lock.

Representative Alexander, chairman of the house rivers and harbors committee, announced the other day that another large canal lock, the largest in the world, will be constructed at Sault Ste. Marie.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

System In Horse Breeding.

It might be hard to put one's finger on the greatest defect in horse breeding on the farms of this country, but perhaps nothing is doing more to keep the business back than the lack of a definite system on the part of many farmers, says the National Stockman and Farmer. This lack of system is responsible for the great mixing of types and breeds, which means the ruin of the production of mongrels. Every farmer who raises horses should make up his mind to follow some system in his breeding. It does not matter so much what type or breed of horses he may select. Whatever serves his purpose best on his farm and brings him a fair price for the surplus is a good system. Farm mares, those used in farm work, can raise colts cheaper than any breeder who has to keep a lot of idle mares can raise them, and they can be just as good whether they are of trotting, carriage or draft blood. The mares won't look so nice, and perhaps the foals will not develop quite so fast, but the economy of their production will offset other disadvantages. The farmer who uses his brood mares and his colts when old enough to do his work can raise good ones if he gets the right type and sticks to it, and he can raise them cheap enough to make money on them.

Feeding For Eggs.

The morning feed of mixed whole grain, consisting of wheat, corn, oats or any good grain to be had is scattered in the straw of the scratch shed, writes an Iowa poultrywoman in the Western Poultry Journal. Here the hens will work, contented and happy, through the cold winter days, when the snow keeps them in. About the middle of the afternoon I feed a mash of two-thirds wheat bran and one of middlings and cracked corn. To this I add all table scraps and enough hot water or milk to make a crumbly mass. The hens always relish this feed. During the short winter days I feed but twice, but there is always something to be found in the scratching material if they are hungry enough to work for it. For green feed I give them second crop clover hay, mangel wurzels, small potatoes, cabbage or any other vegetables I can get. The poultry have oyster shells, grit, wheat bran, charcoal and beef scraps always before them in small hoppers fastened to the fall of the shed. There is one thing more that I cannot dispense with, and that is my bone cutter. By the aid of this machine all scraps of meat and bones can be reduced to very profitable food, and there is nothing that will start the hens to laying quicker. During freezing weather I give warm water.

About Testing Cows.

The tests we want are the ones made with normal feeding, whether for one week or one year, writes a New York dairyman in Kimball's Dairy Farmer. Personally I want both. A week's test will show the capacity of the cow, and a year's test will show the ability of the man as a feeder. With proper feeding there is little danger of injuring the offspring. The first thing I look for when reading a test is the amount and kind of feeds fed; then I can tell whether the cow is a paying proposition or not. A cow that eats a dollar's worth of feed to produce a dollar's worth of butter is of little value, even though she produces twenty pounds of butter per week. What prospective purchasers want and are entitled to is what your cow has done for a year in milk according to the test, what feeds were fed and what kind of care was given. Don't pamper, don't stuff, but don't be afraid to feed. There are thousands of cows ruined by underfeeding where one is spoiled by overfeeding.

The Brood Sow.

On every farm there is a good deal of waste from different sources, writes D. J. Blyther in Kimball's Dairy Farmer. A brood sow offers a very profitable market for all this, even to the weeds from the garden.

It is a good plan when a sow of good type proves herself a prolific breeder and an economical feeder and kind mother to keep her several years.

A mature sow requires only food for maintenance, while a growing one needs food for growth. Furthermore, the older one will have a good appetite for waste that a young one would not care for.

It is worth considerable to know that at farrowing time, if you do not happen to be around, your pigs are safe, while with an untried young sow you never know what is going to happen to the pigs.

Fattening Fowls.

Buckwheat meal is very good to use in fattening chickens, but should be used in preference mixed, half of its bulk of other meal, choice being given to cornmeal or ground oats. To fatten a fowl you should commence doing so exactly eighteen days before the fowl or fowls are needed for killing or for marketing, as after eighteen days of fattening they begin to lose flesh instead of gaining it.—A. V. Meerach in Western Poultry Journal.

Protect the Grindstone.

A grindstone should never be left exposed to the sun. The weight of the handle will always cause one portion of the stone to remain uppermost, and this from exposure will reach a different degree of hardness from the underside, so that after awhile the stone will be ground out of circle. If the stone has to stand in the open a flat box can easily be obtained to serve as a cover.

A Queer Ornament.

Some years ago we found in a secretary drawer of a pearl embroidered workbox three locks of hair fastened to small enamel heart shaped mounts with silver eyelets. Two were inscribed "R. C. obt. 10th April, 1864." "R. C. 1864." The third had no inscription at all. In this box I now keep an engraving of a portrait of Elizabeth, queen of Bohemia, which plainly shows the curl of hair in her left ear attached to a pearl earring. The painting by Gerard Honthorst, was engraved by C. Vertue.

When I showed these hair earrings to a gentleman of some considerable learning he informed me that an ancestor of Anne, wife of King James I., was afflicted by a malady still prevalent in Poland and some parts of Russia, which consists of a growth of hair and flesh pendent from the ear, on which it is dangerous to operate owing to the profuse hemorrhage which ensues. He added that in consequence of this personal infirmity a fashion arose in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries of wearing locks of hair pendent from the left ears. I believe there is a portrait of a Stuart lady still at Ham House so adorned.—London Notes and Queries.

The Pilot Fish.

A little fish about which many interesting fancies cluster is the pilot fish. Aelian tells us that pilot fishes were supposed to be kindly disposed toward sailors and therefore liked to approach ships, which they continued with and guided until they reached land. They were deemed sacred to Neptune, the god of the ocean, who protected them from designed injury; consequently a man who had ventured to eat one soon afterward lost his son by drowning. Apollo was said to have changed a fisherman named Pompilus, who had crossed him in his loves, into a pilot fish and condemned him for all eternity to the task of gratuitous pilotage. He is also said to be a pilot of sharks and is said to warn the latter away from baited hooks and other dangers and lead them to food. There really does exist a strange bond of friendship between the huge shark and this little member of the mackerel family, which are often to be seen traveling together, although the pilot fish's supposed care to warn its companion of impending danger and to provide food for it is a fallacy pure and simple.

An English Election Trick.

Corruption at elections in England took many curious forms in olden days. But there have been few more ingenious plans for securing the election of the desired candidate than that practiced at Seaford in 1734. It was doubtful which way the polling would go unless a receiving officer could be found willing to pass some twenty-six persons who still wanted seventeen days to complete the six months' residence required by law. Accordingly it was arranged that the candidate should insist on all the six oaths demanded by statute being administered to each voter individually, and this, together with the time spent in dealing with every frivolous objection raised by counsel, made it impossible to poll more than four votes a day, so that the twenty-six where duly qualified by the time their turn came to vote.

The Tramp's Reason.

The late Joseph Lorsey of San Jose, the famous detective whose best feat was the capture of Canon Bernard after a chase from Alaska to Cape Horn, used to impute his success to his knowledge of men.

"A detective," he would say, "should know the habits of every class. Then no disguise can deceive him. All men, even the most unmethodical, have their habits. Even the tramp has his.

"'You great big lazy loafer,' I said to a tramp one December day, 'you ought to be in jail!'

"'Yes, Algie,' the tramp replied as he pretended to fix a monocle in his eye. 'Yes; I know it's the correct thing for our set at this season, Algie, but, once take it, it's such a cold winter, don't you know.'"—Kansas City Star.

An Indirect Hit.

A patient who was suffering from a scalp wound was recently admitted to a hospital. "How did this happen?" asked the resident surgeon.

"The wife hit me on the head with a stone," was the answer.

"It's the first time I ever heard of a woman hitting anything she aimed at," the doctor observed jokingly.

"Oh, she didn't aim it at me! She was throwing the stone at our neighbor's fowls, and I was standing behind her!"—London Graphic.

What a Change!

"He used to kiss me every time we passed through a tunnel before our marriage," said the little woman, with sad reflections.

"And does he do so now?" asked the bosom friend.

"No; he takes a drink."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Reduced.

"Old Jaggleworth died at an advanced age, didn't he?"

"On the contrary, he died at a greatly reduced age. He was really twenty years older than he said he was."—Chicago News.

The Penalty.

Jinks—How much do you think a minister ought to get for marrying a couple? Pinkus—Well, if wholly unacquainted with them, perhaps he might be let off with six months.

His Way of Putting It.

Simkins—Do you believe there is honor among thieves? Cynicus—If they are just as bad as other people.—Philadelphia Record.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Vinegar's Various Uses.

A little vinegar added to the water in which fish is boiled will remove the strong oily taste.

When added to the water in which flour is boiled vinegar tends to make the flesh more tender.

If beefsteak is rough rub it with vinegar, let it stand for a few minutes and you will regard your butcher quite kindly.

A little vinegar added to furniture polish is an excellent remedy for hoarseness.

When tired and nervous have someone rub the back of the neck and spine with vinegar and water mixed. It will prove most refreshing.

Vinegar burned in a sick room or wherever there is a disagreeable odor will give the room a pleasant aromatic fragrance.

Cleaning Furs.

A method of cleaning furs which is as excellent as it is easy is to rub them with bran.

Fill a dishpan with bran and set in the oven to warm. Rub the warm bran into the fur again and again until every spot has been gone over several times.

When the bran becomes soiled throw it away and replace it. When the fur is all clean brush them well until every particle of bran has been removed. Hang out of doors for a day or two and the fur will be soft, fluffy and full of life.

Custard Potatoes.

Mash potatoes without milk, simply putting in pepper, salt and butter. Now put through a potato sieve or colander will answer for the purpose, leave the flakes as they fall and pour over them an egg beaten with a glass of milk. Bake for about fifteen minutes. When put through the sieve let drop into an earthen dish that will stand the heat and can be sent to the table just as baked. If more than six persons are cooked more milk and egg will be needed.

Metal Folding Bed.

In view of the popularity of the metal bed it was only a question of time when there should be metal folding beds. It was an Indiana man who designed the example of the latter shown in the cut herewith. The bed consists of a base on which the framework stands upright when not in use for sleeping purposes. The curtain hangs from the raised foot and not only conceals the furniture, but provides a sort of screen behind which clothing may be hung on the wall, space is much needed. The whole is held in an upright position by clamps which engage the fulcrum rod and the standards. By loosening these clamps the bed is released and may be lowered down to the floor, a crossbar at the foot keeping it the proper height. The bed is pivoted to the base at the head and the base acts as a support for the end. It will be readily noted that one of these metal folding beds has the advantage of being easy to keep clean and there is no danger of a powder spring closing it as you lie sleeping.

BED AS A CLOSET.

Ham Dainties.

Chop fine enough cold ham to fill

After T

"I am much pleased to you for what Cardui has
J. Gilliland, of Keller City,
"Last February, I bad shape. Before that, I trouble, for ten years, and
"At last, I began to three bottles, but it has doctors or than any other

Take CA

J 42

The Wo

For the after-effects
Grip, Cardui is the best
It builds strength, sto appetite, regulates irregul natural glow of health.
Cardui is your best fr
Think of the thousa helped! What could possi Remember you canno ingredients in any other m in any drug store except Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., for Special Instructions, and 64-page book

A Queer Ornament.

Some years ago we found in a secret drawer of a pearl embroidered workbox three locks of hair fastened to small enamel heart shaped mounts, with silver eyelets. Two were inscribed "R. C. obt 10th April, 1664." "R. C. 1664." The third had no inscription at all. In this box I now keep an engraving of a portrait of Elizabeth, queen of Bohemia, which plainly shows the curl of hair in her left ear, attached to a pearl earring. The painting, by Gerard Honthorst, was engraved by G. Vertue.

When I showed these hair earrings to a gentleman of some considerable learning he informed me that an uncle of Anne, wife of King James I., was afflicted by a malady, still prevalent in Poland and some parts of Russia, which consists of a growth of hair and flesh pendent from the ear, on which it is dangerous to operate owing to the profuse hemorrhage which ensues. He added that in consequence of this royal infirmity a fashion arose in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries of wearing locks of hair pendent from the left ears. I believe there is a portrait of a Stuart lady still at Ham House so adorned.—London Notes and Queries.

The Pilot Fish.

A little fish about which many interesting fancies cluster is the pilot fish. Aelian tells us that pilot fishes were supposed to be kindly disposed toward sailors and therefore liked to approach ships, which they continued with and guided until they reached land. They were deemed sacred to Neptune, the god of the ocean, who protected them from designed injury; consequently a man who had ventured to eat one soon afterward lost his son by drowning. Apollo was said to have changed a fisherman named Pompilus, who had crossed him in his loves, into a pilot fish and condemned him for all eternity to the task of gratuitous pilotage. He is also said to be a pilot of sharks and is said to warn the latter away from baited hooks and other dangers and feed them to fowl. There really does exist a strange bond of friendship between the huge shark and this little member of the mackerel family, which are often to be seen traveling together, although the pilot fish's supposed care to warn its companion of impending danger and to provide food for it is a fallacy pure and simple.

An English Election Trick.

Corruption at elections in England took many curious forms in olden days, but there have been few more ingenious plans for securing the election of the desired candidate than that practiced at Seaford in 1754. It was doubtful which way the polling would go unless a receiving officer could be found willing to pass some twenty-six persons who still wanted seventeen days to complete the six months' residence required by law. Accordingly it was arranged that the candidate should insist on all the six oaths demanded by statute being administered to each voter individually, and this, together with the time spent in dealing with every frivolous objection raised by counsel, made it impossible to poll more than four votes a day, so that the twenty-six where duly qualified by the time their turn came to vote.

The Tramp's Reason.

The late Joseph Dorsey of San Jose, the famous detective whose best feat was the capture of Canon Bernard after a chase from Alaska to Cape Horn, used to impute his success to his knowledge of men.

"A detective," he would say, "should know the habits of every class. Then no disguise can deceive him. All men, even the most unmethodical, have their habits. Even the tramp has his.

"'You great big lazy loafer,' I said to a tramp one December day, 'you ought to be in jail.'

"'Yes, Algie,' the tramp replied as he pretended to fix a monocle in his eye. 'Yes; I know it's the correct thing for our set at this season, Algie; but deuce take it, it's such a mild winter, don't you know.'"—Kansas City Star.

An Indirect Hit.

A patient who was suffering from a scalp wound was recently admitted to a hospital. "How did this happen?" asked the resident surgeon.

"The wife hit me on the head with a stone," was the answer.

"It's the first time I ever heard of a woman hitting anything she aimed at," the doctor observed jokingly.

"Oh, she didn't aim it at me! She was throwing the stone at our neighbor's fowls, and I was standing behind her!"—London Graphic.

What a Change!

"He used to kiss me every time we passed through a tunnel before our marriage," said the little woman, with sad reflections.

"And does he do so now?" asked the bosom friend.

"No; he takes a drink."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Reduced.

"Old Jiggleworth died at an advanced age, didn't he?"

"On the contrary, he died at a greatly reduced age. He was really twenty years older than he said he was."—Chicago News.

The Penalty.

Jinks—How much do you think a minister ought to get for marrying a couple? Winks—Well, if wholly unacquainted with them, perhaps he might be let off with six months.

His Way of Putting It.

Sillitus—Do you believe there's honor among thieves? Cynicus—No; they are just as bad as other people. Philadelphia Record.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Vinegar's Various Uses.

A little vinegar added to the water in which fish is boiled will remove the strong oily taste.

When added to the water in which fowl is boiled vinegar tends to make the flesh more tender.

If beefsteak is tough rub it with vinegar, let it stand for a few hours, and you will regard your butcher more kindly.

A little vinegar added to butter and sugar is an excellent remedy for hoarseness.

When tired and nervous have some one rub the back of the neck and temples with vinegar and water mixed. It will prove most refreshing.

Vinegar burned in a sickroom or wherever there is a disagreeable stuffy odor will give the room a pleasant aromatic fragrance.

Cleaning Furs.

A method of cleaning furs which is as excellent as it is easy is to clean them with bran.

Fill a dishpan with bran and set it in the oven to warm. Rub the warm bran into the fur again and again until every spot has been gone over several times.

When the bran becomes soiled throw it away and replace it. When the furs are clean brush them well until every particle of bran has been removed. Hang out of doors for a day or two, and the fur will be soft, fluffy and full of life.

Custard Potatoes.

Mash potatoes without milk, simply putting in pepper, salt and butter. Now put through a potato sieve (or a colander will answer for the purpose), leave the flakes as they fall and pour over them an egg beaten with a gill of milk. Bake for about fifteen minutes. When put through the sieve let drop into an earthen dish that will stand the heat and can be sent to the table just as baked. If more than six potatoes are cooked more milk and egg will be needed.

Metal Folding Bed.

In view of the popularity of the metal bed it was only a question of time when there should be metal folding beds. It was an Indiana man who designed the example of the latter shown in the cut herewith. This bed consists of a base on which the framework stands upright when not in use for sleeping purposes. A curtain hangs from the raised foot and not only conceals the furniture, but provides a sort of screen behind which clothing may be hung on the wall if space is much needed. The whole is held in an upright position by clamps which engage the fulcrum rod and the standards. By loosening these clamps the bed is released and may be let down to the floor, a crossbar at the foot keeping it the proper height. The bed is pivoted to the base at the head, and the base acts as a support for this end. It will be readily noted that one of these metal folding beds has the advantage of being easy to keep clean, and there is no danger of a powerful spring closing it as you lie sleeping.

BED AS A CLOSET.

Ham Darioles.

Chop fine enough cold ham to fill a cup, one-quarter cupful of sifted bread-crumbs, the yolks of two hard boiled eggs passed through a sieve, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one-quarter teaspoonful each of salt and paprika, two beaten eggs and one-half cupful of milk. Bake in pattypans, mixture to be three-quarters of an inch thick in the pans. Cook on several folds of paper and surrounded with boiling water until firm in center. Unfold on rounds of toast and set a poached egg on top.

Oyster Cocktails.

Stir together a tablespoonful each of tomato catchup and lemon juice, one-half tablespoonful of grated horseradish, one-half tablespoonful of vinegar, a saltspoonful of salt, one-half tablespoonful of worcestershire sauce and six drops of tabasco sauce. Set on the ice until very cold. Put six small oysters into glasses, which should be set in the middle of a plate or crushed ice, and pour into the glasses the chilled sauce.

Pear Honey.

Reserve the juice from cooked pears and boil it with cinnamon bark. Before placing it in the jar boil a fourth teaspoonful of cream of tartar in each half gallon of juice. It prevents the sirup from crystallizing. This is a rich sirup to serve with breakfast cakes.

Washing Windows.

When washing windows put a few drops of turpentine in the water and you will be able to dry them much quicker, and they will be clear and bright.

A Perfect Disguise.

Frank Lockwood's banter was excellent and always good humored. I recollect him cross examining a detective in a divorce case, says a writer in London M. A. P. The witness was dressed in well cut broadcloth; he was portly; a massive gold chain and seals hung from his fob; he might have passed for a country banker or solicitor of the old style.

Sir Frank (very politely)—I believe you are a member of the eminent firm of detectives, Messrs. Blater & Co.?

Witness—Yes, sir; I represent that firm.

Sir Frank—And, I presume, in the course of your professional duties you have to assume many disguises?

Witness—Yes, sir.

Sir Frank—Pray, may I ask you what you are disguised as now?

Turner Was Gruff.

The great artist Turner is said to have been peculiar in his way of selling his pictures. At times nothing could induce him to part with one of them, and at other times he would receive a customer with the greatest affability of voice and manner and readily settle upon the sum to be paid for one of his treasures. On one occasion when he was offered £1,000 apiece for some old sketch books he turned them over leaf by leaf before the eyes of the would be purchaser, saying, "Well, would you really like to have them?" Then, just as the man proceeded to take possession of the books, Turner, with a tantalizing "I dare say you would!" suddenly thrust them into a drawer and turned the key in the lock, leaving the customer dumb with indignation.

Not Up on Slang.

"I'd like to get a room for the night," drawled the old man with the chin whiskers and yellow satchel.

"By jinks, Buttons," whispered the clerk to the bellhop, "all of the rooms are filled, but we don't want to discourage the country patronage, so we'll have to give him some kind of a 'stall.'"

But the old man overheard the remark and fired up instantly. "No, yeou don't!" he blurted defiantly. "By crickety, no! If I wanted to sleep in a stall I'd stopped at the livery stable on the other corner."—Chicago News.

An Insulting Style.

"Oi did not mind the threats av him as much as the insultin' style av his remarks," said one Irishman to another.

"And what did he say?"

"Well, he says to me, 'Hogan,' says he, ''tis a great notion Oi have to jump on you and knock your face into shape!'"

After The Grippe

"I am much pleased, to be able to write and thank you for what Cardui has done for me," writes Mrs. Sarah J. Gilliland, of Siler City, N. C.

"Last February, I had the Grippe, which left me in bad shape. Before that, I had been bothered with female trouble, for ten years, and nothing seemed to cure it.

"At last, I began to take Cardui. I have taken only three bottles, but it has done me more good than all the doctors or than any other medicine I ever took."

Take CARDUI

J 42

The Woman's Tonic

For the after-effects of any serious illness, like the Grip, Cardui is the best tonic you can use.

It builds strength, steadies the nerves, improves the appetite, regulates irregularities and helps bring back the natural glow of health.

Cardui is your best friend, if you only knew it.

Think of the thousands of ladies whom Cardui has helped! What could possibly prevent it from helping you?

Remember you cannot get the benefit of the Cardui ingredients in any other medicine, for they are not for sale in any drug store except in the Cardui bottle. Try Cardui.

Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent free.

Points For Mothers

According to new theories concerning parental government, parents are supposed to respect the opinions of their children, at least to treat the budding ideas with due consideration. As an example of the justice of this decision one has only to recall to mind how the opinions of two generations differ, often because of changing customs and conditions. The elders fail to realize that the younger must be heard tolerantly, and so the parents, instead of extending the courtesy of listening politely to the younger folk, deliver their ultimatum as though there were no appeal and then are astonished because confidence and understanding grow less between them and their children. Those parents who as their sons and daughters develop can encourage an expression of opinion so they know the lines upon which young minds are working and with gentle argument and reason can control and mold it exercise an influence as strong as that held during childhood. But it is only by toleration and gentleness that this can be accomplished, for growing boys and girls are too old and experienced for an assertion of direct authority to influence.

Mothers are not infrequently grief stricken that their daughters as the girls grow older keep them from their thoughts and ambitions, giving confidence to others. In most cases this is the mother's own responsibility, because she tries to exert authority or pressure when others give only sympathy.

To sympathize is not to agree; it is to understand the other side. Mothers should bear this in mind and meet their daughters on a common mental basis even when trying to make the younger see that her attitude is mistaken.

Confidence between mother and daughter is to be maintained at all costs on the part of the former, and a test of her success as a parent is the ability to strike the right note of sympathy with such gentleness and understanding as to influence the girl to a right way of thinking even when the latter is inclined to differ.

It is not by failure to agree that sons and daughters are alienated, but by a total lack of toleration from the elders.

When the Nose Bleeds.

Nosebleed is common among children, and, while it seldom reaches an alarming state, nevertheless children are often greatly frightened by it. In treating this complaint try applying a cold cloth at the base of the brain. Stand back of the child and press your hands firmly on the large arteries that run along the edges of the cheek bones. Do not stop the nostrils with cloth or cotton, but allow the blood to flow until naturally checked. Often adults are afflicted with excessive nosebleeding. This is often caused by a severe cold in the head or by exposure to the sun. Worry will often cause it, and in many diseases, such as ferer, the nose will bleed. When black blood flows from the nostrils the trouble is probably due to cold and congestion, and sometimes it is not best to check the flow at once. Drowsy headaches are often relieved by nosebleed. But be careful with children and do not show you are alarmed. By being calm yourself you can quiet the fears of the little one who screams at the sight of blood.

Rules of Sleep.

Those who think most, who do most brain work, require most sleep, and time "saved" from necessary sleep is infallibly destructive to mind, body and estate. Give yourself, your children, your servants, give all that are under you, the fullest amount of sleep they will take by compelling them to go to bed at some regular early hour and to rise in the morning the moment they awake, and within a fortnight nature, with almost the regularity of the rising sun, will unloose the bonds of sleep the moment enough repose has been secured for the wants of the system.

This is the only safe and sufficient rule, and as to the question how much sleep any one requires each must be a rule for himself. Great nature will never fail to write it out to the observer under the regulations just given.

Baby Pillow at Its Best.

White swiss or mull is successful material for the covering of the baby pillow when transparency is an object. Linen, although of a sheer quality, will often conceal the colored cover beneath.

One of the best swiss pillow covers has been sewed up each side and left open at each end, where it was scalloped and provided with eyelets two inches from the extreme edges for ribbons, which held the back and front together and the rose colored silk pillow inside.

The ribbons used are narrow and white, and to each corner of the pillow is attached a rosette-like bow of wider ottoman ribbon.

It Isn't Fair.

Have you ever heard a child say when it has been punished that "it isn't fair?"

You may think nothing of it at the time, but the child does not forget, and sometimes, even years after, the thought of the injustice may still rankle in his mind.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Wootton, Great English Jockey.

It is said that Jockey F. Wootton, who nosed out Danny Maher as leading English horse pilot of 1909, will ride the horses of W. K. Vanderbilt on the English tracks next season. The report states that Vanderbilt is to give the youngster the snug sum of $25,000 for his services.

JOCKEY F. WOOTTEN.

Wootton is fifteen years old and made an astounding record by riding more than 100 winners. His younger brother, Stanley, has beaten him in many hard races. W. Higgs, an Irishman, finished third, with over 100 wins.

International Polo.

An international polo contest will be seen at Saratoga, N. Y., during the racing season next summer. Harry Payne Whitney has invited the famous Hurlingham polo team of England, from whom Whitney's team wrested the challenge cup last summer, to come over and try to win the cup back again. The British team has accepted, and some stirring matches at this aristocratic game are assured. It is generally understood that the same Meadowbrook aggregation that Whitney headed in England will defend the cup.

Saratoga has one of the best equipped polo fields in the country. The field is lightning fast, and this insures a classy polo series. The matches will be played while racing is in progress.

Trap Shooting Team to Athens.

America will have a representative team of amateur trap shooters at the Olympic games in Athens next year, according to a resolution adopted by the Interstate Association For the Encouragement of Trap Shooting in New York recently.

Tom Marshall, mayor of Keithsburg, Ill., was authorized to pick the team. The Grand American handicap for 1910 will be held in Chicago next June, the Eastern handicap at Philadelphia in July, the Southern handicap at Columbus, Ga., in May; the Western handicap in Des Moines, Ia., in August and the Pacific Coast handicap at Seattle early in September.

Gould to Race In France.

Frank Gould is establishing a racing stable in France, where he will compete with other American millionaires who have been so successful on the French turf. Recently he concluded the purchase of the horse Gavero from the French banker Lazams, and later six more horses were placed in the Maison Laffe as the nucleus of his stable, with which he hopes to win some big French prizes. Since he visited Paris Mr. Gould has been much interested in racing, and he has never missed a meeting.

Western Intercollegiate Alliance.

The Western Intercollegiate Conference Athletic association ("big eight") made a one year alliance with the Missouri valley conference at the annual meeting of the former body recently. This is an athletic movement under which the two organizations will be able to schedule games. The Missouri valley conference is composed of Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Ames, Drake and Washington (St. Louis) universities.

Michigan Out Again In 1910.

Coach A. A. Stagg's prediction that the proposed meeting of the "big eight" coaches would fall through came true when it was announced at the University of Chicago that the session had been called off. The indications are that the western schools will drop the Michigan question and allow the present intercollegiate organization to continue for another year.

One Thing Americans Can't Get.

Lord Lonsdale's championship belts that are being offered in England as emblematic of the different pugilistic titles can be competed for only by British boxers. A stranger can box for the title, but he does not get the belt if he wins.

HERE IS THE PROOF

That the best body-building and strengthening tonic for

Delicate Children

—is—

Vinol

"My 9 year old daughter was weak, pale, and had no appetite. I gave her Vinol, and she began to thrive at once. She gained rapidly in weight, color and strength."—Mrs. W. H. GILMORE, Durand, Mich.

"My two children, who were puny and ailing, rapidly gained flesh and strength when I began to give them Vinol. I proved that Vinol is a splendid tonic for delicate children."—Mrs. C. ALLEN, New Bedford, Mass.

Vinol builds up healthy flesh and makes thin little limbs round and plump. Children love to take it.

We return people's money without question if Vinol does not accomplish all we claim for it. Try it, please.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

That Necessary Magazine

—for the thinking man—for the professional man—for the busy business man—and his family; in short, it's for You

25 cents per copy

$3.00 a year

The Review of Reviews

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

¶ It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

OUR 1909-10 CATALOGUE

of all American magazines is a money-saver. You can't afford to order for next year without first seeing it. If you appreciate expert agency service, and demand maximum magazine value for the lowest dollar, write for it—today. It's free to YOU.

• The Review of Reviews Company, New York

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps

Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades,

Crockery, Glass and Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies
We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

THE BANNER

FRANK CRIGHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. LOYD TATE.

The death of Gen. Rufus N. Rhodes, editor of the Birmingham Daily News, last week, from Bright's disease, removes an important factor from the affairs of Alabama. He made a wonderful success of The News. A clean, able man has gone from us, and we sincerely regret his loss.

A CARD OF THANKS

Editor Banner—Please allow us, the children of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Williams, a short space in your paper to thank our many friends for their untiring faithfulness in our recent bereavement and time of need. During the short sickness and death of father, and the continued sickness of mother, you were here and ever ready to comfort and administer to every need. For it all, we are grateful to you. Mother is improving and she sends heartfelt thanks to every one who was so kind. Sincerely,

CHILDREN.

To the Family of Mr. J. Leb Williams:

Whereas, our dear Saviour, in His infinite goodness and mercy, has seen fit to take a devoted husband and loving father from you, I desire to use this means to extend my deep sympathy to you in your lonely hour of sadness.

When I read, from the colums of the dear old Banner, of the death of your loved one, it caused an overflow of tears in my eyes and sadness in my heart.

God has only taken your loved one home, and He will soon call for us; and oh, the joy of meeting our loved ones in that beautiful city prepared for the Saviour and His people.

May the consoling power of God be with you in this lonely hour of bereavement. Sincerely,

JOS. F BONE,

Equality, Ala.

Mountain Creek

IN MEMORIAM.

On Friday, Dec. 31, 1909, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Boyd and took from them their darling little baby boy. He was a bright little fellow, and it was so hard to give him up. He leaves a father and mother to grieve for their little babe that has gone from earth, but is now in heaven. He was two months and three weeks old. They named him George Edgar only one month before he died, and now no one can fill little Edgar's place, no one is so dear to them. We cannot say a word to ease the aching hearts of father and mother, we can only say look forward to a better land and they will meet their little darling in heaven. He is safe in the arms of Jesus, for it is said "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." So weep not, dear father and mother, for he is a shining star in heaven, and he will be watching and waiting for you at the beautiful gate of heaven. We laid him to rest in New Hope graveyard.

ONE WHO LOVED HIM.

She Could Talk.

Cynicus—That girl never says much, does she? Sillicus—Why, she talks all the time. Cynicus—That doesn't alter my contention.—Philadelphia Record.

Doubted the Statistics.

"How did Harkins act when he heard he had triplets in his family?"

"He could hardly believe his own census."—Boston Transcript.

Our wealth is often a snare to ourselves and always a temptation to others.—Cotton.

Thompson—Suppose a man should call you a liar. What would you do? Jones (hesitatingly)—What sized man?—Jewish Ledger.

Early cotton and plenty of pork are the antidotes that Representative W. B. Craig of the Fourth Alabama District is recommending to the farmers of his District.

"We have received the warning" is Mr. Craig's idea, and the thing to do is not to keep our hearts warm with a vain expectation that somebody is going to find a way to extinguish the bollweevil the day before it arraives at our farms, but to make our preparations now for the trouble that is surely coming.

"The Department of Agriculture has two bulletins that I wish every farmer - every man interested in farming - to have: one is on hog-raising, the other on early cotton. It seems to me that one of the first steps of diversified farming ought to be raising meat for home-consumption and for sale; and, now that Alabama has taken such a high stand in corn-culture, I believe the people are more than ever willing to make hogs one of the standard sources of revenues.

"Making cotton early is the only way devised to defeat the bollweevil. Experiments by the Department of Agriculture, with the best of scientific and practicable methods at command have failed to discover a means of discovering the insect, but valuable results have been gotten in the making of early cotton.

"Make the cotton in a rush and have some pork to live on: it seems to me that that is the best advice that can be given to the southern farmer today."

PROGRAM

Fifth Sunday Meeting, to be held at Pilgrims Rest church, Pletcher, January 29-30, 1910.

Saturday, 10 a.m. Devotional exercises by Calhoun Walker.

10:30 Is it to the best interest of the Master's Kingdom to enforce Gospel discipline? By Rev. M. J. Parrish and Rev. W. J. Bone.

11. Sermon by Rev. W. H. Connell. Recess until 1:30.

1:30 p.m. Does the annual call serve to the best interest of the church? By F. W. C. Bice.

2:15. Should the sisters be organized in denominational work? By Rev. P. G. Maness.

Sunday, 9 30 a.m. Devotional exercises by T. J. Baker.

9:45. Is it wise for the churches to co-operate with the boards of the Southern Baptist Convention? By Rev. S. R. Wood.

10:15. Sunday School talk by N. J. Calloway.

11. Sermon by W. B. Crumpton; alternate, W. J. Ruddick. Recess until 1:30.

1:30 p.m. The importance of family religion, by Rev. F. M. Woods.

2:15. Reports of delegates.

2:45. Time and place of next meeting, and committee to arrange program.

We invite everybody to come. These meetings are just what the brethren make of them.

J. L. DERAMUS } Committee.
T. J. DEASON }

Invisible Dogs.

The coat of a red setter normally stands out fairly clear against heather of the ordinary hue. When, however, it gets soaked with rain it darkens very much and blends very closely with the heather. The Gordon setters are perhaps the worst in this regard of assimilating with the color of heather and so being liable to get a charge of shot.—Country Life.

His Practical Mind.

Sculptor (to his friend)—Well, what do you think of my bust? Fine piece of marble, isn't it? Friend—Magnificent! What a pity to make a bust of it! It would have made a lovely washstand.

FOOD FOR A YEAR

Meat	300 lbs.
Milk	240 qts.
Butter	100 lbs.
Eggs	27 doz.
Vegetables	500 lbs.

This represents a fair ration for a man for a year.

But some people eat and eat and grow thinner. This means a defective digestion and unsuitable food. A large size bottle of equals in nourishing properties ten pounds of meat. Your physician can tell you how it does it.

Scott's Emulsion

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York

TEACH THE CHILDREN TO SAVE MONEY

It is often and truthfully said that a penny saved is a penny made. The foundation of many of the greatest fortunes was begun by saving a penny. The habit of saving is one of the best that can be formed. Every child should be taught to save something every week. The satisfaction of counting these pennies when the bank is emptied is one of the pleasures that we never forget; perhaps every one of us can remember the thrill of joy we had when we emptied the contents of the bank on the table and counted and recounted this mountain of wealth; how eager we were to tell our little friends the amount of our great fortune, and raced with them in refilling the bank.

To bring this pleasure within the reach of every child and help the forming of the penny-saving habit, Messrs. Scott & Bowne, 409 Pearl Street, New York, the manufacturers of Scott's Emulsion, are offering to send to any address, for 10 cents, a beautiful little Savings Bank; each bank contains a new Good Luck Penny. Send 10 cents and get one.

Plantersville.

On Wednesday, Dec. 29. 1909, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Campbell and bore away the soul of their beloved son Arthur. He leaves a father mother three brothers and two sisters and a host of friends to mourn his departure. Weep not, dear bereaved ones, for the loss is heaven's gain. He only budded on earth to bloom in heaven. Oh! how sad it was to give the young man up he was in the bloom of life, 'tis so hard for his friends to give him up. No one on earth can take dear Arthur's place. He was loved by every body; He gained friends every-where he went, he was good and kind to every-body; he tried to do what was right in every way he could. His death was caused by loosing blood from a wound in his arm; he only lived two days afterward and on wednesday morning death came like the cold icy morning did. He is sleeping in the saviour's arms. So sleep on dear Arthur and thy rest. God called him home he thought it best. So we all bid him farewell for we know we will never see him on earth again but in heaven we all hope to see him among the sweet angels. why do we mourn departed friends. Or shake at deaths alarms. 'Tis but the voice of jesus that calls them to his arms.

ESTELLE GAY.

The Advertiser's Contest.

Great interest has been created in this county by the recent announcement of The Montgomery Advertiser that it would give away to popular and energetic people in Alabama and Florida more than $10,000 in prizes. Automobiles, pianos, diamonds, bank accounts are included among the prizes offered, and these gifts are to be awarded, absolutely free to the person receiving the highest number of votes in the popularity contest that The Advertiser has inaugurated.

Any white person of good character man or woman, boy or girl, is eligible to compete for the prizes, and there are no obligations upon entering. The persons receiving the highest number of votes will be awarded the gifts. Votes are obtained by clipping and sending in the ballots that appear each day in The Advertiser and by securing prepaid subscriptions, either old or new to the paper.

At least six prizes, comprising a $400 piano, a $150 diamond ring, a $100 bank account, a $100 furniture outfit, a $50 Turkish rocker, and a $45 graphaphone, must be awarded in this district, no matter what may be the vote of contestants in other districts. And every person who enters from this district has an equal show to win one of the three automobiles which are known as grand prizes and will be awarded regardless of district lines.

The contest is just starting and "nominations" are open. Bright, wideawake persons of this section appear to have before them an unusual opportunity to be handsomely rewarded for a few weeks' pleasant work among friends.

It is a simple matter to enter the contest. In this paper will be found a nomination coupon. You may nominate yourself or friend. Fill in the coupon as it directs, and mail it to the Contest Department of The Advertiser. When subscription books and full particular will be sent.

Several of the handsome prizes should come to this county, where The Advertiser has many friends and readers.

ALL-DAY SINGING.

There will be an all-day singing at Baker school house on Jan. 30, in the Christian Harmony and Harp books. Everybody come and bring baskets and books.

R. J. LANGSTON.

The seventh annual session will meet in Bessemer on Friday, January 28th, and Saturday, January 29th, 1910.

The object.—Better Fruit, Better Vegetables and Better Interest in Alabama Horticulture.

Bessemer is a bustling city and is within easy access of Birmingham. The steam and trolley rail service between the two cities is excellent. The Committee in charge is endeavoring to secure special rates over the railroads of the State for those coming to the meetings. It is announced that all who contemplate attending the meetings will be cordially entertained free by the citizens of Bessemer by sending in their names to Mr. W. R. Gunn, Sect. Board of Trade of that city.

PROGRAM

For S. S. Convention, District No. 6, to be held at Pleasant Grove Baptist church, four miles west of Maplesville, Jan. 29, 1910.

9:30 a.m. Devotional exercise by N. W. Latham.

10. How can the opening service of the Sunday School be made attractive? Discussed by W. O. Perry, P. G. Maness.

10:30. What can be done with a teacher who cannot get through with the lesson on time? Discussed by T. U. Crumpton, W. J. Ruddick. Song.

11. a.m. What are some of the most serious hinderances to the Sunday School? Discussed by W. H. Connell, G. W. Fox. Song.

11:30. Enrollment of delegates. Dinner.

1.30 p.m. What part of the Sunday School service should be conducted by the assistant superintendent? Discussed by P. G. Maness, W. H. Connell and others. Song.

2:30. Select next place of meeting; miscellaneous business and adjournment.

It is earnestly requested that all parties who are interested in Sunday work be present and help us, especially those of District 6, for this is a meeting of great interest to the district work. Come over and help us.

N. L. BROADHEAD, Dist. Pres.

Railway Mail Clerks Wanted

The Government pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1200 and other employees up to $2,500 annually.

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks and other government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in city or country can get instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 11 Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y.

The Scented Court.

The rage for perfumes reached its height during the reign of Louis XV. Throughout the continent his court was known as the "scented court." It was then the custom when giving a large entertainment for the hostess to inform her guests what particular odor she would use for perfuming her rooms, and each guest would use that odor in making her toilet. At court a different perfume was used for each day of the week. Much more attention was paid to the use of the perfume than to soap and water, and cleanliness was not numbered among the virtues of that age.

How She Escaped.

Pauline, who had been attending school for almost two weeks, was telling of the misbehavior of some of her little classmates. At her mother's question as to whether it had ever been necessary for the teacher to speak to her Pauline answered quickly, "Oh, no, mamma." Then, "She had to speak to all the class but me this afternoon." "Why, what did she say?" "Oh, she said, 'Now, children, we'll all wait until Pauline is in order.'"—Delineator.

Lost Opportunity.

"And you didn't hear of it?" inquired Mrs. Gabbie.

"Not one word."

"Why, I've known it for a week, so I supposed everybody heard of it."

Even Up.

She (sternly)—I heard a noise very late. He (facetiously)—Was it the night falling? She—No, it wasn't. It was the day breaking.—Baltimore American.

Saved At Death's Door.

The door of death seemed ready to open for Murray W. Ayers, of Transit Bridge, N. Y., when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a dreadful condition," he writes, "my skin was almost yellow; eyes sunken; tongue coated; emaciated from losing 40 pounds, growing weaker daily. Virulent liver trouble putting me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that matchless medicine—Electric Bitters—cured me. I regained the 40 pounds lost and now am well and strong." For all stomach, liver and kidney troubles they're supreme. 50c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Are You Honest?

With your land when for the sake of saving a few dollars you use a fertilizer whose only recommendation is its analysis. It requires no special knowledge to mix materials to analyses. The value of a fertilizer lies in the materials used, so as not to over feed the plant at one time and starve at another. This is why Royster brands are so popular. Every ingredient has its particular work to do. Twenty-five years experience in making goods for Southern crops has enabled us to know what is required.

See that trade mark is on every bag

TRADE MARK
F.S.R.
REGISTERED

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO

CLANTON, ALA.

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Is one of the latest additions to Clanton's business center, and one of the most attractive and commodious places of its kind in town, situated on southeast corner of the square. They invite you to call on them when in town and make their store your headquarters. Their stock of Millinery is complete; their Trimmer from St. Louis is right up-to-date. If its quality, style and prices you are looking for, their store is the place for you. Mrs. Clara Mullins is general manager, and will be glad to wait on you.

C. R. Mullins will continue his same old business, of Fire Insurance, Life Insurance, Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs, in the new Company's store. He thanks you for past favors and solicits your future business.

Yours truly,

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

NEW FEED STORE

At Goodgame's Old Stand, near Lowe's Shop

Handle Loose Hulls, Sacked Hulls, also a good quality of Cotton Seed Meal, Corn, and Hay

I also buy Scrap Iron, Hides, Green and Green Salted and Flint Hides.

BEST PRICES BOTH WAYS

CALL AND SEE ME
N. B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...to-day.....14 @ 14½
...same date last year 9½ @ 10c
...Bales received to date
...whole receipts
...to 5 p.m. Wednesday 5910

Dr. C. W. Littleton, of Selma, ... his professional visit to Clanton ... Saturday.

Mr. W. C. Dickinson, of Maplesville, who is lonely at home ... family being in Troy, ... a few days.

Mr. John Sexton, of Marion, ... a visitor here Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Adams ... ent Sunday in Birmingham.

Miss Jattie Lawrence, visited her parents in Montevallo last week.

Mr. Hosea Downs, who is attending the State Medical College at Mobile, spent a few days with his parents here the past week.

Mr. G. C. Giles, of Birmingham, was a visitor to Clanton Sunday.

Mrs. S. A. Wood, of Ocampo, is visiting relatives here this week.

Mr. Ell Smith, and daughter, Miss Bettie, of Weogufka, were called to the bedside of his sister, Mrs. Mary Teel, who is very ill.

Mrs. C. V. Heath, visited Thorsby Monday.

The Smith boarding house is opened for transient boarders.

Mr. J. P. Smith and wife of Maplesville is visiting his sister, who is very ill.

The Alred Drug Co. always live to the wants of their patrons, have secured the services of Dr. H. Q. Brewer of Quincy, Fla., who is a registered pharmacist of three states.

Mr. Frank Armstrong, a young man about 17 years of age, died at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. Will Lowe, Wednesday morning. He was just recovering from a long spell of typhoid fever, and while sitting in front of the fire Sunday last fell, never regaining consciousness.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Mrs. M. J. Green has returned from an extended visit to Sylacauga, Talladega and Gadsden.

Mrs. S. A. Blassingame visited Mountain Creek last week.

Miss G. L. Chandler is visiting relatives in Selma.

Mr. C. F. Jones, spent Monday at Mountain Creek and Deatsville.

Mr. S. A. Moses, of Verbena was in town Monday.

Messrs. E. M. Packard, and J. M. Vandervier spent Tuesday in Montgomery.

Mr. J. M. Potts were in Thorsby Monday.

Mr. M. L. White, spent Tuesday night in the capital city.

Miss Nettie Williams, is visiting relatives in Montgomery.

The old post office building looks quite gay with its new front—it's put on a new suit, and you can do the same by going inside.

Dr. Goggan, of Cooper, was in town several days this week.

Mr. Babe Thomas, of Coosa, was a visitor here this week.

Mr. W. B. Bell of Route 2 gave us a pleasant call Friday.

Mr. J. H. Escoe of Mountain Creek was a welcome visitor Monday.

Mr. J. H. Motes of Route 2 was a visitor here Saturday.

If you have a good country dwelling, well cared for and insured, I can insure it for you in an old line company. C. R. MULLINS, Agent.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. E. L. Henley and Miss Bissie Anderson.

Colored. L. M. Tyne and Nancy Davis; Ben Love and Nellie Cook.

Making Life Safer.

Everywhere life is being made safer through the work of Dr. King's New Life Pills in Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver troubles, Kidney Disorders and Bowel Disorders. They're easy but sure, and perfectly build up health. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

You
est?

d when for the
a few dollars
rtilizer whose ndation is its quires no spe-
e to mix mate-es. The value
ies in the ma-so as not to plant at one ve at another.
Royster brands
ar. Every in-its particular Twenty-five nce in making thern crops has know what is

rk is on every bag
E MARK
S.R.
STERED
er Guano Co.
OLK, VA.

NES & CO
ON, ALA.

MILLINERY CO.
's business center, and one o us places of its kind in town, situated
They invite you to call on them e your headquarters. Their stock of mmer from St. Louis is right up-to-ices you are looking for, their store is illins is general manager, and will be is same old business, of Fire Insurachines, Pianos and Organs, in the s you for past favors and solicits your
rs truly,
NTON MILLINERY CO.

STORE
tand, near Lowe's Shop
cked Hulls, also a good
ed Meal, Corn, and Hay
Hides, Green and Green
Flint Hides.
S BOTH WAYS
ND SEE ME
B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

ap at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

Commissioners' court meets second Mon... in February, first Monday in April, first ... ay in June, second Monday in ... and Monday in August and first Monday in ... ember.

CLANTON COTTON MART
Spot to day.....14 @ 14½c
Same date last year 9½ @ 10c
Mr. Baker reserved to date
Warehouse receipts
up to 5 p.m. Wednesday....5910

Mr. G. W. Littleton, of Siluria, ... his periodical visit to Clanton ... Saturday.

Mr. W. C. Dickinson, of Bil...gsley, who is lonely at home, his family being at Troy, is in town ... a few days.

Mr. John Sexton, of Maplesville, was a visitor here Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm M. Adams, spent Sunday in Birmingham.

Miss Lutie Lawrence, visited her parents in Montevallo last week.

Mr Hosea Downs, who is attending the State Medical College at Mobile, spent a few days with his parents here the past week.

Mr. G. C. Giles, of Birmingham was a visitor to Clanton Sunday.

Mrs. S. A. Wood, of Ocampo was visiting relatives here last week.

Mr. Ell Smith, and daughter, Miss Bettie, of Weogufka, were called to the bedside of his sister, Mrs. Mary Teel, who is very ill.

Mrs. C. V. Heath, visited Thorsby Monday.

The Smith boarding house is opened for transient boarders.

Mr J. P. Smith and wife of Maplesville is visiting his sister, who is very ill.

The Alred Drug Co., always alive to the wants of their patrons, have secured the services of Dr. H. Q Brewer of Quincy, Fla., who is a registered pharmacist of three states.

Mr. Frank Armstrong, a young man about 17 years of age, died at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. Will Lowe, Wednesday morning. He was just recovering from a long spell of typhoid fever, and while sitting in front of the fire Sunday last fell, never regaining consciousness.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Mrs. M. J. Green has returned from an extended visit to Sylacauga, Talladega and Gadsden.

Mrs S. A. Blassingame visited Mountain Creek last week.

Miss G. L. Chandler is visiting relatives in Selma.

Mr. C. F. Jones, spent Monday at Mountain Creek and Deatsville.

Mr. S. A. Moses, of Verbena was in town Monday.

Messrs. E. M. Pinckard, and J. M. Vandervier spent Tuesday in Montgomery.

Mr. J. M. Potts were in Thorsby Monday

Mr. M. L. White, spent Tuesday night in the capital city.

Miss Nettie Williams, is visiting relatives in Montgomery.

The old post office building looks quite gay with its new front—it has put on a new suit, and you can do the same by going inside.

Dr. Goggan, of Cooper, was in town several days this week.

Mr. Babe Thomas, of Coosa, is a visitor here this week.

Mr. W. B. Bell of Route 1 gave us a pleasant call Friday.

Mr. J. H. Esco of Mountain Creek was a welcome visitor Monday.

Mr. J. H. Motes of Route 1 was a visitor here Saturday.

If you have a good country dwelling, well cared for and unincumbered, I can insure it for you in an old line company. C. R. MULLINS, Agent.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. E. L. Henley and Miss Blonie Anderson.

Colored. L. M. Tyns and Nancy Davis; Ben Love and Nellie Cooper

Making Life Safer.

Everywhere life is being made more safe through the work of Dr. King's New Life Pills in Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver troubles, Kidney Diseases and Bowel Disorders. They're easy, but sure, and perfectly build up the health. 25c at Upchurch Drug co.

New Goods

We have them in beautiful display!

Call in and look around! Any time!

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.
CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.
At a live and let live price
FONE 317

W. H. SARTOR
Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.
CLANTON, ALA.

B. E. JONES — CRIT JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

Wish all of their friends a
HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF

Dry Goods. Shoes. Hats, Notions
FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully
B. E. JONES & BRO.
CLANTON, ALA.

PROVIDENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

IN MEMORIAM

Whereas the Great Supreme Ruler of the universe in His infinite wisdom, has removed from among us one of our worthy and esteemed fellow-laborers, Bro. J M Robinson. Whereas the fourteen long years and the intimate relation with him in the faithful discharge of his duties in the Sabbath school as assistant superintendent makes it eminently befitting that we record our appreciation of him.

So therefore, dear friends, we know how impossible it is to silence your grief with words; the heart pleads for utterance in tears. We bow in sorrow at the loss of your father and our beloved brother, feeling that the ripened fruit may be gathered. It seems cruel that he must be taken, but in nature fruit falls, so do buds and blossoms. In the ways of nature perhaps this is best.

In the taking from our midst and your home this, our loved one, we will try to accept the cross and bear it, believing that he will blossom in the angel band around the throne of God.

And whereas, we further request that a copy of this be sent to the county paper; also one to the bereaved family, and one be spread upon the minutes of our Sunday school.

R. M. ROBINSON
G. C. POWELL
W. L. BOLES } Committee.

The Thermometer.

A thermometer the bulb of which contains mercury will not register under 28 degrees F. below zero—that is to say, mercury will freeze at that point. Of course in this country little practical use is found for thermometers showing more than 28 degrees below zero, but in the arctic and antarctic they are essential. Such instruments, however, contain spirits in the bulbs instead of mercury, but even this fluid becomes sluggish when 40 or 50 degrees below zero is recorded, and it will seldom show 60 degrees below.

HIS HAPPY THOUGHT.

It Let the New Train Dispatcher Off Without an Accident.

An operator for a western railroad who had served his company long and well was called into the office one day and asked if he thought he could hold down the job of night dispatcher. He promptly replied that he could and was told to report for duty that night, and his chief instructed him in what he was to do. Just after the chief left the office it began to blow and snow, and the trains commenced to run late. The new night dispatcher soon had developed a bad case of "rattles" and almost cried. He did not want an accident, and he could not handle the trains. So a happy thought struck him. As fast as a report came in he replied, directing the conductor to take a siding and wait for orders, and it was not a great while until he had every train on the division sidetracked. Then he took a book, lighted his pipe and sat down to wait for daylight. In the morning the chief appeared, with anxiety written all over his face.

"Any accidents, Johnny?" asked the chief.

"Not an accident. I've got 'em all on the sidetrack, snowed in and waiting for orders, and you will have to get 'em out. I am going to blow this job." It took the chief and his force nearly all day to get the trains straightened out and traffic resumed on the road.

The Kind Caddie.

"Once in a game," said the golfer, "I had the good fortune to be six holes up on my opponent by the time the eighth hole was reached. At the eighth green something went wrong with our reckoning of the strokes, and I claimed that I had won that hole, too, while my opponent claimed that it was halved. After a mild dispute I yielded.

"But as I moved on with my caddie I couldn't help grumbling:

"'Well, you know, Joseph, I gave in. But I still think I won that hole after all.'

"The boy, with a frown, turned shocked and reproving eyes on me. Disgusted with my greed for holes, he whispered hurriedly, so that my opponent should not overhear:

"'Shut up, can't you? Do ye want to break the man's heart?'" — Exchange.

Personal.

For old line Fire Insurance, Life Insurance and Singer Machines, call on C. R. MULLINS, Agent.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy disappoints those who use it for chronic coughs, colds and irritation of the throat and lungs. It is unrivaled as a remedy for grip and pneumonia. Sold by all druggists.

Laughter.

Overindulgence in laughter is reprobated by Emerson. Explosions of it, he says, should be under strict control, and he quotes approvingly the saying of Lord Chesterfield, "I am sure that since I had the use of my reason no human being has ever heard me laugh." But Emerson is not altogether consistent in this matter, for, whereas in one passage he refers to laughter as a "contemptible squeal of joy," in another it becomes a "pleasant spasm," and he gratefully acknowledges "the rest and refreshment we get from the shaking of the sides." Moreover, he admits that "to see a man in a high wind run after his hat is always droll." Presumably if the man is bald and the road is muddy even Chesterfield might be led to emit a contemptible squeal.—London Chronicle.

A Wretched Mistake

to endure the itching, painful disease of Piles. There's no need to. Listen: "I suffered much from Piles, writes Will. A Marsh, of Silver City, N. C., "till I got a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and was soon cured." Burns, Boils, Ulcers, Fever Sores, Eczema, Cuts, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, vanish before it. 25c. at Upchurch Drug co.

DROPS OF WATER.

Thrown Upon a Redhot Stove, They Will Never Touch It.

It is impossible to throw a few drops of water on a redhot stove. The water can never touch the stove at all. What is seen is a few drops rolling rapidly over the surface, gradually getting smaller until they disappear. If the drops are on a perfectly level place one can see under them to the other side of the room, thus proving that they are not in contact with the stove itself.

What actually happens is that the bottom of the drop changes at once to steam or vapor on coming close to the hot surface, and this vapor is supplied by the drop as it gradually goes away. So the drop rests on a cushion of vapor until it is entirely dissipated. This state of water is known as the spheroidal state and is of interest simply on account of its peculiarity and seemingly paradoxical behavior.

The reason why the drop is not immediately evaporated or changed to steam is also very interesting. The water vapor that intervenes between its under surface and the redhot stove is a very bad conductor of heat, and consequently the full intensity of the heat cannot get to the water itself, only the amount transmitted through the vapor being available for this purpose.—St. Louis Republic.

ENGLISH COUNTRY BANKS.

It Takes Strong Iron Bars to Win the Depositors' Confidence.

Rural customers attach great importance to the bank's outward appearance. A thrifty tradesman having opened a deposit account with a bank distant some thirty miles from his home, the cashier had the curiosity to ask why he traveled so far when there was a branch of the same bank almost at his door. The depositor smiled knowingly and replied, "I lodged opposite here all the time while this bank was being built, so I know it's safe." Balance sheets to the rustic are a meaningless and arbitrary arrangement of figures. Iron bars he understands.

In a city in the north of England there is a bank widely known for the artistic merit of its doors. Designed by an eminent sculptor, they are executed in relief in copper or bronze and appear to represent tableaux from "Aesop's Fables" and Greek history. About a week after they were unveiled an old man who had been a depositor for many years withdrew his balance and took it to a rival bank almost opposite. Questioned as to his reason for changing, he replied: "I don't hold wi' them doors of theirs. Punched tin ain't businesslike, and it ain't safe."—London Saturday Review.

His Own Sphere.

"You a doctor! Why, nobody in his senses would employ you!"

"Perhaps not, but I'm going to be a doctor to lunatics!"

High birth is a poor dish on the table.—Irish Proverb.

Are You Bilious?

The most of people sometimes are. This gives rise to many diseases and unfits a man or woman for the duties and enjoyments of life. As a general Liver Medicine, good for the whole family, one that has been long tried and endorsed, there is none that is equal to Granger's Liver regulator. It rids the system of all poisons and effete matter and gives good health. Druggists sell it in tin boxes at 25 cents per box. Every family should have this remedy on hand and use it as occasion requires. It will save suffering and doctors bills. Send for booklet to the Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Notice!

On March 5th, 1910, the beautiful clock which is displayed in our window will be to the Man, Woman or Child present at our store at 2 o'clock on the Saturday mentioned above, when the clock is uncovered that holds a time card as closest to the time the clock stops. These cards you get at our store one with each $1.00 purchase. There will be no more cash prizes given away; the next prize will be the clock.

GIVEN

On each card the time is indicated in figures, the hour, minute and second, this clock is wound up and allowed to run down, and the face will uncovered on that date. The clerks in our store will explain this to each purchaser. Don't fail to call on us when in town.

A. HEADLEY & SON
CORNER SECOND AVE. AT DEPOT.
CLANTON, ALA.

— GO TO —
A. M. JOHNSON'S
CASH GROCERY STORE
THORSBY, ALA.
FOR BARGAINS IN
Staple and Fancy Groceries

A CHINESE STRATAGEM.

Legend of How a Projected Invasion Was Averted.

Rajah Surun, who was one of the earliest rulers of India, overran the entire east with the exception of China, killed innumerable sultans with his own hand and married all their daughters. It is said that when the Chinese heard of his triumphant progress and learned that he had reached their frontier they became much alarmed. The emperor called a council of his generals and mandarins, and upon the advice of a crafty old mandarin the following strategem was carried out:

A large ship was loaded with rusty nails, trees were planted on the deck, the vessel was manned by a numerous crew of old men and dispatched to the rajah's capital. When it arrived the most wonderful part of the story is that it did arrive the rajah sent an officer to ask how long it had taken the vessel to make the trip from China. The Chinamen answered that they had all been young men when they set sail and that on the voyage they had planted the seeds from which the great trees had grown. In corroboration of their story they pointed to the rusty nails which, they said, had been stout iron bars as thick as a man's arm when they started. "You can see," they concluded, "that China must be a very long distance away."

The rajah was so much impressed by these plausible arguments that he concluded he would not live long enough to reach China and abandoned his projected invasion.

SNEEZING.

It Must Have Been a Violent Operation Before Jacob's Time.

We frequently hear the expression "God bless you!" uttered after some one has sneezed. The expression, if we can believe Clodd in his "Childhood of the World," dates back to the time of Jacob. We are told in Jewish literature that previous to his time men sneezed but once in a lifetime and that was the end of them, for the shock slew them. Jacob prevailed in prayer and had the fatality set aside on the condition that among all the nations a sneeze should be hallowed by the words "God bless you!" In the "Jatnka," one of the books of the Buddhist Scriptures, we read that the expression was, "May the blessed Lord allow you to live!"

Buddha on one occasion while preaching to his disciples happened to sneeze. The priests gave vent to the exclamation, and Buddha lectured them for interrupting his discourse.

"If when a person sneezes," he asked, "and you say, 'May he live,' will he live the longer?"

"Certainly not!" cried the priests.

"And if you do not say it will he die any the sooner?"

"Certainly not!" was the reply.

"Then," said Buddha, "from this time forth if any one sneeze and a priest says 'May you live' he shall be guilty of a transgression."—London Spectator.

Wasted.

Tess—So Mr. Berem called on you last evening. I don't suppose you got a chance to open your mouth.

Jess—Oh, yes, frequently. But it didn't do any good. He didn't pay any attention to my yawns.—Philadelphia Press.

SPIGENER'S CASH STORE

A WORD TO MY MANY CHILDREN COUNTY FRIENDS

I have just gotten in a line of Dry Goods, Notions, Shoes, etc. These goods are bought right, and priced to sell out to keep. I respectfully invite the ladies to call and inspect my stock, as they will see that I remembered the wants and need of the women, children and babies as well as the men and boys.

This store will be constantly receiving fresh goods the year round. You will find many things here for sale that you will not find at other stores in the country. You will also be astonished at the very low prices on many articles that I am able to make you; money saved is money made. Come and be convinced that I can have you money on many things that you have to buy. There are several reasons why I can save you money on your cash purchases.

1st. This is strictly a cash store thus doing away with the expense of a book-keeper, which is a saving of from six to nine hundred dollars a year.

2nd. This store will not have any bad account to lose and to be put on to the price of goods that you buy.

3d. I will have no collection agency to pay.

4th. This is a one price store, goods will be sold to everyone at the same price.

When the people once find this out, half the force can wait on the same trade, which will lessen the expense of running any business.

This store is located next door to new Post Office building.

Yours, anxious to please,
W. D. SPIGENER.

Humility.

St. Peter (to applicant)—What was your business when on earth? Applicant—Editor of a newspaper. St. Peter—Big circulation, of course? Applicant — No, small; smallest in the country. St. Peter — Then out your harp.—Epoch.

New Plants.

But few farmers have any idea of the great work our government is doing in the way of introducing new plants and fruits from the old world into the United States. During the last fiscal year more than 2,000 seeds and plants were brought in. The department of agriculture has explorers constantly on the outlook for all kinds of plants and fruits that seem capable of good yields in our own country. They are picked up especially in Manchuria, Korea and China. There are specimens from wild apricot trees ten feet in diameter. There are wild grapes and wonderful persimmons and bush cherries and other curious and valuable specimens that most of us never even dreamed of.

IN CHARGE.

An Amateur Who Kept a Hotel and Made a Mistake.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

"Dear Phil—Mighty glad to hear from you and to know you're at leisure and contemplating a visit east. Start at once. I fired the letter as a chance shot, for I remembered you wrote to some of your people at that place.

"Seems odd we've never heard a thing of each other in all these twenty-five years. But never mind. I feel just as ready for a lark as I did when I said goodby on the college campus, and I know you do.

"Now to business. I'm mighty sorry, but a whole lot has happened since I wrote you that letter seven days ago. My people are off pasturing in Europe, and I'd planned for us to have the whole summer together.

"But now I am cabled that my wife has been picked up by brigands in some of the old wornout mountains and that I must hurry over with a ransom.

"It will take some money, and, what's worse, a whole lot of that, and, what's still worse, I shall not be able to see you till after I get back.

"I remember you were a pretty good fellow to take hold of things, but not very good in arranging circumstances to your own advantage, so I don't suppose you've prospered much.

"I have, in the hotel business, and think we can make your visit of mutual advantage. I have 300 guests already in the house and 500 booked for later arrival, and there's a good manager for practical details, but not for the social side. You used to be great on that line.

HE BEGAN TO SEEK OUT GRACIE TO ENTERTAIN HER.

"Now I'm going to ask you to fill my chair until I get back—in fact, make it sort of compulsory—for I must take the steamer this afternoon. There will not be any real work, understand, only just to have a good time with the guests. Mr. Burke, the manager, will be looking for you. Start at once. And, oh, yes, there'll be no expense to you, of course, and if things go right there'll be something handsome when I return. Your old chum, BILL.

"P. S.—I have a little girl off at school whom I'll not have time to see. She'll not be any trouble, of course, but I'd like you to keep a general oversight of her. She'll be home for the summer vacation in a few days. Ta-ta. BILLY."

Philip Cudahay, just from college and recently come into possession of his father's millions, had commenced the letter with perplexed face; he ended it with a laugh.

"Evidently thinks I am my father," he thought, "and just as evidently, from our home address being in the country, considers him a small farmer of limited means. H'm!" He drew a letter from a pigeonhole in his desk. It was the one he had received seven days before and read:

"Phil Cudahay, Oakwoods, Md.:

"Are you still living, and could you arrange to make a visit east?

"BILLY BLACKWELL."

Phil's answer to this had been equally brief and to the point: "Certainly. Am contemplating a visit east even now. What'll you have?"

"Don't seem as if I ought to take advantage of it," he said, still grinning, as he thrust the letter back into its pigeonhole, "but it would be a lark to run a big hotel with a capable manager to hold the reins. The child would be the real trouble, though I've been told I have a way with children.

"H'm! I can't write and say father is dead, and the thing is jammed down into my pocket, with the owner already out of sight, and my idea of the man from his letter is that he didn't tell Manager Burke a thing except that a Phil Cudahay would have charge.

"I could be twenty or eighty, with any old size or looks, so long as the name proves up. H'm! I'll do it."

Hotel Amberset was seven miles from the nearest railroad point and reached by stage.

A number of people were in the same car, apparently guests for the hotel, but only one child.

He wondered if it could be Blackwell's daughter. He hoped not, for the child was peevish looking and evidently mischievous. Having charge of her would be a task as onerous as unpleasant.

With her was a young woman as nurse, or perhaps, as the child was ten or twelve, she was governess.

But instead of avoiding them at the station, as he was inclined, he lifted the little girl into the waiting bus and then took a place beside them. The whole thing was a great joke, but some of the component parts were likely to be very earnest.

Burke, the manager, accepted him as a matter of course, in a practical, businesslike way, but even he for the first day or two seemed a little surprised at the facility with which Phil dropped into the owner's chair.

Perhaps, after all, there had been some intimation of country rearing.

For the first week Phil was conscious of a strong desire to avoid the child, who had now advanced to the familiarity of "Gracie," but this very consciousness made him seek her out oftener than he otherwise would. It was a joke, but he was personating his father, who was her father's friend.

By that time the nurse, or governess, was unconsciously occupying a good deal of his interest. He began to seek out Gracie, to entertain her, as he supposed, but it was her companion he looked at, with whom he talked.

"Miss Marian," as Gracie called her, was a remarkable young woman—beautiful, entertaining, accomplished, cultured—everything that Philip Cudahay thought a young woman should be and carrying all the accomplishments with an ease that was noticeable even in the big hotel full of people.

The guests themselves seemed to realize it, for they treated her as one of them, and many even sought her company.

Had it been any other nurse or governess Philip would have noticed and wondered. But with Marian it seemed a matter of course. He would have wondered had it been otherwise.

And so it happened that Miss Marian became uppermost in the amateur hotel keeper's mind. He thought about her so much that had he not had an admirable manager in Burke the hotel would have been soon deserted by its boarders.

His attentions were ostensibly devoted to Gracie, but really to the governess. He invited them both to drive with him afternoons, to go boating—indeed, to share with him those pleasures usually enjoyed by people in summer who have nothing to do.

One afternoon he was pulling the two along in one of the light boats used on a lake near the hotel, with his back to the bow, where he could not see what was coming.

Suddenly there was a crash. A man rowing in the same relative position had fouled him. At first it did not appear that much damage had been done, and the man who had caused the trouble pulled away. But Phil's boat had sprung a leak. Handkerchiefs were thrust into the aperture, but the water, though checked, was not stopped.

The oarsman pulled for the shore, but the water gained so rapidly that it was impossible to reach it. The boat sank some fifty feet away, leaving all three in the water.

Phil was the only swimmer in the lot. Seizing an oar, he gave it to the child; then, taking the governess by the arm, he swam ashore with her, she all the while protesting that he should leave her and save Gracie.

As soon as he got Miss Marion into shallow water he returned to her charge, who was clinging to the oar and crying vigorously for help. It was an easy matter to assist her to the shore.

"You should have been ashamed of yourself," said the governess, "to devote yourself to me and leave that poor little thing out in the lake."

"Didn't I provide her with an oar?" quoth Phil.

"Yes; you did that."

"The oar would not have supported you. And if I had saved the child, leaving you to take care of yourself, you would have drowned. And then what would I have done?"

He spoke the last words in a low tone, a tone that would tell any woman that there was something more to come.

The same evening after they had got off their dripping clothing a cablegram came from Blackwell. "Ransom paid. Got wife. Start for home at once. How is my girl? Cable me at Naples."

Marian was on the veranda by herself, with Gracie playing at a little distance. Phil went directly to her.

"Miss Marian," he began abruptly, "I've come to ask you to be my wife. I love you and think you have grown to like me a little. It's abrupt, I know, but I may not remain here long."

"Why," she exclaimed, rising in some confusion and consternation, "I thought you were to have charge of the hotel all summer."

"The owner's about to return. I have just received a cablegram from Naples."

"Didn't he send any message to me?"

"N-no," in some surprise. "He asked about Gracie."

"Gracie? Father doesn't know her."

"Father!"

Her eyes opened a little. Then she comprehended and smiled.

"Yes. Didn't you know I was Miss Blackwell? Gracie is an unpromising child in my mission class, picked up from the street. I brought her down this summer in hope of reforming her."

Phil changed color, then collected himself.

"About my question?" he insisted.

An hour later a cablegram was on its way to Naples.

"Girl all right. Everything all right. Anxious to meet you. PHIL."

Young Folks

CAPTURING WHALES.

Primitive Methods Employed by Indians at Cape Flattery.

The Indian whaling business at Cape Flattery is one of the fishing industries of Washington, and the capture is carried on in the most primitive fashion. They go out from the shore in canoes whenever a whale is sighted. The harpoons are fitted with a socket, into which the harpoon staff of solid yew is inserted. A lanyard five fathoms long has one end fastened to the harpoon head and the other end secured to a buoy made of a hair seal skin taken off whole with the hair side in. The holes made by the flippers and neck have hollow wooden plugs, through which the Indian blows up the skin while fresh and soft till it is full of air, and when dried it is as tight as a drum and as buoyant as a bladder.

In attacking a whale the harpoon is driven into the blubber with great force, and the staff of the harpoon comes out of the socket, leaving the barbed head firmly fixed in the whale's carcass, with the skin buoy floating at the other end of the lanyard. The Indians get as many harpoons into the whale as they can, and the buoys prevent his sinking. They then kill the whale with their long lances, and when dead he is towed ashore and the blubber and meat taken off and divided.

How to Make a Fire Balloon.

Small fire balloons are easily made of tissue paper cut into gores and then pasted together in the shape of a balloon, no slit or hole being left by which any air might escape except one at the mouth. A ring of thin wire is fastened to the mouth of the balloon, and across this wire two other wires are fastened in the shape of the letter X. These wires should be a little depressed where they cross each other. A piece of cotton dipped in alcohol is placed in the depressed center of the crossed wires, a light is applied, and directly the air inside becomes heated the balloon ascends.

Stool of Repentance.

The players sit in a circle, in the center of which a stool is placed. One of the company goes out of the room, and the rest say all sorts of things about him. For instance, one will say he is handsome, another that he is clever or stupid or vain. The "culprit" is then called back into the room and seats himself on the stool, which is called "the stool of repentance," and one of the players begins to tell him the different charges which have been made against him. "Some one said you were vain. Can you guess who it was?" If the culprit guesses correctly he takes his seat in the circle, and the person who made the accusation becomes the "culprit" in his stead. If, however, the "culprit" is unable to guess correctly he must go out of the room again while fresh charges are made against him.

The Chinese Tea Table.

This is a game to amuse small children. The players sit in a circle, and each one takes the name of some article used at the tea table, such as tea, sugar, cream, cake, etc.

Tea begins. She rises and turns round and round in her place, saying: "I turn Tea. Who turns Sugar?" Then Sugar begins to turn, saying: "I turn Sugar. Who turns Milk?" Milk begins to turn, saying: "I turn Milk. Who turns Cream?" Cream turns, saying: "I turn Cream. Who turns Hot Water?" And so on with rolls, jam, muffins, cake or anything that can be thought of for tea, even to napkins and dishes, if there are many playing, till all are turning. They must continue till the leader claps her hands and calls out "Clean the table!" when all sit down in their chairs again.

Riddles.

Who is the oldest lunatic on record? Time out of mind.

Why is a doctor like a woodcock? Because he presents a long bill.

When does a farmer double up a sheep without hurting it? When he folds it.

Which is the rudest bird in existence? The mocking bird.

At what age should a man marry? At the parsonage.

Why is a coachman like the clouds? Because he holds the reins.

Valley Forge.

Oh, that cruel winter in Valley Forge,
Where Washington's army lay!
For houses they built them huts of logs
And filled them in with clay.

They had few blankets and few clothes
And scarce enough to eat,
And often in the snow they tramped
With bare and bleeding feet.

But cheerfully those hardy men
Endured each toil and care
When Washington beside them stood
And nobly bore his share.

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been dispelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Warrensburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 903 Ellison St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug co.

NEWSPAPER BARGAIN DAYS

The Birmingham Ledger

Leading Newspaper of Alabama

One Year

$3.48

(By Mail)

Bargain Days—January 5th to 15, 1910.

Get ready to take advantage of this offer. You want a daily newspaper—it is no longer a luxury but a necessity—you should keep posted on current events, political and otherwise.

The Birmingham Ledger, the peer of any newspaper in the South, is offered you at about half the price of most high class newspapers. Don't miss this opportunity. Those who take advantage of this offer now will receive this paper from time subscription is sent in until January 1st, 1911. ACT AT ONCE!

Address Birmingham Ledger.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all druggists.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone shoul take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

Cured of Seven Years Suffering.

Many letters are on file, from grateful women who have been cured with VIN O-VITÆ, the great female remedy. Mrs. S. E. Lord, of Glenwood, Ala., writes: "After trying two good doctors and patent medicines and all other remedies and suffered untold agony, I tried your remedy, Granger's VIN-O-VITÆ, and found relief. I suffered seven years before I became a woman. I don't know how to express my thanks to you and to your agent, Mr. Ike N. Douglas, from whom I procured the remedy that cured me."

Send for free booklet giving full information with many wonderful testimonials of cures. Druggists sell VIN-O-VITÆ at $1.00 per bottle. If your Druggist can no supply you, write to the Grange Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn

Pure Whiskey Often Prevents Sickness

Many a serious sickness has been checked in time by the judicious use of

Sunny Brook THE PURE FOOD Whiskey

As a healthful tonic for home use or a wholesome stimulant in case of accidents or sudden illness, it has no equal. No home should be without it. Its moderate use is highly beneficial to those who are ailing and it will increase the vigor of those who are well. Genuine SUNNY BROOK Pure Food Whiskey is U. S. Standard (100%) proof and every bottle bears the "Government Green Stamp" showing the correct age and measure.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

4 FULL QUARTS $5

BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	418, W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.
M. Markstein	128 Sycamore Pl., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	626 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St.
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd.	541 Magazine St.
Estate of Charles Feahney	511 Rampart St.
Groll Trading Co.	Pensacola, Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER. NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 250,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

THE

Southern Ruralist

OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the Southern Ruralist is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The Ruralist pays $50.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; F. J. Herrism, General Management; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station, Horticultural Departments; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment Station, Dairying; Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock Department; Dr. C. A. Cary, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station, Veterinary Department; Judge F. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Mrs. F. J. Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.

By special arrangement with the Southern Ruralist we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

WELLS Bored and Drilled

T. B. TEEL

Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells

CLANTON, ALA.

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES. BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

Farm and Garden

PROTECTION FOR TREES.

...stalks and Wire Netting Shield Them From Vermin.

...one of the most timely and useful ...ettins seen in a long time is a ... pamphlet issued by the ...iment station, Worcester, Mass. ... gives practical methods of ... young trees from the ravages of ... rabbits and other vermin. ... growers know these ... often cause great loss by girdling ... the bark from the base of the ...

CORNSTALK PROTECTOR.

...ree up. The damage is usually ...orse in hard winters, when the natural food of these animals is scarce. They have been known to work in open winters and to girdle completely some of our best young trees. Mice are worse, as the hunter puts most of the rabbits out of commission. There is more damage done in sod than in open ground, as the mice like to nest in the grass.

One of the surest ways to invite disaster is to leave a mulch close around the trunk of the tree. The mice will work under it. If there is a bare space for a few inches around the tree there is usually little danger, for the mice rarely cross a bare plate to work at the bark. In an ordinary winter one finds a mound of earth or coal ashes almost a foot high at the base of the tree ample protection. With deep snow

WIRE NETTING PROTECTOR.

...this often fails, as the mice sometimes work under the snow if there is a nest near by. With rabbits, of course, this mounding will not answer.

Mr. Ballou gives a number of plans for protecting the tree trunk. If the pictures are so clear that little description is needed. The object is to put something around the tree trunk which will keep the vermin away. If rabbits abound this protection should be high enough to prevent their reaching over it when standing on their hind legs. Perhaps the simplest plan is shown in the first cut. Here ordinary cornstalks are used—cut to a proper length, placed around the trunk and tied with wire or string. Rabbits do not tear the stalks off. Mice would gnaw them, and to circumvent them a roll of wire netting can be used. This is put at the base of the tree outside the stalks.

Cheshrein Abandoned.

When a horse stumbles he is far less likely to go down if his head is left free. In England, where they are far ahead of us in everything pertaining to horses, the checkrein has been abolished, the last surrender being that of the artillery and commissariat train of the British army, the change having been made by Sir George Clarke, the late commander in chief, who testifies to the beneficial results attending it.

ften Prevents Sickness has been checked in time by the y Brook

PURE FOOD
iskey me use or a wholesome stimulant in m it has no equal. No home should be is highly beneficial to those who are ailing those who are well. Genuine SUNNY e U. S. Standard (100%) proof and every t Green Stamp", showing the correct age

TILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

QUARTS—$5
RESS PREPAID
the following Distributors:

416, W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.
123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
Toheupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
210-212 Chartres St.
541 Magazine St.
511 Tampart St.
Pensacola, Fla.
Memphis, Tenn.
Jacksonville, Fla.

SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
S SHIPPED C. O. D.

in Your Home
THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper i the South today. It covers every de partment of the farm and home. W have examined it carefully, and con sider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
the most valuable premium we ca offer our readers. It comes twice month—24 times a year. A sampl copy will be mailed free to any ad on request.

The most valuable thing about th
SOUTHERN RURALIST is the Prize Spe cials, which are published on the firs of each month. The RURALIST pays
$40.00 each month for the best arti cles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poul try, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Garden ing, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

NTS AND STAFF WRI S al Editor: F. J. Herriam, Ge Georgia Experiment Statio
gby, Georgia Experiment iment Station, Live Stock D nce, Alabama Agricultural ell, Poultry Department; Mrs. F. J. Mer ry or serial in every number.

your's subscription to the man who will take T.
Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.
SOUTHERN RURALIST we are able to offer
ubscription to this paper at

ern Ruralist for $1.00.

Bored and Drilled TEEL of Deep Water Wells
ON, ALA.

BLE SOCIETY
MERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash

BIBLES.

ches to supply you with Bibles. You or type at the publishers' cost price.
H. Write us.

Farm and Garden

PROTECTION FOR TREES.

Cornstalks and Wire Netting Shield Them From Vermin.

One of the most timely and useful bulletins seen in a long time is a recent pamphlet issued by the Ohio experiment station, Wooster. F. H. Ballou gives practical methods of protecting young trees from the attacks of mice, rabbits and other vermin. As all fruit growers know, these little animals often cause great loss by gnawing the bark from the base of the tree up. The damage is usually worse in hard winters, when the natural food of these animals is scarce. They have been known to work in open winters and to girdle completely some of our best young trees. Mice are worse, as the hunter puts most of the rabbits out of commission. There is more damage done in sod than in open ground, as the mice like to nest in the grass.

CORNSTALK PROTECTOR.

One of the surest ways to invite disaster is to leave a mulch close around the trunk of the tree. The mice will work under it. If there is a bare space for a few inches around the tree there is usually little danger, for the mice rarely cross a bare place to work at the bark. In an ordinary winter one finds a mound of earth or coal ashes almost a foot high at the base of the tree ample protection. With deep snow this often fails, as the mice sometimes work under the snow if there is a nest near by. With rabbits, of course, this mounding will not answer.

WIRE NETTING PROTECTOR.

Mr. Ballou gives a number of plans for protecting the tree trunk. His pictures are so clear that little description is needed. The object is to put something around the tree trunk which will keep the vermin away. If rabbits abound this protection should be high enough to prevent their reaching over it when standing on their hind legs. Perhaps the simplest plan is shown in the first cut. Here ordinary cornstalks are used—cut to the proper length, placed around the trunk and tied with wire or string. Rabbits do not tear the stalks off. Mice would gnaw them, and to circumvent them a roll of wire netting can be used. This is put at the base of the tree outside the stalks.

Checkrein Abandoned.

When a horse stumbles he is far less likely to go down if his head is left free. In England, where they are far ahead of us in everything pertaining to horses, the checkrein has been abolished, the last surrender being that of the artillery and commissariat trains of the British army, the change having been made by Sir George Burgoyne, the late commander in chief, and he testifies to the beneficial results attending it.

FEEDING BEES IN WINTER.

Sugar Sirup Recommended When Honey Store Is Insufficient.

No one should attempt to winter a hive of bees which is poorly supplied with honey. Such a colony needs to be either fed or brimstoned. Only good, heavy colonies should be wintered. One can tell whether a hive has sufficient stores for winter by testing the weight. If the hive lifts like a box of bricks it has enough stores, but if it lifts easily, like an empty box, then it has insufficient honey to carry the bees through a severe winter, writes Allen Latham in the Farmer.

It is not difficult to feed a colony for winter. Dissolve seven pints of granulated sugar in about four pints of hot water. Pour the gallon of sirup resulting into four quart jars and invert these in shallow saucers, preferably shallow tins, like the covers of lard pails. Place them just at dusk either over the frames of the hive or about the entrance. Insert small nails under the edges of the jars to allow air to enter as the sirup is licked up. If the night is cold throw two or three sacks over the jars to hold the heat and encourage the bees to carry the sirup into the hive. Stir the bees up before throwing the sacks over the jars. This feed can be given at any time till such cold weather sets in that the bees will not take care of it. The amount suggested is enough to take bees into early April.

All hives that have enough stores can be protected for winter in the following simple manner: Select as many large bran sacks as there are hives. Open the bottom of each sack so that the two ends are alike. Have ready dry leaves, laths, small nails and hammer. Draw a sack down over a hive as you would draw a stocking over your foot. Before starting in place a small block over the entrance to keep the bees in while the work is being done. Fasten the edge of the sack along the bottom of the hive with a piece of lath secured by two nails. Let the sack come quite to the bottom at the sides and the back of the hive, but in front turn it up so the entrance will be left unobstructed. Now push leaves in between hive and sack, filling first at each corner, so that sack is free from hive on all sides. Pack in the leaves firmly all round and above the hive till the sack is nearly full. Then with some long nails or with strings gather the upper edges of the sack so that the leaves will not spring out.

As the hive now is rain will wet the leaves and make the protection worse than useless. Some waterproof material must be laid over all. A square of tar paper laid over and then covered with another sack is good. This upper sack should have its corners pinned down with wire nails.

It takes but half an hour to get a hive ready for winter in this manner, and the labor will be well paid for. Thus prepared the colonies will winter splendidly in even severe winters and will build up rapidly in the spring to furnish early swarms or supers of honey. This protection can be taken off in early May and made into a bonfire, the sacks being saved for smoker fuel—fuel of the very best sort to make clean white smoke.

AUTOS ON THE FARM.

Half the Cars In Some States Are Owned by Farmers.

Recently, at the automobile school opening exercises in New York city, J. George Frederick, managing editor of Printers' Ink, delivered a most interesting lecture on the modern use of automobiles on the farm, illustrated by many stereopticon pictures.

Mr. Frederick first traced the reasons for the greater wealth of the farmer through scientific farming and the use of good machinery and showed the natural connection between the use of machinery and the auto by farmers. He told how by authoritative estimate there were now 76,000 autos in use on farms—about one-fourth of all in use—and how one dealer in an Oregon town of 5,000 population sold forty-two in one season. He said that of the 4,516 autos registered at a recent date in Kansas half of them were owned by farmers and that out of 10,000 autos owned in Iowa one-half were owned by farmers.

Taking up the question of how the farmer finds the auto profitable, Mr. Frederick told of the great help autos are to the dairy farmers in delivering milk quickly and without disturbing the value of the farm horses during the busy farming seasons. He also pointed out how the delivery of milk by auto to railway stations has greatly widened the area of farm land in which it is profitable to engage in the milk business.

The recreation side of the auto on the farm was most effectively illustrated by Mr. Frederick's pictures, some showing the women of the family out for a spin for a midday change from household routine, others showing the farmer and his sons using the auto in late autumn to go on a hunting trip and still others showing an astonishingly numerous holiday gathering of farmers in autos in small towns.

Farm Abandonment Ended.

The age of farm abandonment is practically at an end, for the farmer has solved the problem of how to make a living for himself and family and at the same time accumulate a good bank account from the products of a small tract of land. New conditions require new methods, and this applies with greater force to farming than to any other form of productive industry.

LOVED FOR HERSELF

Alaric Leigh bore his fate like a man when he learned from the lips of Aurora Stanley that she was the promised wife of another. Aurora's betrothed husband was expected from Europe, and the preparations for the wedding had already begun. But one morning the thunderbolt fell.

Her father had speculated heavily and lost. Hoping to retrieve his losses, he had become an embezzler and a forger, and his sin had found him out. He was a hunted criminal.

The dainty, spoiled child of luxury was forsaken by her butterfly friends and sneered down as the beggared daughter of a fleeing criminal.

"I am so glad Charles is rich," she thought. And for the first time since she knew him she thought of him with something like affection and yearned for his coming. "The steamer came in this morning, and in a few hours more he will be here to comfort and protect me."

But before he came she had another guest.

Looking from a window of the grand mansion that in another week would be her home no longer, she saw Alaric Leigh coming up the marble steps.

"Miss Stanley," he began gravely, "I have come on a most disagreeable errand. I am commissioned to inform you that your unhappy father has returned to the city and means to give himself up to justice."

"He must not!" she gasped.

"He has no means to do otherwise," answered the young man gravely. "He sent me to tell you that if you could dispose of your diamonds he might by the proceeds not only reach Europe in safety, but also establish some sort of business there by which he might some time regain an honorable name and place among his fellow men."

"Here they are," she said hurriedly, placing a heavy casket in his hands. "Oh, Alaric, go quickly and tell him if he loves his suffering daughter never to give himself up to a felon's punishment."

In her trouble she never thought to inquire how Alaric Leigh had become the confidant of her broken and disgraced parent.

As she spoke the bell rang loudly.

"It is Charley!" she said gladly.

"One word more, Aurora, before I go," said Alaric. "If you ever feel that you need my friendship do not hesitate to send for me."

The girl did not hear him. She only seemed to hear the firm, light footsteps on the threshold of the parlor door, and Alaric, passing out of a door opposite, looked back for a second and saw her spring into the embrace of Charles Buckingham.

"Oh, Charley, I am so glad you have come! I am in such trouble," said Aurora, clinging to his arm as she drew him to a seat.

"Indeed, my little goddess!" drawled the exquisite. "What sort of trouble?" he asked.

"Oh, Charley, have you not heard of our terrible misfortune?" she asked. "I thought the whole city would babble it to you before you saw me," she continued.

"I have heard nothing," he returned, growing anxious.

And so she told him all, never heeding as she talked on with feverish rapidity that the face of the man who had plighted to her eternal love and constancy was assuming a smile of lofty and haughty indifference that betrayed his true character.

"And so the wedding can't be?" he observed in a tone that cut through her heart like a thrust of frosty steel. "Is that what you want to suggest, Miss Stanley? Well, you are quite right. Most girls under such circumstances would have held a poor fellow to his contract. But you are as wise as you are unselfish, and I honor you for it, Rory—'pon my soul I do."

Aurora sprang to her feet, amazed and indignant at this unparalleled act of hypocrisy and his offensive familiarity.

"Thank God, I never loved you!" she cried, and, tearing the betrothal ring from her finger, she flung it at his feet. "Go, and leave me alone! In all the world I have not a friend—not one."

"In all the world I have not a friend—not one," was the burden of Aurora's sorrow for many a weary day.

One day Aunt Hetty in her faded brown silk and ancient bonnet came for the unhappy girl.

"You must go home with me, Rory. It is a poor sort of place for a fine lady, but it is better than nothing, girlie."

So Aurora went, and when the summer came again Alaric Leigh came with it. If he still loved Aurora he never betrayed the fact by any sign whatever, and perhaps that was why, with the inconsistency of girlhood, she began to think him a paragon among men. But he did love her still, and after a long, long time he told her the truth.

"An affection like mine, Aurora," he said, in his grave, straightforward way, "never changes. I can give you a comfortable home, and if you will be my wife I shall be the happiest of husbands."

"I can't marry you for a home," she answered, and a tender quaver in her voice made his heart beat faster.

"Marry me for love, then, dear," he observed audaciously.

"Oh, blind Alaric! I have loved you always."

And that was the truth.

What a quiet little wedding it was—no satin and lace and orange blossoms, only a slim, beautiful form, robed, like the simplest village maid, in plain white muslin and crowned with white rosebuds.

A Tonic For The Whole Family

This splendid tonic will keep every member of your family in good health. Adults suffering from dyspepsia, or indigestion, general exhaustion or breakdown will find in this natural tonic renewed health and strength. Delicate, rapidly growing children will find in this tonic the assistance their digestive organs need to get the proper nourishment and strength from their food.

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

acts directly on the stomach and other digestive organs, toning them up and enabling them to do their work properly. In this way it brings about permanent health and strength. On the other hand, ordinary tonics, which give artificial strength by stimulation and by supplying food material, are only effective as long as they are taken.

Sold by All Druggists—2 sizes, 50c. and $1.00.

Take Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant if you want to get rid of your Cough or Cold.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala., postoffice, for week ending Jan. 15, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

L. H. Wright, Wm. Stewart, Henry Canady.

LADIES' LIST

These letters will be sent to the dead Letter office Jan. 29 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY Postmaster

BULBS

PLANT YOUR BULBS NOW
FOR EARLY BLOOMS

We have Dutch Hyacinths, Roman Hyacinths, Narcissus, Jonquils, Tulips, Daffodils, Freesias, Snowdrops, Oxalis, Callas, Chinese Sacred Lilies and Easter Lilies.

Prices as cheap as any northern seed house.

After October 15th, or the first heavy frost, we can supply two-year old field and Southern grown Rose Plants, both Bush and Climbing Roses.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season.

Cut flowers, wedding bouquets and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

A postal card will bring you a copy of our latest price list.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor
City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP
Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Gumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.
First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.
W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS
Alabama's Greatest Newspaper
BY MAIL
(Cash in Advance)
$3.40
A YEAR

On rural routes and small inland towns where we have no carrier delivery. For four months, $1.20, eight months, $2.30. For a longer time than four months the rate is 50c per month. Cash must accompany order, otherwise the rate is same as in carrier or agency towns, 50c per month or $5.00 per year. The Birmingham News is recognized throughout the State and Nation as "Alabama's Greatest Newspaper."

Whatever happens of importance in the State, Nation, or throughout the world is printed in The News. Always read The News and keep posted.

Agents wanted. Remit by money order or registered letter, to

THE BIRMINGHAM NEWS
Birmingham, Ala.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS
WITH Dr. King's New Discovery
FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c & $1.00
AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.
GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands. Office, Bank's Court House.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I. [illegible]
PHYSICIAN AND [illegible]
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
Clanton [illegible]

McCALL PATTERNS 10 15 NONE HIGHER
McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50 YEAR

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 45 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—millions a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, home-making, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash or co-operative offers. Address
THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

IT ISN'T THE START
IT'S THE FINISH THAT COUNTS
BLUM'S MONOGRAM STARTED IN WARE AND HAS IS STILL A WINNER

WE WILL SHIP EXPRESS PAID

4 full quarts, either bottled in bond or blend..... $ 4.00
12 full quarts, either bottled in bond or blend..... 12.00

BLENDED GOODS EXPRESS PAID

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Any of the Above Brands	$5.00	$13.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Sheridan Club	3.75	11.00
Maryland Club	3.50	11.50
Mt. Vernon	4.00	14.00
Black Label	6.00	16.00

Lewis' 66 — Hunter — Harper
Echo Spring — Cascade (Tennessee)
Wilson — Marry Hill Club

	6 Bottles in the Cot. 6 Bottles 12 Bottles
Four Roses	7.00	13.50
Three Feathers	7.00	13.50

CORN WHISKEY EXPRESS PAID

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Tennessee Old Reserve	$4.00	$11.00
Black and Blue	3.50	9.00
Harvest Corn	3.50	10.50
Laurel Valley	3.50	10.50
Choice Brand	3.25	9.00

BOTTLED IN BOND EXPRESS PAID

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Clarke's Pure Rye	$5.00	$13.00
Sunny Brook	5.00	13.00
Early Times	5.00	12.00
Guggenheimer	5.00	12.00
Kentucky	5.00	11.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Mountain Spring	4.00	11.00
Clark's Deer Mark	4.00	10.00

BULK WHISKIES EXPRESS PAID
$3.00, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $5.50, $6.00 per Gallon.
BULK CORN WHISKEY EXPRESS PAID
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 per Gallon, according to age.

On all orders for $8.50 or over goods will be shipped in handsome glass jars.

PABST'S BLUE RIBBON BEER Per Barrel, 30 doz. pints..... $12.00 Per Barrel, packed in Boxes..... 1.50 Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.

We handle all Imported Wines and Liquors. Ask for Prices.

JUNG'S CINCINNATI BEER Per Barrel, 30 doz. pints..... $8.50 Per Barrel, packed in Boxes..... 1.00 Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.

LONG DISTANCE PHONE 958

517-519 West Bay Street
CHAS. BLUM & COMPANY
Jacksonville, Florida

A BIT OF CHALK.

What It Shows When Placed Under a Powerful Microscope.

Few people know what a wonderful object a bit of chalk is when examined under a microscope. Take your knife blade and scrape off a little of the home powder, catch it on a clean glass slide and place this on the stage of a good table microscope. Use a quarter inch objective lens and illuminate the field with a cone of light from the concave side of the reflector. The powder will be seen to consist of a confused mass of beautiful tiny shells, many of them of the most curious form.

A better way, however, is to rub down a portion of chalk with an old toothbrush in a tumbler half filled with water. If you desire to prepare several slides rub on about a teaspoonful of the powder. Shake the tumbler briskly, allow the sediment to settle for a moment and then carefully pour off the milky looking water.

Repeat this until the water remains clear, and you will then have left in the bottom only perfect shells or large parts of shells. Take up a small pinch of this deposit and spread it carefully over the center of a glass slide. Dry over a lamp and if you wish to preserve the slide for future use mount it in Canada balsam, pressing out the bubbles of air beneath the cover glass.

MECHANICAL INGENUITY.

A Full Rigged Ship That a Fly's Wing Would Cover.

Many instances of mechanical ingenuity really remarkable to us in these days, when we are supposed to have advanced in learning, are related by various ancient authors. The silver sphere, "a most noble and ingenious performance," which was presented to Sultan Solyman the Magnificent by his imperial majesty Ferdinand, is mentioned by Paulus Jovius as showing and keeping time with the motions of the celestial bodies in various configurations. It was carried to Constantinople by twelve men and there put together by the artist that made it.

Myrmecides, an ancient carver, was so proficient in microscopic mechanism that he made an ivory ship, with all its decks, masts, yards, rigging and sails, in so small a compass that it might have been hidden under the wing of a fly. He also made a chariot with four wheels and as many harnessed horses, which took up scarcely more room than the ship.

George Whitehead, an Englishman, made a ship, with all things pertaining to it, to move as if it sailed, upon a table. "All hands were aloft, a woman made good music on a lute, and a little puppy cried in the midship, all of which variety," says the old writer, "was pleasant and diverting."

The Vulnerable Point.

Mrs. Holt could be depended upon at almost any time to say the wrong thing with the best intentions in the world. "Nobody minds what poor dear Fanny Holt says," her friends told each other when repeating her remarks. "We know she means all right."

"Isn't it queer how differently things affect people?" one of Mrs. Holt's neighbors said to her the day after a beach picnic. "We both got tired to death, you and I. You say you've had just a little bit of indigestion, while I have this fearful blind headache."

"Why, that's perfectly natural," said Mrs. Holt cheerily. "Of course when people are tired out it goes straight to the weakest part of them. Mine is my stomach, and everybody knows yours is your head, poor dear!"—Youth's Companion.

The Word Silhouette.

The little black pictures called "silhouettes" derive their name from Etienne de Silhouette, who was the French minister of finance in 1759. His extreme economy in matters of finance was caricatured by all classes, and any cheap mode or fashion was sarcastically called by his name. About that time these profiles were produced by casting the shadow of a face on the paper by the light of a candle and tracing about it. Because they were cheap they were called in ridicule at the minister "silhouettes," and the name has ever since been retained.—Boston Globe.

All the Printer's Fault.

"What became of that paper you were going to start in the interest of uplifting the poor tramp?" asked the interviewer.

"Ah, it fell through," confessed the great reformer, with much agitation, "and all on account of the blooming carelessness of the printer."

"Did he make a grave error?"

"I should say so. You know the paper was to be named the Bar of Hope. Well, that idiot of a printer changed it to the Bar of Soap, and as soon as my constituents heard the name they started running, and they are running yet."—Chicago News.

Court Logic.

Lawyer—My client, your honor, has confessed that he committed the burglary. You will admit this an eloquent proof of my client's love of truth and of his upright conscience, and, your honor, a man with such a delicate conscience should not be accused of having broken into a house to steal. Never!

Quite Satisfactory.

Stern Father—Young man, the lights in this house are put out at 10 o'clock! Young Man—That suits me. Don't delay on my account.—New York Times.

Victories that are easy are cheap. Those only are worth having which come as the result of hard fighting.—Beecher.

Here's Luck, Ethel!

"Ethel is not very handsome. Why do you call her a belle?"

"She's waiting for some man to ring her."—Boston Transcript.

Hasty climbers have sudden falls.—French Proverb.

A Free Present!

To every purchaser of One Dollar's worth of goods we will give a ticket entitlingthe holder to one chance for a High Grade

STANDARD TALKING MACHINE

Now is the time. Come in and see this elegant present which we are Giving Away. Also a fine lin; of Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, Etc.

H. KANJUTZKY

CLANTON, ALA

St. Elmo's Fire.

St. Elmo's fire is a name popularly given to a luminous appearance sometimes seen on dark and stormy nights at the masthead and yardarms of vessels and also on land at the top of church spires and trees and even on horses' manes and about human heads. It is due to the presence of electricity, generally at elevated points, where it accumulates more rapidly than it can be discharged and is named after St. Elmo, the patron saint of sailors.

Two Faced Babies.

"Not that deceit is a born instinct, but some babies must be two faced in the cradle."

"Oh, that's not possible."

"I don't know. I know a child that looks like its rich aunt when she comes on a visit and is the exact image of its rich uncle when he happens to be there."

And Mother Officiates.

Eddie—Do you have morning prayers at your house? Freddie—We have some kind of a service when father gets in.—New York Press.

He that always complains is never pitied.—German Proverb.

Artful Legal Tactics.

Lord Chancellor Erskine, with all his arts and all his intrepidity in the face of judge or jury, was easily upset by anything which touched his amour propre. Vanity was his foible, and he had all the susceptibility which attaches to it. One artful attorney, knowing this, used to plant a man in court in full view of Erskine to yawn hideously at his most eloquent appeals or to titter at his most tragic tones.

Once when Garrow, the well known counsel, lost in thought, had fixed his eyes vacantly upon him Erskine was so put out that he stooped down and hissed in his ear, "Who the devil do you think can get on with that wet blanket of a face of yours before him?" The same sensitiveness of criticism followed him into the house of commons.—Law Times.

Bobbed Up.

"See what our ship news man says about the late Captain Topnotcher?" queried the editor.

"What was it?" said the reporter.

"Why, he says the captain chose the sea for his life work and began at the bottom."—Exchange.

CAT AND FOX MEET.

And Reynard Retires the Worst For the Meeting.

In a recent number of a German sporting paper a forester describes a scene which he witnessed in a clearing in the forest.

He came one afternoon upon a big black cat occupied apparently in the pursuit of mice, and from the shelter of a tree he watched its movements through a fieldglass. After a few minutes an old fox made its appearance. Slinking slowly forward toward the cat, it lay down within a few steps of it, ready to spring.

The cat had observed its enemy, but beyond keeping a sharp lookout on its movements it made no sign. Shortly a young fox joined the old one and almost immediately bounded at the cat, which sprang aside and struck its assailant so effaciously across its face with its sharp claws that it retired as quickly as it came. After an interval the old fox, advancing slowly and carefully, made its attack, but the result was the same. The cat, spitting and hissing, struck out hard, and the fox retired discomfited.

A minute afterward it again sprang forward, but this time the cat got much the best of it and was left in peace.—London Globe.

Trotter and Thoroughbred.

"The trotting horse is infinitely more practical and useful, speaking on broad lines, than the thoroughbred," said a well known horse breeder, to a Washington Herald reporter. "A thoroughbred has the speed for burst of time, but when it comes to do hard work every day, day after day and all the year around, it cannot compete with the trotting horse. The thoroughbred is rattle brained, has no sense, is beyond all control. It doesn't know when to stop or what to do in a race; it simply runs until it cannot run any longer, whereas the trotting horse is under the control of its driver from start to finish and obeys orders at any time. The thoroughbred naturally exceeds the trotter in a burst of speed, but in the long run it cannot compete. As a general proposition, it is accepted among horsemen that the trotting horse is superior to the thoroughbred for general purposes."

Good Things Are Great.

Everything great is not always good, but all good things are great, said Demosthenes.

Untimely Deaths

It is estimated that from eighty to ninety per cent of all diseases are caused by diseased Kidneys, Liver. If you have symptoms of these diseases, you should at once take U-RA-CURA. It will relieve the system of the causes of these diseases, tone up the system and insure vigorous health. For many years it has stood the test of time and trial. Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1 00 per bottle. Send for book of wonderful cures. Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Granger Remedy Co. Fine Chemical Products Baltimore and New York

Nervous Prostration For Three Years

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine cured me of a period of nervous prostration of over three years duration, and the Anti-Pain Pills are as necessary to us as the roof of our house. They have been household remedies with us for many years."

WM. J. LOUGHRAN,
1214 Catherine St.,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Much sickness is due to nervous troubles. Headache, dizziness, epilepsy and insanity are nervous troubles. Then there is a large class of disorders which arise from a weakness of the nerves of an organ or part, as weak lungs, heart, stomach, kidney, bladder, eyes, etc. Dyspepsia and indigestion are usually the result of nervous disorders.

Restorative Nervine

soothes the irritated nerves, and assists the nerve cells to generate nerve force.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Last Friday morning it looked very much like snow—gloomy clouds overhead, a light, cold wind blowing, and down came a few flakes of the right sort, snow was, but very little of it. Afterwards the sun was shining brightly, but, nevertheless, we can say we had snow on the 21st day of January, 1910.

Just as soon as the setting sun has sunk below the horizon a comet may be seen, providing the sky is free from clouds. The comet is visible to the naked eye from about 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., away down in the western sky. Everybody get star-gazing.

Four more days left in which to pay poll tax, which entitles you to the privilege of voting in all elections this year. Pay up before the first of February.

Frank N. Julian, Secretary of State, has announced himself a candidate for associate railroad commissioner.

Jolly time in store for visitors to Mardi Gras at Mobile on February 6, 7 and 8, and as the railroads offer very low rates we expect there will be a big crowd to participate in the festive occasion. I wouldn't be surprised to hear of a number of Chilton people going.

IN LESS THAN 14 DAYS

The following card was received from one of my patients that had tried others:

Dr. J. V. Higgins, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Doctor. According to promise I will drop you a few lines. My little grand daughter's eyes are a lot better, they are not inflamed so bad as they were; I got the glasses; they seem to be O. K. She says that she can see better through them. My son in law was in Clanton yesterday, and looked for you as he did not find you. As the eye remedy is out, I am sorry that he did not see you. I will close, hoping to hear from you soon, I am yours truly,

M. J. Moore,

Vertens, Ala., Route 1, Box 35

The above patient has what is known in Optical Science as Amblyopia-Ex-Anopsia, one eye going out, and also turning in from an error of refrection or some disease of the eye. I have three patients like this that I am treating now all being children and all reporting that they are doing nicely. So when then buy your glasses from a peddler who you will never see again, and in ten days you find your glasses no good and your money gone, probably you go somewhere and buy a pair of glasses for one or two dollers and you and the person who is selling the glasses to you decides what pair you are to use, you take the glasses and wear them six months and if you are not properly fitted, it is liable to cause a fine case of astigmatism, for which you will have to wear glasses the rest of your life to cure, and then suffer all this time, then probably never get your eyes like they once were, all just because you thought that you could not afford to pay a few dollars more to have Higgins or some expert to properly fit your eyes with the proper prescription to start with.

Now this is only common hard sense, which it seems that all person ought to be able to reason out before it is too late.

So if you are troubled with your eyes, why call in to see me: I will not charge you one cent to tell you what your eye trouble is, for I don't charge for my service, so call to see me and probably you will be wise. If you do not care to have any work done. I repair all kinds of spectacle frames, eye glass mounting, match up all kinds of lenses, I make a Specialty of soldering gold spectacle frames.

Yours respectfully,

J. V. HIGGINS, Dr. Optometry
Office Higgins' Jewelry Store,
near the Depot, Clanton, Ala.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE KITCHEN.

Stoves, Ranges and Kitchen Utensils that deserve to be trusted. Safe, efficient, durable and sanitary That is the kind that we are offering at these low prices this season.

STEEL RANGES $20.00 TO $45.00

WHEN YOU BUY A RANGE

don't forget that economy of maintenance, working convenand durability are the points to be considered.

Buy a range that has a record of giving satisfaction in these points.

WHEN YOU BUY A RANGE

you can't do better than buy a Eureka. Thousands of them are in use every day and their records are ones of invariable satisfaction.

If you are going to buy a Cast Stove you cannot make a mistake by buying an "Arizona."

No. 7 Stoves $7.00 to $15.00

No. 8 Stoves $12.00 to $85.00

SUPERIOR STOCK! SATISFACTORY SERVICE! MAXIMUM WORTH! MINIMUM COST!

Upon these points we base our claim for your patronage. By buying our Stoves and Ranges from the best manufacturers in the whole country, and by buying them in such large quantities to supply our three stores—Clanton, Wetumpka and Alexander City—is it not reasonable to suppose that we can sell you cheaper than you can buy elsewhere, and that we can and serve you to your advantage and entire satisfaction. All we askis a trial.

If it's Hardware We have it!

Gamble Hardware Co.

If we have it, It's the Best!

Nervous Prostration For Three Years

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine cured me of a period of nervous prostration of over three years duration, and the Anti-Pain Pills are as necessary to us as the roof of our house. They have been household remedies with us for many years.

WM. J. LOUGHRAN,
1214 Girard St.,
Philadelphia, Penn.

Much sickness is due to nervous troubles, as Headache, Dizziness, epilepsy and insanity are nervous troubles. Then there is a large class of disorders which arise from a weakness of the nerves or an organ or part as weak lungs, heart, stomach, kidney, bladder, eyes, etc. Dyspepsia and indigestion are usually the result of nervous disorders.

Restorative Nervine

soothes the irritated nerves, and assists the nerve cells to generate nerve force.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

EN.

urable and sanitary

Stoves $7.CO to $15.CO

Stoves $12.00 to $85.00

MINIMUM COST!

and by buying them in such lar ou can buy elsewhere, and that

If we have it,
It's the Best!

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1910 | No. 17

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Last Friday morning it looked very much like snow—gloomy clouds overhead, a light, cold wind blowing, and down came a few flakes of the right sort, snow it was, but very little of it. Afterwards the sun was shining brightly, but, nevertheless, we can say we had snow on the 21st day of January, 1910

Just as soon as the setting sun has sunk below the horizon a comet may be seen, providing the sky is free from clouds. The comet is visible to the naked eye from about 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., away down in the western sky. Everybody go star-gazing.

Four more days left in which to pay poll tax, which entitles you to the privilege of voting in all elections this year. Pay up before the first of February.

Frank N. Julian, Secretary of State, has announced himself a candidate for associate railroad commissioner.

Jolly time in store for visitors to Mardi Gras at Mobile on February 6, 7 and 8, and as the railroads offer very low rates we expect there will be a big crowd to participate in the festive occasion. I wouldn't be surprised to hear of a number of Chilton people going.

IN LESS THAN 14 DAYS

The following card was received from one of my patients that had tried others:

Dr. J. V. Higgins, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Doctor. According to promise I will drop you a few lines. My little grand daughter's eyes are a lot better, they are not inflamed so bad as they were; I got the glasses; they seem to be O. K. She says that she can see better through them. My son in law was in Clanton yesterday, and looked for you and did not find you. as the eye remedy is out, I am sorry that he did not see you. I will close, hoping to hear from you soon, I am yours truly,

M. J. MOORE,

Vertena, Ala., Route 1, Box 35.

The above patient has what is known in Optical Science as Amblyopia-Ex-Anopsia, one eye going out, and also turning in from an error of refrection or some disease of the eye. I have three patients like this that I am treating now, all being children and all report that they are doing nicely. So why then buy your glasses from a pedler who you will never see again, and in ten days you find your glasses no good and your money gone, or probably you go somewhere and buy a pair of glasses for one or two dollers and you and the person who is selling the glasses to you, decides what pair you are to use, you take the glasses and wear them six months and if you are not properly fitted, it is liable to cause a fine case of astigmatism, for which you will have to wear glasses the rest of your life to cure, and then suffer all this time, then probably never get your eyes like they once were, all just because you thought that you could not afford to pay a few dollars more to have Higgins or some expert to properly fit your eyes with the proper prescription to start with.

Now this is only common hard sense, which it seems that any person ought to be able to reason out before it is too late.

So if you are troubled with your eyes, why call in to see me, I will not charge you one cent to tell you what your eye trouble is, for I only charge for my service, so call to see me and probably you will be wiser if you do not care to have any work done. I repair all kinds of spectacle frames, eye glass mountings, match up all kinds of lenses, I make a Specialty of soldering gold spectacle frames.

Yours respectfully,
J. V. HIGGINS, Dr. Optometry,
Office Higgins' Jewelry Store,
near the Depot, Clanton, Ala.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$35,339 04	Capital Stock Paid in	$15,000 00
Overdrafts	1,550 14	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	13,573 74
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	12,750 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	48,088 40
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	4,461 61	Savings Deposits	9,418 51
Other Real Estate	167 50	Cashier's Checks	105 62
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$14,502 28	Bills Payable	5,000 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	3,720 17		76,425 71
Currency	1,000 00
Gold	1,000 00
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,000 00
Checks and Cash Items	201 00
	37,422 95
Total	$89,699 65	Total	$89,699 65

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

JNO. A. THOMAS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 23d day of October, 1909.

J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAMUEL KAUFMAN
M. L. GREIL
} Directors.

Statement of the condition of the Clanton Bank, located at Clanton, Ala., at the close of business October 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$ 91,227 62	Capital Stock Paid in	$ 15,000 00
Overdrafts	672 33	Surplus Fund	10,000 00
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	21,500 00	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	6,250 39
Furniture and Fixtures	2,452 22	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$ 79,522 17
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$10,020 77	Time Certificates	13,057 62
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	3,720 17	Cashier's Checks	125 00
Currency	4,000 00	Bills Payable	10,000 00
Gold	250 00		102,250 39
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,207 65
Checks and Cash Items	850 10
	20,028 52
Total	$143,934 69		$143,934 69

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of the Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 22nd day of October, 1909.

E. B. DEASON, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. H. SARTOR
W. L. MULLINS
F. D. WILSON
} Directors.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Clanton, Jan 21, 1910

Editor Banner:—I have been asked the question whether qualified voters living in an incorporated town or city could vote in a stock law election held for the beat where said town or city was located.

It is my opinion they can, and said election cannot in any way effect stock law in said town.

Acts of the last special session of the Legislature page 231 amends section 5885 of the code and leaves it so that all qualified voters in the beat can vote as stated above.

Respectfully.
L. H. REYNOLDS.

Pletcher, Ala., Jan. 23, 1910

Editor Banner—Please allow me a little space in your valuable paper to say a few words about stock law. There is going to be an election in Beat 15, the 3d day of February, and I want to say to all the people that you ought to pay up your poll tax if you have not paid it and get ready to vote against such stuff as stock law. The people say that we have better stock in stock law districts, but we don't have any stock at all and the widow and the orphan do not have any milk and butter to eat.

Now Mr. stock law man, if you want stock law, just fence up your own land and put your stock on it and let everybody else's business alone. Boys, get ready and vote against stock law, and let's show them under as far as we did the amendment. There are very few people that want stock law and they are those who wanted the amendment, and just such people are all the time wanting and don't know what they want.

I have been in stock law and seen women and children going out in the morning waist deep in dew, pulling grass for the cattle, and the men that vote for stock law and the women have to pull grass for cattle on its account, ought to be put where the dogs cannot bite them. This is what I have to say about stock law, and I am not ashamed to put my name to any paper I write.

R. J. LANGSTON.

Jemison, Jan. 17, 1910

Editor Banner—Please give me space in your paper to punch the Old Coon again. She not only growled, but said that I had better not get too close on her, if I did that she would scratch my ears. Will say that I have no fear of getting my ears scratched, for the Old Coon is not game enough to stick up her head and let the people know what she even looks like. However, I am confident that she is is an old rover and has waded many briar patches and frog ponds, and might boast of the many rings she carries on her tail, but I have all reason to believe that she has no room for any more rings. As to my growling about stock law, will say that is false, as I do not belong to the coon family. Now Old Coon, I do not consider that it requires a bad man to be in favor of stock law, or a good man to oppose it, and as to the scarcity of hogs in Beat 14, will tell you that there are hogs in Beat 14 for sale and you might buy some of them if you are fortunate enough to have the money. Will say that I want every one of you to come out on Feb. 3 and vote your convictions, and if the majority says no stock law, I am with you; if they say stock law, am with you.

S. D. McCARY.

Thersby.

L. J. Forsman has sold his brick making business, together with forty acres of land containing a large deposit of superior clay.

This property is about a mile west of Thorsby, and was sold to Stahl brothers, three young men recently from Chicago, but who came a few years ago from long service and thorough training in the famous brick, pottery and tile works of Hergeness, Swedes. They were born to the business which their father and grandfather pursued.

New and modern machinery and methods will be employed and the business will be developed under expert managers.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of Chancery Court of Shelby county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain decree recently obtained against Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als. out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, I have levied on the following property, to wit:

The nw 1-4 and the w 1-2 of the sw 1-4, and the sw 1-4 of sw 1-4, Section 6; the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4; the se 1-4 of the sw 1-4, Section 15; the se 1-4 of the se 1-4, Section 16; the s 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4, Section 19; the nw 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and s 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the e 1-2 of the se 1-4 Section 21; the n 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and e 1-2 of the sw 1-4, Section 22; the w 1-2 of ne 1-4 and w 1-2 of sw 1-4, Section 25; the e 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the se 1-4, the n 1-2 of the nw 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the sw 1-4 of Section 35, as the property of the Defendant, Thos. E Lappage.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named Henry W Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, in and to the above described property on Monday, the 7th day of February, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House in Clanton.

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 27th day of December, 1909.

JOHN S. CATTS,
Sheriff of Chilton county, Ala.

Notice. Notice. Notice.

Default having been made in the payment of the debts secured by two mortgages made by Burwell Bailey and Hattie Bailey, his wife, one for the year 1905 and one for the year 1906 to Suttles and Siegel, and by Suttles and Siegel duly transferred to the undersigned, I Burwell Bailey Jr., the transferee of said mortgage, will, on Saturday, the 29th day of January, 1910, sell in front of the market house in the City of Selma, Alabama, at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, the following real estate, situated in the county of Chilton, State of Alabama, and described as follows, to wit:

The east half of the southeast quarter, Section sixteen, Township twenty, Range eleven, the north half of the northwest quarter of Section twenty two, Township twenty, Range eleven, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less.

The said sale is made for the purpose of paying, first: the debts secured by said mortgage; second: the cost of advertising, selling and conveying, and attorney's fee provided for in said mortgage. BURWELL BAILEY, JR.

A. D. PITTS, Attorney.

Stomach Trouble Cured.

If you have any trouble with your stomach you should take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. P. Klotz, of Edina, Mo., says: "I have used a great many different medicines for stomach trouble, but find Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets more beneficial than any other remedy I ever used." For sale by all druggists.

Subscribefor The Banner.

Cane Creek.

Editor Banner—Will you please allow me a small space in the dear old Banner to say a few words? Health of this community is good. There has been several cases of pneumonia around here, but I think they are all about up again.

Rev. T. J. Deason filled his regular appointment at this place Saturday and Sunday, but the weather was so bad, there were not many out to hear him; but I think that if all thatewere there will just take head to what was said that they will sure be benefited.

We have let our Sunday school at this place go dead, but hope it will soon start up again. I think if everybody enjoyed going to Sunday school as well as I do they wouldn't let the Sunday school go dead. Say, boys and girls, don't you think that it is much better for us all to go to Sunday school and worship God, than it is to be out somewhere else every Sunday?

Miss Ella Traywick visited Miss Annie Weldon, Sunday.

Misses Mae and Ruby Umeco visited Mr. John Williamson and family, Saturday night.

Miss Daisy Killgore has returned home from Bessemer, where she spent about two months with her sister, Mrs. Nora Littleton.

Best wishes to the Banner and its many readers.

LOVER OF SUNDAY SCHOOL.

TWO QUESTIONS.

Editor Banner:—With your kind permission, I shall be glad to speak briefly to your many readers about teachers and teaching in our Sunday schools.

As many will remember, the last county S. S. convention, held at Maplesville, asked me to serve during this year as superintindent of the Teachers' Training Department.

During the year I have spoken to a number of S. S. workers about the work, and have sent circulars to many teachers and superintendents, but so far, I have been unable to see satisfactory results. We have now a definite course that we should like to recommend to any person who really desires to become a more efficient Sunday School teacher. In order to have a better knowledge of what is being done, and of the desire of many, I am asking two questions which I hope many will answer.

First: Are you, as your Sunday School, now taking any course that will prepare you for better teaching in the Sunday School? If so, please write me a short letter telling me about your course. Second: Would you like to take a Teacher's Training Course in Sunday School work? If so please send me a card or letter stating your desire.

I shall have more to say later about the course and the manner of taking it. Now, please remember these two questions are for you, if you are in Chilton county.

Yours in the work,
JEROME O. WILLIAMS.
East Lake, Ala.

A Wretched Mistake

to endure the itching, painful distress of Piles. There's no need to. Listen: "I suffered much from Piles, writes Will. A. Marsh, of Silver City, N. C., "till I got a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and was soon cured." Burns, Boils, Ulcers, Fever Sores, Eczema, Cuts, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, vanish before it. 25c. at Upchurch Drug Co.

Some people have more money than brains, and are not encumbered wealthy either.

FRUIT TREES and PLANTS

FOR SALE until MARCH 1st.

TREES—A fine assortment—adapted to this section, grown by one of the best nurserymen in the country. PRICES 12 to 15c.

Cabbage Plants 25c per 100; $1 50 per 1000, f. o. b. Young's Island, S. C.

Can supply you with Strawberry Plants—the famous LADY THOMPSON.

I WANT YOUR TRADE IN THIS LINE.

JUDSON STROCK,
Clanton.

Dying in poverty is easy enough. It's living in poverty that comes hard on a fellow

MULES.

I will be in Clanton from the 1st to 10th of February, with a car load of Young Mules for sale. I will make it to the interest of those who desire to purchase to call on me.

J. WILEY SMITH,
of Bristow, Okla.

STOCK LAW ELECTION

In accordance with the statute in such cases made and provided, notice is hereby given that application has been made to Commissioners Court of Chilton county, Alabama, for an election to be held in Precinct No. 9 in said county, on Thursday, the 3d day of February, 1910, to determine whether or not stock shall be permitted to run at large in said Precinct.

Said application has been granted by the Court.

This notice is given to notify all parties concerned that said election will be held at the usual place of voting Precinct on Thursday, the third day of February, 1910, to determine said question.

Signed by S. D. McCary and others.

Dated this 21st day of December, 1909.

STOCK LAW ELECTION.

Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of an order made by the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, on the 16th day of December, 1909, an election will be held in precinct No 15 in Chilton County, Alabama, at Pletcher and Culp School house, the places where general elections are held in said Precinct, on Thursday the 3rd day of February, 1910, to determine whether or not hogs, goats, sheep, geese, etc., and such like, shall be permitted to run at large in said Precinct No 15 in Chilton County, Alabama.

This the 16th day of December, 1909.

R. P. Kendrick and others.

WANTED.

FOR SALE—Two Four acre lots with 3 roomed houses on them, good wells of water; and one Store House and lot—all in Coopers, Ala. will sell them cheap. Apply to

J. W. CLARK, Cooper, Ala.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by all druggists.

WANTED—15 or 20 teams to haul iron ore at Wesson ton. Pay 85c per ton; 3 mile haul; pay every two weeks. Miners also wanted. Call or write Tom Walker, or C. H. Durham, Jemison, Ala., care Shelby Iron Co.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, ever day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by all druggists.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

WATER GROUND MEAL

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Hanlen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

STRAYED

From my place, known as the Stewart place, one mile west of Clanton, November 29, 1909, a dark chestnut mule, about twelve years old, with scar on left shoulder. Any information should be sent to E. M. Pinckard & Co., Clanton, who will pay a reward of $10 for his delivery.

H. LOCKHART.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work whenever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purgative. Sold by all druggists.

SALESMAN WANTED.

An honest, sober, energetic man to handle our business in Chilton county. Good proposition offered to right man. Must be able to furnish horse and buggy and give bonesty bond. Position open Jan. 1st, 1910. Address Box 426, Montgomery, Ala.

A Wild Blizzard Raging

brings danger, suffering—often death to thousands, who take colds, coughs and lagrippe—that terror of Winter and Spring. Its danger signals are "stuffed up" nostrils, lower part of nose sore, chills and fever, pain in back of head, and a throat-grioping cough. When Grip attacks, as you value your life, don't delay getting Dr. King's New Discovery. "One bottle cured me," writes A. L. Dunn, of Pine Valley, Miss., "after being 'laid up' three weeks with Grip." For sore, lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, its supreme. 50c. $1.00. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co.

Some Alcohol Questions

Is alcohol a tonic? No! Does it make the blood pure? No! Does it strengthen the nerves? No! Is Ayer's Sarsaparilla a tonic? Yes! Does it make the blood pure? Yes! Does it strengthen the nerves? Yes! Is it the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol? Yes! Ask your doctor about this non-alcoholic medicine. If he approves, your confidence will be complete. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Dull boys! Dull girls! Dull men! Dull women! Heavy-headed! Downhearted! All may often due to constipation! Yet the cure is so easy.—Ayer's Pills. Ask your doctor.

CONSTRUCTION OF NEW WORLD MAP

Uniform Plan and Scale to Be Followed in the Work.

SIXTEEN MILES TO THE INCH.

Technical Arrangements Made at International Conference in London—All Great Nations Represented and Each Government Expected to Help—Special Symbols to Be Used.

An international conference has recently been sitting in London for the purpose of making the technical arrangements for the construction of a new map of the world on the uniform plan and scale of one to one million, which is equal to sixteen miles to the inch. These arrangements have been concluded and will be communicated officially by the British foreign office through its diplomatic agencies to all of the civilized governments of the world, including those which were not represented at the conference, with the request that they proceed as speedily as convenient to prepare maps of their own territory conforming to the plan and scale adopted by the conference.

All of the great European nations, the United States, Canada, Egypt, India and Japan were represented at the conference. The delegates from the United States were Bailey Willis, geologist, and J. S. Kubel, chief engraver, of the geological survey. The scientific questions involved in the proposition were all considered and reported upon by subcommittees. They were discussed and adopted after modification in some cases, and the plan is now complete. It remains only to take the practical steps necessary to carry it into effect, and the British government has undertaken to construct a sample sheet on the lines laid down as a specimen and publish the details agreed upon by the conference in several languages so that they may be understood.

Special Symbols For Rivers and Roads.

The international map will be what is known as a hypsometric map, and the contour lines will be drawn in brown at intervals of 100 meters or in decimal multiples or submultiples of that measure. The interval of 100 meters will be used up to a certain altitude, beyond which the interval for a further altitude will be 200 meters, the interval increasing at certain stages up to 1,000 meters and above. The spaces between the contours will be tinted in green for the lower altitudes and then in different shades of brown, increasing in darkness up to a certain altitude, where the brown merges into other tints, altitudes above 7,000 meters being left white.

The sea will be shown by a blue tint, increasing in darkness according to depth. All other water will be in blue, special symbols being used to indicate rivers, the navigability of rivers, obstructions of various kinds, salt and fresh marshes.

There will be special symbols for main and secondary roads, for railways, telegraphs, postoffices, boundaries international and provincial and towns of varying importance. The spelling of place names in independent countries will be that in use by the countries, while in the case of a colony, protectorate or possession it will be that of the governing country.

International Number on Each Sheet.

A separate sheet will be published containing a complete list of all the symbols used, while the most important symbols will be shown on the margin of each sheet.

Each sheet will bear an international number and also the name of the most important place or feature on the sheet, so that in whatever country or language it may be issued it can at once be ordered by its number and name. The numbering starts from 180 degrees east or west of Greenwich, and the sheets are numbered from 1 to 60, increasing in an easterly direction. The zones extending from the equator on each side to 88 degrees north or south latitude will be given letters from A to V. The polar areas will be lettered Z, preceded by the word north or south. Thus each sheet can be identified by its number and letter.

Each government is expected to do its share of the work, and the more important nations will divide up among themselves the rest of the labor.

Division of Expenses.

The expense of the map will be paid by the respective governments, by geographical societies and other official and unofficial organizations, and each government will adopt its own plan of distributing the results of its work to the public. It is not necessary for any person to have the entire map unless desired. The sheets for each country will be entirely independent, and the projection adopted will permit every sheet to fit exactly together with each of the four sheets adjoining its four sides. These conditions are made possible by adopting what is known as a modified polyconic projection—that is, by making it a plane instead of a spherical surface.

All of the sheets of the United States pasted together, not including Alaska, will make a map of about eighteen feet east and west and about twelve feet north and south.—William E. Curtis in Washington Star.

BOYCOTT ON TRUSTS.

League Organized to Curb Advances in Cost of Foodstuffs.

To curb the exactions of the trusts which deal in foodstuffs and if necessary to institute a national boycott on articles of food which the public believes are too high in price preliminary steps were recently taken at the residence of Dr. E. L. Scharf in Washington to organize the National Anti-trust league. Prominent citizens of Washington and members of congress were present, and enough was done toward the formation of an organization national in scope to insure its progress.

The idea of organizing a league to fight high prices in the necessaries of life, which have been increasing yearly until now they are out of all proportion to their true cost, originated from the recent publication on the high cost of various articles of food, particularly meat and potatoes, two of the staple foodstuffs. Dr. Scharf, formerly a member of the faculty of the Catholic university and a well known economist and student of social conditions, suggested the league.

A preliminary organization was effected, and it was decided to have as officers a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer.

It was agreed that the organization should be nonpolitical and that its movements be directed by an advisory council of seven.

Women will be taken into membership on equal terms with the men and will have equal voice in the campaign. The women being the housekeepers of the country, the pioneers of the plan recognized at once that their assistance was vital to success.

MAGNETIC SURVEY OF EARTH.

Dr. L. A. Bauer Tells Scientists What Yacht Carnegie Has Accomplished.

Dr. L. A. Bauer of the Carnegie institute at Washington, under whose direction a general magnetic survey of the earth has been begun, spoke of the project the other day during the convention at Boston of the American Association For the Advancement of Science. The Carnegie, a vessel of 600 tons from which all iron has been excluded and having no metals to affect the compass and other magnetic instruments, is now on her first trip and is expected to reach New York early in 1910.

"The work accomplished so far has been most gratifying," said Dr. Bauer. "The principal result of value during the cruise to England was to reveal a systematic error in the navigator's compass charts amounting on the average to about one degree. The general effect of these errors would be to throw the track of an Atlantic liner, when her course must be shaped wholly by the compass and log, always to the northward from ten to twenty miles from the track she aims to follow.

"A peculiarity of the errors discovered is that they turn the head of the vessel always toward the Newfoundland coast, whether she comes from the east or the west. Errors of importance have also been found in the existing charts of the dip of the magnetic needle and of the strength of the earth's magnetic force."

OVERSHOES FOR HORSES.

How Mrs. George Westinghouse Helps Pittsburg Steeds In Icy Weather.

Mrs. George Westinghouse has given the Pittsburg horse a Christmas gift, according to a recent statement by Superintendent James Bell of the Western Pennsylvania Humane society. It is an overshoe which helps the animal to get a good grip on icy or wet streets. Mrs. Westinghouse while driving recently in her carriage noticed two horses fall in the street.

She sent for Superintendent Bell and instructed him to wire at her expense for a great number of horse overshoes which she had at her Massachusetts home and have his assistants patrol the streets of Pittsburg during the icy season and place the overshoes on any horse found in distress on the streets. The instructions of Mrs. Westinghouse were that the Humane society agency should lend the overshoes to all horses in distress with heavy loads and that all additional expense be sent to her in the shape of a bill.

Plans For a Harvard Memorial.

If the plans of Mayor Hibbard and City Engineer Jackson of Boston materialize the old Soldiers' field bridge, near the Harvard stadium, in Cambridge, Mass., will be torn down, and in its place will be erected one of the finest and most unique bridges in the world. It is proposed to construct the columns and entrances of the bridge as memorials of various Harvard classes, the expense to be defrayed by them. It is planned to model the structure after the famous Alexander III bridge that spans the Seine in Paris. Some years ago Boston appropriated $125,000 for its share of the new bridge and proposed a draw structure. Cambridge and Harvard officials insisted on a drawless bridge.

Why Tramps Avoid Wilkesbarre.

Mayor Lewis P. Kniffen of Wilkesbarre, Pa., recently said that he believes he has solved the tramp problem. When he took office the city was the resort of numerous tramps. A few months ago he adopted the system of making every one of them caught by the police work at street cleaning from one to ten days. This was so distasteful and the news was so widely spread they now avoid the city.

Special Breed of Spiders.

A druggist in Birmingham, Ala., has been breeding spiders especially to catch flies in their webs.

D. O. MILLS, NOTED PHILANTHROPIST

Financier Who Favored Aiding Others to Help Themselves.

FOUNDER OF NOTED HOTELS.

Three Built in New York Are Monuments to the Late Banker's Common Sense Charity —Incidents of His Career and Early Life—A Sample of His Wit.

To many thousands of persons in the United States the name of Darius Ogden Mills, the famous banker, financier and philanthropist of New York, who recently died at his winter home at Millbrae, near San Francisco, will be associated solely with his broad interest in the welfare of his fellows. His theory was that there is too much waste in the United States and that the value of money is not appreciated. He believed that economy could be practiced without a loss of self respect or injury to the physical being, and he pointed the way in practical fashion. Thousands of young men he saw were expending every cent of their earnings for mere bare living amid squalid surroundings, and he erected cheap hotels where food and lodging could be obtained at a minimum price and where a man's self respect would not suffer.

Object Lessons In Thrift.

These hotels, of which there are now three in New York city, are object lessons in thrift, cleanliness and decency. There the man of small income may live well at a small cost and absorb a motive to save a part of the earnings that he would otherwise have to expend for food and lodging. He also erected several model tenements for families of small resources and found that these people respond quickly to the uplifting influences of modern sanitation and moderate rentals. Although his charities were broad, he was always thinking of a way to help men to help themselves before the time came when they had to be helped by their more fortunate fellows.

Mr. Mills was born in North Salem, N. Y., on Sept. 5, 1825. He was the fourth son of James Mills and Hannah Ogden Mills of North Salem. In December, 1849, he started for California, going around the Horn, and arrived at San Francisco on June 8, 1850. From that day his name was interwoven with the story of the growth of California.

Became a Leading Banker.

He established the banking house of D. O. Mills & Co. of Sacramento, which is still the leading bank of the interior of California. Although Mr. Mills spent the greater part of recent years in New York, he passed some months each year in California.

Mr. Mills married on Sept. 5, 1854, Miss Jane Templeton Cunningham of New York, who died on April 26, 1888.

When young Mills left his home in Westchester county, N. Y., to win a place for himself in New York that city was little more than a provincial town, with woods and meadows covering the district north of the city hall. It was not difficult to obtain a clerkship in a bank in those days, and Mr. Mills was not long in finding work. He was not satisfied with the outlook for promotion, however, and gave up the position for a better one in Buffalo, where he soon became cashier and his employer's partner. The first rumors of the discovery of gold in California found him an eager listener, and he resolved to try his fortunes in this new western world.

Got the "Gold Fever."

The "gold fever" which possessed him was not of the speculative character, which was typical of the man. He argued that the rush of men to the gold sections of California would result in suffering from lack of the necessities of life and that there would be a dearth of business organization.

Investing his savings in a stock of mining supplies, he made his first appearance in the gold fields as a merchant. He was successful from the start. Sacramento was not much more than a village at that time, but the proximity of the diggings made it a center of trade with the miners. It was not long before he had established a bank, the first institution of the kind on the Pacific coast. It became a prominent factor in the growth of the community surrounding it.

The bank spread out into a network of enterprises and was finally followed by the Bank of California, which Mr. Mills helped to organize in San Francisco and of which he was the first president. The institution soon attained an international prominence.

A sample of the banker's ready wit was displayed on one occasion in the fifties when an amateur dramatic performance was given in San Francisco for the benefit of some deserving charity. Among the performers was the late Hugh Farrar McDermott, the poet, and in a box was Mr. Mills. The play was some classic piece, and the acting was so bad that what should have been a tragedy became a farce. In the last act McDermott dropped his sword and, stooping awkwardly, picked it up. There was a titter in the audience, which increased as the luckless performer asked, "What shall I do with this envenomed blade?"

From the banker's box came in a queer stage whisper, "Stab yourself, Hugh, and be done with it!"

YOUNG SCULPTOR'S HONOR.

Miss Belle Kinney to Model Confederate Women's Memorial Statue.

Miss Belle Kinney of Nashville, Tenn., recently signed a contract with the committee of Confederate Veterans appointed at the last reunion, held in Birmingham, for supplying the memorial statue to the women of the Confederacy, a replica of which it is contemplated shall be placed upon the capitol grounds of each of the original Confederate states. The price agreed to be paid Miss Kinney for her design is $5,000, this to cover the cost of the first and each subsequent statue purchased, and the committee agrees to take no fewer than ten.

In the concluding competition which resulted in the selection of Miss Kinney's design there were only two models submitted, that of Miss Kinney and one by Louis Potter, a New York sculptor. The committee of veterans, headed by General Julian S. Carr of Durham, N. C., as chairman, spent some time in inspecting the two models and weighing the various points of each.

MISS BELLE KINNEY.

The statue is to be of bronze, eight feet in height, and represents the Goddess of Fame as the central figure, placing a wreath upon the head of the Confederate woman, who is pictured as reclining, exquisitely featured, with an expression of sadness, typifying the self sacrificing southern women of wartime. This woman's figure is on the right of the central figure, Fame, which is represented as supporting on her left the figure of a dying Confederate soldier, to whom the southern woman is extending even in death the palm of victory.

Miss Kinney is one of the most successful of the young sculptors in the United States. She is the daughter of the late Daniel Kinney of Nashville and, although only twenty-two years old, already has received marked recognition in the art world. She received her art education at the Art institute of Chicago, where she taught sculpture in the summer of 1908. She received the contract for the designing of the Jere Baxter statue at Nashville before she was of legal age to sign the contract. Among her class works at the Chicago institute which received special praise from her instructors was the modeling of one of the figures for "The Spirit of the Mines."

MISS KINNEY'S DESIGN FOR STATUE TO WOMEN OF THE CONFEDERACY.

Whisky From Bananas.

They are now making a whisky in the West Indies out of bananas. Skinned ripe fruit is turned into a mash and fermented and distilled.

The Playwright of the Brush.

[FREDERIC REMINGTON.]

THE SCOUT.

Grizzled and toughened and leather tanned,
Eagle of eye and of rigid hand;
Keenly alert, gazing o'er the ridge,
All of our progress doth he bridge,
Bringing us back to the blood writ page
Of the untamed west, that stronger age
Ere we had yielded to ease its charms,
When men were men by the force of arms.

THE BLEACHED SKULL.

Telling the story of blood and strife,
Careless of death and yet of life;
Telling to ages yet unborn
The tale of those who, with godlike scorn,
Laughed at the terrors of the trail,
Opening mountain, hill and vale,
That the generations yet to come
By their nameless bones might find a home.

THE LAST STAND.

Death looms before them, death behind,
His messengers speeding on every wind,
Yet doth his presence bring a laugh,
And his icy draft with a jeer they quaff,
Hopelessly doomed, yet they scorn to yield,
With each man's bosom his heart's sole shield;
Telling of men ere our souls grew faint—
A wordless play by a brush and paint.
—Arthur Roche in New York American.

SPENCER TRASK, THE BANKER

Pretty Story About the Naming of Late Financier's Country Home.

Spencer Trask, recently killed in a railroad collision near Croton, N. Y., was the head of the wealthy banking house of Spencer Trask & Co., in New York, which for many years acted as the financial agent of the late Queen Victoria in America. He was an exponent of conservative financial methods and was born in Brooklyn on Sept. 18, 1844. When he and William E. Francis parted company in 1890 he founded the present firm of Spencer Trask & Co. with George Foster Peabody, now head of the Carnegie foundation.

Mr. Trask married in 1874 Miss Katherine Nichols, who has won fame by her poems and novelettes. Their summer home at Saratoga, Yaddo, is one of the show places of the Empire State. He had been in poor health since the death of his two daughters six years ago and last summer lost an eye in an automobile accident.

Mr. Trask was graduated at Princeton in 1866 and was a member of the Metropolitan, Union League, City, Cabinet, Automobile of America, Fencers, Lawyers' and National Arts clubs. He had been director in many railroads and was originally connected with Thomas Edison in the development of electric lighting. He was president of the Edison Light and Power system for many years.

Mr. Trask's tastes and habits were domestic. Yaddo is located near Saratoga on the avenue leading from Saratoga lake. In this handsome country seat he took great pride and spent a considerable portion of his time there in the enjoyment of his rural comforts and in the entertainment of his friends. The estate embraces about 500 acres, and the grounds are given especial distinction by their inclosure of a chain of small lakes.

In and out among these and through the surrounding woods are beautiful drives which Mr. Trask threw open to the public and helped to make Saratoga a delightful and fashionable summer resort.

A pretty story surrounds the naming of Yaddo. A little child visiting the estate before a name had been selected for it paused in front of a pool of water and gazed at its reflection there. Then the little one stretched out its hands toward the pool and exclaimed, "Yaddo, Yaddo!" It was the child's way of saying "shadow." Mr. Trask was so pleased with this that he named the estate Yaddo.

The original mansion on the estate was destroyed by fire in 1891, and its destruction entailed the loss of many valuable personal effects which could not be replaced. On the site of the destroyed building he erected a more modern and far more handsome edifice, which is today one of the finest country residences in the state of New York.

NO PRICE ON GORDON'S HEAD

War Department Denies Senator's Connection With Lincoln Conspiracy.

Specific denial is made at the war department in Washington after a careful examination of the records of the story published to the effect that in connection with the alleged participation in the conspiracy to kill President Lincoln a reward of $10,000 had ever been offered for the capture of Colonel James Gordon, recently appointed by the governor of Mississippi to succeed the late Senator McLaurin.

When the matter was brought to the attention of the officials of the war department a search of the records was instituted. The records contain all notices of rewards offered in connection with the assassination of Lincoln. Nowhere was the name of Colonel Gordon found. Therefore the officials declare that there was no basis for the story published concerning him.

AIRSHIPS TO ATTACK BOAT.

Feature of the Aviation Meet at Los Angeles, Cal.

The importance of an airship in time of war may be demonstrated by a night attack of dirigibles on a vessel off the harbor of Los Angeles, Cal., during the aviation meet this month, from the 10th to the 20th.

Aeronauts have volunteered to make the attack, and the revenue cutter Perry is said to be available as the object of the bomb hurling. The dirigibles will go out to sea for a concerted attack on the Perry, which will undertake to evade the air craft by the use of searchlights.

Rest Room For Street Car Men.

The Pittsburg Railways company has let a contract to D. T. Riffle to erect a second story addition to the present office building of the company at Frankstown avenue and Collier street, around which the Homewood car barns of the company are located. This addition will be 20 by 216 feet in size and is being erected for the use of the conductors and motormen who report for duty at the Homewood barns and will cost about $12,000. There will be dressing rooms, shower baths and a gymnasium provided by the Railways company for the use of its employees in the new space.

A Maharajah's Shorthorns.

To a maharajah in India have been shipped four of the largest cows bred in Great Britain. The order for these cows specified that they should stand five feet four inches at the shoulder and measure fourteen feet from the tip of the nose to the end of the bony part of the tail. The agents took sixteen months to find these cows. Inquiries in Italy and Switzerland were unsuccessful, and they were finally secured in the midlands and Yorkshire. They are all Shorthorns.

PEOPLE OF THE

New Minister to Ch

William J. Calhoun of Ch... new minister to China, has ... still in the handling of impo... eign missions in two former ... trations. When President ... was elected the first time C... bies were imminent, and Mr. ... was chosen to go to Havana ... upon conditions there. He ... special envoy of the United ... ernment and in a month ... pleted his investigation. His ... coupled with that of Senator ... formed the basis on which ... declared with Spain.

Again in 1903, when Cas... dent of Venezuela, was making ... for American citizens, ... Roosevelt sent Mr. Calhoun country as a special envoy. ... was intrusted with ... delicate by two presidents is ... of the high regard ... diplomatic skill.

WILLIAM J. CALHOUN.

Mr. Calhoun is a native of P... vania and attended ... and Union seminary. ... fellow students was William ... ley, afterward president of the ... States. Leaving Colonel Mr. C... studied law in Illinois and ... settled in Chicago. His ... been largely in corporation law.

"Main" Feits as Workman.

"Eitel," which is an old family ... among the Hohenzollerns, ... "vain;" consequently it attract... unusual amount of attention ... Prince Eitel Fritz adopted ... methods lately to decrease his ... It did not seem to anybody ... the prince was taking on enough ... to prove unbecoming, but it did ... cord with his own idea, of a ... military figure, and he went ... summer residence near Charlot... and lived the life of an ordinary ... door laborer. He stayed several ... and worked all day at gardening, ... felling and carpentering, wear... workman's clothes. He also ... in the construction of a new ... school. The princess became ... terested in the cure that one day ... she stopped to watch some men ... the construction of a clockwork ... tain in connection with the new ... ing she became so interested th... set to work with hammer and ... and worked for nearly an hour.

North Dakota's New Senator.

Fountain L. Thompson, recently ... pointed senator from North D... by Governor Burke to fill the ... pired term caused by the death ... ator Martin N. Johnson, is the ... est member of the upper house ...

FOUNTAIN L. THOMPSON.

gress. It is said that Senator ... son will not long wear the toga ... tor Thompson has never been ... ly prominent, his activities having ... largely confined to business.

In a recent interview ... Thompson said that, while he ... ways been a Democrat and ... various local offices, he has ... sought political preferment. As ... itics, he declared that the ... which it had been conducted ... years had cultivated in him a ... for it.

Senator Thompson is fifty-f... old and was born and raised ... near Scottsville, Ill. He resided ... state until 1883, when he re... North Dakota. He was edu... the law, but never practiced ... fession. In North Dakota he ac... cumulated a fortune as a farm... er and real estate dealer.

Milady's Mirror

Make the Hair Healthy.

...want to keep your hair in a ...ondition be careful always to ...rean hairbrush. Many bad ...dandruff are due to careless... ...is matter. Directly the brush ...look grimy wash it in soda ...er. Have the water nearly ...nd "put" it with the bristles ...ni that the back of the brush ...get wet, as it ruins the polish. ...ite clean rinse in warm wa... ...let it stand for ten minutes ...cold water and leave it in the ...y. Don't put the brush to dry ...n or too near the fire or the ...will turn yellow. If the back ...damped rub it with sweet ...polish.

...p the hair bright and glossy ...r methods exist than that of ...n. The treatment should be ... for five minutes each day ... morning. The tresses should ...nted one by one and shaken ...d slowly, so that the air may ... between the strands. If a ...ip is obtainable a still better ...u be secured, the attendant ...he air gently on to the hair ...right hand while supporting ...at a time with the other.

A Beauty Cure.

...uty cure that is engaging the ... of fashionable society at the ...s the milk cure, and its only ...t it is ridiculously cheap for ...dopted by fashionable society ...s taken inwardly and out...

...of hot milk slowly sipped at ...poses the mind and prepares ...for restful slumber. Milk is ...nto the face at night with a ...oft linen and a towel to dry. ...e morning the face is washed ...but no soap must be used. ...ularly washed in milk is de... ...be proof against sunburn.

For the Complexion.

...man who finds that her face ...ally dry and rough in winter ...ve a thought to the sort of ... is taking of it. If she per... ...be use of alkaline soaps, toilet ...and aromatic vinegars, all of ...e drying in their effect, she ...be confronted by a mixed or ...skin. A better way is to ... a good cleansing cream and ...hot water, followed by cold ...stimulate the skin and close ...

Pale-Faced W

You ladies, who have pale fa... circles under eyes, drawn, ha... expressions, you need a ton... The tonic you need is Cardui. ... It is the best tonic for women, ... specifically adapted for wo... womanly organs and help to g... ity to the worn-out womanly ... Cardui is a vegetable medicine ... no iron, no potassium, no ... us, or habit-forming drugs of ... It is perfectly harmless and safe.

ake CAR

The Woman's

"After my doctor had done all he ... es Mrs. Wm. Hilliard, of Mountain ... on the advice of a friend, and ... "Before taking Cardui, I had ... bles for five years, but since taking ... "I think there is some of the be... I ever saw." Your druggist se...

...for Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga ... ...Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treat...

BANKER

ming of toms.
ted in a N. Y., banking in New acted as e Queen a an ex ith north ng Sept.
Thom P.
long be Spencer
ter Pre-ie fron-ins Kate by her summer one of e State. since the s years ve to an

Prince r of the
ing. Cal-
Tuxedo.
ish. He ntlemanly d with ment of lities of system its wore l hear ng from he cound spend me there comforts friends.

0 acres,
cial dis-
a chain through eautiful w open ake Sur-hamble fanning ing the selected of wa-there out its claimed.

child's Trask claimed.

e estate and its of paying h could of the a more the edie finest of New

HEAD

or's Con-
racy.
he war after ords of ext that particiil Presiood had pture of ntly apssissippi Laurin
nt to the the war records contain in con-of Lin-of Colo-the offino basis
ing him.

BOAT.

t at Los in time ed by a a vessel ies, Cal., s month.

to make e cutter
e as the the dirigiconcerted ill under-the use

Men.
pany has to erect present pany at er street, ood car
ted. This et in size se of the ho report arus and e will be s and a Railways mployees

rns.
have been ows bred for these uld stand shoulder from the the bony took sixows. Inand were finally se-Yorkshire.

PEOPLE OF THE

New Minister to Chi

William J. Calhoun of Ch new minister to China, has still in the handling of imp eign missions in two former trations. When President was elected the first time C
bles were imminent, and Mr.
was chosen to go to Havana upon conditions there. He special envoy of the United ernment and 70 a month pleted his investigation. His coupled with that of Senator formed the basis on which declared with Spain.

Again in 1905, when Castro, dent of Venezuela, was making for American officers,
Roosevelt sent Mr. Calhoun

WILLIAM J. CALHOUN.

country as a special envoy. Th was intrusted with errands so decidedly by two presidents is indi of the high regard entertained diplomatic skill.

Mr. Calhoun is a native of Pe vania and attended school at th land (O.) Union seminary. Amo fellow students was William M ley, afterward president of the U States. Leaving school, Mr. C studied law in Illinois and even settled in Chicago. His practic been largely on corporation law,

"Vain" Frits as Workman.

"Eitel," which is an old family
among the Hohenzollerns,
"vain;" consequently it attract unusual amount of attention
Prince Eitel Fritz adopted methods lately to decrease his
It did not seem to anybody el the prince was taking on enoug to prove unbecoming, but it did cord with his own idea of a military figure, and he went summer residence near Charlott and lived the life of an ordinary door laborer. He stayed several and worked all day at gardenin felling and carpentering, wear workman's clothes. He also in the construction of a new school. The princess became terested in the cure that one day she stopped to watch some mas the construction of a clockwork tain in connection with the new ing she became so interested th set to work with hammer and and worked for nearly an hour.

North Dakota's New Senator

Fountain L. Thompson, recent pointed senator from North by Governor Burke to fill the pired term caused by the death ator Martin N. Johnson, is the est member of the upper house

FOUNTAIN L. THOMPSON.

gress. It is said that Senator son will not long wear the toga.
tor Thompson has never been ly prominent, his activities hav largely confined to business.

In a recent interview
Thompson said that, while he ways been a Democrat and h various local offices, he had sought political preferment. A ities, he declared that the which it had been conducted in years had cultivated in him a for it.

Senator Thompson is fifty-old and was born and raised on near Scottsville, Ill. He resided state until 1888, when he re
North Dakota. He was educ the law, but never practiced fession. In North Dakota he cumulated a fortune as a farm er and real estate dealer.

Milady's Mirror

man who never worries de-hat there is nothing more der-to beauty in woman than The worrying woman does no-y good. She simply invites d of time, which writes plenty gies on her brow, around her d mouth, paints her face yelgives a lackluster eye that e can brighten.
quite unnecessary to worry.
is a total waste of energy.
ould be better employed.
now a worrying woman the you see her. Her character en in her face in wrinkles ou would think nothing short acle would obliterate.
ight ugliness is a heavy price to pay for the possession of abit, but there it is. And not s worry directly influence the ion for evil; its more remote are no less potent in robbing e of the peach bloom tints re the admiration of the poet.
ter and the general public.
affects the entire nervous sysd through it the liver and or-digestion and the heart. The woman thinks have more than else the power to make or beauty. So let her beware of overmuch lest she lose the of all the gifts.

Make the Hair Healthy.

want to keep your hair in a condition be careful always to clean hairbrush. Many bad dandruff are due to careless-this matter. Directly the brush o look grimy wash it in soda
er. Have the water nearly and "paj" it with the bristles.
ful that the back of the brush get wet, as it ruins the polish.
uite clean rinse in warm wa-let it stand for ten minutes cold water and leave it in the y. Don't put the brush to dry un or too near the fire or the will turn yellow. If the back n damped rub it with sweet polish.
p the hair bright and glossy er methods exist than that of
on. The treatment should be d for five minutes each day, d morning. The tresses should rated one by one and shaken nd slowly, so that the air may e between the strands. If a elp is obtainable a still better n be secured, the attendant the air gently on to the hair right hand while supporting at a time with the other.

A Beauty Cure.

auty cure that is engaging the of fashionable society at the is the milk cure, and its only it is ridiculously cheap for dopted by fashionable society.
is taken inwardly and outs of hot milk slowly sipped at mposes the mind and prepares for restful slumber. Milk is into the face at night with a soft linen and a lowed to dry.

he morning the face is washed but no soap must be used.
cularly washed in milk is debe proof against sunburn.

For the Complexion.

oman who finds that her face ally dry and rough in winter ive a thought to the sort of is taking of it. If she per-he use of alkaline soaps, toilet and aromatic vinegars, all of re drying in their effect, she be confronted by a lined or skin. A better way is to a good cleansing cream and hot water, followed by cold stimulate the skin and close

Pale-Faced Women

You ladies, who have pale faces, sallow complexions, circles under eyes, drawn features and tired, worn-expressions, you need a tonic.

The tonic you need is Cardui, the woman's tonic.

It is the best tonic for women, because its ingredients specifically adapted for women's needs. They act on womanly organs and help to give needed strength and to the worn-out womanly frame.

Cardui is a vegetable medicine. It contains no min-, no iron, no potassium, no lime, no glycerin, no dan-ous, or habit-forming drugs of any kind.

It is perfectly harmless and safe, for young and old to use.

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"After my doctor had done all he said he could for me," tes Mrs. Wm. Hilliard, of Mountainburg, Ark., "I took Car- on the advice of a friend, and it helped me so much. "Before taking Cardui, I had suffered from female ubles for five years, but since taking it, I am in good health. "I think there is some of the best advice in your book I ever saw." Your druggist sells Cardui. Try it.

Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., special instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent free.

ROUSSEAU'S SHYNESS.

An Experience the Composer Had in a Country Inn.

On one occasion Rousseau composed an opera, which was performed before King Louis XV. and met with the royal approval. The king sent for him, and if he had put in an appearance he would probably have obtained a pension. He was, however, of a retiring disposition and could not bring himself to face the court. To his friends he gave as a reason his republican opinions, but his real reason was his shyness.

Accordingly he fled from the court and sought the privacy of a country inn. While he was there a man came in who began telling the company that he was the celebrated Rousseau and proceeded to give an account of the opera, which, he said, had been performed before the king with great success.

Most men in Rousseau's position would have felt nothing but contempt for the impostor, but this extraordinary man felt only pity and shame. "I trembled and blushed so," he tells us in his "Confessions," "for fear the man should be found out that it might have been thought that I was the impostor." He was afraid that somebody might come in who knew him and expose the pretender. At last he could bear it no longer and slipped out unobserved.

Very few people would treat an impostor like that.—Westminster Gazette.

PENGUINS.

The Comical Way These Queer Birds of the Antarctic Act.

"The resemblance of penguins to human beings is always noticed," says Lieutenant E. H. Shackleton in his book, "The Heart of the Antarctic." "This is partly due to the habit of walking erect. But there are truly a great many human traits about them. They are the civilized natives of these regions, and their civilization, if much simpler than ours, is in some respects higher and more worthy of the name." Of two of the photographs that appear in the book the following remarks are made:

"An emperor penguin, meeting an emperor or men or dogs, bows gravely till his beak is almost touching his breast. Keeping his head bowed, he makes a long speech in a muttering manner, short sounds following in groups of four or five. Having finished the speech, the head is kept bowed a few seconds for politeness sake. Then it is raised, and he describes with his bill as large a circle as the points of his neck will allow. If you have not comprehended he tries again. Meantime his followers are apt to get impatient. They are sure he is acting incorrectly. Then another male will waddle forward, elbow the first aside and repeat the ceremony. Both emperors and adelies move, when the surface is suitable, by tobogganing."

Wild British Cattle.

The wild cattle of Great Britain have become one of the curiosites of the bovine race in England. There are very few herds of them remaining, and most of these are diminishing from a very natural cause. Of course they are confined in parks and are jealously guarded from any admixture of alien blood. They are as wild as buffaloes and are treated in the same way as deer. In color they are white, with red ears, and historians assert that they had a large share in the evolution of the Shorthorn as it is known today. It is certain that the color mentioned very often crops up quite unexpectedly in our pedigree herds. They will probably become extinct in a few years owing to the extreme difficulty of procuring sires unrelated to the herds and yet of the same breed.—Farm and Home.

A Neglected Apple.

Mrs. Benham—You used to say that I was the apple of your eye.

Benham—Well, what of it?

Mrs. Benham—Nothing, except that you don't seem to have such a keen relish for fruit as you once did.—Exchange.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Bean Croquettes.

Boil two cupfuls of white beans that have been soaked in cold water over night. Add one sliced onion and cook until beans and onion are tender. Pass through a sieve and season with a heaping tablespoonful of butter, grated; two eggs well beaten, salt, pepper and minced parsley. If necessary moisten the mixture with gravy or hot water flavored with beef extract. Mold into croquettes, roll in egg and bread crumbs and fry in deep hot fat. Serve with tomato sauce.

Nut Corn Balls.

Pop enough corn to half fill a bread pan when sorted and all hard corn discarded. Add a generous cupful of nut meats. Pour over the corn a candy made of three cupfuls of molasses, one scant cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of vinegar and butter the size of an egg. Boil till it hardens in water. After pouring the molasses mixture over the corn and nuts work all together thoroughly with a strong iron spoon. Dip your hands in cold water and make the corn balls before the candy cools.

Larded Calf's Liver.

Clean the liver well; then with a sharp knife make incisions clear through it an inch apart. Into these put strips of fat salt pork. Put a tablespoon of minced onion, some parsley, a dash of pepper and one-half cup of strained tomato juice in a pot. Lay the liver in, sprinkle with salt and onion, cover and set on range where it will not boil under an hour. Gradually increase the heat. In two hours remove from the pot, thicken the gravy and pour over the liver.

Steamed Cabbage.

Cut cabbage the same as for sauerkraut. Add three slices of fat bacon cut up in small pieces. Fry out until brown. Put cabbage and bacon in frying pan, add one-fourth of a cupful of vinegar, cover with water and season with salt and pepper to taste. Cover closely in frying pan and steam moderately for two hours.

A Ladder in Sections.

Not every family has a long and a short ladder about the house, and it often happens that where one of these will not suit the other will. A Canadian has invented a ladder that answers both purposes and when folded takes up less room than even the old style small ladder. This invention consists of a ladder made in three sections, one on the other and hinged together on one side and in the back. On the other side are pins to keep it in place when it is extended to its full length. After the top section has been bent down on one side it folds back, and when the second section is down the three fold together like a three part screen.

A FOLDING LADDER.

Boiled Salad Dressing.

Beat together the yolks of three eggs, one teaspoonful of mixed mustard, two teaspoonfuls of salt, three tablespoonfuls of sugar and one dessertspoonful of flour. Stir these ingredients into a cup of boiling vinegar and cook in a double boiler. When thick and smooth remove from the fire and when cold set in the icebox until wanted.

Brown Bread.

Two even cupfuls of yellow meal, one cupful of flour, two-thirds of a cupful of molasses, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in one-third of cupful of hot water, one teaspoonful of salt and one pint of sweet milk. Add milk gradually and mix thoroughly and steam for six hours. This is a well tested New England recipe.

Care of Windows in Winter

In order to keep windows free from frost apply a little glycerin on a dry duster. A brilliant polish will result. If the glycerin is rubbed on the inside of the glass just after being washed it prevents steaming. A little kerosene oil added to the water used in washing will add a polish.

A Baking Hint.

When creaming butter and sugar for cakes and cookies add two tablespoonfuls of boiling water, then deduct this amount from other liquid used. Beat hard with a spoon and the mixture will become a light creamy mass in one-third the time it would otherwise take.

Fried Bananas.

Peel ripe bananas, cut in halves, roll in eggs beaten with cold water or milk, then in flour, and fry in deep hot fat until a golden yellow. If you wish to serve them for dessert sprinkle with sugar and lemon juice; if as a vegetable sprinkle lightly with salt.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Ship Saved by Dancing.

The battleship Dominion was cautiously feeling her way toward Quebec on the night of Aug. 16, 1905, when the navigating officer, aided by a bush fire on land, took the wrong bearings and suddenly struck on a hidden reef with such force that the huge ship was shaken from stem to stern. Orders were at once given for the whole crew, officers as well as men, to assemble on deck with their kits in their hands, and all the 850 men were told to dance so as to keep the ship "alive" and so prevent the Dominion's keel from settling down on the ledge. At first the bluejackets whistled an accompaniment to keep the men in step till the captain ordered the ship's band to play lively selections. The men danced with a will, stamping their feet and swaying their bodies and doing all they could to rock the ship. In the end they succeeded, for finally, with the engines working full speed astern, the Dominion slowly gave way and backed again into deep water. The dancing had saved the ship.

The King of Hunky-Bunky.

This is a game which sounds very simple, but never fails to make fun. Select two persons and place them at opposite sides of the room, the farther apart the better. Give each a lighted candle and tell them they must not laugh or even smile. They are to advance toward each other very slowly, looking directly into each other's eyes. When they meet in the center of the room, with hands uplifted, in tones of great sorrow one says, "The king of Hunky-Bunky is defunct and dead!" The other responds: "Alas, alas! How died he?" The first person, with increased grief, says, "Just so, just so, just so." Then comes the response, "How sad, how sad, how sad!"

The couple rarely get beyond announcing that the king is dead before they are off in gales of laughter. A little prize may be awarded the couple who completely finish the message, something that may be divided, like a box of candy or a bunch of flowers. When one couple finishes or fails another pair may be chosen.

Flies on a Card.

Cut several small pieces of cardboard about the size of a visiting card and draw six flies on each, numbering them from one to six. The object of the game is to see who can first cover all the flies by throwing with a die. Each player in turn throws with a die and covers the fly corresponding to the number thrown. He who covers or kills all the flies first wins. As a variation eighteen pieces can be used, each player throwing three times instead of once. After the first three throws the game begins to get exciting, as the exact numbers necessary to fill the card are seldom thrown.

The American Cattail.

The cattail of the American swamps is almost exactly the same plant as the Egyptian bulrush. It is no longer used for making paper, as it once was, but from its root is prepared an astringent medicine, while its stems when prepared dry are excellent for the manufacture of mats, chair bottoms and the like.

Old Bullfrog.

For playing this merry game one child is seated on the ground with his legs under him while the other players form a ring round him. They then pull him about and give him little pushes, and he must try to catch one without rising from the floor.

The child who is caught takes the middle, while the frog joins the circle.

Coin Under the Mast.

One of the old customs which have never been changed in the launching of a new ship is that of placing a gold coin under the mainmast. This coin, which is not of any certain denomination, always bears the date of the launching of the boat and is claimed to bring good luck to the vessel and her crew.

The Ants' Compass.

Travelers in Australia do not need a compass to assist them in finding their directions. A species of industrious ant builds its nests in straight lines directly north and south and enables one to easily determine the direction without the aid of instruments or watching the sun.

Cornelia's Curls.

Cornelia hasn't many toys,
Although she's very good—
No toys to lend to others, though
She'd like to if she could.

The other children come to school
With little things to show,
With candies, which they give away
To children that they know.

Cornelia hasn't anything
Like other little girls
Except—and, oh, she's glad of this—
The sweetest golden curls!

In rings and twists and twines and twirls
They fall, a soft cascade,
A sight to thrill the little girls
Who only have a braid.

The children love Cornelia, and
They love her golden hair,
And she has found that here at last
Is something she can share.

For when a child is sad at school
Cornelia whispers, "There,
Don't cry, and I will let you play
A minute with my hair."

She throws her hair back on the desk,
And, oh, what fun to play
With those soft, twisting golden curls
That drive the tears away!

Cornelia hasn't many toys
Like other little girls,
But that will never trouble her
While she can lend her curls.

—Philadelphia Record.

THE REASON WHY

Vinol

IS THE BEST STRENGTHENING TONIC

for Feeble Old People, Delicate Children, Weak, Run-down Persons, and to Counteract Chronic Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis, is because it combines the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron, without oil or grease, tastes good, and agrees with every one.

We return your money without question if Vinol does not accomplish all we claim for it.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

That Necessary Magazine

—for the thinking man—for the professional man—for the busy business man—and his family; in short, it's for You

25 cents per copy

$3.00 a year

The Review of Reviews

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

¶ It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

OUR 1909-10 CATALOGUE

of all American magazines is a money-saver. You can't afford to order for next year without first seeing it. If you appreciate superior agency service, and demand maximum magazine value for the fewest dollars, write for it—today. It's free to YOU.

• The Review of Reviews Company, New York

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps

Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades,

Crockery, Glass and

Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies

We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

THE BANNER

FRANK CRICHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. Loyd Tate.

The State Democratic Executive Committee, met in Montgomery, Monday, with a full attendance of candidates and politicians. Capt. Frank S. White tendered his resignation as chairman of the body, and it was accepted. W. D. Nesbitt, of Birmingham, was elected to fill the position.

Capt. White will make the race for the U. S. Senate against the present incumbent John H. Bankhead.

Here are the most important actions of the session of the state democratic committee, which came to an end Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock:

Election of the following to fill vacancies: S. W. John of Birmingham, at large; J. Pryor Hall' Third district; S. W. Frierson, Eighth district.

Selection of May 2 as the date of the general primary to nominate all officers, including United States senator, congressmen, judges and solicitors of circuit and city courts and chancellors.

Suggestion that where county committees had acted and such action touched any of the officers named in the plan they conform to the plan, but there is no compulsion.

Calling of a State convention in Montgomery May 17 to promulgate a platform and elect a State committee.

The convention will serve the purpose of preserving the party order in the State. It will declare the principles of the organization in a platform.

The law students at the University of Alabama were pleased to find on their return after the holidays that the Law Department had been moved into a separate building. Barnard Hall was renovated during the Christmas vacation and is now the home of Alabama's only School of Law. The former Physical Laboratory has been transformed into a very convenient and well lighted Law Library. Two lecture rooms have been furnished in the second story of this building.

A Wise Precaution.

Not long ago some men had occasion to organize a corporation and, desiring to avoid the cost of a lawyer's services, they drew up their own articles of agreement. Among the provisions was the following: "The annual meeting of the company shall be held on the second Saturday of July in each and every year, except when the same falls on a Sunday or a holiday."—Law Notes.

The Judge Agreed.

It is recorded that Lord Mansfield the famous English judge of the second half of the eighteenth century, listened impatiently to an argument of Sir Fletcher Norton upon a case involving certain manorial rights.

"My lord," said Norton, who was in sufferably dictatorial, "I can instance the point in person. I have myself two little manors."

"We are well aware of that," responded Lord Mansfield, seizing his opportunity.

Caution Extraordinary.

"You have a night key?"

"Of course," answered Mr. Meekton, "only I'm so careless that Henrietta keeps it locked up in the safety deposit so that I won't lose it."—Washington Star.

After Their Quarrel.

Mabel—Of course you speak to Lena when you pass her? Helen—Indeed, I do not. Why, I don't even notice what she has on!—Puck.

CLOTHES AND THE MAN.

Good Appearance Waits Upon the Way Garments Are Worn.

"You can talk all you please about clothes making a man," said a Walnut street tailor, "but I want to say right now that the smartest clothes in the world can't make a man 'natty' if he is not naturally so. There is an old, stoop shouldered doctor uptown that I have been tailoring for seven years. He buys four and sometimes five suits a year, and yet, except for a few days after he has broken in each new suit, he never looks nice. The trousers bag at the knees, the coat falls away in front, and the shoulders begin to look sloppy. The man's drooping figure and the poor, care he takes of his clothes furnish, of course, the explanation.

"Did you ever notice the average college man's clothes? Almost invariably he looks neat and correct despite the easy swing with which he walks. But you'll notice that he carries his head high, his shoulders fairly erect, and his trousers never 'break' at the shoes, so that the crease is always preserved. All classes of men go to college—rich and poor. Few college men take more than fair care of their clothes. It's all the way they wear their clothes, I think. Notice the young lawyers and doctors around town too. Few of them can afford the very best in tailor made clothes. That they usually look nice is due to the fact that they have picked up the distinguished way to wear clothes, I might call it. Clothes make the man, but only when the man is willing to help."—Philadelphia Record.

A TRUE STORY.

It Was Vouched For by the Gentleman Who Related It.

Some years ago in a certain town in the north a gentleman possessed of more money than education was asked to address the scholars attending one of the local schools some Sunday afternoon.

"Well, childwen," said he, "I'm not used to public speyking, but I remember when I was a lad I was very fond of hearing a story. Shall I tell ye a story?

"Once upon a time many years ago there was a lad, a very good lad, who went regularly to Sunday school and nivver missed. But one Sunday afternoon as he was gawin' to school two bad boys met him and persuaded him to gan bird nesting wiv 'em. So they went alang by the riverside, and by and by they came to a tree, and in the tree on a branch which overhung the watter was a nest. The two bad lads sent the good lad to climb the tree and fetch the eggs. Up he went and got on the branch, farther and farther, and just as he was reaching out his hand to tak' the nest the branch brok', and he fell into the river and was drooned."

After waiting a few moments to allow his hearers to thoroughly grasp the full extent of the catastrophe he resumed with:

"Children, the story is true, for the lad that was drooned was me."—London Tit-Bits.

The Act of Dying.

The common phrase "death agony" is not warranted by what occurs in natural death, which is a complete relief from all pain. When death is owing to heart failure or syncope it is sudden and painless, perhaps pleasant. Death by hanging, there is reason to believe, is attended by a voluptuous spasm. Death by decapitation or electricity is only a momentary shock, hardly felt. Death by poisoning varies in painfulness according to the poison employed. Opium and other narcotics probably give a painless, perhaps a pleasant, dreamful death. Hemlock, as we know from the account of the death of Socrates, causes gradual insensibility from below upward. On the other hand, arsenic, strychnine, carbolic and mineral acids, corrosive sublimate, tartar emetic and other metallic poisons inflict slow and torturing death. Prussic acid and cyanide of potassium cause quick death.—Exchange.

Glasses to Fit Four Eyes.

For several months a man had been going to various oculists, getting a pair of glasses, trying them for a few days and then taking them back. Two weeks ago one of his friends suggested an optician that he thought could do the trick and persuaded the troubled man to give him a trial. The result was the same as before, however, and the glasses were returned. Curious about the nature of the difficulty, the friend went to the optician and asked him what was the matter. "Why," replied the latter, "that fellow wants a pair of glasses that will suit both himself and his wife."—Philadelphia Times.

NURSING MOTHERS show the beneficial effects of

Scott's Emulsion

in a very short time. It not only builds her up, but enriches the mother's milk and properly nourishes the child.

Nearly all mothers who nurse their children should take this splendid food-tonic, not only to keep up their own strength but to properly nourish their children.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send No., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each book contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York

Know Them.

"I am looking for a quiet place to rest," said the tired looking man.

"I think we can safely promise you all the comforts of home," assured the hotel clerk.

"Not on your life!" exclaimed the tired looking man. "I've been married nine years and have seven children."—Philadelphia Record.

Prejudiced Opinion.

"What did the poet mean when he called his country 'the land of the free and the home of the brave?'"

"He was probably referring to bachelors and married men," said old Mr. Smithers sadly.—Stray Stories.

She Scored.

Hubby—The old saying is true, "It is only fools who get married."

Wife—That's how Providence takes care of them.

Hubby—How?

Wife—By giving them wives to look after them.—Illustrated Bits.

PROGRAM

Fifth Sunday Meeting, to be held at Pilgrims Rest church, Pletcher. January 29-30, 1910.

Saturday, 10 a.m. Devotionalexercises by Calhoun Walker.

10:30. Is it to the best interest of the Master's Kingdom to enforce Gospel discipline? By Rev. M. J. Parrish and Rev. W. J. Bone.

11. Sermon by Rev. W. H. Conell. Recess until 1:30.

1:30 p.m. Does the annual call serve to the best interest of the church? By F. W. C. Bice.

2:15. Should the sisters be organized in denominational work? By Rev. P. G. Maness.

Sunday, 9 30 a.m. Devotional exercises by T. J. Baker.

9:45. Is it wise for the churches to co-operate with the boards of the Southern Baptist Convention? By Rev. S. R. Wood.

10:15. Sunday School talk by N. J. Calloway.

11. Sermon by W. B. Crumpton; alternate, W. J. Raddick. Recess until 1:30.

1:30 p m. The importance of family religion, by Rev. F. M. Woods.

2:15. Reports of delegates.

2:45. Time and place of next meeting, and committee to arrange program.

We invite everybody to come. These meetings are just what the brethren make of them.

J. L. Dearmus, T. J. Deason } Committee,

The Advertiser's Contest.

Great interest has been created in this county by the recent announcement of The Montgomery Advertiser that it would give away to popular and energetic people in Alabama and Florida more than $10,000 in prizes. Automobiles, pianos, diamonds, bank accounts are included among the prizes offered, and these gifts are to be awarded, absolutely free to the person receiving the highest number of votes in the popularity contest that The Advertiser has inaugurated.

Any white person of good character man or woman, boy or girl, is eligible to compete for the prizes, and there are no obligations upon entering. The persons receiving the highest number of votes will be awarded the gifts. Votes are obtained by clipping and sending in the ballots that appear each day in The Advertiser and by securing prepaid subscriptions, either old or new to the paper.

At least six prizes, comprising a $400 piano, a $150 diamond ring, a $100 bank account, a $100 furniture outfit, a $50 Turkish rocker, and a $45 graphaphone, must be awarded in this district, no matter what may be the vote of contestants in other districts. And every person who enters from this district has an equal show to win one of the three automobiles which are known as grand prizes and will be awarded regardless of district lines.

The contest is just starting and "nominations" are open. Bright, wideawake persons of this section appear to have before them an unusual opportunity to be handsomely rewarded for a few weeks' pleasant work among friends.

It is a simple matter to enter the contest. In this paper will be found a nomination coupon. You may nominate yourself or friend. Fill in the coupon as it directs, and mail it to the Contest Department of The Advertiser. When subscription books and full particulars will be sent.

Several of the handsome prizes should come to this county, where The Advertiser has many friends and readers.

Alabama Horticultural Society.

The seventh annual session will meet in Bessemer on Friday, January 28th, and Saturday, January 29th, 1910.

The object.—Better Fruit, Better Vegetables and Better Interest in Alabama Horticulture.

Bessemer is a hustling city and is within easy access of Birmingham The steam and trolley rail service between the two cities is excellent. The Committee in charge is endeavoring to secure special rates over the railroads of the State for those coming to the meetings. It is announced that all who contemplate attending the meetings will be cordially entertained free by the citizens of Bessemer by sending in their names to Mr. W. R. Gunn, Sect. Board of Trade of that city.

PROGRAM

For S. S. Convention, District No. 6, to be held at Pleasant Grove Baptist church, four miles west of Maplesville, Jan. 29, 1910.

9:30 a.m. Devotional exercise by N. W. Latham.

10. How can the opening service of the Sunday School be made attractive? Discussed by W. O. Perry, P. G. Maness.

10:30. What can be done with a teacher who cannot get through with the lesson on time? Discussed by T. U. Crumpton, W. J. Ruddick. Song.

11. a.m. What are some of the most serious hinderances to the Sunday School? Discussed by W. H. Connell, G. W. Fox. Song.

11:30. Enrollment of delegates. Dinner.

1.30 p.m. What part of the Sunday School service should be conducted by the assistant superintendent? Discussed by P. G. Maness, W. H. Connell and others. Song.

2:30. Select next place of meeting; miscellaneous business and adjournment.

It is earnestly requested that all parties who are interested in Sunday work be present and help us, especially those of District 6, for this is a meeting of great interest to the district work. Come over and help us.

N. L. Broadhead, Dist. Pres.

Railway Mail Clerks Wanted

The Government pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1200, and other employees up to $2,500 annually.

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks and other government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in city or country can get instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 11 Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y.

TEACH THE CHILDREN TO SAVE MONEY

It is often and truthfully said that a penny saved is a penny made. The foundation of many of the greatest fortunes was begun by saving a penny. The habit of saving is one of the pest that can be formed. Every child should be taught to save something every week. The satisfaction of counting these pennies when the bank is emptied is one of the pleasures that we never forget; perhaps every one of us can remember the thrill of joy we had when we emptied the contents of the pank on the table and counted and recounted this mountain of wealth; how eager we were to tell our little friends the amount of our great fortune, and raced with them in refilling the bank.

To bring this pleasure within the reach of every child and help the forming of the penny-saving habit, Messrs. Scott & Bowne, 409 Pearl Street, New York, the manufacturers of Scott's Emulsion, are offering to send to any address, for 10 cents, a beautiful little Savings Bank; each bank contains a new Good Luck Penny. Send 10 cents and get one.

ALL-DAY SINGING

There will be an all-day singing at Baker school house on Jan. 30, in the Christian Harmony and Harp books. Everybody come and bring baskets and books.

R. J. Langston.

Saved At Death's Door.

The door of death seemed ready to open for Murray W. Ayers, of Transit Bridge, N.Y., when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a dreadful condition," he writes, "my skin was almost yellow; eyes sunken; tongue coated; emaciated from losing 40 pounds, growing weaker daily. Virulent liver trouble pulling me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that matchless medicine—Electric Bitters—cured me. I regained the 40 pounds lost and now am well and strong." For all stomach, liver and kidney troubles they're supreme. 50c at Upchurch Drug Co.

There is more to a Fertilizer than Analyses

The mere mixing of materials to obtain analysis requires no special knowledge. The value of a fertilizer lies in the source from which the plant food is obtained.

Each ingredient in Royster goods is selected with a view of supplying the plant from sprouting until harvest. The plant is not overfed at one time and starved at another. Twenty-five years experience goes with every bag.

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

Sold by reliable dealers throughout the South.

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO

CLANTON, ALA.

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Is one of the latest additions to Clanton's business center, and one of the most attractive and commodious places of its kind in town, situated on southeast corner of the square. They invite you to call on them when in town and make their store your headquarters. Their stock of Millinery is complete; their Trimmer from St. Louis is right up to-date. If its quality, style and price you are looking for, their store is the place for you. Mrs. Clara Mullins is general manager, and will be glad to wait on you.

C. R. Mullins will continue his same old business, of Fire Insurance, Life Insurance, Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs, in the new Company's store. He thanks you for past favors and solicits your future business.

Yours truly,
THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO

NEW FEED STORE

At Goodgame's Old Stand, near Lowe's Shop

Handle Loose Hulls, Sacked Hulls, also a good quality of Cotton Seed Meal, Corn and Hay

I also buy Scrap Iron, Hides, Green and Green Salted and Flint Hides.

BEST PRICES BOTH WAYS

CALL AND SEE ME
N. B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

...Court meets second Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in September and first Monday in December.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...today.....14½ @ 14½c
...same date last year ..9½ @ 10c
...Bales received to date
...house receipts
...to 5 p. m. Wednesday.....5910

...W. E. Smith of Randolph ...one of our welcome visitors Thursday.

...J. M. Williams of Route ...us a pleasant call Friday.

...Thomas Weldon of Billing... was in town Saturday.

...V. M. Courtney of Jones ...a pleasant caller Saturday.

...H. M. Burnett of Billingsley ...a visitor here Monday.

...wreck on the L&N last Thurs... morning delayed passenger ...ic for an hour or two. A box ...of a freight train jumped the ...k and blocked the line. No ...was hurt.

...lias Sallie Cooley visited Thors... Saturday.

...Mr. J. H. Middleton went to ...mingham Saturday night, re... ning Sunday.

...Postmaster Dudley has returned ...m a successful hunting trip in ...th Alabama.

...Mr. and Mrs. Moses Robinson ...visiting their son, Mr. J. E. ...binson.

...Mrs. P. I. Hopkins spent Tues... ...in Birmingham.

...Mrs. Nannie Crichton visited ...untain Creek Tuesday.

...Mrs. Mary Teel is slowly im... ...ving.

...Mr. J. M. Arledge, of Montevallo ...s a visitor Tuesday.

...Mr. W. A. Davis, of Anniston, ...s in town Tuesday.

...Mr. R. K. Walker, of Planters... lle, gave us a pleasant call Tues... ...y.

...Mr. C. W. Mitchell, of Verbena, ...s a welcome visitor Tuesday.

...Mr. J. M. Popwell, of Route 6 ...ve us a pleasant call Tuesday.

...Mr. G. E. Hicks, of Route 3, ...s a pleasant visitor Wednesday.

...Mr. Roland W. Taylor, spent ...nday in Mountain Creek.

...Mrs. G. B. Wimberly returned ...her home at Reform, Ala., on ...onday, after a pleasant visit to ...r parents, Dr. and Mrs. Matthews.

...Mr. H. L. Reed of Baltimore ...as in town Tuesday.

...Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Beauchamp ...Montgomery were the guests of ...r. and Mrs. E. A. Matthews, ...Wednesday. Mr. Beauchamp or... anized a Commandery of Knights ...emplar while in town.

...Mr. J. H. Carter of Mulberry ...ised a hog two years old weigh... ...g 530 pounds.

...Mr. E. M. Pinckard went to the ...apital city Tuesday.

...Dr. Arthur Johnson spent Mon... ...ay night in Montgomery.

...Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is ...very valuable medicine for throat ...nd lung troubles, quickly relieves ...nd cures painful breathing and a ...angerously sounding cough which ...ndicates congested lungs. Sold by ...ll druggists.

...W. C. Harris & Sons will open ...p a general merchandise business ...t Mountain Creek, February 1, ...nd will be pleased at your calling ...n them.

...Marriage licenses have been issued ...this week by the Probate Judge to ...the following persons:

...Mr Only Smith and Miss ... Clemons; Mr Bird Brown ... Miss Minnie Daniels; Mr ... W. Mitchell and Miss Lillian Cooper, Colored. Henry Davis and Mattie Davis.

Making Life Safer

Everywhere life is being made more safe through the work of Dr. King's New Life Pills in Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver troubles, Kidney Diseases and Bowel Disorders. They're easy but sure, and perfectly build up the health. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

He Wanted to Know.

"And now," said the temperance lecturer in confusion, "I shall be glad to answer any questions concerning the baleful results of the use of intoxicants."

A man with a red nose arose in the audience and said:

"You have studied intoxication for many years?"

"For thirty-two years, sir, and I"—

"Well, I want to ask, in justice to the drinking classes, if you ever in all that time saw a drunken man holding up a lamppost as he is usually pictured in the funny papers?"—Life.

is more
ertilizer nalyses

mixing of btain analyno special
The value lies in the which the obtained.
redient in ls is selected f supplying m sprouting
The plant ed at one arved at an-enty-five nce goes with

MARK
S.R.
TERED ealers throughout outh.
r Guano Co.
LK, VA.

ES & CO
ON, ALA.

MILLINERY CO.
anton's business center, and one o
s places of its kind in town, situated
. They invite you to call on them your headquarters. Their stock of mer from St. Louis is right up toes you are looking for, their store is lline is general manager, and will be s same old business, of Fire Insur-chines, Pianos and Organs, in the you for past favors and solicits your s truly,
NTON MILLINERY CO.

STORE
and, near Lowe's Shop
cked Hulls, also a good
d Meal, Corn and Hay
Hides, Green and Green
Flint Hides.
BOTH WAYS
D SEE ME
B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

p at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

...missioners' court meets second Mon-
...February, first Monday in April, first
...day in June, second Monday in July
...d Monday in August and first Monday
...ember.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...to day.....14¼ @ 14½c
...same date last year 9½ @ 10c
...Bales received to date
...rehouse receipts
...to 5 p.m. Wednesday....591c

Mr. W. E. Smith of Randolph was one of our welcome visitors Thursday.

Mr. J. M. Williams of Route 7 gave us a pleasant call Friday.

Mr. Thomas Weldon of Billingsley was in town Saturday.

Mr. V. M. Courtney of Jones was a pleasant caller Saturday.

Mr H. M. Burnett of Billingsley was a visitor here Monday.

A wreck on the L&N last Thursday morning delayed passenger traffic for an hour or two. A box car of a freight train jumped the track and blocked the line. No one was hurt.

Miss Sallie Cooley visited Thorsby Saturday.

Mr. J. H. Middleton went to Birmingham Saturday night, returning Sunday.

Postmaster Dudley has returned from a successful hunting trip in South Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses Robinson are visiting their son, Mr. J. E. Robinson.

Mrs. P. I. Hopkins spent Tuesday in Birmingham.

Mrs. Nannie Crichton visited Mountain Creek Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary Teel is slowly improving.

Mr. J. M. Arledge, of Montevallo was a visitor Tuesday.

Mr. W. A. Davis, of Anniston, was in town Tuesday.

Mr. R. K. Walker, of Plantersville, gave us a pleasant call Tuesday.

Mr. C. W. Mitchell, of Verbena, was a welcome visitor Tuesday.

Mr. J. M. Popwell, of Route 6 gave us a pleasant call Tuesday.

Mr. G. E. Hicks, of Route 3, was a pleasant visitor Wednesday.

Mr. Roland W. Taylor, spent Sunday in Mountain Creek.

Mrs. G. B. Wimberly returned to her home at Reform, Ala., on Monday, after a pleasant visit to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Matthews.

Mr. H. L. Reed of Baltimore was in town Tuesday.

Mr and Mrs. Geo. A. Beauchamp of Montgomery were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Matthews, Wednesday. Mr. Beauchamp organized a Commandery of Knights Templar while in town.

Mr. J. H. Carter of Mulberry raised a hog two years old weighing 530 pounds.

Mr. E. M. Pinckard went to the capital city Tuesday.

Dr. Arthur Johnson spent Monday night in Montgomery.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a very valuable medicine for throat and lung troubles, quickly relieves and cures painful breathing and a dangerously sounding cough which indicates congested lungs. Sold by all druggists.

W. C. Harris & Sons will open up a general merchandise business at Mountain Creek, February 1, and will be pleased at your calling on them.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr Only Smith and Miss Forest Clemons; Mr Bird Brown and Miss Minnie Daniels; Mr. C. W. Mitchell and Miss Lillian Cooper. Colored. Henry Davis and Mattie Davis.

Making Life Safer.

Everywhere life is being made more safe through the work of Dr. King's New Life Pills in Constipation, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver troubles, Kidney Diseases and Bowel Disorders. They're easy, but sure, and perfectly build up the health. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

He Wanted to Know.

"And now," said the temperance lecturer in confusion, "I shall be glad to answer any questions concerning the baleful results of the use of intoxicants."

A man with a red nose arose in the audience and said:

"You have studied intoxication for many years?"

"For thirty-two years, sir, and I"—

"Well, I want to ask, in justice to the drinking classes, if you ever in all that time saw a drunken man holding up a lamppost as he is usually pictured in the funny papers?"—Life.

New Goods

We have them in beautiful display!

Call in and look around! Any time!

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.
At a live and let live price
FONE 317

W. H. SARTOR

Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

CLANTON, ALA.

B. E. JONES — CRIT JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF

Dry Goods. Shoes, Hats, Notions

FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully

B. E. JONES & BRO.

CLANTON, ALA.

COME TO

MOBILE

Mardi Gras Carnival

FEBRUARY 6, 7 and 8, 1910

Handsomer Parades
More Music
All Features Better Than Ever!

THREE DAYS

Fun, Frolic and Amusement!

CHEAP RATES ON ALL RAIL AND WATER LINES

Zero.

The word "zero" is from the Spanish and means "empty," hence nothing. It was first used for a thermometer in 1795 by a Prussian named Fahrenheit. By experimenting with snow and salt Fahrenheit found that he could produce a degree of cold equal to that of the coldest winter day. It happened that the day on which he made his final experiment was the coldest that anybody could remember, and, struck with the coincidence of his scientific discovery, he hastily concluded that he had found the lowest degree of temperature, either natural or artificial. He called the degree "zero" and constructed a thermometer graduating up from zero to boiling point, which he marked 212 and the freezing point 32.

An Ancient Tree.

A mammoth olive tree in the garden of Gethsemane is at least a thousand years old.

Recipes For Happiness.

Happiness is not to be procured like hard take in a solid lump. It is composed of innumerable small items. The recipes for its acquisition are simple, and therefore we ignore them. Love in marriage, fidelity in friendship, affection between parent and children, courtesy in intercourse, devotion to duty and perfect sincerity in every relation of life—those are the ingredients of a happy life. In the quest for happiness one could not do better than put into practice the precepts of the great Persian, "Taking the first step with the good thought, the second step with the good word and the third step with the good deed, I entered paradise."—Sarah Grand.

Advice.

The more we need advice the less likely we are to appreciate the kind we get.—Exchange.

Personal.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never disappoints those who use it for obstinate coughs, colds and irritations of the throat and lungs. It stands unrivalled as a remedy for all throat and lung diseases. Sold by all druggists.

Beat Nine

Editor Banner—Will you give me a small space in your columns to say a few words in reply to some unreasonable arguments some are making against stock law? I don't propose to tell any great corn or grass stories that I saw in the West. One man says during his travels through the West, that he was where they could raise more grass on ten acres than we can on a whole section here, and he claims that was in stock law, and he farther says that those people didn't want stock law. That seems a little strange as they have got it; it strikes me that they would get rid of it if they didn't want it.

I heard of a man going west in the fall of 1908, and saw a pile of corn as high as a man could throw it up with a pitchfork, and the same covering fifteen acres of land, all having been made on one farm.

Some people try to picture stock law a very bad thing, but if you want to find fine hogs and good cows and plenty of milk and butter the whole year round, go where they keep their hogs up and their cows on pasture where they can't run all over the whole country. As for the women and children leading their cow tied by the head for them to get a little grass in order that they might get a little milk and butter, Messrs. Williams and Popwell might let their women and children do that, but I am persuaded to believe that the good people of our country would make different arrangements to that, but you know some people will measure your corn by their half bushel.

Some say they are well fixed for stock law, much better than the average man could possibly be with all the efforts he might make, and still they don't want stock law. Now any one with one eye and a head as big as big as a hickorynut might view the ground they stand on; they have their land under fence and have more stock than it will support. So you see when this fine range of ours is eaten out, they can take their cattle up and put them on their pasture. So you see they have two advantages where the poor widow, whom they are so much in sympathy with, only has one. Now, gentlemen, if you want to do some poor widow a favor and one that she will appreciate, help her to build her a good pasture fence, and then keep your little piney woods rooters out of her way, and then keep your mischievious cattle from devouring her crop. It will be then that she can lie down at night and take the good rest which she deserves, and can go to church and enjoy the service and not be afraid that what she has got will be devoured when she gets home.

Just a short time ago I heard a widow say if we had stock law she could send her boy to school this winter, but as it was she would have to keep him at home and try to fix up her fence, so that other people's stock might not eat up what she tried to make.

And there is the Old Coon, he seems to know a great deal about Beat 14. The writer is personally acquainted with the Old Coon, but I think he seldom makes a track in Beat 14. If the Old Coon only had as mang good hogs and cows and as much meat in his smokehouse as the majority of the people in Beat 14, he would have milk and butter and more grease to go in his bread.

As my letter is becoming lengthy and may become wearisome to our good Editor, I will close by asking all who haven't paid their poll tax, both for and against stock law, to go and pay up, and on election day vote your convictions regardless of prejudice so that we may have the voice of the people.

With best wishes to all, I am an advocate for stock law.

A ROUNDER.

Are You Bilious?

The most of people sometimes are. This gives rise to many diseases and unfits a man or woman for the duties and enjoyments of life. As a general Liver Medicine, good for the whole family, one that has been long tried and endorsed, there is none that is equal to Granger's Liver regulator. It rids the system of all poison and effete matter and gives good health. Druggists sell it in the boxes at 25 cents per box. Every family should have this remedy on hand and use it as occasion requires. It will save suffering and doctors bills. Send for booklet to the Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Notice!

On March 5th, 1910, the beautiful Clock which is displayed in our show window will be to the Man, Woman or Child who is present at our store at 2 o'clock on the Saturday mentioned above, when the clock is uncovered that holds a time card the closest to the time the clock stops. These cards you get at our store one with each $1.00 purchase. There will be no more cash prizes given away; the next prize will be the clock.

GIVEN

On each card the time is indicated in figures, the hour, minute and second, this clock is wound up and allowed to run down, and the face will uncovered on that date. The clerks in our store will explain this to each purchaser. Don't fail to call on us when in town.

A. HEADLEY & SON

CORNER SECOND AVE., AT DEPOT.

CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—

A. M. JOHNSON'S

CASH GROCERY STORE

THORSBY, ALA.

FOR BARGAINS IN

Staple and Fancy Groceries

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone shoul take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.0C.

SLOW NEW YORK.

It Actually Made the Hustling Western Barber Sleepy.

"Why, say," said a visiting barber from the wide untrammeled west, "you folks here in New York are narrow, limited, shackled, contracted, far behind the age. You think you are the human limit when really your gait is very slow.

"I went into one of your shops here yesterday. Nice shop, good equipment, everything fine and elegant, but when I saw how slow you were here on the work it made me nervous. A good plant, but not worked to capacity.

"They had a man in a chair with a barber cutting his hair and a manicure fixing his hands and a bootblack blacking his shoes all at the same time, and I suppose you think here that that's going some to have three people work on a customer all at once, but, goodness me, you ought to look into my shop and see how we do things in my part of the country!

"I've got a shop that's every bit as modern and up to date to the last limit as anything you've got in New York, but out there we utilize our plant. What do you suppose we do when a man comes in that's in a hurry to catch a train? Think we all lie down and take a nap?

"Why, we put one barber to cutting his hair and another to shaving him, and two manicurers tackle his hands, one on each side. We take off his shoes, and two boys work on them, each blacking a single shoe, while two chiropodists get at him, each taking a foot, and at the same time we have one boy brushing the customer's hat and another brushing his overcoat, while another dusts the clothes he's got on with a vacuum duster.

"You put three people on a man at once and think you're doing something. We put on eleven and think nothing about it at all, and our town ain't a quarter as big as New York—not a quarter.

"Why, honest, this New York atmosphere makes me sleepy!"—New York Sun.

An Old Machine.

The Tubingen Morgenblatt of Oct. 31, 1829, contains a description of such a machine as then in use in the London coffee house. It was in the shape of a tobacco jar, which stood on the table and had a slot into which a penny had to be inserted to obtain a pipeful of tobacco. The weight of the coin depressed a lever and released a lock. The writer adds that a halfpenny would not do the trick, and the would be cheat could not recover his money. —London Notes and Queries.

SPIGENER'S CASH STORE

A WORD TO MY MANY CHILTON COUNTY FRIENDS

I have just gotten in a line of Dry Goods, Notions, Shoes, etc. These goods are bought right, and priced to sell, not to keep. I especially invite the ladies to call and inspect my stock, as they will see that I remembered the wants and needs of the women, children and babies as well as the men and boys.

This store will be continually receiving fresh goods the year round. You will find many things here for sale that you will not find at other stores in the country. You will also be astonished at the very low prices on many articles that I am able to make you; money saved is money made. Come and be convinced that I can save you money on many things that you have to buy. There are several reasons why I can save you money on your cash purchases.

1st. This is strictly a cash store thus doing away with the expense of a book-keeper, which is a saving of from six to nine hundred dollars a year.

2nd. This store will not have any bad account to lose and to be put on to the price of goods that you buy.

3d. I will have no collection agency to pay.

4th This is a one price store, goods will be sold to everyone at the same price.

When the people once find this out, half the force can wait on the same trade, which will lessen the expense of running any business.

This store is located next door to new Post Office building.

Yours, anxious to please,
W. D. SPIGENER

The Sitting Hen.

A hen left to herself will get off her nest very early in the morning, when the air is cool. She has the eggs heated to 103 or 104 degrees. She gets off the nest, and the cool air, coming in contact with the warm eggs, causes the moisture to precipitate, and this moistens them sufficiently without any additional moisture.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR Coughs Colds PRICE 50c & $1.00 TRIAL BOTTLE FREE

AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

THE GATE THAT WON JANE.

Story of a Young Inventor Who Made a Success.

By MARY G. BENTLEY.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Farmer Tillson hadn't a generous hair in his head. He kept every cent he got and never gave out a cent.

Jane was as open hearted as Tillson was close. She was the life of the young farmer people round about, and not one of them but loved her. Her uncle did all he could to impress her with the fact that, having some capital, she should look upon marriage as a sort of partnership in which her partner should furnish an equivalent to her own means.

One day there came to Tillson's farm a young man who asked for work. He was rather intellectual looking than muscular, a fact that did not favorably impress Tillson. But he offered to work for very low wages, and as it was harvest time Tillson employed him.

"YE MUST TALK WITH ME 'BOUT THAT GATE."

Now, Jane no sooner saw young Zeke Freeman doing the hardest work there was to be done on the farm, which her uncle put upon the young man, than she pitied him. Pity being akin to love, she loved him. She was bright enough, however, to keep the situation from her uncle, who never suspected it till Freeman one day went to him to ask for Jane's hand.

"No; ye can't have Jane," snarled old Tillson ungraciously. "She's my brother's daughter an' has money of her own, an' you ain't nothin' but a hired man with no prospects. I don't see what Jane was thinkin' on to say ye could ask me. Ye can't have her, an' that's all there is to it."

Zeke opened his mouth as though to protest or to strengthen his case by further argument, but Tillson's face was grim and forbidding, and he knew the old man too well to weaken his chances by causing useless irritation. He turned away.

That afternoon they were near the farmyard gate, Zeke digging post holes and old Tillson patching up a wheelbarrow, when the drummer of an agricultural warehouse appeared. But, instead of going straight to Tillson, he stopped at the gate and began to examine it curiously.

"Queer contrivance that," he said presently. "Good idea, though—grand, good idea. How did you happen to think of it?"

"It's some of my hired man's dilly-dallyin'," replied Tillson gruffly. "He's forever up to something of that sort. Wastes half his time."

Zeke flushed a little, but did not look up.

"No wasted time about that," declared the drummer emphatically. "It's a valuable idea. There's money in it."

"Money?" questioned Tillson eagerly. Then he saw one of the horses squeezing his body through the open doorway of the cornerib, and he rushed off. He would have sent Zeke, only he preferred him to continue at the post hole digging.

"So it's your idea, is it?" said the drummer as he crossed to Zeke's side. "Going to have it patented, of course."

Zeke laughed. "Patented!" he echoed. "That foolish thing? Why, it's nothing but a lot of stones and two hinges placed so the gate will shut of itself."

"But that's just the sort of thing which usually proves valuable," persisted the drummer. "The simpler the device, if it's useful, the better. You'll make a mistake if you don't protect the idea."

"Then I guess I'll make the mistake," said Zeke carelessly. "Patents cost money, and I haven't any. Besides, if I had I wouldn't risk 50 cents on that foolish thing."

The drummer regarded him thoughtfully. "Look here," he said suddenly, "how would you like to make a trade? I could appropriate the idea for myself if I did business that way, but I don't. Still, I like to make money wherever I see a chance. My house does a good deal in patent articles, and I can generally guess pretty close whether there's money in an idea or not. Now, if you say so, I will put this through at my own expense and keep half the profit. What do you say?"

"You mean use stones like that and all?" asked Zeke skeptically.

"No; it's only the idea I want. We would find some substitute for the stones."

Zeke's indifference began to vanish. "If you really think it's worth anything," he said doubtfully, "I'll be glad to have you fix it up. But I don't want you to lose money." Then, a little wonderingly, "I thought patents were made of pulleys and springs and—and such things and that 'twas geniuses who got 'em up who studied years and years to make 'em all right."

The drummer smiled. "It is that way sometimes," he said, "but not always. I have known inventors to have their ideas come to them in a moment, in a flash of thought. But suppose we fix this thing now."

He opened a notebook and wrote for some seconds, then tore out the leaf and handed it to Zeke.

"It's a sort of agreement for you to put your name to," he said. "Read it first, though. Never sign anything until you know what it is. Later I will have regular papers made out for both of us."

Zeke read the paper and signed his name with the pen which the drummer held ready. Then he resumed his digging. A few moments later Tillson came hurrying back.

"The dratted horse ate a full peck of good corn," he began wrathfully. "No supper 'll be get this night. Now, what is it 'bout that gate bizness? How's there money in it?"

"By getting the invention patented," answered the drummer carelessly, "but Zeke and I have fixed that up. Well, I must be going."

"But, look here!" exclaimed Tillson. "Ye must talk with me 'bout that gate. It's mine! Zeke ain't nothin' to do with it."

"Oh, I don't want the gate," said the drummer coolly. "It's only the idea, and that, I believe, belongs to Zeke. Goodby."

Tillson stared at him as he walked away, the wrath deepening on his face. Suddenly he swung round to Zeke. "What did ye get?" he demanded. "Come, hand it over."

"I didn't receive anything in money," Zeke answered.

"Stop!" roughly. "Don't tell any yarns. Didn't I hear the man say you an' him fixed it up? Now, how much money did he give ye for my gate? Look at me straight."

Zeke did so, with a half smile. "He's to pay for getting out a patent," he replied, "and have half what we make."

"An' ye didn't get any money?"

"Not a cent."

Tillson looked at him sharply, but there was no deceit in the straightforward face. Even he realized the fact. "Then ye're an idiot!" he snarled. "The man was set on the idee; I could see that from the way he spoke. Ye could have got fifty or a hundred dollars jest as easy as nothin'. Mebbe we could have made a trade for a lot of his tools. An' now—huh!—ye'll never hear from him ag'in."

Zeke did not answer, and presently Tillson went toward the barn grumbling. But his words did not disturb Zeke in the least. He scarcely expected to hear from the man again. In spite of what had been said, he could not bring himself to believe that the simple contrivance was of any value. Even when the "regular papers" came, with imposing seals and blank places for him to sign his name, he regarded them more as interesting novelties than as anything that would affect his future.

But one day a letter came which caused his eyes to open wide with amazed delight and which after a half hour of hard thinking carried him into the house after his Sunday clothes. It was nearly dark when he returned from the town. Old Tillson met him at the barn door, his face dark.

"What d'ye leave work for without my say so?" he demanded.

"Business," replied Zeke. "I heard you say t'other day the mortgage had run by and that if you didn't raise the money soon they'd be selling you out. So I've been to a lawyer and had it fixed over in my name, to save you trouble. You can pay me whenever it suits. You see," in answer to the look on Tillson's face, "I got a check for two thousand on the patent and am likely to get as much more every year. I think I'll buy Dickson's big farm that joins ours."

Tillson stood looking at the young man with mouth and eyes wide open. The expression on his face was a study. One would expect to see some shamefacedness there, but there was none. There was not even gratitude. For the moment there was surprise mingled with a feeling of suspicion that Zeke had assumed his debt that he might make something by it. One who always acts from mean motives suspects every one else of doing the same thing. His first words indicated that such was the condition of his mind.

"What interest you goin' to charge me?"

"Never mind about the interest. You can pay whatever rate you please or nothing at all."

"Waal, I suppose you've got to be paid suthin'. What is it you want?"

"Jane."

"Oh, that's the pay you're after!"

The moment the old curmudgeon's interest came to the front he was less concerned about that of his niece.

"You and she can settle that. I suppose. As long as she's satisfied I suppose I'll have to be."

Jane was perfectly satisfied, and before long there was a wedding.

But Zeke didn't buy Dickson's farm. He drifted into the employ of a firm engaged in the development of mechanical contrivances and is now a very rich man.

ABSOLUTE ZERO.

The Freezing Point of Helium Gas Is Just Above It.

Although familiar to scientists, it is not generally known that the true zero of heat has been determined. By this absolute zero is meant a temperature which cannot get any colder, which means that no heat whatever exists or can exist at that point. This point is only about 450 degrees below the zero of our ordinary Fahrenheit thermometers or 273 degrees below the zero centigrade. To realize what it signifies a few words must be placed here defining heat itself.

Heat is caused simply by the thousands of little molecules in any body or thing vibrating very fast and thus sending out waves into the ether. When these waves strike any matter they cause that matter to become hot, as we say. Now, the faster these molecules vibrate the more heat is given out and the hotter is the body itself. The slower the molecules the colder the body. So, if a condition could be reached where the molecules did not vibrate at all, why, there could be no heat, and therefore the body would be absolutely cold. This condition of affairs is reached at the above mentioned number of degrees below our ordinary scales. It is needless to say, however, that this absolute zero of heat has never been attained on this earth, the closest ever reached by man being one degree above it. This is 272 below zero centigrade and is the freezing point of helium gas, which a German professor claims to have frozen at that temperature.

From this theory of heat a peculiar view is obtained of our bodies and articles of matter. We would find, if we had a microscope to see small enough, that every bit of matter at any temperature that we can now get is a seething mass of moving molecules and vibrating particles. One proof of this is when a metal expands on becoming warmer. If we weigh it we find that a hot body weighs no more than the same body cold, yet it gets larger, both longer and broader. To do this it must be composed of moving particles that on becoming excited get farther apart. Another proof is that liquids and gases have been forced through every solid that exists almost. Thus water has been forced through lead, sulphur dioxide through iron, etc. The computed size of these molecules is rather interesting. It is claimed that if a drop of water represented the earth the number of molecules in the drop would be about equal to the number of grains of sand in the earth.—Exchange.

A Sweet Breath.

General opinion to the contrary, it is not always a condition of the teeth that causes unpleasant breath, as stomach disturbances have the same effect.

If a thorough examination of the mouth fails to disclose any reason for an unpleasant breath no time should be lost in putting oneself under the care of a physician, for there must be an internal condition that cannot fail to grow more serious with time if it is not corrected. The form of treatment for this state differs as the case requires, but it is safe to say that only easily digested food should be eaten and the utmost effort made to keep the stomach in a healthy state.

Constant rinsing of the mouth with antiseptics and deodorants, while they do not cure, are decidedly beneficial.

A remedy for this purpose is made from six and three-quarter drams of salicylic acid, seven and one-half grains each of orange flower water and oil of peppermint, one pint of Florida water and one-half pint of alcohol.

The peppermint is mixed with one-half of the alcohol, the rest being put to the Florida water, and the liquid is then warmed by setting in a basin put into hot water.

The acid is dissolved in the warm bath, and the other ingredients are then added. The mouth may be well rinsed with this after eating and again at night. It is supposed to act favorably upon the teeth.

An Indigestion Remedy Free

Many people who are otherwise healthy suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia. When you consider that the stomach and allied digestive organs are the most important organs of the body, it would seem that a disorder there is to be taken very seriously.

Dyspeptics cannot eat the things they like; food sours in the stomach; then chronic constipation begins, or, as is often the case, you have been constipated all along, and the stools are forced and irregular.

But there is no use letting indigestion go until it becomes chronic and undermines your health. It is good advice to suggest to you that you go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the wonderful cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles. That is what C. Fowler, of Carson City, Mich., did and he is well today. Others who did the same and are cured are Ida A. Fortune, of Grand Junction, Tenn., B. F. Thompson, of Shenandoah, Ia., who actually considers that it saved his life. You can obtain a 50-cent or $1 bottle of the druggist, and, taken according to directions, it will probably be all you need. It is a liquid, acts gently, never gripes, and besides the laxative effect, contains exceptional tonic properties which tone the stomach, and that is what is especially needed in indigestion.

All sufferers from indigestion who have never used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can obtain a free test bottle by writing the doctor. It will be sent direct to your home without any charge. In this way thousands have proven to their own satisfaction Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the very remedy they needed to cure indigestion. When once you use this grand remedy you will throw violent cathartics, tablets, salts, etc., away.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug Co

A High Day.

"Yassah, I suttingly would do dat job for yo', colonel, and proud o' de chance to extinguish muhse'f. Would horraw right in on it dis minute, sah, if 'twuzn't for one thing," said a certain lopsided colored citizen who was so unafraid of manual labor that he would often fall asleep in its presence, "and dat is, sah, dat I never likes to stigmatize muhse'f by working on a hollerday."

"Why, this is not a holiday," returned the would be employer.

"Yassah! 'Tis wid me, if you'll dars 'skuse me, sah. It's de university o' de day muh oldest boy was done sent to de penitenchy."—Puck.

Wild Animals In New York City.

It is a remarkable fact that there are always more wild animals about than any but the expert has an idea of. For example, there are within twenty miles of New York city fully fifty different kinds—not counting birds, reptiles or fishes—one-quarter of which at least are abundant, or more particularly within the limits of Greater New York there are at least a dozen species of wild beasts, half of which are quite common.—Country Life in America.

Cured of Seven Years Suffering.

Many letters are on file from grateful women who have been cured with VIN-O-VITÆ, the great female remedy. Mrs. S. E. Lord, of Glenwood, Ala., writes: "After trying two good doctors and patent medicines and all other remedies and suffered untold agony, I tried your remedy, Granger's VIN-O-VITÆ, and found relief. I suffered seven years before I became a woman. I don't know how to express my thanks to you and to your agent, Mr. Ike N. Douglas, from whom I procured the remedy that cured me."

Send for free booklet giving full information with many wonderful testimonials of cures. Druggists sell VIN-O-VITÆ at $1.00 per bottle. If your Druggist can not supply you, write to The Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Good Whiskey Stimulates

the circulation of the blood—makes the liver active and the bowels regular. For most headaches and simple complaints it is better than any drugs or medicines. Next time you feel "run down" or ill, try

Sunny Brook
THE PURE FOOD
Whiskey

It is bottled in bond, therefore absolutely pure, natural, straight whiskey, mellowed by age only and with a delicious flavor. Used judiciously, its effect is both invigorating and exhilarating. The "Green Government Stamp" on each bottle is the official proof that it has been distilled, aged and bottled under the supervision of U. S. Government Inspectors.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

4—FULL QUARTS—$5
BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	416, W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.
M. Markstein	123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	636 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St.
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd.	541 Magazine St.
Estate of Charles Feahney	111 Rampart St.
Grell Trading Co.	Pensacola, Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar	Pensacola, Fla.
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 100,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the SOUTHERN RURALIST is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The RURALIST pays $20.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; F. J. Merriam, Garden Department; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station, Horticulture Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment Station, Dairy; Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock Department; Dr. C. A. Carr, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural College, Veterinary Department; Judge F. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Miss [illegible] Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.

By special arrangement with the SOUTHERN RURALIST we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

THINK OF
Mexican Mustang Liniment
AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU.

Relief from pain that might otherwise cause you hours of agony.

Tired out muscles eased up and made ready for another day's work.

Lameness in the back and shoulders promptly cured and stiff joints limbered up.

Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Mashes rendered painless and quickly healed.

Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica robbed of their anguish and banished forever.

Ulcers, Old Sores and Open Wounds healed promptly and permanently.

The first application of Mexican Mustang Liniment subdues the pain but it continues its work until every quivering nerve is soothed and quieted.

The great penetrating power of this famous remedy enables it to do this quickly and positively.

In all cases of Sprains, Bruises or Lameness, Mexican Mustang Liniment should be rubbed in persistently.

The antiseptic qualities of this old reliable household remedy make it safe and sure.

Prices 25c., 50c., $1.00 per bottle. For sale by all Druggists. LYON MFG. CO. 41 to 45 So. 5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

GASOLINE PLOW HORSE

Farmer Also Does Harrowing With Home-made Tractor

Harry B. Kean of Ontario [illegible] N. Y., has made a good [illegible] harrow by mounting a [illegible] old binder trucks. He [illegible] of it:

"The cut shows the [illegible] drawing harrows in the [illegible] weighs 3,815 pounds. [illegible] with a ten horsepower [illegible] motor of the two cycle type, [illegible] the two three horse [illegible] rows when set [illegible] ground as they will go at [illegible] one and one half miles per [illegible] ing about two acres [illegible] have quite a good deal of fruit [illegible] farms, the principal work of [illegible] or has been just as shown in [illegible] ture, excepting that part of [illegible] the harrow used is a four horse [illegible] action disk, heavily weighted [illegible] large stone. We find the machine [illegible] advantageous for this work, as [illegible] steadily and does not work to [illegible] or the other, so that you can [illegible] drags right to within two [illegible] inches of the trees without the [illegible] of barking them.

GASOLINE HORSE.

"We use the machine also in many other kinds of work. It [illegible] two bottom gang plow (footing bottoms) seven inches deep, [illegible] same speed, and with the steering [illegible] rangement we have, I think [illegible] turn around on as narrow a [illegible] as the horses can—can turn, it [illegible] cle a very little larger in [illegible] than its length. We grind [illegible] feed, using the engine to run [illegible] Our mill is not large, but [illegible] amount of power we grind three [illegible] els per hour. The tractor is very [illegible] for pulling out brush and young [illegible] lings in old fence rows, also for [illegible] ging off bowlders, as it is [illegible] stronger than a team of horses, [illegible] also the best wire fence stretcher [illegible] have ever used. You can draw [illegible] wire up to any tension you choose, [illegible] set the brake and the wire is [illegible] stapled.

"We have never kept account [illegible] of the fuel used when [illegible] or dragging with the engine, but I believe it averages about $1.50 [illegible] day, which we do not consider [illegible] when it is taking the place [illegible] teams of horses. From the have had of the machine we [illegible] now feel as though we could [illegible] get along without it. I believe [illegible] tive power in the future is [illegible] revolutionize farming [illegible] greatly as it has the road travel [illegible] past few years."

SIDE VIEW OF GASOLINE [illegible]

Home Pasteurization of Milk.

Milk is most conveniently [illegible] ized in the bottles in which [illegible] livered. To do this use a [illegible] with a perforated false bottom [illegible] inverted pie tin with a few [illegible] punched in it will answer this [illegible] This will raise the bottles [illegible] bottom of the pail, thus allowing [illegible] free circulation of water and [illegible] ing bumping of the bottles. [illegible] hole through the cap of one of [illegible] ties and insert a thermometer [illegible] ordinary floating type of thermometer [illegible] is likely to be inaccurate, [illegible] sible a good thermometer [illegible] scale etched on the glass stem [illegible] used. Set the bottles of milk [illegible] pail and fill the pail with water [illegible] to the level of the milk. Put [illegible] on the stove or over a gas [illegible] heat it until the thermometer [illegible] milk shows not less than 150 [illegible] or more than 155 degrees F. [illegible] ties should then be removed, [illegible] water and allowed to stand from [illegible] ty to thirty minutes. The bottles [illegible] will fall slowly, but may be [illegible] uniformly by covering the bottles [illegible] a towel. The punctured cap [illegible] replaced with a new one or [illegible] should be covered with an [illegible] cap. After the milk has been [illegible] directed it should be cooled. [illegible] danger of breaking the bottles [illegible] ter should be warm at first, [illegible] the warm water slowly with ice. After cooling, milk should [illegible] cases be held at the lowest [illegible] temperature.

Stimulates
the liver active and the
and simple complaints it es. Next time you feel

Brook
FOOD
key tely pure natural, straight
th a delicious flavor. Used ting and exhilarating. The h bottle is the official proof bottled under the super-
rs.
., Jefferson Co., Ky.
ARTS—$5
PREPAID
Distributors:
W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.
amore St., Cincinnati, O.
las St., New Orleans, La.
tres St.
ssine St.
part St.
Pensacola, Fla.
Memphis, Tenn.
Pensacola, Fla.
Jacksonville, Fla.
EMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
C. O. D.

Your Home
THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.
the Greatest Agricultural Paper in he South today. It covers every deartment of the farm and home. We ve examined it carefully, and con-
der THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
he most valuable premium we can ffer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one
n request.
The most valuable thing about the uthern Ruralist is the Prize Spe-ls, which are published on the first each month. The Ruralist pays
0.00 each month for the best arti-
from its subscribers on special pics, such as Fall Plowing, Poul-
, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Garden-
, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, rying, etc. These articles come m every part of the country. They e written by men who do the work d give actual experience. They ll help you as nothing else will.
AND STAFF WR' S
rs: E. J. Merriam, C arf-Experiment Statio ture rginia Experiment S dry;
tion, Live Stock C Dr.
abama Agricultural E clerltry Department; M Mer-ead in every number.
ubscription to the man who will take free or two papers for the price of one.
ny Ruralist we are able to offer ion to this paper at Ruralis for $1.00.

ment of Mexican Muss the pain but it l every quivering queted.
ng power of this les it to do this y.
, Bruises or Lame-ustang Liniment
ersistently.
es of this old relia-
make it safe and

BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

GASOLINE PLOW HORSE.

Farmer Also Does Harrowing With Homemade Tractor.

Harry B. Kean of Ontario county, N. Y., has made a gasoline plow and harrow by mounting a motor on some old binder trucks. He says of it:

"The cut shows the tractor at work drawing harrows in the orchard. It weighs 3,815 pounds. It is equipped with a ten horsepower double cylinder motor of the two-cycle type. It draws the two three-horse spring tooth harrows when set about as deep in the ground as they will go at the speed of one and one-half miles per hour, covering about two acres per hour. As we have quite a good deal of fruit on our farms, the principal work of the tractor has been just as shown in the picture, excepting that part of the time the harrow used is a four horse double action disk, heavily weighted with large stone. We find the machine very advantageous for this work, as it goes steadily and does not work to one side or the other, so that you can keep the drags right to within two or three inches of the trees without the danger of barking them.

GASOLINE HORSE.

"We use the machine also in a great many other kinds of work. It hauls a two bottom gang plow (fourteen inch bottoms) seven inches deep at the same speed, and with the steering arrangement we have I think we can turn around on as narrow a headland as the horses can—can turn it in a circle a very little larger in diameter than its length. We grind our own feed, using the engine to run the mill. Our mill is not large, but with this amount of power we grind thirty bushels per hour. The tractor is very handy for pulling out brush and young saplings in old fence rows; also for dragging off bowlders, as it is so much stronger than a team of horses. It is also the best wire fence stretcher we have ever used. You can draw the wire up to any tension you choose and set the brake and the wire is held till stapled.

"We have never kept accurate account of the fuel used when plowing or dragging with the engine, but I believe it averages about $1.50 worth per day, which we do not consider much when it is taking the place of two teams of horses. From the use we have had of the machine we do not now feel as though we could possibly get along without it. I believe motive power in the future is going to revolutionize farming operations as greatly as it has the road travel in the past few years."

SIDE VIEW OF GASOLINE HORSE.

Home Pasteurization of Milk.

Milk is most conveniently pasteurized in the bottles in which it is delivered. To do this use a small pail with a perforated false bottom. An inverted pie tin with a few holes punched in it will answer this purpose. This will raise the bottles from the bottom of the pail, thus allowing a free circulation of water and preventing bumping of the bottles. Punch a hole through the cap of one of the bottles and insert a thermometer. The ordinary floating type of thermometer is likely to be inaccurate, and if possible a good thermometer with the scale etched on the glass should be used. Set the bottles of milk in the pail and fill the pail with water nearly to the level of the milk. Put the pail on the stove or over a gas flame and heat it until the thermometer in the milk shows not less than 150 degrees or more than 155 degrees F. The bottles should then be removed from the water and allowed to stand from twenty to thirty minutes. The temperature will fall slowly, but may be held more uniformly by covering the bottles with a towel. The punctured cap should be replaced with a new one or the bottle should be covered with an inverted cap. After the milk has been held as directed it should be cooled. To avoid danger of breaking the bottle the water should be warm at first. Replace the warm water slowly with cold water. After cooling, milk should in all cases be held at the lowest available temperature.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson V.—First Quarter, For Jan. 30, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. v, 17-26, 38-48—Memory Verse, 44—Golden Text, Matt. v, 43—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

There are some prominent facts which we must keep in mind in all Bible study—the Bible is the history of salvation; salvation is of the Lord; salvation is of the Jews; known unto God are all His works from the beginning of the world. He worketh all things after the counsel of His own will, and the eternal purpose which He has purposed in Christ Jesus is that all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God and the whole earth be filled with His glory. To that end He is steadily working, and in all the different parts of this book, which is forever settled in heaven, we have some phase of the working out of this eternal purpose. The whole Bible story points onward to a time when "a king shall reign in righteousness, * * * and the work of righteousness shall be peace" (Isa. xxxii, 1, 17). Our blessed Lord was always talking about this kingdom and giving samples of the power that would be manifest even in the bodies of His redeemed when the kingdom shall have come. Between His resurrection and ascension during those forty days He spake of things pertaining to the kingdom of God.

In this discourse, spoken to His disciples probably in the hearing of the multitude, He describes the righteousness which will be fully manifest on earth when the kingdom comes, a righteousness of the Ten Commandments, which He here teaches us refers not only to outward acts, but to the thoughts and intents of the heart. He alone of all who have ever lived on earth manifested the righteousness of the law perfectly in His life. He could truly say, "I delight to do Thy will, O my God; yea, thy law is within my heart" (Ps. xl, 8).

Having no sin of His own, for He was without sin, He bare our sins in His own body on the tree and became the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth (Rom. x, 4; II Cor. v, 21). Anything less than the righteousness which was manifest in the Lord Jesus Christ cannot stand before God, and as no one is able perfectly to keep God's holy law it is written, "By the works of the law shall no flesh be justified." The law shuts our mouths concerning our own righteousness and points us to Christ that we may receive Him as the righteousness of God most graciously provided for every sinner (Rom. iii, 19-24; Gal. ii, 16; iii, 24). Yet there are many in so called Christian lands, members of churches, who, being ignorant of God's righteousness, are ever going about to establish their own righteousness (Rom. x, 3). None of those can in any case enter into the kingdom of heaven (verse 20). According to James ii, 10, breaking one command breaks them all, for the law is one. From Rom. vii, 7, we infer that Paul thought he had kept the Ten Commandments until in the light of the tenth he saw himself a sinner and guilty. Love is the fulfilling of the law (Rom. xiii, 10), and as we can only manifest our love to God by our love to our fellows, therefore with the Lord Jesus Christ as our only example we must remember His words in John xv, 12, "Love one another as I have loved you." Also in I John iv, 11, "Beloved, if God so loved us we ought also to love one another." When the Lord Jesus lives in us fully and His spirit has full control of us we will manifest even here in this age the love that is kind to those who are unthankful and evil, who curse and hate and persecute and despitefully use us. Any one can love those who love them, but to love one's enemies is not possible to the natural man. As a poor Indian once said, "This Indian can't do it; God must make a new Indian." When we have seen our guilt and that all our righteousnesses are only filthy rags and have truly received the Lord Jesus Christ, then we are before God in Christ, and He is made unto us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption (I Cor. i, 30.) We are justified freely by His grace, justified by faith, justified by His blood, and there is no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus, but it is all to the end that the righteousness of the law may be fulfilled in us who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit.

The light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ having shined in our hearts, we must let the light shine through us to His glory that others may receive Him too. Verses 44, 45, do not teach us that by loving our enemies we become children of God; but, having become His children by receiving Jesus Christ (John i, 12), we are manifestly such in the eyes of others only when we act as such. We are not only sanctified, but perfected forever by the one great sacrifice of the Lord Jesus (Heb. x, 10, 14), and now we are to walk not as others who are still in the world, but ever aiming at a more perfect manifestation to others of the love of God to us, for if we love one another God dwelleth in us, and His love is perfected in us and He is seen in us (I John iv, 12). It is only as we understand the kingdom, which is righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost, that we can walk worthy of it (Rom. xiv, 17; I Thess. ii, 12) and manifest in our lives the life of Him who when He was here in His humiliation revealed the Father. Dwelling in Him we dwell in love, and His love will constrain us.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Draft Brood Mares.

The first thing which the farmer and future horse breeder must select is his brood mares. These should be selected primarily from the standpoint of their being able to do the work required of them. It would be a mistake to select heavy draft mares for some of the rough hill or mountain farms and a greater mistake to try to do the work on comparatively level farms with light mares. Horse power is cheaper than man power.

Maternity rather than beauty should also be kept in view. The best looking mare is seldom the best breeder. The brood mare should have a roomy, somewhat loose construction rather than the compact, closely knit form, which is more attractive to the eye. It is a general rule of breeding that compactness should be sought in the male, size in the female. A partial exception to this rule is in the production of draft horses on the farm. Excessively heavy mares would be unwieldy for general farm work. Therefore size is sought in the stallion, and mares are chosen which are not too large to be profitable workers, but large enough to mate consistently with the stallion selected.—Professor Thomas I. Mairs Before Pennsylvania Normal Institute.

Color in Draft Horses.

This important matter is certainly too little considered. It is all moonshine to say that a good horse is never of a bad color, and the old saw has done harm enough and to spare. The fady colored equine may possibly be able to do as hard a day's work as the black, the brown or the dark chestnut, but it very likely may not. Fady colors and delicate constitution go together very often, while such shades or blazing marks are never admired by the buyer. The dealer will not be long telling you about it if you have a fady chestnut, a piebald, light gray or cream colored horse to sell, and certainly those firms that pay high figures for their heavy horses will not countenance bad colors. Then upon the principle of holding every feature up to top quality and missing no advantage a farmer is foolish to breed from peculiar colored mares. How many of the most promising fillies which will make the best brood mares are sold just because they bring in a little extra money, while the inferior ones are kept to become brood mares!—W. R. Gilbert in National Stockman.

Feed Cows Liberally.

Remember it pays to feed a cow to the limit of her capacity. It can be safely depended upon that a cow which receives only three-fourths of a full ration will yield only one-half as much milk as the same cow receiving a full ration. The reason for this is that about 50 per cent of all the food that a cow consumes is required for her maintenance. The other half goes to form milk. When we withhold one-fourth of the full allowance of feed for a cow we are supplying only one-half the amount of feed which is actually required for the production of milk. Yet I think that it is safe to say that at least nine-tenths of our dairymen fail to supply the final quarter of the cow's ration. Always feed a cow to her full capacity, and this means to supply feed as long as there is an economical response in milk. Of course it would be perfectly useless to feed a cow whose milk production is limited to two gallons per day a four gallon ration, because the feed for the two gallons would be wasted.—Professor John Michels.

Cabbage Rack For Hens.

A convenient rack for feeding cabbage, cut or whole clover, etc., is made by nailing poultry wire to the side of the house in such a way that it bulges and forms a pocket. It is nailed on two sides and bottom. The hens eat the green food through the mesh of the wire, and very little is wasted.—Western Poultry Journal.

Neglected Colds and Coughs are the cause of many cases of Pneumonia and Consumption. No matter how slight your Cough or Cold may be, cure it before it has a chance to do any harm.

DR. D. JAYNE'S Expectorant is the oldest and best known medicine in the world for relieving and curing Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Croup, Whooping-Cough, and diseases of this class. Your druggist will supply you. In three size bottles, $1.00, 50c. and 25c.

Dr. D. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge is an excellent tonic for both adults and children. It is also a safe worm medicine.

Changing Her Mind.

By an unwritten law it is held to be the privilege of woman to change her mind, a license of which she rarely fails to avail herself. The German proverb has it that "women are variable as April weather." According to an old English adage, "A woman's mind the winter winds change oft." In Spain it is much the same: "Women, wind and fortune soon change, and she can laugh and cry both in a wind." The old Latin poet Catullus was of opinion that "what a woman says to her ardent lover ought to be written on the winds or on running water." Even the gallant Sir Philip Sidney wrote:

He water plows and soweth in the sand
And hopes the flickering wind with net to hold
Who hath his hopes laid on a woman's hand.

—Kansas City Star.

Corrected.

Mr. Struckoll—That there sculptor feller says he's goin' to make a bust of me. Mrs. Struckoll—Henry, it's dreadful the way you talk. Say "burst," not "bust."—Philadelphia Record.

Fever Sores.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also excellent for chapped hands, fever sores, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all druggists.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for at Clanton, Ala., postoffice, for week ending Jan. 22, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST

D. B. McCary, Jesse Martin, W. A. McCreless, Pernell Rome, Fielder Rodgers, L. F. Norris.

LADIES' LIST

Lizzie Belakhard, Mrs. Genettie Taylor, Mrs. Emer Downing.

These letters will be sent to the dead letter office, Feb 5, 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY, Postmaster.

BULBS

PLANT YOUR BULBS NOW FOR EARLY BLOOMS

We have Dutch Hyacinths, Roman Hyacinths, Narcissus, Jonquils, Tulips, Daffodils, Freesias, Snowdrops, Oxalis, Callas, Chinese Sacred Lilies and Easter Lilies.

Prices as cheap as any northern seed house.

After October 15th, or the first heavy frost, we can supply two-year old field and Southern grown Rose Plants, both Bush and Climbing Roses.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season.

Cut flowers, wedding boquets and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

A postal card will bring you a copy of our latest price list.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists

W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor

City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP

Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Cumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.

First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.

W. E. MADDOX

CLANTON, ALA.

WELLS Bored and Drilled

T. B. TEEL

Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells

CLANTON, ALA.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS

Alabama's Greatest Newspaper

BY MAIL

(Cash in Advance)

$3.40

A YEAR

On rural routes and small inland towns where we have no carrier delivery. For four months, $1.20, eight months, $2.30. For a lesser time than four months the rate is 50c per month. Cash must accompany order, otherwise the rate is same as in carrier or agency towns, 50c per month or $5.00 per year. The Birmingham News is recognized throughout the State and Nation as "Alabama's Greatest Newspaper."

Whatever happens of importance in the State, Nation, or throughout the world is printed in The News. Always read The News and keep posted.

Agents wanted. Remit by money order or registered letter, to

THE BIRMINGHAM NEWS.

Birmingham, Ala.

The Wistaria.

In China wistaria leaves are eaten and also used in place of tea. The flowers are also eaten.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands.
Office: Room 1, Court House.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I. HOPKINS
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
Office Hours 8 to 9 a. m.
CLANTON

Directory of Clanton Baptist Church.
Preaching at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. on 1st and 3d Sundays.
Prayer Service at 7:30 p. m. every Thursday.
Sunday School at 9:45 a. m. every Sunday. W. E. Maddox, Supt.
Communion Service 1st Sunday in January, April, July and October.
Ladies Aid society at 3 p. m. on Monday after the 1st Sunday. Mrs. W. T. Collier, President.
All members are earnestly requested to be regular and prompt in their attendance, the public are cordially invited and strangers will find a hearty welcome. P. M. WOODS, Pastor.

AWAY ABOVE EVERYTHING

Lewis 66 Rye

AWAY ABOVE EVERYTHING

FOUR FULL QUARTS $5.00, EXPRESS PREPAID

BLENDED GOODS
Express Prepaid
Lewis' 66 — Hunter — Harper
Echo Springs — Cascade (Tennessee)
Wilson — Murry Hill Club
Any of the Above Brands
4 Full Quarts $5.00 — 12 Full Quarts $12.00
Express Prepaid

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Blum's Monogram	$4.00	$12.00
Sheridan Club	2.75	8.00
Maryland Club	3.50	13.50
Mt. Vernon	4.00	16.00
4 Bottles in the Set — 12 Bottles
Four Roses	7.00	18.50
Three Feathers	7.00	18.50

CORN WHISKEY

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Tennessee Old Reserve	$4.00	$11.00
Black and Blue	3.00	9.00
Harvest Corn	3.50	10.50
Locust Valley	3.50	10.50
Chicken Bone	3.25	9.00

BOTTLED IN BOND

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Clarke's Pure Rye	$5.00	$13.00
Sunny Brook	5.00
Early Times	5.00	12.00
Guggenheim	5.00	12.00
Mellwood	5.00	12.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Kinnicki Spring	4.00	11.00
Clark's Sour Mash	4.00	10.50

All the Above Goods are Delivered Express Paid

BULK WHISKIES
Express Paid
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $5.50, $6.00 per Gallon
BULK CORN WHISKEY
100 Proof
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 per Gallon, according to age.

We handle all Imported Wines and Liquors. Ask for Prices.

LONG DISTANCE PHONE 189

517-519 West Bay Street — CHAS. BLUM & COMPANY — Jacksonville Florida

BIG AVIATION MEET.

Eighty Thousand Dollars in Prizes Offered to Contestants at Los Angeles.

According to the announcement of the promoters of the midwinter aviation meet to be held on the old Santa Anita race track, near Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 10 to 20, it will be the first international aviation meet ever held in the United States. Some of the men behind the meet are among the most prominent on the Pacific slope. Among them are Henry Huntington, son of the late Collis P. Huntington, the railroad magnate, who has given $50,000 to the prize fund; Franklin K. Lane of the interstate commerce commission, and Dick Ferris, who is well known on Broadway, New York, and in aeronautical circles is familiar as the owner of the two spherical balloons, United States and America.

The park for the meeting of spherical balloons, many of which are expected, is near the center of the city for the convenience of obtaining cheap gas.

For the aeroplane contests the Lucky Baldwin ranch, an old race track at Santa Anita, within reach of the city by the street trolley service, has been selected. The spot is an ideal one. It is in the center of a great plain, thousands of acres in extent, is surrounded with orange and lemon groves, which in January are at their richest hues, with the intermingled colors of the fruit and foliage, and for background it has the sharp and beautiful contrast of the snow capped mountains, ten miles away.

So far as the difficulty of weather goes, there is little likelihood of interference. The records of thirty years show that the highest wind at Los Angeles has amounted to only 6.1 miles per hour.

In addition to Curtiss and Willard and two, if not four, other Curtiss machines, several distinguished foreign aviators are to be present with Bleriot and Farman aeroplanes. Among those who came from France are Culler, Masson, Miscarol and Paulhan, who is accompanied by his wife.

The prize list amounts to $80,000 and will be divided among aeroplanes, dirigible and spherical balloons.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 15¢ MORE MODELS

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50¢ A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
Home subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

PLANT EXPEDITION.

Agronomists to Search Palestine For Drought Resisting Species.

To investigate the agriculture of ancient Palestine with a view to finding plants that will resist drought in the United States an American company capitalized at $70,000 is being formed in Washington by Dr. Aaron Aaronsohn, a Turkish agronomist.

Dr. Aaronsohn, who has enlisted the co-operation of department of agriculture officers at Washington, recently announced the discovery of a wild wheat on the slopes of Mount Hebron. This he declares to be the prototype of the modern wheat and a hardy, drought resisting plant possible of development in the arid and semiarid regions of the world.

Turkey will share with the United States in carrying on the agricultural exploration through a Jewish experiment station at Haifa. Plant industry and meteorological data will be exchanged between Washington and Haifa.

ODD FOUNTAIN FOR SCHOOLS

St. Louis Man Wants Children to Drink Like Birds.

Children in public schools of St. Louis are to imitate the attitude of little birds staring upward with mouths gaping for food if Superintendent Ben Blewett gets his newfangled drinking fountains installed.

Blewett says the children will hold their mouths wide open under faucets while streams of water trickle down their throats. The faucets will be too high for the drinkers to touch them with their lips. The flow of water will be so slow that there will be little danger of their choking as they drink or the water overflowing their mouths.

Microbes in Apples a New Scare.

Another terror for mothers has been discovered by Professor Metchnikoff of the Pasteur institute in Paris. Hitherto the humble apple has been considered one of the most healthful of fruits, and lettuce and other green salads were supposed to be especially good for children. Now comes the professor with his terrible warning that he has found a microbe making its home in apples which is so deadly that every year it kills 10,000 children in France. The microbe is said to be that of gastro-enteritis, and, besides fastening on apples, it attaches itself to the surface of the fresh greens most frequently used for salad. The professor offers a ray of hope, however. He says his microbe has a mortal antipathy to soap, and apple eaters still may indulge with safety if they first wash the fruit thoroughly in warm soapy water.

Not Unusual.

May—Have you heard of Clara's hard luck?

Belle—No. What is it?

"Now that they are married they have to retrench awfully to make up the money he wasted while courting her."—Life.

A Free Present!

To every purchaser of One Dollar's worth of goods we will give a ticket entitlingthe holder to one chance for a High Grade

STANDARD TALKING MACHINE

Now is the time. Come in and see this elegant present which we are Giving Away. Also a fine lin; of Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, Etc.

H. KANJUTZKY

CLANTON, ALA

How Often to Milk.

Most farmers and dairymen milk their cows only twice a day, and that is right. Sometimes a fresh cow needs to have an excess of milk drawn between times in order to prevent congestion and fever, but not for a long period. Some cows again have "leaking teats," which waste the milk if not relieved three or four times a day, but such cows are a nuisance and should be disposed of. To milk twice a day is enough, as a general rule. To milk three times does not seem to bring more milk, though some people have thought so and acted on that supposition.

Paint Mixed With Skimmilk.

A good inside paint where a gloss is not required and one that will not rub off can be made by mixing the dry color with sweet skimmilk and applying as other paint, says Farm Progress. Ten cents' worth of dry color (some colors sell at about 5 cents a pound), with milk to thin, will cover as much surface as a dollar's worth of oil paint and answers admirably where one is not justified in buying expensive paint, as the case where one is renting by the year.

Farm Boys as Chauffeurs.

The farmers' boys of Kansas have a new idea in education. They are learning to be chauffeurs. So many farmers have cars and they know so little of the mechanism that the sons are eager to learn. Several young men of the country have gone to some city and taken a course in motor driving. They each spend $100 or more on tuition and expenses. Then a motorcar school was started in Abilene, Kan. It has a class of eight young men taking cars to pieces and learning how they are managed. One of the pupils is a farmer worth $16,000 who does not own a car. "I just wanted to know how the machines are run," he explained, "so I put on overalls and started in."

Producing Fertile Eggs.

In order to get hens in prime condition to produce fertile eggs you are required to follow as closely after nature's plan as possible. Provide them with a liberal amount of green food, together with animal food, at least twice each week. If you cannot give them a large, roomy yard release them from confinement at least an hour each day

THE PUMA AND ITS PREY.

Ease With Which a Patagonian Lion Killed a Colt.

The puma is so fond of horseflesh that in Patagonia it is difficult to breed horses, as the colts are killed by this American lion. A native told the author of "The Naturalist in La Plata" that on one occasion while driving his horses home through a thicket a puma sprang out of the bushes to the back of a colt following behind the troop.

The puma alighted directly on the colt's back, with one fore foot grasping its shoulder, while with the other it seized the head and, giving it a violent wrench, dislocated the neck. The colt fell to the earth as if shot.

Next to horseflesh, the puma prefers mutton. He does not like veal, although he will kill a calf upon occasion. A cunning puma which on cloudy nights raided a sheep ranch used as a place of concealment the pen where a dozen calves were kept while it was waiting to attack the sheep, but it did not injure a calf.

Pigs when in large herds defy the puma by massing themselves together and presenting a serried line of tusks. The ass also resists successfully the puma's attack. When assaulted it thrusts its head between its fore legs and kicks violently until the puma is driven or thrown off.

One day an Indian while riding saw a young cow watching his approach. Her manner showed that it was in a state of dangerous excitement, and the Indian conjectured that some beast of prey had killed its calf. He began searching for the calf's body. While thus engaged the cow repeatedly charged him. Presently he discovered the calf lying dead among the long grass and by its side a dead puma with a large wound just behind the shoulder.

The calf had been killed by the puma, for its throat showed the wounds of large teeth. The cow had driven one of its long, sharp horns into the puma's side while it was sucking the calf's blood.

Experienced.

He—The love I have declared for you, my dear, is a perfect love.

She—And will you swear that you have never loved another?

He—Ah, darling, you forget that I just told you that practice makes perfect.

In timely Deat

It is estimated that from eighty to ninety per cent of all diseases are caused by diseased Kidneys or Liver. If you have symptoms of these diseases, you should at once take U-RA-CURA. It will relieve the system of the causes of these diseases, tone up the system and insure vigerous health. For many years it has stood the test of time and trial. Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Send for book of wonderful cures. Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Dropsy—

Given up by Docto

"I had dropsy, and was t
by my family physician th there was no chance for me. H family also gave me up. M limbs and body were swoll one-third larger than natur water collected around my hea and I had to be propped up bed to keep from smothering.
took Dr. Miles' Heart Remed until I was entirely cured. Th was in 1902, and I am now ab to do any kind of work on m farm. My cure was certain marvelous."

L. TURLEY CURD,
Wilmore, K

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy ha been wonderfully successful i relieving heart trouble. Its ton effect upon the heart nerves an muscles is a great factor i assisting nature to overcom heart weakness.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold b all druggists. If the first bottle do not benefit, your druggist will retu your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, In

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORNE

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some Saw Not

The Democratic Executive Co mittee is called to meet at C next Saturday, and as there is mu of interest attending this meeti full attendance is looked for.

There is barely three months the State primary, May 1, a candidates for State offices are ha at work trying to convince the v ters of their eligibility. Hon. E mett O'Neal opened his campa at Wetumpka last week and had rousing meeting.

Judge Weakley has announc his withdrawal from the guberna torial race, alleging that his time fully occupied with the railro cases before him. This leaves t field to four candidates, Emm
O'Neal, Charles Henderson, H.
D. Mallory and W. D. Seed.

There are several important o ces to be filled in Chilton count but so far candidates appear to rather backward. Possibly aft the committee meeting next Satu day there will be something doin
A successor to Judge Reynolds w be elected next November, and there is any aspiring Democrat f the office it is high time somethi was heard from him.

There were 1370 poll taxes pa in Chilton county for 1909, a 837 back receipts.

IN LESS THAN 14 DAYS

The following card was r ceived from one of my patients th had tried others:

Dr J V. Higgins, Clanton, Ala

Dear Doctor. According to pro ise I will drop you a few line
My little grand daughter's eyes a a lot better, they are not inflam so bad as they were; I got t glasses; they seem to be O. K. S says that she can see better throu them. My son in law was in Clant yesterday, and looked for you a did not find you as the eye remed is out, I am sorry that he did not s you. I will close, hoping to he from you soon, I am yours tru
M. J. MOORE,

Verbena, Ala., Route 1, Box 35

The above patient has what known in Optical Science as A blyopia-Ex-Anopsia, one e going out, and also turning in fro an error of refrection or some dise of the eye. I have three patien like this that I am treating no all being children and all repo that they are doing nicely. So w then buy your glasses from a ped who you will never see again, a in ten days you find your glasses good and your money gone, probably you go somewhere and b a pair of glasses for one or tw dollers and you and the pers who is selling the glasses to yo decides what pair you are to u you take the glasses and wear the six months and if you are n properly fitted, it is liable to cau a fine case of astigmatism, for whi you will have to wear glasses t rest of your life to cure, and th suffer all this time, then probab never get your eyes like they on were, all just because you thoug that you could not afford to pay few dollars more to have Higg or some expert to properly fit yo eyes with the proper prescripti to start with.

Now this is only common s sense, which it seems that a person ought to be able to rea out before it is too late.

So if you are troubled with yo eyes, why call in to see me. I w not charge you one cent to tell y what your eye trouble is, for I do charge for my service, so call to me and probably you will be wi if you do not care to have any wo done. I repair all kinds of spe tacle frames, eye glass mountin match up all kinds of lenses, I ma a Specialty of soldering gold spe tacle frames.

Yours respectfully,
J. V. HIGGINS, Dr. Optometr
Office Higgins' Jewelry Store, near the Depot, Clanton, Al

GOOD NEWS FOR THE KITCHEN.

Stoves, Ranges and Kitchen Utensils that deserve to be trusted. Safe, efficient, durable and sanitary That is the kind that we are offering at these low prices this season.

STEEL RANGES $20.00 TO $45.00

WHEN YOU BUY A RANGE

don't forget that economy of maintenance, working convenand durability are the points to be considered.

Buy a range that has a record of giving satisfaction in these points.

WHEN YOU BUY A RANGE

you can't do better than buy a Eureka. Thousands of them are in use every day and their records are ones of invariable satisfaction.

If you are going to buy a Cast Stove you cannot make a mistake by buying an "Arizona."

No. 7 Stoves $7.00 to $15.00

No. 8 Stoves $12.00 to $35.00

SUPERIOR STOCK! SATISFACTORY SERVICE! MAXIMUM WORTH! MINIMUM COST!

Upon these points we base our claim for your patronage. By buying our Stoves and Ranges from the best manufacturers in the whole country, and by buying them in such large quantities to supply our three stores—Clanton, Wetumpka and Alexander City—is it not reasonable to suppose that we can sell you cheaper than you can buy elsewhere, and that we and serve you to your advantage and entire satisfaction. All we askis a trial.

If it's Hardware We have it!

Gamble Hardware Co.

If we have it, It's the Best!

Schloss Bros. & Co.
Fine Clothes Makers
Baltimore and New York

Dropsy—
Given up by Docto

"I had dropsy, and was tol by my family physician tha there was no chance for me. M family also gave me up. M limbs and body were swolle one-third larger than natura water collected around my hear and I had to be propped up i bed to keep from smothering. I took Dr. Miles' Heart Remed until I was entirely cured. Thi was in 1902, and I am now abl to do any kind of work on m farm. My cure was certainl marvelous."

L. TURLEY CURD,
Wilmore, Ky.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy ha been wonderfully successful i relieving heart trouble. Its toni effect upon the heart nerves an muscles is a great factor i assisting nature to overcom heart weakness.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold b all druggists. If the first bottle do not benefit, your druggist will retur your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, In

N.

rable and sanitary

oves $7.CO to $15.CO

toves $12.00 to $35.00

NIMUM COST!

d by buying them in such large can buy elsewhere, and that w

If we have it,
It's the Best!

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1910 | No. 18

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The Democratic Executive Committee is called to meet at Clanton next Saturday, and as there is much of interest attending this meeting a full attendance is looked for.

There is barely three months to the State primary, May 2, and candidates for State offices are hard at work trying to convince the voters of their eligibility. Hon. Emmett O'Neal opened his campaign at Wetumpka last week and had a rousing meeting.

Judge Weakley has announced his withdrawal from the gubernatorial race, alleging that his time is fully occupied with the railroad cases before him. This leaves the field to four candidates, Emmett O'Neal, Charles Henderson, H. S. D. Mallory and W. D. Seed.

There are several important offices to be filled in Chilton county, but so far candidates appear to be rather backward. Possibly after the committee meeting next Saturday there will be something doing. A successor to Judge Reynolds will be elected next November, and if there is any aspiring Democrat for the office it is high time something was heard from him.

There were 1370 poll taxes paid in Chilton county for 1909, and 297 back receipts.

IN LESS THAN 14 DAYS

The following card was received from one of my patients that had tried others:

Dr J V. Higgins, Clanton, Ala.

Dear Doctor. According to promise I will drop you a few lines. My little grand daughter's eyes are a lot better, they are not inflamed so bad as they were; I got the glasses; they seem to be O. K. She says that she can see better through them. My son in law was in Clanton yesterday, and looked for you and did not find you as the eye remedy is out, I am sorry that he did not see you. I will close, hoping to hear from you soon, I am yours truly,

M. J. MOORE,

Verbena, Ala., Route 1, Box 35.

The above patient has what is known in Optical Science as Amblyopia-Ex-Anopsia, one eye going out, and also turning in from an error of refrection or some disease of the eye. I have three patients like this that I am treating now, all being children and all report that they are doing nicely. So why then buy your glasses from a pedler who you will never see again, and in ten days you find your glasses no good and your money gone, or probably you go somewhere and buy a pair of glasses for one or two dollars and you and the person who is selling the glasses to you, decides what pair you are to use, you take the glasses and wear them six months and if you are not properly fitted, it is liable to cause a fine case of astigmatism, for which you will have to wear glasses the rest of your life to cure, and then suffer all this time, then probably never get your eyes like they once were, all just because you thought that you could not afford to pay a few dollars more to have Higgins or some expert to properly fit your eyes with the proper prescription to start with.

Now this is only common hard sense, which it seems that any person ought to be able to reason out before it is too late.

So if you are troubled with your eyes, why call in to see me. I will not charge you one cent to tell you what your eye trouble is, for I only charge for my service, so call to see me and probably you will be wiser if you do not care to have any work done. I repair all kinds of spectacle frames, eye glass mountings, match up all kinds of lenses, I make a Specialty of soldering gold spectacle frames.

Yours respectfully,
J. V. HIGGINS, Dr. Optometry,
Office Higgins' Jewelry Store,
near the Depot, Clanton, Ala.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$25,328 56	Capital Stock Paid in	$15,000 00
Overdrafts	1,880 54	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	13,575 76
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	13,750 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	9,410 23
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	4,481 25	Savings Deposits	5,000 00
Other Real Estate	147 50	Cashier's Checks	105 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$14,502 35	Bills Payable	5,000 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	2,703 17
Currency	6,000 00
Gold	1,000 00
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,000 00
Checks and Cash Items	251 10
	27,561 25
Total	$69,099 65	Total	$69,090 99

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

JNO. A. THOMAS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 28d day of October, 1909.

J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAMUEL K. UPMAN } Directors.
M. L. GREIL

Statement of the condition of the Clanton Bank, located at Clanton, Ala., at the close of business October 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$ 91,797 69	Capital Stock Paid in	$ 15,000 00
Overdrafts	833 33	Surplus Fund	10,000 00
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	21,425 00	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	6,210 39
Furniture and Fixtures	5,000 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$ 73,362 17
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$16,000 77	Time Certificates	15,697 50
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	2,720 97	Cashier's Checks	131 00
Currency	4,005 00	Bills Payable	14,000 00
Gold	200 00		103,320 67
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,207 65
Checks and Cash Items	310 10
	25,443 50
Total	$143,824 52		$143,530 67

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of the Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 22nd day of October, 1909.

E. B. DEASON, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. H. BARTON
W. I. MULLINS } Directors.
F. D. WILSON

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Voters of the 15th Judicial Circuit:

I am a candidate for Solicitor subject to the action of the Democratic Primary on May 2nd next,.

I am no stranger in your midst. I have been a resident of Elmore County, one of the counties of the circuit, twenty-seven years, my father having moved here when I was a boy. I have held the office, which I now seek at your hands, for nearly three years. I have tried to discharge the duties that devolved upon me to the very best of my ability and without fear or favor. As to how well I have discharged my official duties, I refer you to the court records of the various counties of the Circuit. If I have made good during three years, I would ask an endorsement at your hands.

I would like very much to see every voter in the Circuit in person between now and the primary; but I will be busy a great deal of the time in the discharge of my official duties and will be unable to make a thorough canvass.

I will appreciate very much anything that my friends may do in my behalf.

D. D. ASKEW.

Jany. 31st, 1910.

Beat 15

Editor Banner—Please give me a small space in your paper to say a few words about stock law. I see Bro. Langston is trying to make it a very dark picture indeed, but let us reason it out some for ourselves. The people have kept large number of scrub cows and hogs until they think they must continue to do so. We are not condemning them, however, but want them to try keeping one good cow, feed her all the feed you would feed to three or four and see if you don't get more milk and butter and we know it would be far better. The man who pastures his cows and hogs is the one that sells butter and meat. Go anywhere you please and see if the man that has nice, firm, yellow butter to sell, doesn't keep his cows in a pasture. Go to see the men that let their cattle run at large and see if they are not without milk and butter about half the year and see if two-thirds of them don't have to buy meat.

I drop in these thoughts for you to think over. I feel sure after you consider these few thoughts you will change your mind, that is, if you are against stock law. We have not mentioned how much you would save in your timber. Just look at the thousands of dollars that are wasted every year in splitting the timber into rails, besides all the work—not counting it anything. So please think over these things, don't let Bro. Langston fool you, but come out and help us vote for stock law or the partial law. I would like it far better if it was the full stock law. We can put up a wire or two and let our cows run outside; then Bro. Langston's widows and orphans can still get milk and butter to eat.

IN FAVOR OF STOCK LAW.

Chancery Notice.

Ex parte Belle Cooley.
In Chancery at Clanton, Ala.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed in Chancery Court at Clanton by Belle Cooley, praying that the disabilities of non-age of said Belle Cooley may be removed, and that Monday, Feb. 21, 1910, has been the day set for the hearing of said petition.

Dated this Feb. 1, 1910.

H. M. SIMPSON,
Register in Chancery.

Washington, D. C., Jan 25, 1910

The Postmaster, Clanton, Ala.

Sir—In view of the extent to which the practice of placing loose coins in boxes by rural patrons has grown, and the delay in the delivery and collection of mail and the hardship imposed on rural carriers incident thereto, you are informed that, commencing February 15, proximo, rural letter carriers will not be required to collect loose coins from rural mail boxes.

Patrons should enclose coins in an envelope, wrap them securely in a piece of paper, or deposit them in a coin-holding receptacle, so they can be easily and quickly taken from boxes, and carriers will be required to lift such coins, and, where accompanied by mail for dispatch, cancel the requisite stamps.

This should be promptly announced to the rural patrons through whatever means you may employ, without expense to the Department, and you are at liberty to give the information embodied herein to your local papers for publication, if they so desire.

Respectfully,
P. V. DEGRAW,
4th Ass't Postmaster General.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of Chancery Court of Shelby county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain decree recently obtained against Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, I have levied on the following property, to wit:

The nw 1-4 and the w 1-2 of the sw 1-4, and the sw 1-4 of sw 1-4, Section 6; the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4; the se 1-4 of the sw 1-4, Section 15; the se 1-4 of the se 1-4, Section 16; the s 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the nw 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and ne 1-4 of the nw 1-4, Section 19; the nw 1-4 and the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4, and s 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and the e 1-2 of the se 1-4 Section 21; the n 1-2 of ne 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the ne 1-4 and e 1-2 of the sw 1-4, Section 22; the w 1-2 of ne 1-4 and w 1-2 of sw 1-4, Section 25; the e 1-2 of the ne 1-4, the ne 1-4 of the se 1-4, the n 1-2 of the nw 1-4 and the sw 1-4 of the sw 1-4 of Section 35, as the property of the Defendant, Thos. E Lappage.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named Henry W. Coffin, Richard W. Massey, et als, in and to the above described property on Monday, the 7th day of February, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House in Clanton.

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 27th day of December, 1909.

JOHN S. CATTS,
Sheriff of Chilton county, Ala.

New Harmony

Editor Banner—I wish to announce through the columns of your paper that there will be a debate at this place, Saturday night, Feb. 5. The subject is: "Resolved, that the whites were justifiable in disfranchising the Negro." The speakers on the affirmative are H. D. Durbin, D. C. Culp, Jeff Hayes, Miss Ruth Smith. Negative: C. C. Milford, N. B. Culp, J. L. Culp, Miss Daley Williams. Come one, come all, and let us make this one a success.

PLOW BOY.

Reason Enthroned.

Because meats are so tasty they are consumed in great excess. This leads to stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation. Revise your diet, let reason and not a pampered appetite control, then take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be well again. Try it. For sale at all druggists.

Beat Seven

Editor Banner—Allow us a space to say a few words, as we have not heard from this part in a long time.

People seem to be in very good heart and are very busy preparing for another crop.

Saturday was spent very pleasantly at Pleasant Grove church. Messrs. N. L. Broadhead, N. W. Latham, Henry Head, C. T. Walker, Dave Hicks and Buford Lawrence all made very nice talks and did the best they could. The day was spent very pleasantly by a small crowd; plenty of dinner and plenty to carry back home. We hope the next convention at Pleasant Grove church will be more largely attended.

Mrs. Sallie Ellis spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Rosie Williams, near Lawley.

Mesdames P. G. Maness, Eber Chastain and Messrs. Grady Williams and A. C. Maness enjoyed Sunday at Mr. Eugene McGee's.

Mrs. Jane Merchant spent Saturday night with Mrs. Martha McAfee.

Misses Dovie Adams and Gertrude Head from Lawley spent Saturday night with Misses Lena and Willie Walker.

Miss Bessie Hall and Miss Mandie Adams and brother spent Saturday night at Mr. Eugene McGees.

A large crowd enjoyed about two hours at the school house Saturday night. The debate was fine, some nice pieces from some young ladies and also some young men; very good order prevailed and all had a nice time.

A man with his first son-in-law is like the man that bought his first grindrock, he is very proud of him.

Wishing the Banner readers and all well,

BUSTER.

DISTRICT SIX S. S. CONVENTION

The District Convention met with Pleasant Grove Baptist church, Saturday, Jan. 29, 1910, as was announced in the program.

We spent a pleasant day, a good congregation of people being present. The subjects were well discussed, but not a single member of the program was present except Mr. N. W. Latham, who always fills his place promptly.

Now, I want to say if the people of District Six are not interested in those meetings, why not cut them out entirely? We are having a fifth Sunday meeting, run by the preachers, which is made to conflict every time, and is a hard lick on the convention, for we need the preachers to help in the convention. But it seems that this Sunday school work is too little a business for them, for we did not have a single preacher at the convention. Why is this? Is it the fault of the president? If so, I am only too glad to get out of the way. So I freely tender my resignation, and ask the county president to appoint you another president for your district.

The convention adjourned sine die, and I reckon it will die if the people don't take hold of it, for I am not going to call any more conventions for this district. I feel that I have done my duty and have no apology to make for our failure to reach the gold star which I would like so much to obtain.

Please select another man for your president, and I will help him if I can.

Yours fraternally,
N. L. BROADHEAD, Pres.
ED ELLIS, Sec.

Subscribefor The Banner.

FRUIT TREES and PLANTS

FOR SALE until MARCH 1st.

TREES—A fine assortment—adapted to this section, grown by one of the best nurserymen in the country. PRICES 12 to 15c

Cabbage Plants 25c per 100; $1.50 per 1000, f. o. b. Young's Island, S. C.

Can supply you with Strawberry Plants—the famous LADY THOMPSON.

I WANT YOUR TRADE IN THIS LINE.

JUDSON STROCK,
Clanton.

MULES.

I will be in Clanton from the 1st to 10th of February, with a car load of Young Mules for sale. I will make it to the interest of those who desire to purchase to call on me.

J. WILEY SMITH,
of Bristow, Okla.

Notice of Application to the Governor

Notice is hereby given that application will be made to Honorable B. B. Comer, Governor of the State of Alabama, on Monday, the 14th day of February, 1910, to remit the fines in the three cases wherein Will Boyd was convicted for the offense of selling liquor in violation of the law, at the Fall Term of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, 1909.

This, the 22 day of January, 1910

W. R. BOYD.

A REWARD.

A description of John Ervine and wife. Ervine is a man of about 28 years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches high, with round face, low forehead and blue eyes and red moustache about one half inch long, with dark hair and head bald all over top and to the back of his head; has a conspicuous tripping with his feet in walking; broad mouth and a constant tobacco chewer.

Mrs. Ervine is a lady 21 years of age; very small, with delicate appearance; a perfect blonde; a heavy suit of very light hair, and fair skin and blue eyes; wore a brown coat suit with brown face veil; had dental work of gold in front teeth.

Ervine and his wife passed through this section of the country Jan. 14, 1910, going from house to house, claiming various vocations of life, and obtaining money under false pretenses from me and my neighbor. He obtained $23, besides many attempts he made and failed. The last of his whereabouts was in Adams Ferry road, going towards Clanton. He was driving a small pair of black mules to a top buggy. A liberal reward will be paid for his arrest.

S. J. DUPRIEST, S. H. HILYER.
Marble Valley, Ala., Jan, 28.

WANTED.

FOR SALE—Two Four-acre lots with 3 roomed houses on them, good wells of water; and one Store House and lot—all in Coopers, Ala. will sell them cheap. Apply to

J. W. CLARK, Cooper, Ala.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists.

WANTED—15 or 20 teams to haul iron ore at Wessington. Pay 85c per ton; 3 mile haul; pay every two weeks. Miners also wanted. Call or write Tom Walker, or C. H. Durham, Jemison, Ala., care Shelby Iron Co.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all druggists.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Haulen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

STRAYED

From my place, known as the Stewart place, one mile west of Clanton, November 29, 1909, a dark chestnut mule, about twelve years old, with scar on left shoulder. Any information should be sent to E. M. Pinckard & Co., Clanton, who will pay a reward of $10 for his delivery.

H. LOCKHART.

Took All His Money.

Often all a man earns goes to doctors or for medicines, to cure a stomach, Liver or Kidney trouble that Dr. King's New Life Pills would quickly cure at slight cost. Best for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Jaundice, Malaria and Debility. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

SALESMAN WANTED.

An honest, sober, energetic man to handle our business in Chilton county. Good proposition offered to right man. Must be able to furnish horse and buggy and give bonesty bond. Position open Jan. 1st, 1910. Address Box 426, Montgomery, Ala.

Are You Bilious?

If you are sallow, have headache, dizziness, loss of appetite, and feel badly generally, you should use a good aperient and liver regulator. St. Joseph's Liver Regulator has for many years relieved these ailments. It is carefully prepared and is believed by the many people who use it to be the best medicine of its kind on the market. It is made in both liquid and powdered form. Druggists and general dealers sell it, liquid 50 cents a bottle; powdered, in tin boxes 25 cents a box, or five boxes for a dollar.

Impossible to be Well

It is impossible to be well, simply impossible, if the bowels are constipated. You must pay attention to the laws of nature, or suffer the consequences. Undigested material, waste products, poisonous substances, must be removed from the body at least once each day, or there will be trouble. A sluggish liver is responsible for an immense amount of suffering and serious disease. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills. He knows why they act directly on the liver. Trust him. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

ANECDOTES OF COUNT TOLSTOY

Russia's Great Novelist, Philosopher and Reformer.

HIS CRITICISM OF BIG SLEEVES

Thought Lady Visitor Had Wasted Enough Cloth to Clothe a Little Girl. Sample of His Humor—Instance When the Great Philosopher Had No Answer Ready.

Several years ago it was written of Count Leo Tolstoy, the Russian novelist, philosopher and reformer, that while he was in no sense a popular author his books had a wider circulation than those of any other writer living at that time. His books have been translated into no less than forty-five different languages and dialects.

The man whose views were thus disseminated throughout the civilized world succeeded in achieving his aim to make his life an open book to be read of all mankind. Born to wealth, he renounced the world when he realized its vanities and retired to his estate to live the life of a farmer and to preach in his writings the doctrines of humanity. In the quiet of Yasnaya Poljana, his estate in southern Russia, Tolstoy, working side by side with the benighted and ignorant Russian peasants, became a philosopher, an expounder of Biblical teachings and an exponent of the creed that every man should earn his bread by the sweat of his brow.

Once a lady philanthropist crossed the Russian frontier to visit Tolstoy. Ushered into the presence of the philosopher, she uttered the usual conventional greetings and explanation of her visit, while he eyed her silently and in abstraction. "As if," she said afterward, "he were quietly turning back the top of my head and looking into the thoughts inside." When she had finished speaking he touched her arm, which was covered, as was the fashion at that time, with a wide sleeve, and said: "Why do you wrap so much cloth on your arms? If you ripped it off it would make a good frock for a little girl."

Desires No Wars.

Some years ago Count Tolstoy decried all revolutions and wars, declaring that there never was a good war. His address to his dear brother the emperor, written at the time of the Russo-Japanese war, was all in sorrow, not in anger, a warning, not a threat. It contained the statements of Tolstoy were:

First—The working people desire to be delivered from special laws that place them in the position of a pariah, deprived of all the rights of other citizens.

Second—They desire freedom of religious belief, freedom of education, freedom of conscience and, above all, freedom in the use of the land, the abolition of the right of landed property.

Fear of His Humor.

Despite the general seriousness of his views of life and its obligations, the following incident is a proof of Tolstoy's sense of humor: Once an American millionaire and his companion wanted very much to see the great author, and eventually this was arranged, the stipulation being that no one should speak to Tolstoy.

Tolstoy took his seat on the balcony of his house, and the American's died just as before proposition. Everything went well until the last lady arrived. She, however, did not keep her part of the bargain, for, heading forward, she called out: "Leo Tolstoy! Leo Tolstoy! All your great works have deeply influenced my life, but especially——" And here she stopped short, having forgotten the name of the book. The great author leaned over the edge of the balcony and said smilingly, "Dead Souls, perhaps?" "Yes, yes," answered the lady. "Ah, indeed!" said Tolstoy. "That book is by Gogol and not by me."

Experience With a Policeman.

Once in Moscow Count Tolstoy saw a persistent beggar asking alms, who exclaimed, "A little penny, brother, in the name of Christ!"

A police officer approached. He was young, martial and wrapped in the regulation sheepskin. At sight of him the beggar fled, hobbling away in fright and haste.

"Is it possible," said Tolstoy to himself, "that people are forbidden to ask charity in Christ's name in a Christian land?"

"Brother," he said to the policeman, "can you read?"

"Yes," said the officer politely.

"Have you read the Bible?"

"Yes."

"And do you remember Christ's orders to feed the hungry?" And he cited the words. The policeman was evidently troubled. He turned to his questioner and asked:

"And you, sir—you can read?"

"Yes, brother."

"And have you read the police regulations?"

"Yes, brother."

"And do you remember that begging in the main streets is forbidden?"

The philosopher found no answer ready.

Charming as a companion with his family, witty and laughing heartily at his own jokes, Tolstoy often delighted his children with stories of his early adventures or with fables composed on the spur of the moment for their sole edification.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

A Power in Railways.

Among the lieutenants of the late E. H. Harriman none is better known in the railroad world than Albert J. Earling, who was held in high esteem by his former chief. Wherever railroaders gather Mr. Earling's name is mentioned with respect and enthusiasm, because he began at the bottom and won his way.

Sixty years ago Mr. Earling was born in a little town in Wisconsin, and his education was acquired in the common schools. At the age of eighteen he entered the employ of the St. Paul and Minnesota as a clerk, and since then his career has been ever on the up grade. After serving for a time as clerk he learned telegraphy and became a train dispatcher. It is said of him that he never made a mistake.

ALBERT J. EARLING.

For five years he controlled the movements of the trains on the St. Paul system and then became successively assistant superintendent and general manager, achieving the latter position at the age of forty. Ten years later he was elevated to the presidency of the St. Paul. Under him that road became a part of the transcontinental route established by Mr. Harriman.

Mr. Earling was an important factor in consolidating the system controlled by Mr. Harriman and since the latter's death has been the real head of the Union Pacific.

Ballinger's First Law-Case.

Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, tells of his first law case which he had at Kankakee, Ill. "I had hung out my shingle a good while before any client arrived," he said. "Finally one came. He was a weak, meek being whom three determined women had wedded in rapid succession, and he was being tried for bigamy. As all of the wives appeared against him, we lost the case, and he got a term of two years. But this did not seem to worry him—in fact, he seemed anxious for more. He was taken to the penitentiary, and just before his term ended I got a letter from him. 'Do you think,' the bigamist asked anxiously, 'that it will be safe for me to come out?'"

A Stickler For the Law.

It is said of Judge Elmer B. Adams, one of the four United States jurists who declared the Standard Oil company to be a trust in restraint of trade, that he originated the phrase "the man higher up." Whether or not this be true, it is well known that Judge Adams is a stickler for the law as it is written and has a stern sense of justice.

It is told of Judge Adams that on one occasion a man came before him who was charged with assaulting a mail carrier and taking from him registered letters, burning all save the money contained in the pouch. Unable to believe the evidence against the well dressed man before him, the judge looked for some indication that a mistake had been made. When convinced that the culprit was guilty he sentenced him to imprisonment for life. As the astounded offender staggered from the room the judge called him back and added a sentence of twenty years.

ELMER B. ADAMS.

Judge Adams is a native of Vermont, was educated at Yale and got his law degree from Harvard. He is sixty-seven years old and was appointed to the federal bench by President Roosevelt. He is a Democrat in politics, but voted for Taft at the last election.

HELP FOR GIRLS TO BE GOOD WIVES

Institution Founded to Fit Them For Domestic Cares.

PUPILS TO BE WORKING GIRLS

Philanthropic Women of New York and Pittsburg Organized "Wifehood Guild" With the Object of Reducing Number of Unhappy Marriages—To Establish Home at Huntington, N. Y.

Believing that "fully 50 per cent of unhappy marriages among young people of the working classes are due to the wife's ignorance of the simplest duties of domestic life," philanthropic women of New York city and Pittsburg are organizing a "wifehood guild," in which, just as business is taught in the Pratt Institute, instruction in the duties of the household will be given for a nominal fee.

In a suburban home the guild will teach cooking, housekeeping and nursing to a school of 100 young working girls who will live in the institution during the six months' course. The fee will merely cover expenses.

Lectures on Physiology and Medicine.

Women doctors will lecture on physiology and medicine, so that the students may have some knowledge of the cares of motherhood.

Headquarters of the guild will be at Huntington Manor, N. Y. Three acres of land have been purchased there by the incorporators. Architects are now employed in making plans for a permanent guild house. George Doan Russell, formerly professor of corporation law at the Brooklyn Law school and one of the incorporators, said the other day that a house would be rented temporarily at Huntington Manor, in which headquarters will be opened in the spring.

"Women of New York city and Pittsburg have considered the plan," said Mr. Russell. "One of the founders is Mrs. J. Elsworth Tappan, the wife of a Pittsburg merchant, who is a patron of many Pittsburg philanthropies. Another is Mrs. J. W. Clark of 142 West Eighty-second street, New York city. Both women are prominent socially. They have interested a number of their friends in the project and have already raised the funds to finance it. The Wifehood guild will be conducted on the principle of the Pratt Institute, young people who couldn't otherwise afford it receiving education for a nominal fee."

"The organization is the outcome of a good many years of inquiry and observation on the part of its promoters," said Mrs. Tappan.

Full Course In Domestic Economy.

"Thousands of girls upon leaving the public schools immediately go to work in an office or store. These girls get false notions and are no help to the men they marry. Independence is a good thing, but it sometimes unfits girls as good wives and mothers. When a shop or office girl marries the young husband too often finds that his wife, though pretty, doesn't know the rudiments of housekeeping. Then children come, and again the girl has many things to learn.

"When we are ready for work at Huntington Manor we shall receive applicants who can furnish references, and we will give them a residential course in everything pertaining to domestic economy. Our building will accommodate a hundred pupils at a time. Payments may be made at the students' convenience."

Mr. Russell is now drawing up articles of incorporation and will apply for a state charter after getting the authority of a justice of the supreme court.

AGNES BOOTH'S KIND ACT.

How a Little Comedy of the Actress Succeeded Where Tragedy Failed.

Mrs. Agnes Booth Schoeffel, the actress known as Agnes Booth on the stage, who recently died at her home in Brookline, Mass., once acted a part which was appreciated by one person at least. It was not on the stage, so there was no applause, but she had an object in view, and as she accomplished that object her success was what it frequently is in the theater, immediate and overwhelming.

A ragged old harper played to the guests seated on a hotel veranda at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., after breakfast and then held his hat, hoping to hear the coins rattle into it. Most of those present tried to look unconscious, while some of the ladies giggled nervously. Nobody offered any money. Pity and indignation were aroused in Mrs. Booth-Schoeffel (Agnes Booth). She called her small trick dog to her and tossed him a fifty cent piece. The pretty creature caught the coin between his teeth, flipped it up on his nose and, walking on his hind legs, demurely offered the money to the old man.

The comic succeeded where the tragic had failed. Every one laughed, and every one tossed a coin at the dog. Whether he caught all the coins or not, they all found their way into the beggar's pocket.

Experiment of Business Firm.

A big commission house is experimenting with telegrams instead of letters and says the members can attend to business correspondence best with short messages.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Nelson to Fight 'Em All.

Evidently Oscar Battling Nelson, the world's lightweight champion, intends to make a grand cleanup of the so called near-champions in his division before he retires from the ring, which he has announced, will be next May. As a starter he will take on three husky young aspirants, Young Erne, Johnny Willetts and Mickey Gannon—

BATTLING NELSON.

in Philadelphia within the next few weeks. The champion has also agreed to take on Ad Wolgast of Milwaukee in a forty-five round battle in Los Angeles the latter part of February for a side bet of $5,000 and a purse of $20,000. If successful in this go Nelson will journey abroad and meet Freddie Welsh, holder of the English title. The pair were matched recently to fight before the members of the National Sporting club of London.

Three Umps Floorwalkers.

Three umpires, Cusack, late of the National league; "Pipes" Conley of the Central and other circuits and Eckman of the American association, are training for next season in an original way. The three have secured jobs as floorwalkers in a Chicago dry goods house and intend to stick at it until spring.

It is said that bargain hunters in the shopping crowds are every bit as peevish as ball players after an adverse decision, so the arbiters are getting first class training for their tempers. To date none of them has been obliged to put any one out of the game.

It is feared by their friends that they may get into the habit to such an extent that they will say "floor 2" instead of "strike" or "ball 2," as the case may be. There also is a chance they will call everything "fair" regardless of where the ball lights or rolls.

Pearce New Sculling Champion.

Harry Pearce, who recently won the sculling championship of Australia from George Day, will go after a race with Arnst for the world's title. Pearce in his race against Day gained three-fourths of a length after sculling forty seconds. At one time Pearce had five lengths lead, but Day spurted, and they entered the last furlong with Pearce leading by two lengths. With but fifty yards to cover, Pearce broke the gate of his oarlock, and his scull jumped out, but he quickly replaced it and won by half a length. The time for the championships, Parramatta course, 3 miles 330 yards, was 26 minutes 1 second. Ex-Champion William Beach was referee. Pearce weighed 182 pounds and Day 166 pounds.

Belmont Stable Disappoints.

Followers of the Belmont stable were disappointed last year. August Belmont finished seventh in the list of winning owners for the season. His total earnings were $19,175. At the end of the 1908 season the Belmont stable was third, with total winnings of $112,625. Fair Play alone won $71,510 in 1908, more than the entire season's winnings for 1909. Field Mouse was the best winner for the Belmont colors during last year, her total being $4,640.

Bomeister Yale Strong Man.

D. M. Bomeister of Brooklyn recently won the title of strong man of the freshman class at Yale. He made a total of 1,712 points against 1,611 for F. L. Samuels and 1,575 for F. Gilmore, who was third. Of the members of the class 63 call tennis their favorite sport, 46 walking, 33 swimming, 20 baseball, 17 football and 16 track athletics. This is the first class at Yale to put football practically at the bottom of the list of its favorite sports.

A Long Motorboat Race.

The Motorboat club of Seattle, Wash., will hold one of the longest power boat races ever conducted by an American club next August, when the contest from Juneau, Alaska, to Seattle will be pulled off.

Clay Navy Football Captain.

Henry S. McK. Clay of Ardmore, Pa., has been elected captain of the Annapolis football team for 1910. Clay has played halfback for the academy team in most of the games of the last three seasons.

After United States Laurels.

The Ottawa Canoe club will enter Gordon Johnson, their hundred yard national swimming champion, in some of the important races in the United States next season.

AN IMPOSTOR'S TRICK.

The Cheerful Liar That Made a Fool of the Grand Monarch.

Louis XIV. was taken in once in a most humiliating way and by an impostor whose only art was lying. In 1687, just after he had returned from one of his most dazzling military successes against the Dutch, Louis le Grand received word that an embassy from Persia had just landed at Marseilles en route to the French court to bring salutations and presents from the shah. Pleased that his fame should actually have run around the world, he sent word that all the towns on the way from Marseilles to Paris should fete the ambassador.

As a result the journey to Paris was a march of triumph. Children sang and flowers were strewn along the way. Arrived at Paris, several regiments of the Swiss guard met the shah's representative and escorted him to a magnificent suit in the old palace of the Tuileries. Louis sent no less a person than the Duc de Richelieu to welcome the potentate and invite him out to Versailles to a special reception in the hall of mirrors.

The ambassador presented himself as Riza Bey of the Persian court and after showing his credentials advanced to kiss the hand of Louis le Grand and give him the shah's congratualtions on his recent victories. A caravan of presents from his imperial sovereign were on their way and would arrive in Paris in a few days, said the ambassador.

Festivals followed at Versailles. The boy received magnificent presents from Louis and royal entertainment. He lounged gracefully on divans at the French court and smoked in Persian languor. He gave the grand monarque a few fragments of opal and turquoise, saying that they came from a Persian district bordering on the Caspian sea. The woods there were full of them, he explained, and he offered to divide with France—had planted the French flag there already, as it were!

At last the day came for the formal presentation of the shah's gifts, and on that morning early Riza Bey faded into space. He was never seen or heard of again. He had, as some one said, "gone glimmering through the dream of things that were." The gems that he had left were worth, if anything, about 15 cents apiece, being glass.—New York Tribune.

THE JURY DISAGREED.

A Fine Point in Equity That Never Was Decided.

An old time story of the fine points of law and equity which arose in carrying out an amicable contract is told in the Philadelphia Record. Two were four brothers who had inherited a storage warehouse from their father. He had divided the property equally among them.

Among the appurtenances was a cat—a fine animal, excellent for mousing. This, too, was divided, the eldest brother owning the right front quarter, the second brother the left front quarter and the younger brothers the two hind quarters.

Now, unfortunately, the cat in one of its nocturnal prowls injured the right front paw, and the eldest brother attended to that portion of his property by binging the injured member with a greased rag.

The cat, thankful for this relief to its sufferings, went to sleep contentedly before the fire, but in the midst of its slumbers a falling coal ignited the rag, and the animal, howling with agony, dashed through the warehouse and, coming in contact with some combustibles, set the building on fire.

When the loss came to be figured out the three younger brothers wished to throw it all upon the eldest on the ground that had he not tied up his part of the cat with the inflammable rag the building would not have been destroyed.

He, on the contrary, contended that had the cat only been possessed of the front right paw—his property—it would have stood still and burned to death. It was the three other paws that caused the damage.

The brothers argued the case until they died, but they never reached an agreement.

What Should She Say?

"I tell you, little wife, you can't imagine how lonesome I am when I am separated from you. You are the best little woman in the world, so different from Drigg's nagging and scolding wife. You know that a man must get ahead in the world and be free to give his business his full attention. My little girl isn't of the suspicious, doubting kind, is she? Why, dearest, this very night I ought to go down to the club. Brown of Brown, Kalibo & Co. is in town. They're among our best customers. Ought to know him socially, hadn't I? But unless you insist, my little sweetheart wife, I won't go. It may mean a loss to the firm, but I'll stay with my precious."

Well, now, what can a woman do? —Chicago Journal.

Unpleasant to Have Around.

"Are you still engaged to Mr. Briggs?"

"No. I broke it off last week. I was afraid to marry him. He knows too much. I gave him some ribbon to match. He found it in the first store he went to, and he bought it for 2 cents below the regular price."

The Barrier.

Blobbs—No; I shall never marry. Slobbs—But you don't seem like a woman hater. In fact, you seem very fond of the fair sex. Blobbs—Yes, and I talk in my sleep.—Exchange.

Levity is a part of Mercy, but she must not speak too loud for fear of waking Justice.—Joubert.

TOBACCO CURING BY

How Type of Closed Barn Used in Connecticut Grower

Tobacco growing is [illegible] the hazardous lines of agriculture that a crop may be totally destroyed within a very short time by a pole sweat in the curing shed. The danger of hail damage is eliminated by the growing of shade tobacco, but the menace of pole sweat is still as great as ever. Last season, however, a series of scientific experiments on a large scale to guard against pole sweat in curing leaf tobacco was made on the farm of William Pinney at Suffield, Conn. The result may ultimately place the tobacco grower in absolute control of the curing process, shortening the time [illegible] determining the shade the tobacco will be when it has been cured.

The experiment was simply the application of artificial heat during the curing process. Some kinds of tobacco, such as cigar leaf tobacco are cured in tight sheds and with fire, and it has long been common practice to build charcoal fires in the barns when tobacco was in grave danger of being ruined by pole sweat. But until the experiment on the Pinney farm no effort had been made to control the curing process by the use of cigar leaf.

A special type of barn is used for this work. A ventilator [illegible] entire ridge which may be opened or closed tight is a unique feature. Instead of the crude charcoal burners placed on the ground, which are a fire menace, especially [illegible] furnaces, five in number, were placed in the ground. The feed doors are on the outside of the building, so that the smoke and vapors from the fires do not enter the barn and affect the color of the tobacco. The smoke pipe or flue from the furnace runs across the entire length of the building and returns on a level ten feet away and at a slightly higher level. The vents are in the side of the flue. The smoke pipe forms the entire radiating service.

Immediately after the crop was housed and the barn closed tight [illegible]

NEW TYPE OF TOBACCO BARN.

perature was run up to 80 degrees, the fires permitted to die out during the first day. The curing by the aid of fire was hastened at least one week. Very excellent natural atmospheric conditions for curing prompted Mr. Pinney to abandon further application of artificial heat. It was noted that the first two days when the barn was closed that the tobacco turned a rich yellow. The final result was a high percentage of excellent wrapper.

The furnaces were installed under the supervision of a representative of the United States department of agriculture, and the curing was directed by John B. Stewart, United States tobacco expert in the Connecticut valley, who acted in an advisory capacity for Mr. Pinney. The entire crop was cured in prime tobacco and has been sold at a little less than 25 cents a pound. Next year this method will have a mere thorough test. The curing of a barn full of tobacco is but a small item, and any experiment which might destroy such a valuable product if not carefully conducted with great precaution.

Tobacco men are confident that barn curing process will eventually be as easily controlled as the present process by means of steam heat.

Winter Care of Cabbage.

How deeply should cabbage be covered where the ground sometimes freezes three and four feet? Does it hurt cabbage to freeze? Should plants be taken up before freezing in the autumn? How early in the spring should they be set out? These questions are answered by Linnaeus Brown of Nassau county, N. Y., as follows:

Where the ground freezes three or four feet deep it will be necessary to plow up the cabbage after the heads are formed so that the heads will be covered with at least a foot of soil. The bulk of this should be a heavy mulch of cornstalks or other suitable material. It does not hurt cabbage to be frozen in the trenches provided it remains frozen for a long time. What hurts it is to be thawed and then frozen several times.

The plants should be taken up and put in the trenches before the ground becomes frozen too hard to work with ease. Two or three heavy frosts will not hurt the plants, nor would a considerable amount of freezing, except that the heads will bruise easily when frozen, and this will cause rot.

If you wish to put the cabbage plants for seed growing next spring the heads should be set out as soon as the ground can be put in good condition after the frost is out.

System in Farming.

No other business in the world would stand the amount of mismanagement and nonmanagement that the farm does. It is time for the farmer to study modern business methods and put them in practice. This is a country of wonderful prosperity on the farm, but greater things are ahead when the farmer will make systematic use of his opportunities.

THE CHILDREN

One Old Ox.

A game of memory in which [illegible] for substance and size.

Players sit in a circle. One begins by saying solemnly, "One old ox opened oysters." Everybody repeats it. Then she begins again, saying, "One old ox opened oysters, two tired oxen trotting to Trenton." This goes around the circle. The next repetition is "One old ox opening oysters, two tired oxen trotting to Trenton, three [illegible] taking tea." This is repeated each one, always beginning "One old ox," adding a new subject each time. Some examples are [illegible] it is more fun to make them up as you go along:

"Two friars eating fat frogs."

"Three sirens fighting furious fire."

"Four fishers shooting snipe."

"Five salmon sailing southward."

"Six elegant engineers eating [illegible]."

"Seven nimble noblemen nibbling [illegible]."

"Eight tinkers tentatively toiling [illegible]."

"Nine earnest emigrants eating [illegible]."

"Ten terrible talebearers telling [illegible]."

The Signalman.

A game calculated to break [illegible] them in a party and is much [illegible] children, even some of [illegible]

Form a row of chairs two less than [illegible] the players. For example, if there are ten players put eight chairs. The players then take hold of [illegible] dress or coat so as to [illegible] him. One stands blindfolded, [illegible] it in her hand, and sings:

"Come as soon as you can You're called by the signalman."

The players walk solemnly round the chairs, the leader gives three quick knocks on the floor, when [illegible] endeavors to get a chair. Two [illegible] course, left out, the blind one [illegible], who becomes signalman, [illegible] signalman joining the [illegible] resume their walk and [illegible] the next signal. Each time [illegible] get a chair is removed, and [illegible] are left without one are [illegible] game" except the one inside [illegible] The one to capture the [illegible] wins the game.

A Pencil Tract.

Did you feel it you were a nice, conscientious pencil—[illegible] body was writing with you? Do you were rather a fussy pencil always belonged to a particular gentleman, who knew all about [illegible] and punctuation; and [illegible] lent you to his grandchild she made you write all [illegible] ridiculous things, with queer [illegible] Wouldn't it make you shudder to be that is why slate pencils [illegible] dreadfully. They are always used by children, and, of [illegible] children don't know how to spell properly, so the poor [illegible] pencils have a terrible [illegible] So this is a plea to you, [illegible] be humane to your pencils, [illegible] them into stubby points [illegible] ones that they break off [illegible] make them spell badly, and [illegible] them write such ridiculous [illegible] this.—Chicago News.

The Stone Tree.

A tree which grows in Mexico [illegible] the "chijol," or stone tree. [illegible] ormous proportions, both in [illegible] ce and height. It has a [illegible] branches spreading out [illegible] carrying leaves of a yellow [illegible] color. The wood is extremely [illegible] and easily worked in a [illegible] It is not given to either [illegible] splitting. The wonderful [illegible] It is that after being cut [illegible] gets gradually harder, and [illegible] of a few years it is absolutely [illegible] whether left in the [illegible] buried in the ground. From [illegible] houses can be built that [illegible] few years become complete [illegible] and would last as though [illegible]

Failed in Hea

My mother died six years ago [illegible] of Jerseyville, Ill., and left [illegible] children. I had never been strong; and [illegible] death, was too much for me. I failed in health. I was tired all [illegible] want to go anywhere, nor care for [illegible] headache all the time and such [illegible] A very dear friend advised me to [illegible] one her so much good, so I can [illegible] now I am in good health."

ake CARD

The Woman's T

Women's pains are relieved or prevented [illegible] ch is quickly restored, by Cardui. [illegible] ou yourself know best if you need [illegible] you do need it, do not delay, but [illegible] nce. Every day of delay, only le[illegible] the ill. [illegible] on't wait, then, but begin to take [illegible] No matter how prolonged, cannot [illegible] do you good.

[illegible] for Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine [illegible] Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment

ICK. TOBACCO CURING BY a Fuel

New Type of Closed Barn Used by Connecticut Grower.

Tobacco growing is counted the hazardous lines of agricu that a crop may be totally d within a very short time by l pole sweat in the curing shed ger of half damage is elimi the growing of shade tobacco, menace of pole sweat is ne ever. Last season, however, scientific experiment on a la to guard against pole sweat leaf tobacco was made on the William Pinney at Suffield, Co result may ultimately place th er in absolute control of the process, shortening the time termining the shade the tobac be when it has been cured.

The experiment was simply a ization of artificial heat duri curing process. Some kinds of leaf tobacco are cured in tigh and with fire, and it has long common practice to build charco in the barns when tobacco grave danger of being ruined sweat. But until the experim the Pinney farm no effort had made to control the curing and ing of cigar leaf.

A special type of barn is re for this work. A ventilator alo entire ridge which may be opened or closed tight is an imp feature. Instead of the crude c burners placed on the ground, a fine menace, specially cons furnaces, five in number, were in the ground. The feed doors the outside of the building, smoke and vapors from the fire enter the barn and affect the fla the tobacco. The smoke pipe o furnace runs across the entire of the building and returns on a let ten feet away and at a slight

NEW TYPE OF TOBACCO BARN.

Winter Care of Cabbage.

How deeply should cabbage be covered where the ground does not freeze? Three and four feet? Does it hurt cabbage to freeze? Should plants be taken up before freezing weather? How early in the autumn? How early in the spring should they be set out? These questions are answered by Linnaeus Willis of Nassau county, N. Y., as follows:

Where the ground freezes three or four feet deep it will be necessary to plow up the cabbage after they are ripe so that the heads will be covered with at least a foot of soil. On top of this should be a heavy mulch of cornstalks or other suitable material. It does not hurt cabbage to be left in the trenches provided it remains frozen for a long time. What is meant is to be thawed and then frozen several times.

The plants should be taken up and put in the trenches before the ground becomes frozen too hard to work with ease. Two or three heavy frosts will not hurt the plants, nor would a considerable amount of freezing, except that the heads will bruise easily when frozen, and this will cause rot.

If you wish to put the cabbages in for seed growing next spring the heads should be set out as soon as the ground can be put in good condition after the frost is out.

Sisters in Farming.

No other business in the world could stand the amount of mismanagement and nonmanagement that the farm does. It is time for the farmer to study modern business methods and put them in practice. This is the age of wonderful prosperity on the farm, but greater things are ahead. The farmer will make systematic use of his opportunities.

THE CHILDREN

One Old Ox.

a game of memory in which forfeits for mistakes and also ing.

ayers sit in a circle. One be- aying solemnly, "O-ne old ox oysters." Everybody repeats ers. Then she begins again, ne opening oysters; two tired tting to Trenton." This goes e circle. The next repetition dd ox opening oysters; two ire trotting to Trenton; three ers taking tea." This is re- y each one, always beginning ed ox," adding a new alliterative time. Some examples are it is more fun to make them go along:

at friars fishing for frogs."
fairies fighting furious frediers shooting snipe."

salmon sailing southward."
elegant engineers eating nimble noblemen nibbling tinkers tentatively tolling." earnest emigrants eating plants."

terrible talebearers telling

The Signalman.

a game calculated to break dullness in a party and is much by children, even some of lar- th: row of chairs two less in than the players. For exam- re are ten players put eight he players then take hold of r's dress or coat so as to ham. One stands blindfolded; k in her hand, and sings:

r seat as soon as you can u're called by the signalman.

ers walk solemnly round the the leader gives three quick her stick on the floor, when endeavors to get a chair. Two urse, left out, the blind one er, who becomes signalman. er signalman joining the hese resume their walk and the next signal. Each time first a chair is removed, and o are left without one are e game" except the one made The one to capture the wins the game.

A Pencil Tract.

Did you feel it you were a nice, conscientious pencil— body was writing with you? ou were rather a fussy pen- d always belonged to a par- l gentleman, who knew all lling and punctuation, and e lent you to his grand- and she made you write all diculous things, with queer Wouldn't it make you shud- be that is why slate pencils dreadfully. They are al- ys used by children, and, of ildren don't know how to spell properly, so the poor, ientious pencils have a ter- So this is a plea to you, be humane to your pencils, ew them into stubby points g ones that they break off, ake them spell badly, and them write such ridiculous s this.—Chicago News.

The Stone Tree.

a tree which grows in Mexi the "chijol," or stone tree. ormous proportions, both in ice and height. It has a f branches spreading out carrying leaves of a yel- n color. The wood is ex- e and easily worked in a It is not given to either splitting. The wonderful t is that after being cut gets gradually harder, and e of a few years it is ab- trified, whether left in the buried in the ground. From houses can be built that few years become complete- and would last as though ne

CURIOUS EPITAPHS.

Brevity on a Tombstone—Douglas Jerrold's Suggestion.

Among the 1,300 epitaphs collected by Ernest R. Suffling in "Epitaphia" are many quaint and curious specimens. Grimaldi off the stage was said to be a sufferer from melancholia. It will be remembered that, going to a physician on one occasion, he described his case, when the worthy doctor briskly told him to "shake off the feeling. Go and see Grimaldi, and if he does not cure you your case is indeed hopeless." "Alas," said the poor sufferer, "I am Grimaldi." His epitaph reads "Here Am I."

A prize of £100 is said to have been offered by one Thorpe, who was desirous of being perpetuated but briefly on his tombstone. One competitor sent in "Here Lies Thorpe's Corpse." This was certainly brief enough, but finally it was cut to "Thorpe's Corpse."

Many of our readers know the Douglas Jerrold and Charles Knight story. They were dining together on one occasion when the conversation turned upon epitaphs. Knight half in jest suggested that Jerrold should write his (Knight's) epitaph. The subject dropped at the time; but, walking home together in the evening, they came to a spot where each had to take a separate road. Jerrold, extending his hand to his friend, remarked, "I've thought of a capital epitaph for you." "What is it?" said his friend, much interested. "Oh, very brief and very simple. 'Good Night!'"

There are many curious epitaphs on wives. Here's one from Ulverston, Lancashire:

Here lies my wife,
Here lies she,
Hallelujah!
Hallelujee!

An inscription placed over the grave of a missionary who was accidentally shot in India read thus:

Here lies the Rev. A. B.
For many years missionary in B. district.
He was accidentally shot by his native servant.
"Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

At Chelmsford, Essex, on a stone to the memory of "Mary Blewitt of the Swan" it is stated that she "was the wife of nine husbands successively, but the ninth outlived her." It is added, "The Text to Her Funeral Sermon Was, 'Last of All, the Woman Died Also.'"—Westminster Gazette.

A Queer Offer.

Cook—Ann sez I, "I think I'll find another job."

Friend—What did the missis say to that?

Cook—She sez, "Bedad an' O'll give you $25 when yez lave if yez don't go."—Brooklyn Life.

Do Good Work or None.

You are learning a trade, my boy. That is a good thing. It is better than gold—brings a large premium. But to bring a premium the trade must be perfect—no plated silver affair. When you go to learn a trade do so with the determination to win, to be at the head of the line, to depend upon yourself for position and holding it. Make up your mind what you will be, and be it. Do not whiffle around, but hold your upper lip close down and labor for the future. Determine in your mind to be a good workman or let the job out.—American Boy.

Child Heroes.

Twenty-seven of the 126 Carnegie fund heroes were seventeen years old or less. Fifteen of them were from eleven to fifteen years of age. In all but four of the twenty-seven cases the special deed of heroism was the rescue of a person from drowning.

Teddy, Terry and Tommy.

TEDDY.
When I grow up I think I'll be
A soldier, strong and brave.
With all my might I'll fight for right,
That none may be a slave.

TERRY.
When I grow up I think I'll be
A sailor bold and true.
I'll learn the sea from A to Z
And own a ship and crew.

TOMMY.
When I grow up I think I'll be—
Oh, dear, I've made no plan!
Well, anyway, I guess I'll say
I'll simply be a man.
—Chicago News.

Failed in Health

"My mother died six years ago," writes Miss Ruth of Jerseyville, Ill., "and left me to care for six en. I had never been strong; and this, with the shock r death, was too much for me.

I failed in health. I was tired all the time and did ant to go anywhere, nor care for company. I had eadache all the time and such bearing-down pains. A very dear friend advised me to take Cardui, as it one her so much good, so I commenced to use it ow I am in good health."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Women's pains are relieved or prevented and women's th is quickly restored, by Cardui, the woman's tonic. ou yourself know best if you need it, or not. you do need it, do not delay, but commence to use nce. Every day of delay, only lets you slide further the hill.

on't wait, then, but begin to take Cardui today, for its o matter how prolonged, cannot harm you and will do you good.

to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. al instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent free.

Woman's World

A SUCCESSFUL PLAYWRIGHT.

Miss Harriet Ford, Who Is Winning Honors in Stageland.

Miss Harriet Ford, the clever playwright, began her professional career as an actress and was well on the way to fame when the lure of the pen drove her into writing rather than the acting of dramas.

One of her most successful adaptations is "The Gentleman of France."

MISS HARRIET FORD, CO-AUTHOR OF "THE FOURTH ESTATE."

which had such a wonderful run in New York city several seasons ago, with Kyrle Bellew as the star.

In collaboration with Mr. Joseph Medill Patterson Miss Ford has recently turned out another hit of the season, "The Fourth Estate," a stirring dramatization of a newspaper office of the "yellow" variety.

Woman Makes Millions Alone.

From a position as stenographer at $10 a week to the possession of a fortune rated in millions is a long step for a woman, but it has been accomplished by Mrs. Ora Hood Russell of Chicago in little more than ten years, and the fortune is all of her own making, gained by her shrewdness in speculations in oil lands. She went to work in a lawyer's office in Chicago when she was eighteen years old, and it chanced that the man to whom she was married a year or two afterward was a practical oil man. Mrs. Russell took a keen interest in his work and on his death decided to go into the oil business herself. With more than ordinary courage she risked her first profits on a trip to Venezuela and was so pleased with the oil prospects there she hurried back to the United States and tried to interest American capital. But she could find few to share her faith and finally had to give up the scheme. A chance visit to Wayne county, Ky., convinced her oil fields could be worked at a tremendous profit there, but once again she found capital shy. Undismayed by the gloomy prophecies of others, Mrs. Russell spent every cent she owned or could raise in taking options and leases on land, and, though the success of her first wells was such as to bring thousands of investors and speculators behind her, Mrs. Russell had made such good use of her start that she now has several thousand acres under her complete and individual control.

A Lingerie Sachet.

Lingerie sachets are the most attractive of all the many types of perfume holders. The freshness of such a sweet smelling device is always assured when soap and water are at hand. The material used in the sachet illustrated is of the finest handkerchief linen, and the shape is square. The edges of the two pieces of linen are buttonholed in a small scallop, and the design and buttonholing are done in very fine white wash cotton. The inner pad covered with china silk in a delicate tone of pink is spread with a layer of cotton batting and sprinkled with sachet powder.

AN ALL WHITE DESIGN.

A Healthful Hint.

"Laugh and grow fat" is an old proverb, but its real meaning was not understood until the end of the nineteenth century and then only by a few. But the therapeutic value of merriment is being recognized more and more and if generally understood would very sensibly increase the sum total of human happiness and healthfulness.

If you want to be a true friend and wellwisher to one who is sick, do not for an instant allow yourself to partake of his or her low spirits or sadness. Do everything that will tend to rouse and cheer the patient, to make him or her forget, for a time at least, his or her pain or misery.

WE DON'T HAVE EARS.

The Latest Idea in Fashionders Is to Conceal the Auricular Orifice.

Artists both ancient and modern have always considered the ears as unsightly members of the human anatomy. And now comes the verdict from Parisian hairdressers that they also have the same artistic objection to ears. These authorities are arranging the coiffures of their clients in the no ear style. Mop, Sans Gene, Brittany, moyen age and turban are some of the appellations given the new hair arrangement. It matters little, though, what it is called—the requisite thing is to fix the hair so that it is flat in front and draped over the ears in a becoming fashion.

EARS AS THE FRENCHWOMAN WEARS THEM.

The real turban style of hairdressing no three artists do alike. The hair may be loosely braided and wound around the head, or it may be twisted into a rope and placed from nape of neck to forehead in as near a circle as the head will permit. At other times it is arranged in a long cap puff in the middle of the head, and luxurious ropes or braids of hair are wound around this. In any of these styles no hairpins must show except the four huge shell ones that are to hold the coils in place. There is no perceptible pompadour, but the hair is disposed about the face in a manner most flattering to the face.

RULES FOR THE GUESTS.

The girl who goes to other people's houses as a guest either for a fortnight or a week end should be careful about remembering certain things. She does not want her hostess to hope at her departure that she will never come again.

If you are a guest observe these rules:

Be punctual at meals.

Don't make engagements until you consult your hostess.

Don't write to friends and ask them to call until you are sure that such visitors will be welcomed by your hostess.

Don't have your breakfast taken to your room unless the hostess urges it.

Don't fail to provide your own writing paper, stamps and pen.

Carry your own soap and washcloth.

Don't follow your hostess in all her tasks. Let her have some time to herself.

Don't stay beyond the day set for your departure unless something unusual happens or your hostess urges it.

Take a half hour every morning for putting away your clothes and straightening your room. Don't leave everything to the housemaid.

Attend to your own laundry and be prompt about paying for it.

Things Worth Knowing.

New bread may be cut quite evenly if the knife is very slightly heated.

Never put salt into soup when cooking until it is skimmed, as salt prevents the scum from rising.

When baking cake or bread if the oven gets too hot the temperature may be reduced by placing a pan of cold water in the oven.

In preparing bread for toast and for sandwiches, where the crust is to be removed, try using a pair of sharp scissors to trim the edges. It takes much less time and makes a neater job. Keep a pair of scissors in your kitchen especially for this purpose.

Before cooking canned goods place in a colander and drain off all juice and rinse with cold water. The seasoning must be supplied with good fresh butter, milk, salt and pepper. Leave no canned goods in a can that has been opened. Remove at once. This may rob the vegetables of some food value, but it is safest and best to do so.

Norwegian Rice.

For a Norwegian way of serving rice cook it till tender in boiling water, then drain off any superfluous liquid around it and add enough chicken stock to moisten it a little. Cook it again until thick and dish it. Sprinkle with chopped chicken livers, scrambled eggs and grated cheese. The dish should be highly seasoned with pepper, salt and any desirable seasonings.

ELDER HENRY CUNNINGHAM

Recommends

Vinol

For Weak, Run-Down People.

"I was run down and weak from indigestion and general debility, also suffered from vertigo. I saw a cod liver preparation called Vinol advertised and decided to give it a trial, and the results were most gratifying. After taking two bottles I regained my strength, and am now feeling unusually well." — HENRY CUNNINGHAM, Elder Baptist Church, Kinston, N.C.

Vinol contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron. Vinol contains no oil, and is by far the Best Strengthening Tonic obtainable. We return your money without question if Vinol does not accomplish all we claim for it.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

Montgomery Advertiser Contest

$10,560 IN PRIZES

Nomination Coupon

When properly filled out and sent to the Contest Manager of The Montgomery Advertiser it is good for

1,000 Votes

You may nominate yourself or friend. Write legibly. When coupon is sent in application should be made for subscription book and further particulars.

I hereby nominate

Mr., Mrs. or Miss.....

Street.....

Town or City.....County.....

As a Candidate in The Montgomery Advertiser's Contest.

Signed.....

Address.....

Profession.....Date.....

This Nomination Counts 1,000 Votes

Only one nomination to be credited to each contestant. Under no circumstances will the nominator's name be divulged.

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps

Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades,

Crockery, Glass and Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies
We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

THE BANNER

FRANK CRIGHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain.
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw.
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully.
F. Loyd Tate.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Solicitor of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, including the counties of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

D. D. Askew.

Then the important office of Sheriff is to be filled, and a good man should be forthcoming. A Circuit Clerk is also to be chosen—a good office for a good man. Two Commissioners are to be nominated and elected—who they will be remains to be seen.

Justices of the peace and constables for the sixteen beats should make things lively in their respective precincts, and a coroner for the county is also necessary. There will be plenty of politics directly no doubt, although the people had nearly as much as they care for in the last campaign.

It is Chilton's turn to nominate a Senator for this district, and it has been suggested Hon. Tipton Mullins would make an excellent representative, but whether he can be induced to enter the race we do not know.

D. D ASKEW.

We have much pleasure in announcing the candidacy of this gentleman to succeed himself as Circuit Solicitor. Mr Askew has made a fine reputation since he has been in office, careful and painstaking, affable and courteous, he has left nothing undone to further justice, and has had several very important cases to conduct, which he has done in a very creditable manner. If nominated and elected he can be depended upon to make an excellent official.

As a great convention for missionary education and inspiration, the coming state convention of the Laymen's Missionary movement, to be held in Montgomery from Friday through Sunday, will be the greatest assembly of its kind Alabama has ever known The committee of about fifty Montgomery business men, who have been diligently preparing for this convention, have everything in shape for the influx of the 1,500 state delegate expected to be here at sound of the opening gavel.

There will be no subscriptions or collections of any sort taken at the convention as it is a campaign of missionary education The convention will be self-sustaining as all expenses will be met by means of a registration fee of $1 00 for each delegate, so that those who receive the benefit will jointly pay expenses.

The churches throughout Alabama are busy registering the delegates this week and by Friday the state will see the largest religious gathering of men in its history.

Hazardous Business.

The maiden dropped her lovely eyes. Later she cast her eyes far down the rocky slopes of the mountain side. After she had rested them upon the topmost branches of a nearby tree she let them fall upon the waters of a placid lake.—Judge.

The Karroo Bush of South Africa.

The karroo bush provides against drought by roots of enormous length stretching under ground to a depth of many feet. At the end of a ten months' drought, when the earth is baked brick dust for two feet from the surface, if you break the dried stalk of a karroo bush three inches high you will find running down the center a tiny thread of pale green tinted tissue still alive with sap.

BREAKFAST TRAYS BUSIER.

More and More People Taking the Morning Meal in Their Rooms.

"It's wonderful how the breakfast in the room habit has spread during the last year," said a trained nurse. "Five years ago I can remember that this was considered a luxurious thing, and a breakfast tray was sent only to a guest or to some member of the family who had been out late the night before.

"About two years ago the breakfast tray became a very usual thing to expect, and now I find it almost universal in the homes where I go. Breakfast is served downstairs only for the men of the family, every other member, including myself, having a wonderfully equipped little tray sent to her room.

"Some of the breakfast sets are costly in themselves, not to speak of the different pieces of silver that are put on the tray. In one home where I nursed recently two butlers were kept busy from 8:30 in the morning until 10 carrying the various individual trays to the rooms.

"Often each member of the family has her own monogrammed breakfast set, and the breakfast that each person likes must go on the special tray bearing the right monogram. Another distinction often made is the color, pink and white china going to the person having a pink room and the breakfast set decorated in blue being taken to the member of the family who has a blue room.

"In another home I remember the things belonging to one member of the family were always marked with a bowknot, and another sister chose a butterfly. Their breakfast sets were decorated in this way and the tray cloth and napkins embroidered to correspond.

"In another family where I sometimes go no two people ever had the same breakfast the same morning. It was a frequent question on meeting for the first time to inquire, 'Well, what did they give you this morning?' In that house I was often asked to suggest my favorite breakfast dishes, as it was expected that each person should have just what she wanted.

"In this family there were always one dish of either eggs, fish or meat on the tray and the usual fruit, cereal, hot bread or toast and coffee, but I find that in the homes of many very wealthy people this hearty breakfast dish is omitted, and fruit, cereal, rolls and coffee are considered sufficient. Where there are a couple of sisters in the family their two trays are often taken into one room, and they sit up in bed and eat their separate breakfasts, at the same time opening their morning mail. It's really a very pretty way of commencing the day.

"Even less luxurious people make use of the breakfast tray as an easy way of serving breakfast to a guest, and I've been in homes where the breakfast set was an inexpensive affair, picked up here and there from the open patterns now shown in variety in the big shops. By studying the dishes included in an expensive breakfast tray set and then picking out just what is essential a pretty set may be bought for $3 or $4, though the sets I often see in use must cost anywhere from $30 to $50."

The Old Saltcellar.

During the latter part of the middle ages the saltcellar was the most conspicuous object on the table. It was always placed in the center of the long table at which the household gathered, my lord and lady, family and guests being at one end and the servants and retainers at the other, and in this way one's social position was at once apparent, the "gentle folk" sitting "above the salt" and the yeomanry below it. Among the wealthy the saltcellar was of gold or silver. Benvenuto Cellini chased some for Francis I. that were of the most exquisite workmanship, and at the Louvre may be seen several rich specimens of saltcellars in faience and the famous set made at Orion for Henry I.

Marriages in Portugal.

In Portugal "men" frequently marry at fourteen and "women" at twelve years of age.

SCROFULA

Scrofula disfigures and causes life-long misery.

Children become strong and lively when given small doses of every day. The starved body is fed; the swollen glands healed, and the tainted blood vitalized. Good food, fresh air and Scott's Emulsion conquer scrofula and many other blood diseases.

Scott's Emulsion

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

Mount's Creek

The home of Mrs. Jeff Falkner was destroyed by fire Sunday night.

The contents of the residence consisted of a lot of good furniture, which Mrs Falkner had left there in care of a tenant.

The Falkner homestead adjoins the Alabama Soldiers' Home farm and is considered one of the best improved places in Chilton county.

The late Capt Jeff Falkner was very liberal in improvements. All necessary out buildings, consisting of barns, dairy house and servants' quarters, had been erected during Captain Falkner's life, in which no necessary expense was spared to make them complete.

The family residence was situated on rising ground and amid a beautiful grove of large shade trees. It overlooked a beautiful body of water, and altogether the place was picturesque.

Mrs. Falkner and the two boys who have been attending school, generally remained at the homestead during the summer months.

The loss is almost complete.

Jackson's Chapel

Editor Banner:—Please allow me a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words.

Our school is progressing nicely under the careful management of Prof. J. L. Lambert, he is a good teacher his pupils have learned to love him, and obey his rules.

We meet here every Sunday morning and have a Bible lesson; Prof. Lambert is our Bible teacher, and he is a good one too.

Say boy, from over the way, it looks like you all feel unwelcome to come and join our Bible class, don't stand back because Mr. E. T. refused to let you come to our literary school, but come up and join our happy band, for you are as welcome as some of our people up here, we would like to have you all to help us.

It seems as if our boys and girls were all out with each other last Sunday.

Mr. Arthur Traywick and Mr. Victor Marcus, went down the way Sunday evening, they looked like they were displeased about something, and some one else looked displeased, too.

Two Chums.

No Misunderstanding.

"I hear you have had a misunderstanding with your old political friends."

"No," said Senator Sorghum; "the worst of it is the impossibility of misunderstanding. We have expressed our opinions of each other in terms so explicit as to be unmistakable."—Washington Star.

Papa's Plan Prevents Proposal.

He (impecunious)—But you say yourself that your father is anxious to get you off his hands. She—Yes; that's why I don't think he'll listen to you.—Exchange.

The Advertiser's Contest.

Great interest has been created in this county by the recent announcement of The Montgomery Advertiser that it would give away to popular and energetic people in Alabama and Florida more than $10,000 in prizes. Automobiles, pianos, diamonds, bank accounts are included among the prizes offered, and these gifts are to be awarded, absolutely free to the person receiving the highest number of votes in the popularity contest that The Advertiser has inaugurated.

Any white person of good character man or woman, boy or girl, is eligible to compete for the prizes, and there are no obligations upon entering. The persons receiving the highest number of votes will be awarded the gifts. Votes are obtained by clipping and sending in the ballots that appear each day in The Advertiser and by securing prepaid subscriptions, either old or new to the paper.

At least six prizes, comprising a $400 piano, a $150 diamond ring, a $100 bank account, a $100 furniture outfit, a $50 Turkish rocker, and a $45 graphaphone, must be awarded in this district, no matter what may be the vote of contestants in other districts. And every person who enters from this district has an equal show to win one of the three automobiles which are known as grand prizes and will be awarded regardless of district lines

The contest is just starting and "nominations" are open. Bright, wideawake persons of this section appear to have before them an unusual opportunity to be handsomely rewarded for a few weeks' pleasant work among friends,

It is a simple matter to enter the contest. In this paper will be found a nomination coupon. You may nominate yourself or friend. Fill in the coupon as it directs, and mail it to the Contest Department of The Advertiser. When subscription books and full particular will be sent.

Several of the handsome prizes would come to this county, where The Advertiser has many friends and readers.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

District No. 6 at Pleasant Grove church, Saturday, Jan. 29, 1910.

Devotional exercises by N. W. Latham.

How can the opening service of the Sunday school be made attractive? Discussed by N. L. Broadhead, Henry Head and N. W Latham.

Ed Ellis was elected secretary.

What can be done with a teacher who cannot get through with the lesson on time? David Hicks, Henry Head, C. T. Walker, N. W. Latham, and Buford Lawrence made some able speeches on this subject.

Dismissed for dinner by David Hicks.

1 p.m. song service.

What are the most se ious hindrances to the Sunday school? Discussed by J. H. Shoults, C. T. Walker, Henry Head, N. W. Latham. The time and next place of meeting to be announced latter. The time of meeting w s discussed by N. W. Latham, C. T. Walker, Henry Head and N. L. Broadhead.

The class sang a few songs and was dismissed by N W. Latham. song by Prof. Tang Griffin, Enrolment of delegates. Alpine Baptist, no delegate; Ebenezer Baptist, no delegate; Stanton Methodist, no delegate; Mt. Carmel Baptist, no delegate; Riderville Union, Miss Unis Milan, Miss Lue Reynolds, Prof. R. F. Holly, L. B. Gay, Ramsey School House, no delegate; Pleasant Grove Baptist, Buford Lawrence, G. Merchant; Pleasant Hill Methodist, David Hicks; Maplesville Baptist, Grady Williams; Methodist, no delegate.

Ed Ellis, Sec.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all druggists.

Railway Mail Clerks Wanted

The Government pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1200, and other employees up to $2,500 annually.

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks and other government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in city or country can get instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 11 Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y.

TEACH THE CHILDREN TO SAVE MONEY

It is often and truthfully said that a penny saved is a penny made. The foundation of many of the greatest fortunes was begun by saving a penny. The habit of saving is one of the best that can be formed. Every child should be taught to save something every week. The satisfaction of counting these pennies when the bank is emptied is one of the pleasures that we never forget; perhaps every one of us can remember the thrill of joy we had when we emptied the contents of the bank on the table and counted and recounted this mountain of wealth; how eager we were to tell our little friends the amount of our great fortune, and raced with them in refilling the bank,

To bring this pleasure within the reach of every child and help the forming of the penny-saving habit, Messrs. Scott & Bowne, 409 Pearl Street, New York, the manufacturers of Scott's Emulsion, are offering to send to any address, for 10 cents, a beautiful little Savings Bank; each bank contains a new Good Luck Penny. Send 10 cents and get one.

Kept Her Promise.

"Billy, dear," said his young wife coaxingly, "tell me the password of your lodge."

"But I pledged myself never to disclose that, Bella."

"You're not disclosing it when you give it to me. You know we have no secrets from each other."

"If I tell you what it is, dear, will you promise sacredly never to repeat it to a living soul?"

"Yes, I promise."

"Well, here it is—Chattybiddybeechittybiddybiparaparagoolagaritherowkaspeckiybexlybim."

True to her word, the young wife never repeated it to anybody.—Chicago Tribune.

Won't Need a Crutch.

When Editor J. P. Seesman, of Cornelia, N. C., bruised his leg badly, it started an ugly sore. Many salves and ointments proved worthless. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve healed it thoroughly. Nothing is so prompt and sure for Ulcers, Boils, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Corns, Sores, Pimples, Eczema or Piles. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Are You Honest?

With your land when for the sake of saving a few dollars you use a fertilizer whose only recommendation is its analysis. It requires no special knowledge to mix materials to analyses. The value of a fertilizer lies in the materials used, so as not to over feed the plant at one time and starve at another. This is why Royster brands are so popular. Every ingredient has its particular work to do. Twenty-five years experience in making goods for Southern crops has enabled us to know what is required.

See that trade mark is on every bag

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO

CLANTON, ALA.

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Is one of the latest additions to Clanton's business center, and one of the most attractive and commodious places of its kind in town, situated on southeast corner of the square They invite you to call on them when in town and make their store your headquarters. Their stock of Millinery is complete; their Trimmer from St. Louis is right up to-date. If its quality, style and prices you are looking for, their store is the place for you. Mrs. Clara Mullins is general manager, and will be glad to wait on you.

C. R. Mullins will continue his same old business, of Fire Insurance, Life Insurance, Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs, in the new Company's store. He thanks you for past favors and solicits your future business.

Yours truly,
THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO

NEW FEED STORE

At Goodgame's Old Stand, near Lowe's Shop

Handle Loose Hulls, Sacked Hulls, also a good quality of Cotton Seed Meal, Corn, and Hay

I also buy Scrap Iron, Hides, Green and Green Salted and Flint Hides.

BEST PRICES BOTH WAYS

CALL AND SEE ME
N. B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

...Chilton County's regular March meeting, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July, first Monday in August and first Monday in October.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...day.....10½ @ 11½c
...ame date last year 9½ @ 10c
...Improvement over date
...house receipts
5 p.m. Wednesday.....5910

P. I. Hopkins was in Birmingham Tuesday

Enoch Foshee went to Birmingham Tuesday.

Golder Palmer, who has been very sick at the home of her father, Mrs. Heath Jones, was carried to Birmingham Sunday and placed in an infirmary. Her many friends hope she will soon recover.

Miss Beatrice Ariedge of Bessemer is visiting her mother, Mrs. Annie McKee.

Mr. W. M. Wilson is quite sick at the infirmary at Montgomery.

Mr. Patrick Smith is spending this week at Mountain Creek.

Spigener's cash store the place to get shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced prices in order to make rooms for spring and summer line.

Yours Truly,
W. D. Spigener.

Mr. Pink Littleton of Thorsby was in town last Saturday and Sunday morning to his home was taken sick and expired the same night.

Messrs. Kelly, Hal Scott, Winston of Montgomery were in town Tuesday.

Mr. Gaston Scott of Montgomery was a visitor to Clanton Wednesday.

Miss Jatie Lawrence visited Marion last week, returning Sunday.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

Miss Della Latham of Montevallo is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. E. E. Upchurch.

Miss Corrinne Reid of Calera is visiting Mrs. Belle George.

Dr. E. G. Hyman and little Miss Ice visited relatives at Troy, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Langston of Jemison were in town Saturday.

Mrs. J Renfroe Mullins returned Thursday from a visit to relatives at Monroe La.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard of Mountain Creek were visitors here Sunday.

The following officers were elected at the M. E Ladies Aid Society last Monday afternoon

Mrs. Martin Nix, President.
Mrs. R. J. Mills, Vice Pres.
Mrs J C Jones, Treas.
Mrs. E A. Matthews, Sec.

A marriage in which a wide circle of friends is interested is that of Miss Kate Lane and Mr. Mitchell Coxwell, which will be solemnized at brides home in Birmingham, the evening of February 7. The event will be witnessed by some sixty of the bride's relatives and friends. As maid of honor Miss Lane has chosen Miss Bessie Winton, while Mr. J. H. Alred of Clanton will be best man.

Prof. H. M. Eagle, and his class will Sing at Samaria Church, Sunday evening, Feb 6th, every body is cordialy invited.

High! High! High!

Prices on all goods seem high and going higher except on Matting Rugs, Art squares, matting squares Hall-curtains, Window curtains Window-shades, Counter pins, and Table linens etc.

These goods can yet be found at Spigener's Cash Store, at very reasonable prices.

W. D. Spigener.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. Arnve D. Gentry and Miss Christina Catherine Griffin; Mr. Jesse Price and Miss F.P. Collins; Mr. Alex Howell and Miss Nettie Watts; Mr. O. C Weldon and Miss Patt L. Woolley; Mr. John Mitchell and Miss Lizzie Dunagan.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all druggists.

...ou
...st?

...l when for the
...a few dollars
...tilizer whose
...ndation is its
...uires no spe-
...to mix mate-
...s. The value
...es in the ma-
...o as not to
... plant at one
...e at another.
...oyster brands
...r. Every in-
...its particular
... Twenty-five
...ce in making
...hern crops has
... know what is

...k is on every bag
...MARK
...S.R.
...ERED
...r Guano Co.
...LK, VA.

...ES & CO
...ON, ALA.

MILLINERY CO.

...Clanton's business center, and one o...
...us places of its kind in town, situated ...
They invite you to call on them ...
...e your headquarters. Their stock of ...
...mer from St. Louis is right up to ...
...cer you are looking for, their store is ...
...llins is general manager, and will be ...

...is same old business, of Fire Insur...
...achines, Pianos and Organs, in the ...
... you for past favors and solicits your ...
...s truly,
...NTON MILLINERY CO

...STORE

...tand, near Lowe's Shop

...cked Hulls, also a good
...ed Meal, Corn, and Hay
... Hides, Green and Green
Flint Hides.

...S BOTH WAYS

...D SEE ME
...B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

...ap at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

...Commissioners' court meets second Mon...
...January, first Monday in April, first ...
...in June, second Monday in July ...
...Monday in August and first Monday ...
...ember.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...to day.....14¼ @ 14½c
...same date last year 9½ @ 10c
...Interconnect date
...house receipts
...to 5 p.m. Wednesday....5910

...P. I. Hopkins was in Birmingham Tuesday.

...Enoch Foshee went to Birmingham Tuesday.

...Miss Golder Palmer, who has been very sick at the home of her mother, Mrs. Heath Jones, was carried to Birmingham Sunday and placed in an infirmary. Her numerous friends hope she will soon recover.

...Miss Beatrice Arledge of Bessemer is visiting her mother, Mrs. Annie McKee.

...Mr. W. M. Wilson is quite sick at the infirmary at Montgomery.

...Mr. Patrick Smith is spending a week at Mountain Creek.

...Spigener's cash store the place to buy shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced prices in order to make rooms for spring and summer line.
Yours Truly,
W. D. SPIGENER.

...Mr. Pink Littleton of Thorsby was in town last Saturday and Sunday morning to his home was taken sick and expired the same night.

...Messrs. Kelly, Hal Scott, Winston of Montgomery were in town Tuesday.

...Mr. Gaston Scott of Montgomery was a visitor to Clanton Wednesday.

...Miss Jatie Lawrence visited Marion last week, returning Sunday.

...If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

...Miss Della Latham of Montevallo is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. E. E. Upchurch.

...Miss Corrinne Reid of Calera is visiting Mrs. Belle George.

...Dr. E. G. Hyman and little Mittie visited relatives at Troy, Saturday and Sunday.

...Mr. and Mrs. Asa Langston of Jemison were in town Saturday.

...Mrs. J. Renfroe Mullins returned Thursday from a visit to relatives at Shotwell La.

...and Mrs. Hubbard of Mountain Creek were visitors here Sunday.

...The following officers were elected at the M. E Ladies Aid Society last Monday afternoon.
Mrs. Martin Nix, President.
Mrs. R. J. Mills, Vice Pres.
Mrs J. C Jones, Treas.
Mrs. E A. Matthews, Sec.,

A marriage in which a wide circle of friends is interested is that of Miss Kate Lane and Mr. Mitchell Coxwell, which will be solemnized at brides home in Birmingham, the evening of February 7. The event will be witnessed by some sixty of the bride's relatives and friends. As maid of honor Miss Lane has chosen Miss Bessie Winton, while Mr. J. H. Alred of Clanton will be best man.

Prof. H. M. Eagle, and his class will Sing at Samaria Church, Sunday evening, Feb. 6th, every body is cordialy invited.

High! High! High!

Prices on all goods seem high and going higher except on Matting, Rugs, Art squares, matting squares Hall-curtains, Window curtains, Window-shades, Counter pins, and Table linens etc.

These goods can yet be found at Spigener's Cash Store, at very reasonable prices.
W. D. SPIGENER.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. Arnve D. Gentry and Miss Christina Catherine Griffin; Mr. Jesse Price and Miss F.P. Collins; Mr. Alva Howell and Miss Nettie Watts; Mr. O. C. Weldon and Miss Patt I. Woolley; Mr. John Mitchell and Miss Lizzie Dunagan.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all druggists.

New Goods

We have them in beautiful disvlay!

Call in and look around! Anv time!

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.
At a live and let live price
FONE 317

W. H. SARTOR

Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.
CLANTON, ALA.

B. E. JONES — CRIT JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF

Drv Goods. Shoes, Hats, Notions

FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully

B. E. JONES & BRO.
CLANTON, ALA.

COME TO

MOBILE

Mardi Gras Carnival

FEBRUARY 6, 7 and 8, 1910

Handsomer Parades
More Music
All Features Better Than Ever!

THREE DAYS

Fun, Frolic and Amusement!

CHEAP RATES ON ALL RAIL AND WATER LINES

Turning the Tables.

"Turning the tables" in the sense of bringing a countercharge against an accuser has a classic origin. In the days of Augustus Imperator a regular craze seized the men of Rome to compete with one another for the possession of the costliest specimens of a certain description of table made for the most part of Mauritana wood inlaid with ivory—"mensarum insania," or table mania, as Pliny called it. They were sold at most extravagant prices. When the men accused the ladies of sumptuary extravagance the latter naturally retorted by reference to the money squandered by their lords on these tables and so "turned the tables on them" by throwing them metaphorically in their teeth.

Ozone and Water.

Ozone is the best agent for purifying water, because it adds nothing except oxygen, which assists in aeration.

A Billion.

In America, as in France, "billion" means a thousand millions. In Great Britain it means a million millions. The word was originally invented in France in the sixteenth century to denote the second power of a million, trillion and quadrillion being formed at the same time to denote the third and fourth powers of a million. In the seventeenth century the arithmeticians changed the use of the words, and "billion" came to mean a thousand millions, trillion a billion billions, and so forth. England, not being a revolutionary country, clung to the meaning of the word that had the oldest pedigree. America, being a revolutionary country, followed France.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Nettle.

The nettle, which has eighteen common varieties, is the most widely spread of any wild plant.

Lucky For Whom?

After the operation for appendicitis was over and the patient had recovered from the effects of the anaesthetic the skilled surgeon looked around for his watch. It was nowhere in sight.

"You don't think, doctor," anxiously inquired the patient, "you could possibly have sewed it up in"—

"I'm afraid I have. It was lying on—oh, it wasn't. I've found it. I had laid it down in my hat."

"Well, that's lucky!"

"It is indeed, my friend," said the surgeon, with a sigh of relief. "That watch cost me $150."

English Boys Want Easy Jobs.

Among the English boys the long drudgery of learning a trade, even if the opportunity offers, which it seldom does, is shirked. The easy job of errand boy, shop boy, office boy, messenger boy or van boy is much preferred. The consequence is that seventy-five boys of every hundred leaving elementary schools enter unskilled occupations. Of London boys 40 per cent become errand, van or boat boys, 14 per cent shop boys, 8 per cent office boys and junior clerks. Under 20 per cent go definitely into trades.—Westminster Review.

For that Terrible Itching.

Eczema, tetter and salt rheum keep their victims in perpetual torment. The application of Chamberlain's Salve will instantly allay this itching and many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

IN MEMORY OF FATHER.

To Mother, Brothers and Sisters

Upon this lonely Sunday eve,
I sit in this old room alone;
I think of home so late made sad
Because dear father now is gone.

But though he walks no more on earth,
No more these earthly paths he'll trod,
We know he lives again above
Because while here he walked with God.

O, death, thou dost so cruel seem;
Thy only goal is in the grave;
But thou canst not a life destroy,
For Jesus came to earth to save.

But, O, the awful pangs of death
That come to one without a hope
Of ever eating life, that must
In blackest doom forever grope.

But depths of joy can ne'er be found
That comes to one whose soul is white
By being washed in Jesus' blood;
And death is never dark but bright.

So mother, brothers, sisters, dear,
Now let us try no more to weep.
Though father's gone, he is not dead,
For Jesus says he's gone to sleep.

Now let us live the Christian's life
And trust each day in Jesus' love,
And then when God shall call us home,
We'll all join hands with father above.

J. TOY WILLIAMS.

Jan. 24, 1910
209 N. Y. Bail. Louisville, Ky.

Cured After Suffering Two Years.

Mr. E. E. Norton, of East Point, Ga., writes: "I have used one bottle of your U-RA-CURA and it did me much good. I can't find it in Atlanta, so I write you to see what you will send me two bottles for. I have been down two years and U-RA-CURA has done me more good than all the doctors for Kidney and Bladder troubles." Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Booklet sent free. Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

SPIGENER'S CASH STORE

A WORD TO MY MANY CHILTON COUNTY FRIENDS

I have just gotten in a line of Dry Goods, Notions, Shoes, etc. These goods are bought right, and priced to sell, not to keep. I especially invite the ladies to call and inspect my stock, as they will see that I remembered the wants and needs of the women, children and babies as well as the men and boys.

This store will be continually receiving fresh goods the year round. You will find many things here for sale that you will not find at other stores in the country. You will also be astonished at the VERY LOW prices on many articles that I am able to make you; money saved is money made. Come and be convinced that I can save you money on many things that you have to buy. There are several reasons why I can save you money on your cash purchases.

1st. This is strictly a cash store thus doing away with the expense of a book-keeper, which is a saving of from six to nine hundred dollars a year.

2nd. This store will not have any bad account to lose and to be put on to the price of goods that you buy.

3d. I will have no collection agency to pay.

4th. This is a one price store, goods will be sold to everyone at the same price.

When the people once find this out, half the force can wait on the same trade, which will lessen the expense of running any business.

This store is located next door to new Post Office building.

Yours, anxious to please,
W. D. SPIGENER.

Special Notice

TO THE FARMERS

We have on hand 50 PLOW STOCKS complete, which we are closing out at $1.25, regular price, and to each person who buys one we will give 1 PAIR OF 50 CENT HAMES FREE.

Only a few left. Come Quick.

A. HEADLEY & CO.

CORNER SECOND AVE., AT DEPOT.
CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—

A. M. JOHNSON'S CASH GROCERY STORE

THORSBY, ALA.
FOR BARGAINS IN

Staple and Fancy Groceries

A Free Present!

To every purchaser of One Dollar's worth of goods we will give a ticket entitling the holder to one chance for a High Grade

STANDARD TALKING MACHINE

Now is the time. Come in and see this elegant present which we are Giving Away. Also a fine line of Dry Goods, Clothing, Hats, Shoes, Etc.

H. KANJUTZKY

CLANTON, ALA

A Special Occasion.

First Tramp—You orter see Bill Jump de fence wit' de bull after him.

Second Tramp—Must have been wuth lookin' at.

First Tramp—Say! It wuz de only time I ever seen him when he didn't look tired.—Puck.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone shou ld take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS
WITH Dr. King's New Discovery
FOR Coughs PRICE 50¢ & $1.00 TRIAL BOTTLE FREE
AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.
GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

NATURE

Needs an Assistant.

The corn in the farmer's bin does not plant itself. No more can Nature, alone and unaided, always perform the enormous tasks that are so often forced upon her.

Nature Needs an Assistant.

Perfect health is the result of study and research. It has taken centuries to understand the human body and to find the best conditions and remedies to develop a healthful equilibrium.

Any one with a sick stomach, sluggish liver, bilious, constipated and nervous is not at all likely to regain their health unaided

Nature Needs an Assistant.

ST. JOSEPH'S Liver Regulator

IS NATURE'S BEST ASSISTANT.

This remedy has proven itself the true and tried friend of the human family by giving prompt relief when taken for Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Dizziness or other troubles incident to a torpid or inactive liver and a clogged up system.

It is a pleasant remedy of great power, and Nature's assistant in the highest degree. It is made in both liquid and powder form, is pleasant and agreeable to the taste, prompt in action, and leaves no sickening, weakening after effects.

It is an Ideal Liver Medicine.

We have a large number of letters from satisfied patrons who have been benefited and cured by it.

St. Joseph's Liver Regulator is sold by druggists and general merchants, or you can send to us for it. Price, Liquid, 50 cents a bottle. Powders, in tin boxes, 25 cents a box. Sample of powders and booklet sent free on application.

GENTLE MEDICINE CO.
Chattanooga, Tenn.

Hezekiah's Mistake

A Scholar Who Didn't Like School Discipline.

By GWENDOLIN ADAMS

Copyright, 1900, by American Press Association.

A big awkward boy was Hezekiah Griggs, a pupil in the school of Rhea Watson. The history class was up for recitation, but Hezekiah, though he had plenty of brains, had not applied them to studying the lesson.

He was growing decidedly uncomfortable. He knew well what an unprepared lesson meant, for in those days no weak leniency was shown to delinquents. To be sure, this was the first recitation Hezekiah had missed during the term, but was not that an aggravation of the offense? Since he had managed so long without failing, why fail at all?

Hezekiah was aware that as soon as the class was dismissed he would receive a not altogether unmerited flogging. He was perspiring at every pore. The icicles with which he had meant to refresh the thirsty occupants of the back seats melted in the intense heat, and a tiny stream of ice water trickled slowly from the extremity of either pocket and formed a miniature pool in the bottom of each cowhide boot.

The young offender was growing desperate, and when the master, having dismissed the other members of the history class, turned to him with the command, "Take off your coat, sir!" the boy stepped forward and obeyed with a feeling of actual relief.

"Your conduct has been most reprehensible, sir!" said the master, pushing up his coat sleeve and testing the strength of his ruler, while thirty pairs of eyes gazed spellbound and awful silence reigned.

"Most reprehensible, sir!" he repeated, and the ruler fell with a thwack which sent the blood tingling through every vein in the culprit's body.

Hezekiah never knew exactly what happened after that. He remembered that an insane desire for vengeance overcame him. He wanted to thrash the master, to thrash the whole school. Before the weapon could descend a second time he sprang at his assailant with clinched fists and blazing eyes.

There was a moment of breathless silence while the angry master collared his refractory pupil and shook him as a terrier shakes a rat. Then the flat sided ruler was once more brought into active play upon the back of Hezekiah Griggs.

"Now, sir," said the master when at length, becoming weary of such severe exertion, he released his hold on Hezekiah's coat collar, "take your seat and learn your history!"

Heedless of the command, the boy seized his jacket and, snatching his cap from its peg on the wall, made a rush for the door. He gained it without opposition, and before the astonished master had time to recover from his surprise he was racing along the highway toward home.

Into the big, roomy kitchen, where Grandfather Griggs himself sat in a great armchair conning the Weekly News, with Grandmother Griggs close by paring apples, he dashed like a runaway engine.

"Why, Hezekiah," exclaimed the good old woman, looking somewhat startled, "a body 'd think you'd been fired from a cannon by the way you come flying in! What's happened?"

Hezekiah sat down and began to explain.

"You don't mean to say you've run away from school!" said the old man when the boy had reached the most interesting part of his narrative. "Oh, Hezekiah!"

The exclamation was full of sorrowful surprise, and Hezekiah's eyes fell.

"I'm not going back to school any more," he said doggedly.

He did not dare look up, for he knew the old man had set his heart on his becoming an educated man, and he expected him to be very angry. But grandfather took off his glasses, wiped them and said:

"Well, Hezekiah, we won't talk about it tonight. You'd best go to the barn and thrash peas till supper time, and we'll settle this matter about school tomorrow."

Hezekiah obeyed. He went about till dark looking triumphant.

Staying away from school was next thing to beating the master. He slept well and arose firm in his determination not to return to school. When his grandfather called him aside after breakfast and tried to convince him that he was wrong Hezekiah was still resolute.

"Well, Hezekiah," the old man said at last, "since your mind's made up there's no use of urging you further. I'd have been glad enough if you had gone, and if you'd have stuck to it I wouldn't have minded a year or two at college to finish off with. As it is, you'll have to earn your living some other way, and I supose the sooner you set about it the better."

"I'm willing to work, grandfather," Hezekiah said, in some surprise.

"Yes, I know, and I shouldn't wonder if Silas Jones would give you a job for a month or two. He was saying he'd like to get a boy to do chores, and, although you ain't much used to work, if you get round spry you might suit him."

"Grandfather"—

"Or," continued the old man, "if you'd just as soon thrash peas I'll hire you myself. I'll give you every tenth bushel, and you can pay me $1.50 a week for board. What do you say to that?"

"Just as you like, grandfather."

"Very well. Then we'll call it a bargain, and when you're through with that maybe something else will turn up, and if you should be out of a job, why, your little room will be ready for you, and I won't charge a cent more than $1.50 a week, seeing it's you, Hezekiah."

Hezekiah was disagreeably surprised at the turn affairs had taken. It had never occurred to him that his grandfather, who had cared for him ever since he was left a helpless little orphan ten years before, would cast him off simply because he had tried to thrash the master and wouldn't go to school.

But he started for the barn, trying very hard to look as if things were turning out exactly as he had expected they would. He even managed to whistle faintly as he passed the window, through which he felt his grandfather was regarding him, but the last melancholy note died away long before he reached the barn.

Hezekiah never knew before that his grandfather had harvested so many peas. There they were, brown and crisp and inviting, piled in rough, uneven masses to the top of either mow and stowed away on the beams above him.

The boy tossed down a great heap into the middle of the thrashing floor, picked up his flail and began operations. But it was of no use to try to make himself believe that he liked to thrash peas.

He tried to buoy himself up with the thought that he was earning money, but long before night even this thought failed him as he began to realize that unless he got along considerably faster than he was then doing he would barely earn his board.

He kept steadily at his task for a week and then cleaned up and measured what he had thrashed—exactly forty bushels, of which his share, of course, was four bushels. Peas were worth 60 cents a bushel; accordingly, he earned $2.40. After paying his board he would have 90 cents left—an average of 15 cents a day.

It was discouraging. Grandfather Griggs said not a word, but the boy knew well that if he would only acknowledge himself in the wrong and promise to go back to school and obey the master the old place in his grandfather's heart and home was ready for him.

But pride would not permit him to yield, and all through the short December days and the first month of the new year the regular clip-clap of the flail was heard without intermission and the heap of peas in the granary grew and grew till it amounted to 250 bushels.

Hezekiah had almost completed his task and was rejoicing to think that he and the flail, which, in spite of their long standing fellowship, he cordially hated, were about to part company.

A boy is like a colt. Nothing is so well calculated to drive the nonsense out of his head and make him trustworthy as a little regular work. Hezekiah did not know this, but he was quite conscious that he did not feel as he had felt six weeks before.

He had been doing some hard thinking while swinging the flail and had begun to see that he was not altogether the fine fellow he had always imagined himself to be.

He had worked harder at this job of thrashing peas than he had ever done at anything before, and yet his earnings were barely sufficient to board and clothe him while thus engaged. He thought the matter over and came to the conclusion that he owed his grandfather something for all those years of helpless childhood, wherein the old man's love and care had been watchful and unremitting.

Hezekiah had a conscience. It was very like other boy's consciences; full of contradictions and absurdities; but, for all that, it pointed out that the least he could render to his grandfather for all his kindness was a willing obedience.

He made up his mind he would do it, and as he wielded the flail above the last "flooring" he was bravely resolving to tell his grandfather all that was in his heart. So deeply engrossed was he in pondering over this good resolution that he did not observe a dark shadow which fell between him and the sunlight that streamed through the open door till a voice said:

"Well, Hezekiah, you're just about done, I see."

The boy looked up and saw the benevolent face of his good grandfather smiling down upon him.

"You've done very well—very well," continued the old man approvingly. "I'd no idea that you would keep at it till they were finished. I believe there's the making of a man in you after all, Hezekiah. What were you thinking of going at next?"

The blood rushed to the boy's forehead, and his heart beat wildly, but he managed to say, "I'm a mean sneak, grandfather, but if you'd just as soon I believe I'll go back to school."

"All right," returned the old man calmly, "I'd just as lief."

And so, after all, things turned out very much as Grandfather Griggs had intended they should. Hezekiah went back to school, took his whipping for running away, finished his course in the history class and in due time went to college.

He became a prosperous city physician and still lives to tell his grandchildren of the fun they used to have in the little log schoolhouse years ago, and they often laugh over the mistake he made the time he undertook to thrash the master.

LIGHTNING A MYSTERY

This Phenomenon of Nature Is a Puzzle to Science.

THE THEORY OF THUNDER.

In a General Way It Is Understood; but, as a Matter of Fact, the Bolt From the Storm in Its Erratic Tendencies Defies the Investigator.

In a general way we understand the theory of thunderstorms. As a matter of fact, there is no phenomenon of nature, but excepting even earthquakes, of which we know so little.

Man-made lightning—that is, electricity of the highest power, which we can artificially produce—will act according to certain known laws. It will, for instance, travel along a conductor of metal.

But a flash of lightning will frequent leap from a well defined metal path and launch itself through the air or some adjacent object which is an infinitely poorer conductor.

This may be due to the almost inconceivable force of a flash of lightning, says a writer in Pearson's Weekly. It is estimated that a flash of lightning a mile long represents a pressure of discharge equal to 3,000,000,000 volts.

As such a flash lasts only about the thousandth part of a second the energy dissipated by the discharge is equal to 300,000 horsepower. Put in other words, if we could find some means of saving and using lightning we should be the richer by a good round sum for every flash.

Lightning is, as we know, usually accompanied by a peal of thunder, which is louder the nearer the hearer is to the point of the discharge, but this is not an invariable rule. There are cases on record of most destructive lightning flashes which were unaccompanied by sound.

Such a phenomenon occurred at Bradford some years ago. What is described as "a silent thunderbolt" fell in a graveyard, destroying one monument and smashing to atoms nearly seventy glass cases containing wreaths and flowers.

In the same summer Swanscombe, in Kent, was terrified by a freak of lightning. All of a sudden "a great mass of blue fire" swept along the street, and next moment it was seen that the fine old parish church, built nearly 700 years ago, had been struck.

The building, with all its fine old carved oak, was soon a roaring furnace, and only a part of the chancel was saved.

Scientists are still hopelessly at sea as to the cause of that peculiar phenomenon known as globe lightning. At Coventry some years ago during a violent thunderstorm it passed along a street like a soap bubble built of blue fire and drifted into a shed, where it exploded, blowing the roof off the place.

At Rheims, in France, a similar fire ball came into a cobbler's shop through the open window. The solitary occupant of the place sat perfectly still, paralyzed with terror, while his fearful visitant hovered for several seconds overhead. Then it moved toward the fireplace and presently passed up the chimney.

Next moment there was an explosion like a shell bursting, and the upper part of the chimney came crashing down.

Not long ago Count G. Hamilton made a record of a similar freak of electricity. He was sitting at dinner at a house on Lake Wener, in Sweden, when just after a vivid flash of lightning a brilliant white ball appeared over the table and after banging poised there for some seconds went off with with a loud bang.

Fortunately it did no harm to any one, although it was quite close to several people. Those who saw it suggested it was like a ball of cold lightning.

In November, 1902, Sydney, Australia, was visited by a terrific dust storm, in the midst of which a perfect rain of electric fire balls began to fall. These set fire to a number of houses, and a most appalling panic set in. A cry was raised that the end of the world was at hand, and people rushed out of their houses into the ink black, dust deep streets.

The most amazing and terrifying displays of the power of lightning are seen on mountains. In 1890 a party was on the top of a mountain in the Caucasus when a huge violet ball, surrounded by vivid rays, struck a rock near by and, exploding like a bomb, burst into atoms. One of the party was badly hurt.

Stilton Cheese.

The secret of making Stilton cheese was for some time confined to the family of the original inventors, who were under an engagement to sell all they could make to the famous Cooper Thornhill of Stilton. Being thus to be obtained of him alone, it received the appellation of Stilton cheese, but it would have been more appropriately named Wichcote cheese, being first made in that village, on the eastern side of Leicestershire, about thirty miles from Stilton.—London Standard.

Sure He Knew Best.

Mamma—Dora, your father says that that young man of yours, Mr. Hewitt, is deceiving you.

Dora—But he doesn't.

asked him, and he said

course he knows [illegible]

Boston Transcript.

President Helps Orphans.

[illegible] of orphans have been [illegible] the President of the [illegible] and Orphan's Home at [illegible] who writes: "We have used Electric Bitters in this Institution for some years. It has proved a most excellent medicine for [illegible] Liver and Kidney troubles [illegible] it as one of the best [illegible] medicines on earth." It invigorates, purifies [illegible], aids digestion, creates [illegible], strengthen and build [illegible] week children or run [illegible] people it has no equal. Best [illegible] for female [illegible]. Only 50c. at Upchurch Drug Co.

Liver Trouble Remedy Free

Any intelligent person can be his own doctor in the ordinary case of liver trouble, for the symptoms cannot be mistaken. If the white of the eye becomes yellowish, if the skin becomes sallow, if pimples and blotches appear, if the bowels do not move, if you have sick headache, if you are bilious, you may be sure that your liver is torpid or inactive.

The quickest and surest remedy yet found for the cure of liver trouble or any of its symptoms is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the great herb laxative compound. This wonderful remedy is not only a laxative, but a tonic as well. It will start the flow of gastric juice, thereby soon enabling the liver to do its work naturally. A bottle of this great liver remedy can be bought of any druggist for 50 cents or $1, and in many cases a single bottle has cured a chronic case.

For example, John W. Lee, 619 S. Pennsylvania ave., Indianapolis, Ind., had a stubborn and very long-standing case of liver trouble, with pimples, blotches, jaundice, etc., and it cured him. Mrs. E. Flinchum, Jackson, Ky., says the same of it. Thousands of families keep it in the house against just such an emergency, as you can never tell when some member of the family will need a good laxative.

In order to have you or any other sufferer from the liver make a test of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin without personal expense, Dr. Caldwell will send you a free test bottle if you will send your name and address. The sample will show you how pleasant it is to take, how gently it works. It will start you on the cure of your trouble and convince you that you have found a cure. That is the object of the sample, and the doctor urges you to send for it today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug co

The Medicinal Value of Whiskey

is admitted by the highest medical authorities. Indeed for many slight disorders it is a safe and certain cure. But to be effective, it must be the genuine, pure, natural article like

Sunny Brook
THE PURE FOOD
Whiskey

SUNNY BROOK is unsurpassed as a wholesome pleasant stimulant or an invigorating healthful tonic. Every drop is distilled, aged and bottled under the direct supervision of U. S. Government Inspectors and its absolute purity and mellowness make its use perfectly safe and free from harmful effects. The "Green Government Stamp" over the cork of each bottle states the correct age, proof and quantity

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

4 FULL QUARTS $5
BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	Chattanooga, Tenn.
M. Markstein	123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	636 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St.
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd	541 Magazine St.
Estate of Charles Feahney	511 Rampart St.
Greil Trading Co.	Pensacola, Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar	Pensacola, Fla.
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 100,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the SOUTHERN RURALIST is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The RURALIST pays $20.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; F. J. Merriam, Garden Department; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station, Agriculture Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment Station, Dairy; Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock Department; Dr. C. A. Cary, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural College, Veterinary Department; Judge P. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Mrs. F. J. Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.

By special arrangement with the SOUTHERN RURALIST we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

THINK OF
Mexican Mustang Liniment
AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU.

Relief from pain that might otherwise cause you hours of agony.

Tired out muscles eased up and made ready for another day's work.

Lameness in the back and shoulders promptly cured and stiff joints limbered up.

Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Mashes rendered painless and quickly healed.

Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica robbed of their anguish and banished forever.

Ulcers, Old Sores and Open Wounds healed promptly and permanently.

The first application of Mexican Mustang Liniment subdues the pain but it continues its work until every quivering nerve is soothed and quieted.

The great penetrating power of this famous remedy enables it to do this quickly and positively.

In all cases of Sprains, Bruises or Lameness, Mexican Mustang Liniment should be rubbed in persistently.

The antiseptic qualities of this old reliable household remedy make it safe and sure.

Prices 25c., 50c., $1.00 per bottle. For sale by all Druggists. LYON MFG. CO. 41 to 45 So. 5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

SEED CORN EVANGELIST.

How Professor Holden Taught Farmers to Plant Good Grain.

One day in 1904 an Iowa [illegible] fessor worked out a problem in arithmetic which caused him to [illegible] of the seal which the evangelists had caught in their trailing [illegible] he resolved on a campaign to [illegible] yellow and white, variegated and [illegible] dent and flint, Indian corn, a [illegible] unusual as that adopted by the [illegible] ing evangelists who had been [illegible] men to account for the waste of [illegible] by wickedness.

Professor Holden's little [illegible] showed the farms were increasing [illegible] value because of the new and [illegible] development and new strains of [illegible] were pushing into the soil. At [illegible] rate they were producing [illegible] would soon stop paying [illegible] on a valuation of $100 per acre.

Thirty years ago, with land [illegible] $8 to $20 per acre, a farmer did [illegible] need to be as careful as he must be [illegible] day, when the same land is [illegible] from $75 to $150 per acre. [illegible] must be better farming in the [illegible] west, and one way to do it is [illegible] out among the farmers and show [illegible] that the "book farmers" in the [illegible] tural colleges are practical farmers [illegible] that they are capable of making [illegible] than a living on forty acres and [illegible] not starve to death on 160 acres. [illegible] the farmers say sometimes," said [illegible] den after having thought the [illegible] over.

Other men were giving their [illegible] the same problem of rising [illegible] nes and lagging profits. [illegible] as 1890 Henry Wallace, [illegible] lace's Farmer, in company [illegible] Dairy Commissioner Board [illegible] made a trial of the special train [illegible] educational agent in a campaign [illegible] the stimulation of [illegible] through the Des Moines valley [illegible] the former and Superintendent [illegible] of the Rock Island road turned [illegible] attention to the corn question [illegible] called Professor Holden to [illegible] councils. It was at once [illegible] he was the ideal man [illegible] to do the work.

PROFESSOR [illegible] HOLDEN

Accordingly Professor Holden [illegible] on a campaign in Iowa [illegible] assistance of talented [illegible] would take special trains [illegible] on the railroads where he [illegible] the farmers and show them [illegible] ence only annually.

Professor Holden's plan [illegible] go into partnership [illegible] himself largely to assisting [illegible] farmers plant selected seed [illegible] which had been tested in a [illegible] vice which could be [illegible] workshop. Given the [illegible] and by the use of [illegible] water believed the [illegible] be instantaneous, while the [illegible] of science would be opened [illegible] way to the farmers. [illegible] results after the first [illegible] experimenting the [illegible] and using the forces of [illegible] corn and other [illegible] could be greatly increased [illegible] quently the profits of farming [illegible] greater, the land may [illegible] higher valuation, because [illegible] been mixed with more [illegible] the seasons.

The work Professor Holden [illegible] to do was evangelistic, and [illegible] trains were started, down [illegible] lines of shimmering steel they [illegible] known as "seed corn gospel [illegible]

Some of the figures Professor [illegible] presented were startling, but [illegible] large audiences of farmers [illegible] the meetings pledged never [illegible] select seed corn from a crib [illegible] scoop shovel.

Remedy For Potato Blight.

An effectual remedy for potato [illegible] has been found in bordeaux [illegible] which consists of four pounds [illegible] per sulphate and five or six [illegible] fresh lime in sixty gallons [illegible] This remedy is also effective [illegible] what is known as the early [illegible] which attacks the early variety [illegible] the late blight seldom appears [illegible] the first of August and does [illegible] tack the late kinds unless [illegible] planted late in the season. [illegible] ture can be used in connection [illegible] paris green or arsenate of lead [illegible] potato beetle. The arsenical [illegible] especially valuable, as it does [illegible] the foliage and adheres so [illegible] it is not easily washed off [illegible] When spraying with this in [illegible] with the bordeaux mixture, [illegible] pounds of the arsenate in [illegible] and use when the beetles first [illegible] This will prove very effective [illegible] if other beetles appear later [illegible] season it will be necessary [illegible] again in order to protect the [illegible] made after the first application.

e of Whiskey authorities. Indeed for certain cure. But to be ure, natural article like Brook
OOD
ey
a wholesome pleasant
Every drop is distilled, vision of U. S. Government ness make its use perfectly reen Government Stamp's
t age, proof and quantity
Jefferson Co., Ky.
ARTS—$5
REPAID
Distributors:
Chattanooga, Tenn
more St., Cincinnati, O.
St., New Orleans, La.
Pensacola, Fla
Memphis, Tenn
Pensacola, Fla
Jacksonville, Fla.
ITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.

Your Home
THE uthern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.
e Greatest Agricultural Paper in South today. It covers every de-ent of the farm and home. We examined it carefully, and con-
THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
most valuable premium we can our readers. It comes twice a h—24 times a year. A sample will be mailed free to any one equest.
he most valuable thing about the RN RURALIST is the Prize Spe-which are published on the first h month. The RURALIST pays
each month for the best arti-
on its subscribers on special
, such as Fall Plowing, Poul-
, Farm Tools, Gardendit Growing, Stock Raising,
, etc. These articles come very part of the country. They tten by men who do the work o actual experience. They p you as nothing else will.
D STAFF WRI S
J. Merriam, Co ar's
ment Station ulture
Experiment Dairy;
, Live Stock D t; Dr.
Agricultural ge, Veter-
Department; Mrs. T. J. Mer-
in every number.
ption to the man who will take
two papers for the price of one.
RURALIST we are able to offer
this paper at alist for $1.00.

ent
Mexican Mus-
ne pain but it
ery quivering
ted.
ower of this it to do this—uises or Lame-ng Liniment
stently.
this old reliake it safe and
OOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

SEED CORN EVANGELIST.

How Professor Holden Taught Iowa Farmers to Plant Good Grain.

One day in 1904 an Iowa college professor worked out a problem in arithmetic which caused him to catch some of the zeal which the evangelists had caught in their training schools, and he resolved on a campaign in behalf of yellow and white, variegated and red, dent and flint, Indian corn, almost as unusual as that adopted by the traveling evangelists who had been calling men to account for the waste of life by wickedness.

Professor Holden's little problem showed the farms were increasing in value because of the new and complex development and new armies of pioneers pushing into the west. At the rate they were producing the best would soon stop "paying dividends" on a valuation of $100 per acre.

Thirty years ago, with land worth $8 to $20 per acre, a farmer did not need to be as careful as he must be today, when the same land is worth from $75 to $150 per acre. "There ought be better farming in the middle west, and one way to do it is to go out among the farmers and show them that the 'book farmers' in the agricultural colleges are practical farmers—that they are capable of making more than a living on forty acres and would not starve to death on 160 acres, as the farmers say sometimes," said Holden after having thought the matter over.

Other men were giving thought to the same problem of rising land values and lagging production. As early as 1896 Henry Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer, in company with State Dairy Commissioner Boardman, had made a trial of the special train as an educational agent in a campaign for the stimulation of dairy interest through the Des Moines valley. Now the former and Superintendent Given of the Rock Island road turned their attention to the corn question. They called Professor Holden into their councils. It was at once manifest that he was the ideal executive—the man to do the work.

PROFESSOR P. G. HOLDEN.

Accordingly Professor Holden planned a campaign in Iowa with the assistance of railroad managers. He would take a special train and go out on the railroads where he could meet the farmers and show them that science only simplifies.

Professor Holden's plan was not to go into plant breeding, but to confine himself largely to insisting that the farmers plant selected seed corn, seed which had been tested in a simple device which could be made in any farm workshop. Given this hint in lectures and by the use of charts, the Iowa educator believed the direct result would be instantaneous, while the fairyland of science would be opened a little way to the farmers, and they would realize after the first year or two of experimenting that by harnessing up and using the forces of heredity in corn and other farm crops production could be greatly increased and consequently the profits of farming become greater, the land "pay dividends" on a higher valuation, because brains had been mixed with muscle in meeting the seasons.

The work Professor Holden proposed to do was evangelistic, and when his trains were started down the long lines of shimmering steel they became known as "seed corn gospel trains."

Some of the figures Professor Holden presented were startling, but they sent large audiences of farmers away from the meetings pledged never again to select seed corn from a crib with a scoop shovel.

Remedy For Potato Blight.

An effectual remedy for potato blight has been found in bordeaux mixture, which consists of four pounds of copper sulphate and five or six pounds of fresh lime in sixty gallons of water. This remedy is also effectual against what is known as the early blight, which attacks the early varieties, while the late blight seldom appears before the first of August and does not attack the late kinds unless they are planted late in the season. This mixture can be used in connection with paris green or arsenate of lead for the potato beetle. The arsenical article is especially valuable, as it does not burn the foliage and adheres so firmly that it is not easily washed off by rain. When spraying with this in connection with the bordeaux mixture, use two pounds of the arsenate in fifty gallons, and use when the beetles first appear. This will prove very effective, though if other beetles appear later in the season it will be necessary to spray again in order to protect the growth made after the first application.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VI.—First Quarter, For Feb. 6, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. vi, 1-15. Memory Verse, 6—Golden Text, Matt. vi, 1, R. V.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The kingdom that will surely come in God's own time and way will be a kingdom of righteousness and peace. The Lord Jesus Christ and His saints shall be the heavenly rulers (Zech. xiv, 5, 9; Rev. v, 9, 10), and Israel, a righteous nation, the earthly center, bringing blessing to all the earth (Isa. lx, 21; lxii, 1, 2, 6, 7). In order to enter the kingdom one must have the righteousness described in the last lesson—not our own by any deeds of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith (Phil. iii, 9). If this righteousness is truly ours it will be manifest in our lives to the glory of God, and the whole life will be simply and only and always a desire for God's approval. Thus the light will shine before men and God will be glorified. According to the scribes and Pharisees, righteousness consisted of giving and prayer and fasting, but it was all to obtain honor from men (Matt. xxiii, 5); it was not from the heart unto the Lord. In the lesson today our Lord takes these three things and teaches that those who seek the praise of men may get honor from men, but that is all they ever will get. The truly righteous will do their righteousness (verse 1, margin and R. V.) unto the Lord, with the one desire of pleasing Him, and concerning such Jesus said three times, "Thy Father who seeth in secret shall reward thee openly" (verses 4, 6, 18). The world's favor is to many a great snare, but the motto of the truly righteous is, "Not as pleasing men but God who trieth our hearts." "Not with eye service as men pleasers, but as the servants of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart" (I Thess. ii, 4; Eph. vi, 6). The words of our Lord in John vi, 57, seem to me to cover all this teaching, "As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father, so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me." Those who have taken the trouble to note how often in the book of Leviticus, the book of worship, the expressions "unto the Lord" and "before the Lord" are used and will lay this to heart will surely be delivered from the snare of the devil against which the Lord here warns us.

In reference to giving we have the contrast between the rich who cast into the treasury of their abundance and the poor widow who, perhaps with some secrecy, cast in her two mites, but of which our Lord made such honorable mention. The being rewarded openly is referred to on another occasion by our Lord when He urged that we should do good to those who cannot recompense us here, reminding us of a recompense at the resurrection of the just (Luke xiv, 14). A contrast in prayer is seen in the Pharisee and publican of Luke xviii. The contrast between fasting before men and before God is set forth fully in Isa. lviii, 1-8. Let the world go its way and please its god, but if we have become children of the only living and true God let us in all things honor our Father who is in heaven and learn to pray from the heart the prayer that is here taught us by our Lord, the only model of prayer which Christ has given us, and as one has said, the epitome of all prayer, for there is nothing that we can ask for that is not included in this. This is truly the believer's prayer, for only such can say from the heart "Our Father." All others had better take heed quickly to our Lord's estimate of them in John viii, 44. Between "Our Father" and "Thine is the kingdom" there are just seven petitions, divided, as nearly all sevens are, into three and four. The first three refer to God, Thy name, Thy kingdom, Thy will; the last four refer to us, give us, forgive us, lead us not, deliver us. God must be always first. Nothing is right till we are right with Him.

It must be "Glory to God in the highest" before there can be peace on earth. When His name is hallowed by all then the kingdom shall have come and His will be done on earth as in heaven. We must never forget our daily dependence upon Him and our indebtedness to Him, remembering that we are in a world lying in the wicked one whom we must resist and pray to be delivered from. It is a tremendous fact that our adversary, the devil, goeth about seeking whom he may devour (I Pet. v, 8, 9), and there is no greater evidence of this than the multitudes who have been led to believe that there is no devil, that such a creature does not exist. The closing words are found fully in I Chron. xxix, 11, in the prayer of David, and when the kingdom shall have come David's people shall be found in their own land, all righteous, and David's son shall be seen on David's throne, according to Luke i, 30-33. The kingdom for which we pray, the Father's kingdom, is spoken of in I Cor. xv, 24-28, as being the sequel to Jesus reigning till He hath put all enemies under His feet, the kingdom that shall follow the millennial reign. Our being accepted by God in Christ and obtaining in Him by His blood the forgiveness of sins do not depend upon our forgiveness of others. But as children of God, redeemed by precious blood, we must forgive as we have been forgiven if we would have His constant forgiveness.

OUR FIRST TOMATO.

Jailbird Brought Seed From Bermuda and Startled Pennsylvania.

Now that so much controversy is under way concerning the wonder berry it is interesting to read the reception accorded the first tomato grown in the United States, for both belong to the same family, solanaceae.

In reality the wonder berry is simply a hybrid but edible nightshade. The crossing of two species gave a flavor superior to either of the parents, and when eaten raw the taste is much that of a tomato and fully as good. It is not at all bitter when ripe, yet in its greener stage it is not so bitter as a green tomato. The only way in which the two fruits cannot compare is in the matter of size.

The story is told that a good many years ago a man recently arrived from the Bermuda islands was committed to a Pennsylvania jail. He had with him a few seeds, which he planted in the jail yard, but before the plants came to maturity he was discharged. The plants bore strange fruit, which, as it ripened, changed from green to red and was greatly admired.

The matron of the jail, sure that it was poisonous, cautioned all the inmates against eating the fruit, but as she desired to save specimens of it she planted some of the seeds the following spring, and just as the fruit was well ripened the man from Bermuda revisited the jail and asked to see the plant. He called for pepper, salt and vinegar and to the astonishment and horror of the spectators ate the fruit with a relish. Having finished, he told them that this strange fruit was a tomato, or, translated into English, a love apple, and that it was wholesome and nutritious.

The seeds were therefore carefully preserved and distributed among friends and neighbors, who cultivated the plant as a curiosity, but it was years before prejudice gave way to appetite and this now most popular vegetable came into general use. Even now many people remember it as an ornamental rather than a useful plant. Probably more tomatoes are canned than any other fruit or vegetable, as they can be served in so many ways, eaten raw, with salt, pepper and vinegar or with a salad dressing, or plainly stewed in sauces, soups, preserves and pickles. The tomato is ever ready for an emergency, and the provident housekeeper is sure to have it in reserve. At first it was a small fruit somewhat bitter in flavor. Who knows but the wonder berry, now in a crude state, may be improved in both size and flavor and in far less time than the tomato? Give it a chance.

The Commons.

The "second chamber," or "commons," or "popular assembly," or "house of representatives," as it is variously termed, takes us back to the battle between the Patricians and Plebs in republican Rome. In the language of a very high authority on the subject, "The first real anticipation of a second (popular) chamber, armed with a veto on the proposals of a separate authority and representing a different interest (the interest of the body of the people as opposed to the interest of the hitherto dominant aristocracy), occurs in the Roman tribunate." When the Roman Plebs got their tribunes the very beginning of the modern machinery of the commons or house of representatives was established.—New York American.

Tommy's Defense.

Mamma—Tommy, you've been fighting again. Your clothes are torn, and your face is scratched. Why can't you do like your little sister? She never fights. Small Tommy—Well, mamma, it's better to have a good square fight and get all the mad out of you than to carry it in you for months like girls do.—Chicago News.

More's the Pity.

Patience—It takes two to make a quarrel, you know, Patrice—And yet I have known quarrels to occur when two persons have been made one.—Yonkers Statesman.

A Natural Strength Giver

Ordinary tonics that merely supply food material and give artificial strength by stimulation are never lasting in their effects because they do not remove the cause of the ill health.

A "run down" condition is generally due to the failure of the digestive organs to properly digest the food.

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

tones up the stomach and other digestive organs, and restores their normal, healthy condition. Then the digestive organs supply the body with its full share of nourishment, and in this way build up permanent health and strength.

Sold by all druggists
2 sizes, 50c and 35c.

Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant is an invaluable medicine for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Pleurisy, etc.

Watching the Bridegroom.

In was not only the matchmaking advertising parson who made money out of the bygone bridegroom. There was the man who watched the bridegroom for twenty-four hours or so before the time fixed for the ceremony lest he turned tail at the thought of the ordeal and its after effects. Here is an entry in the register of a village church in Huntingdon which illustrates the custom: "December, 1647. Paid for wages spent upon the man that watched John Pickle all night and the next day till he was married." Such precautions recall Stevenson's definition of marriage as a "friendship recognized by the police."—London Chronicle.

Vin-O-Vitae a Great Female Remedy

This remarkable remedy which has been used with great success for many years in the treatment of female diseases is composed of roots, herbs and barks of unquestionable merit. Its history is ablaze with success in benefiting and curing many diseases with which women are afflicted. Its effect is mildly tonic, upbuilding and curative. Under its use the female organs assume their proper duties, the result of which is that the bloom of health indicates its value. Every woman occasionally needs a female remedy of this kind to tone up her organs to healthy action. Druggists sell VIN-O-VITÆ at $1.00 per bottle.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala., postoffice; for week ending Jan. 29, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST

F. M. Littlejohn, R. M. Culp, T. A. Mimm, J. R. Mitchell, D. H. Tyre.

LADIES' LIST

Mrs. Victory Thomson, Lucendia Carver, Willie Nite.

These letters will be sent to the dead letter office, Feb. 12, 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY, Postmaster

Siberia.

The soil of Siberia is in many large regions as rich and fertile as that of Canada.

BULBS

PLANT YOUR BULBS NOW FOR EARLY BLOOMS

We have Dutch Hyacinths, Roman Hyacinths, Narcissus, Jonquils, Tulips, Daffodils, Freesias, Snowdrops, Oxalis, Callas, Chinese Sacred Lilies and Easter Lilies.

Prices as cheap as any northern seed house.

After October 15th, or the first heavy frost, we can supply two-year old field and Southern grown Rose Plants, both Bush and Climbing Roses.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season.

Cut flowers, wedding boquets and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

A postal card will bring you a copy of our latest price list.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor
City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200 MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP
Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Cumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.
First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.
W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

WELLS Bored and Drilled
T. B. TEEL
Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells
CLANTON, ALA.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS
Alabama's Greatest Newspaper
BY MAIL
(Cash in Advance)
$3.40
A YEAR
On rural routes and small inland towns where we have no carrier delivery. For four months, $1.20, eight months, $2.30. For a lesser time than four months the rate is 50c per month. Cash must accompany order, otherwise the rate is same as in carrier or agency towns, 50c per month or $5.00 per year. The Birmingham News is recognized throughout the State and Nation as "Alabama's Greatest Newspaper."
Whatever happens of importance in the State, Nation, or through out the world is printed in The News. Always read The News and keep posted.
Agents wanted. Remit by money order or registered letter, to
THE BIRMINGHAM NEWS
Birmingham, Ala.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands.
Office, Room 1, Court House.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I HOPKINS
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
Office Hours 8 to 4 p.m.
CLANTON

Directory of Clanton Baptist Church.
Preaching at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on 1st and 3d Sundays.
Prayer Service at 7:30 p.m. every Thursday.
Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. every Sunday. W. L. Mullins, Supt.
Communion Service 1st Sunday in January, April, July and October.
Ladies Aid society at 3 p.m. on Monday after the 3d Sunday. Mrs. W. T. Chiles, President.
All members are earnestly requested to be regular and prompt in their attendance, the public are cordially invited and strangers will find a hearty welcome. F. M. WOODS, Pastor.

THE EXPRESS MAN WILL RECEIVE YOUR PACKAGE
THE SAME DAY WE GET YOUR ORDER
PROMPT SHIPMENTS IS THE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS
WE WILL SHIP ANY OF THE FOLLOWING EXPRESS PREPAID

BLENDED GOODS

Lewis' 66	Hunter	Harper
Echo Spring	Cascade (Tennessee)
Wilson	Mercy Hill Club

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Any of the Above Brands	$5.00	$12.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Sheridan Club	2.75	8.00
Maryland Club	5.50	13.50
Mt. Vernon	6.00	16.00
Black Label	6.00	16.00

	6 Bottles to the Cad.	6 Bottles 12 bottles
Four Roses	7.00	18.50
Three Feathers	7.00	16.50

CORN WHISKEY

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Tennessee Old Reserve	$4.00	$11.00
Black and Blue	3.00	9.00
Harvest Corn	3.50	10.50
Laurel Valley	3.50	10.50
Climber Brand	3.25	9.00

BOTTLED IN BOND

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Clarke's Pure Rye	$ 4.500	$12.00
Sunny Brook	5.00	13.00
Early Times	5.00	12.00
Cooperhaven	5.00	12.00
Mahpsod	5.00	12.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Memorial Spring	4.00	11.00
Cindy's Rare Mash	4.50	10.50

BULK WHISKIES
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00 $5.50, 6.00 per Gallon.

BULK CORN WHISKEY
100 Proof
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 per Gallon, according to age.

On all orders for $2.50 or over goods will be shipped in handsome glass jars.

WE HANDLE ALL IMPORTED WINES AND LIQUORS. ASK FOR PRICES

PABST'S BLUE RIBBON BEER
Per Barrel, 10 doz. pints $12.00
Per Dozen, packed in Boxes 1.50
Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.

JUNG'S CINCINNATI BEER
Per Barrel, 10 doz. pints $9.00
Per Dozen, packed in Boxes 1.00
Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.

LONG DISTANCE PHONE 998
517-519 West Bay Street
CHAS. BLUM & COMPANY
Jacksonville Florida

Seeking a Complaint.

A young lady who appeared to be in perfect health, but who had a very worried expression upon her blooming face, entered the consulting room of a New York physician early last summer.

"Doctor," she said, "it is absolutely essential that I go to White Sulphur Springs."

"Oh, perhaps not," the physician remarked reassuringly. "Tell me fully your symptoms. What do you expect to cure at the springs?"

"That is just what I came to you to find out, doctor," she confessed. "You see, I have got to talk with papa. What do you go to White Sulphur to be cured of?"—Exchange.

In a Silk Sock District.

The Twenty-ninth is known as New York's silk stocking district from the fact that if it was known of a candidate that he wore any other kind he would be cut at his club and knifed at the polls. There is a legend in the district to the effect that a man once went to the assembly from there and cut open his cheek at his first breakfast in Albany. There was talk of impeaching him until investigation brought out that the damage had been done not with a knife, but a champagne glass.—New York Herald.

Saved From Awful Peril.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, Ohio, R. R. No. 3, "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive to-day is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It also cured my four children of croup." Infallible for Coughs and Colds; its the most certain remedy for LaGrippe Asthma desperate lung trouble and all bronchial affections, 50c and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

LAND HUNGER IN CITIES.

Increasing Desire to Get Out on the Farm and What Causes It.

The American people have always had land hunger. They have it yet, and the people of the cities have it in more acute form than ever before. Several things have conspired to develop the "back to the land" idea in our city population. The first is the increased cost of living in cities. The most economical and prudent man who works for wages in a great city today cannot save much money even if he is well paid. Thousands who make what would have been called high wages ten or twenty years ago have little more than enough to pay their current expenses. Other thousands are barely existing without the possibility of becoming independent of the uncertainty of employment and the certainty of the collector's calls.

The panic of 1907, which took employment from many people without reducing their living expenses to any great extent, caused thousands to think seriously of getting into some business in which "the bite to eat and the duds to wear" will not depend wholly on matters beyond their control, such as panics, rents and prices.

Another cause of the present land hunger in cities is the reading of articles and advertisements in the daily papers. Never before were afloat so many wonderful tales of success in farming—success achieved without experience and without capital, independence acquired in a short time, prosperity on a few acres following close after the lack of it in the city. Not all this literature is false, but much bears with it evidence of embellishment, and some tells of achievements that are clearly impossible. Of course the advertisements calculated to interest the city man in land turn toward him the bright side of the picture. It is their purpose to interest him to the extent of selling land to him, and, whether such advertising appears in type or in the form of exhibits, it does not and cannot be expected to show him anything but the attractive side of life on the land.

It is a good thing for the public to become deeply interested in farming, to study it and learn more about it. Anything that makes men do this will at last result in a better understanding between the city and the country people of this great nation. But it is deplorable that in all this there must be so much misrepresentation, such inflated expectations and at last so many losses and disappointments, for many who attempt to gain independence without sufficient capital, without knowledge and without experience must be disappointed even if they do their level best. It would be so in any business.

True friends of city people will caution them against rashly investing all they have in something they know nothing about, will show them the necessity of study and counsel them against rash steps. The savings of many of these land hungry city people have come hard, and they should not be lured into investments that mean loss.

Palmetto Lands.

We ask you to write for information. We can tell you facts about the land, the climate, the crops in Florida's most fertile section—Manatee County. If you want to produce three crops a year with the labor you are giving to one, write us.

If you want to raise oranges, grape fruit, cabbage, egg plant, cauliflower, lettuce or tomatoes, write us.

PALMETTO LANDS are not guess work. PALMETTO LANDS give results.

Write to

FREDERIC P. LADD,
Board of Trade,
PALMETTO, FLORIDA

Forty Years of Longing.

A New England man tells of an elderly woman in a Massachusetts town who not long ago found herself rich enough to buy a complete dinner set.

"It seems a sinful waste of money, Sarah," observed a neighbor to whom the set was being shown. "You'll be gettin' along in years an' you won't need chiny long."

"I may not need it long," responded Sarah, "but I need it now and have needed it for forty years. You don't know how cramped I've been."

"Cramped?"

"Yes, cramped! Look at the big tea parties I've been invited to! Have I ever given anything like as big a one? No! But now, thank goodness, I'm able to retaliate at last!"—Boston Post.

Actors in Retirement.

Many actors have lived long after retiring from the stage. Macready, retiring in 1851 at the age of fifty-eight, passed an honored leisure till his death at Cheltenham, England, in 1873. After Mrs. Siddons' farewell appearance as Lady Macbeth in 1812, being then in her fifty-seventh year, she spent her remaining score of years in almost unbroken retirement. The record in this respect, however, is held by that famous Master Betty, whom, in 1804, London acclaimed as the Infant Roscius. His positively last appearance was made on Aug. 9, 1824, at the age of thirty-two. He died in August, 1874, a "resting" of half a century.—London Standard.

Crushed the Diamond.

Among historic diamonds one, the Piggott, has gone out of existence. The story of its destruction is a tragical one. It was said to be worth $200,000. The diamond came into the possession of Ali Pasha, who always wore it in a green silk purse attached to his girdle.

He was wearing it when he was wounded by Reshid Pasha. Knowing that his wound was mortal, he immediately retired to his divan, gave orders that his favorite wife should be poisoned and then delivered the diamond to Captain D'Angias with the order that it should be crushed to powder in his presence. His command was obeyed, and the beautiful gem was utterly destroyed.

Desdemona's Resurrected Feet.

Ellen Terry told a comical story of one of her early experiences. She was playing the part of Desdemona, and after being duly smothered in her bed by Othello and he had drawn the curtains she felt a great sense of oppression and thought she would sit up on the edge of the bed until the curtain dropped at the end of the act. She did so without knowing that the curtains around her bed did not reach the floor by nine or ten inches, and the audience was vastly amused at the spectacle of the feet of the dead Desdemona dangling below the curtains of the bed on which she was supposed to be lying dead.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A VERY QUEER BIRD.

The Gag Young Mark Twain Sprung Upon the Scientists.

Mark Twain's father was an ornithologist. He had several friends who were also enthusiasts on the subject of birds. Whenever any one of them discovered a rara avis it was the custom to have a consultation. Mark had been a witness of several of these bird inquests and had noted the delight the old men took in discussing a new found specimen. One day it occurred to him to provide the Hannibal ornithologists with a real circus in the form of a bird. He killed a crow and also a barnyard rooster. Plucking out the tail feathers of both the crow and the rooster, he substituted the rooster's tail feathers for those of the crow, producing a unique effect. When he had the specimen nicely prepared he went to his father and, handing it to him, said:

"Here, father, is a very curious bird I shot. I thought you would be interested in it."

The old gentleman gazed upon the specimen with astonishment. That evening the ornithologists of Hannibal were assembled in Mr. Clemens' parlor. The rare specimen was put before them. The discussion was long and learned. The opinions expressed were various. One thought the bird was an offshoot of the bird of paradise family; others had equally ridiculous notions as to its ancestry. But there was one who refused to be swerved by the peculiarity of the bird's tail from the judgment that it was of the crow family.

"Why, just look here," he said, lifting the bird by its tail feathers. He got no further. The feathers came out. There was a quick closing of a door. Mr. Clemens started to leave the room.

"Gentlemen," he said, "please excuse me a few moments. I will see Samuel first and explain later."

Getting Used to 'Em.

"I just have heard of the arrival of the third child in the Jones family," remarked the woman. "The announcement of the firstborn was made by beautifully engraved cards tied with tiny white ribbon, the second was by telegraph, and this third one, though a much wished for boy, was made merely by a postal card."—New York Press.

Every Family Needs It.

Every body sometimes has dizziness, loss of appetite, coated tongue, yellow complexion, constipation, etc. which indicates the approach of sickness and disease. To ward off sickness they should use a first-class Liver Medicine. Such a remedy is GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR. Its timely use will prevent sickness and secure health, vigor and energy. Druggists sell it at 25 cents per box. Ask for it and accept no other. It is the best Liver Medicine ever manufactured. Address, Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

RELIEVE Neuralgia

"I have awful spells of Neuralgia and have doctored a great deal without getting much benefit. For the last two years I have been taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they always relieve me. I have been so bad with Neuralgia that I sometimes thought I would go crazy. Sometimes it is necessary to take two of them, but never more, and they are sure to relieve me." MRS. FERRIER, 2434 Lynn St., Lincoln, Neb.

Sold by druggists everywhere, who are authorized to return price of first package if they fail to benefit.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

GENUINE OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS

OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS are known and used more widely than any other plow ever produced and the long continued and increasing prosperity of the

OLIVER CHILLED PLOW WORKS

would not be possible if the product of this immense factory was not adapted to every requirement of the American Farmer and the sturdy principles of skill and honesty in manufacture strictly carried out as laid down by the founder of the business.

"Buy the Best—It Pays," which literally translated means "Buy the Oliver."

If it's Hardware We have it!

Gamble Hardware Co.

If we have it, It's the Best!

CLANTON, WETUMPKA, ALEXANDER CITY

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The stock law elections held last week in Beats 9 and 15 resulted in failure for stock law in both cases. Beat 9 voting 72 in favor of stock law and 79 against. In Beat 15 the vote was 38 for, and 91 against. Evidently the people in the latter beat don't want stock law.

That was a right good meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee last Saturday at Clanton and will undoubtedly result in good to the cause. The new chairman, H. M. Simpson, is a young man, born and bred in the Democratic party, who understands the condition of the party in Chilton county and will work for its betterment. The new secretary, John M. Parrish, is another young man, reared and raised among good old Democrats, and whose best exertions will be made for the upbuilding of the cause.

The proceedings of the meeting follow:

At a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee held at Clanton on February 5th, 1910 the following proceedings were had, viz.:

That a primary election of the Democratic party of Chilton county, Alabama, for the nomination of candidates for the offices of Probate Judge, Sheriff, Clerk of the Circuit Court, a Superintendent of Education, Two Commissioner, to be voted for at the general election in November, 1910 and two Committeemen from each precinct to be elected in said primary, be and the same is hereby called to be held and held in the various precincts and at the various voting places in Chilton county, on Monday the 2nd, day of May, 1910.

Second. That such primary election be held under the rules and regulations prescribed by the general primary election law of Alabama.

Third. Be it further resolved, that all white voters who are qualified electors under the law of the state and who will support the nominees of said primary in the general election in November, 1910, shall have the right to vote in said primary.

Candidates receiving a plurality of all the votes cast shall be declared the nominees.

Each Committeeman from each beat shall appoint managers, Clerks and returning officers.

Returns are to be made to the county committee on or before the 7th day of May, 1910, and Committee to canvass returns on Friday, May 6, 1910.

A committee was appointed, composed of J. M Parrish, Ed Fitzherman and E. Robinson, to fix the amount to be paid by each candidate to defray expenses of election, and to control all details of the election.

The resignation of Thos. A. Perry was accepted and H. M. Simpson elected chairman of the County Committee. John M. Parrish was elected Secretary.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness described in and secured by a mortgage made by [illegible] Gerner to R. E. Jackson Lumber Company, a corporation, dated June 12, [illegible], and said default continuing, the R. E. Jackson Lumber Company, mortgagee, will, under and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, proceed to sell, at public outcry, to the highest bidder, for cash, within the legal hours of sale, in front of the office of the R. E. Jackson Lumber Company, at Biderville, Alabama, on the following personal property, in said mortgage described, namely:

SATURDAY, MARCH 12th, 1910.

One dun colored Ox named Buck and one spotted Ox named Bill.

Said sale is made for the purpose of paying the debt secured by said mortgage, including the expenses of foreclosure.

R. E. JACKSON LUMBER CO.,
Mortgagee

RELIEVE Neuralgia

"I have awful spells of Neuralgia and have doctored a great deal without getting much benefit. For the last two years I have been taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they always relieve me. I have been so bad with Neuralgia that I sometimes thought I would go crazy. Sometimes it is necessary to take two of them, but never more, and they are sure to relieve me." MRS. FERRIER, 2434 Lynn St., Lincoln, Neb.

Sold by druggists everywhere, who are authorized to return price if first package if they fail to benefit.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

OWS

If we have it,
It's the Best!

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1910 | No. 19

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The stock law elections held last week in Beats 9 and 15 resulted in failure for stock law in both cases, Beat 9 voting 72 in favor of stock law and 79 against. In Beat 15 the vote was 38 for, and 91 against. Evidently the people in the latter beat don't want stock law.

That was a right good meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee last Saturday at Clanton and will undoubtedly result in good to the cause. The new chairman, H. M. Simpson, is a young man, born and bred in the Democratic party, who understands the condition of the party in Chilton county and will work for its betterment. The new secretary, John M. Parrish, is another young man, reared and raised among good old Democrats, and whose best exertions will be made for the upbuilding of the cause.

The proceedings of the meeting follow:

At a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee held at Clanton February 5th, 1910 the following proceedings were had, viz.,

That a primary election of the Democratic party of Chilton county, Alabama, for the nomination of candidates for the offices of Probate Judge, Sheriff, Clerk of the Circuit Court, a Superintendent of Education, Two Commissioner, to be voted for at the general election in November, 1910 and two Committeemen from each precinct to be elected in said primary, be and the same is hereby called to be had and held in the various precincts and at the various voting places in Chilton county, on Monday the 2nd, day of May, 1910.

Second. That such primary election be held under the rules and regulations prescribed by the general primary election law of Alabama.

Third. Be it further resolved, that all white voters who are qualified electors under the law of the state and who will support the nominees of said primary in the general election in November, 1910, shall have the right to vote in said primary.

Candidates receiving a plurality of all the votes cast shall be declared the nominees.

Committeeman from each beat to appoint managers, Clerks and returning officers.

Returns are to be made to the county committee on or before the 6th day of May, 1910, and Committee to canvass returns on Friday, May 6, 1910.

A committee was appointed, composed of J. M Parrish, Ed Patterman and E. Robinson, to fix the amount to be paid by each candidate to defray expenses of election, and to control all details of the election.

The resignation of Thos. A. Perry was accepted and H. M. Simpson elected chairman of the County Committee. John M. Parrish was elected Secretary.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness described in and secured by a mortgage made by Frank Garner to E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, a corporation, dated June 12, 1909, and said default continuing, the said E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, mortgagee, will, under and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, proceed to sell, at public outcry, to the highest bidder, for cash, within the legal hours of sale, in front of the office of the E. E. Jackson Lumber Company at Riderville, Alabama, on SATURDAY, MARCH 13th, 1910.

the following personal property, in said mortgage described, namely:

One dun colored Ox named Buck and one spotted Ox named Bill.

This sale is made for the purpose of paying the debt secured by said mortgage, including the expenses of foreclosure.

E. E. JACKSON LUMBER CO.,
Mortgagee

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.			LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts		$25,536 64	Capital Stock Paid in	$15,000 00
Overdrafts		1,680 54	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	13,575 76
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank		13,750 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$66,013 69
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures		6,481 62	Savings Deposits	9,413 83
Other Real Estate		147 80	Cashier's Checks	141 62
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$14,502 32		Bills Payable	5,000 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	3,783 17			84,569 71
Currency	6,800 00
Gold	1,005 00
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,068 90
Checks and Cash Items	251 99
		27,561 35
Total		$83,059 44	Total	$83,059 44

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.
JNO. A. THOMAS, Cashier.
Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 23d day of October, 1909.
J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAMUEL KAUFMAN } Directors.
M. L. GREIL

Statement of the condition of the Clanton Bank, located at Clanton, Ala., at the close of business October 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.			LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts		$ 91,277 09	Capital Stock Paid in	$ 15,000 00
Overdrafts		633 55	Surplus Fund	10,000 00
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank		21,925 00	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	9,210 38
Furniture and Fixtures		5,616 33	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$ 75,522 17
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$16,000 77		Time Certificates	13,667 45
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	2,720 57		Cashier's Checks	115 00
Currency	4,005 00		Bills Payable	10,000 00
Gold	220 00			109,304 62
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,317 61
Checks and Cash Items	310 18
		25,023 36
Total		$143,804 33		$143,804 33

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of the Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.
E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.
Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 22nd day of October, 1909.
E. B. DEASON, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. H. BARTON
W. L. MULLINS } Directors.
P. D. WILSON

CORRESPONDENCE.

Thorsby, Ala., Feb. 7, 1910

Editor Banner—Please give me a small space and then I will quit writing on the stock law question. The next time I make a shot I will have my gun loaded with white supremacy. I will make several shots at our county officers.

Now, to Mr. McCary will say it was impossible for me to answer your letter last week, I was so busy raking leaves for you to fall on and will ask you to excuse me for my late answer.

First, the Old Coon desires to thank the boys for turning out to the polls and helping the Coon to snow them under. I want to say to Rounder and others they have my deepest sympathy in losing out on stock law, for they wanted it bad. I suppose they are old enough for their wants not to hurt them.

To Rounder will say, I have plenty of milk and butter of the finest quality, and plenty of home raised meat. When you want to chew on a nice slice of ham, come up. I am out of stock law and expect to remain out as long as I live in Beat 9, for there are too many men made out of the right sort of stuff to have such a plague on them as that.

Don't be discouraged, Rounder, try it again in two years time. It is just fun to beat you. With best wishes to all, the same OLD COON.

Thorsby, Feb. 7, 1910

Editor Banner—Please give me space to reply to Rounder. He talks as if he were the proper stuff. Concerning what I said about the grass, I still say that the people in the west where I was do not want stock law, but there are enough just like the Rounder to keep them from getting shut of it. I think if he will figure his 'corn tale he will never tell tale to any one, much less to publish it.

Please figure how many bushels of corn there would be to an acre, twelve inches high in Beat 14. I very often go over there. I will say there is one good cow in Beat 14, for I sold her to a man not long ago.

I have been in stock law beats last week and heard men say they were going to get rid of their cows, for it cost them more to feed them 365 days in the year than milk and butter was worth.

Now, boys, you all know what a Rounder is—he is all round the truth but never touches it.

Yours, against stock law,
VOTER.

Clanton, Feb. 7, 1910

Editor Banner—Now that the campaign in Alabama is open, so far as the Democratic party is concerned, we should select the best men possible, in both State and county, in our primary and do all we can to elect them in November.

The campaign of last fall is behind us, and is settled, I hope, for all time to come. As Democrats, we ought to line up against the common enemy, i. e., the Republican party, and let them explain that revision of the tariff they gave us last Spring, that revision that acted like Paulhan's balloon—went up.

There are certain men you meet now who want to say something about the independent campaign. Past history proves that such moves are spasmodic and will last about as long as Paddy did in the army. They have no platform or political principles to stand on, just after the offices.

There are certain members of the party, I hear say, they will eat salt in the primary. Friends, you lack just that much of being a good democrat. If you think the party has made mistakes, stay inside and help to right these mistakes.

Can't we elect a good man to the legislature? One who we all know, regardless of whether he was for or against the amendment, provided, of course, that he is a sober man. He can be instructed as to what his people want and let him do their will, not his. He is the servant, not the ruler.

A COUNTRY DEMOCRAT.

FARMS FOR RENT.

Near Verbena,

One 50 acres with 7-room house; one 100 acres with one 4 and one 5-room houses.

Near Thorsby,

One 75-acre farm with one 4 and one 6-room houses.

Cotton Seed for Sale.

250 bushels Cook's "Improved" Cotton Seed, home grown and pure.

250 bushels "Seek no Further" Cotton Seed, home grown and pure. Each averaged ½ bale to acre last year, and yield of lint from Cook's Improved was 38½ to 100; from Seek no Further was 36½ to 100.

Write F. A. GULLEDGE,
Verbena, Ala.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Lula E. Johnson, Jemison, Ala.

Why grieve because life golden sand
Ran low, God knoweth best.
The restful hands are quiet and Lie on a peaceful breast.

The feet that trod o'er duty's path
Now tread the flowery ways so fair,
Where golden hearted lilies shed
Their heavenly fragance on the air.

The yearnings of the earthbound soul
That struggled blindly toward the light
Hath reached a joy that is fourfold
Immortal joy with no earth blight.

So grieve not ye who miss her here
Whose groping hands reach out in vain,
'Twas an empty shell that pressed the bier
She liveth free from every pain.

By Mrs. STELLA SPENCER THOMAS.

PROGRAM

of Teachers' Institute to be held at Enterprise School House, February 18 and 19, 1910.

Friday, 10 a. m. Devotional services, Rev. Dismukes. Welcome address, J. H. Williams. Response, E. C. Popwell.

10:45 a. m. How to interest parents and pupils and keep them interested. Miss Sadie Belle Johnson, T. E. Williams.

11:15. Some little annoyances of the school room and how to prevent them. Miss Maline Burns.

Best methods of conducting recitations in reading and history. Miss Inga Hasby.

How can playtime be used to best advantage. R. L. Duffey.

1:15 How can parents aid the teacher in educating their children? A. F. Duffey, L. N. Henderson.

1:45. The reading habit. Miss Argie E. Jones, J. C. Merchant.

2:15. The importance of teaching the evils of narcotics in schools and in the homes. Rev. W. H. Connell, J. A. Hunter.

2:45. Query box round table discussions. Adjourn.

Saturday 9:00 a. m. Devotional exercises, Rev. R. F. Yeargan.

9:20. A selection. C. R. Fess.

9:45. The outcast student, Mrs. S. B. Groves.

10:15, Aim in educating, P. T. Graves, L. B. Pounds.

11:00. Address, Hon. H. J. Willingham.

Those wishing conveyance from Verbena can notify Prof. R. L. Duffey at that place.

Reason Enthroned.

Because meats are so tasty they are consumed in great excess. This leads to stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation. Revise your diet, let reason and not a pampered appetite control, then take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be well again. Try it. For sale at all druggists.

FRUIT TREES and PLANTS

FOR SALE until MARCH 1st.

TREES—A fine assortment—adapted to this section, grown by one of the best nurserymen in the country. PRICES 12 to 15c.

Cabbage Plants 25c per 100; $1.50 per 1000, f. o. b. Young's Island, S. C.

Can supply you with Strawberry Plants—the famous LADY THOMPSON.

I WANT YOUR TRADE IN THIS LINE.
JUDSON STROCK,
Clanton.

Notice of Application to the Governor

Notice is hereby given that application will be made to Honorable B. B. Comer, Governor of the State of Alabama, on Monday, the 14th day of February, 1910, to remit the fines in the three cases wherein Will Boyd was convicted for the offense of selling liquor in violation of the law, at the Fall Term of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, 1909.

This, the 22 day of January, 1910
W. R. BOYD,

A REWARD.

A description of John Ervine and wife. Ervine is a man of about 28 years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches high, with round face, low forehead and blue eyes and red moustache about one half inch long, with dark hair and head bald all over top and to the back of his head; has a conspicuous tripping with his feet in walking; broad mouth and a constant tobacco chewer.

Mrs. Ervine is a lady 21 years of age; very small, with delicate appearance; a perfect blonde; a heavy suit of very light hair, and fair skin and blue eyes; wore a brown coat suit with brown face veil; had dental work of gold in front teeth.

Ervine and his wife passed through this section of the country Jan. 14, 1910, going from house to house, claiming various vocations of life, and obtaining money under false pretenses from me and my neighbor. He obtained $23, besides many attempts he made and failed. The last of his whereabouts was in Adams Ferry road, going towards Clanton. He was driving a small pair of black mules to a top buggy. A liberal reward will be paid for his arrest.

S. J. DUPRIEST, S. H. HILYER.
Marble Valley, Ala., Jan, 28.

Chancery Notice.

Ex parte Belle Cooley.
In Chancery at Clanton, Ala.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed in Chancery Court at Clanton by Belle Cooley, praying that the disabilities of non-age of said Belle Cooley may be removed, and that Monday Feb 21, 1910, has been the day set for the hearing of said petition.

Dated this Feb. 1, 1910.
H. M. SIMPSON,
Register in Chancery.

WANTED.

PRINTER WANTED at once. Straight matter. Apply at THE BANNER office, Clanton, Ala.

FOR SALE—Two Four-acre lots with 3 roomed houses on them, good wells of water; and one Store House and lot—all in Coopers, Ala. will sell them cheap. Apply to
J. W. CLARK, Cooper, Ala.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists.

WANTED—15 or 20 teams to haul iron ore at Wessington. Pay 85c per ton; 3 mile haul; pay every two weeks. Miners also wanted. Call or write Tom Walker, or C. H. Durham, Jemison, Ala., care Shelby Iron Co.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all druggists.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Hanlen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

STRAYED

From my place, known as the Stewart place, one mile west of Clanton, November 29, 1909, a dark chestnut mule, about twelve years old, with scar on left shoulder. Any information should be sent to E. M. Pinckard & Co., Clanton, who will pay a reward of $10 for his delivery.

H. LOCKHART.

Took All His Money.

Often all a man earns goes to doctors or for medicines, to cure a Stomach, Liver or Kidney trouble that Dr. King's New Life Pills would quickly cure at slight cost. Best for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Jaundice, Malaria and Debility. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Verbena

The Verbena public school for this month of January has only one name on it, as follows:

Cordelia Scott.

Are You Bilious?

If you are sallow, have headache, dizziness, loss of appetite, and feel badly generally, you should use a good aperient and liver regulator. St. Joseph's Liver Regulator has for many years relieved these ailments. It is carefully prepared and is believed by the many people who use it to be the best medicine of its kind on the market. It is made in both liquid and powdered form. Druggists and general dealers sell it, liquid 50 cents a bottle; powdered, in tin boxes 25 cents a box, or five boxes for a dollar.

It May Be Pneumonia

"A hard chill, pain through the chest, difficult breathing. Then fever, with great prostration." If this should be your experience, send for your doctor. You may have pneumonia! If your doctor cannot come at once, give Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. When he comes, tell him exactly what you have done. Then do as he says. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Keep the bowels in good condition. One of Ayer's Pills at bedtime will cause an increased flow of bile, and produce a gentle laxative effect the day following.

PERIL OF PARIS FROM FLOODS

How the Inundated City Is Peculiarly Exposed to Overflows of the River Seine---Danger From Vast Underground Works :: ::

Enormous Loss of Property In Greatest Flood In France Since 1616---Many Lives Lost---Thousands Homeless :: :: ::

By WALTON WILLIAMS.

FROM time to time France has suffered greatly from floods, most of which have been due to the river Seine, but its recent overflow, by which Paris has been most disastrously undermined, is the greatest flood since 1616, surpassing the next greatest, that of 1802, by several inches and greatly exceeding the floods of 1856 and 1876. According to the estimate of Premier M. Briand, $200,000,000 worth of property has already been destroyed. Hundreds of lives have been lost throughout the country and 15,000 rendered homeless in Paris and over 100,000 throughout France.

Two circumstances combine to place the city of Paris peculiarly in peril of floods—its situation and its vast system of underground architecture. Nor is this disaster by any means a rare one. Overflows of the Seine have several times assumed the proportions of widespread calamity.

Conditions That Presage Disaster.

The country in which the city lies is a shallow alluvial basin, much of it, like the lower Mississippi valley, below the river level. Through this plain with is the Seine, a concentration of several large tributaries rising in widely separated mountain regions and uniting in the Seine above Paris. It therefore takes comparatively little rain or melting snow in the uplands to swell the Seine to flood in its lower course. When there is an unusual rainfall, as recently, this becomes an uncontrollable torrent, already greatly augmented by flood conditions at its own source in the mountains of Cote d'Or. Among these tributaries are the Aube, Yonne, Loing and Marne.

From its mountain source to the city the Seine follows a direct course, keeping to its broad main channel. Entering the city narrowed between high masonry, it begins a series of windings. Thus the concentrated floods of all the wide drainage area in central and eastern France pile up till they leap over into the low water front streets of the city, flood and burst the sewers and subways and undermine buildings. Add to these conditions the numerous islands that block the stream during its course through the city and banks at its mouth and the tidal bores that back up from the sea, impeding the onrush in the channel, and the conditions of disaster are complete.

Peril From Sewers.

The sewers of Paris, made famous by Victor Hugo since the seventeenth century, despite their great service, have complicated flood perils. The city's foundation is literally honeycombed, and under flood pressure these vast tunnels burst and undermine the foundations of the buildings. The main sewers are eighteen feet in diameter, and the total length of this network of drains is 900 miles. As these tubes also contain water conduits, gas pipes, telegraph, telephone and power wires and the pneumatic postal tubes, the effects of a bursting sewer are greatly complicated.

Another phase of underground Paris is the catacombs, extending under a considerable part of the left river bank.

A modern addition to the underworld and the part in which there has been the greatest flood damage at present is the subway system. This began with the opening of the Metropolitan underground railway in 1900 and has been continued till the city has been interlaced by a network of tunnels. The main line runs east and west through the center of the city from the Porte de Vincennes to the Porte Maillot, a distance of seven miles. Another more northerly line from the Place de la Nation to the Bois de Boulogne makes a loop of eight miles. The new line under construction, in which there have been bad cave-ins during the last few days, extends under the Grand boulevard from the Place de la Concorde through the Rue Royale to the Place de la Bastille and thence across the Seine through the Boulevard St. Germain to the chamber of deputies. The Orleans road also enters the city by subway.

Paris altogether covers 20,000 acres, of which the Seine occupies 1,700. The river averages two hundred or three hundred yards in width, and its length in the city is seven miles. Paris at its lowest level is only eighty feet above tidewater.

Louvre Galleries Menaced.

None of the large buildings along the river has escaped the invading waters, which reached to within a few inches of the parapet of the quay at the Louvre galleries. The flood threatened momentarily to inundate the sculpture gallery, where are kept the Venus de Milo and other priceless art treasures. The subterranean chapels of the Cathedral of Notre Dame were flooded and the heating apparatus rendered useless. The German embassy and the Academy of Medicine were flooded. The lower cells of the courts of justice were completely flooded, and the famous mouse trap staircase, trodden by many notorious prisoners between the cells and the courts, was filled with water. There is a chamber off the staircase holding important legal archives. This was eight feet under water. A diver was sent to rescue the papers. The work was done with much difficulty and some danger.

The Eiffel tower, whose foundations are believed to be seriously impaired by the flood, is 984 feet high, built of iron framework, in the Champ de Mars, Paris, for the exposition of 1889. The general form is that of a concave pyramid. The base consists of four inclined piers set at the angles of a square of 336 feet. The piers are connected on the sides of the square by huge arches. After rising about 600 feet the four piers are merged in one. There are three platforms at different heights. The top one, more than 900 feet from the ground, is surrounded by a balcony and covered with a glass pavilion fifty-four feet square. Above this rises the lantern, which is fitted for scientific observations. At the top there is also a wireless station.

Many pathetic and some amusing scenes have been furnished by the catastrophe. It is curious to notice the household possessions which appeal to some persons as the most valuable when quitting their homes hurriedly. One man hastened from his house to a rescue boat carrying a child on one arm and a gramophone on the other. Another brought out a basket and bottles.

The graver incidents include one at Ivry, where a man in an attitude of despair stood outside the town hall watching the water rising. His wife stood beside him sobbing, with a baby in her arms and two little girls clinging to her skirt.

"We had a grocery store in the Rue Nationale," said the man to a sympathizer. "We had an uphill fight for nine years, but things had just begun to improve. Now all has gone in a single night. We have lost everything."

The present flood began with heavy storms on Jan. 17. Besides Paris, many other towns have been severely affected.

VIEW OF THE SEINE IN PARIS AND THE EIFFEL TOWER.

TO KEEP BOYS ON THE FARM.

Novel Experiment to Improve Country Life in Virginia.

With the co-operation of the United States department of agriculture, Superintendent of Public Instruction J. D. Eggleston, Jr., recently launched the first practical movement looking to the end advocated by writers and speakers during the last few years of keeping the Virginia boys on the farms of the commonwealth.

Mr. Eggleston's plan, which he communicated to twenty division school superintendents, contemplates the selection of two to six boys from each of two to ten schools in each county. These boys are to be given the use of an acre of land by parents, are to be aided by the government demonstrators and are to receive instruction from their teachers. It is suggested that after the crop is gathered exhibits or fairs be held in each county and prizes offered for the best showing. Corn growing alone is contemplated this year.

The plan is briefly as follows:

The boys, who must be regular attendants in the public schools, are to be chosen by the superintendents. Each boy selected shall have on his home place one acre of land. On this acre, which is not to be the best acre nor the worst, but an average one, the boy is to raise a crop of corn under the definite instruction of the government demonstrator, assisted by the teacher. He is to bind himself to follow carefully the instructions laid down by the demonstration agents through their circulars and bulletins.

The superintendents are instructed to select not less than two nor more than ten schools in the county, preferably of the consolidated type, in which to begin. The work is not to be attempted at any school where the teacher cannot or will not take hold of it with sympathy and determination. In each of the schools there are to be selected from two to six boys who are willing to take up the work during the year.

No boy is to be chosen whose parent or guardian will not permit him to have the acre of land, either free or rented at a reasonable rent by the boy, to cultivate as directed and to own all the products of his labor when the crop is gathered.

NEW THEORIES OF SLEEP.

Professor Wenley Says Blood Goes to the Brain and Extremities.

An outline of the results of experiments that have been conducted in the University of Michigan with the object of solving the mysteries of sleep was recently made public by Professor R. M. Wenley.

According to his statement, one long accepted theory is overturned. It has been accepted as a fact that the loss of consciousness was due to a lessened flow of blood to the brain. Professor Wenley says his experiments show that the size or volume of the brain increases when the individual goes to sleep and decreases when he awakens, and the same is true of the hands and feet. It was noted that in some cases the brain became smaller at first and then increased as sleep became deeper.

One of the delicate devices used recorded a "breathing wave" from the brain and hands and feet. The fall of circulation corresponded very closely to an inspiration and rise to an expiration.

OPERA BY WIRELESS.

Guests of a Telephone Inventor Enjoy an Unusual Experience.

Opera by wireless telephone was heard at the Coliseum in Chicago the other night during the electrical show. A small party of electrical men, guests of Frederick Collins, the inventor, heard the first act of "Il Trovatore" as presented at the Great Northern and later some of the numbers on the program of the Boston Opera company at the Auditorium.

A representative of Mr. Collins had placed a portable transmission on the two stages, and every one in the little party at the Coliseum distinctly heard the voices of the singers, both in ensemble and in solos. Mr. Collins asserted that without the interference of the maze of metallic wires and braces in the electrical show the success of the test would have been even more satisfactory.

Colony of Former Lunatics.

Former inmates of the Government Hospital For the Insane at Washington are living together on the "community of interest" plan somewhere in the national capital. The knowledge that such a colony exists came to the police through the recent disappearance from the hospital of a Mrs. Whalen, to whom was given permission to visit an aunt in the city, but who failed to return to the institution at the appointed hour in the evening. Inquiry at the home of the aunt brought out the information that Mrs. Whalen probably was with friends, former inmates of the hospital, who were living together somewhere in the northwest portion of the city. The place is being sought by the police.

To Hunt With Falcon and Goshawk.

Richard Bowring of Ramsgate, England, falconer for Paul J. Rainey, recently arrived at New York with a falcon and a goshawk, which Mr. Rainey purposes using for hunting at his home in New Albany, Miss. Mr. Bowring said that so far as he knew falcons or goshawks had never been used in the United States and that he was introducing a new "sport." Falcons are used to catch grouse, partridges and the like, while the goshawks are to hunt the hare, rabbit and other ground animals.

UNTERMYER'S $775,000 FEE.

Lawyer's Compensation For Concluding Merger Between Big Companies.

The fact that Samuel Untermyer, the lawyer, had received a fee of $775,000 for his work in bringing about the merger between the Utah Copper company and the Boston Consolidated Mining company, finally completed the other night after dismissal of the injunction proceedings in the United States circuit court at Trenton, N. J., was the one topic of interest recently among lawyers in New York city. It was generally admitted that it is the largest fee ever received by a lawyer in a single case in the United States, probably in the world. Mr. Untermyer himself, however, would not talk about it.

"Is it true," he was asked, "that your fee of $775,000 is the largest ever received by a lawyer?"

"For obvious reasons," said Mr. Untermyer, with a satisfied smile, "I cannot discuss such a personal subject. Anyway, it is not a matter of public interest."

Inquiry brought out from other sources some interesting details regarding the work that Mr. Untermyer did for $775,000.

In the first place, it represented some three or four years' attention to the interests of the Boston Consolidated company, which is controlled by an English syndicate, and continued negotiations to bring about the consolidation which has at length gone through. As to the legal proceedings which immediately preceded it, there has seldom been a case before the courts which involved so much work in the preparation of papers. Three companies—one English and two American—were involved in the suit, and Mr. Untermyer represented all three.

It also became known that Mr. Untermyer's fee was not all cash. Included in the amount were 3,250 shares of Boston Consolidated, which were turned over to the lawyer. These at the current market rate would be worth about $65,000. The rest, however, was cash.

When the question of fees came up the directors and stockholders of both the Utah and the Boston companies voted unanimously that the amount asked, $775,000, was not excessive.

In the merger is likely to be involved a total capitalization of $100,000,000. In comparison with this a $775,000 fee is a mere flea bite.

Other lawyers who were asked what they thought of such a sizable legal fee all declined to discuss it on the ground that it would be unbecoming to do so. Joseph H. Choate said he had never received such a fee himself and he didn't see why he should discuss what another lawyer had received.

Paul D. Cravath, who has received some large fees himself, was greatly interested.

"Whew!" he said. "It certainly was a good round sum. No; I do not care to say what was the largest fee I have ever received. I don't think, though, that it amounted to $775,000."

A "BELLAMY" DANCE.

Everything Was Literally Backward at Odd Affair.

A "Bellamy" dance was given at the Bellfield club in Pittsburg the other night, attended by several hundred fashionable young people. Everything was literally backward.

The dancing began with the home waltz and ended with the grand march. The room was arranged with large mirrors, and on the back of each person attending was a tag written backward, giving the name of his or her partner for dinner. The dining room was arranged so that the supper was served on chairs, while the guests sat on the tables. The menu was printed backward and began with coffee and ended with soup. The waiters wore their coats buttoned up the back. They wore false faces on the backs of their heads and served the courses walking backward.

Dog Turned to Stone Climbing Tree.

John O'Neal, engineer on the Southern railway, while hunting in a dense forest a few miles south of Manassas, Va., the other day, found a petrified dog in the forks of a tree near the ground. The supposition is that the dog in springing for prey was caught as found and slowly turned to stone. O'Neal took the dog to Washington, where it will be placed on exhibition. Many offers have been made for the strange relic, but thus far the price has been refused. The perfect condition of the dog makes it especially valuable.

Eucalyptus For Railroad Ties.

The Southern Pacific Railway company of Mexico has ordered thousands of eucalyptus trees, which will be planted at various places along its new line in the United States. The trees will be grown for cross ties.

Wail of the Butcher Man.

Steaks, steaks, steaks,
All cut and ready to sell,
But never a soul comes into my shop!
Oh, beef trust, is this well?

Pig's feet, sausage and pork,
Chickens and veal and tripe—
My counters are loaded with these,
And some of them getting ripe!

But ever the hungry throngs
Go surging past my door,
And no one ventures to step inside
And stand on my sawdust floor.

For thousands and thousands have sworn They'll sooner starve than eat
A morsel of flesh or fowl
Till down goes the price of meat.

Beef, beef, beef!
It's hard to collect the bill.
But, oh, for the touch of a vanished trade
And the sound of a phone that is still!
—Boston Transcript.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

The Republican Whip.

With the majority party in the house of representatives divided over the rules of procedure, the duties of John Wilbur Dwight, the Republican whip, have been decidedly on the strenuous order of late. Mr. Dwight is quite new in the position of whip, his first experience being in the extra session last summer, when he was kept busy lining up his party for the Payne tariff bill. He succeeded James E. Watson of Indiana, who for many years wielded the majority whip. Mr. Watson gave up congress to become the Republican candidate for governor of Indiana in 1908, but was defeated at the polls.

JOHN W. DWIGHT.

Congressman Dwight is a native of Dryden, N. Y., where he has always resided, and will be fifty-one next May. He represents the Thirtieth New York district and was elected to the Fifty-seventh congress to fill a vacancy. Since then he has been regularly returned. He is one of the most popular members of his state delegation and has won fame as a harmonizer. It seems not unlikely that he will need all of this quality he possesses for some time to come.

Nabuco a Versatile Genius.

Ambassador Nabuco of Brazil is one of the most accomplished diplomats in Washington. It was said by Director John Barrett of the pan-American bureau that he could write a treatise on international law in English with his right hand and a French poem with the other which would deceive the critics into thinking it was the work of some renowned poet.

He was brought up in the days of the Brazilian empire in a cultured home full of the most refined associations, and he says that the young men of his country of that day spent their time among books, while now the young men of the same age take trips to the United States and England to complete their education along business lines. The ambassador has had the benefit of both systems, and he works at his desk standing, presenting an unusual appearance from his six feet in height and military carriage. He was an ardent supporter of the great emperor and one of the last to be reconciled to his being driven from the throne.

Minister to Persia.

From a clerkship in the department of justice twenty years ago to a portfolio in the diplomatic service is the record of Charles W. Russell, recently appointed minister to Persia. In the meantime Mr. Russell had risen by force of ability through the various grades in the department to the post of assistant attorney general.

During the first Roosevelt administration Mr. Russell was made a special assistant attorney general, in charge of insular affairs, to look after matters in our island possessions. Then he was employed to investigate the title to the Panama canal at the time this government was about to acquire that property. In the course of his investigation he went to Paris, and his work was so well done that Attorney General Knox adopted his report after only a few days' examination in the French capital on his own account. Subsequently Mr. Russell was engaged in making investigations of various charges against judges and other federal officials, especially western and territorial officers. In all his work he has won the praise of his superiors.

The new minister is a native of Wheeling, W. Va., and is fifty-three years old. He was appointed assistant attorney general four years ago.

CHARLES W. RUSSELL.

A SAVAGE WITCH

His Life Was Saved by the Quiah Tribe.

The author of "Heroes of Crusades," the Rev. Edward M. A., at one time master of school, says in his book that years ago the privilege of king of the Quiah country masonic, at Harrow. The had been educated at S college, Canterbury, and lecture to the Harrovians in lish. In his lecture he story which brings one weird lives of the Quiahs agricultural and trading fensive characters on the of Africa.

"In my country," said the have no prisons, therefore spirit is brought to me I something—an ear or two foot—and he goes home a a wiser man. Just before England a chief came to bringing a prisoner.

"What has he done asked.

"He is a dangerous He can turn himself into

"Pooh! Nonsense! I that old fashioned stuff.

"Oh, but we saw him by the big river.

"Indeed! Well, chief, about it. You saw him

"I did. We were banks of the river with when all at once we saw for lying on a rock in the witch man was lying asleep mock some fifty yards away dangerous creature be is!

"Well, king, do not your eyes like that, for I the truth. I put up my the alligator; but, to our great soon as I fired this fellow of his hammock and fell and rubbed his back and was hurt.

"Now, O king, if this not been inside the alligator could he have been hurt

"Gentlemen," concluded the see you are laughing with but it is very difficult to people unfaught and given superstition.

"What did I do? Why, if him free they would have as soon as I had gone on I saved his life by chopping left ear."

MODERN CHESS.

The Game Vastly Different From of the Ninth Century.

Chess is but a game, a relaxation, but it has absorbed the faculties of the in every clime. Perhaps the eulogy on the game was the of Sir Walter Raleigh. "I do to live longer than I can play It is certain that those who play the game are quite form any conception of the intellectual delights experienced chess enthusiast.

The origin of chess has been changed, developed and down the course of centuries its present form it would not ognized by its inventor. If was one. The oldest chess record is thought to be that in an ancient Persian manuscript tributed to Caliph Kalifen Billah, who reigned in Bagdad 833 to 842. But the reader to learn the old rules before intelligible. For example, the could make a move of only at a time and that on a diagonal a queen promoted from a allowed to make a move squares diagonally. The no power over any square third from which it stood on diagonal line, but it was vault over any piece that be between. In short, it was different game. Chess in the form in which we know it and today is a comparatively modern —London Strand Magazine.

Amending a Proverb.

There are a lot of silly knocking about. Take, for "If pigs had wings they Now, this is absurd if you you know what sized wings weighing eighty pounds would in order to fly? They would about thirty yards from tip to nice state of things to keep pigs aviary with wings of that proverb would run much better

If pigs could fly
Pork would be high.
—London

The Right Way.

Little Willie liked ice cream, objected to turning the freezer day his mother was agreeably prised to find him working crank as if his life depended on "How did you get Willie to ice cream freezer?" she asked husband. "I offered him 2 cents it, and he wouldn't."

"You didn't go about it the way, my dear," replied her "I bet him a cent he couldn't for half an hour!"

Pretty Ancient.

"What is the oldest form of ture?"

"I dunno, but I guess some musical comedy jokes must be pretty nearly that far."—Chicago Plain Dealer.

Adam's Kick.

Eve—What makes you look so Adam—I wish you wouldn't be in your dresses. It isn't necessary you to pick the most highly autumn leaves.—New York Press.

Milady's Mirror

are women who are born to his suggestive of youth up to erable age. Others achieve ner time sweetness with con-palms, and all those between d as they are, or older which at sin in these enlightened ed to beauty place must be n every day in quarter mile to get anything like good rethe way of breaking ground ament prettiness. Woman can the sun set upon her idleness practice young eyes, whip bend line that wants to trace astine the lobes of her ears h her eyebrows the way they s a funny thing to say, but it glected eyebrow which gives hint of the flight of time.

d eyebrows always look rag when the period arrives for misbehavior they develop into air here and there, grow thin etimes fall out entirely. What done? Why, they must be night and morning with a brush kept entirely for the
They must be greased reli very night with a feeding oil o time, day or night, must rubbed the wrong way.
renews the coloring matter dvancing years diminish, and ding promotes a silky quality s off the end of the too long ills it out entirely. The right of the brows—from the cenforehead to the temples—is of good sense, for the hairs s way, and to brush them rse is to encourage roughness.

the Secret of Relaxation.

ouschold cat is an excellent r the average woman to keep r eyes. Let women learn her relaxation, and they may keep ility and grace of youth al-nitely. They can also keep es unlined for years after the who is always in a state of has begun to mourn over et. Pussy has muscles of iron ible claws, which she can use ut effect when she wants to.
she doesn't want to use them les are in a state of absolute n and the claws are sheathed velvet. The average woman laxes either her mind or her d even in sleep she is all tied ntal and physical knots. She so accustomed to weariness does not recognize it as such ong as she is able to stand it occur to her that she is tired which has heaped so many rs on her shoulders, is more for this characteristic than rself, but it isn't always nec carry the cares about all the to continue the tension habit reason for it is gone.

Care of the Eyes

shade on your lamp or gas all sudden changes between darkness.
read by twilight, moonlight
ody days.
read or sew directly in front
ht of window or door.
est to let the light fall from liquely over the left shoulder.
use the eyesight by light so t it requires an effort to dis-sleep so that on first awaken-yes shall open on the light of begin to read, write or sew.

Have You Tri

There is a bottle of Cardui w store. Have you tried it?
If not, we urge you to do so.
obtained such a hold on you,
out.
Even now, it may be nearly
If anything can help you, Ca housands of cases, where othe in vain. Why should it not d

ake CAR

The Woman's

"My daughter, Octava, would h had it not been for that f
s. Mrs. Laura Lawrence, of Dre
"Nothing I tried helped my da Cardui. I had sent for the our medicine and got a $1 b four doses she became all righ ui to my friends."
Your druggist sells Cardui with e bottle.

ite to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga M ical Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Tre

A SAVAGE WITCH.

His Life Was Saved by the Chief of the Quiah Tribe.

The author of "Heroes of the Crusades," the Rev. Edward [illegible] M. A., at one time master of [illegible] school, says in his book that [illegible] years ago the privilege of [illegible] king of the Quiah country, [illegible] masong, at Harrow. The Quiah had been educated at St. [illegible] college, Canterbury, and was a lecture to the Harrovians [illegible] lish. In his lecture he told a story which brings one [illegible] weird lives of the Quiahs, a [illegible] ricultural and trading tribe [illegible] fensive characters on the west of Africa.

"In my country," said the king, "we have no prisons, therefore if [illegible] prit is brought to me I must [illegible] something—an ear or two, a hand, foot—and he goes home a sadder, a wiser man. Just before I left England a chief came to me bringing a prisoner.

"'What has he done, friend?' I asked.

"'He is a dangerous witch. Oh, He can turn himself into an alligator.'

"'Pooh! Nonsense! I don't believe that old fashioned stuff.'

"'Oh, but we saw him do it—by the big river.'

"'Indeed! Well, chief, tell me about it. You saw him yourself?'

"'I did. We were hunting by the banks of the river with our dogs when all at once we saw a big alligator lying on a rock in the river. The witch man was lying asleep in a hammock some fifty yards away. Of the dangerous creature he is!'

"'Well, king, do not laugh [illegible] your eyes like that, for I am speaking the truth. I put up my rifle to the alligator; but, to our great fear, soon as I fired this fellow rolled of his hammock and fell on the ground and rubbed his back and swore he was hurt.

"'Now, O king, if this witch had not been inside the alligator could he have been hurt when I fired?'

"'Gentlemen,' concluded the king, 'I see you are laughing with your eyes, but it is very difficult to rule a people untaught and given over to superstition.

"'What did I do? Why, if I had let him free they would have killed me as soon as I had gone on my shooting. I saved his life by chopping off his left ear.'"

MODERN CHESS.

The Game Vastly Different From That of the Ninth Century.

Chess is but a game, a pastime, a relaxation, but it has at times absorbed the faculties of the intellect in every clime. Perhaps the greatest eulogy on the game was the remark of Sir Walter Raleigh, "I do not expect to live longer than I can play my game. It is certain that those who do not play the game are quite unable to form any conception of the high intellectual delights experienced by the chess enthusiast.

The origin of chess has been sought in vain. The fact is the game has changed, developed and improved down the course of centuries that its present form it would not be recognized by its inventor, if there was one. The oldest chess problem on record is thought to be that contained in an ancient Persian manuscript attributed to Caliph Kalifen Motawakkel Billah, who reigned in Bagdad from 833 to 842. But the reader would have to learn the old rules before it would be intelligible. For example, the queen could make a move of only one square at a time and that on a diagonal line, a queen promoted from a pawn was allowed to make a move of two squares diagonally. The bishop had no power over any square except the third from which it stood on the same diagonal line, but it was allowed to vault over any piece that happened to be between. In short, it was a totally different game. Chess in the present form in which we know it and play it today is a comparatively modern game.—London Strand Magazine.

Amending a Proverb.

There are a lot of silly people knocking about. Take, for instance, "If pigs had wings they would fly." Now, this is absurd if you like. Do you know what sized wings a pig weighing eighty pounds would require in order to fly? They would measure about thirty yards from tip to tip. A nice state of things to keep pigs in an aviary with wings of that size! The proverb would run much better thus:

If pigs could fly
Pork would be high.

—London Sketch.

The Right Way.

Little Willie liked ice cream, but objected to turning the freezer. One day his mother was agreeably surprised to find him working away at the crank as if his life depended on it.

"How did you get Willie to turn the ice cream freezer?" she said to her husband. "I offered him 2 cents for it, and he wouldn't."

"You didn't go about it the right way, my dear," replied her husband. "I bet him a cent he couldn't do it for half an hour!"

Pretty Ancient.

"What is the oldest form of literature?"

"I dunno, but I guess some of the musical comedy jokes must run pretty nearly that far."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Adam's Kick.

Eve—What makes you look so sad, Adam—I wish you wouldn't have holes in your dresses. It isn't necessary for you to pick the most highly colored autumn leaves.—New York Puck.

Milady's Mirror

are women who are born to [illegible] looks suggestive of youth up to [illegible] venerable age. Others achieve [illegible] summer time sweetness with [illegible] pains, and all those between [illegible] old as they are, or older, which [illegible] just sin in these enlightened [illegible] road to beauty place must be [illegible] on every day in quarter mile [illegible] to get anything like good re- [illegible] the way of breaking ground [illegible] permanent prettiness. Woman can- [illegible] the sun set upon her idleness. [illegible] best practice young eyes, whip [illegible] behind line that wants to tres- [illegible] chastise the lobes of her ears [illegible] arch her eyebrows the way they [illegible] go.

[illegible] is a funny thing to say, but it [illegible] neglected eyebrow which gives [illegible] first hint of the flight of time. [illegible] tired eyebrows always look ragged [illegible] when the period arrives for [illegible] misbehavior they develop into [illegible] hair here and there, grow thin [illegible] sometimes fall out entirely. What [illegible] be done? Why, they must be [illegible] night and morning with a [illegible] brush kept entirely for the [illegible]. They must be greased rellably [illegible] every night with a feeding oil [illegible] no time, day or night, must [illegible] be rubbed the wrong way.

[illegible] oil renews the coloring matter [illegible] advancing years diminish, and [illegible] rubbing promotes a silky quality [illegible] keeps off the end of the too long [illegible] pulls it out entirely. The right [illegible] arching of the brows—from the center [illegible] the forehead to the temples—is [illegible] matter of good sense, for the hairs [illegible] have their way, and to brush them [illegible] the wise is to encourage roughness.

[illegible] the Secret of Relaxation.

[illegible] household cat is an excellent [illegible] for the average woman to keep [illegible] her eyes. Let women learn her [illegible] art of relaxation, and they may keep [illegible] flexibility and grace of youth almost indefinitely. They can also keep [illegible] muscles unlined for years after the [illegible] woman who is always in a state of [illegible] has begun to mourn over [illegible] crow's feet. Pussy has muscles of iron [illegible] and terrible claws, which she can use [illegible] with excellent effect when she wants to, [illegible] when she doesn't want to use them [illegible] muscles are in a state of absolute [illegible] relaxation and the claws are sheathed [illegible] in velvet. The average woman [illegible] relaxes either her mind or her [illegible] body even in sleep she is all tied [illegible] up in mental and physical knots. She [illegible] is so accustomed to weariness [illegible] that she does not recognize it as such, [illegible] working as she is able to stand it [illegible] does not occur to her that she is tired. [illegible] The line which has heaped so many [illegible] wrinkles on her shoulders, is more [illegible] responsible for this characteristic than [illegible] anything else, but it isn't always necessary to carry the cares about all the [illegible] time to continue the tension habit [illegible] when the reason for it is gone.

Care of the Eyes.

[illegible] a shade on your lamp or gas [illegible]

[illegible] all sudden changes between [illegible] light and darkness.

[illegible] to read by twilight, moonlight [illegible] or cloudy days.

[illegible] to read or sew directly in front [illegible] of a light of window or door.

[illegible] best to let the light fall from [illegible] obliquely over the left shoulder.

[illegible] to use the eyesight by light so [illegible] dim that it requires an effort to distinguish [illegible]

[illegible] to sleep so that on first awakening [illegible] the eyes shall open on the light of [illegible]

[illegible] to begin to read, write or sew [illegible] for several minutes after coming from darkness to light.

The moment you are instinctively prompted to rub your eyes that moment stop using them.

If the eyelids are glued together on waking up do not forcibly open them, but apply saliva with the finger—it is the speediest diluent in the world—then wash the eyes and face in warm water.

Oranges as Beautifiers.

As oranges act upon the liver they will do much to keep the complexion clear and fair. A famous beauty who lived to be nearly a hundred and kept her apple blossom completion to the end attributed the remarkable preservation of her charms to her habit of eating oranges in large quantities. Ordinarily she consumed about three dozen a day, and when she left off oranges it was only to turn to other fruits. She drank only water and plenty of it and permitted herself no meat but chicken. This woman also kept her thirty-two teeth unimpaired to the end of her life.

THE NEW VALENTINE.

Practical as Well as Sentimental Gifts Popular This Year.

All the old ideas of valentines, with their mystery of sending and their sentimental rhymes, are past. The new valentines are different and take the form of little gifts, often, or of odd little cards, where love and humor about equally balance.

The old "comic" valentine has practically passed, and rightly, for its attempt at fun was so vulgar as to make it die a natural death.

Great red hearts, with chubby Cupids offering love in the brightest of ways, or with a pair of tots with enormous hats looking solemnly at each other, with their fat thumbs stuck into their mouths, entitled "Love at First Sight," bring a smile at first glance. This is the legitimate sort of humor for valentines.

Or telegram blanks filled with love's hurry calls, or a formal court summons commanding your presence at the court of love, to be tried before Cupid on the charge of having a hard heart, or Cupid working every sort of way to get an arrow in—but a laughing Cupid, not an old time lackadaisical Cupid—are bright and full of fun.

If your present takes the form of candy, put it in one of the beautiful heart shaped boxes the shops are full of.

Or let your valentine take a more practical turn—send books, or some little trinket, or gloves, or perhaps a plume.

If you know any children send them valentines, as quaint ones, brimming over with nonsense and fun, as you can find. And send to every child you know. There never was a youngster yet who didn't look forward to getting them and be bitterly disappointed if they failed to materialize. And then at school there's a hubbub of "How many did you get?"

Since lovers decided to share the day with children, do your share for the wee ones at least.

One girl hit upon a clever way of having partners chosen by making her own dance cards, which had the pencils tied to them, each two with a different color. She had gone to a great deal of trouble to find out what each girl was going to wear and had the ribbons match the dresses in as many cases as possible.

The men she made choose a color and then sent them off to find the girls their ribbons matched. On the front of the cards were sketched in pen and ink two hearts, with an arrow through them, pinning them together, and verses.

That on the girls' card was:

'Mong the merry lads assembled here
There's one whose ribbon matches thine.
Cupid will bring him to thee, dear,
To be this eve thy valentine.

On those for the men:

'Mong the merry maids assembled here
There's one whose ribbon matches thine.
Go seek her out, and she shall be
For all this eve thy valentine.

And Cupid played great havoc that night!

Have You Tried It?

There is a bottle of Cardui waiting for you at the [illegible] store. Have you tried it?

If not, we urge you to do so, before your troubles [illegible] obtained such a hold on you, that nothing will drive them out.

Even now, it may be nearly too late. But try it anyway. If anything can help you, Cardui will. It has helped thousands of cases, where other medicines had been tried in vain. Why should it not do the same for you?

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"My daughter, Octava, would have been in her grave [illegible] had it not been for that fine medicine, Cardui," [illegible] Mrs. Laura Lawrence, of Drennon Springs, Ky. "Nothing I tried helped my daughter, until she had [illegible] Cardui. I had sent for the doctor, when I thought [illegible] medicine and got a $1 bottle. When she had [illegible] four doses she became all right. I often recommend [illegible] to my friends."

Your druggist sells Cardui with full instructions for use [illegible] bottle.

Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., [illegible] Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent free.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To Clean Wool Garments.

To remove grease from woolen cloth sponge the stain well with equal parts of ammonia and water, then with clear water. The ammonia forms a soap with the fat or grease, and this is soluble in water and will rinse out.

If the stain is obstinate warm suds of white soap and ammonia will do good work in most cases.

When the garment is of a color which will not stand water or ammonia the housewife may resort to dry powders. For this clothing of delicate tints pure white starch makes an excellent cleaner. It is rubbed into the spot and allowed to remain until it has absorbed the grease. Dry magnesia works in the same way, but costs more. A paste made of magnesia and water may be allowed to dry on some colors and will brush away, taking the grease with it.

White woolens of almost any kind are best renovated by washing with white soap suds and borax.

A mixture of four parts of alcohol and one of common salt makes an excellent cleaner for men's and boys' garments.

Turpentine is necessary when there is grease in any quantity. The stain is wet with the turpentine, then pressed dry between clean blotters, which absorb the compound.

In cleaning, experiment upon a sample of the goods before attacking a garment of value.

Hints For the Sickroom.

Keeping the patient's feet warm will prevent headaches.

Oil all locks and soap window cords to make them work easily and thus save any undue noise.

When the sickroom is being ventilated a screen should be passed in front of the window to prevent the danger of a draft.

People in general are not aware how essential it is to the health and happiness of the patient that there should be a free admission of light in the sickroom.

Flowers should be always kept fresh in a sickroom and the water frequently changed. Avoid all flowers with a strong scent.

Improved Carpet Stretcher.

The secret of the success achieved by the professional in laying carpet consists chiefly of the use of implements which have not heretofore been altogether available for use by the amateur. This is not so any longer, for there has been devised a tack holder and carpet stretcher, which functions are combined in a single implement of such simple and inexpensive construction that it will soon take its place among the household implements which are regarded as essential.

LAYS CARPET SMOOTHLY.

This apparatus provides a third hand, which holds a tack in the right place for driving while the carpet is stretched on the floor. It also obviates all danger of crushing the fingers with the hammer in the effort to drive the nail.

Suet Pudding.

Measure one cupful of suet chopped fine, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of cold coffee, two cupfuls of raisins, seeded and chopped; one and one-half cupfuls of currants, washed and dried; one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful each of your favorite spices. Mix flour, raisins, currants and soda together, then add other ingredients. Pour into a well buttered one gallon bucket or divide into smaller pails, cover tightly and set in a kettle of boiling water and boil five hours. The longer you boil it the better.

Scotch Oat Cakes.

One pound fine Scotch oatmeal, one tablespoonful melted butter, enough cold water to make a smooth dough. Put the butter with the oatmeal, add salt and water. Knead till very smooth, roll very thin, divide into cakes and place on a hot griddle. When done rub with dry oatmeal and toast before the fire till they curl up.

Spaghetti and Tomatoes.

Boil one-half pound of spaghetti till tender and drain; then add one-half cupful of cream, one-third cupful of butter, pepper and salt. Let simmer for a short time, but don't let it cook up. Turn into vegetable dish. Have ready one pint of stewed tomatoes and pour over the spaghetti and serve.

Apple Butter Custard Pie.

Beat together four eggs, one teacupful of apple butter, one of sugar, one teaspoonful of allspice; add one quart of rich milk and a pinch of salt. Bake in three pies with an under crust only.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Lasting Valentine.

St. Valentine's day was approaching, and Jennie and Rosie spent all their leisure time in fashioning pretty cards for their friends.

While busy at work mamma entered their nursery, and, seating herself between the desks, she began:

"I heard a sad story just now. Mrs. Brown's little girl had a fall the other day and will probably be laid up for many months. Would you like to make her a valentine?"

"Would we?" they shouted in glee.

"Let's make her one that will last," said mamma. "I read about a novel idea for such a one the other day. I'll get the slip of paper and read it to you."

Mother returned and read:

"Eleven large, strong envelopes were obtained and marked one for each month, beginning with February. A subject was chosen for each envelope, and a picture of each subject was placed on the outside. Each receptacle was filled with all the pictures that could be obtained touching upon that subject. These were cut from old magazines or advertisements. The February envelope contained pictures of and about George Washington, and a pretty valentine was also found hidden away. The other envelopes contained: March, a maple sugar camp; April, spring flowers; May, a visit to the farm; June, a visit to the mountains; July, a visit to the seashore and Fourth of July celebrations; August, a menagerie; September, a ride on a train; October, nuts, nutting and nut trees; November, Thanksgiving; December, Christmas in many lands."

Jennie and Rosie grasped the idea at once, and in a flash they were skimming through old magazines for the necessary materials.

Mrs. Brown, their washerwoman, rang the bell in the afternoon of St. Valentine's day to thank the little misses, and by the way she described her child's joy at receiving their token the sisters felt that they were more than repaid for their trouble.—Philadelphia Ledger.

St. Valentine's Fest.

One child is selected as postman. This player is blindfolded, and the others sit around the room in a circle. The hostess or some other grown person acts as postmistress and gives to each child the name of a city or town. The blind postman is led to the middle of the circle, and the postmistress takes a position where she can see most of the players. She then calls, "I have sent a valentine from Boston to Denver," for example, and the children representing these cities change places as quickly and quietly as possible. The postman tries to catch one as they run, and if he succeeds in doing this or in sitting in one of the empty chairs the child who is caught or whose chair he has taken becomes postman. The retiring postman is rewarded by a heart shaped valentine slipped into a little heart shaped envelope and addressed "To My Valentine." If a child remains seated when his name is called he must take the postman's place.

A Flag of Truce For a Dog.

One day when Washington's army lay in winter quarters at Valley Forge a fine hunting dog, evidently lost, came to seek something to eat. Washington and his staff were dining at the time. On the dog's collar was the name "General Howe." Washington gave orders that the dog should be fed, and it was then sent to Philadelphia under a flag of truce, with a letter reading: "General Washington's compliments to General Howe. He does himself the pleasure to return to him a dog which accidentally fell into his hands and by the inscription on the collar appears to belong to General Howe." The British commander in reply sent a cordial letter conveying his warm thanks for this act of courtesy of his enemy.

Conundrums.

What herb is most injurious to a lady's beauty? Thyme.

What is the difference between a clock and a partnership? When a clock is wound up it goes; when a firm is wound up it stops.

Why should a needle make a good merchant? It always has one eye open for business and carries its point.

Why is the isthmus of Suez like the first "u" in cucumber? Because it is between two seas.

Why is early grass like a penknife? Because the spring brings out the blades.

Why is a real estate man not a man of words? Because he is a man of deeds.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Riddles.

What is the difference between photographing and measles? One makes facsimiles, the other sick families.

What is smaller than a flea's mouth? That which goes into a flea's mouth.

The Little Tin Soldier's Valentine.

Said the little tin soldier,
Who lived by himself,
To the Japanese doll
On the high mantelshelf:

"My sweet valentine
I say will you be?
For the slant of your eyes
Is most pleasing to me."

Well, the soldier climbed up
At the risk of his life
And carried her down
And made her his wife.

So from this happy ending
Of course you can guess
That the Japanese doll
Must have answered him "Yes."

WARREN TOPPAN, Lynn, Mass.

Cured of severe compound cold and cough by

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '98, to March 1, '99, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was remarkable. Three bottles completely rebuilt that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strength-creating, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

Your Money Back If You Are Not Satisfied.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

Montgomery Advertiser Contest

$10,560 IN PRIZES

Nomination Coupon

When properly filled out and sent to the Contest Manager of The Montgomery Advertiser it is good for

1,000 Votes

You may nominate yourself or friend. Write legibly. When coupon is sent in application should be made for subscription book and further particulars.

I hereby nominate

Mr., Mrs. or Miss.....

Street.....

Town or City.....County.....

As a Candidate in The Montgomery Advertiser's Contest.

Signed.....

Address.....

Profession.....Date.....

This Nomination Counts 1,000 Votes

Only one nomination to be credited to each contestant. Under no circumstances will the nominator's name be divulged.

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades, Crockery, Glass and Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies
We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

THE BANNER

FRANK CRICHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain.
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw.
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR CIRCUIT SOLICITOR.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. LOYD TATE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Solicitor of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, including the counties of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

D. D. ASKEW.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Sheriff of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

LEE HAYES.

Capt. Charles Henderson has decided not to continue in the race for the governorship, and has announced that he is no longer a candidate for that position.

LEE HAYES.

If the making of a good reputation as sheriff is any recommendation to the people of Chilton county, the announcement of this gentleman's candidacy for that office will be received with pleasure. It has often been said, by those in a position to know, that Lee Hayes made one of, if not the very best, sheriffs Chilton has ever known, and as he again desires to serve the people in that capacity he enters the list with the hearty suppott of his friends.

Persian Prayer Rugs.

About 200 years ago small embroidered rugs were largely made in Persia, chiefly at Ispahan. These were prayer rugs, and on each of them near one end was a small embroidered mark to show where the bit of sacred earth from Mecca was to be placed. In obedience to a law of the Koran, that the head must be bowed to the ground in prayer, this was touched by the forehead when the prostration was made, and so the letter of the law was carried out. The custom still prevails. The Persian women who weave the finest prayer rugs seldom weave any other kind of rug.

What He Wished to Know.

"Here's an article in this magazine entitled 'How to Meet Trouble,'" said Mrs. Wedderly. "Shall I read it to you?"

"No, thank you," replied his wife's husband. "How to dodge trouble is the brand of information I'm looking for."—Chicago News.

No Consolation.

First Golfer (who is beating the curate all hollow)—Never mind, Sanders. You wait till you are saying the burial service over my grave. Sanders—But, my good man, even then it will be your hole!—London Opinion.

Domestic Bliss.

"Does your husband ever speak harshly to you?"

"No. Thank heaven, my husband and I are not on speaking terms."—Chicago Record-Herald.

He Had.

The kind hearted man had given the panhandler a nickel.

"Haven't you got anything smaller?" asked the panhandler.

"Well, here's a dime; that's smaller," answered the good natured man, displaying the coin for a moment and walking away.—Buffalo Express.

Musical Note.

A thief was lately caught breaking into a song. He had already got through the first two bars when a policeman came out of an area and hit him with his stave. Several notes were found upon him.—London Mail.

Bright and Dark Days.

There are bright days and dark days, and we must take advantage of the former and be as little discouraged as possible by the latter. They are all in a lifetime.

Common sense is the knack of seeing things as they are and doing things as they ought to be done.—Stowe.

Death of Mrs W. H Mills.

Mrs. W. H. Mills, formerly of Pletcher, but recently of Birmingham, passed away at the home of her son, Walter B Mills, in Birmingham, January 24th She had been suffering to a certain extent for a long time from Bright's disease, a sudden attack of which carried her away. The remains were accompanied to the railroad station in Birmingham by a number of friends and relatives, and on to Pletcher by her son and other relations, there met by a number of sorrowing friends, who accompanied the remains to the old family burying ground near Pletcher, where the funeral services were held by Rev. T. J Deason. The grave was covered with numerous bouquets of beautiful flowers from loving friends.

Mrs. Mills was born in 1844; had been living near Pletcher for 35 years, where she was loved and highly respected by all her acquaintances. She was a member of the Baptist church. She leaves a son (Walter B. Mills) and two daughters (Mrs. Clara Caldwell and Mrs. Ella Gray) and several grandchildren to mourn over the loss of a kind and affectionate mother and a generous and loving grandmother.

Evergreen

Editor Banner:—With your permission I will say a few words in regard to this community, health is not quite so good at present.

Mrs. M. J. Moore has been sick for the past week but is a great deal better; we think and hope she will continue to improve.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the able management of our Supt. Bro. W. T. Johnson, we also have an excellent Secretary, Miss Minnie Moore, I don't see why it is that all of the boys and girls in this community can't come to S. S. every Sunday instead of just staying at home all day and not go anywhere. Prehaps if they go anywhere it will be to frolic off in the woods, not only the boys and girls, but the mothers and fathers, come and see if you can't encourage the boys and girls, and get them to take an interest in S S. work, for I am sure you will get some good out of it and if you don't get any good I think it will be on your account. Now, boys and girls, come to S. S. and let us all work harmoniolsly together and let us see if we can't live a better life in the future than we have in the past, for when we are going to S S. we are preparing for the future life, and going is one act of worshiping god.

Now, some one may read this and say, "oh pshaw! S. S. is not any acount and I am not going, I can stay at home and be just as good as those that go every Sunday."

There you are taught to obey your father and mother and also obey god. When I was young I didn't attend and didn't care whether I went or not, but now I don't want to miss a single Sunday, for I know when I miss I am not doing my duty. Now, I go from S. S. to liberty school. We sure have a fine School at this place. Mr. T. E. Williams is our teacher and he sure is fine, I think all of his pupils like him, we extend our sympathy to Mrs. Williams and children in the loss of their father and husband Weep not, dear ones, for he has gone to rest.

LOVER OF S. S.

It is said that there is no accounting for tastes, but this does not apply to that dark brown taste a man has in the morning.

Scott's Emulsion

is a wonderful food-medicine for all ages of mankind. It will make the delicate, sickly baby strong and well—will give the pale, anemic girl rosy cheeks and rich, red blood. It will put flesh on the bones of the tired, overworked, thin man, and will keep the aged man or woman in condition to resist colds or pneumonia in the winter.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send No., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York

RESOLUTIONS.

Amanda Lodge, A. F. & A. M. Cooper, Ala.

Whereas, our beloved brother, J. M. Robinson, was on the first day of January, 1910, by the decree of an Allwise Providence, called from his earthly home, to a home where pains and sorrows are unknown, and where the weary are at rest, be it therefore,

Resolved, that in the death of brother Robinson, the members of this Lodge fully recognize that they have lost one of their number, who was at all times imbued with the pure principles of masonry, and whose life and conduct was without reproach, as a mason, as a fellow citizen, or as a friend or brother.

Resolved, that the sincere and heartfelt sympathies of this Lodge, be and are hereby extended to the bereaved family of the deceased brother, whose sorrows with them we deeply mourn. Resolved, that a copy these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, spread on the minutes of this Lodge, and a copy thereof be sent to each of our county papers.

C. J. EILAND,
H. A. HARRIS,
S. B. POWELL, } Committee.

Whereas, our beloved brother, J. W. Dennis was on the 26th, day of December 1909, by the decree of an overruling Providence, called from his earthly home, to a home where pains and sorrows are unknown, and where the weary find rest, be it therefore,

Resolved. That in the death of brother Dennis the members of this Lodge fully recognize that they have lost one of their numberat who we at all times imbued with the principels of masonry and whose life and conduct was without reproach, as a mason, a fellow citizen, or a husband and father. Resolved, that the sincere and heartfelt sympathies of this Lodge be and is hereby extended to the bereaved widow and family of our deceased brother, whose loss with them we deeply mourn. Resolved, that these resolutions be spread on the minutes of this Lodge, and a copy thereof be sent to each of our county papers, also to the bereaved family

C. J. EILAND,
H. A. HARRIS,
J. S. JONES, } Committee.

The Advertiser's Contest.

Great interest has been created in this county by the recent announcement of The Montgomery Advertiser that it would give away to popular and energetic people in Alabama and Florida more than $10,000 in prizes. Automobiles, pianos, diamonds, bank accounts are included among the prizes offered, and these gifts are to be awarded, absolutely free to the person receiving the highest number of votes in the popularity contest that The Advertiser has inaugurated.

Any white person of good character man or woman, boy or girl, is eligible to compete for the prizes, and there are no obligations upon entering. The persons receiving the highest number of votes will be awarded the gifts. Votes are obtained by clipping and sending in the ballots that appear each day in The Advertiser and by securing prepaid subscriptions, either old or new to the paper.

At least six prizes, comprising a $400 piano, a $150 diamond ring, a $100 bank account, a $100 furniture outfit, a $50 Turkish rocker, and a $45 graphaphone, must be awarded in this district, no matter what may be the vote of contestants in other districts. And every person who enters from this district has an equal show to win one of the three automobiles which are known as grand prizes and will be awarded regardless of district lines.

The contest is just starting and "nominations" are open. Bright, wideawake persons of this section appear to have before them an unusual opportunity to be handsomely rewarded for a few weeks' pleasant work among friends.

It is a simple matter to enter the contest. In this paper will be found a nomination coupon. You may nominate yourself or friend. Fill in the coupon as it directs, and mail it to the Contest Department of The Advertiser. When subscription books and full particular will be sent.

Several of the handsome prizes should come to this county, where The Advertiser has many friends and readers.

Cured After Suffering Two Years.

Mr. E. E. Norton, of East Point, Ga., writes: "I have used one bottle of your U RA-CURA and it did me much good. I can't find it in Atlanta, so I write you to see what you will send me two bottles for. I have been down two years and U-RA-CURA has done me more good than all the doctors for Kidney and Bladder troubles." Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Booklet sent free. Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

COLORED TEACHER'S INSTITUTE

The first teachers Institute for colored was held in Clanton on the 3rd and 4th, inst: there were eleven teachers present, and the meeting promises to be an advanced step toward fostering the cause of negro education in the county.

County Supt., Prof. Moore, gave the teachers a most encouraging lecture. He urged increased attendance over last year, better school houses and more pay for teachers. Tax assessor Pounds spoke in part by saying that he wished the colored well. He said, "Be it far from me to throw an obstacle in your path. You have done well since the time of your freedom We are your friends and you should let down your buckets where you are.

Isaiah J. Whitley, principal of the Aldrich Grammer School, responded to the speeches. He said in part, we, the teachers of this county and others, feel that we are among friends, we do not seek sectual intercourse or amalgimation with the opposite race, we do not want social equality, all we ask is a chance to prove our citizenship, he said, I believe that the white man south, here in Alabama, is our best friend, we regard those who furnish us the means for the sustenance of life here in the south are our friends, the negro loves the white man and I believe the white man loves the negro. Whitley's speech showed that the negro of the south is fast learning that the southern white people are his best friends. There was great applause over these speeches.

K. N. Draper, principal of the Clanton city school, colored, was elected president of the institute.

A Class That Pearl Divers Fear.

All sorts of superstitions prevail among the pearl fishers of Ceylon, and a large business is done by sorcerers who sell charms to restrain the appetite of the sharks and to drive away the diabolical stingrays. Another peril which the diver dreads more than either stingray or shark is the giant clam, that weighs nearly half a ton when full grown. It will snap off a man's legs like pipestems if the victim chances to thrust a limb between its open jaws, or, at all events, will hold him until he drowns miserably.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all druggists.

Railway Mail Clerks Wanted

The Government pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1200, and other employees up to $2,500 annually.

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks and other government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in city or country can get instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 11 Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y.

TEACH THE CHILDREN TO SAVE MONEY

It is often and truthfully said that a penny saved is a penny made The foundation of many of the greatest fortunes was begun by saving a penny. The habit of saving is one of the best that can be formed. Every child should be taught to save something every week. The satisfaction of counting these pennies when the bank is emptied is one of the pleasures that we never forget; perhaps every one of us can remember the thrill of joy we had when we emptied the contents of the pank on the table and counted and recounted this mountain of wealth; how eager we were to tell our little friends the amount of our great fortune, and raced with them in refilling the bank.

To bring this pleasure within the reach of every child and help the forming of the penny-saving habit, Messrs. Scott & Bowne, 409 Pearl Street, New York, the manufacturers of Scott's Emulsion, are offering to send to any address, for 10 cents, a beautiful little Savings Bank; each bank contains a new Good Luck Penny. Send 10 cents and get one.

Won't Need a Crutch.

When Editor J. P. Sessman, of Cornelius, N. C., bruised his leg badly, it started an ugly sore. Many salves and ointments proved worthless. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve healed it thoroughly. Nothing is so prompt and sure for Ulcers, Boils Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Corns, Sores, Pimples, Eczema or Piles. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

There is more to a Fertilizer than Analyses

The mere mixing of materials to obtain analysis requires no special knowledge. The value of a fertilizer lies in the source from which the plant food is obtained.

Each ingredient in Royster goods is selected with a view of supplying the plant from sprouting until harvest. The plant is not overfed at one time and starved at another. Twenty-five years experience goes with every bag.

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

Sold by reliable dealers throughout the South.

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO

CLANTON, ALA.

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Is one of the latest additions to Clanton's business center, and one of the most attractive and commodious places of its kind in town, situated on southeast corner of the square They invite you to call on them when in town and make their store your headquarters. Their stock of Millinery is complete; their Trimmer from St. Louis is right up-to-date. If its quality, style and prices you are looking for, their store is the place for you. Mrs. Clara Mullins is general manager, and will be glad to wait on you.

C. R. Mullins will continue his same old business, of Fire Insurance, Life Insurance, Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs, in the new Company's store. He thanks you for past favors and solicits your futuse business. Yours truly,

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

NEW FEED STORE

At Goodgame's Old Stand, near Lowe's Shop

Handle Loose Hulls, Sacked Hulls, also a good quality of Cotton Seed Meal, Corn, and Hay

I also buy Scrap Iron, Hides, Green and Green Salted and Flint Hides.

BEST PRICES BOTH WAYS

CALL AND SEE ME
N. B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

...Conference court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July, first Monday in August and first Monday in September.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...to day.....14½ @ 14¾c
...same date last year 9½ @ 10c
...Shipments not reported to date
...rehouse receipts
...to 5 p.m. Wednesday.....3910

FOR SALE— One two story dwelling, convenient to School and Church. Fine water Lot 165 by 330 feet. Apply to J R Mullins Clanton, Ala.

Prof. G. L. Speer of Maplesville was in town Saturday.

Mr. W. J. Robinson of Route 1 was a pleasant caller Saturday

Mr. J. P. Rasberry of Argenta, Ark., is visiting relatives in Chilton. He looks well and gives a good account of Arkansas.

Mr. C. B. Lenoir of Thorsby was a visitor here Friday.

Mr. F. Loyd Tate of Wetumpka, candidate for Circuit Solicitor, was in town Saturday.

Mr. D. D. Askew, of Wetumpka, candidate for Circuit Solicitor, was a visitor here Saturday.

Spigener's cash store the place to buy shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced price in order to make room for spring and summer line.

Yours Truly,
W. D. SPIGENER.

Messrs. O. G. Mahan and Ernest Mahan arrived from Texas Monday night on a visit to their father, Mr M. Mahan.

The Methodist Ladies Aid Society will give a valentine party at Monday night at the residence Mr. and Mrs. E. Hopkins. Refreshments and an elegant supper will be served. An excellent musical program will also be rendered. Everybody is cordially invited. A nominal admission fee of 25 cents will be the only charge to attend this delightful entertainment. Come, there will be lots of fun.

Mr J. Hance Allred attended the Boswell-Lane wedding in Birmingham Monday night.

The officers of Clanton Lodge No. 304, I. O. O. F., will be installed for the ensuing term, in the lodge-room, Saturday night, Feb. 5th.

All members are urged to be present, and visiting brothers are cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. D. K. Middleton and children of Birmingham are visiting the family of Capt. W. A. Middleton.

Several Clantonians attended the Women's Missionary Conference in Montgomery the past week.

There will be a meeting of the Cemetery Improvement Association held at the Methodist church Monday, February 14th, at 3:00 p.m. We beg that all who are interested will be present. Mrs. J. C. Jones, president; Miss Nell Mullins, sec.

The Clanton electric light plant has been purchased by Mr. J. Q. Wade, and is being removed to the place where his ginnery is located. A new boiler, engine and other equipment will be installed so that there will be no interruption in the service. The plant will be in operation about February 15th.

Mrs. S. J. Watts, left Monday afternoon for New Orleans She will also visit her brother at Mobile City Miss.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel dizzy, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result These tablets invigorate the stomach, liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

High! High! High!

Prices on all goods seem high and going higher except on Matting. Art squares, matting squares, wall-curtains, Window curtains, window-shades, Counter pins, and table linens etc.

These goods can yet be found at Spigener's Cash Store, at very reasonable prices.

W. D. SPIGENER.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. F. B. Davis and Miss Evie Willis.

Colored. John Henry Peeples and Mary Arm Thomas.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a sure cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all druggists.

s more rtilizer alyses

mixing of tain analyno special he value
ies in the which the btained.
edient in is selected supplying sprouting
The plant
d at one ved at an-nty-five e goes with

RK
R.
RED lers throughout
th.
Guano Co.
, VA.

ES & CO

N, ALA.

MILLINERY CO.

ies's Fashion Center, and one o places of its kind in town, situated
They invite you to call on them ur headquarters. Their stock of from St Louis is right up-to-you are looking for, their store is s is general manager, and will be an e old business, of Fire Insur-nces, Pianos and Organs, in the for past favors and solicits your ily,

ON MILLINERY CO.

TORE
d, near Lowe's Shop
d Hulls, also a good Meal, Corn, and Hay des, Green and Green
nt Hides.
BOTH WAYS
SEE ME
TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

at THE BANNER Office

TOWN ITEMS.

Commissioners' court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July and Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART
Middling to day.....14½ @ 14¾c
Same date last year 9½ @ 10c
The Mart receipts to date
Warehouse receipts to 5 p.m. Wednesday....5910

FOR SALE— One two-story dwelling, convenient to School and Church. Fine water. Lot 156 by 200 feet. Apply to J. R. MULLINS, Clanton, Ala.

Prof. G. L. Speer of Maplesville was in town Saturday.

Mr. W. J. Robinson of Route 1 was a pleasant caller Saturday.

Mr J. P. Rasberry of Argenta, Ark., is visiting relatives in Chilton. He looks well and gives a good account of Arkansas.

Mr. C. B. Lenoir of Thorsby was a visitor here Friday.

Mr. F. Loyd Tate of Wetumpka, candidate for Circuit Solicitor, was in town Saturday.

Mr. D. D. Askew, of Wetumpka, candidate for Circuit Solicitor, was a visitor here Saturday.

Spigener's cash store the place to buy shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced price in order to make room for spring and summer line.
Yours Truly,
W. D. SPIGENER.

Messrs. O. G. Mahan and Ernest Mahan arrived from Texas Monday night on a visit to their father, Mr. J. M. Mahan.

The Methodist Ladies Aid Society will give a valentine party next Monday night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hopkins. Refreshments and an elegant supper will be served. An excellent musical program will also be rendered. Everybody is cordially invited. A nominal admission fee of 25 cents will be the only charge to attend this delightful entertainment. Come, there will be lots of fun.

Mr J. Hance Alred attended the Boxwell Lane wedding in Birmingham Monday night.

The officers of Clanton Lodge No 304, I. O. O. F., will be installed for the ensuing term, in the lodge-room, Saturday night, Feb. 15th. All members are urged to be present, and visiting brothers are cordially invited to attend, Mrs. D K. Middleton and children Birmingham are visiting the family of Capt. W. A. Middleton.

Several Clantonians attended the Women's Missionary Conference in Montgomery the past week.

There will be a meeting of the Cemetery Improvement Association held at the Methodist church Monday, February 14th, at 3:00 p.m. We beg that all who are interested will be present. Mrs. J. C. Jones, President; Miss Nell Mullins, sec.

The Clanton electric light plant has been purchased by Mr. J. Q. Wade, and is being removed to the place where his ginnery is located. A new boiler, engine and other equipment will be installed so that there will be no interruption in the service. The plant will be in operation about February 15th.

Mrs. S. J. Watts, left Monday afternoon for New Orleans. She will also visit her brother at Mcomb City Miss.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result these tablets invigorate the stomach liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

High! High! High!
Prices on all goods seem high and going higher except on Matting, Rugs Art squares, matting squares Curtains, Window curtains, Window shades, Counter pins, and Table linens etc,
These goods can yet be found at Spigener's Cash Store, at very reasonible prices.
W. D. SPIGENER.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.
Mr. F. B. Davis and Miss Evie Hillis.
Colored. John Henry Peeples and Mary Arm Thomas.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all druggists.

New Goods

We have them in beautiful display!

Call in and look around! Any time!

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.
CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.
At a live and let live price
FONE 317

W. H. SARTOR
Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.
CLANTON, ALA.

B. E JONES — CRIT JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTIO OF

Drv Goods. Shoes, Hats, Notions

FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully

B. E. JONES & BRO.
CLANTON, ALA.

His Tokens of Farewell.

Among the legends that have gathered around Sir Alfred Jones' name is one to the effect that he was in the habit of signifying to an office visitor, by offering him a banana, that he desired to end the interview. If the banana was accepted and the call prolonged Sir Alfred arose and presented his visitor with a fine flower from one of the glass stands in his office. But, supposing his visitor stayed after the flower—well, the legend continues, Sir Alfred then offered a pass to the West Indies on one of his small steamers, with a free holiday for six weeks at his hotel.

It is told, however, that on one occasion Sir Alfred got the worst of the banana trick. A young reporter called on him to learn on behalf of his newspaper something about the shipping conflict When, after a ten seconds' conversation regarding the weather, Sir Alfred's hand was straying toward the banana plate, the reporter hooked a couple of bananas out of his own pocket. In the sweetest tone of innocence he said, "Will you have a banana, Sir Alfred?"—Westminster Gazette.

The Vital Test.

"My eyes seem to be all wrong," explained Mr. Pinchpenny to the expensive oculist. "They're weak and tire easily. After a bit everything seems to swim before them. Bright lights make me dizzy. Can you assist me?"

The expensive oculist nodded.

"Your case is a common one," he replied, "but I fear it will necessitate a treatment extending over several months. However, I can guarantee an absolute and enduring cure."

Biweekly for several months Mr. Pinchpenny was treated, and day by day his sight waxed stronger and more strong.

"Do you think I'm all right now?" he inquired at last.

"Mr. Pinchpenny," replied the oculist, beaming, "I think I can assure you that your eyes are now cured. But there is one more test it would be as well to apply." Here he held up a little sheet of paper. "See," he said suavely, "if you can read this little bill of mine at twelve inches without blinking."—London Answers.

A Monster Mackerel.

A North sea trawler caught a mackerel twenty-four inches in length, weighing four and one-half pounds.

Recipes For Invisible Ink.

The following are the ingredients of the most common invisible inks: Sulphate of copper and sal ammoniac, equal parts, dissolved in water; writes colorless, but turns yellow when heated. Onion juice, like the last. A weak infusion of galls; turns black when moistened with weak copperas water. A weak solution of sulphate of iron; turns blue when moistened with a weak solution of prussiate of potash and black with infusion of galls. The diluted solutions of nitrate of silver and terchloride of gold; darken when exposed to the sunlight. Aqua fortis, spirits of salt, oil of vitriol, common salt or saltpeter, dissolved in a large quantity of water; turns yellow or brown when heated. Solution of nitromuriate of cobalt; turns green when heated and disappears on cooling. Solution of acetate of cobalt to which a little niter has been added; becomes rose colored when heated and disappears on cooling.

Knew the Wrong Man.

It was with a good deal of confidence that he walked up to the magistrate's desk in a Philadelphia station notwithstanding the fact that a policeman had a firm hold on both sleeves. He waited quietly till one of the policemen made the accusation of "drunk and disorderly" and then asked the magistrate if he might speak.

"Yes," replied the magistrate. "What have you to say?"

"Well, Judge, I was drunk last night, but it does not often happen. I have lived in this ward nearly all my life, and any one can tell you that."

"Oh, lived here all your life, have you? Do you know any one in the ward that can speak for you?" asked the magistrate.

"Yes," said the prisoner, "I know ——. He can tell you all about me."

"You know him, do you? Well, so do I. Ten days," was the result.

Justification.

The old darky had driven his fare to the hotel and was now demanding a dollar for his service.

"What!" protested the passenger. "A dollar for that distance? Why, it isn't half a mile as the crow flies!"

"Dat's true, boss," returned Sambo, with an appealing smile. "But, ye see, suh, dat old crow he ain't got free wives an' teg chilluns to suppoht, not to mention de keep foh de hoss."—Harper's Weekly.

Personal.

Mrs. T. H. Wilson is up at Tuesday in Montgomery.

Mrs Goodwin of Montgomery is visiting her daughter, Mrs. R E Lucas.

Mr. R. H. Grimes of Jemison was a visitor to Clanton Wednesday.

Mrs Chas. Pitman of Birmingham visited relatives here last week

For that Terrible Itching.

Eczema, tetter and salt rheum keep their victims in perpetual torment. The application of Chamberlain's Salve will instantly allay this itching and many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

The Ready to Wear Conservatory.

A ready to wear conservatory is the possession of every up to date woman nowadays. The name is a little ambiguous, but the idea is to keep on hand sets or single bouquets of artificial flowers for the toilet. There has until recently been an aversion to the wearing of artificial blossoms except on hats and as costume decorations, but since the manufacturers have made flowers so perfect that they cheat nature out of some of her triumphs the ban has been raised.

Every other woman one meets nowadays has a bunch of fiber flowers pinned to her coat or nattily ornamenting her fur turban. And the latest cult is to have the bouquets in sets—one for the corsage, another for the pet dog's collar and a third for the automobile vase.

SELECTING THE CORSAGE BOUQUET.

The flowers are scented with the odor belonging to their particular variety. Gardenias are perhaps the most worn of the artificial bouquets, although a bunch of white lilacs with a mauve orchid in the center is the smartest thing just now. Fern leaves mingle their dewy freshness with the blossoms in many instances, and a process known only in France for preserving them makes it possible to wear the real leaves a number of times. It is necessary to keep the ferns in a cool, dry place; otherwise they will become limp and unattractive. The wearing of flowers with the street costume is a pretty habit and one that should be encouraged.

A Comeback.

"Why do so many otherwise clever women write silly letters to men?"

"They're probably making collections of the answers they get."—Cleveland Leader.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Rheumatism, Swelling, Etc

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the headaches and backaches of the head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the general muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels, swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on and if you want to make a quick recovery you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3 50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this:

Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1141 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

Special Notice

TO THE FARMERS

We have on hand 50 PLOW STOCKS complete, which we are closing out at $1.25, regular price, and to each person who buys one we will give 1 PAIR OF 50 CENT HAMES FREE.
Only a few left. Come Quick.

A. HEADLEY & CO.

CORNER SECOND AVE., AT DEPOT.
CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—

A M. JOHNSON'S
CASH GROCERY STORE

THORSBY, ALA.
FOR BARGAINS IN

Staple and Fancy Groceries

A Remarkable Suicide.

One of the most remarkable cases of suicide was that of the king of Fatiaba, on the west coast of Africa.

The king was attacked by a Mohammedan force, and, finding resistance impossible, he assembled his family and principal officers, and after addressing them and intimating his determination never to accept Mohammedanism and inviting those who did not agree with him to go away he applied a light to a large quantity of gunpowder collected for the purpose and blew into atoms the palace and all who were in it.

Giants and Dwarfs.

In the seventeenth century all the abnormally large and small folks of Austria were assembled in Vienna in response to a whim of the empress. As circumstances required that all should be housed in one building, there was a fear that the imposing proportions of the giants would terrify the dwarfs. But the dwarfs teased and tormented the giants so that these overgrown mortals complained with tears in their eyes, and as a consequence sentinels had to be placed to protect the giants from their pygmy persecutors, for the smallest men had the biggest brains and the longest tongues.

Facts From France.

Nearly 316,000 marriages took place in France last year.

Regular theatrical performances are given every year in France in huge ruined theaters built by the Romans.

Flour making in France is the most important industry in the country in amount of capital invested and value of annual output.

The French government takes 15 per cent of all the money staked at the casinos of the seaside and other health resorts on the little horses and other gambling devices. For the season of 1908-9 this percentage amounted to $943,393, the summer season naturally contributing the greater part—over $600,000.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone shoul take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR Coughs & Colds — PRICE 50c & $1.00 — Best Medicine Made — AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

CHINA'S GREAT WALL.

It Would Be a Mighty Task to Duplicate It Today.

What man has done, we are told, man can do. But to erect today a great fortification comparable to the Great wall of China would be a heavy tax on both the resources and the resolution of Europe. A score or two of warships are all very well, but the cost of labor and the will involved in building fleets can hardly be compared to those devoted to the building of that great barrier about two centuries before the coming of Christ, when Rome was struggling with Hannibal.

Two thousand five hundred and fifty miles, including spurs, arms and loops, is the length ascribed to it by Dr. W. E. Geil, the only white man, we believe, who has traveled the whole length of it. It has been said that the Great wall is the only object of man's handiwork which could be discerned from the moon, and one calculation has it that if the material of the wall were disposed about the globe at the equator there would be a wall girdle eight feet high and three feet thick around the earth.

One can believe that to this day the name of the Emperor Chin is cursed all along the wall by the posterity of the wretches who were forced to the gigantic task of building it. In the days of its greatest importance, when it was still holding back the Tartar hordes, it is believed to have had on its line 25,000 towers, each capable of holding 100 men, and 15,000 watchtowers. Even today there remains 20,000 towers and 10,000 watchtowers, with some 2,000 miles of wall that could, with moderate repairing, be made into a formidable military work.—London News.

This is an exact representation of the carton containing a bottle of St. Joseph's Liquid Liver Regulator, but it is much larger than this illustration, and printed in black ink on a yellow carton. Druggists and general merchants sell it at 50 cents a bottle, or you can get it direct from us at the same price. This is a delightful liver medicine—prompt, effective, and exceedingly pleasant to the taste. Try just one bottle to satisfy yourself—and you'll buy more.

GERSTLE MEDICINE CO.
Baltimore, Tennessee.

KIEF AND KAUF.

A Story of Two Friendly Telegraph Operators

By TOM CARLTON.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Kiefer of telegraph station 12, Butler's survey, was bored. His station was not a busy one, and he longed for some one to talk to. He called up Kaufman of a neighboring station, whose acquaintance he had made over the wire some time before.

"Kauf, are you busy?"

"No. Are you?"

"Yes. I'm busy holding my chair down."

"I'm reading a novel."

"Who's it by?"

"Maria Edgeworth."

"Good gracious! You don't read such stuff as that, do you? I thought Maria Edgeworth wrote for women and children."

After a few moments this came: "I don't read much fiction. When I do I usually read Hardy, Hall Caine and such authors."

"What's your favorite athletic game?"

"Basketball."

"Don't you go in for football?"

"I never learned the game."

"When we meet some autumn I'll tell you something about it. Nothing pleases me so much as a fine punt. I think you'll like it too."

"No; I don't think so. I'm not much on athletics anyway. Pictures and music suit me better."

"I'm with you there. I'm fond of both. I play the violin. Do you play any instrument?"

"The harp."

"I love the harp. But with the exception of street musicians I've generally found the girls take to the harp rather than men. I've always fancied that the girl I should tie up to would play the harp."

"That so? I should like my partner to play the violin."

There was a slight pause, after which Kief asked, "Aren't you coming up this way soon?"

"Don't think I'll ever get off. If I do I'd like to go in the fall so that you can show me how to kick football. You seem to be so bent on doing so."

"And you can instill into me a taste for Maria Edgeworth and that sort of feminine reading. That's the only thing about you I fancy I won't like if we ever meet."

"WELL?" INQUIRED THE GIRL AT LAST.

"Oh, you'll find me manly enough! Don't fear for that."

At this juncture Kauf said that some one was coming, and the dialogue ceased.

This is a sample of the chats the two operators had over the wire, but a very small one. They got to telling each other their joys and their sorrows. Kief said one day over the wire: "I wish, Kauf, I could express sympathy as well as you. I feel it all, but I can't get it out." Kief possessed certain traits that Kauf appreciated, and so the two, though they had never met, became fast friends.

One day Kief was offered a leave. Kiefer had not been absent from duty in three years. He had not wanted to be. But with that bit of ribbon just ticked from the instrument before his eyes he underwent a sudden change. Suppose he had no friends to go to and his instincts were not toward hunting, he would accept the vacation so tardily offered and make the most of it. His books said that a change was good for a man's soul, and he would come back refreshed in mind and body. He loved the sand views of station 12, for they signified home, but the changeless monotony of the four sides had grown a little oppressive since the arrival of 13.

Before ticking back an acceptance to the home office he let his finger fall upon the instrument for a moment, touching the hand of his friend, as it were.

"Hello, Kaufman!" he called. "Are you in for a vacation too?"

"A week," came back the prompt answer, "commencing on the 23d."

"The 23d! Why, mine ends on that date, and it's two weeks. But I understand. I've been here three years and you only three months, and now it's a dull time they're going to let you control the section while I'm away and then I'm to do the same for you. Too bad, though, for I'd thought we might go off together. Odd, isn't it? I feel you're the best friend I've got in the world—about the only one, for that matter—for we've wired no end of personal gossip and ambition, and our tastes run about the same way, and yet I've never seen you and don't know whether you're short or tall, lean or fat, heathen or a Y. M. C. A. or whether your mustache is still to sprout or your white hair is dropping out from old age. Queer world, isn't it, Kauf? But say, I believe I'll run down and spend my vacation with you. There's no other place I can think of, and we can see how each other looks and talk and smoke and"—

There was a quick, protesting click. "Don't you do it, Kiefer. What is your name anyway—the whole of it? Kiefer is so—so unceremonious and blunt. But about the vacation. You mustn't visit me now—mustn't. Why, it's impossible! I—I haven't the accommodations, and—and I'm so busy, and"—

There was a call from the home office, and with a hurried explanation to Kaufman he flashed in an acceptance of the proffered leave of absence, took and answered the call, made a few final arrangements, then bent over to continue the conversation, hesitated and swung back from the instrument.

"I won't do it," he chuckled. "Kauf's likely ashamed of his looks, baldheaded or fat or one eyed or something and don't want me to know. I'm going to visit him on the next train, and I'm not going to give him a chance for any more excuses. Ashamed! Great Scott! Don't we like the same books and music and everything else? What do I care how the old chap looks? He ought to know my regard rises above such petty considerations. And I believe he thinks just as much of me. His personal confidences prove it. I'll just drop in on him so suddenly and unpremeditatedly that he can't help taking me in his arms."

So when the through freight stopped at the water tank Kiefer curled himself into the caboose with a generous outfit of tobacco and books and a brand new pack of cards ordered up by the freight conductor. And this same friendly conductor when they reached telegraph station 13 obligingly slowed the train so Kiefer could drop into the white, yielding sand, the familiar, unvarying landscape of his own station.

"Accommodations," he chuckled as he strode eagerly toward the open doorway of the little building. "It's got two rooms like my own, and that's plenty of accommodations for any reasonable man. But perhaps Kauf was used to a big house at home. Hello! Window curtains and flowers at the end of the house, and—Lord!"

For a young woman, pretty and neatly dressed and with lips and eyes that were meant for smiling, but that just now were sober with inquiry and consternation, had suddenly appeared in the doorway. Kiefer had not seen a girl in over three years, and such a girl as this one appeared to him never. His mouth opened and shut without sound.

"Well?" the girl inquired at last.

"Is—is Kauf in? Does Kauf? Well? T-tell Kauf I'm out here to see him," answered Kiefer dazedly.

"I'm Kauf—Annie Kaufman," said the girl. Then the utter blankness in the face before her seemed to restore the girl's equanimity, for she smiled.

"You're Kief, I suppose—er—Mr. Kiefer, I mean," she said. "Didn't I wire you?"

"I wouldn't take it," miserably. "I—I thought it was some foolish excusing of a man who wasn't used to visitors. I heard the instrument calling and recognized your touch, but I wouldn't listen. After that first time I kept my back turned and dodged out soon 's the train came in sight." He looked toward the track as though to see if the train were still waiting for him, but all that was visible of it was a dark line trailing into the white horizon.

"Train's gone," he said tentatively, "and it's fifty miles to the nearest house, and there aren't any more trains either way until tomorrow. Now, if I'd brought some food I might walk the fifty miles or start off one way or the other to meet a train, but it's been eight hours since I had breakfast, and fifty miles— You see," deprecatingly, "I felt so sure that Kauf—I beg your pardon, Miss Kauf—Kaufman, I mean—I—I—it doesn't seem possible there isn't any real Kauf after all the talking—wiring—we've done."

"You've camped outdoors a good many times, I suppose, Mr. Kiefer. All western men have."

"Of course," inquiringly. Then, with an odd note of eagerness coming into his voice, "you mean I can camp right here by the track until a train comes? It won't be presumptuous after—after my density?"

"I control only the station, Mr. Kiefer, and you have a right to camp anywhere you please out of doors. But what I wish to say is that I'll be glad to have you take supper with me and all your meals until the train comes. At home I was considered a very fair cook. We can talk about books and such things."

The next day the down freight was four hours late, and when it began to slacken speed in answer to his signal Kiefer released a hand which he had caught suddenly on the first appearance of the train into the sand's level horizon.

"I'll go and fix up my station some," he said, his voice tremulous with the awed wonder in it, "and maybe have another room put on. The company will stand that much, I think. Then I'll run back and transplant the flowers and take over your things, and—and the day before my vacation expires I'll wire for a parson to meet us here. You'd better send in your resignation at once, Kauf."

"And announce my promotion, Kief," she finished softly.

THE SPORTING WORLD

Wolgast a Hard Nut.

When Bat Nelson tackles Ad Wolgast in Los Angeles Feb. 22 he will have the hardest battle on his hands he has had since he fought Joe Gans. In fact, in many quarters Wolgast is picked to put the finishing touches on the Dane. "The Milwaukee Whirlwind" is a walloper from Wallopville and is clever to a certain extent. His recent easy victory over Lew Powell, the Pacific coast champion, gained him a number of new admirers. Wolgast is at the beginning of his career, while Nelson undoubtedly is losing much of his power. He cannot go on forever, and it is natural that the turning point will come soon. In a young opponent of the strength and skill of Wolgast the Dane may meet his master.

AD WOLGAST.

Jockey Taral Gives Promise.

"A chip of the old block"—that in every way describes Johnny Taral, one of the newest crop of jockeys now riding at the Moncrief park track at Jacksonville, Fla. When the boy's name is posted on the jockey board old timers must recall the days when his father, Fred Taral, was winning stake after stake and running into the reputation of being one of the best riders this country ever produced.

When Fred retired after more than a score of years in the saddle it was thought that the name of Taral would be lost to the turf for all time. There was but one who could bid to uphold the name, and that was Johnny. True, the boy had already done some riding, but his father desired to have him quit it.

He tried to set the boy studying law, and Johnny was an obedient lad for awhile. He got along fairly well for a time, but when the truth of that old saying "What's bred in the bone will come out in the flesh" asserted itself back to the ponies went Master Johnny. He hit the trail for Jacksonville, and there he is now trying to start a record that will compare favorably with that of his daddy.

Safeguard Hammer Throw.

Officers of the Amateur Athletic union have announced the adoption of a new rule in relation to the official hammer throwing events. The rule is designed to make the event less dangerous and is as follows: The head shall be a metal sphere, and the handle shall be made of wire. Such wire must be of best grade spring steel wire not less than one-eighth of an inch in diameter. If a loose grip is used it must be of rigid construction. The length of the complete implement shall not be more than four feet and its weight not less than sixteen pounds.

Mild Laxative for Baby Free

The child of today is the parent of the future, and whether it grows up healthy and strong, or puny and weak, depends upon the intelligence of its parents, for most children are born into the world healthy, but thousands become future weaklings between birth and the age of ten, when the parents are still in greatest control.

The prime cause of trouble is in the stomach. A baby that is digesting its food seldom cries and always looks cheerful; the little child whose stomach is good romps and plays and never whines; the growing child learns well at school and is eager for fun if its head is clear and its stomach light, and that means if it has no constipation.

The best and safest way to cure any irregularity of the stomach and bowels in children is by the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a liquid laxative wonderful in its effect as Mrs. John W. Dunham, Apple Creek, O., Mrs. H. L. Cullam, Plainville, Ind., and numerous others can testify who give it to their children with extraordinary results.

A bottle only costs 50 cents or $1 according to the size you want, and even one 50-cent bottle will do a wonderful amount of good in a family. It can be given to any member of the family in constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, torpid liver, dyspepsia, heartburn, sick headache and similar digestive troubles. It never gripes or strangles like pills, tablets, salts and powders, which should not be given to children, women or old folks.

If you have a child or other member of the family who needs, but has never used this grand laxative tonic, send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent to your home. In this way you can find out what it will do without personal expense.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug Co.

Lunghi Wants to Break Records.

That Emilio Lunghi, the great Italian middle distance runner, is a man of contradictions is evident from the fact that Lunghi has written an Italian friend in New York that he has no intention of joining the Italian army, but will continue "his studies" in Genoa. Lunghi has an idea that he can smash the existing world's record for 400 meters and will train from now until next March in preparation for the attempt. After that Lunghi will run handicaps to keep himself in trim until the international games to be held in Turin, Italy, early in 1911.

Football Pays Wolverenes.

According to the financial report made at the meeting of the Michigan Athletic association, football during the last season netted a profit of approximately $22,000, being the only major sport which paid for itself.

Baseball lost nearly $1,000, while the track showed a deficit of more than double that amount. Owing to the financially successful football season the athletic association treasury now contains a balance of $21,541.11.

Juvenile Wisdom.

"What did people do before steel pens were invented?" asked the teacher.

"The pinions of one goose were used to spread the opinions of another," answered the wise boy at the extremity of the class.

President Helps Orphans.

Hundreds of orphans have been helped by the President of the Industrial and Orphan's Home at Macon, Ga., who writes: "We have used Electric Bitters in this Institution for nine years. It has proved a most excellent medicine for Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. We regard it as one of the best family medicines on earth." It invigorates all vital organs, purifies the blood, aids digestion, creates appetite. To strengthen and build up run down, weak children or run down people it has no equal. Best for female complaints. Only 50c. at Upchurch Drug Co.

Whiskey for the Sick Room

should be selected with the greatest care, as much depends upon its rich, nutritious properties and absolute purity. You can always rely upon

Sunny Brook
THE PURE FOOD
Whiskey

answering every requirement. It is distilled, aged and bottled with special care and for the express purpose of being used as a healthful stimulant or tonic in the home. SUNNY BROOK Bottled in Bond is U. S. Government standard (100%) proof and every bottle bears the "Green Government Stamp" showing the correct age and quantity.

Insist on getting the genuine, accept no substitute.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

4—FULL QUARTS—$5
BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	Chattanooga, Tenn.
M. Markstein	123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	686 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St. "
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd.	541 Magazine St. "
Estate of Charles Feahney	511 Rampart St. "
Groll Trading Co.	Pensacola, Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar	Pensacola, Fla.
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 100,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the SOUTHERN RURALIST is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The RURALIST pays $20.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; P. J. Merriam, Garden Department; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station, Horticulture Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment Station, Dairy; Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock Department; Dr. C. A. Cary, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural College, Veterinary Department; Judge F. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Mrs. F. J. Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.

By special arrangement with the SOUTHERN RURALIST we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

THINK OF
Mexican Mustang Liniment
AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU.

Relief from pain that might otherwise cause you hours of agony.

Tired out muscles eased up and made ready for another day's work.

Lameness in the back and shoulders promptly cured and stiff joints limbered up.

Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Mashes rendered painless and quickly healed.

Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica robbed of their anguish and banished forever.

Ulcers, Old Sores and Open Wounds healed promptly and permanently.

The first application of Mexican Mustang Liniment subdues the pain but it continues its work until every quivering nerve is soothed and quieted.

The great penetrating power of this famous remedy enables it to do this quickly and positively.

In all cases of Sprains, Bruises or Lameness, Mexican Mustang Liniment should be rubbed in persistently.

The antiseptic qualities of this old reliable household remedy make it safe and sure.

Prices 25c., 50c., $1.00 per bottle. For sale by all Druggists. LYON MFG. CO. 41 to 45 So. 5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

HOMES FOR POULTRY.

The Open Front Type That Gives Ventilation Now Popular

A few years ago the open front poultry house was practically unknown. The tendency at that time was to construct houses that were very tight and ventilated by the opening of windows and in many instances by muslin flues and cupolas. This style of house, as a rule, was more of less damp. It did not take many years for progressive men to realize that dry houses meant cool houses and abundance of disease. The result has been a gradual increase of the amount of fresh air in the house and less attention given to warmth until now we have what is known as the open cloth front house. One can still find, however, many types of poultry houses, but the open front house is fast becoming the standard for every climate.

The beneficial effects of a dry house with an abundance of fresh air have been very forcibly demonstrated at several experiment stations. Profes-

OPEN FRONT POULTRY HOUSE.

Graham of the Kansas Agricultural college states that after careful tests made with warmed buildings, cold double wall houses having curtains before the perches and six feet of glass next to the wire netting, he has found that the one ply board houses with wire netted fronts have given better results both as to the number of eggs produced in winter and the fertility and vigor of germs.

The open front house can be modified to meet a wide range of climates. In the northern states the house is generally equipped with a curtain front and hooded roost. These curtains are dropped at night to insure a warmer house while the fowls are inactive.

The open front shed roof house shown in the cut is a type of the continuous house. It is 100 feet long, 12 feet wide, 9 feet high in front and 6 feet in the rear. It is divided into five pens 20 by 20 feet, with wire board partitions between each pen. One bird is allowed to every four square feet of space.

The roost is provided with a muslin curtain, which is dropped down on cold nights. Two small holes with sliding doors are used to ventilate the roost when the curtain is down. The floor consists of a layer of sand, then a layer of building paper for flooring. The outside of the studding, the ends and back is first covered with a layer of sheathing, then a layer of building paper and novelty siding. The inside of the studs, with the exception of the hooded roost, is entirely open. The nests are placed on the end walls and partitions. The entire building rests on brick piers about two feet from the ground, and the pen is equipped with a trap door which allows the hen to go down and wallow in the dirt under the house.

On many farms where poultry is carried on as an adjunct to the regular farm crops is found a variety of cheap stationary houses. There are some advantages in favor of the small stationary house. Where land is valued it is possible to provide a system of cultivation where the houses are small and set far enough apart to permit of double yards. These yards can be cropped alternately and thus do away with the danger of tainted

A STATIONARY SCRATCHING SHED.

In many instances very hilly land will not permit the construction of long houses can be utilized to advantage with the small stationary house such as is shown in the cut under the caption, "A Stationary Scratching Shed House."

Usefulness of the Hen.

The period of a hen's usefulness depends altogether on the hen. During the first year is usually the best egg production, it is not always the case, some hens laying better the second year. But, as a rule, one gets the greatest number of eggs from a given number of fowls by having pullets hatched early.

The meat of yarded poultry always more tender than that of fowls having free range, due to the greater muscular development of the latter.

It is said that there are more than 2,000,000 goats in this country. They are practically free from tuberculosis. Thousands of them are milk goats and are used regularly for this purpose.

Sick Room
t care, as much depends s and absolute purity.

rook
OOD
ey distilled, aged and bot-purpose of being used as a NNY BROOK Bottled in proof and every bottle bears
he correct age and quantity.
ccept no substitute.
., Jefferson Co., Ky.

ARTS—$5
REPAID
Distributors:
Chattanooga, Tenn
more St., Cincinnati, O
st St., New Orleans, La res St
zine St
part St
Pensacola, Fla.
Memphis, Tenn
Pensacola, Fla
Jacksonville, Fla.
EMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
C. O. D.

Your Home
THE outhern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.
the Greatest Agricultural Paper in South today. It covers every detment of the farm and home. We ve examined it carefully, and con-er THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
most valuable premium we can er our readers. It comes twice a nth—24 times a year. A sample py will be mailed free to any one request.
The most valuable thing about the
URAL RURALIST is the Prize Spe-
, which are published on the first ach month. The RURALIST pays
each month for the best arti-
from its subscribers on special cts, such as Fall Plowing, Poul-
Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Garden-
Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, ying, etc. These articles come every part of the country. They written by men who do the work give actual experience. They help you as nothing else will.
ND STAFF WRIT S
F. J. Merriam, Garde -mari-Experiment Station, I ulture rgia Experiment Stat Dairy;
tion, Live Stock Department; Dr. ama Agricultural College, Veter-ry Department; Mrs. F. J. Meral in every number.
scription to the man who will take e or two papers for the price of one.
RURALIST we are able to offer
n to this paper at uralist for $1.00.

nent
f Mexican Mus-
the pain but it every quivering
ueted.
g power of this
's it to do this
Bruises or Lame-tang Liniment
sistently.
s of this old relia-
make it safe and
BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

HOMES FOR POULTRY.

The Open Front Type That Gives Ventilation Now Popular.

A few years ago the open front poultry house was practically unknown. The tendency at that time was to construct houses that were very tight and ventilated by the opening of windows and in many instances by means of flues and cupolas. This type of house, as a rule, was more or less damp, and it did not take many years for progressive men to realize that damp houses meant cold houses and an abundance of disease. The result has been a gradual increase of the amount of fresh air in the house and less attention given to warmth until today we have what is known as the open or cloth front house. One can still find, however, many types of poultry houses, but the open front house is fast becoming the standard for every climate.

The beneficial effects of a dry house, with an abundance of fresh air, has been very forcibly demonstrated by several experiment stations. Professor

OPEN FRONT POULTRY HOUSE.

Graham of the Kansas Agricultural college states that after careful tests made with warmed buildings, with double wall houses having curtains before the perches and six feet away next to the wire netting, he has found that the one ply board houses with netted fronts have given better results both as to the number of eggs produced in winter and the fertility and vigor of germs.

The open front house can be modified to meet a wide range of climate. In the northern states the house is generally equipped with a curtain front and hooded roost. These curtains are dropped at night to insure a warmer house while the fowls are inactive.

The open front shed roof house shown in the cut is a type of the continuous house. It is 100 feet long, 20 feet wide, 9 feet high in front and 6 feet in the rear. It is divided into five pens 20 by 20 feet, with solid board partitions between each pen. One bird is allowed to every four square feet of space.

The roost is provided with a cloth curtain, which is dropped on very cold nights. Two small holes with sliding doors are used to ventilate the roost when the curtain is down. The floor consists of a layer of sheathing, then a layer of building paper and flooring. The outside of the studs on the ends and back is first covered with a layer of sheathing, then a layer of building paper and novelty siding. The inside of the studs, with the exception of the hooded roost, is entirely open. The nests are placed on the end walls and partitions. The entire building rests on brick piers about two feet from the ground, and each pen is equipped with a trapdoor, which allows the hen to go down and wallow in the dirt under the house.

On many farms where poultry is carried on as an adjunct to the other farm crops is found a variety of small stationary houses. There are several advantages in favor of the small stationary house. Where land is restricted it is possible to provide a system of cultivation where the houses are small and set far enough apart to permit of double yards. These yards can be cropped alternately and thus do away with the danger of tainted soil.

A STATIONARY SCRATCHING SHED HOUSE.

In many instances very hilly land that will not permit the construction of long houses can be utilized to good advantage with the small stationary house such as is shown in the cut under the caption, "A Stationary Scratching Shed House."

Usefulness of the Hen.

The period of a hen's usefulness depends altogether on the hen. While the first year is usually the best for egg production, it is not always the case, some hens laying better the second year. But, as a rule, one will get the greatest number of eggs from a given number of fowls by having the pullets hatched early.

The meat of yarded poultry is always more tender than that of fowls having free range, due to the extreme muscular development of the latter.

It is said that there are more than 2,000,000 goats in this country, and all are practically free from tuberculosis. Thousands of them are milk goats and are used regularly for this purpose.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VII.—First Quarter, For Feb. 13, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. vi, 19-34. Memory Verse, 24—Golden Text, Matt. vi, 33—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Our Lord has been talking about rewards here in this present time from men, contrasted with rewards hereafter in the kingdom, and now He contrasts treasure on earth, which may perish or be stolen, with treasure in heaven, which endures forever, durable riches. If we lay up only for ourselves we may become rich in this world, but not rich toward God (Luke xii, 19-21). We are everywhere warned against the danger of this world's riches. "Labor not to be rich;" "He that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent;" "Trust not in uncertain riches, but in the Living God" (Prov. xxiii, 4; xxviii, 20; 1 Tim. vi, 9, 17). To the majority of people these are foolish and impractical sayings, and a little hard cash is far more to them than the Living God. But our Lord is here speaking to believers, to whom it is also written in Col. iii, 2, "Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth." Yet there are many in the pulpit as well as in the pews to whom dollars are more real than God.

The eye affects the heart, and the heart walks after the eyes (Lam. iii, 51; Job xxxi, 7), so that unless we are looking in the right direction we will not walk in the right direction. We cannot serve God and gold, or God and the world, or God and the devil, for all that is in the world—the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the pride of life—is not of the Father, but is of the world, and the whole world lieth in the wicked one (I John ii, 16; v, 19, R. V.). God is looking for those whose hearts are whole toward Him, which means that we must see no one but Jesus only (II Chron. xvi, 9).

Then people say: "Prayer won't feed you; religion won't provide bread and butter. It is all very well to talk good, but I've got to earn my living." We do not wonder to hear the world talk so, for the world is blind and dead to God and the things of God, but the words of our lesson are for believers—the redeemed of the Lord. Do they talk in reference to business as if the Lord did not care, as if all depended upon their own efforts and they must put forth every effort with all earnestness or they will never get on? Ask Christian business men and you will find that not a few will tell you that business cannot be done on Bible principles. But there are those—and I personally know some of them—in various lines of business who testify that Matt. vi, 33, stands true even in business relations, and some of them can testify that even in the financial straits of the past two years they have not felt the hard times. Five times in the closing verses of our lesson we hear the admonition not to be anxious (verses 25, 27, 28, 31, 34, R. V.), and they are the words of Him who created all things and upholds all things by His power. He stoops from the things we cannot comprehend to talk to us of birds and flowers and on another occasion speaks of even sparrows, saying "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? And one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father" (chapter x, 29). On that occasion, however, He was speaking of His care of our bodies in preserving them from death, while in this lesson He is speaking of the food and raiment essential to the health of these mortal bodies. Apart from Him in whom we live and move and have our being no amount of anxious care and toil on our part can obtain the necessary food and raiment or prolong our days. Does not He who gave us life care for it enough to prolong it as long as it pleaseth Him to do so, and as to raiment, what father is he who will not see that his children are becomingly clothed? Do not miss the contrast between the clothing of the lilies of the field and the clothing of Solomon in all his glory. His, however grand, was all put on, but the lily's beauty is part of itself. The work within us is the chief thing—the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, a heart right with God, is the great essential. Then He will surely care for the minor matters, for He knoweth what things we have need of. The contrast between Jew and gentile in verse 32 brings before us all His wondrous care of Israel from the day that He brought them out of Egypt—the [illegible] which He put in so many [illegible] even His own people and [illegible]ians, and then all through [illegible]erness journey the food from [illegible]ven, the water from the rock, the [illegible]ar of cloud and fire and all His manifold mercies. He is the same unchanging Jesus, and He will not do less for His church, His own body.

We are here to give the gospel to all and thus seek His kingdom by seeking to complete His body in order that His kingdom may come. If we as His redeemed make this our first business He will see to all our need. Let us obey Phil. iv, 6, and I Pet. v, 7, and so will surely prove His faithfulness.

The remedy for all anxiety is found in Phil. iv, 6, 7, and 1 Pet. v, 7. And in John xiv, 1, 27, with Matt. xxiv, 6, we are forbidden to be troubled. The same confidence in our Father in heaven which we desire our children to have in us will give that quietness and confidence which are our privilege, but how necessary the admonition "Have faith in God."

THE BEST APPLES.

Some That You Will Recognize as Old Friends in This List.

North America is the great apple producing region of the world, and New York leads all the other states in the quantity grown, although varieties quite as choice are produced in other states, particularly Missouri, Oregon and Washington. To have perfect fruit the soil and the climate conditions must be of the most favorable.

A list of what may be called the best apples—best in one sense or another—has been arranged. The list comprises these varieties: The Belmont, Bethlemite, Bullock's Pippin, Cogswell, Early Joe, Esopus, Spitzenburg, Full Wine, Garden Royal, Melon, Mother, Northern Spy, Pomme Grise, Porter, Primate, Red Canada, Summer Pearmain, Summer Rose, Swaar, Wagener and Westfield. To this list are added the Baldwin and the Rhode Island Greening—two of the best known apples the country over.

Other popular apples include the Gilliflower, Vandevere, Maiden's Blush, American Beauty, Fameuse, Pound Sweet, Talman Sweet, Winespice, Bellflower, Red Astrakhan, Pearmain, Autumn Bough, Roxbury Russet, Sops o' Wine, King, Twenty Ounce, Hubbardston and Peach Pond Sweet.

The Pippin wherever found seems to be always well liked. But one Pippin differs from every other. What one state knows as Pippin another state greets by quite a different name. The Ben Davis, for instance, so known in the middle west, is known in New York state as a New York Pippin.

Almost every propagator of apples has found, if his experience and his orchards are extensive, specimens which he thought entitled to such names as Seek No Further, Nonesuch and Sine Qua Non, so that if one receives an apple bearing one of these names in Massachusetts it may differ exceedingly from one of the same name offered to him in Wisconsin. But they are all likely to be worth the eating if their grower has seen fit to honor them with such names.

The longer apples remain on the tree, unless the weather becomes too cold to permit their exposure, the better the flavor and keeping qualities. The fruit that comes to perfection the farthest north, as that in the Hood river region of Oregon, appears to have the finest keeping qualities without deterioration in flavor.

Of the varieties raised in the east the winter russets keep longest without being put in cold storage and really reach the full perfection of flavor only late in the winter or in the early spring. It used to be considered a marvelous and almost an impossible thing to keep apples over from the fall till the first summer apples appeared, but with methods of cold storage so extensively used as they are now this is easily achieved and with far less deterioration in flavor than might be reasonably expected.

How a Plant Protects Itself.

One little plant of South Africa protects itself by assuming a curious likeness to a white lichen that covers the rocks. The plant has sharp pointed green leaves. These are placed close together, with their points upward, and on the tip of each leaf is a little white, scaly sheath. The resemblance of the smooth surface these present to the lichen growing on the rocks, beside which it is always found, is so great that it is not till you tread on it that you discover the dereption.—London Standard.

A Camphorated Bath.

A camphorated bath is refreshing after a day's work and is not expensive. After your regular tub bath take a basin of cold water, drop enough of the mixture in the water to make it look milky and then sponge the body. It takes only a few moments, and you will feel repaid for the trouble. For camphorated bath: Tincture of camphor, one ounce; tincture of benzoin, one-half ounce; cologne, two ounces.

The Best for Four Generations

There is no guess-work, no uncertainty, about this world-famous remedy. Since first prescribed by Dr. D. Jayne 78 years ago it has brought relief and effected cures in millions of cases of disease, and is today known and used in all parts of the world.

DR. D. JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT

If you have a Cough or Cold you cannot afford to experiment—you know Jayne's Expectorant to be a reliable remedy. It is also a splendid medicine for Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Croup, Whooping-Cough and Asthma. Get it at your druggist's—in three size bottles, $1.00, 50c. and 25c.

Dr. D. Jayne's Sanative Pills in thoroughly reliable laxative, purgative, cathartic and stomach tonic.

The Sharp Professor.

"Now," said the medical college professor to the class, "we will proceed to the dissecting room, where the body lies, just ahead."

"I beg your pardon, sir," remarked the fresh student, "but how can it be a body if it's just a head?"

"It can't be," replied the professor, beaming benignly over his glasses. "That's the reason I said it lies."

Logic and Sophistry.

Little Willie—What is logic, pa? Pa—Logic, my son, is your little of argument in a controversy. Little Willie—And what is sophistry? Pa—The other fellow's.—Exchange.

Vin-O-Vitae a Great Female Remedy

This remarkable remedy which has been used with great success for many years in the treatment of female diseases is composed of roots, herbs and barks of unquestionable merit. Its history is ablaze with success in benefitting and curing many diseases with which women are afflicted. Its effect is mildly tonic, upbuilding and curative. Under its use the female organs assume their proper duties, the result of which is that the bloom of health indicates its value. Every woman occasionally needs a female remedy of this kind to tone up her organs to healthy action. Druggists sell VIN-O-VITAE at $1.00 per bottle.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala., postoffice, for week ending Feb 5, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

Dock Avers, R. J. Buggs, Suman Overstreet, W. Z. Maddox, Earnest McClendon, Nat Grapers, Tomy Hand, Jones & Ellison.

LADIES' LIST.

Lolar Holman, Mollie Johnson, Ellen Williams, Lineman Gus, Mrs L. C. Williams, S. G. Royal, Lena Quiatal.

These letters will be sent to the dead Letter office, Feb. 19, 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY Postmaster

The New Hairpin.

The new mop style of hairdressing has been the means of originating a new variety of hairpin. The illustration shows two of the new pins that hold in place the pretty coronet braid.

Putting Him Wise.

"I'd like to make you my wife," said the practical young man, "but they tell me you can't keep house."

"Don't you believe all they tell you," rejoined the girl in the case. "You get the house and put it in my name, and I'll prove to you that I can keep it."—Exchange.

FIELD GROWN ROSE PLANTS

Our Field Crown Rose Plants are now ready for delivery and this is the proper time for planting. We have 25,000 of the finest Bush and Climbing Roses ever grown in the South, including seventy varieties.

Bush Roses $2.50 per dozen; $15.00 per 100.
Climbing Roses $3.50 per dozen.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season. Cut flowers, walking bouquets, and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor
City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200 MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP
Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Cumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.
First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.
W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

WELLS Bored and Drilled
T. B. TEEL
Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells
CLANTON, ALA.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I. HOPKINS
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
CLANTON

Directory of Clanton Baptist Church.

IT ISN'T THE START
IT'S THE FINISH THAT COUNTS
BLUM'S MONOGRAM STARTED IN 1865 AND IS STILL A WINNER
WE WILL SHIP EXPRESS PAID
4 full quarts, either bottled in bond or blend..... $ 4.00
12 full quarts, either bottled in bond or blend..... 12.00

BLENDED GOODS — EXPRESS PAID

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Any of the Above Brands	$5.00	$12.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Sheridan Club	2.75	8.00
Maryland Club	3.50	10.50
Mt. Vernon	4.00	16.00
Black Label	6.00	16.00

6 Bottles in the Cot. 6 Bottles 12 Bottles

Four Roses	7.00	13.50
Three Feathers	7.00	16.50

CORN WHISKEY — EXPRESS PAID

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Tennessee Old Reserve	$4.00	$11.00
Black and Blue	3.00	9.00
Harvest Corn	3.00	10.00
Laurel Valley	3.00	10.00
Choice Brand	3.50	9.00

BOTTLED IN BOND — EXPRESS PAID

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Clarke's Pure Rye	$5.00	$12.00
Sunny Brook	5.00	12.00
Early Times	5.00	12.00
Cascadeloosa	5.00	12.00
McDowell	5.00	12.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Kentucky Spring	4.00	11.00
Clark's Four Mark	4.00	10.00

BULK WHISKIES — EXPRESS PAID
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $5.50, $6.00 per Gallon.
BULK CORN WHISKEY — EXPRESS PAID
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 per Gallon, according to age.
On all orders for $2.50 or over goods will be shipped in handsome glass jars.

PABST'S BLUE RIBBON BEER — Per Barrel, 10 doz. pints $12.00; Per Dozen, packed in Boxes 1.50; Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.
Wholesale and Imported Wines and Liquors. Ask for Prices.
JUNG'S CINCINNATI BEER — Per Barrel, 10 doz. pints $9.00; Per Dozen, packed in Boxes 1.00; Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.
LONG DISTANCE PHONE 198
517-519 West - Bay Street
CHAS. BLUM & COMPANY
Jacksonville, Florida

Grooming the Dog.

"If the dog has plenty of exercise he will seldom need to be washed. His paws will be flushed by the perspiration induced by running about," says Suburban Life. "Closely confined dogs, however, need to be bathed at fairly frequent intervals. In any case the use of water will not be needed so often if the dog is brushed every day, as when this attention is neglected. It is best to use a brush of bristles, and in the case of long haired dogs the bristles must be nearly an inch and a half long if they are to penetrate to the skin. The brushing always should be done one way—that is, not against the hair—and the use of the brush may be supplemented to good advantage by woolen gloves and the bare hands, which will impart a luster to the coat."

Pathetic Pride.

Willie had had a tumble when he was a baby, and his hip was so hurt that ever after he was obliged to use a crutch. On one occasion, when his mother had bought him a new crutch of the latest and most approved style, Willie expressed his enthusiasm and delight in the roundest terms. "And, oh, mother," he exclaimed in conclusion, referring to a little friend of his who, having the use of both legs, had no need of crutches, "won't Johnny Knowles be jealous!"—New York Times.

Saved From Awful Peril

"I never felt so near my grave," writes Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, Ohio, R. R. No. 3, "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive to-day is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It also cured my four children of croup." Infallible for Coughs and Colds; its the most certain remedy for LaGrippe Asthma desperate lung trouble and all bronchial affections, 50c and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

Pumping by Wind Power.

The speed of a windmill depends on the angle the wheels are placed at with reference to the wind. If a slow, steady motion is desired the sails must be set at a steep incline. Such sails must be long and narrow and set closer together.

WIND POWER PLANT.

In pumping from a deep well the angle of the sails of the windmill is such that the wheel will revolve the same number of revolutions a minute that it is desired to operate the pump. This makes it possible to connect the mill directly to the pump without the gearing necessary where a high speed is employed in operation of the pump. While the low speed means less water pumped, it greatly lengthens the life of the mill.

In the illustration the windmill, tower and tank are combined in a rather ornamental structure. When the well is located on high ground as compared with the grounds where the water is to be distributed the tank may rest upon the surface, as shown, and the windmill frame be constructed overhead. When the mill is to be located on lower ground the water tank may be placed midway on the windmill frame or on top, with the windmill just above the tank.

A tank placed thirty feet from the ground will give a pressure of fifteen pounds when the tank is full. This would lift water to the second story of a house standing on the same level. A garden hose nozzle connected with this tank would force a stream nearly as high as the bottom of the tank, or twenty-five to thirty feet horizontally. Twenty barrels of water would supply a garden hose nozzle for a little over an hour. These small tanks are commonly used in connection with an eight to ten foot windmill. The same sized mill, however, may be used with a larger tank when the water is to be used for household purposes, bathroom, lawn and fire protection. A sixty-five barrel tank will supply a garden hose nozzle for about four hours.

Land is so scarce in Japan and the people are so numerous that a farm rarely consists of more than an acre or two. These little farms are divided up into tiny fields.

Caught.

She—Did you hear they were going to tax bachelors?

He—Yes, but they'll never get it out of me.

She—It is nice of you to put it that way, but I must speak to mother first.—London Mail.

Palmetto Lands.

We ask you to write for information. We can tell you facts about the land, the climate, the crops in Florida's most fertile section—Manatee County. If you want to produce three crops a year with the labor you are giving to one, write us.

If you want to raise oranges, grape fruit, cabbage, egg plant, cauliflower, lettuce or tomatoes, write us.

PALMETTO LANDS are not guess work. PALMETTO LANDS give results.

Write to

FREDERIC P. LADD,
Board of Trade,
PALMETTO, FLORIDA

Corrupted His Style.

"The late Richard Watson Gilder," said a New York poet, "always opposed the reading of light literature. A poet, he said, could not read such literature without corrupting his literary style.

"He once told me that the poet in this respect was like Brown's parrot.

"Brown bought a parrot for $20 from a pet stock dealer and a week or two later returned to the shop and insisted that the bird be taken back.

"'What's the matter with it?' the dealer asked.

"'W-w-why,' said Brown, 'the durned c-c-critter st-stutters.'"

Expert Opinion.

"What do you think made Hamlet so suspicious of the ghost?" asked Mr. Stormington Barnes.

"He probably thought," answered the psychic researcher, "that no well regulated ghost would manifest himself without ringing bells or tipping tables."—Washington Star.

English Polo Players Coming.

Hugh Drury of the New Haven (Conn.) Polo club is securing ponies to be used by the English polo players who are coming to this country to play at Lakewood, N. Y., early in March. These contests will be preliminary to the international championship games to be played in this country next summer. The American team will be chosen from many well known players to meet the Englishmen at Lakewood.

Kaffir Banking.

The Kaffirs have a simple method of banking. Before setting out to trade they select one of their number as their banker and put all their money in his bag. When an article is purchased by any of those who are in this combine the price is taken by the banker from the bag, counted several times and then paid to the seller, after which all the bank depositors cry out to the banker in the presence of two witnesses selected, "You owe me so much." This is then repeated by the witnesses. The general accounting comes between the banker and his several depositors when all the purchases have been made, after which all the natives go home.

Steered Straight.

"If I thought that any girl would accept me," casually remarked the bashful Mr. Man, "I'd propose tomorrow."

"Why not this evening?" asked Miss Fosdick coyly.

The affair will take place in about a month.

Helping Him.

Mr. Backward—Well—er—yes, since you ask me, I was thinking of consulting a fortune teller. Miss Coy—To find out whom you will marry, eh? Mr. Backward—Why—er—yes. I— Miss Coy—Why not ask me and save the fortune teller's fee toward the price of the ring?

The thicker the grass the easier to mow—Alaric.

THE WRECK MASTER.

He Does Some Tall Hustling When the Line Is Blocked.

When a wreck blocks the line the wreck master is the biggest man on the railroad. Even the president, if by unhappy chance he happens to be there, steps aside and keeps silent after the wreck train halts with a jerk of grinding brakes and hissing air before the indescribable confusion of shattered wood and twisted steel which clutter the tracks. The wreck master's feet are on the ground before the shrieking wheels have ceased turning. There follow at his heels a half score of men, all experts, but of less degree than their leader.

He shouts an order that seems as unintelligible as a drillmaster's command, then another and another. There is instant action. At one end of the train a locomotive begins to creep cautiously away with the coaches that have stayed on the rails. An express car up toward the forward end of the passenger train is tilted tremblingly on its trucks. It is loaded with bales of silk perhaps or with other costly merchandise. The wreckers do not stop to inquire. To them it is simply an obstruction that has to be removed immediately. There is a heaving chorus, and it plunges down the embankment. A hundred yards away a loaded freight car in the opposite train is hanging over the edge. Fifty crowbars give it a tip that sends it down to the foot of the hill. As it lands there is a crash of discordant, tortured strings, an inharmonious outburst as though half a hundred cats had landed simultaneously on half a hundred keyboards. "Pianos," remarks one of the panting workmen to another standing at his shoulder. They do not pause even to grin. An instant later they are heaving away at something else.—Thaddeus S. Dayton in Harper's Weekly.

A Cooking Suggestion.

To render a tough fowl tender enough for roasting try steaming it for an hour. Before doing so put a slice of onion and a stick of celery inside the fowl to give it a good flavor. After removing it from the steamer and taking out the onion and celery stuff it, as usual, being careful not to break the flesh. Then season with plenty of pepper and salt, dredge with flour and roast it in a hot oven.

Every Family Needs It.

Every body sometimes has dizziness, loss of appetite, coated tongue, yellow complexion, constipation, etc which indicates the approach of sickness and disease. To ward off sickness they should use a first-class Liver Medicine. Such a remedy is GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR. Its timely use will prevent sickness and secure health, vigor and energy. Druggists sell it at 25 cents per box. Ask for it and accept no other. It is the best Liver Medicine ever manufactured. Address, Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Pains or Cramps

"I carry Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills with me all the time, and for aches and pains there is nothing equals them. I have used them for rheumatic pains, headache, and pains in side and back, and in every case they give perfect satisfaction."

HENRY COURLEN,
Boonton, N. J.

Pain comes from tortured nerves. It may occur in any part of the head or body where there is weakness or pressure upon the nerves.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

Relieve pain, whether it be neuralgiac, rheumatic, sciatic, headache, stomache, pleurisy, or ovarian pains.

Druggists everywhere sell them. If first package fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

GENUINE OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS

OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS are known and used more widely than any other plow ever produced and the long continued and increasing prosperity of the

OLIVER CHILLED PLOW WORKS

would not be possible if the product of this immense factory was not adapted to every requirement of the American Farmer and the sturdy principles of skill and honesty in manufacture strictly carried out as laid down by the founder of the business.

"Buy the Best—It Pays," which literally translated means "Buy the Oliver."

If it's Hardware We have it!

Gamble Hardware Co.

If we have it, It's the Best!

CLANTON, WETUMPKA, ALEXANDER CITY

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

There was snow in Clanton last Sunday morning and the boys made the most of it while the sun was shining brightly. It came down in box cars from the cold north, and not from the skies. But the boys didn't care where it came from, they made snowballs of it anyway.

After an interval of darkness Clanton is again blessed with the electric light, and it is now hoped there will be no further trouble in this respect.

The Birmingham Age-Herald is to be congratulated upon removing into its elegant new building which is a masterpiece of convenience for a newspaper office. Just to show what can be done, everything was moved into the new building without the slightest hitch, the paper coming out the same as usual—on time and without the loss of a single issue.

Walter D. Seed has retired from the race for governor and announces himself a candidate for lieutenant governor, in opposition to E. Perry Thomas. The honorable Mr. Seed's prospects for election are not very encouraging.

It is all very well to say the late campaign is a thing of the past, and should be forgotten, but it is not in human nature to forget so readily those who were in favor of using the hands of the people, and now, if any, of the amendment will need hope for the support of a large majority of the voters.

Prosperity and Pride.

"The farmer guy of cash, they say,
Is one of our great boarders.
He now prepares to put on airs
O'er this year's summer boarders.
—Washington Star.

Realistic.

"Is he a realistic writer?"

"He could write of the old swimming hole in a way to make your eyes swim with tears."—Kansas City Times.

Old Refrain.

Hear the wee typewriter bell,
Tinkling bell.
What a jolly bit of gossip
It could tell!
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Naturally.

"Does your husband go in for golf?" asks the caller.

"No," she answers. "He goes out for it."—Judge.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, and State of Alabama and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against W. E. Thompson and J. W. Huff out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said W. E. Thompson and J. W. Huff, I have levied on the following property, to wit:

Two mare mules, both black, as the property of Defendant, J. W. Huff. Wherefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named J. W. Huff, in and to the above described property, on Monday, the 28th day of February, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Ala.

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 15th day of February, 1910.

JOHN S. CATTS,
Sheriff Chilton County.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness described in and secured by a mortgage made by Frank Garner to E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, a corporation, dated June 12, 1909, and said default continuing, the said E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, mortgagee, will, under and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, proceed to sell, at public outcry, to the highest bidder, for cash, within the legal hours of sale, in front of the store of the E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, at Ridgeville, Alabama, on the following personal property, in said mortgage described, namely:

SATURDAY, MARCH 12th, 1910,

One dun colored Ox named Buck and one spotted Ox named Bill.

This sale is made for the purpose of paying the debt secured by said mortgage, including the expenses of foreclosure.

E. E. JACKSON LUMBER CO.,
Mortg

Schloss Bros. & Co.
Fine Clothes Makers
Baltimore and New York

Pains or Cramps

"I carry Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills with me all the time, and for aches and pains there is nothing equals them. I have used them for rheumatic pains, headache, and pains in side and back, and in every case they give perfect satisfaction."

HENRY COURLEN,
Boonton, N. J.

Pain comes from tortured nerves. It may occur in any part of the head or body where there is weakness or pressure upon the nerves.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

Relieve pain, whether it be neuralgiac, rheumatic, sciatic, headache, stomache, pleurisy, or ovarian pains.

Druggists everywhere sell them. If first package fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

OWS

we have it,
It's the Best!

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII — CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1910 — No. 23

Circuit Clerk

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

There was snow in Clanton last Sunday morning and the boys made the most of it while the sun was shining brightly. It came down on box cars from the cold north, and not from the skies. But the boys didn't care where it came from, they made snowballs of it anyway.

After an interval of darkness Clanton is again blessed with the electric light, and it is now hoped there will be no further trouble in this respect.

The Birmingham Age-Herald is to be congratulated upon removing into its elegant new building which is a masterpiece of convenience for a newspaper office. Just to show what can be done, everything was moved into the new building without the slightest hitch, the paper coming out the same as usual—on time and without the loss of a single issue.

Walter D. Seed has retired from the race for governor and announces himself a candidate for lieutenant governor, in opposition to E. Perry Thomas. The honorable Mr. Seed's prospects for election are not very encouraging.

It is all very well to say the late campaign is a thing of the past, and should be forgotten, but it is not in human nature to forget so readily those who were in favor of tieing the hands of the people, and few, if any, of the amendment crowd need hope for the support of a large majority of the voters.

Prosperity and Pride.

The farmer gay of cash, they say,
Is one of our great hoarders.
He now prepares to put on airs
O'er this year's summer boarders.
—Washington Star.

Realistic.

"Is he a realistic writer?"

"He could write of the old swimming hole in a way to make your eyes swim with tears."—Kansas City Times.

Old Refrain.

Hear the wee typewriter bell,
Tinkling bell.
What a jolly bit of gossip
It could tell!
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Naturally.

"Does your husband go in for golf?" asks the caller.

"No," she answers. "He goes out for it."—Judge.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, and State of Alabama and to me directed whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against M. E. Thompson and J. W. Huff out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said M. E. Thompson and J. W. Huff, I have levied on the following property, to wit:

Two mare mules, both black, as the property of Defendant, J. W. Huff.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named J. W. Huff, in and to the above described property, on Monday, the 28th day of February, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Ala.

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 15th day of February, 1910.

JOHN S. CATTS,
Sheriff Chilton County.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness described in and secured by a mortgage made by Frank Garner to E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, a corporation, dated June 12, 1909, and said default continuing, the said E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, mortgagee, will, under and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, proceed to sell, at public outcry, to the highest bidder, for cash, within the legal hours of sale, in front of the office of the E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, at Riderville, Alabama, on SATURDAY, MARCH 13th, 1910.

the following personal property, in said mortgage described, namely:

One dun colored Ox named Buck and one spotted Ox named Bill.

This sale is made for the purpose of paying the debt secured by said mortgage, including the expenses of foreclosure.

E. E. JACKSON LUMBER CO.,
Mortg[illegible]

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$33,309 94	Capital Stock Paid in	$15,000 00
Overdrafts	1,559 54	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	13,373 74
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	13,750 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$40,025 40
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	4,481 02	Savings Deposits	5,615 80
Other Real Estate	167 50	Cashier's Checks	165 62
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$34,928 88	Bills Payable	5,000 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	3,798 17		54,782 71
Currency	5,980 00
Gold	1,000 00
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,000 00
Checks and Cash Items	254 99
	37,541 85
Total	$83,830 46	Total	$83,830 45

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

JNO. A. THOMAS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 23d day of October, 1909.

J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAMUEL KAUFMAN
M. L. GREIL
} Directors.

Statement of the condition of the Clanton Bank, located at Clanton, Ala., at the close of business October 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$ 91,227 62	Capital Stock Paid in	$ 15,000 00
Overdrafts	693 35	Surplus Fund	10,000 00
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	21,325 00	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	5,230 35
Furniture and Fixtures	5,250 23	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$ 71,222 37
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$24,589 77	Time Certificates	13,000 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	3,710 67	Cashier's Checks	134 69
Currency	4,565 00	Bills Payable	10,000 00
Gold	220 00		104,356 60
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,207 65
Checks and Cash Items	810 10
	35,022 52
Total	$160,026 32		$160,026 32

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of the Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 22nd day of October, 1909.

E. B. DEASON, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. H. SARTOR
W. I. MULLINS
P. D. WILSON
} Directors.

WANTED.

PRINTER WANTED at once. Straight matter. Apply at THE BANNER office, Clanton, Ala.

FOR SALE—Two Four-acre lots with 3 roomed houses on them, good wells of water; and one Store House and lot—all in Coopers, Ala. will sell them cheap. Apply to
J. W. CLARK, Cooper, Ala.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which in many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists.

WANTED—15 or 20 teams to haul iron ore at Wessington. Pay 85c per ton; 3 mile haul; pay every two weeks. Miners also wanted. Call or write Tom Walker, or C. H. Durham, Jemison, Ala., care Shelby Iron Co.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all druggists.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Hanlen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

STRAYED

From my place, known as the Stewart place, one mile west of Clanton, November 29, 1909, a dark chestnut mule, about twelve years old, with scar on left shoulder. Any information should be sent to E. M. Pinckard & Co., Clanton, who will pay a reward of $10 for his delivery.

H. LOCKHART.

Took All His Money.

Often all a man earns goes to doctors or for medicines, to cure a Stomach, Liver or Kidney trouble that Dr. King's New Life Pills would quickly cure at slight cost. Best for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Jaundice, Malaria and Debility. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

PARKER
NON-GENUINE WITHOUT THIS TRADE MARK ON THE BARREL
FOUNTAIN PEN
Sells because of Excels

Are You Bilious?

If you are sallow, have headache, dizziness, loss of appetite, and feel badly generally, you should use a good aperient and liver regulator. St. Joseph's Liver Regulator has for many years relieved these ailments. It is carefully prepared and is believed by the many people who use it to be the best medicine of its kind on the market. It is made in both liquid and powdered form. Druggists and general dealers sell it, liquid 50 cents a bottle; powdered, in tin boxes 25 cents a box, or five boxes for a dollar.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Jemison, Feb. 12, 1910

Editor Banner:—As I notice the political arena is attracting some attention now, I decided to ask for space in your valuable paper to express myself regarding some certain issues.

Several important officers are to be elected and I am sure the people will exercise prudence in choosing men to govern Chilton county and also in choosing a worthy representative to speak for them and look after their affairs in the general assembly of the State. Of course, some will say that the office of Judge of Probate is the most important to be filled this year, and to some it may be the most important, but I sincerely believe that the office which is of the most importance to the common people of this county is that of representative in the Legislature.

I reach this conclusion first, because we know that our only share in the affairs of our beloved state is through our representative and as he has influence and honesty and the interests of the common people at heart and a firm resolve to conscientiously consult the wishes of those he represents, I truly believe that to the extent he possesses these qualifications just to that extent will the people be represented. Second, I believe that the next legislature will make some very important changes in the present laws of the State, and we need a man to represent us there that will always be on his guard, one that will be ever vigilant and ready to carry out the wishes of the people who honored him with their confidence and support. I feel sure that the people of Chilton county are in favor of a change in the present poll tax law which gives the negros an equal share of the poll tax although they pay very little of it. I believe also that the people had ratner have the poll taxes in with them other taxes and in that way every man would pay his poll tax and would be a full fledged citizen and enjoy the pleasures and opportunities all freeborn of a free country should have. I am a staunch believer in compulsory education, that is, I highly favor a five months free school in every district in the State of Alabama, and when we get this five months free school I am in favor of the State enacting a law compelling each man to send his children at least three months in the year, we all well know that if we had free schools where we now have public schools in our county we would be practically able to enroll every child in the county and I feel sure that all our people would gladly support them, but if the State should make our schools free it would of couree have the right to force any man who would not otherwise do so to patronize them unless he had a good excuse.

Having been a teacher in the public schools for four years I believe that I can safely say that non attendance is our greatest drawback in an educational line.

Respectfully,
HOWARD ROPER.

Won't Need a Crutch.

When Editor J. P. Sessoms, of Cornelius, N. C., bruised his leg badly, it started an ugly sore. Many salves and ointments proved worthless. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve healed it thoroughly. Nothing is so prompt and sure for Ulcers, Boils Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Corns, Sores, Pimples, Eczema or Piles. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

A CARD OF THANKS.

To our many friends who showed to our darling boy so many gracious acts of kindness during his last illness and death, and you who opened your very hearts to us in expressing your sympathy in our behalf in the darkest hour of our lives, we want to take this method of showing our appreciation for all you have done and said; what you have done unto him has been done unto us, and is but another strong chord of love that you have drawn around our hearts that binds us closer to you, and the words of sympathy you have spoken to us in this sad hour has comforted our hearts, and has in a large measure given us a consolation we could not have gotten elsewhere. May heaven's richest blessings smile upon each of you.

Yours sadly but hopefully,
J. M. Campbell and Family.
Plantersville, Feb. 11, 1910.

FARMS FOR RENT.

Near Verbena,

One 50 acres with 7-room house; one 100 acres with one 4 and one 5-room houses.

Near Thorsby,

One 75-acre farm with one 4 and one 6-room houses.

Cotton Seed for Sale.

250 bushels Cook's "Improved" Cotton Seed, home grown and pure.

250 bushels "Seek no Further" Cotton Seed, home grown and pure. Each averaged ½ bale to acre last year, and yield of lint from Cook's Improved was 38½ to 100; from Seek no Further was 36½ to 100. Price per bushel $1 00 cash with order.

Write F. A GULLEDGE,
Verbena, Ala.

The Stage Detective.

"The stage detective must be doubly clever."

"How so?"

"He must disguise himself so that he will be recognized by everybody in the audience and recognized by nobody on the stage."

Light.

Father—You seem to look at things in a very different light since your marriage. Newly Married Daughter—Well, so I ought after receiving fourteen lamps and nine candelabra for wedding presents.

It is easier to appear worthy of a position one does not hold than of the office one fills.—La Rochefoucauld.

PROGRAM

of Teachers' Institute to be held at Enterprise School House, February 18 and 19, 1910.

Friday, 10 a.m. Devotional services. Rev. Dismukes. Welcome address, J. H. Williams. Response, E. C. Popwell.

10:45 a.m. How to interest parents and pupils and keep them interested. Miss Sadie Belle Johnson, T. E. Williams.

11:15. Some little annoyances of the school room and how to prevent them. Miss Maline Burns.

Best methods of conducting recitations in reading and history. Miss Inga Husby.

How can playtime be used to best advantage. R. L. Duffey.

1:15 How can parents aid the teacher in educating their children? A. F. Duffey, L. N. Henderson.

1:45. The reading habit. Miss Argie E. Jones, J. C. Merchant.

2:15. The importance of teaching the evils of narcotics in schools and in the homes. Rev. W. H. Connell, J. A. Hunter.

2:45. Query box round table discussions. Adjourn.

Saturday 9:00 a.m. Devotional exercises, Rev. R. F. Yeargan.

9:20. A selection. C. R. Fess.

9:45. The outcast student, Mrs. S. B. Groves.

10:15. Aim in educating, P. T. Graves, L. B. Pounds.

11:00. Address, Hon. H. J. Willingham.

Those wishing conveyance from Verbena can notify Prof. R. L. Duffey at that place.

Reason Enthroned.

Because meats are so tasty they are consumed in great excess. This leads to stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation. Revise your diet, let reason and not a pampered appetite control, then take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be well again. Try it. For sale at all Druggists.

Early Methodist preachers had reason to deplore the power of the all mighty landlord. Charles Wesley himself suffered, for he was summoned and fined £10 ($50) and heavy costs not for firing ricks or uprooting hedges, but for walking across a field to address an audience. Here is the record: "Goter versus Wesley; damages, £10; costs taxed, £9 10s. 8d, July 29, 1739. Received of Mr. Wesley, £19 10s. 8d. for damages and costs in their cause. William Gason, attorney for the plaintiff."

FRUIT TREES and PLANTS

FOR SALE until MARCH 1st.

TREES—A fine assortment—adapted to this section, grown by one of the best nurserymen in the country. PRICES 12 to 15c.

Cabbage Plants 25c per 100; $1.50 per 1000, f. o. b. Young's Island, S. C.

Can supply you with Strawberry Plants—the famous LADY THOMPSON.

I WANT YOUR TRADE IN THIS LINE.

JUDSON STROCK,
Clanton.

Riderville.

Editor Banner:—Please allow me a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words. Our school is progressing nicely under the careful management of Prof. Tyler Holley. He is a good teacher and his pupils seem to like him, I think especially two or three of the girls.

Mr. Woolley has moved in Mr. Cole's old house.

Miss Armour has started back to the Plantersville school.

TWO FRIENDS.

A REWARD.

A description of John Ervine and wife. Ervine is a man of about 28 years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches high, with round face, low forehead and blue eyes and red moustache about one half inch long, with dark hair and head bald all over top and to the back of his head; has a conspicuous tripping with his feet in walking; broad mouth and a constant tobacco chewer.

Mrs. Ervine is a lady 21 years of age; very small, with delicate appearance; a perfect blonde; a heavy suit of very light hair, and fair skin and blue eyes; wore a brown coat suit with brown face veil; had dental work of gold in front teeth.

Ervine and his wife passed through this section of the country Jan. 14, 1910, going from house to house, claiming various vocations of life, and obtaining money under false pretenses from me and my neighbor. He obtained $23, besides many attempts he made and failed. The last of his whereabouts was in Adams Ferry road, going towards Clanton. He was driving a small pair of black mules to a top buggy. A liberal reward will be paid for his arrest.

S. J. DUPRIEST, S. H. HILYER.
Marble Valley, Ala., Jan, 28.

Chancery Notice.

Ex parte Belle Cooley.
In Chancery at Clanton, Ala.

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed in Chancery Court at Clanton by Belle Cooley, praying that the disabilities of non-age of said Belle Cooley may be removed, and that Monday, Feb. 21, 1910, has been the day set for the hearing of said petition.

Dated this Feb. 1, 1910.

H. M. SIMPSON,
Register in Chancery.

Not Coughing Today?

Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine at hand. Your doctor's approval of its use will certainly set all doubt at rest. Do as he says. He knows.

No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Robust health is a great safeguard against attacks of throat and lung trouble, but constipation will destroy the best of health. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills.

THE HIGH PRICED FOOD QUESTION

Effect of Measures Taken to Boycott Meat Sellers and to Find Out the Causes of Increased Cost of Living

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

EVERYBODY is trying to hit the beef trust and to do it first. Take the Chicago prosecution, for example. Judge Kenesaw M. Landis says he started it and then the government tried to take it away from him. As for the boycott on high priced foods, it has spread so fast that everybody who cannot afford to buy beef and eggs is joining it. The startling thing is that it has only partially succeeded in reducing the price on these articles and has boosted that of vegetables. The trusts are bound to get the ultimate consumer somewhere. If they cannot work him for 50 per cent profits on steaks and pot roasts they will elevate the market on breakfast food and canned beans. If, like Nebuchadnezzar, he is reduced to a grass diet the price of hay will go up.

A Kansas City man eighty years of age says that he has cut out meat, lives on 10 cents a day and feels ten years younger. It must be that the trusts have overlooked him. He did wrong to advertise himself, for now they will discover that he lives on 10 cents a day and put up prices on him so that he will feel ten years older, which might be disastrous at his age.

JUDGE KENESAW M. LANDIS, PROBER OF THE BEEF TRUST.

It seems that the only thing left to do is to investigate. Investigating is perfectly safe since it never finds out anything vital and may stave off matters until the people forget. But if there is an investigation let it be kept out of the hands of college professors. Congressmen are bad enough as investigators, but they are not a marker to college professors. From this source have recently come some opinions as to the cause of high prices that are certainly the most astounding ever conceived by the brain of man.

Blaming It on Breakfast Foods.

For example, one professor says that the advance in beef is due to the breakfast food craze. That sort of logic would make Aristotle reassemble his dust and wildly break out of the grave. The particular pedagogue responsible for this startling idea thinks that many bushels of perfectly good corn have been wasted on breakfast foods that might have been fed to cattle and hogs; therefore the price of meat has gone up. Simply marvelous! The average man without learning would naturally suppose that the eating of oatmeal and flaked bran would lessen the consumption of meat and hence lower the price; also he would be of opinion that very little corn is used in the manufacture of breakfast foods, which are mostly composed of wheat, oats, rice, sawdust or chopped alfalfa. Other professors have given out quite as remarkable views on the high price question—that is, if the newspapers do these learned men no wrong. Whatever may be said of giving tainted money to colleges, there is surely something tainted somewhere. It might be a prize idea for some of these institutions of higher education to establish chairs of common sense.

Fortunately Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has already been investigating the high prices question and has had some things to say thereon. Now, we all agree that Wilson is perhaps the most competent man in the country to conduct such an inquiry, and what he says will carry weight. First and foremost, he asserts that the farmer is getting but little if any more for his food products than he did ten years ago. This clears the atmosphere. We now have something tangible to work on. On this statement of fact his conclusion is unescapable that high prices are caused by the food trusts.

Landis After Them Again.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis purposes to find out about one of these benevolent corporations, the one with suggestive hoofs and horns, known as the beef trust. The administration has sent Wade Ellis to conduct the case, and Wade Ellis has come very near to busting a lot of trusts.

Judge Landis was born in 1866 and got his name from the fact that his father was shot full of holes at the battle of Kenesaw Mountain. Despite the name, the boy grew and thrived and in time came to be private secretary to Walter Q. Gresham. Then he studied law, was appointed a federal judge and fined the Standard Oil company $29,000,000, which made a great cery, but got little wool. In appearance Judge Landis is slight, wears his clothes any way that happens, has a keen face and a shock of white hair. Despite the fact that he is a dignified judge, he can put up a line of talk that snaps and crinkles. I have never heard that trust busting runs in the Landis family, but officeholding does, three of the judge's brothers having served the esteemed public. One of them, Charles B. Landis, was formerly a congressman and was and is a Hoosier orator of the most resounding type.

It is a far cry from the Landis family to the price of steaks, and yet Kenesaw Mountain may be mixed up with steaks before he is done with the beef trust. What between Secretary Wilson, congress, President Taft, Judge Landis, Wade Ellis and a yelling chorus of boycotters the trust is liable to get something done to it, even it is nothing more than having its wrist slapped.

The Suffragettes at It.

Boycotting the meat trust is like swearing off on New Year's—everybody does it and then takes a sneak and orders a nice juicy sirloin when nobody is looking. The suffragettes start out with a plea against beef and when a crowd is collected and properly wrought up slide in a demand of votes for women, all of which makes a man want to go out and bite something. It is like those nice stories we used to read leading up to a perfectly thrilling climax and winding up by advising everybody to take Gazazzam's purple pills. That is nothing less than obtaining attention under false pretenses. Boycotting beef is all right, and talking suffrage is all right, but mixing the two is like selling soap at a church revival.

If the public would actually boycott some of these trusts it would only give them a dose of their own medicine and starve them out, as they have starved out the independent dealer. But will the beloved public do it? Will not the statesmen start a few little fake investigations and the trusts cut down a few cents in price, thus dissipating the people's indignation in order that a little later they may start the same old gouge game once more?

In the meantime let the investigators investigate, let the boycotters boycott and let Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis stir them up till they are red in the face. It all makes talk, and talk makes newspapers. The people grow hysterical and get over it, but the trusts grow fat forever. In the meantime one question is in order—After the fake investigations and futile boycotts are over will the American people be ready to do something?

PARIS A CITY OF MANY FLOODS

Forty-six Serious Risings of the Seine Since 1732.

THREE EXCEPTIONAL ONES.

In the Century Before 1732 There Were Five Big Inundations—River Rose to 28.9 Feet in 1658—How Flood Predictions Are Made—Protections of the City.

Paris has had so many floods that the scientists and expert watchers of the Seine have classified them and divided them into three groups, according to the height of the water registered on the gauges. It was on this river at Paris that the world's first system for forecasting floods was worked out, in 1854, and it has been in use ever since, so the city authorities of Paris knew two weeks or more ago of the calamity that was in store for them.

Since the daily readings of the flow of the Seine at Paris and other points were begun, in 1732, there have been forty-six floods counting the present one. According to the classification by height, thirty-one of these were "ordinary," twelve "extraordinary" and three "exceptional," the exceptional ones being those of 1740, 1802 and 1910. In the century preceding 1732 there were five devastating inundations of the city, that of 1658 being the worst on record until the present time.

There is no record of what the Seine did previous to 1632, but the natural conditions have been the same since long before the history of France began, so the little Ile de la Cite, which was the beginning of Paris and on which the Cathedral of Notre Dame was consecrated in 1182, must have been many times submerged. When Julius Caesar conquered Gaul in 58-51 B. C. the Parisii were a small tribe settled on the island in the middle of the Seine, and they called it Lutetia. Constantius Chlorus, a Roman emperor, who had his residence there in the year 293, called it "his dear Lutetia," which may have been the beginning of "that dear Paris." But there were no quays and retaining walls then, so the future Ile de la Cite must have been flooded after every torrential rain in the valleys of the Seine and its chief tributaries above Paris, the Marne and the Yonne.

Famous Buildings In Flood's Course.

Most of the famous structures damaged or threatened by the present flood antedate the beginning of the flood records of Paris in 1649 by many years, in some cases centuries. The Jardin des Plantes, which was the first institution to feel the effects of the present rising, is on the lower left bank of the Seine, near the entrance of the river within the city limits. Although a botanical garden, it includes a museum of natural history and a zoological collection. The Jardin des Plantes was founded in 1635 by Guy de la Brosse, physician to Louis XIII., and was originally nothing more than a collection of medicinal herbs. The celebrated Buffon was appointed director of the Jardin du Roi, as it came to be called in 1739, and he extended its sphere by founding collections in every department of natural history. In 1793 the royal menagerie was transferred to it, and in 1794 the library.

Notre Dame, on the Ile de la Cite, the famous walls of which have been washed by many floods, was founded in 1163 on the site of a church of the fourth century and was consecrated in 1182, but the nave was not completed until the thirteenth century. The foundation stone was laid by Pope Alexander III, at that time a refugee in France. In 1793 Notre Dame was converted into the temple of reason. The sculptures were mutilated and the statue of the Virgin replaced by one of Liberty. The orgies of which the church became the scene led to its being closed the following year. In 1795 it was restored to the Catholics.

Rendezvous of Wolf Hunters.

The Louvre, the basement of which is flooded, is supposed to derive its name from an ancient rendezvous of wolf hunters, known as the Louverie. The beginning of building on this site was in the time of Philip Augustus, who lived in the latter part of the twelfth century. But the present structure was not begun until the reign of Francis I., 1515-47.

The occurrence of high floods at Paris is due, as a rule, to the concentration of the rainfall at certain periods of the year and not to a high average for the whole year, so most of the inundations have come in the winter, helped along by the melting snow.

Floods of the Seine present a mixed character owing to the torrential nature of its tributaries, the Yonne and the Marne, which, with their high floods, exercise a predominating influence on the floods of Paris. As the torrents from the farthest parts of the basin take only three or four days to reach Paris, whereas the floods of the tranquil affluents only arrive four or five days later, a great flood at Paris is rarely the result of a single fall of rain. Generally a high flood is caused by the arrival of a second torrent from the rapidly flowing tributaries before the long continued floods of the slower branches have time to subside. All of the highest floods are produced by this combination of torrents of different origin.

Exceptional Floods.

M. Lemoine has divided the flood of the Seine at Paris into three classes, denominating floods which rise between 16.4 and 19.7 feet on the Tournelle gauge as ordinary large floods, those rising between 19.7 and 23 feet as extraordinary floods, and those rising above 23 feet as exceptional floods. Between the beginning of the daily readings of the gauge in 1732 and the present time there had been but two exceptional floods before this one in 1910. In December, 1740, the water rose to a height of 25.95 feet, and in January, 1802, it reached 24.37 feet.

Belgrand gives a list of five exceptional floods which occurred between 1649 and 1732—namely, in February, 1649; January, 1651; February, 1658; April, 1690, and March, 1711. That of 1658 alone was higher than the flood of 1740, reaching the height of 28.9 feet, being by nearly three feet the highest flood on record at Paris until the present time. The four others previous to 1732, though lower than the flood of 1740, all exceeded 24.37 feet, the record of 1802.

Only two unusually high floods threatened Paris between 1850 and 1910. They were in March, 1876, and in January, 1883, reaching 21.33 feet and 19.69 feet respectively, though the floods of December, 1872, and 1882 were only a little lower, as they rose to 19.19 and 19.16 feet. These last two floods were the first of unusual height to which the system of predictions and warnings was thoroughly and successfully applied. Both were due in part to a succession of small inundations from the torrential tributaries, but they presented some notable differences. The flood of 1876 was unusually late in the cold season and followed an almost continuous rainfall of more than five weeks, upon melting snow in the beginning and then upon soil previously saturated by the winter rains. The river rose almost continuously at Paris from the middle of February till the 17th of March, when it attained its maximum. In January, 1883, the rising of the river was the result of two distinct periods of heavy rainfall following close upon one another, the first lasting about a month and the second for ten days.

How Flood Predictions Are Made.

Predictions of the probable height of floods are based on a system devised by Belgrand for use in the protection of Paris. By a series of careful observations he was enabled to trace a relation between the rise of the various tributaries at certain points and the corresponding rise of the Seine at Paris or lower down. The usual rule adopted for calculating the probable rise at the bridge of Austerlitz in Paris is to double the mean of the rises observed on the Yonne at various points. The mean time occupied by the maximum flood-level in traveling from the upper tributaries to Paris is three days and four-tenths and one day from Paris to Mantes. The rise at Mantes is generally the same as at Paris.

Announcements are generally made three days in advance, and a corrected prediction is issued twenty-four hours later. The heights predicted are usually somewhat in excess of the actual rise recorded, owing to the natural anxiety not to give too low an estimate of the danger. But remarkable coincidences have occurred. The prediction on March 15, 1876, for the following day was 21.33 feet, and it was exactly verified on the 16th. At Paris the exact maximum of the flood of January, 1883, was predicted on the evening before.

In the course of the last half century many millions of dollars' worth of property have been saved by the heeding of these official warnings.

The protections of Paris have been increased from time to time by the raising of the quays along the river and by prolonging the outfall sewers so as to place their outlets beyond the town, and embankments have been built for many of the low lying districts. The rebuilding also of old bridges with more ample waterways and the improvements in depth for navigation have greatly increased the discharging capacity of the river.

CANNON TURNS A JOKE.

Speaker Almost Asked Insurgent to Preside Over House.

Speaker Cannon of the house and Representative Victor Murdock of Kansas, one of the "insurgent" leaders, figured in a little incident the other day that convulsed the house. The house was resolving itself into a committee of the whole to consider the agricultural bill, and the speaker cast his eye about to find some one to preside. Foster of Vermont and Maloy of New York were absent.

Away up in front, in one of the most prominent seats in the chamber, was Murdock, who has fought the speaker and his rules.

"The chair will ask the gentleman from Kansas"—and from the members came the cry "Murdock, Murdock!"—but the speaker calmly, amid a roar of laughter, added, "the gentleman from Kansas, Mr. Campbell, to take the chair."

Hail to the Skunk Trust.

B. M. Mills of New Boston, Conn., is to form a skunk trust. The company will be capitalized at $2,500, shares to cost $25 each. He says he can guarantee big dividends because there is always a market for the whole of a skunk—pelt, meat and oil.

Economists.

Jack Spratt could eat no fat,
His wife could eat no lean,
But now the two they will eschew
And eat the humble bean.
—Chicago News.

NEWSPAPER FOR INDIANS.

Five Native Languages to Be Used in the Dogwanna Ahchesta.

An Indian newspaper will be established in a few days at Muscogee, Okla. Chiefs of the Five Civilized Tribes and other influential Indians are backing the movement. The paper will be edited by Augustus W. Ivey of Stillwell, a Cherokee, and will appear weekly. It will be known as the Dogwanna Ahchesta, which means "Farm and Fireside."

The Cherokee, Creek, Choctaw, Seminole and Chickasaw tongues will be represented. That portion of the paper intended for Cherokees will be printed in the Cherokee characters. The news of the other tribes will be printed in the English alphabet.

There will be no politics in the paper. Its purpose will be "to educate the Indian in the duties of citizenship and remove from his mind his stubborn prejudice against the white man."

KEEP A COW, SAYS HADLEY.

Missouri Governor's Scheme to Solve Cost of Living Problem.

Governor Herbert S. Hadley believes that if every family should keep a cow and chickens the living problem would be solved. "If you can't afford to keep a cow and chickens you ought to go back to the farm," he says.

"The real cause of the high prices lies in the fact that there are too many people in the cities producing things they cannot eat. I keep three cows and some chickens too. And you'd be surprised at what a saving they make in the household expenses. If you don't believe it, just ask Mrs. Hadley."

HERBERT S. HADLEY.

PEARY TESTIMONIALS GALORE

Nearly Every State and Many Countries Eager to Honor Discoverer.

At the national testimonial to Commander Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the north pole, at the Metropolitan Opera House, in New York, on Feb. 8, he will give the first public account of his experiences at the north pole. Other testimonials have been offered to him by nearly every state in the Union, and he will accept as many of them as possible in the territory east of the Mississippi river.

He will sail for England on April 27 to be the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Royal Geographical society. He has accepted invitations to address the geographical societies of Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Rome, St. Petersburg, Brussels, Antwerp and Edinburgh.

Commander Peary will return to America before the end of June to attend the commencement exercises of Bowdoin college, at Brunswick, Me., where he will be the honored guest of the college, from which he was graduated in 1877.

Dog Catcher's Ambition.

Harry Hart, an officer of the Spokane (Wash.) Humane society, who caught 2,020 stray dogs in 1909, or 4,800 since beginning the work in Spokane four years ago and a total of more than 15,000 in various parts of the United States and Canada since 1903, is striving for a world's record. His greatest ambition is to become the acknowledged champion dog catcher, and with that end in view he will undertake to clear any town of less than 50,000 of unlicensed dogs within thirty days free of charge to the municipality. Hart is a native of England, where he learned the art of catching dogs, and has worked in the province of Nova Scotia and practically every state in the Union.

The Trust Boycott.

Take back those chops! I will not eat
One single ounce of trust owned meat.
As for those eggs, I like them much,
But trust owned eggs I will not touch.
Bread? Tempt me not. With bread I'm through.
For that a trust produces too.
Potatoes? No; I cast them off.
At trust owned vegetables I scoff.
A bas the butter! That is made
By Standard Oil, I've heard it said.
Chicken? How dare you offer it?
'Tis all trust owned, you must admit.
Tea? Well—but no; some trust, I think,
Controls each cup of tea we drink.
Besides, unsugared tea is flat,
And, oh, the sugar trust owns that!
Milk? No; I cannot drink a drop.
The milk trust I must help to stop.
Water? No, not a single drab.
I'll help put down the water grab.
Yes, though it kill me, I'll refrain
From eating trust owned food again.
Yet, what's the use? For if I die
In trust made casket must I lie
And sleep my sleep, forever sound,
All lonesome in the trust owned ground.
Still, my reward shall splendid be
If future folks shall speak of me
And say, with sobs that come in gusts,
"It killed him, but he beat the trusts!"
—Paul West in New York World.

A BIT OF DIPL

An English Official led a French A

HOW PERIM ISLAND

The Interesting Story [illegible] a White House on the Arabian Coast at the Entrance to the Red Sea.

On the foreshore of [illegible] coast in the strait of [illegible] at the southern entrance [illegible] sea, stands a large white [illegible] certain which the traveler [illegible] east may hear a curious story [illegible] middle of the nineteenth [illegible] when M. de Lesseps [illegible] difficulties had successfully [illegible] Suez Canal company [illegible] the British port of Aden [illegible] miles distant, was surprised [illegible] ing by the visit of a [illegible] of very unusual size for [illegible] the orient, which, having [illegible] a terrific storm off Aden, [illegible] in for repairs.

In the mind of the [illegible] was at once aroused [illegible] tion of so large a command, [illegible] which increased as he found [illegible] sible to extract any further [illegible] tion from the French admiral [illegible] officers beyond the statement [illegible] they were upon an ordinary [illegible] explanation which the former [illegible] the least inclined to believe.

Firm in the belief, therefore, [illegible] some political move of great [illegible] tance was afloat, if not afoot, [illegible] ernor, in order first of all to [illegible] gave orders to go very [illegible] the repairs and then set to [illegible] take the Frenchmen off their [illegible] giving a succession of such [illegible] ments as both his slender [illegible] the awful barrenness of [illegible] would afford.

But, though at the end of [illegible] the French and British officers [illegible] upon the best of terms, the [illegible] destination of the French [illegible] remained as much of a [illegible] the governor of Aden as [illegible] in spite of all possible delay [illegible] pairs were nearly completed.

Now it happened that the [illegible] the governor possessed an [illegible] who had been receiving [illegible] from one of the French [illegible] attentions which the [illegible] gard seriously. It occurred [illegible] ernor that by such means [illegible] might be learned of his [illegible] visitor's plans, and a private [illegible] sation between the governor [illegible] and her maid resulted in an [illegible] tween the latter and her [illegible] mirer, by which it was [illegible] that Perim island was the [illegible] point.

At this information the [illegible] opened his eyes wide indeed. [illegible] the Suez canal were cut through [illegible] rim, as commanding the [illegible] trance to the Red sea. In the [illegible] of the strait of Bab-el-Mandeb [illegible] be a place of great strategic [illegible] tance, over which, without [illegible] was the intention of the French [illegible] miral to hoist the tricolor.

Secretly giving orders, therefore, [illegible] a gunboat to immediately [illegible] detachment of soldiers and [illegible] in the night for Perim island. [illegible] ernor then announced a fare[illegible] quet and ball for the day [illegible] lowing, a final act of courtesy [illegible] which the French admiral would [illegible] ingly have dispensed, for he [illegible] louis to sail, but which he could [illegible] well refuse on account of the [illegible] had made of the British supply [illegible] machinery at Aden.

So the dinner and party [illegible] course came off, the governor [illegible] high spirits, because in the [illegible] he had received the news of the [illegible] pation of Perim, which under [illegible] cumstances would surely be followed [illegible] by the longed for promotion. The [illegible] French admiral was equally [illegible] for he hoped on the morrow to [illegible] the same important little speck [illegible] to the dominion of his own flag, [illegible] thereby covering his breast with [illegible] stars and himself with matrimonial [illegible]

Next day, after an interchange [illegible] cordial farewells, the French squadron [illegible] sailed away to an apparently [illegible] destination, until, when clear of land, the course was laid full [illegible] rect for Perim island.

Then what were the dismay [illegible] appointment of the French [illegible] and his officers when, on coming [illegible] sight of their destination, they [illegible] the British flag flying and a [illegible] of soldiers drawn up to give the [illegible] proper salute. It is said the [illegible] admiral was so mortified at being [illegible] outwitted that he first flung [illegible] ed hat overboard and then followed [illegible] himself into the sea.

Be this as it may, as Perim [illegible] clearly already occupied by the [illegible] ish, the only counter move which [illegible] French could make was to [illegible] session of a strip of the former [illegible] the opposite Arabian coast, [illegible] they built the fortified white [illegible] question, but as the place was [illegible] at the mercy of the guns on [illegible] land it was shortly abandoned [illegible] main to this day as a monument [illegible] French admiral's undoing.—[illegible]

In Honor of Minerva.

The most notable festival of [illegible] was in honor of Minerva. All [illegible] of citizens on this particular [illegible] marched in procession. The [illegible] went first, then the young men, [illegible] the children, the young women, [illegible] matrons and the people of the [illegible] orders. The most prominent [illegible] the parade was a ship propelled [illegible] hidden machinery and bearing [illegible] masthead the sacred banner [illegible] goddess.

THE CHILDREN

Balancing Trick.

[illegible] sees the jugglers in [illegible] spinning plates and even [illegible] pointed stick. For the [illegible] the plates they use are [illegible] of cork or metal, and their equipment [illegible] to centrifugal force [illegible] fall just as soon as the [illegible] to overcome the [illegible] city.

[illegible] a way to balance a [illegible] on the point of a needle [illegible] cause it steadily to spin [illegible] delicate support.

[illegible] of corks down the middle [illegible] the long axes, and in [illegible] the four halves thus obtained [illegible] as many forks, inclined [illegible] sides of the corks [illegible] at a little less than a [illegible]

Place these four corks [illegible] of the plate at equal [illegible] one another and see [illegible] of the forks are in contact [illegible] rim to prevent their [illegible] so many pendulums.

[illegible] system we have now [illegible] capable of being balanced [illegible] to speak, upon the point [illegible] whose eye end is buried [illegible] an upright bottle. With [illegible] to prevent the plate slipping [illegible] even cause it safely to [illegible] fair rate of speed, which, [illegible] set in motion, will continue [illegible] long while, because the [illegible] the point of contact is [illegible] ing.—"Magical Experiments."

If Says "Baff."

[illegible] game in which no one is [illegible] smile and laugh. All the [illegible] one sit in a row or half [illegible] es out of the room and return [illegible] stick or poker in his hand [illegible] and solemn face. He is [illegible] ave just returned from a [illegible]

[illegible] player asks him, "Where [illegible] from?"

[illegible] ks, "Did he say anything [illegible]

[illegible] he reply is:

[illegible] his staff,
[illegible] her to smile nor to laugh,
[illegible] to you all his men,
[illegible] to you again,
[illegible] laughs nor smiles
[illegible] your cunning wiles,
[illegible] face with a very good
[illegible] staff to the very next

[illegible] repeat all this without [illegible] delivers his staff to some [illegible] takes his seat, but if he [illegible] n smiles he pays a forfeit [illegible] ying it up.

Squirrels Are Red.

[illegible] ld, there was a squirrel [illegible] ke its home, and he used [illegible] find fault with everything. [illegible] a squirrel had long gray [illegible] was so wise, besides [illegible] uld shake his whiskers [illegible] ld to the squirrel: "My [illegible] do not like your home [illegible] e sensible things any [illegible] you could do—leave it or [illegible] uilt yourself to it. Any [illegible] would help you in your [illegible]

[illegible] e squirrel said: "Oh, I [illegible] to do any of those. I [illegible] sit on the branch of a [illegible]"

[illegible] the papa squirrel, "if [illegible] hat, whenever you want [illegible] go out on a branch and [illegible] some one you do not [illegible]

[illegible] squirrel blushed so much [illegible] a red squirrel, and you [illegible] it to this day red squirrels [illegible] at thing.—Farm Press.

Frigga.

[illegible] whom Friday is derived [illegible] a god or a goddess, ac[illegible] e and country. As a [illegible] great hunter and warrior [illegible] presented with a drawn [illegible] and and a bow in the [illegible] Scandinavian countries [illegible] led the "Venus of the [illegible] sixth day of the week [illegible] to her worship.

The Secret of Y

[illegible] you ever wonder how you can [illegible] r women older than you, look you[illegible] secret can be put in a few [illegible] th, and you will preserve your [illegible] health" we mean not alone [illegible] lth, as, sometimes, magnificent [illegible] re nervous wrecks.

[illegible] whether you are weak physica[illegible] a tonic, and the best tonic for [illegible] ilds strength for the physical and [illegible] at flesh on your bones and vitality [illegible]

ke CARD

The Woman's To

[illegible] mother," writes Mrs. Z. L. A[illegible] n., "is 44 years old and is pa[illegible] life. [illegible] was irregular and bloated and [illegible] stepped over to the store and [illegible] which she took according to di[illegible] able to do her housework and [illegible] woman." Try Cardui in your [illegible]

Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine [illegible] tions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment [illegible]

DAMES

Marie Mon[illegible] university s[illegible] most intelle[illegible]

Miss Ho[illegible] daughter ha[illegible] equipment [illegible] make her [illegible]

When A[illegible] teacher of [illegible] by the doctor [illegible] conferred [illegible] government.

Mrs. W[illegible] bought [illegible] built a [illegible] her [illegible] it and [illegible] person [illegible]

Miss Hel[illegible] dent of [illegible] Rutgers [illegible] American [illegible] read [illegible] dent [illegible] have [illegible] specialty [illegible] of Mrs. [illegible]

[illegible] difficult [illegible] branch [illegible] age the [illegible] compare [illegible] ther have [illegible] dently [illegible] of the late [illegible] York and [illegible] of New Yor[illegible]

Prog

A new s[illegible] tone photog[illegible] ressful oper[illegible] Manchester[illegible]

In the [illegible] feet a minu[illegible] standard ra[illegible] machine. [illegible] may be con[illegible]

A steam [illegible] use at Nap[illegible] cubic meter[illegible] weighing [illegible] horsepower [illegible] hard as iron [illegible] buckets, [illegible] In 1850 [illegible] the list of [illegible] ing nations [illegible] dom, France [illegible] ed States [illegible] stand at the [illegible] ufactured g[illegible] other great [illegible]

Sp

The Buf[illegible] 000 clubhou[illegible]

The Univ[illegible] to go in for [illegible] fall.

Hello, Phi[illegible] pin league [illegible] team clubs [illegible]

For $5 ten[illegible] take airship [illegible] to Potsdam [illegible]

The open[illegible] ship has nev[illegible] ican born g[illegible]

The Yorks[illegible] land has [illegible] trout to st[illegible]

Geers, M[illegible] Shank were [illegible] money at ev[illegible] last year.

To execute [illegible] need a hard [illegible] china plate [illegible] periment is [illegible] the egg. In [illegible] while it is [illegible]

Place the [illegible] table to be [illegible] with your h[illegible] center of s[illegible] thumb of th[illegible] finger of the [illegible] of the egg. [illegible] long it to tur[illegible] The egg will [illegible] end. Then [illegible] all you have [illegible] motion, whic[illegible]

DIANS.

Used to ADLEY.

ALORE

Coun-

A BIT OF DIPLO

An English Official Who ted a French Ad

HOW PERIM ISLAND

The Interesting Story That ... a White House on the ... the Arabian Coast at the ... Entrance to the Red Sea.

On the foreshore of the ... coast in the vilait of Baba... at the southern entrance to ... sea, stands a large white ... conning which the travelers to ... east may hear a curious story. ... middle of the nineteenth ... when M de Lesseps after ... culties had successfully ... Suez Canal company, the ... the British port of Aden, ... miles distant, was surprised ... ing by the visit of a French ... of very unusual size for that ... the orient, which, having ... a terrific storm off Somotra, ... in for repairs.

In the mind of the governor ... was at once aroused as to the ... tion of so large a command, a ... which increased as he found it ... sible to extract any further ... tion from the French admiral ... officers beyond the statement ... they were upon an ordinary ... explanation which the former ... the least inclined to believe.

Firm in the belief, therefore, ... some political move of great ... tance was afloat, if not afoot, ... ernor, in order first of all to ga... gave orders to go very tortoise... the repairs and then set to ... take the Frenchmen off their g... giving a succession of such en... ments as both his slender ... the awful barrenness of the ... would afford.

But though at the end of two ... the French and British officers ... upon the best of terms, the ... destination of the French s... remained as much of a myst... the governor of Aden as before. ... In spite of all possible delay ... pairs were nearly completed.

Now, it happened that the ... the governor possessed an Iris... who had been receiving at... from one of the French petty ... attentions which the girl did ... gard seriously. It occurred to ... ernor that by such means so... might be learned of his une... visitor's plans, and a private ... sation between the governor ... and her maid resulted in anot... tween the latter and her Fre... mirer, by which it was dis... that Perim island was the ... point.

At this information the g... opened his eyes wide indeed. ... the Suez canal were cut throu... rim, as commanding the south... trance to the Red sea, in the ... of the strait of Bab-el-Mandeb, ... be a place of great strategic ... tance, over which, without d... was the intention of the Fre... miral to hoist the tricolor.

Secretly giving orders, therefo... a gunboat to immediately em... detachment of soldiers and ste... in the night for Perim island, t... ernor then announced a farewe... quet and ball for the day but o... lowing, a final act of courtes... which the French admiral wou... ingly have dispensed, for he w... lous to sail, but which he co... well refuse on account of the ... had made of the British suppli... machinery at Aden.

So the dinner and party ... course came off, the governor b... high spirits, because in the m... he had received the news of th... pation of Perim, which under t... cumstances would surely be f... by the longed for promotion, ... French admiral was equally ... for he hoped on the morrow ... the same important little speck ... to the dominion of his own c... thereby covering his breast w... stars and himself with maritim...

Next day, after an interchan... cordial farewells, the French sq... sailed away to an apparently un... destination, until, when clear ... land, the course was laid full sp... rect for Perim island.

Then what were the dismay a... appointment of the French a... and his officers when, on com... sight of their destination, they ... the British flag flying and a co... of soldiers drawn up to give t... proper salute. It is said the ... admiral was so mortified at bei... outwitted that he first flung hi... ed hat overboard and then follo... himself into the sea.

Be this as it may, as Perim ... clearly already occupied by th... ish, the only counter move wi... French could make was to tak... session of a strip of the forego... the opposite Arabian coast, ... they built the fortified white h... question, but as the place was ... at the mercy of the guns on Pe... land it was shortly abandoned, ... main to this day as a monume... French admiral's undoing.—Ki...

In Honor of Minerva.

The most notable festival at ... was in honor of Minerva. All ... of citizens on this particula... marched in procession. The ... went first, then the young ma... the children, the young wom... matrons and the people of the ... orders. The most prominent ... the parade was a ship propel... hidden machinery and bearing ... masthead the sacred banner ... goddess.

THE CHILDREN

Balancing Trick.

... has seen the jugglers in ... balancing plates and even ... a pointed stick. For the ... the plates they use are ... of metal, and their equi... due to centrifugal force. ... fall just as soon as the ... too weak to overcome the ... ity.

... is a way to balance a ... on the point of a needle ... cause it steadily to spin ... delicate support. ... ade of corks down the mid... the long axes, and in the ... of the four halves thus ob... as many forks, inclined ... both sides of the corks you ... out at a little less than a ... Place these four corks ... rim of the plate at equal ... from one another and see ... th of the forks are in con... the rim to prevent their ... so many pendulums. ... system we have now con... capable of being balanced, ... so to speak, upon the point ... whose eye end is buried ... of an upright bottle. With ... to prevent the plate slip... may even cause it safely to ... fair rate of speed, which, ... set in motion, will con... a long while, because the ... the point of contact is ... thing.—"Magical Experi...

...ff Says "Baff."

... game in which no one is ... smile and laugh. All the ... t one sit in a row or half ... es out of the room and re... stick or poker in his hand ... and solemn face. He is ... have just returned from a ... player asks him, "Where ... from?" ... ks, "Did he say anything ... the reply is: ... this staff, ... ther to smile nor to laugh. ... to you all his men, ... to you again, ... r laughs nor smiles ... your cunning wiles, ... his face with a very good ... staff to the very next ... repeat all this without ... delivers his staff to some ... takes his seat, but if he ... en smiles he pays a for... ... giving it up.

...e Squirrels Are Red.

... said, there was a squirrel ... like its home, and he used ... find fault with every... ...pa squirrel had long gray ... was so wise, besides ... ould shake his whiskers ... said to the squirrel: "My ... do not like your home ... ree sensible things any ... you could do—leave it or ... suit yourself to it. Any ... would help you in your ... tle squirrel said: "Oh, I ... to do any of those. I ... sit on the branch of a ..." ... the papa squirrel, "if ... that, whenever you want ... go out on a branch and ... some one you do not ... squirrel blushed so much ... a red squirrel, and you ... at to this day red squir... ...at thing.—Farm Press.

Frigga.

... whom Friday is deriv... a god or a goddess, ac... ...e and country. As a ... great hunter and war... ...presented with a drawn ... hand and a bow in the ... Scandinavian countries ...lled the "Venus of the ...e sixth day of the week ...d to her worship.

The Secret of Youth

...you ever wonder how you can remain young, of ...er women older than you, look younger than you do? ... secret can be put in a few words: "Preserve ...lth, and you will preserve your youth." ..."health" we mean not alone physical health, but ...alth, as, sometimes, magnificently strong-looking ...re nervous wrecks. ...whether you are weak physically or nervously, ...d a tonic, and the best tonic for you is Cardui. ...uilds strength for the physical and nervous systems. ...put flesh on your bones and vitality into your nerves.

...ke CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

... mother," writes Mrs. Z. L. Adcock, of Smith... ...nn., "is 44 years old and is passing through the ...f life. ... was irregular and bloated and suffered terribly. ...r stepped over to the store and got her a bottle ..., which she took according to directions and now ..., able to do her housework and says she feels ...w woman." Try Cardui in your own case.

Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., ...ructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent free.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Marie Montessori, a lecturer in the university at Rome, is said to be the most intellectual woman in Europe.

Miss Helen Taft, the president's daughter, has the credit of being an excellent cook and of being able to make her own clothes.

Miss Anna Dreyfus of Chicago, a teacher of French, has been honored by the decoration of officer d'academie, conferred upon her by the French government.

Mrs. W. Eames Colburn, wife of the head of a Chicago banking firm, has built a modern seven room house for her thirty-five prize cats. The house is fitted up with brass beds, silk draperies and lace curtains.

Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch, president of the Equality League For Self Supporting Women, is not yet an American citizen, because she married an Englishman. She has determined, however, to be naturalized in due form, though she would prefer to have congress make her a citizen by special act, as was done in the case of Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris.

Lady Greville is one of the latest additions to England's long list of American bearers of titles. Only a year ago the new Lord Greville was a younger son, but his brother and father have died since, the brother suddenly. Lady Greville is a daughter of the late John W. Grace of New York and the widow of Hugh S. Kerr of New York, who died in 1907.

Progress and Labor.

A new system of telegraphing half tone photographs is said to be in successful operation between London and Manchester, England.

In the nineteenth century twenty feet a minute was regarded as a good standard rate of cutting for a planing machine. Today forty feet a minute may be considered the standard.

A steam dredge made in Holland for use at Nantes digs and carries off 500 cubic meters an hour. A swivel knife weighing tons and driven by a 300 horsepower machine cuts out clay as hard as iron, to be scooped up by the buckets, which hold two tons each.

In 1800 we stood at the bottom of the list of the four great manufacturing nations—namely, the United Kingdom, France, Germany and the United States. Forty-nine years later we stand at the head of the list, our manufactured product equaling that of the other great nations combined.

Sporting Notes.

The Buffalo Yacht club plans a $15,000 clubhouse.

The University of Pennsylvania is to go in for indoor track racing next fall.

Iloilo, Philippine Islands, has a ten-pin league made up of eight five man team clubs.

For $5 Germans may soon be able to take airship excursions from Berlin to Potsdam.

The open American golf championship has never been won by an American born golfer, it is said.

The Yorkshire fishing board of England has distributed 6,100 yearling trout to angling clubs there.

Geers, Murphy, Cox, Snow and Shank were the only drivers to win money at every grand circuit meeting last year.

A Dancing Egg.

To execute this little experiment you need a hard boiled egg and a smooth china plate. To be sure that the experiment is going to be successful keep the egg in a perpendicular position while it is being boiled.

Place the plate upside down on the table to be able to catch it quickly with your hand. Place the egg in the center of the plate and, putting the thumb of the left hand and the index finger of the right hand on both ends of the egg, give it a sudden twirl, causing it to turn around in quick motion. The egg will gradually stand on one end. Then you pick up the plate, and all you have to do is to keep the egg in motion, which is not difficult.

Woman's World

MRS. MORSE IN WALL STREET

Working For Husband, Who Is Serving Prison Sentence.

Mrs. Charles W. Morse, wife of the convicted ex-ice king and bank president, has entered Wall street with the purpose of rebuilding the shattered fortunes of her husband and obtaining a pardon for him. She recently opened an office at 45 Exchange place, New York city, to take charge of the convicted financier's involved business affairs.

Mrs. Morse had intended to rent a cottage near the federal prison in Atlanta that she might be able to visit her husband as often as possible, but on seeing him in prison garb she changed her mind. The sight of his humiliation so possessed her with the desire to work for his freedom and the rehabilitation of his fortunes that she returned to New York.

MRS. CHARLES W. MORSE.

As if the associations of her husband's former financial triumphs would stimulate her, Mrs. Morse has made her business headquarters in the building which the little financier had constructed for the home office of his many great enterprises.

On its ground floor, for example, are the onyx columned, bronzed railed counting rooms of the National Bank of North America, head of the chain of banks which Morse established and which all collapsed with his downfall. In addition to assuming the burden of her husband's large business interests, Mrs. Morse is circulating petitions addressed to President Taft asking for the pardon of the ex-ice king.

In her work she is ably assisted by Miss Katherine Wilson, formerly confidential secretary and stenographer to Mr. Morse.

Use of the New Hairpin.

For the fashionable swirl, mop or turban style of hairdressing, called respectively by one or all of these names, come the new square hairpins. They not only serve to keep the braid in place that winds about the head,

AN ATTRACTIVE DISPOSAL OF THE SQUARE HAIRPIN.

but they are decidedly decorative. These pins are generally of tortoise shell, but other materials are employed for their makeup. Another pretty device for the new hairdressing is the fillet of tortoise shell with side comb attachments.

Old Style Bouquets.

Bridesmaids and debutantes are carrying the formal bouquets which their grandmothers gloried in when they were girls. These bouquets call for a mixture of blossoms and for long ends of ribbon or tulle or both, often with little clusters of the flowers knotted in with the ribbon. A florist says that fully half the debutantes and brides whom he has supplied with flowers at their weddings and coming out receptions this season have selected this kind. A bouquet used for a reception had cream colored rosebuds massed in the center, white narcissuses around those, a narrow edge of violets around the narcissuses and a fine feathery white flower next the violets. Then came a row of purple orchids, a row of lilies of the valley bordered by maidenhair fern and looped green pink tulle and white lace paper. Ends of pink satin ribbon and tulle fell from the bouquet.

ONLY A COUNTRY BOY

She was a very little girl, with hair like spun gold, big brown eyes and a red mouth like a wax doll's. She stood in the little arbor as James came up the road, and he thought he had never seen anything so beautiful. He noticed that she was little and slender, too; that her clothes were dainty and her hands white. As he came nearer she stepped out from the arbor and asked, with a little curl of her lip:

"Are you my cousin James Crevley?"

He was only a country boy and so stood and stared in amazement. Then he ejaculated:

"Me? Yes. Your cousin? No!"

"But you must be," persisted the girl. "They said I would see you, and," she added, with a glance which took in every detail of James' costume from the bare feet to the "hickory" shirt, "they said you were a handsome lad." And with that she sniffed a disdainful little sniff and walked stiffly toward the house.

Jim stood looking after her, a flush mantling the freckled cheeks and the white forehead under the red hair. He saw the white dress vanish as she turned the corner of the house, and he walked on. He reached the barn just as Mary had finished milking the cows. "Don't you know there's company?" she asked as she swung the milk pail around to see the bubbles dance. "And they're going to stay for a week, and you ought to be dressed."

A week! Jim's heart would have sunk into his boots had he worn any. As it was it seemed to go up into his throat and stick there in a big lump. He went around the yard, shutting the chickens into the henhouse and putting the farm tools away. Then he went to the house. His mother met him at the door and gave him a list of directions which made his head spin. The result was he came down to supper looking like a city boy. But the freckles and red hair were still there.

As the days went by the color came into the white cheeks of the little golden haired girl, and when her mother had to go back to the city she decided to leave her to stay another week or so. Jim felt that the cows were ugly now, the horses were slow, the fields of wheat and timothy and the wild roses that grew in the hedges were all dull and drab. He could only find sunshine when little Nell was with him. She hated a boy with dirty hands, who couldn't dance and who was awkward and stupid.

One morning she started out for a long walk. Jim saw her as she went out the gate. She had a long piece of white thread in her hand and carried three pins in her mouth. "Fishin'," said Jim.

She had heard her uncle say that there were plenty of fish in the Dee brook if people were not too lazy to catch them. She would catch some, then Jim would see that a city girl could do more than a country boy. Her proud little nose turned up at the very mention of the name.

The brook was soon reached, and Nellie sat down and threw her line as far out as she could. She watched the hook float a moment and then disappear. She listened to the chirp of the birds in the trees along the bank. She saw the sunlight glimmer through the leaves, and she became drowsy.

Suddenly she started up. Her line had slipped from her hand and was floating in the water almost beyond her reach. She leaned over and by a supreme effort caught it, but could not pull it in. One end was caught fast under a stone in the middle of the brook. She thought of the fish she meant to catch and gave two or three hard tugs. There was a jerk, the string broke, her feet slid on the slippery bank, and the next moment the little girl was struggling in the water, and the water closed above the golden head, leaving ever widening circles shimmering on the surface of the brook.

There was a great rustling among the bushes, a white face and a crown of red hair appeared for a second, and then both had plunged into the water. Nell felt her hair being pulled very hard. She wondered afterward why it took her breath away and why she was so—so sleepy.

When Jim made his appearance at the farmyard with his clothes wringing wet, his hair standing on end and the little bundle of moans in his arms Mrs. Farmer all but had hysterics. She said he was a brave boy when he told the story, but knowing how to swim and giving one's life up for another were quite usual for her boys. The next day Nell was to go home. She came out to the barn where Jim was watering the cows and stood lovingly caressing the velvet nose of the spotted calf.

"I am going away, Jim," she said shyly, "and I came to thank you for saving my life."

She looked at him over the calf's head and smiled sweetly. Jim flushed. He stammered something about not having done anything extraordinary.

"But you know I would have died, wouldn't I, if you hadn't come?"

"Mebbe," said Jim.

"Mamma would have been very sorry," continued Nell in her soft little voice.

"So would I," Jim managed to say.

"And no city boy could have done it," she continued, still patting the "bossy's" head with her little hand.

"Pooh!" announced Jim.

She looked up. "I want you to come and see us—to come home with me now. Mamma said so," she said.

And they have been good friends ever since, though he is only a country boy.

FATHER 80-MOTHER 76

The aged father and mother of a prominent Boston lawyer safely carried through the last two winters by

Vinol

The son says: "My father and mother owe their present strength and good health to Vinol. During the last two trying winters neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of."

We want every feeble old person in this town to try Vinol. We will return their money without question if it does not accomplish all we claim for it.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

Montgomery Advertiser Contest

$10,560 IN PRIZES

Nomination Coupon

When properly filled out and sent to the Contest Manager of The Montgomery Advertiser it is good for

1,000 Votes

You may nominate yourself or friend. Write legibly. When coupon is sent in application should be made for subscription book and further particulars.

I hereby nominate

Mr., Mrs. or Miss.....

Street.....

Town or City.....County.....

As a Candidate in The Montgomery Advertiser's Contest.

Signed.....

Address.....

Profession.....Date.....

This Nomination Counts 1,000 Votes

Only one nomination to be credited to each contestant. Under no circumstances will the nominator's name be divulged.

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps

Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades,

Crockery, Glass and

Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies
We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

THE BANNER

FRANK CRIGHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain.
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw.
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR CIRCUIT SOLICITOR.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. LOYD TATE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Solicitor of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, including the counties of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

D. D. ASKEW.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Sheriff of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

LEE HAYES.

AT this particular time it is interesting to note the possibilities of the campaign, more especially in relation to Chilton county. The State is so emphatically Democratic there is not the remotest doubt but that every one of the State officials will be Democrats, whichever of the contending factions may gain the victory.

But as Chilton is one of the very few counties that have gone astray of late years from the Democratic party, the present time is opportune to review the general situation as to county affairs. The recent addition to the voting strength of the county, caused largely by the payment of back poll tax, puts a new element which must be reckoned with.

At the general election, in 1904, there was less than a hundred majority in favor of the Republicans. If we reckon the three hundred (in round numbers) of back poll tax payers as new voters, how are they going to vote—Democrat or Republican? It has generally been considered that a majority of those entitled to vote, but who had neglected to do so, were Democrats and if this should prove to be the case, it would considerably add to the strength of the party in the county, so much so that we believe it would give us a majority.

The late campaign opened up a new era, put the voters to thinking as never before, and made possible a new alignment.

What will be the outcome in Chilton? It is worth studying.

HON. Chas. Greer, of Marion, is a candidate for Secretary of State, and we sincerely hope he will be duly elected. Not that we have anything against his opponent, but because we know Mr. Greer to be a right good man for the position, one who would faithfully and honestly serve the people. We respectfully invite your attention to Mr. Greer's candidacy and urge you to vote for him.

As might have been expected the race for the governorship has narrowed down to a straight run between two candidates—Emmett O'Neal, the champion of the anti-amendists, and Col. Mallory, who favored the amendment.

Between these two our choice is most certainly for O'Neal, the broad-minded patriotic statesman, upon whom all may rely for a good, honest administration, and we have no fear but that he will be the next governor of Alabama.

We expect some interesting developments in the political affairs of Chilton county very shortly.

CAPTAIN WHITE'S VIEW POINT.

The point of view is important Capt. Frank S. White, speaking from his point of view, thinks Senator Bankhead should be rotated out of the Senate just as he has secured a place on the committee of commerce which will enable him to secure appropriations for Alabama's harbor and rivers. This is the way the matter looks from Capt. White's point of view.

But the point of view of the people of Alabama is wholly different. They want in the Senate the man who can serve them best—who can secure the largest appropriations and the greatest benefits. John H. Bankhead can make a set speech if the occasion demands one, but he much prefers to work in the committee rooms for the people of Alabama, and all know what he has accomplished. It was he who began the work for the opening of the Warrior and if he is kept in the Senate he will open every navigable river in this State.

Does Captain White claim that he could, if elected, secure a place on the committee on commerce? He could not do so in many years of service, if at all.

In assailing Mr. Bankhead's length of service, Captain White has made a mistake, for the other people of Alabama have not the same viewpoint that Captain White has at present.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

CHAS. H. GREER FOR SECRETARY OF STATE

For more than 25 years the office of Secretary of State has been filled by newspaper men, and always creditably.

Members of the press have asked me to become a candidate at this time, and after consulting with many of the editors and other friends, I have decided to ask the people of the state to elect me to the office.

For more than twenty years I have been a regular and active party worker, and with pen and voice have supported loyally the democratic nominees.

The press has received small reward for its tremendous work for the upbuilding of the state. This one office has been assigned to the newspaper men by common consent, and I as a democrat and an editor ask for the office for one term only.

I was a member of the constitutional convention that made our present constitution, and live in a county that has not had a state office for many years.

If the press has another choice rather than myself I will cheerfully withdraw and give that man my hearty support, for I look on the office as a place assigned to the press, as a partial recognition of their incessant and gratuitious labor for not only the party but for the general upbuilding of the state.

Very truly,
CHAS. H. GREER.

A Bad Boy's Bait.

"Why is Jimmie Jinks so willing to let his mother cut his hair?"

"It leads the other boys on to make fun of him, and when he whips them he can say they started it."—Washington Star.

Cost of Living.

The price of beef, like the famous cow,
Will jump o'er the moon some day,
And the tariff on milk will take a leap Clear up to the Milky way.
—Chicago Tribune.

The Usual Expression.

"How do these star convicted criminals attempt to excuse their delinquencies?"

"In the usual way. They say usually 'Pardon me.'"—Baltimore American.

Nature makes the cures after all.

Now and then she gets into a tight place and needs helping out.

Things get started in the wrong direction.

Something is needed to check disease and start the system in the right direction toward health.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with hypophosphites can do just this.

It strengthens the nerves, feeds famished tissues, and makes rich blood.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send No., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York

Hampton School House.

The farmers of this community have began planning for this year's crop.

We have reorganized our Sunday school at this place. All seem to be interested in this work; we don't intend for our Sunday school to go down, and we are going to strive to make it the best school in Autauga. Our prayermeeting will start real soon, we think; we hope all will join us in our work for the Master.

There is a great deal of sickness in this part of this community; we are glad to report the sick ones better.

The people here have been busy building the 'phone lines and putting in the 'phones.

Mr. Wade Hampton is a pleasant visitor here this week.

Miss Genevia Barbour will visit friends near Pletcher next Saturday and Sunday.

There seems to be great attraction down the road for Mr. J. B. Champion.

Some of the Chilton county boys are welcome visitors here. Mr. Forney Huett and Mr. Omer Gray seem to be much interested in the Sunday school at this place. Perhaps there is an attraction for them down here, too.

Misses Genevia Barbour and Bessie Carwile visited Mrs. Johnson near White Pond, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Williams visited relatives at this place last Sunday.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Hunter's broken arm is improving.

Mr. J. Z. Carwile visited friends near Billingsley last Saturday.

TWO GUMPS.

MARRIED.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Robinson, near Clanton, Mr. Walter Calloway of Wetumpka and their daughter, Miss Viola, were happily married, Feb. 14, many friends being present. The decoration was beautiful in green and white, the bride being beautifully gowned in blue bongaline silk with point lace and carried ferns and carnations. The bride's maid being from Talladega, wore pink silk and carried ferns and roses; the brother of the groom being best man. Their many friends wish them a long and happy life.

The Advertiser's Contest.

Great interest has been created in this county by the recent announcement of The Montgomery Advertiser that it would give away to popular and energetic people in Alabama and Florida more than $10,000 in prizes. Automobiles, pianos, diamonds, bank accounts are included among the prizes offered, and these gifts are to be awarded, absolutely free to the person receiving the highest number of votes in the popularity contest that The Advertiser has inaugurated.

Any white person of good character man or woman, boy or girl, is eligible to compete for the prizes, and there are no obligations upon entering. The persons receiving the highest number of votes will be awarded the gifts. Votes are obtained by clipping and sending in the ballots that appear each day in The Advertiser and by securing prepaid subscriptions, either old or new to the paper.

At least six prizes, comprising a $400 piano, a $150 diamond ring, a $100 bank account, a $100 furniture outfit, a $50 Turkish rocker, and a $45 graphaphone, must be awarded in this district, no matter what may be the vote of contestants in other districts. And every person who enters from this district has an equal show to win one of the three automobiles which are known as grand prizes and will be awarded regardless of district lines.

The contest is just starting and "nominations" are open. Bright, wideawake persons of this section appear to have before them an unusual opportunity to be handsomely rewarded for a few weeks' pleasant work among friends.

It is a simple matter to enter the contest. In this paper will be found a nomination coupon. You may nominate yourself or friend. Fill in the coupon as it directs, and mail it to the Contest Department of The Advertiser. When subscription books and full particular will be sent.

Several of the handsome prizes should come to this county, where The Advertiser has many friend and readers.

Cured After Suffering Two Years.

Mr. E. E. Norton, of East Point, Ga., writes: "I have used one bottle of your U RA-CURA and it did me much good. I can't find it in Atlanta, so I write you to see what you will send me two bottles for. I have been down two years and U-RA-CURA has done me more good than all the doctors for Kidney and Bladder troubles." Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Booklet sent free. Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Marbury.

The mill has begun operations; there are about two hundred men employed.

Mr. Vernon of Birmingham visited relations here last week.

W. E. Price went to Montgomery last week and stood an examination to practice law before the State board of law examiners.

Rev. Robert Jones preached two good sermons at the Baptist church Sunday.

X.

Prattville.

Editor Banner—Will you please allow me a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words from this place?

The death angel visited the home of Mr. Jim Rice and took away his loving wife. She left a host of friends to mourn her loss. Weep not, dear friends, she is only sleeping.

Our Sunday school is going on nicely; our superintendent has been absent two Sundays, but hope to have him with us next Sunday.

Well, I had better keep my mouth shut about stock law for fear I might get my ears scratched. Some people write in the Banner about stock law, but I think they would have been better off if they had never heard tell of stock law.

Say, Aunt Dinah, you must write again, we are getting anxious to hear from you.

The cotton mills at this place are running on full time.

Miss Essie Harrison and Mr. Harry Johnson were married recently; we wish them a long and happy life.

ONE COUSIN.

IN MEMORIAM.

On Feb. 5th the death angel visited the home of our grandfather, Mr. W. M. Lambert, and wafted the gentle spirit of his loving wife to the great beyond. She was sick only eight days when the Lord saw fit to call her from this world of sorrow to that sweet home above. She was a loving wife and a kind mother and grandmother and a friend to all. She leaves a husband, one daughter, one stepson and two stepdaughters and a host of grandchildren and friends to mourn her loss, but we feel sure our loss is heaven's gain. She was 64 years of age. She was laid to rest in the Mountain Springs cemetery Sunday afternoon, Rev. Will Cox making a talk over her remains at the grave, and will preach her funeral the fifth Sunday in May at Cane Creek, where her membership is.

Dear grandfather, we don't feel that we could say a word to ease your aching heart or fill the vacancy of this dear one, we can only point you to the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and ask you to be ready to meet dear grandma in that sweet home, as she oftentimes asked you to do.

Her loving grand-daughter,
ROSIE LAMBERT.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all druggists.

Railway Mail Clerks Wanted

The Government pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1200, and other employees up to $2,500 annually.

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks and other government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in city or country can get instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 11 Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y.

FARMERS UNION

The Chilton County Farmers' Union will meet with Providence Local No. 215, 7 miles east of Clanton, on Monday and Tuesday, March 14-15, 1910.

Public speaking first day by State Lecturer, O. P. Ford, Hon. J. A. Wilkinson and a man from the Georgia division of the Farmers' Union.

Let me urge that every farmer who is interested in more scientific methods of agriculture and farm life in general, attend this meeting. Delegates and others coming by rail to Clanton will be met by conveyances if they will notify Bro. W. H. Robinson, Clanton, Route 1, five days in advance.

Yours for business,
J. M. SMITH, County Sec.

Subscribe for The Banner.

Are You Honest?

With your land when for the sake of saving a few dollars you use a fertilizer whose only recommendation is its analysis. It requires no special knowledge to mix materials to analyses. The value of a fertilizer lies in the materials used, so as not to over feed the plant at one time and starve at another. This is why Royster brands are so popular. Every ingredient has its particular work to do. Twenty-five years experience in making goods for Southern crops has enabled us to know what is required.

See that trade mark is on every bag

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO

CLANTON, ALA.

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Is one of the latest additions to Clanton's business center, and one of the most attractive and commodious places of its kind in town, situated on southeast corner of the square. They invite you to call on them when in town and make their store your headquarters. Their stock of Millinery is complete; their Trimmer from St. Louis is right up to date. If its quality, style and prices you are looking for, their store is the place for you. Mrs. Clara Mullins is general manager, and will be glad to wait on you.

C. R. Mullins will continue his same old business, of Fire Insurance, Life Insurance, Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs, in the new Company's store. He thanks you for past favors and solicits your future business.

Yours truly,
THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

NEW FEED STORE

At Goodgame's Old Stand, near Lowe's Shop

Handle Loose Hulls, Sacked Hulls, also a [illegible] quality of Cotton Seed Meal, Corn, and Hay

I also buy Scrap Iron, Hides, Green and Green Salted and Flint Hides.

BEST PRICES BOTH WAYS

CALL AND SEE ME
N. B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER O[illegible]

TOWN ITEMS.

Commissioners' court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July, second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART
Price to-day..... 14½ @ 14½c
" same date last year 9½ @ 10c
No. Bales received to date
Warehouse receipts to 5 p.m. Wednesday.... [illegible]

FOR SALE— One two story dwelling, convenient to School and church. Fine water. Lot [illegible] 430 feet. Apply to J. R. M[illegible] Clanton, Ala.

Mr. J. P. Rasberry returned to his home in Argenta, Ark., this week after a pleasant visit to friends here.

Mr. W. D. Horsley of Jemison gave us a pleasant call Monday.

Mr. F. A. Gulledge of Verbena was in town Monday.

Mr. Howard Roper of Maplesville was a visitor here Saturday.

Mr. A. J. Tyus of Route 3 was in town Saturday.

Mr. C. B. Cox of Route 5 was amongst our welcome visitors Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Dennis of Montgomery spent Sunday with the Doctor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Dennis.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McDaniel of the Capital City spent Sunday in Clanton.

Watch out for the spring opening of the Clanton Millinery Co. Early in March which will appear in this paper. This display will be something worth seeing.

Mr. Gilvey McKee of Carbon Hill is spending a few days here with relatives.

Spigener's cash store the place to buy shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced price in order to make room for spring and summer line.

Yours Truly,
W. D. SPIGENER.

Miss Mary Williamson of Verbena spent Tuesday with friends in Clanton.

The valentine entertainment given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hopkins, Monday night, under the auspices of the Methodist Ladies Aid Society, was a decided success, both financially and socially.

The first quarterly conference of Clanton charge, M. E. church, South, held at the Methodist church Wednesday, Rev. J. B. Cumming, P. E., presiding.

Mrs. Belle George was called to Birmingham Sunday morning, to the bedside of her son, Mr. Ousley Johnson, who was shot and seriously wounded Saturday night by the accidental discharge of a pistol.

Mr. R. J. Mitchell, of Maplesville, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Fannie Smitherman.

Mrs. Fannie Smitherman and Miss Minnie Muse visited Montgomery Thursday.

Mr. J. B. Hicks visited the capital city Thursday.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

Mr. W. T. Lawrence, of Plantersville, was a visitor here last week.

Miss Emma Sheppard, of Selma, is visiting her brother, Mr. Will Sheppard.

Mrs. W. I. Mullins visited Montgomery Monday.

Mrs. J. Watts Moore and Mrs. Nell Mullins visited Mount Creek Tuesday.

Mrs. Heath visited Thorsby Thursday.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. J. E. Easterling and Miss Rosa A. Askew, Mr. D. H. Hall and Mrs. Mary Pierce, Mr. Jno. Calloway and Miss Viola Johnson; Mr. J. T. Ellison and Miss Fannie Horton; Mr. Fred Hall and Miss Ary Pinkie Hayes; Mr. W. E. Nix and Miss Lula Cotton.

Colored: Jim Wright and Lizzie Latimer.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is a safe and certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all druggists.

TOWN ITEMS.

Commissioners' court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART.
Price to day.....14½ @ 14¾c
" same date last year 9½ @ 10c
No. Bales received to date
Warehouse receipts
to 5 p.m. Wednesday.... 5910

FOR SALE— One two-story dwelling, convenient to School and church. Fine water. Lot 156 by 430 feet. Apply to J. R. MULLINS, Clanton, Ala.

Mr. J. P. Rasberry returned to his home in Argenta, Ark., this week after a pleasant visit to friends here.

Mr. W. D. Horsley of Jemison gave us a pleasant call Monday.

Mr. F. A. Gulledge of Verbena was in town Monday.

Mr. Howard Roper of Maplesville was a visitor here Saturday.

Mr. A. J. Tyus of Route 3 was in town Saturday.

Mr. C. B. Cox of Route 5 was amongst our welcome visitors Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Dennis of Montgomery spent Sunday with the Doctor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Dennis.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McDaniel of the Capital City spent Sunday in Clanton.

Watch out for the spring opening of the Clanton Millinery Co. Early in March which will appear in this paper. This display will be something worth seeing.

Mr. Gilvey McKee of Carbon Hill is spending a few days here with relatives.

Spigener's cash store the place to buy shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced price in order to make room for spring and summer line.
Yours Truly,
W. D. SPIGENER.

Miss Mary Williamson of Verbena spent Tuesday with friends in Clanton.

The valentine entertainment given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hopkins, Monday night, under the auspices of the Methodist Ladies Aid Society, was a decided success, both financially and socially

The first quarterly conference of Clanton charge, M. E. church, was held at the Methodist church Wednesday, Rev. J. B. Cumming, P. E., presiding.

Mrs. Belle George was called to Birmingham Sunday morning of the bedside of her son, Mr. J. Ousley Johnson, who was shot and seriously wounded Saturday night by the accidental discharge of a pistol.

Mr. R J. Mitchell, of Maplesville, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Fannie Smitherman.

Mrs. Fannie Smitherman and Miss Minnie Muse visited Montgomery Thursday.

Mr. J. B. Hicks visited the capital city Thursday.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

Mr. W. T. Lawrence, of Planterville, was a visitor here last week.

Miss Emma Sheppard, of Fayette is visiting her brother, Mr. Joe Sheppard.

Mrs. W. I. Mullins visited Montgomery Monday.

Mrs. J Watts Moore and Miss Nell Mullins visited Mountain Creek Tuesday.

Mrs. Heath visited Thorsby last Thursday.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. J. E. Easterling and Miss Rosa A. Askew; Mr. D. H. Tyus and Mrs. Mary Pierce; Mr. W. A. Calloway and Miss Viola Robinson; Mr. J. T. Ellison and Miss Fannie Horton; Mr. Fred Knodle and Miss Ary Pinkie Hawkins; Mr. W. E. Nix and Miss Cassie Cotton.

Colored: Jim Wright and Janie Latimer.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all druggists.

New Goods

We have them in beautiful display!

Call in and look around! Any time!

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.
CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.
At a live and let live price
FONE 317

W. H. SARTOR
Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.
CLANTON, ALA.

B. E. JONES — CRIT JONES
B. E. JONES & BRO.

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF
Dry Goods. Shoes, Hats, Notions
FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.
and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully
B. E. JONES & BRO.
CLANTON, ALA.

Announcement Extraordinary!

GREAT CASH REALIZATION SALE!!!
Merchandise Doomed to the Slaughter!!

The citizens of Chilton county are to be treated to the greatest bargain event that ever took place in the history of her mercantile life.

On FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25th, C. W. REYNOLDS will throw upon the market the largest aggregation of General and Staple Merchandise ever collected under one roof in this good county of Chilton.

Genuine bargains in all departments at astonishingly low prices.

On THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, our store will be closed during the entire day to enable our clerks to mark all goods in plain figures; no goods will be sold to any one on this day.

We have calculated the amount we are able to lose on this tremendous sale and have accordingly "cut out" the profits and much of the cost.

EVERY ARTICLE OF MERCHANDISE
is to be slaughtered.
WE ARE DETERMINED NOT TO RESERVE
goods of any kind or character if price inducements will move them.
FOR FULL THIRTY DAYS AND THIRTY NIGHTS
beginning Friday, February 25th, and continuing through Friday, March 25th, this gigantic slaughtering carnival will run.
PROFITS ARE ACTUALLY EMASCULATED
and in many instances, too numerous to mention, COST is eliminated.
WHATEVER YOUR WANTS OR NECESSITIES
we can fill them, and at prices so surprisingly below what you have always paid for the same goods as to make you feel as if we had presented them to you.
SEE OUR BIG CIRCULAR
which gives you an idea of some of the bargains we are to offer you during this memorable sale. With such a large and diversified stock it would be impossible to enumerate even a small part of the bargains, but the CIRCULAR will enable you to form some kind of an estimate of the great PARLIAMENT of cut prices here inaugurated.
SAVE YOUR CASH FOR THIS SALE
do not be deceived into believing that you can get bargains "just as good or just as cheap" elsewhere for it cannot be done. OTHERS MAY strive to imitate, but not one can equal the sales put on under our personal supervision.

REMEMBER THE DATE AND REMEMBER THE PLACE
February 25th to March 25th, 1910
CHARLES W. REYNOLDS
CLANTON, ALA.

Personal.

Mrs. Johnson of Mountain Creek was in Clanton Saturday.

Commissioners' Court was in regular session Monday and adjourned Tuesday evening, after transacting routine business.

The Clanton Millinery Co. is getting in the best line of spring millinery, ladies' notions, and ribbon ever brought to Clanton Mrs. Clara Mullins, manager, will leave in a few days, for Louisville and St. Louis to complete this stock and get the latest styles.

Mr. T. G. Ellison, of Jemison, was a visitor here Monday.

Mr. George W. Maddox of route 4 gave us a pleasant call Monday.

The Jury Commission was in session Monday and Tuesday.

Dr. N. S. Johnson was called to Birmingham professionally Sunday last.

High! High! High!

Prices on all goods seem high and going higher except on Matting, Rugs, Art-squares, matting squares Hall-curtains, Window curtains, Window-shades, Counter pins, and Table linens etc.

These goods can yet be found at Spigener's Cash Store, at very reasonable prices.
W. D. SPIGENER.

Cane Creek

Editor Banner:—Please allow us a small space in your paper to say a few words, as I have not seen anything from this place in a good while, health of this community is not very good at present, most everybody is having pneumonia. The school is very small at this place, but what few coming are getting long nicely.

The farmers are preparing for another crop.

The death angels visited the home of Mr. W. M. Lambert and took from him his loving wife. She was laid to rest in Mountain Springs cemetery.

Messers Leona and Leila Gentry are very low with pneumonia, hope they will recover soon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Willis visited Mr. J. M. Willis Saturday night.

Mr. Tom Miller and Mr. Arthur Traywick spent Sunday evening with Miss Bell Brand and Salie Bell Driver.

Mr. Robert Jones and Mr. Victor Marcus, were at Mountain Springs Sunday.

So I will close with best wishes to the Banner and its many readers.
TWO SISTERS.

Yet that Terrible Ite

Eczema, tetter and salt rheum keep their victims in perpetual torment. The application of Chamberlain's Salve will instantly allay this itching and many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

Earth's Axial Motion.

The rotation of the earth at the equator is at the rate of 1,000 miles per hour; one situated on the parallel of sixty, the length of which is equal to half the circumferences of the equator, moves at the rate of nearly 500 miles an hour, while a point seven miles from the pole moves in the course of twenty-four hours through a circle of twenty-two miles, or at the rate of less than one mile an hour.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back of the head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3 50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this:

Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1141 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better use what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home

Refused it.

He—You owe me ten kisses. Pay up. She—Explain, sir. He—I won them. You know very well I wagered a dozen gloves against ten kisses and won. I— She—Oh, but kisses, you know— He (firmly)—Kisses should be paid just as religiously as any other debt. She (thoughtfully)—Just the same as a note? He—Yes. She—Or a check? He—Yes. She—Or—or—or a draft? He—Certainly. She—Then, you poor fellow, I'll give you a draft on mamma. (He never smiled again.) —Exchange.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone should take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS
WITH Dr. King's New Discovery
FOR COUGHS & COLDS
AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.
GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

RAINBOW
TRADE-MARK REGISTERED
THE LATEST AND GREATEST BRANDS
Complete Fertilizer, Phosphates and Potashes
All shipments from Montgomery
CAPACITY UNLIMITED
Private tracks in factory connecting with all railroads. No delays. Promptness assured. The newest broom does the cleanest sweep. COTTON SEED MEAL, BLOOD, FISH BUTRATE, ONE OR ALL IN COMBINATION FOR ARKANSAS BASIS.
Plant food from the sprouting of the seed to maturity. Destined to be the most popular brands ever offered. Unqualified merit and twenty-four years' practical experience shows us how to do it. Free Premium guns, Wagons, Buggies, Goddess and Plows. Ask your dealer.
MARKS & GAYLE
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Special Notice

TO THE FARMERS

We have on hand 50 PLOW STOCKS complete, which we are closing out at $1.25, regular price, and to each person who buys one we will give 1 PAIR OF 50 CENT HAMES FREE.
Only a few left. Come Quick.

A. HEADLEY & CO.
CORNER SECOND AVE., AT DEPOT.
CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—
A. M. JOHNSON'S
CASH GROCERY STORE
THORSBY, ALA.
FOR BARGAINS IN
Staple and Fancy Groceries

The Simple Life

has for its basis PERFECT HEALTH. The clear brain, the healthy stomach, the bodily organs exercising in harmony, are the first essentials of a Simple Life—

A LIFE OF PEACE AND SATISFACTION.

No one can know the pure delight of simple living whose nervous system is kept in a state of tension by Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness and other diseases due to inaction of the liver.

The Simple Way to seek the Simple Life is to seek the remedy for these conditions. This remedy has been found in our great product—

ST. JOSEPH'S Liver Regulator
(In Both Liquid and Powder Form.)

It has made life brighter and happiness and peace possible when all was dark and distressed. It reaches the centers of life and purifies them. It encourages the liver, stomach and bowels to a freer and more natural activity.

It is the Simple Way to a Simple Life of Health, Peace, Contentment.

Many persons attest this fact who have realized its truth by actual experience.

St. Joseph's Liquid Liver Regulator is prompt in action, exceedingly palatable and pleasant to the taste. It is sold by druggists and dealers at 50 cents a bottle.

St. Joseph's Liver Regulator in powder form is put up in tight tin boxes and retails at 25 cents a box. Five boxes for a dollar. It may be taken dry or made into a tea or bitters. Full directions accompany every bottle and box.

Gerstle Medicine Co.
Chattanooga, Tenn.

DR. J. EARL COWAB
DENTIST
CLANTON, ALA.

THE LONE APPLE TREE

How a Girl Discovered a Murderer by Offering Him an Apple.

By ETHEL BOYER.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

On Lake Thun (Thunder lake), in Switzerland, is the little town of Oberhafen, with its schloss and tiled roofed houses and quaint narrow streets running in so many diagonal directions that if the town were not very small one could never find his way from one end to the other. A short distance from Oberhafen, bordering the lake, is a little fruit farm that for generations has belonged to a family of the name of Zeltner.

About a hundred years ago there was growing up on the farm Gretchen Zeltner, one of those plump, fair, flaxen haired Swiss lasses who are attractive even to this day. And today on going to church of a Sunday the Swiss girls wear the same costumes that Gretchen then wore—a short skirt of bright colors, a black velveteen bodice, with silver chains hanging the one end from the bosom, the other from the shoulder blade. On Gretchen's head was a dainty white muslin cap. A pretty girl in such a costume was not likely to want for lovers, nor did Gretchen, but she gave her heart to one Max Beck and had no encouragement for any other.

"WON'T YOU HAVE AN APPLE?" SHE ASKED.

One day a peddler passed through Oberhafen and stopped at the Zeltner farm. Herman Zeltner, Gretchen's father, was seen to walk away from the house with the peddler in earnest conversation. They climbed up the mountain side and passed through a wood, beyond which was an open space, where grew a single apple tree. Zeltner returned to the house, but the peddler did not. Later his people, who missed him, tracked him to the Zeltner farm, but could gain no trace of him after his departure. The last person by whom he was seen was Herman Zeltner.

Naturally suspicion fell upon the farmer of having murdered the peddler, for it was known that the latter had a good deal of money on his person. Zeltner was arrested and taken before a magistrate. There were no witnesses, and he was simply questioned. He said that the peddler had told him that he had made enough money to buy a farm and was desirous of doing so. He asked Zeltner to show him over his own farm and give him some instruction as to what he would need. Zeltner had done so, and when the two reached the apple tree which marked the farthest point the farm extended up the mountain side they had stood under it for awhile, Zeltner telling the man what implements he would need and where to procure them. While talking some loose stones were detached above and came down the incline. Thinking it was some animal, they had listened, but heard nothing more. Then the peddler had gone on, having inquired the way to one of the villages higher up on the mountain side.

There being no evidence against Zeltner, he was discharged from custody; but, though he had previously borne an excellent reputation, many people believed him guilty. Unfortunately for Max and Gretchen old Carl Beck was among this number. He told his son that the Becks had for generations borne a spotless reputation and that he would never consent that the daughter of a murderer should come into the family. This meant that the young man should give up Gretchen.

"Max," said Gretchen one day in tears, "if we could but find the murderer that would relieve father of this suspicion which is killing him."

"He was grafting yesterday," said Max. "I saw him from the height above. He was at work on the lone apple tree."

"That is the only work he has done. He goes up there often, but usually to sit and brood. You know that is where he left the peddler or the peddler left him when he went away. I wish father wouldn't go there. The neighbors see him sitting under the apple tree and think he is drawn to the place where they say he killed his victim."

"What fruit did he graft on the tree?"

"A branch from the red apple tree over there."

"Those on the lone tree are white. There will be a curious mixture."

One summer morning Gretchen was passing the lone apple tree and stopped to look at the fruit. While doing so a man came and, leaning on the fence, began to talk with her. He had a very restless eye and was constantly changing his position. He asked her a number of questions pertaining to the locality and finally began to talk about the tree.

"It was here," said Gretchen, "that my father more than a year ago parted with a peddler whom he had been showing over his farm. The peddler has never been heard from since."

"What became of him?" asked the man, looking away and changing his position from one foot to another.

"My father was accused of murdering him."

"And was it proved against your father?" asked the stranger.

"No. There were no witnesses. But father is as innocent as you or I."

Gretchen thought she saw the man's pale face grow a little paler.

"And is he believed to be guilty?"

"Some people think so because he comes up here at times and sits under the tree. They say that something draws a murderer back to the scene of his crime."

Gretchen saw the stranger tremble. Her mind was absorbed in her father's trouble, which also kept her and her lover apart. This made her garrulous. She kept on:

"I've tried to persuade father not to come up here. But he will in spite of all I can do."

"Doesn't that look as if he were guilty?" asked the man.

"No. It seems to me that he expects to meet the real murderer here. And if it's true that murderers must revisit the scenes of their crimes perhaps father will find him here some day."

The man hurriedly turned to go. Gretchen noticed that the hand he removed from the fence was trembling like a leaf in the wind.

"Won't you have an apple?" she asked.

"No, no, no!" Then, suddenly checking himself, he added: "Thank you, my girl. I never eat apples. They're sour and hard."

"These are not. They're sweet and juicy." She moved toward him, holding out one of the apples she had plucked from a lower branch of the tree.

"No, no, no!" repeated the man, staring at the apple as if there was something about it to be dreaded.

Gretchen looked at him in astonishment. Then, as if to show him that the fruit was harmless, she raised it to her mouth, took a big bite and held the exposed pulp up for him to see.

Down at the farmhouse Herman Zeltner heard a wild cry. It seemed to him that it came from the direction of the lone apple tree. Bounding up the incline, in another moment he came in sight of his daughter. A man was standing on the other side of the fence holding to the top

"Take it away!" cried the stranger. "There's blood on it! It's from his veins! It has grown up through the trunk and has got into the apples!"

Gretchen stood speechless. Suddenly her father dashed up to the stranger, leaped the fence and, grasping him by the shoulder, forced him down into a kneeling position.

"You fiend! You killed him and left me to suffer for your crime! What do you mean by blood from his veins? Where did you bury him? Under the tree?"

"Yes," gasped the man, his terror at the blood stains, as he supposed them, in the grafted apple dominating his terror at being accused of the crime.

Zeltner called for assistance, and some of his farm hands came running toward the party.

"There is the murderer," he said. "He killed the peddler and has buried him under the apple tree. Bring spades."

Spades were brought, and the body of the peddler was exhumed. His murderer refused to look on it, covering his face with his hands.

"So you took a grafted apple for blood stains, did you?" cried Zeltner, white with rage. "Thank heaven, who prompted me to put a red apple on this tree, for heaven, who sent you back here, must have led me to furnish the means to draw out your confession." Then to the others, "Take him away to jail."

When the man had gone Zeltner questioned Gretchen as to how it had occurred, and when he found that she had been the instrument by which he had been freed from the incubus that had been resting upon him he took her in his arms and wept tears of joy.

"The good book says," he cried, "that a woman tempted a man with an apple. It has been for you, my child, to convict a man with the same fruit and exonerate your father."

A more detailed confession showed that the prisoner, who was walking from Interlaken to Thun, was resting on the mountain side on the day the peddler left Herman Zeltner. He saw the peddler take out a handful of gold and attempt to induce Zeltner to accept one of the pieces in recompense for the information he had received. Throwing himself in the peddler's path, the man struck him from behind a tree, as he passed, on the back of the head, stunning him, then killed him. He hid the body till night, then buried it under the apple tree, thinking if it was found that the murder would be attributed to the owner of the farm, as indeed it was.

Max now had no difficulty in getting his father's consent to marry Gretchen, and the wedding occurred without delay. The baron, hearing of the incident, gave a fete to the young couple at the Schloss.

VERBAL MISHAPS.

Dickens Once Made Two Bad Breaks the Same Evening.

Charles Dickens once wrote to a friend: "I have distinguished myself in two respects lately. I took a young lady, unknown, down to dinner and talked to her about the bishop of Durham's nepotism in the matter of Mr. Cheese. I found she was Mrs. Cheese. Later I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, thinking him to be an Irish member, on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and the Marylebone representative."

Two such mishaps in one evening were enough to reduce the most brilliant talker to the condition of the three inside passengers of a London bound coach who beguiled the tedium of the journey from Southampton by discussing the demerits of William Cobbett until one of the party went so far as to assert that the object of their denunciation was a domestic tyrant, given to beating his wife.

Much to his dismay the solitary woman passenger, who had hitherto sat a silent listener, remarked:

"Pardon me, sir. A kinder husband and father never breathed. And I ought to know, for I am William Cobbett's wife."

Mr. Giles of Virginia and Judge Duval of Maryland, members of congress during Washington's administration, boarded at the house of a Mrs. Gibbon, whose daughters were well on in years and remarkable for talkativeness.

When Jefferson became president Duval was comptroller of the treasury and Giles a senator. Meeting one day in Washington, they fell to chatting over old times, and the senator asked the comptroller if he knew what had become of "that cackling old maid, Jenny Gibbon."

"She is Mrs. Duval, sir," was the unexpected reply.

Giles did not attempt to mend matters, as a certain Mr. Tuberville unwisely did. Happening to observe to a fellow guest that the lady who had sat at his right hand at dinner was the ugliest woman he had ever beheld, the person addressed expressed his regret that he should think his wife so ill looking.

"I have made a mistake," said the horrified Tuberville. "I meant the lady who sat on my left."

"Well, sir, she is my sister."

This brought the frank avowal, "It can't be helped, sir, then, for if what you say be true I confess I never saw such an ugly family in the course of my life."—Youth's Companion.

A SMALL WORD.

It Has Only Two Letters, Yet It Is Not Easy to Define.

To define one word in the English language one modern dictionary takes eighteen columns of small type. And this solitary word upon which the dictionary bestows such a wealth of elucidation is one that hardly anybody except a dictionary maker can define at all. The ordinary educated, English speaking person's knowledge of it could be expressed in about half a single line.

This fecund word is "of." If you were asked to define it—unless you are a dictionary maker or of an allied trade—probably you would have to reply: "Of? Why, of just means of." You might add defensively, "I always comprehend perfectly what it means when I see or hear it and can use it correctly in speech, so what do I want to define it for anyway?"

But if you were a child your actual mastery of "of" would stand you in no stead whatever. You would be set to digging out and memorizing the things the dictionary had to say about it, or the driest and least informing of them, as, for instance, that in some cases it is such a kind of preposition and in other cases some other kind and that prepositions have such and such properties when they don't have some other, every bit of which you would absolutely and mercifully forget at the first possible moment. Look over a child's grammar or "language" lesson, with its ghastly array of useless bones.—Saturday Evening Post.

Laxative for Women Free

There is a great difference in the purposes to which a laxative should be put. Tablets and pills, salts, etc., are usually violent purgatives or cathartics, and altogether too powerful for the average person.

A woman at all times needs only a mild laxative—in fact, none other is needed by anyone, weak or strong though they may be, for the object is simply to move the bowels, and if a gentle laxative will do it, what is the use of a violent one?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has earned a well-deserved vogue among women and children and old folks—people who must necessarily be careful of what they take.

It is a liquid laxative tonic and admittedly the greatest stomach, liver and bowel remedy before the American people. The price is only 50 cents or $1 a bottle, as it comes in both sizes, and all druggists sell it. Its pleasant taste and gentle action make it an ideal remedy for women in constipation, torpid liver, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn and such like digestive complaints. Its use for a short time will remove the trouble entirely so that future medication will be unnecessary. Its tonic properties build up the stomach and intestinal muscles so that they act naturally again. That this is so is the experience of many heads of families, like Mrs. Brannan, of Alvarado, Va., Mrs. K. L. Stout, of Louisville, Ky., and numerous others; in fact, way out in Williams, Cal., as Mrs. J. E. Blackmore, of that place, writes, the whole town seems to be using it.

If the remedy is new to you and you want to make a trial of it before buying, send your name to the doctor's address as below and a free test bottle will be sent you. Then, if results are satisfactory you can buy it of your druggist.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug co.

Ode to a Wife.

My roommate is a worthless shirk
Who never does a stroke of work.
He never seems to have a cent,
And when he has it's quickly spent.

And yet, because he's kind and dear,
I do his lessons, buy his beer
And let him lead a social life.
You see, he makes a model wife.
—Yale Record.

In the Realms of Flattery.

"His majesty seems inclined to believe everything he hears," said one courtier.

"Not exactly," answered the other. "He merely insists on not hearing anything he does not wish to believe."—Washington Star.

The Cost of Living.

A whiskered old party named Frye
Raised a howl 'cause his bills were so hye.
To a barber he went,
To this speech giving vent:
"It costs more to live than to dye!"
—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Winter in the Desert.

Abou Ben Adhem explained.
"I have the snow promptly shoveled from the sidewalk in front of my vacant property," he boasted.
Herewith the angel fell over himself to write the name first.—New York Sun.

Not by Shakespeare.

There once was a fellow from Butte
Who went on a terrible tutte.
When he tried to drink down
All the beer in the town
The citizens cried, "[illegible] Brute!"
—Ledger

President Helps Orphans.

Hundreds of orphans have been helped by the President of the Industrial and Orphan's Home at Macon, Ga., who writes: "We have used Electric Bitters in this Institution for nine years. It has proved a most excellent medicine for Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles We regard it as one of the best family medicines on earth." It invigorates all vital organs, purifies the blood, aids digestion creates appetite. To strengthen and build up pale, thin, weak children or run down people it has no equal. Best for female complaints. Only 50c. at Upchurch Drug Co.

Pure Whiskey Often Prevents Sickness

Many a serious sickness has been checked in time by the judicious use of

Sunny Brook THE PURE FOOD Whiskey

As a healthful tonic for home use or a wholesome stimulant in case of accidents or sudden illness it has no equal. No home should be without it. Its moderate use is highly beneficial to those who are ailing and it will increase the vigor of those who are well. Genuine SUNNY BROOK Pure Food Whiskey is U. S. Standard (100%) proof and every bottle bears the "Government Green Stamp" showing the correct age and measure.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

4—FULL QUARTS—$5
BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	Chattanooga, Tenn
M. Markstein	123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	636 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St.
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd.	541 Magazine St.
Estate of Charles Feahney	511 Pampart St.
Groll Trading Co.	Pensacola, Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar	Pensacola, Fla.
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 150,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the SOUTHERN RURALIST is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The RURALIST pays $20.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; F. J. Merriam, Grasses; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station; Horticulture Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment Station; Dairying; Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock; Dr. C. A. Cary, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural College; Veterinary Department; Judge P. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Mrs. F. J. Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.

By special arrangement with the SOUTHERN RURALIST we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

THINK OF
Mexican Mustang Liniment
AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU.

Relief from pain that might otherwise cause you hours of agony.

Tired out muscles eased up and made ready for another day's work.

Lameness in the back and shoulders promptly cured and stiff joints limbered up.

Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Mashes rendered painless and quickly healed.

Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica robbed of their anguish and banished forever.

Ulcers, Old Sores and Open Wounds healed promptly and permanently.

The first application of Mexican Mustang Liniment subdues the pain but it continues its work until every quivering nerve is soothed and quieted.

The great penetrating power of this famous remedy enables it to do this quickly and positively.

In all cases of Sprains, Bruises or Lameness, Mexican Mustang Liniment should be rubbed in persistently.

The antiseptic qualities of this old reliable household remedy make it safe and sure.

Prices 25c., 50c., $1.00 per bottle. For sale by all Druggists. LYON MFG. CO. 41 to 45 So. 5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garde

HOW TO BARREL APP

Grower Gives Suggestions on and Heading.

There's an art in knowing grade and pack a barrel of the head of the barrel is the least thing about the topic an experienced apple g H. Shaw of Rockford offers these valuable suggest

Before beginning to pack the barrel is rested if packing in the ordinary planks or boards on which barrels while being filled the head of the barrel ables the packer to work advantage. "Backing of the barrel from time to the packing in order to ples, thus making them fit closer together. The head is usually opened upon receipt is placed at the bottom ing.

BARREL HEADING.

Before starting to pack rugated apple barrel three layers of wholly folded plain brown paper. This keeps the fruit in better prevents it from bruising. is done the barrel is "faced." This consists of hand from two to three stem end down. After apples are carefully poured barrel frequently shaken most full. The last two or may be placed by hand, thus "facing" both ends of age.

The last layer of fruit about one inch above the barrel and be covered corrugated apple barrel or with two or three layers folded paper, as used in the

The head is then put on into place with an apple There are several types of es, differing slightly from lustrated, but all answering purpose. After nailing place and seeing that all are securely fastened in their tions label the barrel, and for market.

In packing apples see that age is well filled with the throughout, including top bottom. Put up a strictly honest pack or keep the fruit "Honesty is the best policy only one that pays in the ness.

LITTLE FACTS FOR FA

There are now sixty-five sugar factories located in ferent states. Last year were given over to beets farmers delivered to the 3,470,000 tons.

Good, strong, well deve from mature sires and dams better growth and more gains than the underfed result from breeding imma to some six months-old boar

Somebody has estimated tistics that fruit trees and bear for the following perio 25 to 40 years; blackberry years; currant, 20 years; 8 to 12 years; pear, 50 to plum, 20 to 25 years; rasp 14 years; strawberry, 1 to

The largest grapevine in flourishes at San Gabriel, C planted by the San Francis and is 120 years old. The and one-half feet in diameter feet high, and the branches cover 5,000 square feet. produced two and one-hal grapes.

Lean, lank hogs and poor discourage almost any farm such a combination. Wit that will multiply as rapid it seems almost a shame to breeding old scrub sows to that has no pride of ancest of posterity. Yet this is course that about half of t are following and wondering ing hogs is not paying profits. Never get the id heads that breeding from immature breeding stock early maturity in the progen ents Sickness cked in time by the rook

OD
ey

holesome stimulant in al. No home should be al to those who are ailing
well. Genuine SUNNY 100% proof and every showing the correct age

Jefferson Co., Ky.

RTS—$5
EPAID
tributors:

Chattanooga, Tenn
Cincinnati, O
New Orleans, La
Pensacola, Fla
Memphis, Tenn
Pensacola, Fla
Jacksonville, Fla

ANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.

our Home
THE thern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Greatest Agricultural Paper in th today. It covers every det of the farm and home. We anized it carefully, and con-
HE SOUTHERN RURALIST
t valuable premium we can ur readers. It comes twice a 24 times a year. A sample ill be mailed free to any one uest.

most valuable thing about the s RURALIST is the Prize Spe-ich are published on the first month. The RURALIST pays ch month for the best arti-n its subscribers on special such as Fall Plowing, Poul-Dairy, Farm Tool, Garden-
it Growing, Stock Raising,
, etc. These articles come ry part of the country. They ten by men who do the work actual experience. They you as nothing else will.

STAFF WR S
J. Merriam, G arment Statio ure
Experiment sy;
Live Stock Dr.
Agricultural ter-
Department; S T. J. Mer-every number.

tion to the man who will take
two papers for the price of one.
RALIST we are able to offer
this paper at list for $1.00.

ent lexican Muse pain but it
ry quivering
ed.
wer of this t to do this ises or Lame-g Liniment
tently.
this old relia-
e it safe and
OOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

HOW TO BARREL APPLES.

Grower Gives Suggestions on Packing and Heading.

There's an art in knowing how to grade and pack a barrel of apples, and the heading of the barrel is not the least thing about the job. On this topic an experienced apple grower, S. B. Shaw of Randolph county, N. C., offers these valuable suggestions:

Before beginning to pack see that the barrel is resting on a solid base. If packing in the orchard provide planks or boards on which to place the barrels while being filled. This keeps the head of the barrel clean and enables the packer to "rack" it to better advantage. "Racking" is the shaking of the barrel from time to time during the packing in order to settle the apples, thus making them fit firmer and closer together. The head or end that is usually opened upon reaching market is placed at the bottom end in filling.

BARREL HEADER.

Before starting to pack put in a corrugated apple barrel cap or two or three layers of nicely folded white or plain brown paper. This not only keeps the fruit in better shape, but prevents it from bruising. When this is done the barrel is ready to be "faced." This consists of placing by hand from two to three rows of fruit, stem end down. After "facing" the apples are carefully poured in and the barrel frequently shaken until it is almost full. The last two or three rows may be placed by hand, stem end up, thus "facing" both ends of the package.

The last layer of fruit should extend about one inch above the chine of the barrel and be covered either with a corrugated apple barrel cushion cap or with two or three layers of neatly folded paper, as used in the other end.

The head is then put on and forced into place with an apple barrel press. There are several types of these presses, differing slightly from the one illustrated, but all answering the same purpose. After nailing the head in place and seeing that all hoops are securely fastened in their proper positions label the barrel, and it is ready for market.

In packing apples see that each package is well filled with the same grade throughout, including top, middle and bottom. Put up a strictly first class, honest pack or keep the fruit at home. "Honesty is the best policy" and the only one that pays in the fruit business.

LITTLE FACTS FOR FARMERS.

There are now sixty-five active beet sugar factories located in sixteen different states. Last year 365,000 acres were given over to beets, and the farmers delivered to the factories 3,470,000 tons.

Good, strong, well developed pigs from mature sires and dams will make better growth and more economical gains than the undersized runts that result from breeding immature sows to some six-months-old boar pig.

Somebody has estimated from statistics that fruit trees and bushes will bear for the following periods: Apple, 25 to 40 years; blackberry, 6 to 14 years; currant, 20 years; gooseberry, 8 to 12 years; pear, 50 to 75 years; plum, 20 to 25 years; raspberry, 6 to 14 years; strawberry, 1 to 3 years.

The largest grapevine in the world flourishes at San Gabriel, Cal. It was planted by the San Franciscan friars and is 120 years old. The stalk is one and one-half feet in diameter and eight feet high, and the branches and foliage cover 5,000 square feet. Last year it produced two and one-half tons of grapes.

Lean, lank hogs and poor fences will discourage almost any farmer who has such a combination. With animals that will multiply as rapidly as pigs it seems almost a shame to see a man breeding old scrub sows to some boar that has no pride of ancestry or hope of posterity. Yet this is exactly the course that about half of the farmers are following and wondering why feeding hogs is not paying substantial profits. Never get the idea in your heads that breeding from young and immature breeding stock encourages early maturity in the progeny.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson VIII.—First Quarter, For Feb. 20, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. vii, 1-12. Memory Verses, 7, 8—Golden Text, Matt. vii, 12—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

When any truth is brought home to us by the Spirit how prone we are to ask: Does any one do it? What about such a one who makes a great profession of having no anxious care? Do you know if they really practice it at home? Do you think that the preacher himself lives that way? So it goes, and instead of seeing Jesus only we are prone to see everybody but Jesus. Hence the admonition of our lesson, "Judge not that ye be not judged," or, as it is elsewhere, "Let us not therefore judge one another any more" (Rom. xiv, 13). Because, as in the context, all believers shall stand before the judgment seat of Christ and every one of us shall give account of himself to God. We are so peculiar that it is generally easier to see the mote in another's eye than the beam that is in our own eye, whereas if we ourselves were right with God we would have only love for all others, and, being very conscious of our own infirmities, we would have only prayerful compassion for those of others. Christ for us in our stead on the cross obtained for us eternal redemption; Christ for us in heaven at the right hand of the Father makes victory over sin our privilege, but because we do not know as we should the power of Christ in us by His Spirit we are more often stumbling blocks than samples of what the life of Christ really is. Yet the one thing we are here for is so to live that the world may know and believe that Jesus lives.

In our last year's studies in the Acts of the Apostles some of us were much impressed by the words "Jesus shewed Himself alive" in connection with those other resurrection words, "Jesus shewed Himself" (Acts i, 3; John xxi, 1, 14). His own testimony was that He came not to condemn, but to save. To one sinner He said, "Neither do I condemn thee; go and sin no more." To another, "Thy sins are forgiven" (John iii, 17; viii, 11; Luke vii, 48). He did condemn the self righteous, fault finding, hypocritical Pharisees, but He never had even a seemingly harsh word for the penitent sinners or for any truly desirous to be His disciples. Such love as His is heavenly; all else is from the pit. In us it is either Christ or self.

The Spirit through Peter speaks of those who knew the way of righteousness, but did not walk therein, though professing to do so, as dogs and swine (II Pet. iii, 21, 22). See also Prov. xxvi, 11, 12. If one cannot speak even to many among the redeemed of the deep things of God (see I Cor. iii, 1, 2; Heb. v, 12, 13), how much less should we think of talking spiritual things to natural people to whom they are only foolishness. Such are spoken of finally as being "without," having no right to the tree of life (Rev. xxii, 14, 15), but if those who are "in Christ" would walk honestly toward them that are without, without Christ and without God (I Thess. iv, 12; Eph. ii, 12), who can tell how many who are now "without" might become "within" by His grace.

This life which will commend Christ to others can only be by the Spirit of God, by a wisdom which is not of this world, but in verse 11, along with Luke xi, 13, we learn that God is more willing to give us His Spirit, the fullness of His Spirit, than parents are to give good things to their children. In Jas. i, 5, 6, we learn that this wisdom is to be had for the asking, but it must be an asking in faith and, according to Jas. iv, 3, with nothing of self seeking, but wholly for the glory of God, that the life of Jesus may be made manifest. The asking, seeking, knocking, with that end in view will surely find an abundant response. We must remember that asking so as to receive means that we are abiding, keeping His commandments and doing the things that are pleasing in His sight (John xv, 7; I John iii, 22). The seeking that finds is explained in Jer. xxix, 13, "Ye shall seek Me and find Me when ye search for Me with all your heart." As to knocking, consider Rev. iii, 20, and Luke xii, 36, and tremble at the possibility of our keeping Him knocking at our door when He so longs to take full possession of us and lavish upon us the wealth of His love. Too many are like the elder brother, unhappy and blaming the father for it, when all the time the father is saying, "All that I have is thine;" "All things are yours."

In reference to the last verse (12), which is also the golden text, note that it is, like all the rest, a message for believers or those who profess to be such that they may prove the reality of their faith. For unsaved people to take this verse and call it their religion is simply a going about to establish their own righteousness without submitting themselves to the righteousness of God (Rom. x, 3). We must be righteous before we can do righteously, but, having believed the love of God to us and received the Lord Jesus Christ as our Saviour, then it becomes us to manifest Christ by loving our neighbor as ourselves (Lev. xix, 18; Gal. vi, 14). No condemnation in Christ is the blood bought standing of every believer, but it is in order that the righteousness of the law may be fulfilled in us.

THE MODERN FARM HOME.

How Work Can Be Lightened For Women in the Country.

It has been said that the home of the farmers would be made more attractive and the burden of the farmers' wives lightened if the farmers had more money. The complaint is made that the land yields him and his but a scanty living and that his labor is long and hard and his rewards are few. This is only partly true. Much of the drudgery on the farm, both for the farmer's wife and for himself, is due not so much to a lack of money as to a lack of thought.

Many of the conveniences of the city homes now regarded as necessities could be put into country houses at slight cost. Women of the farms have gone along for generations enduring hardships and bearing the real burdens of country life without complaint. They have done their part nobly. They have cooked and washed and ironed, have done their housework, borne their children and reared them in the fear of God; have made the clothes for the growing family and for themselves and attended to the thousand duties of the household, day after day and year after year, with little opportunity for relaxation or rest. And in all this they have been patient, bearing their hardships, putting up with inconveniences, because they love their homes and their families. The most divinely patient creature on earth is the farmer's wife.

For years improvement has been going on in machinery and appliances that have lessened the farmer's labor and increased his productive capacity. These things have been mostly for the fields. But of recent years inventors have turned their attention to the things for the homes, and with them the burdens of the farmer's wife are being lightened.

It is not becoming in the farmer to cut his grass with a mower instead of a scythe and let his wife pump water when a windmill or gasoline engine would do it for her. There is no reason why any farmer who can afford a manure spreader should not have running water, hot and cold, in his house. Acetylene gas or electricity would be cheaper in the long run than kerosene oil and do away with the trouble of lamps. A washing machine costs only as much as any ordinary spike tooth harrow, and so on along the line.

The rural free delivery of mail, the extending telephone lines and trolley lines that are spreading over the land are all doing their part for the improvement of the farm home and the bettering of the condition of the farmer's wife. And the time will soon be here when drudgery will be at a minimum in the country, and the home of the farmer will be as comfortable as any in the land.

Things Theatrical.

William Dwight Moody has written a new play, called "The Rising Generation."

Edgar L. Davenport and Aubrey Boucicault are to establish a dramatic school in Philadelphia.

Lillian Russell has scored in her new farce, "The First Night," under the direction of Joseph Brooks.

"Peter Pan" has been revived in London with Pauline Chase in the title role. It was enthusiastically received.

Maude Raymond will be with Max Rogers in "The Young Turk," which will be produced in New York shortly.

Charles Dillingham's new theater, the Globe, in New York, opened recently with Montgomery and Stone in "The Old Town." The play is by George Ade, with music by Gustave Luders.

Up to His Dad.

"Papa," said five-year-old Johnny, "please give me a dime to buy a toy monkey."

"You don't need a toy monkey," answered his father. "You are a monkey yourself."

"Well," continued the little fellow, "then give me a dime to buy peanuts for the monkey."—Chicago News.

For Liver Complaints

Gout, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Affections of the Bladder and Kidneys, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Biliousness and all Bowel Ailments.

DR. D. JAYNE'S SANATIVE PILLS

is a reliable and effective remedy—and has been for several generations. It can be taken as a dinner pill, laxative, purgative or cathartic with excellent results.

Sold by all druggists in 25c and 10c boxes

Dr. D. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge is a natural tonic for both adults and children.

Divorce and the Rich.

Just a little millionaire,
Just a little wife,
Mighty little happiness,
Awful lot of strife.
Just some little lawyers,
Just a little fee,
Then a little evidence
To a referee.
Just a little courtroom,
Just a whispered line,
Scratching of the judge's pen
And everything is fine.
—Chicago Journal.

Timely Suggestion.

Skinner—I don't know what I'm to do about that bill we owe the grocer. He annoys me terribly.

Mrs. Skinner—Well, if it comes to the worst you can pay it.

Skinner—Yes; that's so, but I never should have thought of that.—Pittsburg Press.

Vin-O-Vitæ a Great Female Remedy

This remarkable remedy which has been used with great success for many years in the treatment of female diseases is composed of roots, herbs and barks of unquestionable merit. Its history is ablaze with success in benefiting and curing many diseases with which women are afflicted. Its effect is mildly tonic, upbuilding and curative. Under its use the female organs assume their proper duties, the result of which is that the bloom of health indicates its value. Every woman occasionally needs a female remedy of this kind to tone up her organs to healthy action. Druggists sell VIN-O-VITÆ at $1 00 per bottle.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala., postoffice, for week ending Feb. 12, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

Randolph Oden, Ben Cox, J. R. Kilpatric, R. L. Knight.

LADIES' LIST.

Loler Holman.

These letters will be sent to the dead Letter office, Feb. 26, 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY Postmaster

FIELD-GROWN ROSE PLANTS

Our Field Crown Rose Plants are now ready for delivery and this is the proper time for planting. We have 25,000 of the finest Bush and Climbing Roses ever grown in the South, including seventy varieties.

Bush Roses $2.50 per dozen; $15.00 per 100.
Climbing Roses $3.50 per dozen.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season, Cut flowers, walking bouquets, and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor
City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP
Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Cumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.
First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.
W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

WELLS Bored and Drilled
T. B. TEEL
Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells
CLANTON, ALA.

Invading.

Mr. Scrappler—We're going to have another stormy day. Mrs. Scrappler—How do you know? Mr. Scrappler—This newspaper says so. Mrs. Scrappler—So our domestic affairs are getting into the newspapers, are they?—Brooklyn Life.

A Riddle.

What is the color of the wind and the moon?

Answer.—The moon rose, and the wind blew (blue).

The Lion Tamer's Little Boy.

The lion tamer's little boy,
He knows no fear at all,
Chasing the king of beasts with joy
As kittens chase a ball.

He knows the tricks of daddy's trade.
He scares the tiger lean
Or makes the elephant afraid,
And that is rather mean.

And often when the show is done,
When animals should rest,
The lion tamer's little son
Will act as if possessed.

He tries them out with silly stunts
Until it seems a sin.
But while the timid beasts he hunts
His daddy happens in

And says: "Now, I'll give you a chance
To do the selfsame thing
That you have asked of them. Now dance
And leap and twist and swing!

"Five minutes, now, I'll cane you fast.
Your teasing tricks must cease.
These beasts of mine shall have at last
A little rest and peace."

And when he's locked in by papa
The animals grow gay
And could they speak would say: "Ha, ha!
It's now our turn to play."
—St. Nicholas.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I. HOPKINS
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
CLANTON

Directory of Clanton Baptist Church.
Preaching at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on 1st and 3rd Sundays.
Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. every Sunday. W. L. Mullins, Supt.
Communion Service 1st Sunday in January, April, July and October.
Ladies' Aid meeting at 3 p.m. on Monday after the 1st Sunday, then W. M. U. Circle Meeting.
All members are urged to be present at every meeting and attend to their duties. We invite you to worship with us. J. L. WOOD, Pastor.

AWAY ABOVE EVERYTHING

Lewis 66 Rye

AWAY ABOVE EVERYTHING

FOUR FULL QUARTS $5.00, EXPRESS PREPAID

BLENDED GOODS
Express Prepaid
Lewis' 66 Hunter Harper
Echo Springs Cascade (Tennessee)
Wilson Murry Hill Club
Any of the Above Brands
4 Full Qts. $5.00 12 Full Qts. $12.00
Express Prepaid

	4 Full Qts.	12 Full Qts.
Blum's Monogram	$4.00	$11.00
Sheridan Club	2.25	6.00
Maryland Club	3.50	11.50
Mt. Vernon	4.00	10.00
	4 Quarts in the Case.	12 Quarts.
Four Roses	2.00	10.50
Three Feathers	2.00	10.50

CORN WHISKEY

	4 Full Qts.	12 Full Qts.
Tennessee Old Reserve	$4.00	$11.00
Black and Blue	3.00	9.00
Harvest Corn	3.50	10.50
Laurel Valley	3.50	10.50
Climber Brand	3.25	9.00

BOTTLED IN BOND

	4 Full Qts.	12 Full Qts.
Clarke's Pure Rye	$5.00	$12.00
Sunny Brook	5.00
Early Times	5.00	12.00
Cuppaboiam	5.00	12.00
Malwood	5.00	12.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Mountain Spring	4.00	11.00
Clark's Sour Mash	4.00	10.00

All the Above Goods are Delivered Express Paid

BULK WHISKIES
Express Paid
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00, $5.50, $6.00 per Gallon
BULK CORN WHISKEY
100 Proof
$3.00, $3.50, $4.00 per Gallon, according to age.

We Handle all Imported Wines and Liquors. Ask for Prices.

LONG DISTANCE PHONE 109
517-519 West Bay Street
CHAS. BLUM & COMPANY
Jacksonville Florida

Mary Up to Date.

Mary had a little car;
It ran by gasoline
And everywhere that Mary went
The auto could be seen.

One day the auto struck a rut;
Its course was much deflected.
(The doctor says that Mary is As well as he expected!)
—Cleveland Leader.

Information.

"Even if the suffragettes had their way," said the philosophic person, "your wife would come to you for information before she went to vote."

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton; "she would probably ask me if her hat was on straight."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Touching Verse.

At first she touches up her hair
To see if it's in place.
And then with manner debonair
She touches up her face.
A touch to curls behind her ear,
A touch to silken collar.
And then she's off to hubby, dear—
To touch him for a dollar.
—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Caught.

Mrs. Jawback—John, you have a beautiful stenographer!

Mr. Jawback—Nonsense, dear! What makes you think—

Mrs. Jawback—John, this letter you dictated to her is full of mispelled words!—Cleveland Leader.

Saved From Awful Peril

"I never felt so near my grave," writes Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, Ohio, R. R. No. 3, "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive to-day is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It also cured my four children of croup." Infallible for Coughs and Colds; its the most certain remedy for LaGrippe Asthma desperate lung trouble and all bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern (subscribe today), or send for sample copy

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash price offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

The Shop on the Farm.

The farm workshop should be detached from other outhouses. It should contain a forge, a chimney, a stove and a solid workbench, with a good steel vise heavy enough to hold firmly a two inch shaft.

One of the most important tools is the vise. A good heavy steel vise costs from $5 to $8, and it is worth every cent of what it costs. If you get a good one you can never break it or wear it out, but if you get a cheap one it is an aggravation from the very first time you use it. The same may be said of other tools. Whatever you get, get good. If you can only afford a half dozen bits, get twist drills, because they will bore either wood or iron, and they are accurate as to size. Get other tools as you can, but get them good every time, then use them carefully.

Remember that a buzzsaw is not intended to cut iron. A good Jennings bit will bore a clean hole until you run it against a nail, but it will never bore decently afterward. If you must work old stuff with nails in it use twist drills.

A SUBSTANTIAL FARM WORKSHOP.

A shop should have a loft, not necessarily floored over, but there should be stringers across to support strips of wood, lengths of gas pipe, bars of iron, etc. It is handier not to have it floored, because these things can be reached by standing on a box. They are in plain open sight and not liable to be lost or covered up.

Have hooks and brackets on one side of the shop to hold whiffletrees, broken parts of machinery and anything else that you are liable to want to lay your hands on at short notice.

Weeds in Feeds.

In a recent bulletin of the Connecticut state experiment station is emphasized the danger of the introduction of weeds by the use of feeds made up in part or in whole of grain screenings and similar materials, which, as a rule, contain a great amount of weed seed. These screenings vary a good deal in quality. Thus an analysis recently made of wheat screenings showed about 30 per cent of flax and shrunken cereal, 15 per cent of foxtails, 8 per cent of bindweeds and pigweeds, 15 per cent of weed seeds of other species and 21 per cent of dust, broken seed and sand.

Murderers in Austria.

Austria is the country most lenient to murderers. A very small percentage of those convicted are executed.

PALMETTO LANDS

THE MAIN THING IS TO WRITE TO US FOR BOARD OF TRADE FACTS.

Crops on PALMETTO LANDS were never better. We can tell you about tomato yield, fancy lettuce, and sure honest profits.

PALMETTO LANDS are being taken up faster than any land in Manatee County—Florida's best Vegetable section.

Write now to

FREDERIC P. LADD,
Board of Trade,
PALMETTO, FLORIDA

The Two Angels.

The following allegory is told among the Turks:

Every man has two guardian angels, one on his right shoulder and one on his left. In doing good the angel on the right shoulder notes it down and sets a seal upon it, for what is done is done forever. When evil is committed the angel on the left shoulder writes it down, but he waits until midnight before he seals it. If by that time the man bows his head and says, "Gracious Allah, I have sinned; forgive me!" the angel blots out the fault, but if not he seals it at midnight, and then the angel on the right shoulder weeps.

A Canine Feat.

A blind man, guided by a large and athletic dog, went down the street the other day. Just as they turned a corner the blind man's dog saw a dog it knew and darted forward in a way that threw the sightless mendicant to the ground. He was speedily assisted to his feet, however, by a waggish passerby, who remarked that he had heard some remarkable stories of the feats performed by dogs, but this was the first time he had ever known one to pull down the blind.

Forgetful.

Mistress—Did you have company last night, Mary? Mary—Only my Aunt Maria, mum. Mistress—When you see her again will you tell her she left her tobacco pouch on the piano?—Illustrated Bits.

A Curious Trap.

A curious labyrinth in which elephants are captured alive is to be seen near Ayuthia, formerly the capital of Siam. The labyrinth is formed of a double row of immense tree trunks set firmly in the ground, the space between them gradually narrowing. Where it begins, at the edge of the forest, the opening of the labyrinth is more than a mile wide, but as it approaches Ayuthia it becomes so narrow that the elephants cannot turn around. Suspecting no danger, the wild elephant enters the broad opening at the forest end, lured on by a tame elephant. The gradual narrowing of the boundaries is not observed until the elephant finds himself in close quarters. Having reached the end of the labyrinth, the tame elephant is allowed to pass through a gate, while men lying in wait slip shackles over the feet of the captives. The sport is a dangerous one, for the enraged elephants sometimes crush the hunters under their feet.

A Useful Mother-in-law.

"After all, a mother-in-law is a pretty good thing to have sometimes."

"What wonderful experience have you been having lately?"

"My wife was afraid to discharge our cook, and she wouldn't go for me, so we sent for Birdie's mother and turned her loose in the kitchen. They smashed some of the furniture, but the cook's gone."

THE QUICKEST WAY.

How One Might Travel 190 Miles in About Ten Minutes.

It is estimated that if all mechanical difficulties could be removed and sufficient power developed the minimum time in which passengers could be transported over the eighty-five miles from New York to Philadelphia would be six minutes and forty-four seconds and for the 190 miles from Boston to New York ten minutes and four seconds. A correspondent of the Scientific American who has been working on the problem says that the trains would have to be run in a vacuum to prevent their being heated to incandescence by the resistance of the air. They would have to be held in suspension in the vacuum tube through which they traveled, for the slightest contact with the sides of the tube would result in enormous friction. The cars might be held in suspension by the propulsion of opposing magnets on the cars and on the tubes respectively. When thus isolated they could be propelled only by the power of magnetism. The energy consumed in propelling the cars would be comparatively low.

To avoid shock or jar the trains would travel faster and faster until one-half of the distance should be covered and then slow down until the destination should be reached. When the rate of acceleration is just such as can be borne with comfort the limit is attained. The effect on the passengers would be a continuous pressure against the back of the seat, as when a car is started suddenly, for the first half of the journey, and then in order to prevent them from pitching out of their seats the chairs would be turned in the opposite direction for the rest of the journey, during which the same sensation would be felt.

At the speed named the passengers would be traveling for each half of the distance one-third as fast as they could fall through the same space under the attraction of gravity.

Calmness.

Remember on every occasion which leads thee to vexation to apply this principle—that this is not a misfortune, but that to bear it nobly is good fortune.—Marcus Aurelius.

Every Family Needs It.

Every body sometimes has dizziness, loss of appetite, coated tongue, yellow complexion, constipation, etc. which indicates the approach of sickness and disease. To ward off sickness they should use a first-class Liver Medicine. Such a remedy is GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR. Its timely use will prevent sickness and secure health, vigor and energy. Druggists sell it at 25 cents per box. Ask for it and accept no other. It is the best Liver Medicine ever manufactured. Address, Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Regulate the Bowels

"I have been troubled with constipation for several years, and have tried a great many kinds of pills, as well as medicine from the doctor. Nothing seemed to help me until I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills. I found the little pills very effective, and I am thankful that at last I have a reliable remedy."

MRS. F. M. DUNKIN,
LeRoy, Ills.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills

simply cause the bowels to move in a normal manner, and without the griping effects of cathartics and purgatives. That's why they are so universally used by women and children. The longer they are taken the less are needed. Natural conditions gradually being restored.

Sold by druggists everywhere. If first package does not benefit, your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

GENUINE OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS

The "GENUINE OLIVER" Steel Beam Plow, like all other articles which have gained a national reputation strictly on merit, has imitations.

But there is but one "GENUINE OLIVER" plow and it bears this Trade Mark. All others are imitations.

THE "GENUINE OLIVER" lasts longer, runs easier, and gives better satisfaction than any other plow made.

When you buy a plow be sure to get the Genuine. No use buying an imitation when you can get the real article. Wherever plowing is done in the civilized world you will find the old Original Genuine OLIVER Plows.

North and South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and the Islands of the Sea, are members of the OLIVER BROTHERHOOD, and each t stifies to the superior qualities of the OLIVER PLOW.

From January to January the GENUINE OLIVER is at work somewhere—increasing th prosperity of the country. It is by far the most popular plow on the market to day.

COME IN AND LET US TELL YOU THE REASON WHY!

f its Hardware We have it!

GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

If we have it, It's the Best!

CLANTON, WETUMPKA, ALEXANDER CITY

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

A subscriber sent us a post card last week asking us to change his paper to Mapleoville, but as no name was given we are unable to make the change. Subscribers who desire to change their post office should say "Please change my paper from (the old office) to (the new office) and sign their name.

A very light fall of snow greeted us last Friday morning, just enough to say it did snow in 1910. But it didn't amount to much and we may yet pass through another winter without seeing the beautiful.

Lee Hayes, candidate for sheriff is making an active canvass of the county, and if hard work will get a man an office, Lee surely earns it.

Senator Max Hamburger of Mobile was a visitor here for a short time last Thursday. The Senator is a candidate for railroad commissioner, and will try and arrange a few speeches for Chilton during the campaign. Mr. Hamburger is a fluent speaker, and will make an excellent railroad commissioner.

The prizes offered by the County Commissioners, in connection with the Commissioner of Agriculture are encouraging to farmers and to the county generally, inasmuch as they will lead to diversified farming. The prizes are worth trying for, and the raising of the different plants will also prove profitable.

With "The Texas Monster" fairly over will be able to chop the cotton in a most expeditious way and thus save time and money. Read the advertisement on page 4 and write Barnett for further particulars, and tell him you saw his advt. in The Banner.

Prohibited Coffee Houses.

So many coffee houses sprang into existence in England during the reign of Charles II. that he, entertaining a belief that many political intrigues had their beginning in those places, issued an edict ordering them to be closed. In this proclamation the following words occurred: "The retailing of coffee or tea might be an innocent trade, but it was said to nourish seditious spread lies and scandalize great men. It might also be a common nuisance."

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton county and State of Alabama and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against M. E. Thompson and J. W. Huff out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said M. E. Thompson and J. W. Huff, I have levied on the following property, to wit:

Two mare mules, both black, as the property of Defendant, J. W. Huff.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right title and interest of the above named J. W. Huff, in and to the above described property, on Monday, the 28th day of February, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Ala.

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 15th day of February, 1910.

JOHN S. CARR,
Sheriff Chilton County

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness described and secured by a mortgage made by Frank Gerner to E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, a corporation, dated June 1st, 1909, and said default continuing, the said E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, mortgagee, will, under and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, proceed to sell, at public outcry to the highest bidder, for cash, within the legal hours of sale, in front of the office of the E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, at Ritterville, Alabama, on the following personal property, to satisfy said mortgage described, namely:

SATURDAY, MARCH 19th, 1910,

One dun colored Ox named Buck and one spotted Ox named Bill.

This sale is made for the purpose of paying the debt secured by said mortgage, including the expenses of foreclosure.

E. E. JACKSON LUMBER CO.,
Mortgagee.

Regulate the Bowels

"I have been troubled with constipation for several years, and have tried a great many kinds of pills, as well as medicine from the doctor. Nothing seemed to help me until I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills. I found the little pills very effective, and I am thankful that at last I have a reliable remedy."

MRS. F. M. DUNKIN,
LeRoy, Ills.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills

simply cause the bowels to move in a normal manner, and without the griping effects of cathartics and purgatives. That's why they are so universally used by women and children. The longer they are taken the less are needed. Natural conditions gradually being restored.

Sold by druggists everywhere. If first package does not benefit, your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

OWS

e all other articles

rit, has imitations.

his n any other plow

Wherever plowing is lf we have it,

It's the Best!

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1910 | No. 21

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

A subscriber sent us a postal card last week asking us to change his paper to Maplesville, but as no name was given we are unable to make the change. Subscribers who desire to change their post office should say "Please change my paper from (the old office) to (the new office) and sign their name.

A very light fall of snow greeted us last Friday morning, just enough to say it did snow in 1910. But it didn't amount to much and we may yet pass through another winter without seeing the beautiful.

Lee Hayes, candidate for sheriff, is making an active canvass of the county, and if hard work will get a man an office, Lee surely earns it.

Senator Max Hamburger of Mobile was a visitor here for a short time last Thursday. The Senator is a candidate for railroad commissioner, and will try and arrange a few speeches for Chilton during the campaign. Mr. Hamburger is a fluent speaker, and will make an excellent railroad commissioner.

The prizes offered by the County Commissioners, in connection with the Commissioner of Agriculture, are encouraging to farmers and to the county generally, inasmuch as they will lead to diversified farming. The prizes are worth trying for, and the raising of the different plants will also prove profitable.

With "The Texas Monster" farmers will be able to chop their cotton in a most expeditious way and thus save time and money. Read the advertisement on page 8 and write Barnett for further particulars, and tell him you saw his advt. in The Banner.

Prohibited Coffee Houses.

So many coffee houses sprang into existence in England during the reign of Charles II. that he, entertaining a belief that many political intrigues had their beginning in those places, issued an edict ordering them to be closed. In this proclamation the following words occurred: "The retailing of coffee or tea might be an innocent trade, but it was said to nourish sedition, spread lies and scandalize great men. It might also be a common nuisance."

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, and State of Alabama and to me directed whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against M. E. Thompson and J. W. Huff out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said M. E. Thompson and J. W. Huff, I have levied on the following property, to wit:

Two mare mules, both black, as the property of Defendant, J. W. Huff.

Therefore, according to said command, I shall expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named J. W. Huff, in and to the above described property, on Monday, the 28th day of February, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Ala.

Dated at Clanton, Ala., this 15th day of February, 1910.

JOHN S. CATTS,
Sheriff Chilton County.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness described in and secured by a mortgage made by Frank Garner to E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, a corporation, dated June 12, 1909, and said default continuing, the said E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, mortgagee, will, under and by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, proceed to sell, at public outcry, to the highest bidder, for cash, within the legal hours of sale, in front of the office of the E. E. Jackson Lumber Company, at Riderville, Alabama, on SATURDAY, MARCH 13th, 1910.

the following personal property, in said mortgage described, namely:

One dun colored Ox named Buck and one spotted Ox named Bill.

This sale is made for the purpose of paying the debt secured by said mortgage, including the expenses of foreclosure.

E. E. JACKSON LUMBER CO.,
Mortgagee

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$55,370 04	Capital Stock Paid in	$10,000 00
Overdrafts	1,020 24	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	10,371 76
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	10,700 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	26,000 37
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	4,481 00	Savings Deposits	5,450 00
Other Real Estate	147 50	Cashier's Checks	100 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	854,322 35	Bills Payable	5,000 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	3,020 17		46,320 71
Currency	6,000 00
Gold	1,000 00
Silver, Nickles and Pennies	1,000 00
Checks and Cash Items	231 00
	27,561 35
Total	$92,321 64	Total	$92,321 64

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

JNO. A. THOMAS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 20th day of October, 1909.

J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAMUEL K. UPMAN } Directors.
M. L. ODELL

Statement of the condition of the Clanton Bank, located at Clanton, Ala., at the close of business October 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$ 91,327 62	Capital Stock Paid in	$ 10,000 00
Overdrafts	625 25	Surplus Fund	10,000 00
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	10,000 00	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	2,210 25
Furniture and Fixtures	5,000 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$ 73,322 17
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$50,000 77	Time Certificates	15,027 62
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	2 722 67	Cashier's Checks	125 00
Currency	6,000 00	Bills Payable	14,000 00
Gold	2,000 00		102,325 49
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,000 00
Checks and Cash Items	250 10
	62,023 33
Total	$162,326 69	Total	$162,326 69

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of the Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.

E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 22nd day of October, 1909.

E. B. DEASON, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. H. SARTOR
W. T. MULLINS } Directors.
H. E. WILSON

CORRESPONDENCE.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15, 1910

Editor Banner:—I take pleasure in advising that I have received the petition by yourself and others in reference to the proposed legislation affecting increased rates on postal matter of the second class. I have introduced the petition in the House of Representatives, and it was referred to the Committee on Post-offices and Post Roads.

Very truly yours,
W. B CRAIG.

Bethsalem.

Editor Banner—Please allow us space in your most valuable paper to say a few words about this place.

We are sorry to say that Master Ernest Pierce has been very low with pneumonia, but he is improving; hope he will soon be well.

Rev. J. E. Moore filled his regular appointment at Bethsalem Sunday.

FOUR CHUMS.

IN MEMORIAM

On the 25th of January, the family of Mrs. Sarah Matilda Blalock was stricken with uncontrolable grief when God called her from them to the "better country" she was born in Randolph, county, Ala., sixty-five years ago, her parents were named Heaton, she was married to Richard Blalock in her twenty-seventh year, he died two years ago. Her health was never so good after his death. She was attacked with pneumonia, of which she suffered much, though every thing was done for her that her affectionate children could do. She often spoke of her condition after her extreme illness and was patient and reconciled, once telling her children she felt that she "would soon be in heaven with a bright light and I want you all to come to me there." She and her husband joined the Mulberry church sixteen years ago. She ever was helpful in helpless sickness which is true charity.

G.

Won't Need a Crutch.

When Editor J. P. Sossman, of Cornelius, N. C., bruised his leg badly, it started an ugly sore. Many salves and ointments proved worthless. Then Bucklen's Arnic Salve healed it thoroughly. Nothing is so prompt and sure for Ulcers, Boils Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Corns, Sores, Pimples, Eczema or Piles. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Maplesville

Why is it that some of our bright, brainy citizens do not send items of news to the Banner every week? The material is here but the spirit seems lacking. We once had a regular contributor to the columns of the Banner and we feel sure that if she knew how much it would be appreciated she would again let us have the pleasure of reading the "Maplesville melange" in every issue of the paper.

Our school has been progressing nicely since moving into the new building, there are more than a hundred pupils on the roll. A piano was very much needed for the music pupils, but all the school funds had been exhausted on the building, so there was nothing to purchase the much desired instrument. Mr. T. U. Crumpton, always on the alert, and ready to do anything for the upbuilding and advancement of the town and community, bought the piano and gave all the time needed by the school to pay for it. We are sure it was much appreciated. As an evidence of it, Miss Wilson proposes to give an entertainment on the 22nd celebrating the birthday of George Washington and will give the proceeds to the piano fund. Her entertainments are always good and we hope for a large attendance to reward this ambitious teacher who has the good of the school so near at heart.

The masquerade ball on the evening of the 14th, which was looked forward to with such pleasant anticipations by those who "trip the light fantastic toe" was a decided success. Visitors from Selma, Montgomery, Montevallo and other near by towns were there to participate in the festivities; not being present we cannot give a description of the characters and costumes there were quite a number represented, the goddess of night in her grandeur and beauty. Cow boys and cow girls, valentine girls, Uncle Sam in all his glory the solemn old monk, clowns and trained nurses galore. This being Maplesville's first masquerade, and giving so much pleasure and merriment will doubtless not be the last.

AMI.

The woman with a baby and the woman without a baby are always sorry for each other.

The chief end of man is his foot—especially when he has to foot his wife's bills.

NOTICE.

The Commissioners Court of Chilton County hereby offers in cooperation with the State Commissioner of Agriculture, the following prizes:

For the best acre of Corn $25.00.
For the best acre of Wheat $15.00
For the best acre of Oats $15.00.
For the best acre of Sweet Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Irish Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Hay $25.00.

Parties entering contest must give their names to Judge of Probate not later than May 1 of this year.

There will be no charges for entering the contest

The rules gove ning contest will be given out later.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

Cane Creek

Editor Banner:—Please allow me a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words.

The farmers are all getting behind with their work on account of so much rain.

Mrs. Rosie Willis visited Mr. F. A. Ellison's family last Saturday night.

Misses Rosie and Carrie Lambert spent Saturday night with Mr. John Mims' family and reported a nice time.

We are glad to know that Misses Leona and Leila Gentry are up again after having a bad spell of pneumonia.

A FRIEND.

FARMS FOR RENT.

Near Verbena,

One 50 acres with 7-room house; one 100 acres with one 4 and one 5-room houses.

Near Thorsby,

One 75-acre farm with one 4 and one 6-room houses.

Cotton Seed for Sale.

250 bushels Cook's "Improved" Cotton Seed, home grown and pure.

250 bushels "Seek no Further" Cotton Seed, home grown and pure. Each averaged ½ bale to acre last year, and yield of lint from Cook's Improved was 38½ to 100; from Seek no Further was 36½ to 100 Price per bushel $1.00 cash with order.

Write F. A. GULLEDGE,
Verbena, Ala.

Subscribe for The Banner.

Absolutely Pure

Grapes—delicious, healthful—give the most valuable ingredient, the active principle, to

ROYAL Baking Powder

Insures wholesome and delicious food for every day in every home

NO ALUM

WANTED.

FOR SALE—Two Four-acre lots with 3 roomed houses on them, good wells of water; and one Store House and lot—all in Coopers, Ala. will sell them cheap. Apply to J. W. CLARK, Cooper, Ala.

An attack of the grip is often followed by a persistent cough, which to many proves a great annoyance. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been extensively used and with good success for the relief and cure of this cough. Many cases have been cured after all other remedies had failed. Sold by all druggists.

WANTED—15 or 20 teams to haul iron ore at Wesington. Pay 85c per ton; 3 mile haul; pay every two weeks. Miners also wanted. Call or write Tom Walker, or C. H. Durham, Jemison, Ala., care Shelby Iron Co.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

A few minutes delay in treating some cases of croup, even the length of time it takes to go for a doctor often proves dangerous. The safest way is to keep Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and at the first indication of croup give the child a dose. Pleasant to take and always cures. Sold by all druggists.

Reason Enthroned.

Because meats are so tasty they are consumed in great excess. This leads to stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation. Revise your diet, let reason and not a pampered appetite control, then take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be well again. Try it. For sale at all druggists.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Haslen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

Took All His Money.

Often all a man earns goes to doctors or for medicines, to cure a Stomach, Liver or Kidney trouble that Dr. King's New Life Pills would quickly cure at slight cost. Best for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Jaundice, Malaria and Debility. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

STRAYED

From my place, known as the Stewart place, one mile west of Clanton, November 29, 1909, a dark chestnut mule, about twelve years old, with scar on left shoulder. Any information should be sent to E. M. Plackard & Co., Clanton, who will pay a reward of $10 for his delivery.

H. LOCKHART.

Are You Bilious

If you are sallow, have headache, dizziness, loss of appetite, and feel badly generally, you should use a good aperient and liver regulator. St. Joseph's Liver Regulator has for many years relieved these ailments. It is carefully prepared and is believed by the many people who use it to be the best medicine of its kind on the market. It is made in both liquid and powdered form. Druggists and general dealers sell it, liquid 50 cents a bottle; powdered, in tin boxes 25 cents a box, or five boxes for a dollar.

FRUIT TREES and PLANTS

FOR SALE until MARCH 1st.

TREES—A fine assortment—adapted to this section, grown by one of the best nurserymen in the country. PRICES 12 to 15c.

Cabbage Plants 25c per 100; $1.50 per 1000, f. o. b. Young's Island, S. C.

Can supply you with Strawberry Plants—the famous LADY THOMPSON.

I WANT YOUR TRADE IN THIS LINE.

JUDSON STROCK,
Clanton.

AUCTION SALE.

I will sell at my place near Lomax, by public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, on Thursday, March 3, 1910, all my

Household Furniture
Farming Tools
Wagon Buggy
1 Milch Cow
Bees.

GEO. W. BULLARD.

IN MEMORY.

On Feb. 5, the death angel visited the home of Mr. W. M. Lambert and took away his loving wife, Amanda Elizabeth. She was 64 years of age. She bore her sufferings without a murmur or complaint. She realized from the beginning of her illness that time with her on this earth was short. All that willing friends, relatives and a faithful physician could do was not to raise her again. On Friday morning she called her husband, daughter and grandchildren around her bed and asked them all to meet her in that fairy land. She asked them to tell her neighbors, her friends and their children to meet her there. Oh, would that we may never forget her kind and parting advice. But oh, that we could hear it once more, as they were spoken from the sweet lips parching with fever. She joined the Missionary Baptist church 16 years ago and was always faithful to her Christian duty. She was laid to rest in the Mountain Springs cemetery, Sunday morning to await the judgment morning. It is hard to give her up; our loss is heaven's gain. The Lord knoweth best, His will be done, not ours.

Her grand-daughter,
SUSIE MIMS.

After Suffering Two Years Cured.

Mr. E. E. Norton, of East Point, Ga., writes: "I have used one bottle of your U-BA-CURA and it did me much good. I can't find it in Atlanta, so I write you to see what you will send me two bottles for. I have been down two years and U-BA-CURA has done me more good than all the doctors for Kidney and Bladder troubles." Druggists sell it at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Booklet sent free. Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR
Stops Falling Hair

Ayer's Hair Vigor is composed of sulphur, glycerin, quinin, sodium chlorid, capsicum, sage, alcohol, water, and perfume. Not a single injurious ingredient in this list. Ask your doctor if this is not so. Follow his advice. A hair food, a hair tonic, a hair dressing. Promptly checks falling hair. Completely destroys all dandruff.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR
Does not Color the Hair

J. C. Ayer Company, Lowell, Mass.

REMEDY FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

Go Back to the Farm, Advises James J. Hill.

NEED OF MORE FOODSTUFFS.

Movement From City to Country Will Start Before Long and Effect Will Be Felt, Says Railroad Builder—Believes Problem Would Soon Be Solved If We Could Clop Our Rush.

"Back to the soil!"

That is the slogan of James J. Hill, sage, philosopher and master railroad builder, one which he would have employed as the rallying cry for all persons interested in the solution of the problem of the high cost of living.

"The problem is not local; neither is it national," said Mr. Hill in a recent interview, adding: "It is international. All Christendom is wrestling with it. Obviously the world has reached an economic crisis. We are not producing foodstuffs enough. We must enlarge the farming area of the earth; we must apply scientific principles to farming; we must adapt ourselves to conditions as best we can while we are going through the slow, tedious process of making the soil yield more abundantly."

"The Malthusian theory of the rapid increase of population for subsistence on normal productiveness would seem to have some bearing on the present worldwide situation," was suggested to Mr. Hill.

Plenty of Land Can Be Obtained.

"Nonsense!" he exclaimed. "Agriculturally speaking, the earth is not overpopulated anywhere. There is congestion in the cities. The problem is to relieve this congestion and scatter the unproductive population to the farms. Then when we get them there we must teach them how to farm better than nine-tenths of our farmers now know."

"But the people are intensely concerned over how to bring quick relief to the existing situation," Mr. Hill was reminded.

"I am aware of that," he said. "Nobody is more interested than I am. I frankly confess, however, that I don't know what can be done to bring early relief. I fear there is mighty little that legislation can do. The statutes are already crowded with laws intended to avert just such a condition as the country is now suffering from. But they have done precious little good, if any. Within the last ten years the cost of everything we have to buy has increased about 60 per cent. Population has not increased in any such ratio. So what's the matter? For one thing, we live too high. When some ladies down at Washington the other day asked me to tell them how to stop the high cost of living I told them that if they would tell me how to stop the cost of high living I might be able to answer their question. The one is as grave and pertinent as the other.

Expensive and Wasteful Methods.

"Does your wife go herself to the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker and select what she wants after pricing the articles, or does she send the cook or the butler? Maybe she gives her orders by telephone. Both are expensive and wasteful. But this is the telephone age and the automobile age. Each is a symbol of the times. Each denotes that we are living high.

"If as a nation we could stop our rush for a few days and give ourselves over to solid thinking, to casting about us to see what is going on, the problem would soon solve itself. There is extravagance everywhere and in everything—extravagance in government, in industry, in speech and in promise. We are wasting our heritage more shamelessly than any people in the history of the world. It has been come easy and go easy with us for so long a time that we don't know how else to live.

Let's Turn to the Farm.

"But other nations seem almost as extravagant as we are, or else the articles we import from foreign countries, such as sugar, coffee, tea and rice, would not have kept pace with the increased cost of our home productions. This shows that the soil elsewhere is not being made to yield sufficiently. In a word, our best thinkers everywhere must turn their thoughts to the problem of increasing the productiveness of the soil before we can arrive at the solution. So let's turn to and solve the farm problem. It is simpler than any of the others, but it is harder to make practical use of the solution. We know how to make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, but we haven't the men and women out on the farms to do the work. So the chief feature of the problem is how to get the people back to the soil. They have got to come to it if we survive. The sooner the better.

"In the present posture of affairs I don't know how any of the necessaries of life can be cheapened to the consumer. I do know that they will be greatly cheapened and we will be better off when we add millions to our agricultural population. The movement from the city back to the country will start before long, and we shall immediately feel its effects. Until that movement sets in I have no remedy to suggest for the present high cost of living—I should have said the present cost of high living."

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Secretary of Interior Ballinger.

Secretary of the Interior Richard A. Ballinger has been kept busy of late denying charges and undergoing investigation. In addition to the probing of his official acts as secretary of the interior by a joint committee of congress, he is called upon to face an inquiry on charges of favoritism and extravagance while he was commissioner of the general land office in Roosevelt's administration.

Secretary Ballinger is a native of Iowa and fifty-one years old. He obtained his early education in Kansas, later being graduated from Williams college. Since then he has been engaged in the practice of law and has won fame and wealth. He is also the author of several lawbooks. In his youth he resided on the plains and for more than three years rode the range as a cowboy.

RICHARD A. BALLINGER.

In 1904 he was elected mayor of Seattle and, without being a reformer, put into effect many reforms that have caused his administration to be regarded as a turning point for the better in the city's career.

Nelson of Minnesota.

Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, who will be much in the public eye as chairman of the joint congressional committee to investigate the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, is serving his third term as a member of the upper house. He is classed as an insurgent. He served three terms in the national house of representatives and was twice elected governor of his state, quite a career for one who came to this country from Norway with his widowed mother when he was less than five years old and earned his first money selling newspapers in Chicago.

Senator Nelson has an intense personality. His mouth closes evenly. His hair and beard are cropped to coordinate with the square turned lines of his face. He has never been defeated in a political contest and has never been known to turn his back on a friend. Just after he ceased to be governor of Minnesota a friend asked him the secret of his phenomenal success. His reply was, "I just make up my mind what I want and then turn out and get it."

KNUTE NELSON.

Recently he received a draft of a bill from a man not a citizen of his own state. He didn't like the bill anyway, so he wrote the man:

"It will take as long to get your bill through congress as it will for a celluloid dog to catch an asbestus rabbit in hades."

GOSPEL SQUAD ON FOOTBALL LINES

Kansas Wesleyan University Men Form Novel Organization.

QUICK, SHORT TALKS THE RULE

Members of the Team Visit Western Kansas Towns and Hold a Night and One Day Revivals With Success. The Idea of the Rev. J. M. Newton, Coach of the Squad.

On the theory that the jaded public is only interested in something new in religion as in all other things Rev. James M. Newton, pastor of the University Methodist church, at Salina, Kan., has organized a football squad gospel team composed of students at Kansas Wesleyan university, and the team is carrying the gospel out over the countryside with considerable success. The students devote only their leisure time to the gospel work.

The Rev. Mr. Newton went to Salina a year ago from Boston university, where there was a similar gospel team, the first of its kind in the United States. He was "coach" of that organization, and after he had become settled in Salina he believed he saw a field for a gospel team to visit neighboring towns.

"Why not organize a gospel team here and, to give it a touch of novelty to interest both the members and the people, organize it on football lines?" he said to himself. "Why not let the young men make a fight to advance the kingdom of God, just as they make a fight to advance the ball on the gridiron?" So the Kansas Wesleyan gospel team was organized.

Have Visited Several Towns.

The business of this "gospel team" is to hold revivals—redhot football enthusiasm revivals—which begin Saturday night and continue all day Sunday. The team has already visited Solomon, Kanapolis and other surrounding towns and has made several converts. There are so many calls for dates that the "coach" has been obliged to decline many of them. He won't take his team out every week, for he says it is just like football, so far as the strain is concerned, and he does not believe in overworking the boys.

The Kansas Wesleyan gospel team when it goes on a trip takes its own chorister, pianist and quartet along, for members of the team are musicians. Raymond Ryder is the pianist, Lynn Canfield is chorister, and the quartet is composed of members of the team. The members are all students at the college with the exception of the coach, as follows: W. N. Clark, Smith Center, captain; Clayton Boddy, Norton, historian; J. M. Haney, Courtland, treasurer; Lowell Honderick, Bison; Cicil Seaman, Claflin; Walter Strite, Kanapolis; W. E. Scott, Wakeeney; E. P. Curtis, Ransom; William Warren, Chester, Neb.; Lynn Canfield, Belleville; Raymond Ryder, Kirwin.

Say What They Have to Say and Quit.

"I never let the members of my gospel team talk more than five minutes," the Rev. Mr. Newton said. "Each man says what he has to say and says it quickly. We have one good, rousing meeting Saturday night, and then Sunday we start with a sunrise meeting and get eight meetings in the day. We plan to have four of the team talk at each meeting, five minutes each. Then we have some music.

"I coach the members of the team on how to work with different persons. Every person has to be handled in a different way. With some the old fashioned holiness methods are the best, but most people prefer to have us talk to them in a plain, businesslike way. What we desire is results. We get them in whatever way seems best suited to the individual."

OVERLAND DAVENPORT.

"Hobo's Feather Bed" Indorsed as Proper Berth For Traveling Tramps.

The "overland davenport," known also as the "hobo's featherbed"—in reality a refrigerator suspended under dining cars—was officially indorsed and the bumpers were denounced at a convention of 200 tramps the other night in Chicago. The tramps drifted into the city from all points of the compass and assembled in a hall.

"New York Charley" announced that henceforth the "overland davenport" would be recognized as the proper berth for the tramp while traveling. "When they put them newfangled ice gigs under the diners they didn't suppose they was fixin' it up for us," he said, "but that's just what happened. Never again let anybody say a gent of the road rides on the bumpers."

New Santa Fe Trail.

A modern highway 275 miles long through the "short grass country" in western Kansas would not only prove an illuminating object lesson for the entire state, but for all the country as well. The people of western Kansas have started a movement to afford the world just that object lesson in road building. From Newton to the Colorado line it is proposed to construct a continuous boulevard along the Arkansas river and call it "the new Santa Fe trail."

TO TEACH CHILDREN FARMING

Experimental Plats Planned For Nebraska District Schools.

"The Nebraska farmer will find his future increased yields of corn and wheat in cultivation rather than in selected seed," said W. R. Mellor, secretary of the Nebraska state board of agriculture, the other day at Lincoln, Neb. "Because I believe this I have recommended to the state board a plan of establishing an experimental station on every county farm and, in addition, the establishment of an experimental plat adjoining every district schoolhouse.

"The large, well equipped experimental station does good work, but it does not get close enough to the farmer. If his children come home from school full of the experiments worked out on the adjoining plat the farmer is bound to take notice and to incorporate these new ideas with his work. As soon as that is done we will see larger crops. We are near the limit of increase depending alone on seed quality. Some scheme of more practical education now is needed. I may draft a bill for the state legislature embodying these ideas."

Secretary Mellor's theory has created much comment, being opposed directly to the scheme of most educators which aims at the establishment of a few experimental stations in the state, each of them well housed and well equipped. Some knowledge of agriculture would be required of teachers under the proposed plan. Provision for training of teachers along this line would be included in the proposed legislation.

PREDICTS END OF WARSHIPS.

C. B. Harmon Says Aeroplanes Will Make Them Useless.

Clifford B. Harmon, a New York aeronaut, recently said in a lecture before the Pasadena (Cal.) chamber of commerce that the day of the battleship had passed. No nation, he said, would dare to send a fleet of these to our shores on a hostile mission with so many masters of the air ready to meet it.

CLIFFORD B. HARMON.

"It has already been demonstrated," said Mr. Harmon, "that one balloon or aeroplane can carry enough explosives to annihilate any fleet in the world, while the warships would be powerless to protect themselves. The aeroplane has not yet reached its full state of efficiency, but now it insures the safety of our coasts against hostile invasion."

SKEE TOURNAMENT.

National Championship Event to Be Held at Coleraine, Minn.

Entries have been received from some of the best skee clubs in the north, and the cracks of the northwest are expected to compete in the national skee tournament, which will be held at Coleraine, Minn., on Feb. 19 and 20. The Norge Skee Club of Chicago will send four jumpers—Andrew Schanke, Ed Anderson, Adolph Swenson and Harold Smedkirk. The approaching event is arousing considerable enthusiasm among the great numbers of transplanted Swedes and Norwegians in Minnesota. Many families will attend the tournament, going miles to see the national sport of the countries of the midnight sun.

Since the great numbers of Norwegians have settled in the northwest the sport has spread to others than the immigrants and is becoming very popular in the territory where the snow falls deep and stays. It is understood that an Indian skee runner who has cast away the snowshoes of his fathers will compete in the races.

Live Fish Tank Car.

A forty-eight foot express car equipped with tanks for carrying live fish from Alton, Ill., to Philadelphia arrived in Alton the other day and will be loaded with 8,000 pounds of German carp and dogfish for sale in Philadelphia. The car is the first of its kind ever built. The water in the tank will be aerated from the air line of the train and will be filtered. It will be kept in motion constantly by air pressure and will be cooled with ice. It is said that fish thus shipped will be worth 18 cents a pound, while fish shipped dead are worth about 6 cents less.

First Church For the Yaquis.

The first place of worship ever erected for the Yaqui Indians was recently dedicated in the village of Pitahaya, near Guaymas, in Mexico. The Right Rev. Ignatio Villaespino, bishop of Sonora, officiated, and Governor Torres, a number of army officers and all the Yaqui chiefs were present. When the peace agreement with the Yaquis was made a year ago it was provided that a place of worship for the exclusive use of the Indians should be provided. The dedication of the church took place on the first anniversary of the signing of the peace pact.

SIRES AND SONS.

Mayer Briemeyer of Detroit likes to talk German to his friends.

Major General Fred C. Ainsworth, adjutant general of the army, gets up at 4 o'clock and takes long walks.

Fred D. Counties, the new president of the Chicago Stock Exchange, is one of the youngest presidents the organization ever had. He is only thirty-seven years old.

Dr. Jose Figueroa Alcorta, who succeeded to the presidency of the Argentine Republic on the death of President Manuel Quintana in 1906, is a lawyer. He still has three years of President Quintana's unexpired term to serve.

The house of lords contains a golfer who may be fairly regarded as its most distinguished as well as its most assiduous devotee of the game. This is Lord Wemyss, who, though he is nearly ninety-one, still plays three or four days a week.

Senator Hernando de Soto Money is a lawyer and not wealthy. He served in the Confederate army and has suffered for years from an injury received while on duty. He was named after the discoverer of the Mississippi river. He was born in the state of Mississippi, and his home is in Mississippi City.

Jacob Schiff of New York, the financier, has given $50,000 for the establishment of a training school for Jewish teachers. Mr. Schiff is a native of Frankfort-on-the-Main, noted for its production of famous financiers. He came to America in 1865 at the age of eighteen and has lived in New York ever since.

Captain Daniel D. Willard of South Portland, Me., who will be seventy-six years old in March, is the oldest shipmaster in active service on the Atlantic coast. He is six feet two inches tall and bears a strong resemblance to Abraham Lincoln. He has been sailing the schooner Nellie Sawyer for twenty-two years.

Tales of Cities.

Manchester, N. H., has thirty-one public watering troughs.

The city council of Cincinnati is planning a subway to connect the business section of the city with the outlying residential sections.

The Chinese city of Fuchau, which is about the size of St. Louis, gets all its milk through half a dozen "walking dairies"—that is, men who bring cows to be milked in front of customers' houses.

In the wall of a tenement house at Oak and Oliver streets, New York, are five bronze tablets. By these the passerby learns that on the site of the present building stood the tavern in which the evacuation papers were signed Nov. 25, 1783, the day on which the British army left this country.

College and School.

The schools of New York city are woefully overcrowded.

The board of trustees of the University of Pennsylvania has authorized the establishment of a bureau or institution of German-American research.

Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton university, of which he is an alumnus, is only forty-eight. He was born in Virginia and practiced law one year in Atlanta, Ga.

Within the period since the trustees of Columbia university held their regular meeting, in June last, the sum of $4,281,562 has been received by the institution in gifts from various sources, chiefly in the form of bequests.

The Royal Box.

Queen Maud of Norway, King Edward's youngest daughter, shoots well and as a child practiced daily at a target.

The Grand Duke of Hesse, who recently wrote a successful five act play, is hailed by the German press as the latest recruit to the ranks of royal dramatists.

King Victor Emanuel is a scientific numismatist and collector of coins. His cabinet contains 60,000 coins, some most rare and almost priceless. The king will shortly publish a treatise on numismatics. It will run into several volumes and will be entitled "Corpus Minimorum Italicorum."

Law Points.

A loan of money is held in Long versus Lemoyne, 222 Pa. 311, 71 Atl. 211, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.), 474, not to be within the operation of a statute preventing a member of a municipal council from profiting by any contract for the sale or furnishing of any supplies or material to the municipality.

A master is held in Young versus Mason Stable company, 193 N. Y. 188, 86 N. E. 15, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.), 502, to perform his duty to his servant with respect to the inspection of a freight elevator used as an accessory to the general work of the establishment by having it performed regularly by professional experts.

Short Stories.

Canada receives $350,000 a year from her canals.

The total area under cotton in India amounts to nearly 19,800,000 acres.

The Austrian parliament held recently a record continuous sitting of eighty-six hours.

One theatrical manager in New York reserves a box in his house for clergymen and their families one night every week. The rates are shaded, but just how much is known only to the manager, his treasurer and the clergymen.

THE SPORTING WO

Sheridan to Tour the W

Immediately after competing [illegible] national all around championship [illegible] San Francisco next July Martin Sheridan, world's famous athlete, will [illegible] this country on an around the world tour, which he expects will keep him away from America for the space of two years. Though it would seem that a westward course would be the easiest, Sheridan will work his way, making Ireland his first stop and day with his people the big [illegible] hop over to England and Scotland, then work his way by easy stages through all the athletically important nations of Europe, Russia included. From there he will go on through India and China, Japan, New Zealand, Australia and Hawaii before starting home to America. He says he will not just now of visiting South Africa, but the chances are he will take that proposition along with the others.

MARTIN SHERIDAN.

Sheridan has had the travel bug for a long time. He has seen a good deal of the earth's surface, but he would see more, and, above all things, he wants to win where national championships are held.

Gotch Touts Cutler.

Frank Gotch is credited with saying that Kid Cutler is the best all around wrestler in America to take his title when he gets ready to surrender championship title. Gotch has taken an interest in Cutler and has shown him a number of his tricks. He says, however, that Cutler has a great fault. Gotch says:

"Ideas are all the Chicago boy lacks. He cannot see ten things at once. He gets one idea into his head and keeps working on the mat, and he cannot be made to move it to one side for another. Even when I am wrestling I can see ten holds to break once. I am working for any one hold and as fast as one offers itself. I am looking for that, but at the same time I am watching closely for another.

"Cutler and I have matched strength in our arms and shoulders. He is my superior from the waist up. He is as fast on his feet, but not quite as clever as I am. He is not quite as strong in the legs as I am, but otherwise he is wonderfully as good. In my opinion there is not an American wrestler of my weight who can throw Cutler, and I believe the next time he meets Zbyszko he will turn the fat man on his back. Remember, now, what I have predicted and watch the outcome."

Tu-fman Sanders Back In G[illegible]

Millard Sanders, who was [illegible] and down the grand circuit [illegible] years ago, when John Splan, [illegible] Hickok, Charles Marvin, John [illegible] ner and the Goldsmith brothers [illegible] in the zenith of their popularity, [illegible] be seen in grand circuit competition [illegible] coming season after an absence [illegible] eral years from big ring competition.

For the past three seasons [illegible] has been training the Sterling [illegible] horses at Indianapolis, occasionally [illegible] ing to a half mile ring with [illegible] promising colt, but devoting all [illegible] attention to the Sidney Dillon [illegible] with which he has had uniform [illegible] success.

Keene Not Quitting Turf.

James R. Keene will have a [illegible] and stronger stable than ever [illegible] ing next season, although he [illegible] to carry off leading honors [illegible] with more than $112,000. In [illegible] Keene's horses won more than [illegible] 000, a world's record.

He has made liberal [illegible] this year to the important [illegible] which entries closed recently. [illegible] Keene turf venture in England [illegible] not be entirely abandoned, but [illegible] time will be devoted to [illegible] America during the coming [illegible]

Lord to Captain Red [illegible]

Harry Lord, third baseman, [illegible] the first of the Boston Americans [illegible] ers to sign for next season, [illegible] appointed captain by Manager [illegible] Donovan. Lord was the leader [illegible] Red Sox in 1909 after Doc Gessler [illegible] released to Washington. He [illegible] magnetic player, and it is the [illegible] opinion of the fans that if he [illegible] captain of the team all during the [illegible] campaign the Red Sox would [illegible] finished at least second and [illegible] possibly have won the pennant.

THE HOUSEWIFE

suring Without Scales.

following table will be found [illegible] when the housewife is [illegible] scales:

[illegible] ounce contains two tablespoonfuls.

[illegible] gram, or sixty drops, makes a [illegible] ful.

[illegible] heaped tablespoonful of granulated sugar or two of flour or powdered sugar weigh one ounce.

[illegible] liquid gill equals four fluid ounces.

[illegible] fluid ounce (one-quarter of a [illegible] gills eight drams.

[illegible] cupful of butter as large as a small [illegible] egg, two ounces.

[illegible] large or twelve small eggs [illegible] one pound with the shells off.

[illegible] heaped teacupful of butter or [illegible] and sugar weighs half a pound.

[illegible] quart of sifted flour (well heaped) [illegible] one pound.

[illegible] common sized tumbler holds about [illegible] pint.

[illegible] teacupfuls of liquid, one quart.—[illegible] Tribune.

Hints For Housewives.

[illegible] to a neat darn use old rolls of [illegible] cloth. Pieces to fit are basted [illegible] the holes and make a guide [illegible] which to work the darning [illegible]

[illegible] kitchen bouquet which is so often [illegible] for in recipes for soups consists [illegible] several sprigs of parsley, one [illegible] and one of celery, one blade [illegible] a small pepper and a blade [illegible] mace tied together or sewed in [illegible] cloth bag.

[illegible] extract should be kept in a [illegible] ce, as it loses its strength [illegible] exposed to light.

Remedy For Croup.

[illegible] one-half pint bottle to a drug [illegible] get 5 cents' worth of friar's [illegible] (not patented). Fill the bottle [illegible] best molasses, shake very [illegible] and give a teaspoonful, [illegible] less, every two hours until [illegible] better. In cases of croup [illegible] the mixture as soon as the [illegible] symptoms appear. Lay a cold [illegible] compress on the throat and cover [illegible] flannel. Wring out the compress [illegible] cold water as often as it gets [illegible]

Golden Chocolate Crumb.

[illegible] cupful of stale bread [illegible] one-half cupful of grated unsweetened chocolate, two tablespoonfuls [illegible] sugar and one-quarter of a teaspoonful [illegible] of salt. Put in a pan and [illegible] moderate oven until the [illegible] is melted and the crumbs [illegible] thoroughly heated. Fill individual [illegible] two-thirds with the mixture, top with whipped cream [illegible] and flavored with vanilla.

Best For Sheet Music.

[illegible] cabinet herewith shown is [illegible] ion of a New York man. [illegible] It is a three sided affair, revolving [illegible] a stationary stand. The [illegible] nts for the music are ar[illegible] the form of steps and hold [illegible] in a vertical position with [illegible] ch showing above the titles [illegible]

MUSIC CABINET.

[illegible] In such a stand several [illegible] ces of music may be kept [illegible] fashion, and any one can be [illegible]

A Good Exam[illegible]

[illegible] am a good example," writes [illegible] er, Okla., "of what Cardui [illegible]

[illegible] suffered with my head and back [illegible] though I tried everything, I [illegible] do me any good, until I began [illegible] rdui has surely helped me and [illegible] thankful that I have found [illegible] I feel so much stronger and [illegible] time."

[illegible] well to make up your mind [illegible] edicine you will take when you [illegible]

[illegible] ke CAR[illegible]

The Woman's T[illegible]

[illegible] will be glad to take it when [illegible] d when life seems a weary [illegible] ghts into your head, fresh cour[illegible] sick now, at least burn Card[illegible] emory, so that when you are [illegible] out thinking.

[illegible] or weak, get a bottle today [illegible]

[illegible] Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine [illegible] Company, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment [illegible]

THE SPORTING WOR

Sheridan to Tour the Wo

Immediately after competing in national all around championship San Francisco next July Martin Sheridan, world's famous athlete, will this country on an around the tour, which he expects will keep away from America for the next of two years. Though it would that a westward course would be easiest, Sheridan will work making Ireland his first stop. A day with his people the big cup hop over to England and Scotland then work his way by easy de through all the athletically in nations of Europe, Russia inclu From there he will go on throug dia and China, Japan, New Zea Australia and Hawaii before co home to America. He says not just now of visiting South Africa, the chances are he will tackle proposition along with the others.

MARTIN SHERIDAN.

Sheridan has had the travel bug a long time. He has seen a good of the earth's surface, but he was see more, and above all things wants to win where national cham ships are held.

Gotch Touts Cutler.

Frank Gotch is credited with that Kid Cutler is the best qua wrestler in America to take his when he gets ready to surrende championship title. Gotch has an interest in Cutler and has t him a number of his tricks. He however, that Cutler has a fault, Gotch says:

"Ideas are all the Chicago boy He cannot see ten things at once gets one idea into his head working on the mat, and he move it to one side for another. I am wrestling I can see ten hol once. I am working for any of and as fast as one offers itself for that, but at the same time closely for another.

"Cutler and I have matched str in our arms and shoulders. He superior from the waist up. He fast on his feet, but not quite as as I am. He is not quite as str the legs as I am, but otherwise fully as good. In my opinion th not an American wrestler of who can throw Cutler, and I the next time he meets Zbys will turn the fat man on his Remember, now, what I have p ed and watch the outcome."

Tu-fman Sanders Back In Ga

Millard Sanders, who was rac and down the grand circuit thre years ago, when John Splan, Hickok, Charles Marvin, John R ner and the Goldsmith brothers in the zenith of their popularity, be seen in grand circuit compan coming season after an absence eral years from big ring compan

For the past three seasons M has been training the Sterling horses at Indianapolis, occasiona ing to a half mile ring with promising colt, but devoting all attention to the Sidney Dillon with which he has had uniformly success.

Keene Not Quitting Turf.

James R. Keene will have a and stronger stable than ever in ing next season, although he m to carry off leading honors last with more than $112,000. In 19 Keene's horses won more than 000, a world's record.

He has made liberal nomi this year to the important stak which entries closed recently. Keede turf venture in Englan not be entirely abandoned, bu time will be devoted to ra America during the coming sea

Lord to Captain Red So

Harry Lord, third baseman, w the first of the Boston Americ ers to sign for next season, h appointed captain by Manag Donovan. Lord was the leader Red Sox in 1909 after Doc Gess released to Washington. Har magnetic player, and it is the opinion of the fans that if he h captain of the team all during campaign the Red Sox wou finished at least second and possibly have won the pennant.

THE HOUSEWIFE

easuring Without Scales.

following table will be found nient when the housewife is t scales:

fluid ounce contains two table fuls.

dram, or sixty drops, makes a spoonful.

rounded tablespoonful of granu sugar or two of flour or pow sugar weigh one ounce.

liquid gill equals four fluid s.

fluid ounce (one-quarter of a quals eight drams.

ce of butter as large as a small eighs two ounces.

large or twelve small eggs one pound with the shells off.

level teacupful of butter or ted sugar weighs half a pound.

quart of sifted flour (well heap eighs one pound.

mmon sized tumbler holds about lf pint.

cupfuls of liquid, one quart.— e Tribune.

Hints For Housewives.

ake a neat darn use old veils of mesh. Pieces to fit are basted the holes and make a guide which to work the darning itchen bouquet which is so of ed for in recipes for soups con several sprigs of parsley, one e and one of celery, one blade , a small pepper and a blade mon tied together or sewed in cloth bag.

extract should be kept in a ce, as it loses its strength posed to light.

Remedy For Croup.

one-half pint bottle to a drug d get 5 cents worth of friar's (not patented). Fill the bottle e best molasses, shake very ly and give a teaspoonful, less, every two hours until better. In cases of croup e the mixture as soon as the mptoms appear. Lay a cold mpress on the throat and cov flannel. Wring out the com cold water as often as it gets sden Chocolate Crumb.

e cupful of stale bread one-half cupful of grated un d chocolate, two tablespoon gar and one-quarter of a tea of salt. Put in a pan and a moderate oven until the is melted and the crumbs ughly heated. Fill individual es two-thirds with the mix top with whipped cream d and flavored with vanilla.

inet For Sheet Music.

ic cabinet herewith shown is tion of a New York man. net is a three sided affair, re on a stationary stand. The ents for the music are ar the form of steps and hold in a vertical position with ch showing above the titles ow: In such a stand several ves of music may be kept fusion, and any one can be found almost at a glance. To facilitate matters the sheets may be kept in alphabetical order, or the vocal or instrumental music can be separated, or both methods may be used in conjunction.

MUSIC CABINET.

Cream of Corn Soup.

One can of corn, one pint of water. Let simmer five minutes. Add three cupfuls of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter in a pan, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of onion, one cupful of milk and sieved yolks of two hard boiled eggs cooked to a bubbling. Add corn and milk; then strain. Salt and pepper to taste. This is a rich soup.

Vinegar Sauce.

Take half a cup of vinegar, one pint of water, half cup of sugar and half teaspoonful of ground cinnamon. Put over the fire in a granite or porcelain lined saucepan. Wet one heaping tablespoonful of flour in a little water and add to the vinegar when it boils.

Molasses Pie.

Into one cupful of thick dark molasses stir one teaspoonful of flour. Cut a lemon in slices, carefully remove all seeds and chop it fine. Mix with the molasses and pour into a plate covered with a crust. Add an upper crust and bake in a hot oven.

To Remove Rust From Marble.

Make a paste of two parts of soda, one of powdered pumice and one of salt. Sift, mix with water, rub well and wash off.

HIS THOROUGHBRED.

A Deal the Horseman Put Through on the Dead Quiet.

A man known roundabout as a lover and possessor of fine horses was lately driving one of his favorite steeds along a suburban road when he came upon another horse lover, almost as well known, who was driving in the opposite direction. Seemingly pleased to meet each other, both drew up alongside.

"I heard only yesterday that you'd gone away and brought back a new thoroughbred," greeted the second horseman.

"Yep," gleefully returned the first horseman; "I'm just after leaving her back home while I give this horse a little spin for his liver."

"Think she'll suit?" asked the second man, squinting good humoredly.

"Well, you know my style, o'd man. She can step along in the best class, and she's got a pedigree eclipsing any around here."

"How long have you had her?"

"Just four days," answered the first horseman in the same gleeful tone, "but I've had my eyes on her for some time back."

"Carried this deal through a little on the quiet, didn't you?"

"Yep," laughed the first man, with a head shake of satisfaction.

"Is she a record breaker?"

"Sure thing; wouldn't have any other. Wait till you fellows get a glimpse of her, and if you don't agree that I've still got my eyes for winners I'll eat the tail off that horse there."

Suddenly the second horseman leaned over toward his friend and thrust out his hand in palpable earnestness.

"Accept my congratulations," said he, "and also give 'em to your—your thoroughbred!"

"I will!" heartily returned the other man, gripping the proffered fist. "Be sure to come in and see us," he added as his friend prepared to drive on. "I know she'll be tickled to meet a friend of mine; she isn't too high hitched for that, old man. That's her winning quality. She's a wife fit for a horse judge!"—Detroit Free Press.

Rivaled Franklin.

School Examiner—Some of our greatest discoveries, my young friend, have been made by simple means. You have all heard the story of how Benjamin Franklin went out in the storm and caught the lightning.

Prodigy—Yes, and I heard you tell pa this morning that you caught thunder when you came home from the lodge last night.

A Good Example

art a good example," writes Mrs. R. L. Bell, of ter, Okla., "of what Cardui will do for suffering suffered with my head and back, for over six years, though I tried everything, I never could get any do me any good, until I began to take Cardui. rdui has surely helped me and built me up and I thankful that I have found something that will do d. I feel so much stronger and better than I have g time." s well to make up your mind before you are sick edicine you will take when you are sick.

ke CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

will be glad to take it when you are tired, mis nd when life seems a weary grind. It will put ughts into your head, fresh courage into your mind. ot sick now, at least burn Cardui on to the pages memory, so that when you are sick you will ask thout thinking.

ck or weak, get a bottle today. At all druggists.

Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., structions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent free.

ONLY A BUSINESS MAN

If Peter Jones entertained a passion for pretty Edna Fletcher nobody knew it but himself, for he was one of those honest, retiring, soft hearted natures that never tell of their finer feelings.

Discouraged by his small chances of success, for Edna, like most pretty girls, was a bit of a flirt, Peter accepted a profitable offer to go to California and leave Port Raynor.

Peter was scarcely missed in the social gatherings that made the summer houses pleasant at Port Raynor, but Edna wondered what made them all so suddenly dull to her.

She had plenty of attention from her old friends and neighbors and from all the visitors who saw her pretty face and graceful movements. But her hero did not appear, and Peter Jones was in California.

He was growing rich in California, Mr. Fletcher said, being a good business man, with a fine opportunity made for him by the firm which had sent him out.

He would find some fair, gentle girl who was not petulant and would give the return he deserved for his love and devotion, and he would marry her, of course, and never come back to Port Raynor. And here the sigh would have its way.

Mrs. Fletcher was surprised that at twenty-one Edna, the most attractive girl at Port Raynor, was Edna Fletcher still. Tom and Will were both married and living in the city, where Edna spent the winters with them and had rejected several offers. She would not acknowledge to her own heart that all her love had been given to Peter.

Three years Peter Jones had been in California and had been placed at the head of the branch house there, working faithfully in the interest of his employers and slowly but surely making his own fortune.

It was dusk on a summer evening when the train drew up at the Port Raynor station and one gentleman stepped out upon the platform.

"No baggage," he said to the waiting porter, and he sauntered up the road toward the Jones farm.

But the same road led him first to the gate of Mr. Fletcher's large, handsome house. There was no group upon the porch, as there had been always in the old times. "Of course not," the newcomer thought impatiently. "All the young folks are married and away."

He had hesitated at the gate, and he thought he could spare time for a short call, only to inquire for Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher, old friends, who demanded some courtesy from a neighbor so long absent.

He went across the grass to the low French window. This had been always his path to the house, and he smiled as he found himself on the spot where he had left Edna three years before.

"I'll go to the front door and ring," he thought, but going a moment to glance through the half closed blinds.

Two figures, dim in the gathering darkness, were on the sofa. Both wore light dresses, and they were close together, as if talking confidentially. Peter did not think that he was being an eavesdropper. He only lingered because he recognized a voice whose tones had always been the sweetest music in his ears.

"But why need I marry anybody?"

That was what Edna said. Not married—not married!

Peter did long to shout the words, but a quiet, low voice answered:

"You need not, Edna. But papa and I wonder sometimes if our little girl's heart is really so set against marriage or if she is hiding some secret from us."

"Secret! I never had a secret!"

"You are not engaged, then, without our knowledge?"

"No. How could you think such a thing?"

"And you really have never loved any of your suitors?"

Silence. Peter Jones knew that he was playing a very mean part, that he had no right to wait for the unveiling of a maiden's heart in this sly fashion, and yet he could not stir.

"Was there any one, Edna," Mrs. Fletcher said very gently, "who won my daughter's heart and did not know the treasure was his?"

A choking voice answered:

"Yes, mamma, but don't ask me who it was. He—he was—nobody in particular."

Peter Jones walked around to the front door and rang the bell. Nobody would have guessed by his quiet manner that his heart was throbbing to suffocation, his hands cold, his head dizzy with the sudden rush of great hope.

There was light in the wide drawing room where presently Mrs. Fletcher and Edna came to greet him, and Edna, prepared by his card, was self possessed and gracious. She had changed in those three years and lost her petulance, was more womanly and yet as pretty as ever. And Peter Jones knew that the love in his heart was not conquered, but strong as death there still.

"Well, just to think of it!" Mrs. Jones said when she came home from the wedding. "That Edna should refuse such splendid offers as she has and marry our Peter! She was always talking about grand, heroic men, and he has not even a name—only the one we gave him. Dear, dear!"

"You'll be contented, Edna?" Peter said when they stood on the steamer's deck, bound for California. "You know, dear, I'm only a business man there as here—nobody in particular."—New York News.

Young Folks

IN THE SCHOOLROOM.

A Few Hints For Scholars That Should Be Kept in Mind.

Don't be untidy about your dress. Keep your hair neatly combed and your finger nails clean.

Don't use your schoolbooks roughly. Handle them as carefully as though they were to last you a lifetime.

Don't be overbearing toward your teachers nor think it smart to make them dislike you. They are devoting their time in helping you to get an education, the most necessary thing in the world for a boy or girl to possess.

Don't quarrel with your school companions. If a boy or girl shows a disposition to be disagreeable it is wise on your part to give him or her a wide berth.

Don't think that by cheating at examinations you are playing a joke or a trick on your teachers and parents. Your personal education is of far vaster importance to you than it is to them.

Don't get into the lazy habit of being the last pupil in the schoolroom of a morning. Habits formed in childhood last during life, and the boy who is not prompt in school will never be prompt in business affairs.

Don't brag or boast if you are at the head of your class. It can do you no possible good and makes those above whom you take rank only hate and envy you.

Don't carry tales from one school friend to another, but learn how to respect a confidence and how to keep a secret sacred.

The Elm Incident.

Washington was taking formal command of the Continental army at Cambridge. He crooked his arm, placed his elbow against the historic elm and rested his head on his hand. Then he addressed the ill assorted gathering of patriots. In the midst of his remarks his elbow suddenly glided from the tree and Washington completely lost his equilibrium.

"Why didn't you inform me," said the great general with dignity, "that this tree was a slippery elm?"—Woman's Home Companion.

Trick With a Coin.

Half fill a glass of water and put a dime or a quarter into it. Cover the glass with a plate, upon which place one hand, while you hold the glass with the other. Turn the glass upside down, so that none of the water may escape. Place it on a table, and you will see the coin at the bottom larger than it is in reality and another will appear of the natural size a little above it.

HERE IS THE PROOF

That the best body-building and strengthening tonic for

Delicate Children

—is—

Vinol

"My 9 year old daughter was weak, pale, and had no appetite. I gave her Vinol, and she began to thrive at once. She gained rapidly in weight, color and strength."—Mrs. W. H. GILMORE, Durand, Mich.

"My two children, who were puny and ailing, rapidly gained flesh and strength when I began to give them Vinol. I proved that Vinol is a splendid tonic for delicate children."—Mrs. C. ALLEN, New Bedford, Mass.

Vinol builds up healthy flesh and makes thin little limbs round and plump. Children love to take it.

We return people's money without question if Vinol does not accomplish all we claim for it. Try it, please.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades, Crockery, Glass and Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies

We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

$1.75 The 1910 Subscription Offer—The Best Offer Made for the New Year $1.75

THE TRI-WEEKLY ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

AND

THE BANNER

together with the superb alternate FREE OFFERS of UNCLE REMUS'S HOME MAGAZINE; or HUMAN LIFE; or THE SOUTHERN RURALIST, a splendid agricultural paper; or TALKS FROM FARMERS TO FARMERS, an epitome of farm wisdom, worth its weight in gold. Your choice of one, only $1.75

THE TRI-WEEKLY CONSTITUTION AND BIGGEST SOUTHERN NEWSPAPER. ALMOST A DAILY, YET AT THE PRICE OF A WEEKLY.

MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, FRIDAY, THREE TIMES A WEEK. THE NEWSIEST, BEST, BRIGHTEST

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

or The Weekly Constitution—once a week, with each of the above (except that The Weekly Constitution is substituted for the Tri-Weekly)—all for one year for only $1.40. The Tri-Weekly Constitution presents at the sweeping view the whole area of events. The news of the country, state, nation, and the world is given in each complete issue. Each week the departments of Farm and Farmers, Woman's Kingdom, Rural Free Delivery, Poultry and others of wide interest, edited by experts, appeal directly to those addressed.

The Weekly Constitution contains all these special features and the difference between it and The Tri-Weekly is that the one is issued once a week (on Monday only) and the other three times a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

If you want The Constitution alone, without any clubbing offers, you can get The Tri-Weekly Constitution at $1 per year, or The Weekly at 50c per year, by addressing The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. One sample copy sent free on request, giving with it six of your neighbors.

The Constitution Is the Paper for Rural Free Delivery Routes

A club of 40 or 50 or more will keep an R. F. D. route above the minimum average required for daily mail service. It is the great news purveyor of the whole Southland, as good in the gulf states as on the Atlantic seaboard.

Clubbed with The Atlanta Constitution, we have the superb FREE OFFERS shown from which you may make your choice of one:

(1) Uncle Remus's Home Magazine—Founded by Joel Chandler Harris, the prince of all story writers, author of Uncle Remus folk-lore and other stories. It is the magazine of the whole Southland, it is as broad as the nation in its scope and its success is confined to no section.

(2) Human Life, of Boston, Mass., a monthly magazine of current and interesting biography. It is about folks, people in the public eye now, that you want to know about, and it is of absorbing interest from cover to cover. Be sure to subscribe now in time to get the next great issue.

(3) Talks From Farmers to Farmers, a symposium of Southern farm knowledge that should be in the hands of every practical farmer, young or old. The articles have all appeared in Tri-Weekly Constitution under same title and made one of the greatest features of this splendid farmers' paper. It will be mailed to you immediately upon receipt of order.

(4) The Southern Ruralist, one of the best agricultural papers in the south. It is a semi-monthly edited by a farmer on his own farm, and is intensely practical and helpful.

Our Great Proposition

Remember, our paper one year, and THE TRI-WEEKLY CONSTITUTION, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, three times a week, for one year, and your selection of one from the four alternate free offers, all for $1.75; or the whole combination (except that The Weekly Constitution is substituted for the Tri-Weekly) for only $1.40.

Send at once. Get right on. Don't miss a copy. Address all orders for above combination to

THE BANNER, Clanton, Ala.

THE BANNER

FRANK CRICHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR CIRCUIT SOLICITOR.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. LOYD TATE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Solicitor of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, including the counties of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

D. D. ASKEW.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Sheriff of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

LEE HAYES.

FOR JUDGE OF PROBATE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Judge of Probate of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

E. B. DEASON.

FOR CIRCUIT CLERK.

I announce myself as a candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

HUGH M. SIMPSON.

The entrance of John B. Knox as a candidate for U. S. senator has added greatly to the interest in this race, and proves the wisdom of leaving the selection of senators to the people. With three candidates before them it is up to the voters to make their choice.

John B. Knox is a gentleman well known to the people of Alabama as a man thoroughly well qualified to represent them in the U. S. senate. As a lawyer he stands in the front rank of his profession; made an excellent reputation as president of the constitutional convention, and boldly announces his position in the present crisis. He was opposed to the late amendment and heartily endorses Emmett O'Neal for governor.

Senator Bankhead, the present incumbent, seeks re-election. His position in the senate and the stand he has taken on the good roads and waterways questions are the main reasons advanced for an endorsement by the people. He also was opposed to the amendment.

Capt. White's chief claim is that he favored the amendment, which suffered such an ignominious defeat last November.

An enthusiastic rally of O'Neal forces was held at Birmingham last Thursday when many excellent speeches were made by prominent men and the prospects of O'Neal's success were augmented. From start to finish O'Neal is a winner.

What He Saved.

"Good!" shouted the friend of the bibliophile as the latter emerged from the burning house carrying a bundle of books. "Did you save your Shakespeares?"

"No," replied the bibliophile, combing a spark out of his whiskers; "I saved my Bacon."—Houston Post.

Timely Warning.

Proprietor—I am satisfied with your work, Pusher, and I will raise your salary from $10 to $12 a week; but, mind, that does not mean that you must go and get married on the strength of it.—New York Times.

Modernized.

Jason—This old sofa has changed much since we have been courting on it for the last six years. Cynthia—Well, Jason, in one way it is more modern. Jason—Modern? How so? Cynthia—Why, it is wireless.—Chicago News.

E B DEASON.

With much satisfaction we announce in this issue the candidacy of Hon. E B. Deason for probate judge of Chilton county—a position he filled, by appointment, with credit to himself and the advantage of the county for a short time previous to the election of the present judge.

It will be remembered that in the 1904 election Mr. Deason made a splendid race, receiving a greater number of votes than any former Democratic candidate for the office and less than 90 enough to elect him.

An able and conservative man, born and raised in Chilton county, Mr. Deason is an ideal candidate who deserves the hearty support of all the conservative voters of the county, and in full reliance of the wisdom of your judgment we commend his candidacy to you.

H. M. SIMPSON.

The announcement of this well known gentleman as a candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court will be received with pleasure by his numerous friends. Mr. Simpson was born and has been raised in Chilton county. Of good Democratic parentage he was early inoculated with the spirit of democracy and believes in the greatest good to the greatest number.

A young man of sterling worth, and of good abilities, he desires your vote and support in his candidacy, and if nominated and elected he will prove a valuable public official.

Lawley

Editor Banner:—I wish to write a few lines for our neck of the woods. We are enjoying fine health at present. The Sunday school at Pleasant Grove is a perfect success, I wish I could say that much about the other schools of this district.

Well I see and hear a great deal about Stock law, well I dont care anything about that, just let it roll, and give it to them long and strong because that means less stock, and more grass, nobody could object to that if we had more stock, we might mean less grass, so it is bad both ways. Well I hear something that roars like politics, I am ready for that too, there are so many officers to elect let us be careful in our selection. If we get such men as Col. Mallory and Judge Reynolds there is no room for complaint.

I noticed in The Banner someone said we will have to elect a successor to Sudge Reynolds. Well, I for one, am satisfied with the Judge. I do not think we can beat him, so ask his name for probate judge, and the man that beats him will be able to say, we liked not to have beat that fellow.

Now, I have got no politics, I don't care what party he belongs to, I do want to know something about his religion, and if he is a Christian, that is good enough for me. So we see Aunt Dinah and a few others have arranged the business of this campaign by the consent of all parties.

N. L BROADHEAD men of nobler mind manifest selves in their equitable dealings small minded men in their going after gain.—Confucius.

Tuberculosis

Plenty of fresh air, sleeping out-doors and a plain, nourishing diet are all good and helpful, but the most important of all is

Scott's Emulsion

It is the standard treatment prescribed by physicians all over the world for this dread disease. It is the ideal food-medicine to heal the lungs and build up the wasting body.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send No., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

Beat Seven

Editor Banner:—Will you be so kind to print a few lines for us to read. The farmers are trying to get ready to make their crop, but the weather being bad prevents some.

We are glad to know that Grandma Hall is much better.

Uncle John Lawrence has been very feeble; hope for his recovery.

A little girl arrived at Mr. Jim Bearden's recently.

Mr. Woodie McGee's family spent Sunday at his father's, Mr. Eugene McGee. Also Mr. Doss Williams and son, Mr. Grady, Mrs. Jane Merchant and step son spent Saturday and Sunday at Mr. John Ellis.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. William Hicks has been very sick; hope she will soon be well.

The debate at the school house Saturday night was very good Mr. Milton Lawrence made a most excellent talk; hope to hear him again.

The Sunday school is going on all O. K. May be when the weather gets better there will be a larger crowd. some says that the parents will not go; that is true, they don't go, but some would go if they could. If some of the men would stay at home and take care of the little ones for the mothers, and then tell mother to go, that they will take care of baby, and tell them they will get dinner, the mothers would be too glad to get to go if they go and take the little tots; they hardly know what is going on and maybe have to leave the house; there are plenty of mothers that want to go, but their chance is so bad they can't go every time, so if the men don't want to go, let him get dinner and take care of babies.

AUNT DINAH.

Pinedale

The school at this place is progressing nicely under the careful management of Prof. R. A Smith.

As we didn't get to recite our recitations last Friday, we will have them next Friday, and all the patrons of the school are especially invited to come.

Prof. Smith attended the Teachers' Institute last Friday and Saturday at Enterprise.

Quite a large crowd attended the fruit supper at Mr. Posey Marcus' last Friday night.

The singing at Mrs Popwell's last Sunday enjoyed by all present.

SCHOOL GIRL.

The Advertiser's Contest.

Great interest has been created in this county by the recent announcement of The Montgomery Advertiser that it would give away to popular and energetic people in Alabama and Florida more than $10,000 in prizes. Automobiles, pianos, diamonds, bank accounts are included among the prizes offered, and these gifts are to be awarded, absolutely free to the person receiving the highest number of votes in the popularity contest that The Advertiser has inaugurated.

Any white person of good character man or woman, boy or girl, is eligible to compete for the prizes, and there are no obligations upon entering. The persons receiving the highest number of votes will be awarded the gifts. Votes are obtained by clipping and sending in the ballots that appear each day in The Advertiser and by securing prepaid subscriptions, either old or new to the paper.

At least six prizes, comprising a $400 piano, a $150 diamond ring, a $100 bank account, a $100 furniture outfit, a $50 Turkish rocker, and a $45 graphaphone, must be awarded in this district, no matter what may be the vote of contestants in other districts. And every person who enters from this district has an equal show to win one of the three automobiles which are known as grand prizes and will be awarded regardless of district lines.

The contest is just starting and "nominations" are open. Bright, wideawake persons of this section appear to have before them an unusual opportunity to be handsomely rewarded for a few weeks' pleasant work among friends.

It is a simple matter to enter the contest. In this paper will be found a nomination coupon. You may nominate yourself or friend. Fill in the coupon as it directs, and mail it to the Contest Department of The Advertiser. When subscription books and full particular will be sent.

Several of the handsome prizes should come to this county, where The Advertiser has many friend and readers.

Plant Fruit Trees.

Plant fruit trees on the uncultivated spots along the fence lines and in the fields. The investment is good—adds both to beauty of farm and to the value of it. Be sure fruit trees are set where they will have sufficient drainage. Many a tree is blamed by its owner for being a bad variety when the fault is in the drainage.—Farm and Ranch.

TEACHERS TRAINING COURSE

Editor Banner:—Please allow me a short space to present a course of study to those who desire to become efficient S. S. teachers.

For a person to teach in a Sunday school, they should know at least three things, viz, the Bible, the pupil and themselves. To meet this need I recommend a book, "Training the Teacher," which is divided into four sections of ten lessons each. The first ten lessons give a vision of the whole Bible. The value of this part of the book could never be estimated. The second ten gives the nature, needs, and how to teach the pupil in every age from three to maturity. The third ten takes up the teacher, problems of teaching, methods of educating, and many other helpful topics. The fourth ten are about the school giving one many valuable ideas of ways of school and how to do the work. This book is written by four of the very best writers in each line of work represented. It is used and praised in many states. It can be had from J. T. McKee, Eastlake, Ala., for 50c, or I can send the book to anyone for the same.

Would like to recommend some books for supplementary work but will not now.

I hope to answer any question about the work. will answer a list in the paper if editor will allow space.

Yours in the work,
JEROME O. WILLIAMS.

IN MEMORY.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. John Chambers, Tuesday, Feb. 1, 1910, and took from our midst his loving wife, Mrs. Fattie Chambers. Her death was very unexpected, as she was sick only a few days. She leaves a husband and eight children and a host of friends and relatives to mourn her loss, but our loss is heaven's gain. She was kind and loving to all who came in contact with her. She was too sweet to face earth's trials and troubles, and now she has added another star to heaven's crown. We have nothing of this world's consolation to offer; we do not feel that we could speak any words that would ease your aching heart or fill the vacancy of this dear one, we can only deeply, sincerely sympathise with those in their bereavement. Mrs. Chambers was a consistent member of Mt. Carmel Baptist church and had been a member for several years.

Weep not, dear loved ones, for she has gone to rest until the resurrection day, when she will stand before the pretty white throne. She cannot come back to us, but we can live so that we will meet her beyond this vale of sorrow, where there is no more death, pain nor sorrow. The remains were laid to rest in Mt. Carmel cemetery Wednesday.

A FRIEND.

While it is often impossible to prevent an accident, it is never impossible to be prepared—it is not beyond any one's purse. Invest 25 cents in a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and you are prepared for sprains, bruises and like injuries. Sold by all druggists.

Railway Mail Clerks Wanted

The Government pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1200, and other employees up to $2,500 annually.

Uncle Sam will hold spring examinations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks and other government Positions. Thousands of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in city or country can get instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 11 Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y.

FARMERS UNION

The Chilton County Farmers' Union will meet with Providence Local No. 215, 7 miles east of Clanton, on Monday and Tuesday, March 14-15, 1910.

Public speaking first day by State Lecturer, O. P. Ford, Hon. J. A Wilkinson and a man from the Georgia division of the Farmers' Union.

Let me urge that every farmer who is interested in more scientific methods of agriculture and farm life in general, attend this meeting. Delegates and others coming by rail to Clanton will be met by conveyances if they will notify Bro. W. H. Robinson, Clanton, Route 1, five days in advance.

Yours for business,
J. M. SMITH, County Sec.

For that Terrible Itching.

Eczema, tetter and salt rheum keep their victims in perpetual torment. The application of Chamberlain's Salve will instantly allay this itching and many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

There is more to a Fertilizer than Analyses

The mere mixing of materials to obtain analysis requires no special knowledge. The value of a fertilizer lies in the source from which the plant food is obtained.

Each ingredient in Royster goods is selected with a view of supplying the plant from sprouting until harvest. The plant is not overfed at one time and starved at another. Twenty-five years experience goes with every bag.

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

Sold by reliable dealers throughout the South.

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO

CLANTON, ALA.

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Is one of the latest additions to Clanton's business center, and one of the most attractive and commodious places of its kind in town, situated on southeast corner of the square. They invite you to call on them when in town and make their store your headquarters. Their stock of Millinery is complete; their Trimmer from St. Louis is right up to date. If its quality, style and prices you are looking for, their store is the place for you. Mrs. Clara Mullins is general manager, and will be glad to wait on you.

C. R. Mullins will continue his same old business, of Fire Insurance, Life Insurance, Sewing Machines, Pianos and Organs, in new Company's store. He thanks you for past favors and solicits your future business.

Yours truly,
THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

NEW FEED STORE

At Goodgame's Old Stand, near Lowe's Shop

Handle Loose Hulls, Sacked Hulls, also a good quality of Cotton Seed Meal, Corn, and Hay.

I also buy Scrap Iron, Hides, Green and Dry Salted and Flint Hides.

BEST PRICES BOTH WAYS

CALL AND SEE ME
N. B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, ALA.

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER

TOWN ITEMS.

CLANTON COTTON MART

[illegible] to day.....14 @ 14½
same date last year 9½ @ 10c

[illegible] receipts
to 5 p.m. Wednesday.....3935

FOR SALE—One two-story dwelling, convenient to School and church. Fine water Lot 150 by 300 feet Apply to J R Mullins, Clanton, Ala.

Dr. R S Gavin will lecture at the Court House next Friday 7:30 o'clock. Admission 25 cents.

See the new line Clanton Views published by Alred Drug Co.

Mrs. Clara Mullins left last Monday for Louisville where she will spend several days getting up the latest styles for the Clanton Millinery Co.

Clanton still grows, as we learn that the building owned and occupied by J. V. Higgins, the jeweler and optician, will be doubled in capacity, that the contract for the above imperovements will be let out within the next five or ten days. The improvements being made to furnish the town of Clanton and Chilton and adjoining counties with one of the most up-to-date optical parlors in the State of Alabama. The above Mr. Higgins being a graduate optician from the highest optical college in the United States, which is the Northern Illinois College, of Chicago, Ill.

Alred Drug Co. sell Post Cards from 1c to 5c each.

Mr. D. H. Mitchell of Dry Valley was a visitor to Clanton Saturday.

Mr. W. M. Wilson returned Tuesday from the infirmary at Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter of near Billingsley visited Clanton Wednesday.

Alred Drug Co., "The Home of pure drugs; prescriptions carefully filled by graduated pharmacist with years experience.

Hon. Leon McCord of Montgomery, candidate for Railroad Commissioner, was in town a short while Tuesday.

Dr. Arthur Johnson has been appointed medical examiner of the Masonic Mutual Benefit Association, Washington, D. C.

The Electric Light Plant is now in operation. Remember, we have the necessary fixtures for wiring your house.

GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

For new Turban Crowns call on Clanton Millinery Co.

Watch out for the spring opening of the Clanton Millinery Co. Early in March which will appear in this paper. This display will be something worth seeing.

Mrs. Glennie Dennis visited Montgomery Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Mr. P D. Wilson went to Montgomery Saturday.

Spigener's cash store the place to buy shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced price in order to make room for spring and summer line.

Yours Truly,
W. D. SPIGENER.

The four year old baby of Robert Teel died Monday and was buried Tuesday.

Mrs. Heath spent Tuesday in Jemison.

Mr. Calvin Glass died Monday night.

Mr. Strouder Teel of Birmingham came down to attend the funeral of his brother's baby.

Mr. C. C. Jones of Montgomery was in town Saturday.

Mr. A. S. Baker of Randolph was a visitor Saturday.

We are agents for the International Harvester Machines. If needing repairs or new machines call on us.

GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons:

Colored: Fed Boothe to Annie Brown; Ed Goodgame to Mary Reed.

Do you know that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as a child becomes hoarse or even before the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. It is a certain cure for croup and has been known to fail. For sale by druggists.

s more
ertilizer
nalyses

mixing of btain analy-
no special
The value lies in the which the obtained.
gredient in ds is selected of supplying om sprouting
. The plant
fed at one tarved at an-enty-five nce goes with

DE MARK
U.S.R.
ISTERED dealers throughout South.
er Guano Co.
OLK, VA.

ONES & CO

NTON, ALA.

ON MILLINERY CO.

s to Clanton's business center, and o modious places of its kind in town, situ quare. They invite you to call on t r store your headquarters. Their stoc r Trimmer from St. Louis is right up nd prices you are looking for, their sto ara Mullins is general manager, and wi nues his same old business, of Fire In ing Machines, Pianos and Organs, in thanks you for past favors and solicits y

Yours truly,
CLANTON MILLINERY CO

D STORE

ld Stand, near Lowe's Sho

, Sacked Hulls, also a g on Seed Meal, Corn, and Ha

Iron, Hides, Green and Gr and Flint Hides.

RICES BOTH WAYS

AND SEE ME
N. B. TRAYLOR
CLANTON, AL

cheap at THE BANNER

TOWN ITEMS.

...Commissioners' court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July and first Monday in August and first Monday in December.

CLANTON COTTON MART
Sales to day.....14 @ 14½
Same date last year 7½ @ 10c
No. Interments to date
Warehouse receipts
to 5 p. m. Wednesday....5936

FOR SALE—One two-story dwelling, convenient to School and Church. Fine water. Lot 156 by 300 feet. Apply to J. R. MULLINS, Clanton, Ala.

Dr. R S Gavin will lecture at the Court House next Friday 7:30 o'clock. Admission 25 cents.

See the new line Clanton Views published by Alred Drug Co.

Mrs. Clara Mullins left last Monday for Louisville where she will spend several days getting up the latest styles for the Clanton Millinery Co.

Clanton still grows, as we learn that the building owned and occupied by J. V. Higgins, the jeweler and optician, will be doubled in capacity, that the contract for the above imperovements will be let out within the next five or ten days. The improvements being made to furnish the town of Clanton and Chilton and adjoining counties with one of the most up-to-date optical parlors in the State of Alabama. The above Mr. Higgins being a graduate optician from the highest optical college in the United States, which is the Northern Illinois College, of Chicago, Ill.

Alred Drug Co. sell Post Cards from 1c to 5c each.

Mr. D. H. Mitchell of Dry Valley was a visitor to Clanton Saturday.

Mr. W. M. Wilson returned Tuesday from the infirmary at Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter of near Billingsley visited Clanton Wednesday.

Alred Drug Co., "The Home" of pure drugs; prescriptions carefully filled by graduated pharmacist with years experience.

Hon. Leon McCord of Montgomery, candidate for Railroad Commisioner, was in town a short while Tuesday.

Dr. Arthur Johnson has been appointed medical examiner of the Masonic Mutual Benefit Association, Washington, D. C.

The Electric Light Plant is again in operation. Remember, we have the necessary fixtures for wireing your house.
GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

For new Turban Crowns call on Clanton Millinery Co.

Watch out for the spring opening of the Clanton Millinery Co. Early in March which will appear in this paper. This display will be something worth seeing.

Mrs. Glennie Dennis visited Montgomery Tuesday, and Wednesday.

Mr. P D. Wilson went to Montgomery Saturday.

Spigener's cash store the place to buy shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced price in order to make room for spring and summer line.
Yours Truly,
W. D. SPIGENER.

The four year old baby of Mr. Robert Teel died Monday and was buried Tuesday.

Mrs. Heath spent Tuesday in Jemison.

Mr. Calvin Glass died on Monday night.

Mr. Strouder Teel of Birmingham came down to attend the funeral of his brother's baby.

Mr. C. C. Jones of Maplesville was in town Saturday.

Mr. A. S. Baker of Route 3 was a visitor Saturday.

We are agents for the International Harvester Machinery—when needing repairs or new machinery call on us.
GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.
Colored: Fed Bootfield and Minnie Brown; Ed Gooden and Mary Reed.

Do you know that croup can be prevented? Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It is also a certain cure for croup and has never been known to fail. Sold by all druggists.

New Goods

We have them in beautiful disulay!

Call in and look around! Anv time!

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.
CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.
At a live and let live price
FONE 317

W. H. SARTOR
Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.
CLANTON, ALA.

B. E. JONES — CAFF JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF

Dry Goods. Shoes, Hats, Notions

FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully
B. E. JONES & BRO.
CLANTON, ALA.

Announcement Extraordinary!

GREAT CASH REALIZATION SALE!!!
Merchandise Doomed to the Slaughter!!

The citizens of Chilton county are to be treated to the greatest bargain event that ever took place in the history of her mercantile life.

On FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25th, C. W. REYNOLDS will throw upon the market the largest aggregation of General and Staple Merchandise ever collected under one roof in this good county of Chilton.

Genuine bargains in all departments at astonishingly low prices.

On THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, our store will be closed during the entire day to enable our clerks to mark all goods in plain figures; no goods will be sold to any one on this day.

We have calculated the amount we are able to lose on this tremendous sale and have accordingly "cut out" the profits and much of the cost.

EVERY ARTICLE OF MERCHANDISE
is to be slaughtered.
WE ARE DETERMINED NOT TO RESERVE
goods of any kind or character if price inducements will move them.
FOR FULL THIRTY DAYS AND THIRTY NIGHTS
beginning Friday, February 25th, and continuing through Friday, March 25th, this gigantic slaughtering carnival will run.
PROFITS ARE ACTUALLY EMASCULATED
and in many instances, too numerous to mention, COST is eliminated.
WHATEVER YOUR WANTS OR NECESSITIES
we can fill them, and at prices so surprisingly below what you have always paid for the same goods as to make you feel as if we had presented them to you.
SEE OUR BIG CIRCULAR
which gives you an idea of some of the bargains we are to offer you during this memorable sale. With such a large and diversified stock it would be impossible to enumerate even a small part of the bargains, but the CIRCULAR will enable you to form some kind of an estimate of the great PARLIAMENT of cut prices here inaugurated.
SAVE YOUR CASH FOR THIS SALE
do not be deceived into believing that you can get bargains "just as good or just as cheap" elsewhere for it cannot be done. OTHERS MAY strive to imitate, but not one can equal the sales put on under our personal supervision.
REMEMBER THE DATE AND REMEMBER THE PLACE

February 25th to March 25th, 1910

CHARLES W. REYNOLDS
CLANTON, ALA.

Personal.

The Clanton Millinery Co. is getting in the best line of spring millinery, Ladies' notions, and ribbon ever brought to Clanton. Mrs. Clara Mullins, manager, will leave in a few days, for Louisville and St. Louis to complete this stock and get the latest styles.

Mr. J. J. Palmer wishes to announce to his friends that he has installed a dry cleaning machine in connection with his pressing parlor: it is an up-to-date machine, and is guaranteed to clean and remove any kind of spots from clothing, ladies shirts, ties, etc. Give him a call when needing work in this line.

Mr. B. F. Massey of Route 4 was a visitor Monday.

Man is incorrigible. He swears he will give up a bad habit—and then keeps on swearing.

High! High! High!

Prices on all goods seem high and going higher except on Matting, Rugs, Art-squares, matting squares Hall-curtains, Window curtains, Window-shades, Counter pins, and Table linens etc.

These goods can yet be found at Spigener's Cash Store, at very reasonable prices.
W. D. SPIGENER.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mr. Crit Jones Jr., entertained a number of his little friends at a pretty birthday party Saturday afternoon, Feb. 12, in honor of the fourth anniversary of his birth. The attractive decorations consisted of carnations with palms, ferns and red hearts used throughout the apartments thrown open to the little folks. After being entertained with games, each one was presented with a small heart to be pined in the center of a large heart. Little Wilber Hayes won the prize, a box of candy tied with red ribbon. They then matched to the dining room, which was especially pretty. the embossed birthday cake held four red candles, at each place was a dainty little valeutine. After serving the delicious ices they were made happy by cutting a cake which contained a dime, Annie Mae Harper being the lucky one. Mrs. E. Hopkins, Mrs Sartor, Mrs. Nix and Miss Florence Hopkins, assisted in entertaining those present. Marjorie and Minnie Merd Pinckard, Annie Mae Harper, Wilber and Menta Hayes, John McKinnon, Jr., of Selma, Adolph and Lee Sartor, Willie Bell Sartor, Willie Higgins, Claudie Piper, Gladys Mae Nix, Nina Mae Sheperd Mary Upchurch, Frances Perkins, Arthur Littlejohn, John Pierce Wade, Arcie and Ruba Palmer Sallie Johnson, Sophia Mullins, Mary Sue Mullins, Zella Gullahorn, William Monroe, Margret Hester, Ralph Jones, Robert Evans, Charles Moore.

If troubled with indigestion, constipation, no appetite or feel bilious, give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial and you will be pleased with the result. These tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and strengthen the digestion. Sold by all druggists.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back of the head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this:

Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1141 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

THE LATEST AND GREATEST BRANDS
Complete Fertilizer, Phosphates and Potashes
All shipments from Montgomery
CAPACITY UNLIMITED

Private tracks in factory connecting with all railroads. No delays. Prompt-ness assured. The newest broom does the cleanest sweep. EQUITIES HERE SELL, CLEAR, PAY BETTER. SEE US ALL IN CONSULTATION FOR ADDITIONAL SALES.
Plant food from the sprouting of the seed to maturity. Destined to be the most popular brands ever offered. Unqualified merit and twenty-five years' practical experience shows us how to do it. Free Premium guides. Wagons, Buggies, Stables and Plows. Ask your dealer.

MARKS & GAYLE
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Special Notice

TO THE FARMERS

We have on hand 50 PLOW STOCKS complete, which we are closing out at $1.25, regular price, and to each purson who buys one we will give 1 PAIR OF 50 CENT HAMES FREE.

Only a few left. Come Quick.

A. McADLEY & CO.

CORNER SECOND AVE. AT DEPOT.
CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—
A. M. JOHNSON'S
CASH GROCERY STORE
HORSBY, ALA.
FOR BARGAINS IN
Staple and Fancy Groceries

Train and Track.

There are in Argentina four broad gauge railroads, three narrow gauge and two English gauge.

Electricity has supplanted gas for car lighting in nearly all state railways of Italy, Switzerland and Denmark.

It has been proved that the great railway terminals, where traffic is constant, where switch engines are shunted back and forth and suburban trains are run frequently, can be operated more economically by electricity than by steam.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone should take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS
WITH Dr. King's New Discovery
FOR Coughs & Colds PRICE 50c & $1.00 Trial Bottle Free
AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.
GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

Enjoy Good Health.

To enjoy good health keep the liver in good condition, otherwise the effete matter and bile will accumulate in the system and cause disease.

St. Joseph's Liver Regulator
(Liquid and Powders)

is old-established, reliable, thoroughly endorsed, and is specially recommended for use in all disorders of the Liver, Stomach and Bowels.

It has become popular and indispensable in a great many homes as a valuable systemic Regulator and Invigorator.

It is pleasant to take, purely vegetable, and will benefit if taken as directed.

It relieves Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, Sallowness and all disorders caused by Constipation and torpidity of the Liver and Kidneys.

It should be in every home and used by all travelers.

Its timely use will often save expensive and painful spells of sickness, and give joy and health instead of pain and despondency.

Price, Liquid per bottle, 50 cents. Powdered, per box, 25 cents. Druggists and general merchants sell it, or send to us. Sample of powders and booklet sent free on application. Address, BERSTLE MEDICINE CO.

Chattanooga, Tennessee.

DR. J. EARL GOWAN
DENTIST
Office Bolton Building
CLANTON, ALA.

THE GREEN FLAME.

A Story of What Happened In Death Valley.

By CUTHBERT BAKER.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"Father, tell us a story about something that occurred when you lived out in the far west."

"A true story about something that really happened?"

"Yes; a real true story!" shouted several children at once.

"Very well. I'll tell you what happened to Aaron Winters and his wife, Rosie, in the Death valley region."

"Death valley! That must have been an awful place."

"That's why they called it Death valley. It was so hot that people couldn't live there. Aaron and Rosie didn't live in the valley, but in a gulch called Ash meadows, not far from the mouth of the valley. But even at Ash meadows it was desolate and lonely. The couple lived in a little hut on the side of a mountain. The country was wild and rugged, so wild and rugged that no one else would live there. Their cabin was a hundred miles from the nearest neighbor. Aaron Winters was a hunter, and that's why he lived away from other people. Hunters must live where there is game, and when settlers come in the game moves away.

"Aaron often considered the feasibility of taking his wife to a more cheerful region, but he knew no trade but that of hunter. And how could he make a living except when there was game? Besides, having always dwelt away from men, how would he get on with them? If he had means to make him independent that would be another matter. He had nothing but his cabin and the game he killed. He longed for funds to enable him to make the change.

"But how could he ever hope to gather funds in a country where no man would come to settle? True, he could have all the land he cared to take possession of, but it wasn't worth anything. I have often thought that this might have been another cause to keep him there. Perhaps he thought that some day settlers would come in and he could sell his mountain side for enough money to enable him to get away. But if that was what he was waiting for he was doomed to disappointment.

MIXED IT WITH THE CHEMICALS.

"One day a desert tramp came along and asked for shelter overnight. He was the first human being that either Aaron or Rosie had seen in many a long day, and you may be assured the couple made him welcome. A desert tramp is not likely to be a very intellectual or well bred fellow, and this one certainly was not. He was burned almost black by the sun, and his clothes were dirty and ragged. But he could talk to them, and that's more than their cats or their dogs could do. And just think how the sound of another voice than their own must have delighted them!

"Rosie got up a good supper for the tramp, which he ate as though he had passed through Death valley, where there was neither flesh nor vegetable that a man could live on. After supper, while Rosie was clearing the table and washing the dishes, Aaron gave the tramp a pipe and some tobacco, and the two sat down for a smoke and a chat. Aaron didn't care what his guest talked about so long as he talked, and Rosie at her work enjoyed the sound of a voice, rough and uncouth though it was, as well as her husband.

"The tramp had visited many regions and naturally talked about them. He had been at Salt lake and told them that the water was so dense that persons bathing in it would float on its surface like a boat on water. He had been in Colorado and told them how the gold was stamped out of the rock. The last place he had been was Nevada. There are borax deposits in that state, and he told Aaron how they looked.

"Now, Aaron had often been in Death valley and had noticed something here that looked like what the tramp described. He asked how one might now borax deposits, and the tramp told him that there were certain chemicals which when combined with borax would burn a green flame. Aaron also asked the tramp what borax was used for, and he told him, as you all know, that it was used for washing purposes and that a little package of it was worth about 10 cents. Aaron thought that if this was the price what he had seen must be worth thousands of dollars.

"The next morning, after the tramp's departure, Aaron talked over with Rosie what had been said about the borax deposits. He thought it was possible that what he had seen in Death valley might be borax. But even if he went there he had no means of discovering whether what he had seen was borax or ordinary soil.

"'Rosie, dear,' said Aaron, 'I would like you to go to a town where you can get these chemicals for testing borax, but it will require a week or two, during which I shall have to stay here alone. Then when you come back we shall have to make a trip to Death valley, and after all our trouble there isn't one chance in a dozen that what I have seen there will turn out to be borax.'

"'I really think, Aaron,' replied the wife, 'that the chances don't warrant the trouble, but I'm worn out with this desolation and am yearning to see people. I feel as if I must have one of my own sex to talk to, even if only for a day.'

"'Well, sweetheart, go, but don't stay any longer than to have a good chat, for I'm very anxious to make the test.'

"So the next day Aaron took her where she could get some one to take her on farther and left her to go back to the cabin. As she kissed him goodby she looked at him wistfully and said:

"'Aaron, I won't leave you again. I know how lonely you are without me, how hard it is for you to have to get your meals, and I worry for fear something will happen to you. What would you do while I am away if you should become sick or meet with an accident?'

"'Never mind about that, Rosie. Bring back the chemicals as soon as you can.'

"'Oh, there's nothing in that, Aaron. Don't think about it. You're sure to be disappointed.'

"They parted, Rosie going on and Aaron going back to the cabin. It seemed very quiet there without his wife, and he wished it was the end instead of the beginning of their separation. After he had cooked and eaten his supper he sat smoking his pipe, thinking about what the tramp had told him. He realized that there was scarcely a chance of what he had seen being borax, but the thought of what would happen if it should be borax sent a thrill all through him. He would be the only person to know it, and no one was likely to come into Death valley to learn of the secret before he had established his legal claim to all the property he cared to possess.

"In ten days Rosie came back with a substance she had obtained from a chemist. But neither she nor Aaron thought much about this, they were so glad to meet again. After a day or two Rosie spoke of it and asked her husband when he was going to Death valley. He said he dreaded to go, for he felt sure he would have his trouble for nothing. But Rosie said that since they had the materials they might as well make the trip and she would go with him.

"So the next day Rosie spent the morning preparing a lunch of antelope steak—this was all there was, since they lived only on game—and in the afternoon they set out for the valley.

"They reached their destination some time before sunset, and, having procured some of the substance they had gone for, they mixed it with the chemicals. But they did not wish to ignite it till night came, because they might not be able by daylight to tell whether or not the flame was green. More than an hour must elapse before it would be dark, and they spent the interval in suspense, so much depended on what they hoped for. Aaron did not care so much for himself directly. It was of Rosie he was thinking. For years he had kept her in a wilderness, and now if this substance were borax he could take her wherever she cared to go. While he was thinking of this the wife's mind was full of dread lest her husband, who had built great hopes on this matter, should be disappointed.

"The sun set, darkness came, and yet Winters delayed to apply the match.

"'Why don't you light it, Aaron?' asked Rosie.

"Aaron made no reply. None was needed. His wife knew he dreaded the disappointment that both felt was almost sure to come. They had had no careful description of the appearance of the substance the tramp had seen, and even if they had there might be resemblance without the substances being at all alike. What folly to expect that they were the same!

"Then Aaron scratched a match and held it to the combination. It blazed up in a bright flame.

"'It burns green, Rosie!' he shouted. 'We're rich!'

"So they were for people who had been so poor. They sold their property for $20,000.

"But they were not city people and would not enjoy a city life. Therefore the fortune they acquired was all they needed to make them comfortable and happy. They bought a ranch in Nevada, where they enjoyed a country life and had all the neighbors they wished for.

"That's the story, my dears, as I heard it, and I think it's about as it happened. The west is full of such wonderful cases of people without money, even in rags, lighting upon something of great value to make them rich. It was not riches that Aaron Winters and his wife required to make them happy, but sufficient means to enable them to leave the Death valley region."

Points For Mothers

Here are ten don'ts that mothers would do well to observe:

Don't yell "shall" and "shan't" and "must" at the little ones or they may wish they had been born before their parents.

Don't tell your children how sweet and good you were as a child, for they may not believe you, judging from their acquaintance of you in later years.

Don't tell the little ones about the early bird and the worm. It's a wormy old chestnut anyway, and, besides, sleep is worth more than worms any day.

Don't hold up some other little girl or boy to your children for them to imitate. They probably know the child better than you do.

Don't send your little ones supperless to bed. If you were hollow you would toss all night.

"Don't whip your children. It is barbarous. If you must do something in that line, kick yourself.

Don't lie to your children and then scold them for lying. Remember who was the father of lies.

Don't try to break their wills. Better break their necks.

Don't act as if superintending a gang of Italians when speaking to your children. You may prevent them from admiring you.

Don't fail to consider that a child has feelings of its own which in contrast to your own best are still as unsullied as snow and as fair as heaven. This may make a better man or woman of you.

Baby's Morning Bath.

Some mothers will bathe baby's body regularly, yet not always wash its head. The baby's head should be washed every day, and it is better to do this at first. While the baby is still in your lap, undressed, but covered with a baby's blanket, wash its face and dry it; wash out its mouth with clean warm water or a weak solution of boric acid; wash each eye separately, then soap its head thoroughly, then soap its body, and then, with a firm hold, as follows:

With the palm of your left hand under the baby's back and with two fingers around its arm, with your right hand firmly hold him by the legs; then place him in his bathtub, still supporting his head with your left hand, and with your right hand wash carefully. Do not get the soap in his eyes.

The baby will enjoy this hugely, and even a young baby will splash and think it great fun.

The baby should be dressed quickly, but not hurriedly.

Have each piece of clothing warm, so that the baby will have a warm, cozy feeling after it is dressed.

When giving baby his bath be sure to have everything you can possibly need ready at hand.

Cure For Nail Biting.

Nail biting is a very common habit among children and is often the result of an extremely nervous temperament.

It is a good plan to take such a child to a doctor, who will probably give him a good tonic to brace up the nervous system.

The child should also have pointed out to him how ugly his nails and fingers are getting. Show him how to keep his nails clean and well trimmed and try to induce him to take a pride in them.

A good plan is to interest him in kindergarten work of some kind that will keep both his hands and brain employed. If this is done the chances are that very soon the habit will disappear.

Elderly People Helped Free

The last years of life are the sweetest, and yet the most difficult to prolong. It is then that the greatest care is exercised in maintaining bodily health. But the chief care should always be with regard to the food you eat and whether you are digesting it properly. You should not allow yourself to become constipated.

No doubt you have tried salts and cathartic pills, purgative tablets, etc., and have come to the conclusion that they are violent in action and do but temporary good. Listen, then, to the voice of experience with regard to a wonderful and mild laxative, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is not new, only we are trying to find new friends for it.

A. A. Felts, of Johnston City, Ill., suffered from stomach trouble for six years and found his cure in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. His wife uses it too with success. We could name hundreds of others. Some heard of it first through neighbors or friends; others through the doctor's offer to send any sufferer from a stomach, liver or bowel complaint a free sample bottle for trial, without charge. If you will send your name and address he will send you a trial bottle direct to your home. If it proves itself as he claims then continue the treatment by buying a 50-cent or $1 bottle of your druggist, as all of them sell it. Old people, like children, should look for purity, and it is well to mention that the purity of this remedy is vouched for with the U. S. government. Also, though a free bottle is sent to prove its merits, results are always guaranteed from the regular bottles bought of druggists, who will refund your money if it does not satisfy you. Send at least for the free test bottle today.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 200 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug co

The Farmer and the Incubator.

One point, and an important one, in favor of the incubator is the fact that it can be put to work early turning out chicks, and consequently the farmer can have all the March or April chicks he desires, says the Poultry Tribune. The cockerel from these hatches will be ready for the market at a time when they will bring the best prices, which is not possible, in any considerable number at least, in the case of hen hatched chicks for the simple reason that it is impossible to get a sufficient number of broody hens so early in the season. The pullets from these early hatches will begin laying early in the fall, while the hens are in molt and when eggs are high in price, and if given proper care will keep it up all winter. Early pullets properly cared for make the best of winter layers.

Selecting Brood Sows.

Prolificacy usually is a family characteristic, and it is wise to select a prospective brood sow from a large litter of robust pigs. The strongest pigs of a litter most suitable for prospective sows usually nurse from the teats nearest to the front of the udder. The prospective sow may therefore be chosen before she is taken from her dam. In selecting brood sows the highest possible standard of excellence should be retained, and all others should be marketed for pork.—Professor Fuller, Wisconsin Experiment Station.

President Helps Orphans.

Hundreds of orphans have been helped by the President of the Industrial and Orphan's Home at Macon, Ga., who writes: "We have used Electric Bitters in this Institution for nine years. It has proved a most excellent medicine for Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles We regard it as one of the best family medicines on earth." It invigorates all vital organs, purifies the blood, aids digestion creates appetite. To strengthen and build up pale, thin, weak children or run down people it has no equal. Best for female complaints. Only 50c. at Upchurch Drug Co.

Good Whiskey Stimulates

the circulation of the blood—makes the liver active and the bowels regular. For most headaches and simple complaints it is better than any drugs or medicines. Next time you feel "run down" or ill, try

Sunny Brook
THE PURE FOOD
Whiskey

It is bottled in bond, therefore absolutely pure, natural, straight whiskey, mellowed by age only and with a delicious flavor. Used judiciously, its effect is both invigorating and exhilarating. The "Green Government Stamp" on each bottle is the official proof that it has been distilled, aged and bottled under the supervision of U. S. Government Inspectors.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jessamine Co., Ky.

4 FULL QUARTS $5
BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	Chattanooga, Tenn
M. Markstein	123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	836 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St. "
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd.	841 Magazine St. "
Estate of Charles Feahney	511 Pampart St. "
Grell Trading Co.	Pensacola, Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar	Pensacola, Fla.
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the SOUTHERN RURALIST is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The RURALIST pays $20.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 100,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WR S

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; F. J. Merriam, C ar- ment; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Statio ure Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment S iry; Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock D Dr. C. A. Cary, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural ter- inary Department; Judge F. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; M Mer- riam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.

By special arrangement with the SOUTHERN RURALIST we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

THINK OF
Mexican Mustang Liniment
AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU.

Relief from pain that might otherwise cause you hours of agony.

Tired out muscles eased up and made ready for another day's work.

Lameness in the back and shoulders promptly cured and stiff joints limbered up.

Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Mashes rendered painless and quickly healed.

Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica robbed of their anguish and banished forever.

Ulcers, Old Sores and Open Wounds healed promptly and permanently.

The first application of Mexican Mustang Liniment subdues the pain but it continues its work until every quivering nerve is soothed and quieted.

The great penetrating power of this famous remedy enables it to do this quickly and positively.

In all cases of Sprains, Bruises or Lameness, Mexican Mustang Liniment should be rubbed in persistently.

The antiseptic qualities of this old reliable household remedy make it safe and sure.

Prices 25c., 50c., $1.00 per bottle. For sale by all Druggists. LYON MFG. CO. 41 to 45 So. 5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

ONIONS FOR SOUVENIRS.

Some Huge Specimens That Weighed Two Pounds Each.

The onions shown in the [illegible] are the Bermuda or Giant [illegible] species. They were grown [illegible] Island, New York, and weigh [illegible] pounds each. Twenty-eight [illegible] make a bushel. They were [illegible] from Gibraltar seed and [illegible] the open. The onions are [illegible] that one of them fills a quart [illegible] and more, and they run [illegible] to the acre.

The cost of raising an [illegible] is something which is [illegible] thing to get at and varies [illegible] onion raiser on every acre [illegible] and will continue to do so as [illegible] nature sees fit to absolutely [illegible] run on any set schedule which [illegible] not vary one iota from year [illegible] and nature has so declined since [illegible] creation of the world. [illegible] the same year upon contiguous [illegible]

GIANT GIBRALTAR ONIONS.

the cost per acre to John Smith very greatly from that of the [illegible] friend Bill Jones or Jack Robinson. This will continue until such time [illegible] human beings become exactly alike in stature, in weight, in temperament and in sensitory attributes.

While these were by no means the largest onions grown from seed [illegible] were what would be called first-class sorters. The largest onions were sent to Long Island's county and state fairs at which the exposition [illegible] tions have made exhibits and [illegible] of our largest Giants have been [illegible] ged by visitors who wished to [illegible] souvenirs.

It is needless to explain that the superb Gibraltar onion will be sold at any of the prices dictated by the controllers of food supply, for such superb examples of vegetable growth are eagerly sought for at very high prices paid by noted restaurateurs establishments, private and public, in great cities.

Onions from these seeds grew to the measured bushel; selected [illegible] 28 to the measured bushel; [illegible] onions weighed 52 pounds to the bushel; selected onions weighed 55 pounds to the bushel; height or thickness [illegible] 4 inches; flattest, 3½ inches; most globular, 4¼ inches; circumference average 16 23 inches; greatest, 20 inches; least, 15⅝ inches; weight average 2 pounds; heaviest, 2⅝ pounds; lightest, 1¾ pounds.

The Fool and the Auto

If a man should put rubber tires on the wheels of a locomotive and run it the same at express speed or anywhere near it over an ordinary highway he would be pronounced a suitable candidate, says an exchange. Yet that is exactly what men presumably of sound mind are doing every day with their motorcars. An automobile is practically a locomotive, and, like the latter, it can be driven with safety only at a speed faster than a jog trot on specially prepared track free from obstructions that might derail it, collide or cause it to collide with telegraph poles and other things at the roadside. An elaborate system of signals is required to prevent collisions between locomotives on the same track, our road locomotives zigzag at will, even add treacherous roads are full of "hairpin" curves on steep grades that take a hundred other characteristics that would make a railroad engineer stand on end. The daily list of automobile fatalities ought to strengthen the conviction that common roads are not built for running locomotives, even the lowest speed now allowed by law and that the regulation of automobiles needs to be made stricter and unflinchingly enforced rather than relaxed.

Onion Queen of North[illegible]

Miss Alice Turner of Dayton is being dubbed the onion queen of the Pacific northwest. Last year she planted and harvested ten acres of onions and cleared above all expenses $8,330. The crop was an immense one, being raised on irrigated and watered with artesian water. Miss Turner came into possession of the small farm by the death of her father a year ago. She was at a loss to know what to do with the old homestead, when she decided to become an onion grower all by herself. She engaged men to plow about [illegible] acreage to onion seed and during the summer superintended the hoeing and watering of the crop. In spite of many scoffings from neighbors her declared onions would be a success. Last fall, she persevered and was envied by all. The total crop was purchased by a New York commission man for distribution to markets in the east. Miss Turner now [illegible] events a sack for the onions and yielded nearly 1,000 sacks.

Stimulates
the liver active and the
and simple complaints it
nes. Next time you feel

Brook
FOOD
key tely pure, natural, straight

th a delicious flavor. Used ting and exhilarating. The h bottle is the official proof bottled under the super-
rs.
., Jefferson Co., Ky.

ARTS—$5
PREPAID
Distributors:

Chattanooga, Tenn
more St., Cincinnati, O.
s St., New Orleans, La
res St
sine St
part St
Pensacola, Fla.
Memphis, Tenn
Pensacola, Fla.
Jacksonville, Fla.

MITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
O. D.

Your Home
THE outhern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

he Greatest Agricultural Paper in South today. It covers every dement of the farm and home. We examined it carefully, and con-
THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
most valuable premium we can r our readers. It comes twice a nth—24 times a year. A sample y will be mailed free to any one request.

he most valuable thing about the ern Ruralist is the Prize Spe-which are published on the first ch month. The Ruralist pays each month for the best arti-
its subscribers on special ects, such as Fall Plowing, Poul-
, Farm Tools, Garden-
, Growing, Stock Raising,
, etc. These articles come ery part of the country. They tten by men who do the work e actual experience. They you as nothing else will.

D STAFF WI S
. J. Merriam, C areriment Station ure
a Experiment iry;
, Live Stock Dr.
Agricultural ter-
Department; M Mer-
in every number.

ition to the man who will take r two papers for the price of one.
Ruralist we are able to offer
this paper at ralist for $1.00.

ent
Mexican Mus-
he pain but it
ery quivering
ted.
ower of this it to do this ises or Lame-ng Liniment
stently.
this old relia-
ke it safe and
OOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

ONIONS FOR SOUVENIRS.

Some Huge Specimens That Weighed Two Pounds Each.

The onions shown in the illustration are the Bermuda or Giant Gibraltar species. They were grown on Long Island, New York, and weigh two pounds each. Twenty-eight of them make a bushel. They were raised from Gibraltar seed and matured in the open. The onions are so large that one of them fills a quart basket and more, and they ran 1,035 bushels to the acre.

The cost of raising an acre of onions is something which is not an easy thing to get at and varies with every onion raiser on every acre every year and will continue to do so as long as nature sees fit to absolutely decline to run on any set schedule which shall not vary one iota from year to year, and nature has so declined since the creation of the world. Further, even the same year upon contiguous acres the cost per acre to John Smith will very greatly from that of the cost to friend Bill Jones or Jack Robinson. This will continue until such time as human beings become exactly similar in stature, in weight, in temperament and in sensitory attributes.

GIANT GIBRALTAR ONIONS.

While these were by no means the largest onions grown from seed, they were what would be called firsts by sorters. The largest onions were sent to Long Island's county and outside fairs at which the experimental stations have made exhibits, and many of our largest Giants have been begged by visitors who wished them for souvenirs.

It is needless to explain that this superb Gibraltar onion will not be sold at any of the prices dicted out by the controllers of food supply, because such superb examples of vegetable growth are eagerly sought for and very high prices paid by noted epicurean establishments, private and public, in great cities.

Onions from these seeds grew 50 to the measured bushel; selected onions, 28 to the measured bushel; unsorted onions weighed 52 pounds to bushel; selected onions weighed 55 pounds to bushel; height or thickness, average 4 inches; flattest, 3½ inches; most globular, 4¼ inches; circumference, average 16 2-3 inches; greatest, 19½ inches; least, 15¾ inches; weight, average 2 pounds; heaviest, 2¾ pounds; lightest, 1¾ pounds.

The Fool and the Auto.

If a man should put rubber tires on the wheels of a locomotive and drive the same at express speed or anywhere near it over an ordinary wagon road he would be pronounced a suicidal lunatic, says an exchange. Yet this is exactly what men presumably of sound mind are doing every day with their motorcars. An automobile is practically a locomotive, and, like the latter, it can be driven with safety at any speed faster than a jog trot only on a specially prepared track free from obstructions that might derail it, ditch it or cause it to collide with rocks, telegraph poles and other things by the roadside. An elaborate system of signals is required to prevent collisions between locomotives on the rails, but our road locomotives zigzag over uneven and treacherous roadbeds, turn "hairpin" curves on steep grades and take a hundred other chances that would make a railroad engineer's hair stand on end. The daily bulletin of automobile fatalities ought to bring the conviction that common roads are not built for running locomotives at even the lowest speed now authorized by law and that the regulation of automobiles needs to be made stricter and unflinchingly enforced rather than liberalized.

Onion Queen of Northwest.

Miss Alice Turner of Dayton, Wash., is being dubbed the onion queen of the Pacific northwest. Last season she planted and harvested ten acres of onions and cleared above all her expenses $8,330. The crop was an immense one, being raised on new land and watered with artesian well water. Miss Turner came into possession of a small farm by the death of her father a year ago. She was at a loss to know what to do with the old home and her mother, when she decided to become an onion grower all by herself. She engaged men to plow and plant her acreage to onion seed and throughout the summer superintended the weeding and watering of the crop. In spite of many scoffings from neighbors, who declared onions would be worthless last fall, she persevered and now is envied by all. The total crop was purchased by a New York commission man for distribution to merchants in the east. Miss Turner realized 75 cents a sack for the onions, which yielded nearly 1,000 sacks an acre.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson IX.—First Quarter, For Feb. 27, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. vii, 13-29. Memory Verses, 13, 14—Golden Text, Matt. vii, 21—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Life eternal is the gift of God in Christ Jesus and can be obtained only as a free gift wholly apart from any works or merit of ours. But He came to give us not merely life, but life abundantly (Rom. vi, 23; John x, 10). All who have eternal life shall enter the kingdom, but there may be an abundant entrance into the kingdom (John iii, 3, 5; II Pet. i, 10, 11). There may be a saved soul and a lost life, a saved soul and no service to be rewarded, no crowns to cast at His feet, but such is not His desire for His redeemed (I Cor. iii, 11-15; II John 8; Rev. iv, 10). Concerning life as the gift of God, Jesus Christ Himself is the way, and the only way, for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved (John xiv, 6; Acts iv, 12). While any one who will may enter through this strait gate upon this narrow way, comparatively few find it because few are willing to acknowledge themselves lost and deserving of hell and, pleading guilty, put all their trust in the precious blood of Christ.

The gate is entirely too strait for any who insist upon bringing with them a single shred of their own righteousness, and the way is too narrow to permit any but the Lord Himself and those who are wholly His to walk with us in it. Let us, however, praise God for the words "Him that cometh" and "whosoever will." In Luke xiii, 24, 25, we read that a time will come when many will seek to enter in and shall not be able, but that time is not yet, for the door is still open and the Lord waits to be gracious, has not yet risen up to shut the door. The false prophets are abounding more than ever in these days, concerning whom the Lord said long ago, "I have not sent these prophets, yet they ran; I have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied;" "They are prophets of the deceit of their own heart" (Jer. xxiii, 21, 26). Those who deny the supernatural birth of Christ or His deity or His suffering in the sinner's stead or His literal resurrection from the dead are not bearing messages from God, but from the great adversary. Yet multitudes are willingly deceived by the god of this world, who is in so many ways blinding the minds of them who believe not.

Many of those who deceive and are being deceived seem to bear a form of good fruit, but that cannot be good fruit in the sight of God which does not proceed from the True Vine. The Lord Jesus said that false Christs and false prophets should arise who would show great signs and wonders and, if possible, deceive the very elect (Matt. xxiv, 24). The Spirit through Paul said that Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light (II Cor. xi, 14).

While it is true that God gives eternal life as a free gift to all who truly believe, apart from any works of ours, as the Spirit teaches everywhere, yet it is equally true that no mere word of mouth which is not born of the heart amounts to anything, and where there is a living faith, a faith that saves, there will be a life corresponding. "Not every one that saith, but he that doeth." The light must shine, the works must be manifest, according to Eph. ii, 10; Tit. iii, 8. But these works must be works wrought by God through us; otherwise, however good they may seem to men, they will not stand. According to verse 22, there may be teaching and casting out demons and many wonderful works, but all disowned of God. Note carefully this teacher who says, "Many will say to me in that day; • • • then will I profess to them: I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity." He is the same King who will say to some, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels" (xxv, 41). He is the appointed judge of all mankind, to whom every one shall give account, either at His judgment seat for believers or at the great white throne a thousand years later. Jesus is God, the only Saviour of sinners, the Great Head of the church, the Messiah of Israel, the King of kings and Lord of lords, the only one with whom we have to do, and with us it is a question of life or death.

Shall we hear His word and believe it and receive Him and live, or shall we turn our backs upon Him and His word and make lies our refuge and perish? His word is truth; He is the truth and the only foundation. All else is a lie and from the adversary, but His wrath shall sweep away the refuge of lies (Isa. xxviii, 16, 17). We are either in the ark and safe from the coming storm or outside and under the wrath of God. We do not wonder that the people recognized an unusual power in His words, for in Him was fulfilled the prophecy, "I will put My words in His mouth, and He shall speak them unto them all that I shall command Him" (Deut. xviii, 18). If we are His faithful messengers and will speak only His message we can count upon His honoring His own word, even as He assured Jeremiah (Jer. i, 7-9) and the apostles (Matt. x, 20, 40) and manifested it in Stephen and the others (Acts ii, 41; vi, 10; x, 44; xiv, 1).

HINTS FOR FARMERS

A Place For Everything.

Recently I stepped into a farmer's barn and looked about, writes a correspondent of Farm and Fireside. The harness was thrown on the hall floor in a promiscuous heap. The saddles were over in a corner, and I noticed the mice had been working on them. A currycomb and brush and three horse blankets lay near by. The hallway seemed to be a general "catch all." I even noticed a hatchet and saw lying loose, and several halters were stretched across the floor.

The owner of all this material was as slovenly with his farming as with his barn. There was no air of prosperity about his place.

A short time afterward I was in the barn that belonged to this man's neighbor, and it showed a different view. The owner seemed to have a place for everything. In the hallway was the harness, but each set hung on its own peg. A box near the stalls contained brush and currycomb. At one end of the hallway I found a miniature workshop and bench, and every tool was in its place. Horse covers and halters hung on nails in their corners, and everything about had the appearance of neatness. Needless to say, it was a prosperous, up to date farmer who owned this barn. Everything about the place showed the touch of his skilled hand.

Winter Manuring.

Some farmers condemn the practice of spreading stable manure on frozen land as wasteful and extravagant. Other prosperous men are enthusiastic in their praise of winter manuring. This difference of opinion is based partly, but not altogether, on experience obtained under different conditions.

I believe that the opinion that this method is wasteful is usually based on prejudice only.

Manure drawn out and spread from day to day in winter, on grass lands especially, I have found beneficial. It retards the melting of the snow, protects from the cold winds, and as the snow melts its juices are carried down to the roots, which hastens the growth of the grass. In the summer this manure protects the roots from the sun, and through increased growth of the top and the roots the humus in the soil is increased and the productiveness of the soil benefited.—Cor. Farm and Fireside.

Poultry Notes.

If the rats are destroyed now they cannot harm the little chicks later on.

Were chicken houses disinfected occasionally there would be fewer outbreaks of disease.

When killing meat animals do not neglect to save some of the scraps to feed the hens and ducks.

Any arrangement for supplying fresh water at all times is well worth serious consideration and installation.

In charcoal nature has provided a simple remedy for many of the common poultry ailments. Provide plenty of it.

There is no gift required for successful poultry raising. Plain common sense and willingness to work are the essentials.

Small potatoes and turnips saved when the crops were gathered are valuable poultry food at this time if well chopped.

Daly's Impecunious Employe.

Augustin Daly had in his employment a man who always addressed him a note periodically asking for an advance of money. This note was invariably answered by a most abusive letter in almost insulting terms and threatening instant discharge if the offense was ever repeated—and inclosing a check for the money!

At regular intervals of about three months the man invariably made the same request, with the same results, always, however, getting a check inclosed. And thus it continued until Mr. Daly's death.

The Best Kind Of Life Insurance is health insurance. The best way to insure the health of your family when any member gets in a "run-down" condition, is to use a tonic that removes the cause of the ill-health. Such a tonic is

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

A "run down" condition is generally due to the failure of the digestive organs to properly digest the food. Dr. D. Jayne's Vermifuge tones up the digestive organs so that they supply the body with proper nourishment, and in this way bring about lasting health. Ordinary tonics simply supply food material in predigested form, and consequently are only effective as long as the tonic is taken.

Sold by all Druggists—two sizes, 50c and 35c.

Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant has been relieving and curing Coughs, Colds, and similar ailments for nearly four generations.

The Bird Sellers.

Arrange the players in a row, leaving two outside. These two represent the bird buyer and seller. Give to each child the name of some bird. One will be a crow, one a crane, others a lark, a robin, a canary, and so on.

One bird dealer says to the other, "I wish to buy a bird."

"What kind?" inquires the other.

"A bird that can fly swiftly," says the first buyer.

"Very well. Take what you wish."

"Then," says the first buyer, "I'll take a robin."

So soon as he says this the "robin" child must jump out of the row and run around, trying to escape. If the dealer catches the bird before it gets back to its place it stays out until the other birds have been selected and caught.

Vin-O-Vitae a Great Female Remedy

This remarkable remedy which has been used with great success for many years in the treatment of female diseases is composed of roots, herbs and barks of unquestionable merit. Its history is ablaze with success in benefiting and curing many dis eases with which women are afflicted. Its effect is mildly tonic, upbuilding and curative. Under its use the female organs assume their proper duties, the result of which is that the bloom of health indicates its value. Every woman occasionally needs a female remedy of this kind to tone up her organs to healthy action. Druggists sell VIN-O-VITÆ at $1.00 per bottle.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala., postoffice, for week ending Feb. 19, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter

GENTLEMEN'S LIST

George Kelley, Jerome Brown.

LADIES' LIST

Mandy Keystone, Hannah Davis, Lizzie Sue

These letters will be sent to the dead Letter office, Mar. 5, 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY Postmaster

FIELD-GROWN ROSE PLANTS

Our Field Grown Rose Plants are now ready for delivery and this is the proper time for planting. We have 25,000 of the finest Bush and Climbing Roses ever grown in the South, including seventy varieties.

Bush Roses $2.50 per dozen; $15.00 per 100.
Climbing Roses $3.50 per dozen.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season, Cut flowers, walking bouquets, and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor
City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200 MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP
Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Cumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.
First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.
W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

WELLS Bored and Drilled
T. B. TEEL
Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells
CLANTON, ALA.

The Truth.

It often requires a considerable amount of mental effort to tell the truth. On no account must a child be allowed to shirk this, and the slightest lapse must at once and on the spot be drastically eradicated by punishment.

One form of untruthfulness arises from inaccuracy of observation. Later come exaggeration and romancing, especially if the first signs are thought to be amusing and are rather encouraged than eradicated. Above all, these children must be taught to observe accurately and to use their senses in the proper manner.

Have Your Sons Taught Dancing.

"I would advise every mother to have her sons taught to dance," says a woman of wide social experience. "Once properly learned it is a thing they do not forget and is such a help to them when they begin to go out. The best thing one can do for a boy growing up is to surround him with nice friends and encourage his both giving and going to parties. A boy also ought to be encouraged to take just a little interest in his clothes. Good clothes help to make good manners, and a well cut garment imparts an astonishing amount of courage."

Value of Olive Oil.

For a delicate child give nightly a warm bath, followed by a gentle, thorough rubbing with warm olive oil all over the body and limbs. This simple, safe, home treatment works wonders if given a fair trial.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands.
Office: Room 1, Court House.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I HOPKINS
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
Clanton Ga.
CLANTON

Directory of Clanton Baptist Church.

Preaching at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on 1st and 3rd Sundays. Sunday School every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. W. L. Pastor. Prayer meeting every Thursday night at 7:30. Ushers: [illegible]. Sunday is Jonesville day. All members are requested to be present. All persons are welcome to our services. W. L. STONE, Pastor.

THE EXPRESS MAN WILL RECEIVE YOUR PACKAGE
THE SAME DAY WE GET YOUR ORDER
PROMPT SHIPMENTS IS THE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS
WE WILL SHIP ANY OF THE FOLLOWING EXPRESS PREPAID

BLENDED GOODS

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Any of the Above Brands	$6.00	$12.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	8.00
Rockbridge Club	3.75	8.00
Maryland Club	5.00	10.00
Mt. Vernon	6.00	12.00
Black Label	6.00	12.00

	6 Bottles in the Cse.	4 Bottles 12 Bottles
Pure Rums	7.00	12.00
Three Feathers	7.00	12.00

CORN WHISKEY

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Tennessee Old Reserve	$4.00	$11.00
Black and Blue	3.00	8.00
Harvest Corn	3.50	10.00
Laurel Valley	3.50	10.00
Clanbrae Brand	3.25	9.00

BOTTLED IN BOND

	4 Full Quarts	12 Full Quarts
Clarke's Pure Rye	5.00	$12.00
Rainey Branch	5.00	12.00
Early Times	5.00	12.00
Guggenheimer	5.00	12.00
Mohawk	5.00	12.00
Blum's Monogram	4.00	12.00
Memorial Spring	4.00	11.00
Clark's Rose Hash	4.00	10.00

BULK WHISKIES
$2.00, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00 $6.00, $7.00 per Gallon.

BULK CORN WHISKEY
100 Proof
$2.00, $3.00, $3.50 per Gallon, according to age.

On all orders for $3.50 or over goods will be shipped in handsome glass jars.

WE HANDLE ALL IMPORTED WINES AND LIQUORS. ASK FOR PRICES

PABST'S BLUE RIBBON BEER
Per Barrel, 10 doz. pints $12.00
Per Dozen, packed in Boxes 1.40
Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.

JUNG'S CINCINNATI BEER
Per Barrel, 10 doz. pints $8.00
Per Dozen, packed in Boxes 1.00
Prices F. O. B. Jacksonville, Fla.

LONG DISTANCE PHONE 108

517-519 West Bay Street CHAS. BLUM & COMPANY Jacksonville Florida

Bull Baiting.

Although bull baiting was a cruel pastime, it was also a fulfilling of the law, for formerly no butcher was allowed to offer for sale the flesh of any bull that had not been baited. The goading of the animal in a fury was supposed to have some influence on the flesh. In a similar belief the flesh of a hunted hare was thought to be superior in flavor to that of one that had been shot, and a present of "a hunted hare" was considered to be a special compliment. In the records of the corporation of Leicester, England, the following order appears: "At a common hall, held on Thursday before St. Simon and St. Jude, 1467, 'no butcher to kill a bull till baited.'" At Winchester it was ordered (reign of Henry VIII.) "that from hensforth ther shal be no bul-stake set before any mayor's dore to bayte any bull, but onlie at the bull-ringe within the saide cytie."

Gender of the Sword.

Among the many curious notions obtaining among the different races using the sword may be noted the gender of the weapon. In the north of Europe it was either masculine, as in Britain, or neuter, as in Germany, while in the south it was uniformly feminine. Its force and cruelty appealed to the northern mind. Its grace and elegance attracted the warriors of the sunny south. It typified to the one strength, to the other dignity.

Saved From Awful Peril

"I never felt so near my grave," writes Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, Ohio, R. R. No. 3, "as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 115 pounds in spite of many remedies and the best doctors. And that I am alive to-day is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 160 pounds and can work hard. It also cured my four children of croup." Infallible for Coughs and Colds; its the most certain remedy for La Grippe, Asthma, Hoarse, lung trouble and all bronchial affections, 50c and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

McCALL PATTERNS
10 15 CENTS HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
50 A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th ST., NEW YORK

Thought It Was the Monkey's.

A diamond necklace was possessed by Mme. Geoffrey de St. Hilaire, the wife of the famous French naturalist. It was one of the chiefest of her "contentments," as Hindoo women aptly term their jewels. One day madame missed her necklace. There was a terrible turmoil in the house, and all the servants down to the foolish fat scullion were suspected, but in turn proved their innocence. At last it was remembered that M. de St. Hilaire had a pet monkey, and on a search being made in the "glory hole" of the quadrumane the precious bauble was discovered hidden away with a white satin shoe, several cigar ends, a pencil case and a decomposed apple. The renowned naturalist calmly observed that he had frequently seen the monkey playing with the necklace. "Why did you not take it from him?" indignantly asked his spouse. "I thought it belonged to him," replied M. de St. Hilaire. He evidently thought there was nothing unnatural in an ape possessing a diamond necklace as his personal property.

The Monasteries of Tibet.

Every Tibetan family is compelled to devote its firstborn male child to a monastic life. Soon after his birth the child is taken to a Buddhist monastery to be brought up and trained in priestly mysteries. At about the age of eight he joins one of the caravans which travel to Lassa. There he is attached to one of the local monasteries, where he remains as a novice until he is fifteen, learning to read the sacred books and perform the religious rites of his faith. The firstborn son, being thus sent into the church, as we should say in this country, the second becomes the head of the family and marries. Unlike some other semi-civilised races, these young Tibetans have the right of choosing their own wives. Nor can a Tibetan girl be married off by her parents without her own consent. The curious custom in regard to the eldest sons results of course, in nearly every Tibetan family acquiring the odor of sanctity, numbering a monk among its members—London Telegraph.

Slow but Inexorable Justice.

In October, 1900, Pietro Giaconi and Marie Bonelli were tried at Rome on a charge of sextuple murder by poisoning committed thirty-one years before. In England Eugene Aram was hanged for the murder of Clarke fourteen years after the offense. A man named Horne was executed for the murder of his child in the eighteenth century no less than thirty-five years after the offense. There is also the well known case of Governor Wall, who was executed in 1802 for a murder committed in 1782. Sherward was hanged at Norwich for the murder of his wife after a lapse of twenty years. But Sir Fitzjames Stephens recalls what is the most remarkable case of all. He prosecuted as counsel for the crown in 1863 a man who was charged with stealing a leaf from a parish register sixty years before—that is, in 1803. In this case the prisoner was acquitted.—London Standard.

PALMETTO LANDS

THE MAIN THING IS TO WRITE TO US FOR BOARD OF TRADE FACTS.

Crops on PALMETTO LANDS were never better. We can tell you about tomato yield, fancy lettuce, and sure honest profits.

PALMETTO LANDS are being taken up faster than any land in Manatee County—Florida's best Vegetable section.

Write now to

FREDERIC P. LADD,
Board of Trade,
PALMETTO, FLORIDA

THE TEXAS MONSTER

Barnett's Home Made 4-Wheeled COTTON CHOPPER

Works Across the Rows the Right Way.
PATENTED APRIL 31, 19 8.

I desire to call your attention to this Great Labor Saver. The Chopper that does Execution to Grass and Weeds, in fact, it does the work of eight men. After looking around for a time, I have decided to go right direct to the cotton planter and sell him the right to make this chopper for his own use for One Dollar. This right is good for 17 years from the 21st day of April, 1908. I will say here that I have complied with all the laws of the patent office and I further say that this chopper does all I claim for it or your money back.

J. S. BARNETT
131 East Canton Street, DALLAS, TEXAS

Fair Exchange, Yet a Robbery.

While Gustave Dore was at Ischl and wandering about the mountains he became much interested in a country wedding and sketched it on the spot. He put the sketch into a book in the pocket of his paletot and went back to the hotel to dinner. After dinner he looked for the sketch. It was gone. Angry at the theft, the artist called the landlord and made complaint, but no trace of the book was found. From Ischl Dore went to Vienna, and there he found a letter and a parcel awaiting him. The letter, which was anonymous, read thus: "Sir, I stole your book at Ischl. The sketch was so charming that I could not resist the temptation of having it in my possession, and I knew very well you would never consent to sell it to me. But theft is neither my trade nor my habit, and I beg you to accept as a souvenir of my crime and my enthusiasm for your talent the walking stick which will reach you at the same time as this letter."

The cane was one with a massive gold head in which was set a gem of value.

The Clock's Annoying Habit.

Mrs. Benham had just seated herself to work at a bit of embroidery that required particular care and attention when there came a ring at the telephone. "I just know that's Mrs. Gummy," she said as she laid down her work and went to answer the call. "Whenever I am unusually busy and haven't any time to spare she rings me up and talks to me by the hour."

She was right. It was Mrs. Gummy, who was fully as talkative as ever. She began with a long story, and when fairly in the middle of it the clock on the wall of the room began to strike.

"Wait a moment," interposed Mrs. Benham. "I can't hear you until this noise stops."

"What made that noise?" asked Mrs. Gummy after it had ceased.

"It was only the clock,' answered the patient Mrs. Benham. "You know it always strikes once or twice when we get to talking."

The conversation did not last long after that.—Youth's Companion.

"What do you think? Mrs. Zissel, who never goes to church, has won the first prize in the church lottery!"—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Every Family Needs It.

Every body sometimes has dizziness, loss of appetite, coated tongue, yellow complexion, constipation, etc. which indicates the approach of sickness and disease. To ward off sickness they should use a first-class Liver Medicine. Such a remedy is GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR. Its timely use will prevent sickness and secure health, vigor and energy. Druggists sell it at 25 cents per box. Ask for it and accept no other. It is the best Liver Medicine ever manufactured. Address, Granger Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. The doctor about me could not tell there was life in me. After the sinking spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all the trouble disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."

MRS. LIZZIE PAINTER
803½ 3d Ave. Evansville, Ind.

For twenty years we have been constantly receiving just such letters as these. There is scarcely a locality in the United States where there is not some one who can testify to the merits of this remarkably successful Heart Remedy.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Many of our readers will be glad to learn that their old friend in the hardware trade, Fenn Jones, has bought an interest in the popular Gamble Hardware Co., and will conduct the business in Clanton. Mr. Jones is always pleasant and agreeable, and will take pleasure in attending to your wants in the hardware line. I wish him much success in his new venture.

DEATH OF Mr. W. M. WILSON.

The death of this well known gentleman occurred at his home at Clanton on Monday morning after an illness of several weeks with stomach trouble. He was 56 years of age, a member of the Methodist church, and also a member of the Woodmen of the World, which latter organization attended the funeral in a body.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, Rev. R. J. Mills officiating, a large crowd of sympathising friends paying their last tribute of respect by attending.

He leaves three sons, the sympathies of all being extended to them in their affliction.

U. S. S. Franklin,
Portsmouth, Va., Feb 27, 1910

Editor Banner:—Thinking that the readers of your interesting paper might be interested in first experiences and welfare of a navy recruit and fomer citizen of Clanton, I am relating a few of my own.

I arrived at the camp December 30th, and the next morning I experienced something entirely new to the lice of haircuts; I was told to sit on a low bench and bend forward, a colored barber ashed me, how I wished my hair cut and which side I wished to have it parted on, and on being told, proceeded to clipping my hair off as short as possible; my companions were all treated the same way, which fact afforded me some consolation, slight as it was. I was then taken to a barracks and given a $60 outfit of clothing which included five suits, several hats, a pair of shoes, shoe polishing outfit, soap, military brushes, tooth brush and many other things too numerous to mention. One article attracted my attention immediately, an ordinary stiff scrub brush. You may imagine my surprise when I discovered its use. We lay our clothes down on a cement paving, for that purpose, and scrub them with the scrub-brush, a crude but effective method.

There are 10 companies in this camp at present, and they present a grand interesting and impressive spectacle at the batalion drill, which is held every Wednesday afternoon, providing the weather permits. We live in bungalows, 6 men in a bungalow, and sleep in camp hammocks, which are strung about 6 feet from the floor and drawn as tight as possible. Some of the boys nearly killed themselves learning to climb into their hammocks, and to stay in there after succeeding. We fall out occasionally yet, and are usually laughed at by our comrades who are, in turn, laughed at when they fall. My duties here are not difficult or tiresome, as I am not on duty for any great length of time. We have to rise at 5:30 every morning and lash our hammocks, to expedite the dirt and dust, while we sweep, after breakfast we open our hammocks and hang our bedding out to air. If the weather is nice we roll up the sides of our bungalows, which consist of heavy canvas. We either drill or attend classes from 8:00 o'clock until 9:00 and again from 9:30 till 11:00 o'clock. We take dinner at noon and drill again from 1:00 o'clock till 3:00 o'clock. We drill, shoot, row, learn to splice, tie knots and so on, at the aforesaid periods.

We expect to remain in this camp about 4 months when we will make a ship that will be a day of rejoicing amongst the boys I am sure. Perhaps my desk would be interesting. I am sitting straddle of a cot (or chair) with the tin lining of the ammunition box in front of me to write on.

Hoping that this letter meets with your approval, I remain.

Yours respectfully,
J. WAGONER.

GENUINE OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS

The "GENUINE OLIVER" Steel Beam Plow, like all other articles which have gained a national reputation strictly on merit, has imitations.

But there is but one "GENUINE OLIVER" plow and it bears this Trade Mark. All others are imitations.

THE "GENUINE OLIVER" lasts longer, runs easier, and gives better satisfaction than any other plow made.

When you buy a plow be sure to get the Genuine. No use buying an imitation when you can get the real article. Wherever plowing is done in the civilized world you will find the old Original Genuine OLIVER Plows.

North and South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and the Islands of the Sea, are members of the OLIVER BROTHERHOOD, and each testifies to the superior qualities of the OLIVER PLOW.

From January to January the GENUINE OLIVER is at work somewhere—increasing the prosperity of the country. It is by far the most popular plow on the market to day.

COME IN AND LET US TELL YOU THE REASON WHY!

If its Hardware We have it!

GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

If we have it, It's the Best!

CLANTON, WETUMPKA, ALEXANDER CITY

Sinking Spells
Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."
MRS. LIZZIE PAINTER
803½ 3d Ave. Evansville, Ind.

For twenty years we have been constantly receiving just such letters as these. There is scarcely a locality in the United States where there is not some one who can testify to the merits of this remarkably successful Heart Remedy.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

OWS

e all other articles

rit, has imitations

this

n any other plow

Wherever plowing is

f we have it,
It's the Best!

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1910 | No. 22

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Many of our readers will be glad to learn that their old friend in the hardware trade, Fenn Jones, has bought an interest in the popular Gamble Hardware Co., and will conduct the business in Clanton. Mr. Jones is always pleasant and agreeable, and will take pleasure in attending to your wants in the hardware line. I wish him much success in his new venture.

DEATH OF Mr. W. M. WILSON.

The death of this well known gentleman occurred at his home at Clanton on Monday morning after an illness of several weeks with stomach trouble. He was 56 years of age, a member of the Methodist church, and also a member of the Woodmen of the World, which latter organization attended the funeral in a body.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, Rev. R. J. Mills officiating, a large crowd of sympathizing friends paying their last tribute of respect by attending.

He leaves three sons, the sympathies of all being extended to them in their affliction.

U. S. S. Franklin,
Portsmouth, Va., Feb 27, 1910

Editor Banner:—Thinking that the readers of your interesting paper might be interested in first experiences and welfare of a navy recruit and fomer citizen of Clanton, I am relating a few of my own.

I arrived at the camp December 30th, and the next morning I experienced something entirely new in the line of haircuts; I was told to sit on a low bench and bend forward, a colored barber ashed me, how I wished my hair cut and which side I wished to have it parted on, and on being told, proceeded to clipping hair off as short as possible; my companions were all treated the same way, which fact afforded me some consolation, slight as it was. I was then taken to a barracks and given a $60 outht of clothing which included five suits, several hats, a pair of shoes, shoe polishing outfit, soap, military brushes, tooth brush and many other things too numerous to mention. One article attracted my attention immediately, an ordinary stiff scrub brush. You may imagine my surprise when I discovered its use. We lay our clothes down on a cement paving, for that purpose, and scrub them with the scrub-brush, a crude but effective method.

There are 10 companies in this camp at present, and they present and interesting and impressive spectacle at the batalion drill, which held every Wednesday afternoon, providing the weather pemitts. We live in bungalows, 6 men in a bungalow, and sleep in camp hammocks, which are strung about 6 feet from the floor and drawn as tight as possible. Some of the boys early killed themselves learning to climb into their hammocks, and to climb in there after succeeding. We fall out occasionally yet, and are duly laughed at by our comrades who are, in turn, laughed at when they fall. My duties here are not difficult or tiresome, as I am not on duty for any great length of time. We have to rise at 5:30 every morning and lash our hammocks, to exclude the dirt and dust, while we sweep, after breakfast we open our hammocks and hang our bedding out to air. If the weather is nice we roll up the sides of our bungalows, which consist of heavy canvas. We either drill or attend classes from 8:00 o'clock until 9:00 and then from 9:30 till 11:00 o'clock. We take dinner at noon and drill again from 1:00 o'clock till 3:00 o'clock. We drill, shoot, row, sail, learn to splice, tie knots and swim at the aforesaid periods.

We expect to remain in this camp for about 4 months when we will board a ship that will be a day of rejoicing amongst the boys I am sure. Perhaps my desk would be interesting. I am sitting straddle of a cot (or chair) with the tin lining of ammunition box in front of me to write on.

Hoping that this letter meets with you approval, I remain.

Yours respectfully,
J. WAGONER.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$28,376 04	Capital Stock Paid in	$15,000 00
Overdrafts	1,859 54	Undivided Profits, less Current Ex.
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	13,750 00	Penses and Taxes Paid	12,373 76
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	6,401 62	Individual Deposits subject to
Other Real Estate	147 50	Check	$40,022 69
Due from Banks and Bankers		Savings Deposits	6,450 50
in this State	$14,502 88	Cashier's Checks	101 02
Due from Banks and Bankers		Bills Payable	5,000 00
in other States	8,768 17		51,523 71
Currency	6,000 00
Gold	1,025 00
Silver, Nickles and Pennies	1,000 00
Checks and Cash Items	251 80
	27,551 85
Total	$83,090 44	Total	$83,090 45

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said oak.
JNO. A. THOMAS, Cashier.
Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 22d day of October, 1909.
J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAMUEL KAUFMAN } Directors.
M. L. GREIL

THE UP-BUILDING OF THIS BANK

is due to the fact that we have ample capital and that we have adhered to a policy which has been conservative, yet along progressive lines. We offer to our customers modern facilities for the prompt and proper transaction of their financial affairs, ample vault and safe room for storing and safe-guarding of their money, notes, insurance policies and other valuable papers, and such liberality of treatment as is consistent with prudent banking.

YOUR account is cordially solicited.

THE CLANTON BANK
CLANTON, ALA

WANTED.

NOTICE—Agents wanted who can make big salaries. See our display "Ad" in this issue. American Mutual Benefit Life Association of Alabama, Montgomery, Ala.

FOR SALE—Two Four-acre lots with 3 roomed houses on them, good wells of water; and one Store House and lot—all in Coopers, Ala. will sell them cheap. Apply to
J. W. CLARK, Cooper, Ala.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

WANTED—15 or 20 teams to haul iron ore at Wessington. Pay 85c per ton; 3 mile haul; pay every two weeks. Miners also wanted. Call or write Tom Walker, or C. H. Durham, Jemison, Ala., care Shelby Iron Co.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably bring relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, headache, biliousness, dizziness, sallowness of the skin and dyspepsia. Sold by all druggists.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Hanlen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

For Diseases of the Skin.

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barbers' itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the itching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

NOTICE

Saturday, March 5, has been set apart for the day on which to meet and clean off the Hardeeman cemetery, one and a half miles east of Lomax. All who are interested come and assist in the work.

P. C. WELDON.

STRAYED

From my place, known as the Stewart place, one mile west of Clanton, November 29, 1909, a dark chestnut mule, about twelve years old, with scar on left shoulder. Any information should be sent to E. M. Plackard & Co., Clanton, who will pay a reward of $10 for his delivery

H. LOCKHART.

Indigestion.

This trouble usually arises from a disordered liver. If you will arouse the liver to throw off the effete accumulations through the proper channels, you will soon feel better, your appetite will improve, and the whole man will be more wide awake and healthy. For this purpose St. Joseph's Liver Regulator is a fine remedy. Try it and be convinced of its wonderful efficacy. Druggists and general merchants sell it, liquid, 50 cents a bottle; powdered, in tin boxes, 25 cents a box. See advertisement in this paper.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Clanton, Feb. 28, 1910

Editor Banner—Owing to the fact that we are nearing the primary, when we shall be called upon to make a selection of candidates, I shall ask space in your columns to say a few words in regard to a man to represent us in the next General Assembly of Alabama. This being an important office, we should be very careful in selecting a man whom we know to be sober, and has the interest of the county and State at heart.

Just here permit me to mention a young man whom I think would make a most excellent representative. The young man to whom I refer is Mr. Howard Roper. Mr. Roper is a young man whom I have known from childhood. He is one of our own boys, having been reared in Chilton county. He is well and favorably known, and numbers his friends by his acquaintances. He is well qualified both morally and educationally for the place. Mr. Roper is one of our most talented young men, a fluent speaker and an able debater. Our county would honor herself by honoring Howard Roper.

Respectfully,
T. E. WILLIAMS.

Clanton, Ala., March 1, 1910

To the Public:

I wish to announce to my friends, who have so generously given their patronage to the old firm of Spigener & Jones, and to the Gamble Hardware Company during my connection with the hardware business at Clanton, that I have purchased an interest in the business of the Gamble Hardware Company, and will, in future, be in charge of the store at Clanton. The Gamble Hardware Company operates stores at Wetumpka, Alexander City, and Clanton, and are, therefore, large purchasers of hardware which enables them to buy at much lower prices than the prices paid by the old firm of Spigener & Jones and by the smaller dealers in hardware. This advantage gained in the purchase of goods will be distributed among the patrons of our Clanton store in the shape of reduced prices on all articles of hardware.

I solicit a continuation of your patronage and I shall be glad to welcome you at our store at any time. I would be glad for any of our customers to come to me at any time in regard to their requirements in hardware, to discuss the merits or demerits of any article we sell or have sold, as my aim shall be to see that all of our patrons get the best of what they buy and full value as well as courteous treatment at all times. Yours very truly,

C. FENN JONES.

IN MEMORIAM.

On Feb. 16th, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Jack Davis and took away our dear grandmother. She was sick about four weeks when the Lord saw it best to call her from this world of sorrow to that sweet home above. She was a loving mother and a kind grandmother and a friend to all. She left four sons and a host of grandchildren to mourn her loss. But we feel sure our loss is heaven's gain. She was 84 years of age. She was laid to rest in Cane Creek cemetery, Friday afternoon. Weep not, dear ones, for we hope to meet our dear grandmother in that sweet home above where there will be no pain nor sorrow.

Her grand-daughter,
GAMMER DAVIS.

Shiloh.

Editor Banner—Just a few words, please. Our school at this place is progressing nicely under the careful management of Prof. E. C. Popwell. I feel sure I voice the sentiments of the patrons when I say that Prof. Popwell is one of the best teachers that we have ever had at this place. He is a young man, just started out in life, and I feel sure that he will make a success as a teacher. While it is not expected that a teacher should please every one, I feel sure that Prof. Popwell has come as near that point as it would be possible for a teacher to do, and when a young man is struggling to obtain success we should all try to help him in every way possible. To show what we think of Prof. Popwell at this place, we have gone down in our pockets and made up money to run a six months school, to begin April 1, 1910.

Mr. R. N. Billingsley, who has been sick for some time, is improving slowly. I hope to see him up soon. Success to the Banner.

A. W. POWELL.

Cane Creek

Editor Banner—Allow me a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words.

There wasn't any preaching at Mountain Springs Sunday; we suppose the preacher was sick.

There is several cases of pneumonia in this community, but we hope they all will soon recover.

There will be preaching at this place next Sunday by Rev. T. J. Deason; everybody come.

The death angel visited the home of Mrs. Annie Parker and took away her loving mother. She was laid to rest in New Salem cemetery.

The entertainment at Mr. Ive Collins was all O. K.

ONE ALONE.

An Awful Eruption

If a volcano excites brief interest, and your interest in skin eruptions will be as short, if you use Bucklen's Arnica Salve, their quickest cure. Even the worst boils, ulcers, or fever sores are soon healed by it. Best for Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sore Lips, Chapped Hands, Chilblains and Piles. It gives instant relief. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Subscribe for The Banner.

NOTICE.

The Commissioners Court of Chilton County hereby offers in cooperation with the State Commissioner of Agriculture, the following prizes:

For the best acre of Corn $25.00.
For the best acre of Wheat $15.00
For the best acre of Oats $15.00.
For the best acre of Sweet Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Irish Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Hay $25.00.

Parties entering contest must give their names to Judge of Probate not later than May 1 of this year.

There will be no charges for entering the contest.

The rules governing contest will be given out later.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

FARMS FOR RENT.

Near Verbena,

One 50 acres with 7-room house; one 100 acres with one 4 and one 5-room houses.

Near Thorsby,

One 75-acre farm with one 4 and one 6-room houses.

Cotton Seed for Sale.

250 bushels Cook's "Improved" Cotton Seed, home grown and pure.

250 bushels "Seek no Further" Cotton Seed, home grown and pure. Each averaged ½ bale to acre last year, and yield of lint from Cook's Improved was 38¼ to 100; from Seek no Further was 36½ to 100 Price per bushel $1.00 cash with order.

Write F. A. GULLEDGE,
Verbena, Ala.

A wise man never differs from a woman except when she says something mean about herself.

Administration Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned was on the 19th day of February, 1910, appointed as the administratrix of the estate of I. S. Gerald, deceased, by the Probate Court of Chilton county, Alabama; that letters of administration in the premises were issued to her by said court on the day of her said appointment; and that all persons having claims against the estate of the said I. S. Gerald, deceased, are hereby notified to present the same within the time allowed by law or the same will be barred.

This the 3rd day of March, 1910.

HATTIE M. GERALD,
Administratrix.

IN MEMORY.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Teel, Monday, Feb. 21, and took from our midst their sweet little babe, Marguerite. So hard, oh so hard, to give her up, her death was so unexpected. With hopeful hearts we were watching her recovery from a spell of pneumonia, and was, as we thought, out of danger, but alas! our hopes were shattered when Sunday night she was taken suddenly with convulsions, and all was done that loving hands and a faithful physician could do, but she was called to the Great Beyond, where there will be no more pain, sorrow, suffering, where no night ever comes. Little Marguerite was four years of age; she was so sweet and affectionate; to know her was to love her. Our loss is heaven's gain. She was far too sweet to face this earth's trials and troubles and now she has added another star to heaven's crown. We have nothing of this world's consolation to offer; we do not feel that we could speak any words that would ease your aching heart or fill the vacancy of this dear little darling, we can only deeply, sincerely sympathize with those in their bereavement. Weep not, dear loved ones, for she is not dead but sleeping. We must live so that when we are called we will meet Marguerite on the right hand of God, and then how glorious it will be.

ONE THAT LOVED HER.

Pleasant Hill.

The health of this community is not very good. Mrs. Willie Davis is very low with pneumonia; hope she will recover soon.

The singing at Union Grove was fine Sunday; everybody enjoyed themselves fine.

NOBODY'S DARLING.

MARRIED

Married, at the residence of the bride, Prattville, Sunday evening, February 20th, 1910, Mr. Austin Rasco and Miss Glennie Sellers, Rev. W. B. Dickinson, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated. The bride was tastily gowned in white albertross, trimmed in lace and ribbon. The groomsmen were Mr. Willie Rasco, the brother of the groom, and Mr. James Surrels of Prattville. The bridesmaids were Miss Mattie and Hattie Jones, cousins of the bride. Miss Glennie is an amiable and attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sellers of Prattville. She is an active church worker and also secretary of the local B. Y. P. U.

Mr. Rascois a sober, energetic and promising young man of Prattville and holds a position with the Continental Gin Co.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are safe, sure and reliable, and have been praised by thousands of women who have been restored to health through their gentle aid and curative properties. Sold by all druggists.

Tickling in the Throat

"Just a little tickling in the throat!" Is that what troubles you? But it hangs on! Can't get rid of it! Home remedies don't take hold. You need something stronger—a regular medicine, a doctor's medicine. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral contains healing, quieting, and soothing properties of the highest order. Ask your doctor about this. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Constipation positively prevents good health. Then why allow it to continue? An active liver is a great preventive of disease. Ayer's Pills are liver pills. What does your doctor say?

THE WEIGHT OF MONEY

Do You Think You Could Lift a Fortune In Silver Coins?

IF YOU DO YOU ARE MISTAKEN

Two Hundred Pounds of Quarters Would Give You Only $3,657, While the Same Weight of Gold Would Give $54,050—Weight of Paper Money

"I wish I had all the money I could lift!" How many of the thousands who make this get-rich-quick wish have any idea of the amount they would have if the wish should be granted. Few name the denomination of the money on which they desire to test their strength, perhaps believing that their lifting powers would make them wealthy no matter what kind of money they lifted.

If they were asked how much they could lift in silver or small bills the majority probably would name some fabulous sum which investigation would show several men could not budge. In gold or in paper money of large denominations the ordinary individual would be able to lift a fair sized fortune, but to win a million by lifting it in anything less than twenty dollar bills would need the strength of a veritable Sandow.

An official of the subtreasury who is interested in odd statistics in his department was asked how much money the average man could lift in the various denominations of gold, silver and paper.

"Well," he replied, "a man could make money on that proposition if he could get hold of paper money of large denominations, but on the smaller bills, silver and gold he would not be a millionaire by any means.

"The weight of money is very deceptive. For instance, a young man, a friend of mine, came in to see me one day with his fiancee. I was showing them through my department and asked my friend if he thought the young woman was worth her weight in gold. He did think so, most emphatically, and after ascertaining that her weight was one 107 pounds we figured that she would be worth in gold coin exactly $28,647. Her fiancee thought that would be pretty cheap.

"Perhaps more people are deceived on the weight of paper money than on the metals. Now, how many one dollar bills do you think would be necessary to weigh as much as a five dollar gold piece?"

Fifty was ventured as a guess, and the statistician laughed.

"I have had guesses on that all the way from 50 to 500," he said, "and some of them from men who have handled money for years. As a matter of fact, with a five dollar gold piece in one scale you would have to put about six and a half bills in the other to balance it."

He produced figures to prove that a five dollar gold piece weighed two hundred and ninety-six thousandths of an ounce avoirdupois. An employee who makes the new bills up in packages of 100 each said that a hundred bills weighed four and one-half ounces. That would make one bill weigh forty-five thousandths of an ounce, and between six and seven would balance the gold piece.

Figures on the lifting proposition were furnished from the department where the money is weighed in bags as standards. The standard amount for gold coin, $5,000, weighs eighteen and a half pounds. Five hundred silver dollars weigh thirty-five and a half pounds, and $200 in half dollars, or 400 coins, weighs eleven pounds. Taking 200 pounds as a good lift for an average man, these results were obtained:

METAL MONEY.
Gold coins (all of standard weight)	$54,050.00
Silver dollars	2,617.00
Half dollars	3,635.00
Quarters	3,657.00
Dimes	3,615.80
Nickels	917.00
Cents	226.61
PAPER MONEY.
One dollar bills	$71,111
Two dollar bills	142,222
Five dollar bills	355,555
Ten dollar bills	711,110
Twenty dollar bills	1,422,220
Fifty dollar bills	3,555,550
One hundred dollar bills	7,111,110
Five hundred dollar bills	35,555,520
Thousand dollar bills	71,111,100

Two hundred pounds of $10,000 gold certificates, the largest denomination issued by the United States government, would amount to enough to finance a full grown trust—$711,111,000. If the young woman who was worth $28,647 in gold coin had been worth her weight in these $10,000 certificates she would have been valued at $280,444,385.—F. T. Pope in Chicago Record-Herald.

Appreciated.

Tubb—Old boy, I want to congratulate you on your speech at the banquet last night. O'Sudds (after waiting a moment)—I know you do, pard, and you're awfully sorry you can't do it truthfully. I appreciate the effort, just the same. Nasty weather, isn't it?—Chicago Tribune.

A Misunderstanding.

"The management of one of the big opera houses in New York has to pay $2,000 a week for conductors."

"Does it pay the same rate for motormen?"—Judge.

Clean Living.

James—A bath bun and two sponge cakes, please. Waitress—Two sponges and a bath for this gentleman, please!—London Opinion.

From swearing men easily slide into perjury.—Hierocles.

CAUTION IN THE MINT.

They Almost Strain the Air to Save Particles of Gold.

It has been aptly said that no miser guards his treasure more religiously than Uncle Sam watches over the precious metals that pass through his mints. Then, too, the precautions against waste are almost innumerable.

Every evening in each of the mints of the United States the floors of the melting rooms are swept cleaner than a New England housewife's kitchen. The dust is carefully put aside, and about once in two months the soot scraped from every flue is transferred to the same precious dust heap. This is then burned, and from its ashes the government derives no inconsiderable income. The earthenware crucibles used in melting are employed no more than three times. They are crushed beneath heavy rollers, and in their porous sides are found flakes of the precious metal.

In the melting room when the casters raise their ladles from the melting pots a shower of sparks fly from the molten surface of the metal. For the most part they are bits of incandescent carbon, but clinging to the carbon is often a minute particle of metal. Lest such particles should escape, the ashes and clinkers below the furnaces are gathered up at night. This debris is ground into powder by means of a steam crusher and then is sold to a smelter, like ordinary ore, at a price warranted by the assayer.

The ladles that stir the precious metal, the big iron rods, the strainers and the dippers, all are tested in a most curious fashion. After considerable use they become covered with a thin layer of oxidized silver, closely resembling a brown rust. The implements are then laid in baths of a solution of sulphuric acid, which eats away the iron and steel and leaves the silver untouched.

Gradually the ladle, or whatever the implement is, will disappear, and in its place remains a hollow silver counterpart of the original, delicate as spung glass. These fragile casts reproduce the ladle with perfect accuracy in all its details, although their surfaces are perforated with innumerable little holes. Scarcely have they been molded, however, before they are cast into a crucible to become in time dollars, quarters and dimes.

In one corner of the melting room there is a large tank into which newly cast silver bars are dropped and left to cool. Infinitesimal flakes of silver scale off and rise to the surface of the water, which acquires the metallic luster of a stagnant pool. Here is silver that must not be lost, so beneath the pipe through which the tank is emptied is banked a thick layer of mud. As the water filters through it the mud retains the precious residuum. Four times a year this mud is removed, and each experiment discloses the fact that some $50 has been saved.—Baltimore American.

His Text.

The three-year-old son of a Methodist minister was with his mother at a gathering of ladies. At the proper time he was given a cooky. He ate it in short order and asked for another. The hostess said:

"I'll give you another if you will sing for us."

"Can't sing," was his reply, "but I know something I can say."

"That will do all right," the lady answered, expecting to hear "Twinkle, twinkle, little star," or some other nursery classic.

But the little fellow drew himself up in real Sunday school fashion and said his piece:

"God loveth a cheerful giver."

The lady gave him the cooky, and the whole company seemed to be very cheerful about it.—Harper's Magazine.

A Water Telescope.

Norwegian fishermen use a water telescope to ascertain the position of the herring shoals. This is the way to make the water telescope:

Procure a tube made of tin and funnel shaped about three and a half feet long and ten inches in diameter at the largest end. It should be wide enough at the top to take in the observer's eyes, and the inside should be painted black. At the bottom, or wide end, a clear, thick piece of glass must be inserted, with a little lead in the form of a ring to weight the tube. When the instrument is immersed in clear water it is astonishing how many fathoms down the observer can see.

The Sybarites.

The Sybarites were the inhabitants of the ancient city of Sybaris, in southern Italy, founded 720 B. C. They were so greatly addicted to voluptuousness and self indulgence that their name became a byword among the peoples of antiquity. The word "sybarite" is used at the present day to denote a person devoted to luxury and pleasure.

Sometimes There Isn't.

Flubbe—I'm going into the manufacture of something there ought to be money in.

Dubbe—What are you going to manufacture?

Flubbe—Pocketbooks and purses.—London Telegraph.

Why He Couldn't Work.

The Lady—My 'usband, sir, 'as sent me to say 'e won't be able to come and do the little job you arst 'im to. 'E's promised to go round the town with the unemployed.—London M. A. P.

One More Disappointment.

"Poor old Myer is dead, I see. He led a life full of disappointments."

"How glad he would have been to see his name in print!"—Fliegende Blatter.

JOY THAT BRINGS WOE

Shock of Sudden Glad Tidings at Times Turns the Brain.

IT HAS DRIVEN PEOPLE MAD.

Some of the Saddest Cases of Lunacy Are Those Where the Mind Is Unable to Stand the Strain of News of Unexpected Good Fortune.

It is no exaggeration to assert, said an asylum doctor of long and varied experience, that there are scores of men and women in insane asylums who have literally been sent there through excess of joy. Many of these cases which are, in my opinion, the saddest of all have come under my own observation.

I remember in the very first asylum with which I was connected one of the patients was a strikingly handsome and very well educated man, who was as sane as you or I except on one point. He was really a man of considerable wealth, but his delusion was that he was a pauper, and he would tell the most pitiful tales of his destitution, begging, with tears in his eyes, for a few coppers with which to buy bread.

According to the story told me, he was the only son of a wealthy merchant. In his youth he had fallen among evil companions and had led such a dissolute life that his father, not only threatened to disinherit him, but forbade him ever to enter his house again. After that he seems to have sunk into the lowest depths of poverty until he was glad to earn a few coppers by selling papers or matches in the streets.

It was at this last and lowest stage that news came to him that his father had died intestate and that he was heir to all his vast fortune. The sudden news completely turned the man's brain and brought on such a condition of excitement that he had to be sent to an asylum, and when he calmed down again he had lost all recollection of his good fortune, and nothing could shake his delusion that he was on the verge of starvation.

Another patient in the same asylum was a young and in his lucid moments a most intelligent fellow, whose "brain was turned," as the saying is, on learning that he had passed an examination. He had sat for the matriculation examination at the University of London, on passing which he had set his heart and had asked a friend in London to wire the result as soon as the names were screened at Burlington House.

About three weeks later came a fatal telegram, "Failed—sorry," which sent the young man into the lowest depths of despair, for he was too old to sit again. Not many hours later, however, came another telegram, "Passed honors—very sorry crush so great did not see name this morning." The revulsion of feeling was so great that the student's reason gave way, and he became so violent in his excitement that he had to be confined. Fortunately he was not with us long and is now, I am glad to know, doing very well as a solicitor.

Disappointed love sends many people to asylums, but it is very seldom that success in wooing drives a man mad. It had this strange effect, however, on one of my late patients. The girl he loved had gone out to India to keep house for her brother before he had screwed up his courage to the point of proposing to her, but an offer followed by mail very quickly after her.

Weeks and months passed and no answer came to the impatient lover until, after waiting two years in despair, he became engaged to a girl who had nothing but her money bags to recommend her and for whom he had not a particle of love. Scarcely, however, was his fate sealed than he received the long despaired of letter from India, accepting his offer and explaining that the girl's brother had received and mislaid the letter, which had only just been found and had come into her hands.

Within an hour of the receipt of this letter the man was a raving maniac, and, although his condition is improved, I doubt whether he will ever recover his reason.

In another remarkable case it was the joy at seeing her husband again that robbed a lady patient of her reason. Her husband was the captain of a merchant ship which was reported to have gone down with all hands. The widow had deeply mourned her husband for nearly a year when one day on returning from a walk she found him sitting in the drawing room as hale and robust as ever.

With a shriek she fell unconscious on the floor, and when she recovered her reason was gone. It seems that her husband, after floating for some time, had been picked up by a passing "tramp" and had been landed on the west coast of Africa, from which he had returned home by the first available vessel.—London Spectator.

Charitable.

It is said of the author of a volume of biography that his verdict on the great of his chosen period is much that of the New Hampshire parson at the highly approved funeral of a parishioner: "Brethren, we must agree that our deceased friend was mean in some things, but let us in Christian charity allow that he was meaner in others."

Both Sides.

Doctor's Little Girl—Your papa owes my papa money. Lawyer's Little Girl—That's nothing. Papa said he was glad to get off with his life.—Baltimore American.

THE CABMEN OF PARIS

Hailing One Is the Same as a Declaration of War.

THEY ARE INSOLENT ROGUES

Snubs and Caustic Advice Are Showered Upon Those Who Engage Them. On Wet or Festal Days the Cabbies Spurn Those Who Want to Ride.

Among Anglo-Saxons there is a general and instinctive desire to do business on the basis of an entente cordiale. In Paris the hailing of a cabman is looked on by both parties to the transaction as an implied declaration of war. "The cabman takes your measure, and you take his number if you are wise. At once he will give you a reason to remark that he has a rooted and premeditated objection to drive you where you wish to go. Perhaps he prefers the opera quarter because it is central, or should the weather be fine his heart is probably set upon driving in the Bois, while you may have business at the bourse. He explains his views on the subject selfishly and rudely.

A foreigner alighted recently from the Calais train at the Northern railway station in Paris and ordered a typical Parisian cabman, blonsed, pale and absinth soaked, to drive him to the Rue Blomet, which is a street in the relatively distant Vaugirard quarter. "Peut on habiter la Rue Blomet?" ("Is it possible to inhabit the Rue Blomet?") exclaimed the ragged ruffian in an epigrammatic note of disdain which would have done honor to Beau Brummel.

But it is when the Paris cabman has once started on his "course," a warpath in the strict sense of the term, that he proves to what a limitless extent he is the enemy of mankind. His hatred of the "bourgeois," the "man in the street," in spite of and indeed because of his being a potential client, is expressed at every yard. He constantly tries to run him down, which makes strangers to Paris accuse the Paris cabman of driving badly, while in point of fact he is not driving at all, but playing with miraculous skill a game of his own which suggests cannon billiards in the hands of a world's champion.

But it is not with the public alone that he is at war. On all other cabmen whose path he crosses, on omnibus drivers, motorcar men, bicyclists, private coachmen, costermongers with barrows and (sotto voce) the police he heaps deadly insults, the least outrageous of which are "Ours!" ("Bear!") and "Fourneau!" ("Oven!"), the latter containing a subtle double meaning, intelligible only to those who have Paris "argot" or slang at their finger ends and too long to explain.

The cabman's wild career through the streets, the constant wavering and slashing of his pitiless whip, his madcap hurtlements and collisions, the frenzied gesticulations which he exchanges with his "fare," the panic stricken flight of the agonized women whose lives he has endangered, the ugly rushes which the public occasionally makes at him with a view to lynching him, the sprawlings and fallings of his maddened, hysterical, starving horse, contribute as much as anything to the spasmodic intensity, the electric blue fire diablerie, which are characteristic of the general movement of Paris.

All that can be said in mitigation of the Paris cabman's method is that "he has them in the blood." Every Parisian (and the cabman is no exception) has the soul of a dictator and the spirit of an artist. To exercise autocratic power and, failing this, to enjoy the maximum of personal freedom from all restraint, moral or social, is the goal at which he is ever aiming, openly or secretly.

Watch a Paris cabman, for instance, on a wet day or on some festival occasion, such as the New Year, when there is a big demand for his services. With what haughty disdain does he drive along the streets, deaf to every appeal, refusing every fare, rejoicing in the discomfort and inconvenience he is causing, triumphant in the thought that at last he has "the bourgeois" at his feet; that the clientele which he detests and which detests him is now a humiliated, bemuddled or bedraggled mob of supplicants waiting on his will, whom he can enrage to boiling point with his sneers and his silence or lash with his sarcasms as cruelly as he beats his horse.

Cheerfully does he sacrifice half a day's earnings to the enjoyment of this exquisite revenge, for at least he can say to his hungry wife and children when he gets home, "J'ai vecu." They may not have dined, but he has lived.

It is because the Parisian recognises in himself a certain community of sentiment with the cabman in this attitude toward life that he tolerates him, though he does not forgive him. —Harper's Weekly.

Her Only Course.

Lady Anne Lindsay, the author of the old poem "Auld Robin Gray," was not only a delightful conversationalist, but she was a great story teller.

This gift made her not only a welcome guest abroad, but a valuable member of the home circle, for it is related in "A Group of Scottish Women" that at a dinner party which she was giving to some friends an old manservant caused some amusement by saying in a perfectly audible undertone:

"My lady, you must tell another story. The second course won't be ready for five minutes."

LUXURIOUS BAGS.

A Collapsible New Dressing and Hand Bag.

The fitted traveling bag is supposed to be the height of luxury—at least to judge by its cost. The furnishings are silver, ivory or even gold, combined with cut glass bottles of all sizes. The bags themselves are of the finest Russia leather or calf, and the outside usually carries the monogram of the owner in small gold or silver letters.

All this is very handsome and very heavy. The weight of the bag before anything is packed into it is enough to daunt a woman with a weak back, though her bag may be one of the smaller sizes.

Since the convenience of having all one's toilet belongings neatly packed in readiness for a hurried trip is evident most women will welcome one of the new bags, which are so built and furnished as to be three times as light as those ordinarily sold.

The bag is a collapsible affair of fine smooth leather, black or colors, that closes up like an accordion. It lets out according to the amount of packing necessary. This extension is regulated by leather straps on the outside, which add rather than detract from its smart appearance.

SILVER BAG WITH WATCH.

On the inside are mirror, comb, brush tooth and nail brushes, shoe horn, buttoner, nail file, flask, a bottle or two and a soap box. They are arranged to take up the least possible space and, being made of white celluloid, weigh almost nothing.

The effect of this celluloid, with its black monogram on each piece, is good, and the weight is less than half as much as ivory. It wears well, and the only precaution necessary is to keep it away from a flame, as it may explode. A novelty in the bag line is a new silver mesh model with a watch set at one side of the heavy silver mounting.

HELPFUL HINTS.

A damp room or cupboard may be dried by keeping in it a jar containing quicklime. The lime will absorb the damp and keep the air dry and pure. It must be frequently renewed, as it loses its power.

Eggs are muscle building food and are digested principally in the stomach. They are most easily digested when raw, somewhat less readily when slightly cooked, but difficult of digestion when hard boiled.

The weary woman who wishes to woo sleep successfully should try a scented slumber cushion. Cased in a dainty cover of washing silk, the contents vary from vegetable down scented with lavender to the aromatic hop.

An old proverb says, "Spare the dinner, spare the doctor." Like many other homely sayings, it is to the point. Some of the foremost physicians shake their heads gravely and say, "People eat too much." They have grown into the habit of unquestioningly eating all that is set before them, and then, rather surprised, they resent any reference to this as "overeating."

Few Men In Washington Society.

While the cause of militant woman is advancing so strongly in every direction, it comes almost as a surprise to find mere man still has a value of his own, but signs are not lacking that "the man question" is proving one of the most difficult that Washington society has to face this winter. There is a scarcity of eligible young men, and the dearth is felt nowhere so severely as in that youthful circle which is increased each year by a fresh crop of debutantes. This season's crop has been larger than usual, between seventy-five and a hundred young girls having stepped from the schoolroom to the reception and the ball room in the last two or three months. The situation obviously is serious when, having taken the step, they find no men to talk and dance with. Philadelphia and Baltimore can lend Washington no assistance, for these cities are in an equally bad way. There is a general disposition to blame the departments of war and the navy, for, in obedience to the policy outlined by the secretaries, a sharp check has been placed on wholesale excursions of cadets from West Point and Annapolis, who formerly could be counted on to save any occasion by their presence. The administration, in fact, is at pains to keep its young soldier and sailor officers out of matrimonial temptations, and the Washington girls, therefore, are threatened with rather a dull season.

A MARK TWAIN STORY

Showing What May Be Achieved by Nerve and Reiteration.

A LESSON IN PERSEVERANCE.

Going to Prove That Repetition Will Work Wonders if a Man Has Only the Necessary Amount of Cheek to Stand Up and Keep on Talking.

Mark Twain once told a story that if a man says the same thing often enough people will begin to listen to him.

"Now," said the great humorist, "there was that story about Hank Monk. That was the silliest, tamest, driest, deadest bit of alleged humor that any man ever heard. It had been circulated around Nevada and California until there wasn't a man left who would even listen to it. I had heard it so many times that I knew it by heart. It told how Hank Monk got Horace Greeley over the Glennbrook grade to Placerville.

"I was about to deliver my second lecture at Platt's hall in San Francisco—the second one I had ever delivered. It occurred to me that I might begin that lecture with the worst story I had ever heard and by telling it often enough start the lecture with a big laugh. I took that story and memorized it so that it would not vary in the telling, and I made it just as pointless and just as dull and just as dry as I could.

"When it came time for me to talk I stood up and with a few introductory remarks began that story. If I remember it went something like this:

"'Horace Greeley once went over the Glennbrook grade to Placerville. When he was leaving Carson City he told the driver, Hank Monk, that he had an engagement to lecture at Placerville and was very anxious to go through quick. Hank Monk cracked his whip and started off at an awful pace. The stage bounced up and down in such a terrific way that it jolted the buttons all off Horace's coat and finally shot his head clean through the roof of the stage, and then he yelled to Hank Monk and begged him to go easier—said he wasn't in as much of a hurry as he had been awhile ago. But Hank Monk said, "Keep your seat, Horace, and I'll get you there on time!" And he did, too—what was left of him.'

"Now, that was all there was to the story. It was bad enough to begin with, but I made it worse in the telling. I droned it out in a flat, monotonous tone, without a gesture to mar its depressing effect. The people received it in dead silence. I had insulted every man in the audience—I had 'mauled' them with a story that was not only stale and pointless, but one which they had heard at least a thousand times. I waited a few seconds for the laughter, and then I began to hem and haw and shift my feet. I tried to appear just as embarrassed as I could, and after floundering about helplessly for a few sentences I cheered up a little and said that I would tell a funny anecdote which might be new to them. It began:

"'Horace Greeley went over the Glennbrook grade to Placerville'—

"I told it in exactly the same miserable, pointless way that I had told it before, and when I got through I waited a longer time for the applause, but there wasn't any applause. I could see that several men in the house were growing quite indignant. They had paid money to hear a humorous lecture. I took a long breath and plunged in a third time, more embarrassed and flustered and worried than ever, and by and by I worked around again to the time when Horace Greeley went over Glennbrook grade to Placerville.

"This time some of the smarter ones began to laugh, and this encouraged me so much that I thanked them and started right in to tell the story over again, never varying the delivery so much as a pause to take breath. The fourth time fetched 'em, and at the end of the story they stood up and whooped and yelled and cheered for some time.

"You see, I thought that if a man had sand enough to stand up before an audience and tell the oldest, stalest and most uninteresting story in the world he could make people laugh if he had the nerve to tell the story often enough. The rest of my lecture went very well. They were willing to laugh at my anecdotes the first time I told them. Maybe they were afraid I would tell them a second time.

"I felt so sure that I had discovered a new phase in human character that I tried the same thing in New York years afterward. There was an authors' reading bee one afternoon, and most of the authors read selections from their works. I sat on the platform beside James Russell Lowell. He asked me what I was going to read. I said that I wasn't going to read anything. I intended to tell an anecdote.

"'Is it a funny one?' he asked.

"I said it would be if I lasted long enough.

"I started out without any preamble, and I told the Hank Monk anecdote. There was an awful silence at the end. I took a drink of water, mopped my forehead and told the story again. Same effect. Young man, I told that story five times before I landed 'em. When I sat down at last Mr. Lowell whispered to me:

"'You have cost me dear. I have been sitting here and wasting sympathy on you.'

"That's the point, young man. Repetition will do anything if a man has the sand to stand up and keep on talking."—New York American.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

The Dairy Barn.

The floor of any cow barn should be of cement in order to be absolutely sanitary. Many authorities advocate covering the cement directly under the cow with wood so as to do away with the coldness of the cement which is undoubtedly a liberal contributor of both heat and cold.

An excellent plan is to have a shed about thirty-seven feet wide, facing the cows outward. This width permits a five foot alleyway in front of the cow, with a cement manger or feeding floor two feet six inches and standing space of about four feet six inches to five feet, with gutters four teen to eighteen inches wide, the remaining space being left for a drive way or alley behind the cows. This gives plenty of room to drive a wagon through, if desired, or to run a litter carrier.

The width of your cow stalls should be from three feet three inches to three feet nine inches, according to the size of your cows. One should bear in mind that in building a dairy barn the secret of sanitation is to eliminate everything possible in the barn which will take up dust, filth, odors and germs.—Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

Quality in Cattle.

High class animals always have the most quality. It is shown in a fine, silky coat of hair, in a mellow, elastic skin and in fine bones and neat joints. There is lots of difference in the coat of hair. One cow may have hair that is fine and soft and thick. There is a very fine and close undercoat and then longer, coarser hair. Such hair is a great protection in winter. Other animals, and they are the most common, have coarse, long hair. Their bones are also likely to be big and coarse. When an animal has plenty of quality you can easily take the skin in the hand between thumb and fingers and pull it out from the side of the body. It will be mellow and roll up somewhat in the hand. If the cow lacks quality her skin will be thick, tight and not easily taken in the hand. Fine quality as seen in the hair, skin and bone means with the beef animal that when killed there will be much less waste of the carcass than if the conditions show lack of quality. So also the dairy cow with plenty of quality is a better producer of milk than if the quality is lacking.—C. S. Plumb, Ohio.

Feeding Dairy Cows.

Of the mistakes made in feeding dairy cattle perhaps the one of underfeeding is the more common. It is a very serious mistake to feed a cow only that required to keep her body and then not feed her enough in addition to produce what milk she can. If a cow declines in weight while giving milk it shows that she is not receiving sufficient food, as a cow if not fed enough will produce milk for a time at the expense of her body—that is, she will take the surplus flesh from her body and convert it into milk and thereby will lose in live weight. On the other hand, when a cow is being overfed it may be detected in a short time by the fact that she will put on flesh. This condition may be corrected by giving her only the amount she needs and will use for milk production. This means feeding enough to maintain practically a uniform weight.—C. H. Eckles, University of Missouri.

Feeding Horses in Winter.

To raise horses from suckling colts keep them going ahead. Never allow them to get a setback, as the first year's growth goes far in determining what the animal will be at maturity. After weaning the colt should be kept in a well bedded box stall, with plenty of light and ventilation. It should be allowed to take plenty of exercise in favorable weather. A good ration consisting of three quarts of oats and one of bran mixed with water and a little salt and molasses or oilmeal cake should be fed three times a day. Oats are exceedingly fine for making bone and a healthy ration for laying on fat is an occasional feed of boiled barley. A little corn may be fed at noon.

50 Per C

"I have used less than ... Mrs. Gertrude Ward, of Ru... fifty per cent better than wh...

"Before taking Cardui, ... trouble, for eight years. M... larity. I also suffered" with ... but now I am greatly impro... dui to all my suffering friend...

Take CA...

J 44

The Wom...

The rare medicinal hea... the manufacturers direct fro... found in any other medicine...

These ingredients are w... as a female medicine and t...

For over 50 years Cardu... an's medicine. The ladies ... to take, so gentle, so safe, ... they have faith in its cura... the thousands of other ladie...

Write Dr. Ladies' Advisory Dept., Ch... for Special Instructions, and 64-page book...

MARK TWAIN STORY

howing What May Be Achieved by Nerve and Reiteration.

LESSON IN PERSEVERANCE.

ing to Prove That Repetition Will Work Wonders if a Man Has Only the Necessary Amount of Cheek to Stand Up and Keep on Talking.

Mark Twain once told a reporter at if a man says the same thing often enough people will begin to listen him.

"Now," said the great humorist, here was that story about Hank onk. That was the oldest, stalest, dest, deadest bit of alleged humor at any man ever heard. It had been rculated around Nevada and California until there wasn't a man left ho would even listen to it. I had eard it so many times that I knew it heart. It told how Hank Monk got orace Greeley over the Glenbrook ade to Placerville.

I was about to deliver my second ture at Platt's Hall in San Francisco the second one I had ever delivered. It occurred to me that I ight begin that lecture with the rst story I had ever heard and by illing it often enough start the lecure with a big laugh. I took that ory and memorized it so that it ould not vary in the telling, and I ade it just as pointless and just as ull and just as dry as I could.

"When it came time for me to talk stood up and with a few introductry remarks began that story. If I emember it went something like this:

"'Horace Greeley once went over he Glenabrook grade to Placerville. When he was leaving Carson City he old the driver, Hank Monk, that he ad an engagement to lecture at Placerville and was very anxious to through quick. Hank Monk cracked his whip and started off at an awful pace. The stage bounced up and own in such a terrific way that it lted the buttons all off Horace's coat nd finally shot his head clean through he roof of the stage, and then he yelled to Hank Monk and begged him to o easier, said he wasn't in as much f a hurry as he had been awhile go. But Hank Monk said, "Keep our seat, Horace, and I'll get you here on time!" And he did, too—what was left of him.'

"Now, that was all there was to the story. It was bad enough to begin with, but I made it worse in the telling. I droned it out in a flat, monotonous tone, without a gesture to mar its depressing effect. The people received it in dead silence. I had insulted every man in the audience. I had 'graveled' them with a story that was not only stale and pointless, but one which they had heard at least a thousand times. I waited a few seconds for the laughter, and then I began to hem and haw and shift my feet. I tried to appear just as embarrassed as I could, and after floundering about helplessly for a few sentences I cheered up a little and said that I would tell a funny anecdote which might be new to them. It began:

"'Horace Greeley went over the Glennbrook grade to Placerville'—

"I told it in exactly the same miserable, pointless way that I had told it before, and when I got through I waited a longer time for the applause, but there wasn't any applause. I could see that several men in the house were growing quite indignant. They had paid money to hear a humorous lecture. I took a long breath and plunged in a third time, more embarrassed and flustered and worried than ever, and by and by I worked around again to the time when Horace Greeley went over Glennbrook grade to Placerville.

"This time some of the smarter ones began to laugh, and this encouraged me so much that I thanked them and started right in to tell the story over again, never varying the delivery so much as a pause to take breath. The fourth time fetched 'em, and at the end of the story they stood up and whooped and yelled and cheered for some time.

"You see, I thought that if a man had sand enough to stand up before an audience and tell the oldest, stalest and most uninteresting story in the world he could make people laugh if he had the nerve to tell the story often enough. The rest of my lecture went very well. They were willing to laugh at my anecdotes the first time I told them. Maybe they were afraid I would tell them a second time.

"I felt so sure that I had discovered a new phase in human character that I tried the same thing in New York years afterward. There was an authors' reading bee one afternoon, and most of the authors read selections from their works. I sat on the platform beside James Russell Lowell. He asked me what I was going to read. I said that I wasn't going to read anything. I intended to tell an anecdote.

"'Is it a funny one?' he asked.

"I said it would be if I lasted long enough.

"I started out without any preamble, and I told the Hank Monk anecdote. There was an awful silence at the end. I took a drink of water, mopped my forehead and told the story again. Same effect. Young man, I told that story five times before I landed 'em. When I sat down at last Mr. Lowell whispered to me:

"'You have cost me dear. I have been sitting here and wasting sympathy on you.'

"That's the point, young man. Repetition will do anything if a man has the sand to stand up and keep on talking."—New York American.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

The Dairy Barn.

The floor of any cow barn should be of cement in order to be absolutely sanitary. Many authorities advocate covering the cement directly under the cow with wood so as to do away with the coldness of the cement, which is undoubtedly a liberal conductor of both heat and cold.

An excellent plan is to have a shed about thirty-seven feet wide, facing the cows outward. This width permits a five foot alleyway in front of each cow, with a cement manger or cement feeding floor two feet six inches and standing space of about four feet ten inches to five feet, with gutters fourteen to eighteen inches wide, the remaining space being left for a driveway or alley behind the cows. This gives plenty of room to drive a wagon through, if desired, or to run a litter carrier.

The width of your cow stall should be from three feet three inches to three feet nine inches, according to the size of your cows. One should bear in mind that in building a dairy barn the secret of sanitation is to eliminate everything possible in the barn which will take up dust, filth, odors and germs.—Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

Quality in Cattle.

High class animals always have the most quality. It is shown in a fine, silky coat of hair, in a mellow, elastic skin and in fine bones and neat joints. There is lots of difference in the coat of hair. One cow may have hair that is fine and soft and thick. There is a very fine and close undercoat and then longer, coarser hair. Such hair is a great protection in winter. Other animals, and they are the most common, have coarse, long hair. Their bones are also likely to be big and coarse. When an animal has plenty of quality you can easily take the skin in the hand between thumb and fingers and pull it out from the side of the body. It will be mellow and roll up somewhat in the hand. If the cow lacks quality her skin will be thick, tight and not easily taken in the hand. Fine quality as seen in the hair, skin and bone means with the beef animal that when killed there will be much less waste of the carcass than if the conditions show lack of quality. So also the dairy cow with plenty of quality is a better producer of milk than if the quality is lacking.—C. S. Plumb, Ohio.

Feeding Dairy Cows.

Of the mistakes made in feeding dairy cattle perhaps the one of underfeeding is the more common. It is a very serious mistake to feed a cow only that required to keep her body and then not feed her enough in addition to produce what milk she can. If a cow declines in weight while giving milk it shows that she is not receiving sufficient food, as a cow if not fed enough will produce milk for a time at the expense of her body—that is, she will take the surplus flesh from her body and convert it into milk and thereby will lose in live weight. On the other hand, when a cow is being overfed it may be detected in a short time by the fact that she will put on flesh. This condition may be corrected by giving her only the amount she needs and will use for milk production. This means feeding enough to maintain practically a uniform weight. —C. H. Eckles, University of Missouri.

Feeding Horses in Winter.

To raise horses from suckling colts keep them going ahead. Never allow them to get a setback, as the first year's growth goes far in determining what the animal will be at maturity. After weaning the colt should be kept in a well bedded box stall, with plenty of light and ventilation. It should be allowed to take plenty of exercise in favorable weather. A good ration consisting of three quarts of oats and one of bran mixed with water and a little salt and molasses or oilmeal cake should be fed three times a day. Oats are exceedingly fine for making bone, and a healthy ration for laying on fat is an occasional feed of boiled barley. A little corn may be fed at noon of cold times also. A good fodder feed is six or seven pounds of clover and timothy hay mixed. This should be fed mornings and evenings and as much as the colt will consume.

Repairing Farm Machinery.

Repairs should be made systematically and, as far as possible, at times when work is not rushing. It is necessary to have some system in looking after the machines in order that when a machine is to be used it will be ready and in good repair. In putting a machine away after a season's work it is suggested that a note be made of the repairs needed. These notes may be written on tags and attached to the machine. During the winter the tool may be taken into the shop, with which every farm should be provided, and the machine put in first class shape, ready to be used upon short notice. It is often an advantage not only in the choice of time, but also in being able to give the implement agent plenty of time in which to obtain necessary parts.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Filling Washy Places in Fields.

If there is no other trash on the farm for filling washy places in the fields, straw manure from stables is excellent. The straw will fill the places and catch and hold all of the soil that washes into them. The manure in the straw will help to make the ground more productive when it is again cultivated. Never plow in a gully with fresh dirt without some thrashy or brushy filling to hold it and catch more.

Conceited.

Phyllis—Harry is the most conceited man I ever met. Maud—What makes you think so? Phyllis—Why, he first asserts that I am the most adorable woman in the world, the most beautiful, intellectual and in every respect a paragon, and then he wants me to marry him!

Life.

It has been said that life is made up of three things—heredity, environment and the will. If the heredity and environment of the child are what they should be the will will choose the right and do it.

Couldn't Help It.

Mr. Biggs—You must think me a blamed fool. Mrs. Biggs (kindly)—No, I don't think anybody ever blamed you.—Boston Transcript.

Knew Where He Was.

"When I was studying in Boston," said a musician, "they used to tell a tale about a man named Harper, an odd old character, who played a trombone in one of the small theaters there. One time they were rehearsing a new overture. Throughout the piece Harper was a little behind the rest of the men. Before they started it a second time the leader reproved Harper for not coming in more regularly with the other players. When they attempted it again Harper came in, as usual, two or three beats behind time. The leader stopped and, after letting loose a lot of profanity, demanded to know if the trombonist knew he was playing about half a dozen notes behind the others.

"Harper nodded. 'That's all right,' said he. 'I can catch up with the others any time I want to.'"—Philadelphia Telegraph.

His Great Loss.

"Well, Garge," exclaimed the farmer as he greeted one of his laborers one New Year's day, "and 'ow did 'ee get on last yeear?"

"Aye, maister," was the reply, "it wur a bad yeear for I. I did lose my missus, I did lose my canary, and I did lose my dog. And it wur a good dog too."—London News.

Self Protection.

"You didn't really need a wig."

"I was driven to it. Now the barber won't try to sell me any tonics or hair restorer."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Never add the burden of yesterday's trouble to that of tomorrow. The one is past; the other may never come.

50 Per Cent Better

"I have used less than one bottle of Cardui," writes Mrs. Gertrude Ward, of Rushville, Neb., "and am feeling fifty per cent better than when I began taking it.

"Before taking Cardui, I had suffered with female trouble, for eight years. My greatest trouble was irregularity. I also suffered with severe pains, every month, but now I am greatly improved and will recommend Cardui to all my suffering friends."

Take CARDUI

J 48

The Woman's Tonic

The rare medicinal herbs of Cardui are imported by the manufacturers direct from Europe and are not to be found in any other medicine.

These ingredients are what give Cardui its superiority, as a female medicine and tonic, over any other medicine.

For over 50 years Cardui has been the favorite woman's medicine. The ladies like it, because it is so easy to take, so gentle, so safe, so reliable in its results, and they have faith in its curative tonic powers, because of the thousands of other ladies it has helped. Try it today.

Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent free.

ESMEE'S ROMANCE

Justin Hoste, the brilliant young artist, was in South Africa making sketches of the Boer war for American newspapers. He was riding toward a kopje one morning when the sudden sound of heavy firing sent the blood flying to his heart, as he realized that beyond the brow were the Boers and that an engagement was taking place. Putting spurs to his horse, he rode forward at full speed, and the fever of battle swept over him when he reached a point where he could see the hollow that surrounded the base of the kopje.

Down in the dip was a "thin red line" of men, who scrambled as fast as the ones in front would let them up the hillside toward their hidden foes, intrenched behind every rock and bush and scrap of cover that could shield a man.

Justin rode straight down into the melee, and then he felt a sudden blow and a sharp pang, and then all was a blank.

From the depth of oblivion he emerged at last in a hospital tent, where quiet nurses moved to and fro and where the stillness seemed almost oppressive after the clang and clamor of the hollow. His left arm was helpless and bandaged, and all his limbs felt singularly weak and his head swam dizzily.

"What is the matter with me?" he asked of a nurse.

"Not much now, Mr. Hoste. A bullet passed through an artery, and they only just found you in time. But you will soon get up your strength with rest and care."

To while away the tedium of his stay in the hospital he began to draw and sketched the face of a girl he had seen in a dream the night before the battle. She had a lovely, serious face, with great, earnest eyes and a tender mouth. She seemed to be standing at the gate of a beautiful country house, and she appeared in his dream to be holding the gate open for him to pass through. He called the sketch "His Dream Girl." It proved to be his best work.

When he was in London on the way to New York he responded to a Bond street gallery's suggestion by sending his African sketches for exhibition, and he included among them his masterpiece.

He had no lack of friends now that he had made a little place for himself in the world of people who "do something," and they took him up and made him one of the minor fashions of the hour, going in parties to see his "show," writing it up in all the papers, inviting him to dinners and giving him commissions to draw and write for them.

He had never been so prosperous, and he found it pleasant enough, though now and then the loneliness seized him for a moment. And through it all he had the sense of something which was coming toward him, approaching always day by day until it was imminent. It seemed a mere chance that took him one afternoon in late spring to Bond street to take a peep at his own pictures or at the people criticising them.

A group of three women at the far end of the second room attracted his attention. They seemed eager and interested and were absorbed in some debate concerning the sketch of "The Dream Girl."

Justin, curious to know what they discussed, drew near and heard one say with decision:

"There cannot be any one else in the world so exactly like Esmee as that. He must have seen her at some time or another.

"Esmee," she added, turning to the third, "are you sure you have never met him?"

Justin stepped closer involuntarily and bent forward to look at the girl addressed; then he started forward, exclaiming:

"My dream girl!"

For he was gazing into a face that was the facsimile of his vision, only lovelier even than the dream had shown it.

They were all speechless with the strangeness of the incident. And Justin was just recovering himself and was about to apologize when the girl stretched out her hand to him, saying softly:

"You are Justin!"

He stood transfixed, while a murmur of astonishment broke from the other two. And then Esmee said:

"I saw you once, years and years ago, when you were a boy and lived in the country. I was a lonely little girl, and you were a lonely little boy, and the powers that were decreed that we should meet and play together one summer day. They hoped we would be constant playmates, but you went away to school and never came back any more. Do you remember those old days?"

"I begin to remember," he stammered, bewildered, "but I had quite forgotten it. Did you open the gate to me?"

"I believe I did," she answered, smiling and looking from him to the picture.

So they began a long conversation and wandered away together to a cushioned seat in the corner. No shyness or reserve seemed possible to them in the presence of that picture, painted at the other side of the world.

"It is a romance in real life," whispered one of Esmee's friends to the other. "I always thought something unusual would happen to her because she is such an odd girl. He looks tremendously happy in his new found joy, doesn't he?"

And he was. Most people are when the best thing that life can give them is within their reach.—Boston Traveler.

In Memoriam.

On Feb. 17, the death angel visited the home of Mrs. Annie Parker, and wafted the gentle spirit of her loving mother to the Great Beyond. She was sick about two weeks when the Lord saw fit to call her from this world of sorrow and sin to that sweet home above. She was a loving mother and grandmother and a friend to all. She leaves one daughter, one son and a host of grandchildren and friends to mourn her loss. But we feel sure that your loss is heaven's gain. She was laid to rest at New Salem cemetery, Friday afternoon.

Dear Annie, we don't feel that we could say a word to ease your aching heart or fill the vacancy of that dear one, we can only point you to the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ and ask you to be ready to meet her in that sweet heavenly home. Weep not, dear loved ones, for your dear mother and grandmother is not dead, she is only sleeping. Dear boys, prepare to meet your loving grandmother in that sweet home above. You never know what day, what hour or what minute you will be called to go just as she was. Always be ready, when the Lord sees fit to call one of us. He never waits for us to prepare.

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

Poisonous Snakes.

There are only eight poisonous snakes in America, and the proportion of poisonous snakes everywhere, except in Australia, is one in four. In Australia, however, the proportion is reversed, and three-fourths of the snakes found in that country are poisonous.

Convict Gardeners.

Instead of being put to ordinary jail tasks, long sentence prisoners at Hobart, Tasmania, are employed in the local botanical gardens.

How Good News Spreads.

"I am 70 years old and travel a lot of the time," writes B. F. Tolson, of Elizabethtown, Ky. "Everywhere I go I recommend Electric Bitters, because I owe my excellent health and vitality to them. They effect a cure every time." They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run-down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health that's a daily joy. Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

THE REASON WHY

Vinol

IS THE BEST STRENGTHENING TONIC

for Feeble Old People, Delicate Children, Weak, Run-down Persons, and to Counteract Chronic Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis, is because it combines the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron, without oil or grease, tastes good, and agrees with every one.

We return your money without question if Vinol does not accomplish all we claim for it.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades, Crockery, Glass and Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies

We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

$1.75 The 1910 Subscription Offer—The Best Offer Made for the New Year $1.75

THE TRI-WEEKLY ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

AND

THE BANNER

together with the superb alternate FREE OFFERS of UNCLE REMUS'S HOME MAGAZINE; or HUMAN LIFE; or THE SOUTHERN RURALIST, a splendid agricultural paper; or TALKS FROM FARMERS TO FARMERS, an epitome of farm wisdom, worth its weight in gold. Your choice of one, only $1.75

THE TRI-WEEKLY CONSTITUTION MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, FRIDAY, THREE TIMES A WEEK. THE NEWSIEST, BEST, BRIGHTEST AND BIGGEST SOUTHERN NEWSPAPER. ALMOST A DAILY, YET AT THE PRICE OF A WEEKLY. ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

or The Weekly Constitution—once a week, with each of the above (except that The Weekly Constitution is substituted for the Tri-Weekly)—all for one year for only $1.40. The Tri-Weekly Constitution presents at the sweeping view the whole area of events. The news of the country, state, nation, and the world is given in each complete issue. Each week the departments of Farm and Farmers, Woman's Kingdom, Rural Free Delivery, Poultry and others of wide interest, edited by experts, appeal directly to those addressed.

The Weekly Constitution contains all these special features and the difference between it and The Tri-Weekly is that the one is issued once a week (on Monday only) and the other three times a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

If you want The Constitution alone, without any clubbing offers, you can get The Tri-Weekly Constitution at $1 per year, or The Weekly at 50c per year, by addressing The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. One sample copy sent free on request, giving with it six of your neighbors.

The Constitution Is the Paper for Rural Free Delivery Routes

A club of 40 or 50 or more will keep an R. F. D. route above the minimum average required for daily mail service. It is the great news purveyor of the whole Southland, as good in the gulf states as on the Atlantic seaboard.

Clubbed with The Atlanta Constitution, we have the superb FREE OFFERS shown from which you may make your choice of one:

(1) Uncle Remus's Home Magazine—Founded by Joel Chandler Harris, the prince of all story writers, author of Uncle Remus folk-lore and other sketches. It is the magazine of the whole Southland, it is as broad as the nation in its scope and its success is confined to no section.

(2) Human Life, of Boston, Mass., a monthly magazine of current and interesting biography. It is about folks, people in the public eye now, that you want to know about, and it is of absorbing interest from cover to cover. Be sure to subscribe now in time to get the next great issue.

(3) Talks From Farmers to Farmers, a symposium of Southern farm knowledge that should be in the hands of every practical farmer, young or old. The articles have all appeared in Tri-Weekly Constitution under same title and made one of the greatest features of this splendid farmers' paper. It will be mailed to you immediately upon receipt of order.

(4) The Southern Ruralist, one of the best agricultural papers in the south. It is a semi-monthly edited by a farmer on his own farm, and is intensely practical and helpful.

Our Great Proposition

Remember, our paper one year, and THE TRI-WEEKLY CONSTITUTION, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, three times a week, for one year, and your selection of one from the four alternate free offers, all for $1.75; or the whole combination (except that The Weekly Constitution is substituted for the Tri-Weekly) for only..$1.40

Send at once. Get right on. Don't miss a copy. Address all orders for above combination to

THE BANNER, Clanton, Ala.

THE BANNER

FRANK CRICHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain.
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw.
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR CIRCUIT SOLICITOR.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. LOYD TATE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Solicitor of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, including the counties of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

D. D. ASKEW.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Sheriff of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

LEE HAYES.

FOR JUDGE OF PROBATE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Judge of Probate of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

E. B. DEASON.

FOR CIRCUIT CLERK.

announce myself as a candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

HUGH M. SIMPSON.

FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Judge of the Fifteenth Judical Circuit of Alabama, composed of the counties of Autauga, Elmore, Chilton and Montgomery, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries.

W. W. PEARSON.

O'NEAL'S STATEMENT.

"It has come to my notice that in spite of my previous denial the rumos has been revived and is being industriously circulated to the effect that I am attempting to make up a slate for state or other offices in this campaign, and I wish to now thus publicly and with all the emphasis at my command declare that I have not attempted to further the candidancy of any man for any office: nor shall I hereafter do so during this campaign.

EMMET O'NEAL."

MALLORY'S STATEMENT.

"I think it due to the other candidates and to myself to say that I have not formed any alliance with any other candidate, nor even thought of so doing.

H. S. D. MALLORY."

HON. W. W. PEARSON.

The announcement of this honorable and learned gentleman's candidacy for the office of Judge of the Circuit Court, an office he has well and ably filled for some time, will be agreeably received by his numerous friends and admirers in Chilton county.

Judge Pearson, by his fair and impartial rulings, with his knowledge of law, has earned the respect and esteem of all the people, and now that he asks for an endorsement at their hands many will be glad to give it to him.

The controlling interest in the Birmingham Daily News has been purchased by Victor H. Hanson and Frank P. Glass, of the Montgomery Advertiser, who promise to make an excellent paper better than ever.

A wreck on the L. & N. at Minooka, Monday night, made the passenger trains some three hours late. No one was hurt.

Wires of the electric light plant got crossed Sunday night and made a pretty electric display among the trees on Sixth street.

LAUNCHING OF S. S. "CITY OF MONTGOMERY."

On Monday last at Newport News, Va., the Ocean Steamship Company of Savannah, launched their new vessel, "City of Montgomery." Miss Helen Camp Steiner, daughter of Major Robert E Steiner of Montgomery, who is one of the Directors of the Central of Georgia Railway, christened the ship as she left the ways.

Next month her sister ship, "City of St. Louis," will be launched, and each steamer will start on its maiden voyage during the early summer.

Only twice in the history of coastwise ship-building, namely, the "City of Atlanta" and the "City of Columbus," and now the two new coastwise steamships under construction side by side for the same company, the "City of St. Louis," to be launched thirty days from now, has been undertaken. These two steamers, "City of Montgomery" and the "City of St. Louis," intended for service between New York and Savannah, Georgia, for the popular Savannah Line are to be the Luisitania and Mauretania of the coastwise traffic in the matter of size and luxurious appointment. Hitherto the plan of construction in coastwise steamers has been a single steamer now and then with long spaces of time between.

The City of Montgomery has, therefore, the distinction of making her debut first into the waters of the Chesapeake.

Great, wide decks, nearly fifty feet across from rail to rail, with dining saloons allowing an unobstructed view of the ocean, sheltered decks and sun decks rising forty feet above the surface of the ocean form only a few of the attractions of the "City of Montgomery" and the "City of St. Louis." A length of over 400 feet and a tonnage of 6,200 make these twin steamers the very essence of comfort and safety between the Northern and the Southern ports.

Both the "City of Montgomery" and the "City of St. Louis" will enter the service of the Savannah Line early next summer. They will leave the company's New York pier at three o'clock in the afternoon and arrive at Savannah at daybreak the second day thereafter. Likewise will leave the company's Savannah pier in the afternoon and arrive before daybreak in New York the second day after leaving the Southern port.

The only thing in which no improvement is possible is the cuisine, which, on the Savannah Line, has been adjudged par excellence, the best cuisine to-day maintained on any steamship service, bar none. This excellence will be jealously guarded on the "City of Montgomery" and the "City of St. Louis" and expert chefs will be intsalled on the two new liners so as to maintain this superiority of table.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 15th JUDICIAL CIRCUIT.

I have held the office of Judge of this Circuit, which is composed of the counties of Montgomery, Elmore, Autauga and Chilton about three years, or one-half of a regular term. Have tried to discharge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially.

Was reared on a farm in Tallapoosa county, adjoining this Circuit, was graduated at Auburn in 1882, have resided in Montgomery nearly twenty-three years, practicing law until I went on the bench in 1907.

Have been a Democrat all my life, and have responded as best I could to every call of the party.

I seek re-nomination in the primary to be held on May 2, 1910, and earnestly solicit your vote and influence.

I hope that an investigation of my record will reveal no valid reason why my fellow Democrats should depart from their custom of endorsing a faithful servant, in my case.

Touching my fitness for continuance in the office to which you elected me in 1908, I refer you to any member of our Supreme Court and the lawyers of the Circuit.

I shall be actively engaged in holding court from the 14th of March to the date of the primary, with the exception of one week. Notice of opposition to my re-nomination did not reach me in time for a personal campaign on my part.

Your favorable consideration of my candidacy wil be appreciated.

Most respectfully
W. W. PEARSON.

Literally So.

"Jinks tells me he is living high."
"So he is—in an attic room, I believe."—Baltimore American.

All Attention.

She whispered in
The judge's ear.
And scores of women
Leaned to hear.

Scott's Emulsion

is the original—has been the standard for thirty-five years.

There are thousands of so-called "just as good" Emulsions, but they are not—they are simply imitations which are never as good as the original. They are like thin milk—SCOTT'S is thick like a heavy cream.

If you want it thin, do it yourself—with water—but dont buy it thin.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send No., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York

PROGRAM

District No. 3 Convention, at Collins Chapel, second Sunday in March, 1910.

9.30 a.m. Song and devotional services. The Sunday conditions of this district, by president.

10:10. The possibilities of the young men's organized class, by J. A. Hunter.

10:40. The primary problem by Mrs. S. E. Norton.

11:30. Call roll of churches and get report of Sunday schools.

1:30 p.m. The teacher training class, by Rev. C. W. Snyder.

2. How can the Sunday school attendance be increased? by Judge L. H. Reynolds. The moral effect of the Sunday school on the young people, by A. Horn.

3. Relation of the Church and Sunday school, by Rev. W. P. Lowery.

We want all Sunday school workers to come and take part in the discussion. All believers in Sunday school are invited and it is especially requested for all superintendents to be present, and don't forget to elect delegates and see that they come.

J. BICE, President.
MISS ROBERTA COLLINS, Sec.

PROGRAM S. S. CONVENTION.

Th Sunday School Convention of District 1 will be held at Mt. Moriah church, the first Sunday in March.

10 a.m. Devotional exercises conducted by W. H. Shaw. Welcome address, J. R. Johnson.

10:45. Reports from the various Sunday schools in the district. (We mean written reports.)

11. Preaching by Rev. R. J. Mills, pastor of Mt. Moriah church.

1:15. Some important reasons why church members should attend Sunday school, Mr. Alex Glasscock and Miss Ora Shaw.

2. Does our nation owe any part of its progress to the Sunday school? Dr. A. Horn, County President.

2:45. The responsibility of the young people for the evangelization of the world, Misses Annie Skipper and Nelia Johnson.

We urge that each superintendent see that his Sunday school is represented and endeavor to make this, our first convention of the year, one to be enjoyed.

Sincerely in the work,
W. H. SHAW, President.
NELIA JOHNSON, Secretary.

FARMERS UNION

The Chilton County Farmers' Union will meet with Providence Local No. 215, 7 miles east of Clanton, on Monday and Tuesday March 14-15, 1910.

Public speaking first day by State Lecturer, O. P. Ford, Hon. J. A Wilkinson and a man from the Georgia division of the Farmers' Union.

Let me urge that every farmer who is interested in more scientific methods of agriculture and farm life in general, attend this meeting. Delegates and others coming by rail to Clanton will be met by conveyances if they will notify Bro. W H. Robinson, Clanton, Route 1, five days in advance.

Yours for business,
J. M. SMITH, County Sec.

Shoults

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely; Mr. J. R. McFee is our superintendent, and we think Mr. McFee is one among the good superintendents. Why don't more of the people around Pleasant Grove go to Sunday school? We think we have a great Sunday school. But what would we have if people attended regular?

And a few words about our society we have at the Shoults school house. We think it one of the nicest things out, which, I suppose, it is for young people and older people too. We met last Saturday at 7 o'clock p.m., and had a good debate, nice readings and also good recitations. We have never had any bad order, everything went on in a nice, calm way, which we want to thank the people who have come out to our society meeting for their nice behavior. The judges reported that Mr. Cleve Latham made the best speech. Messrs. Willis Head, Perry Hicks, Cebron Latham, Getis Head, Raymond Lawrence and Mrs. Shoults were visitors from Lawley; we were glad to have them come. We are going to make the society better in the future than it has been in the past.

Mrs. Shoults from Lawley has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Anna Latham, for a few days.

We were sorry to hear that Mrs. Mary Hall has been sick, but glad to hear that she is improving fast.

The health of this community has been real good so far.

Messrs. Willis and Getis Head from Lawley spent Saturday night with Mr. Bert Walker.

Best wishes to the Banner and its many readers.

A SOCIETY MEMBER.

A Tender Feast.

A tenderfoot went out to Yuma,
And there he encountered a puma,
And later they found
Just a spot on the ground
And a puma in very good huma.
—Douglas (A. T.) Dispatch.

A Musical Plaster.

"Tommy, what has become of that porous plaster I sent you after for your father?"

"Listen, mamma. That's it Ethel's playing now on the piano player!"—Yonkers Statesman.

It Often Happens.

She used to laugh when first he called
And sneered about him to her friends.
But they are man and wife today.
For this is how it often ends.
—Detroit Free Press.

Think It Over.

"Hopefulness," said Uncle Eben, "is a grand thing, but it don' take de place of energy. De man dat sits aroun' waitin' foh a thaw is de one dat has to be dug out'n a snowdrift."—Washington Star.

The Dentist.

If I were but a dentist
I'd never have to beg—
The dentist pulls your aching teeth,
And then he pulls your leg!
—Cleveland Leader.

Stubborn As Mules

are liver and bowels sometimes; seem to balk without cause. Then there's trouble—Loss of Appetite—Indigestion, Nervousness, Despondency, Headache. But such troubles fly before Dr. King's New Life Pills, the world's best Stomach and Liver remedy. So easy. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Are You Honest?

With your land when for the sake of saving a few dollars you use a fertilizer whose only recommendation is its analysis. It requires no special knowledge to mix materials to analyses. The value of a fertilizer lies in the materials used, so as not to over feed the plant at one time and starve at another. This is why Royster brands are so popular. Every ingredient has its particular work to do. Twenty-five years experience in making goods for Southern crops has enabled us to know what is required.

See that trade mark is on every bag

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO

CLANTON, ALA.

WATCH THIS SPACE

C. R, MULLINS

FREE INSURANCE!

A policy with our Company insures you against high prices. No high salaried officials to pay, no rational campaign funds to contribute to, no object in view save the protection of the widow and orphans at the lowest possible cost compatible with absolute safety. The officers selected are among the most substantial, conservative and conscientious business men. We furnish insurance to both men and women at a price so low that it is within the reach of all. Old established Company. Each policy limited to one thousand dollars.

COST.

Ages 16 to 30	$4.20
Ages 30 to 40	$5.40
Ages 40 to 50	$6.80
Ages 50 to 55	$7.00
Ages 55 to 60	$8.00

Agents wanted in every County in Alabama, Big Commissions.
Furnish reference and write for particulars.

American Mutual Benefit Life Association of Alabama
HOME OFFICE
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

TOWN ITEMS.

[illegible] court meets second Monday in February, third Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July and third Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART

Price to day.....14 @ 14½c
" same date last year 9½ @ 10c

No. Intercompress bales

Warehouse receipts
to 5 p.m. Wednesday.... 593

FOR SALE— One two-story dwelling, convenient to School and church. Fine water. Lot 156 by 330 feet. Apply to J. R. Mullins, Clanton, Ala.

Mr. Reese McKee of the U. S. Forest Service, spent a few days in Clanton last week. He has recently been transferred from Montana to Florida.

Mr. O. H. Franklin of the Climax Cotton Seed Culler is in Clanton again for a few days, shaking hands with friends.

Miss Maud Letcher of Riderville is visiting Mrs. Walter Kemp.

Rev. F. A. Gibson came up from Brundidge and spent a week with his family at home.

Mrs. M. Woolley of Montevallo is visiting relatives and friends in Clanton this week.

Miss Etta Matthews of Atlanta who has been visiting her brother Dr. E. A. Matthews for the past week left Wednesday for her home Wednesday morning.

See the new line Clanton Views published by Alred Drug Co.

Mrs. Clara Mullins left last Monday for Louisville where she will spend several days getting up the latest styles for the Clanton Millinery Co.

Col. R. H. Knox made a professional visit to Montgomery Tuesday.

Mr. E. G. Cofer of Jemison was in town Wednesday.

Mr. J. H. Stange of Verbena was a visitor here Friday.

Alred Drug Co. sell Post Cards from 1c to 5c each.

Mr. R. J. Mitchell of Maplesville who has been with his sister Mrs. Annie Smitherman for the past two weeks left Wednesday for his home.

Miss Minnie Muse returned Tuesday from a visit of two weeks to Nashville and St. Louis, where she has been purchasing her spring stock of Millinery. Look out for display next week.

Miss Muse has taken particular pains in selecting her stock and spent considerable time in both markets and will be better prepared to supply her friends and customers with an assortment of styles than heretofore.

Dr. E. A. Matthews spent Wednesday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins spent Monday in Montgomery.

Alred Drug Co.: "The Home" of pure drugs; prescriptions carefully filled by graduated pharmacist with years experience.

It is a difficult matter to persuade a handsome woman to engage in the women's rights business.

The Electric Light Plant is again in operation. Remember, we have the necessary fixtures for wireing your house.

GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

For new Turban Crowns call on Clanton Millinery Co.

Mr. Leroy Watts of Birmingham spent Sunday in Clanton.

Mr. Bob Farley spent two days in Birmingham the past week.

Spigener's cash store the place to buy shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced price in order to make room for spring and summer line.

Yours Truly,
W. D SPIGENER.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. J. W. Mills and Miss Willie Dowe; Mr. T. A. Powell and Miss Lemmie Deason; Mr. A. C. Jessie and Miss Neomie Jones; Mr. Ed Grant and Miss Zadie Glenn, Colored: Alonzo Wilson and Mary Hall; Will Dickinson and Miss Carrie Owen; William Cooper and Willie Bush; Kelford Wilson and Bettie Ann DeJarnette.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or dampness, chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Sloan-Tabb's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all druggists.

TOWN ITEMS.

Commissioners' court meets second Monday in February, first Monday in April, first Monday in June, second Monday in July second Monday in August and first Monday in November.

CLANTON COTTON MART

Price to day.....14 @ 14½c
" same date last year 9½ @ 10c

No. Bales received to date

Warehouse receipts to 5 p.m. Wednesday....5936

FOR SALE— One two-story dwelling, convenient to School and church. Fine water. Lot 156 by 430 feet. Apply to J. R. MULLINS, Clanton, Ala.

Mr. Reese McKee of the U. S. Forest Service, spent a few days in Clanton last week. He has recently been transferred from Montana to Florida.

Mr. O. H. Franklin of the Climax Cotton Seed Culler is in Clanton again for a few days, shaking hands with friends.

Miss Maud Letcher of Riderville is visiting Mrs. Walter Kemp.

Rev. F. A. Gibson came up from Brundidge and spent a week with his family at home.

Mrs. M. Woolley of Montevallo is visiting relatives and friends in Clanton this week,

Miss Etta Matthews of Atlanta who has been visiting her brother Dr. E. A. Matthews for the past week left Wednesday for her home Wednesday morning.

See the new line Clanton Views published by Alred Drug Co.

Mrs. Clara Mullins left last Monday for Louisville where she will spend several days getting up the latest styles for the Clanton Millinery Co.

Col. R. H. Knox made a professional visit to Montgomery Tuesday.

Mr. E. G. Cofer of Jemison was in town Wednesday.

Mr. J. H. Stange of Verbena was a visitor here Friday.

Alred Drug Co. sell Post Cards from 1c to 5c each.

Mr. R. J. Mitchell of Maplesville who has been with his sister Mrs. Fannie Smitherman for the past two weeks left Wednesday for his home.

Miss Minnie Muse returned Tuesday from a visit of two weeks to Nashville and St. Louis, where she has been purchasing her spring stock of Millinery. Look out for a display next week.

Miss Muse has taken particular pains in selecting her stock and spent considerable time in both markets and will be better prepared to supply her friends and customers with an assortment of styles than heretofore

Dr. E. A. Matthews spent Wednesday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins spent Monday in Montgomery.

Alred Drug Co., "The Home" of pure drugs; prescriptions carefully filled by graduated pharmacist with years experience.

It is a difficult matter to persuade a handsome woman to engage in the woman's rights business.

The Electric Light Plant is again in operation. Remember, we have the necessary fixtures for wireing your house.

GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

For new Turban Crowns call on Clanton Millinery Co.

Mr. Leroy Watts of Birmingham spent Sunday in Clanton.

Mr. Bob Farley spent two days in Birmingham the past week.

Spigener's cash store the place to buy shoes cheap, will sell shoes for the next thirty days at reduced price in order to make room for spring and summer line.

Yours Truly,
W. D. SPIGENER.

Marriage licenses have been issued this week by the Probate Judge to the following persons.

Mr. J. W. Mills and Miss Willie Lee Howe; Mr. T. A. Powell and Miss Lemmie Deason; Mr. A. C. Rossie and Miss Neomie Jones; Mr. Ed Grant and Miss Zadie Glenn. Colored: Alonzo Wilson and Mary Hall; Will Dickinson and Miss Carrie Owen; William Cooper and Willie Bush; Kellord Wilson and Bettie Ann DeJarnette.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp. Chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all druggists.

New Goods

We have them in beautiful disvlav!

Call in and look around! Anv time!

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase.
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.
At 1 live and let live price
PHONE 317

W. H. SARTOR

Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

CLANTON, ALA.

B. E. JONES — CRIT JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF

Dry Goods. Shoes, Hats, Notions

FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully

B. E. JONES & BRO.

CLANTON, ALA.

Announcement Extraordinary!

GREAT CASH REALIZATION SALE!!!

Merchandise Doomed to the Slaughter!!

The citizens of Chilton county are to be treated to the greatest bargain event that ever took place in the history of her mercantile life.

On FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25th, C. W. REYNOLDS will throw upon the market the largest aggregation of General and Staple Merchandise ever collected under one roof in this good county of Chilton.

Genuine bargains in all departments at astonishingly low prices.

On THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, our store will be closed during the entire day to enable our clerks to mark all goods in plain figures; no goods will be sold to any one on this day.

We have calculated the amount we are able to lose on this tremendous sale and have accordingly "cut out" the profits and much of the cost.

EVERY ARTICLE OF MERCHANDISE

is to be slaughtered.

WE ARE DETERMINED NOT TO RESERVE

goods of any kind or character if price inducements will move them.

FOR FULL THIRTY DAYS AND THIRTY NIGHTS

beginning Friday, February 25th, and continuing through Friday, March 25th, this gigantic slaughtering carnival will run.

PROFITS ARE ACTUALLY EMASCULATED

and in many instances, too numerous to mention. COST is eliminated.

WHATEVER YOUR WANTS OR NECESSITIES

we can fill them, and at prices so surprisingly below what you have always paid for the same goods as to make you feel as if we had presented them to you.

SEE OUR BIG CIRCULAR

which gives you an idea of some of the bargains we are to offer you during this memorable sale. With such a large and diversified stock it would be impossible to enumerate even a small part of the bargains, but the CIRCULAR will enable you to form some kind of an estimate of the great PARLIAMENT of cut prices here inaugurated.

SAVE YOUR CASH FOR THIS SALE

do not be deceived into believing that you can get b rgains "just as good or just as cheap" elsewhere for it cannot be done. OTHERS MAY strive to imitate, but not one can equal the sales put on under our personal supervision.

REMEMBER THE DATE AND REMEMBER THE PLACE

February 25th to March 25th, 1910

CHARLES W. REYNOLDS

CLANTON, ALA.

Geo. G. Ehrenberg, C. E.

CIVIL, MINING & MUNICIPAL ENGINEER

County Surveyor Chilton County

BRIERFIELD, ALA.

Personal.

The Clanton Millinery Co. is getting in the best line of spring millinery, ladies' notions, and ribbon ever brought to Clanton. Mrs. Clara Mullins, manager, will leave in a few days, for Louisville and St. Louis to complete this stock and get the latest styles.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by all druggists.

We are agents for the International Harvester Machinery—when needing repairs or new machinery call on us.

GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

Watch out for the spring opening of the Clanton Millinery Co. Early in March which will appear in this paper. This display will be something worth seeing.

E. C. Ellison, State Deputy in Alabama for the American Patriots, was in Clanton Tuesday to attend the funeral of Mr. W. M. Wilson, who carried one of the six thousand dollar ten-year monthly pay policies, written only by the Patriots. Mr. Ellison shook hands with a number of his old friends here and returned to Montgomery Tuesday night.

High! High! High!

Prices on all goods seem high and going higher except on Matting, Rugs, Art-squares, matting squares Hall-curtains, Window curtains, Window-shades, Counter pins, and Table linens etc.

These goods can yet be found at Spigener's Cash Store, at very reasonable prices.

W. D. SPIGENER.

Clanton still grows, as we learn that the building owned and occupied by J. V. Higgins, the jeweler and optician, will be doubled in capacity, that the contract for the above imporovements will be let out within the next five or ten days. The improvements being made to furnish the town of Clanton and Chilton and adjoining counties with one of the most up-to-date optical parlors in the State of Alabama. The above Mr. Higgins being a graduate optician from the highest optical college in the United States, which is the Northern Illinois College, of Chicago, Ill.

A Pleasant Physic.

When you want a pleasant physic give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial. They are mild and gentle in their action and always produce a pleasant cathartic effect. Call at all druggists for a free sample.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back of the head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3 50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this:

Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1141 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain sealed envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better use what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home

RAINBOW

TRADE-MARK REGISTERED

THE LATEST AND GREATEST BRANDS

Complete Fertilizer, Phosphates and Potashes

All shipments from Montgomery

CAPACITY UNLIMITED

Private tracks in factory connecting with all railroads. No delays. Promptness assured. The newest broom does the cleanest sweep. COTTON SEED MEAL, BLOOD, FISH BITMAIR, ONE OR ALL IN COMBINATION FOR ANNUMBA BASIS.

Plant food from the sprouting of the seed to maturity. Destined to be the most popular brands ever offered. Unqualified merit and twenty-five years' practical experience shows us how to do it. Free Premiums given. Wagons, Buggies, Saddles and Plows. Ask your dealer.

MARKS & GAYLE
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Special Notice

TO THE FARMERS

We have on hand 50 PLOW STOCKS complete, which we are closing out at $1.25, regular price, and to each purson who buys one we will give 1 PAIR OF 50 CENT HAMES FREE.

Only a few left. Come Quick.

A. HEADLEY & CO.

CORNER SECOND AVE., AT DEPOT.

CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—

A M. JOHNSON'S CASH GROCERY STORE

THORSBY, ALA.

FOR BARGAINS IN

Staple and Fancy Groceries

A Triolet.

I sent her the rose
Which she wore in her hair.
That's how my coin goes.
I sent her the rose,
But I wonder who knows
If the question is fair.
I paid for the rose,
But who paid for the hair?
—Detroit Free Press.

Chameleon Hair.

"What do you think of the color of Mrs. Smith's hair since she came from Europe?" asked one of the Cats.

"Well," said the other, "I have seen her with four different colors, and I think on the whole I like this best."—

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone should take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS

WITH Dr. King's New Discovery

FOR COUGHS, COLDS, HAY FEVER, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

NATURE

Needs an Assistant.

The corn in the farmer's bin does not plant itself. No more can Nature, alone and unaided, always perform the enormous tasks that are so often forced upon her.

Nature Needs an Assistant.

Perfect health is the result of study and research. It has taken centuries to understand the human body and to find the best conditions and remedies to develop a healthful equilibrium.

Any one with a sick stomach, sluggish liver, bilious, constipated and nervous is not at all likely to retain their health unaided

Nature Needs an Assistant.

ST. JOSEPH'S Liver Regulator

IS NATURE'S BEST ASSISTANT.

This remedy has proven itself the true and tried friend of the human family by giving prompt relief when taken for Constipation Indigestion, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Dizziness or other troubles incident to a torpid or inactive liver and a clogged up system.

It is a pleasant remedy of great power, and Nature's assistant in the highest degree. It is made in both liquid and powder form, is pleasant and agreeable to the taste, prompt in action, and leaves no sickening, weakening after effects.

It is an Ideal Liver Medicine.

We have a large number of letters from satisfied patrons who have been benefited and cured by it.

St. Joseph's Liver Regulator is sold by druggists and general merchants, or you can send to us for it. Price, Liquid, 50 cents a bottle. Powders, in tin boxes, 25 cents a box. Sample of powders and booklet sent free on application.

GENTLE MEDICINE CO.

Baltimore, Tennessee

DR. J. EARL COWAN

DENTIST

Over Bibb Bank

CLANTON, ALA.

IN TIME OF PERIL.

A Story of Russian Love and Adventure.

By ARTHUR D. BRADFORD.

[Copyright, 1903, by American Press Association.]

It is a wild country northwest from Ust Usa, toward the Obdorsk mountains, with poor roads, and few stopping places for travelers and deathly cold to fight.

At sunset it was below zero, and at midnight, when they were a hundred and fifty miles on their journey, it had fallen 20 degrees more.

With the speed at which the automobile was going the wind was like needles at first and then paralyzing into numbness.

But Helga Pienavik was covered deep in the furs, and her man Ivan bent his fur capped head and urged the machine forward at reckless speed in view of the desperate nature of the journey. Since starting they had not once spoken.

As they climbed the mountains the snow that at starting had been only a white blanket grew deeper and yet deeper, but with a crust which at their high rate of speed bore up the machine.

As they flew on particles of ice and snow were thrown to either side and trailed out into a whirling cloud behind.

Then suddenly, an hour or so after midnight, as they were nearing the summit of one of the lower ranges, there came a solitary howl, a long distance away apparently, but sounding clearly across the snow. Ivan's bent head rose quickly, but it was not until an answering howl came from a different direction that he stopped the automobile and sprang to the ground. Helga uncovered her face from the furs.

THE MUSCULAR ARMS ROSE AND FELL.

"What is the matter, Ivan?" she asked. "Is the machine broken or the snow too deep?"

Ivan did not answer for a moment. When he spoke his voice sounded hoarse and unnatural.

"No, Miss Helga," he mumbled. "I am only giving the machine its full power. It has been going several hours, you know, and the running is hard."

"Yes, I know that," looking at him curiously. "But why have you stopped at this bleak spot to power up? There must be at least fifty more miles in the machine."

"We may need a hundred, with power for a terrific spurt of speed if necessary."

"But why?"

"Listen!"

A third howl quivered menacingly through the silence of the solitude and night, nearer, yet from still another direction. Ivan's voice, even in its muffled indistinctness, had seemed strangely tense, and she had wondered. The howl, sharply re-enforced from the same direction as the first and second, explained.

"Wolves!"

There is no sound so calculated to strike terror into a stout heart as the howl of a wild animal crying from hunger. Men who have escaped from prison, flying for their freedom and for their lives, subject to every danger, have said that this cry, especially in the nighttime when all is still, has gone further to take away their courage than any other cause. The cry of the wolf has in it a dismal wail that renders it more dreadful even than the deep roar of the lion.

"Timber wolves, starving and so fierce and gaunt that the fastest race horse in the country would be only a tortoise in their path. You"—

He was interrupted by a startled exclamation, stifled. For a moment the voice had forgotten its disguise.

"Alexiff!"

The man bent a little lower over his work; then he rose suddenly, erect. Concealment was no longer of use.

"Yes, Helga," he said.

"Why are you here?"

"To serve you. Ivan is a brave man, but he has his own interests. My only interest is you."

"But"—

"I have not the courage and hardihood for a desperate undertaking, you would say," simply. "You intimated that when you refused me. I have been a society man, true, with no apparent object but to spend my income, but you are more to me than society, Helga—more than estate, everything.

"When I suspected this fearful journey your father is sending you on, in which he dared not trust your own man with the secret, I determined to substitute myself in Ivan's place and be near.

"You are a brave girl, Helga, for that is in the blood of your race, but you may thank God that we have the best automobile in the country and that the summit of this ridge is only ten miles away. On the other side it will be down grade, and the roads will be less obstructed by snow. Better the risk from terrific speed than from hungry timber wolves. I believe we shall escape the animals, but it will be against a hundred possible accidents. There, now, we are ready."

He sprang into the automobile and threw it forward with a bound, as a race horse touched by the spur. And as he did so there came a wild series of howls circling them from all sides.

Helga raised a fur robe to shield her face. Alexiff bent forward to the cutting wind and flying particles as before, but with ears open and eyes keen.

A mile through the hissing wind—two miles—five—and then shadowy forms were seen sweeping toward them on either side and even gaining on them from behind.

The snow was deeper here, and in some places the crust gave a little, causing them to sway from side to side, losing speed.

A dark form rushed down upon them in front, bounded into the air, and the speed at which both were going carried the car entirely under him before the animal touched the ground, clawing impotently into the snow to check himself.

Other dark spots appeared and in an instant seemed to sweep down upon them and passed. One got his claws upon the box in front and tried to scramble into the car. Alexiff struck him off with his fist.

"Helga," he cried, "you must take charge of the machine now and give her speed, speed, speed. Never mind risk."

He caught up a short iron headed staff and swung it to the right, the left, in front, and with every blow a wolf fell back struggling upon the snow.

He was a powerful man, and it required but a single blow accurately placed.

Another five minutes, with his arms rising and falling like pendulums, or, rather, like steam hammers, and then the automobile swept over the summit and dropped upon the down grade.

"Now speed, Helen," he yelled as he struck a wolf back upon the snow even before its feet had touched the car "There are a hundred of the brutes crowding upon us. Faster! More speed! More speed!"

A wolf was climbing into the car from behind, another on the left, a third rising into the air in front. The muscular arms rose and fell three times.

Thwack, thud — thwack, thud — thwack, thud—and the three wolves were lying struggling and disabled up on the snow, with the snapping teeth of their companions closing upon them.

The automobile was now rushing down the slope at fearful speed. Another wolf was struck away; two more, and then the animals began to fall behind. A mile farther, and Alexiff's hand touched Helga's shoulder.

"Slow a little now," he said. "We have distanced them, I think, so will just try to keep ahead. You may get back under the furs."

She returned to her seat, covered herself with the furs and for a time was in a partial swoon.

The danger she had passed was too much for her. She could not get the savage beasts, their long jaws and sharp teeth, their hungry eyes, out of her mind.

Again she saw them climbing into the automobile and again she saw the brave man who had fought them raining blows upon them.

It had seemed to her every moment that he would be overpowered, and that meant a frightful death, not only to him but to her.

All this made him to her what he had never been before. He was not only a hero, he was her protector—he had saved her life.

Six hours later they swept into Akakia, through the turbulent streets and on to where a mass of Russian cavalry and infantry were about to reduce a monastery which had advocated revolt. Policemen sprang forward to stop the automobile, soldiers moved in front, but Helga held up something which glittered in the sun, and at the sign they all fell back. She went straight to the officer commanding.

He turned at her appearance, his face darkening.

"I have no time for visitors now," he said harshly. "Wait until I punish these rebels."

"You have time for this," replied Helga, giving him a paper and raising her hand, where shone the sign of her authority.

The officer muttered something and took off his hat. Then he read the paper.

"Very well," he said sourly. "I will wait twenty-four hours, and then"— "You will do well to wait," interrupted Helga sternly. "This is a time for compromise, not slaughter. Within twenty-four hours you will receive confirmatory orders through the regular channels."

Then she said something to Alexiff, and he turned the automobile, and they swept back on the return journey. But her hand rested on his arm for a moment, and he understood. She acknowledged that he was a brave man as well as a strong one, and he might come to her and ask again.

THE AGILE ESKIMO.

Habit Enables Him to Scale Ice Clad Heights With Ease.

"In all my experience I had never encountered a rougher, more difficult country in which to hunt than in Ellesmere Land," writes Harry Whitney in Outing. "Ordinarily I should have believed these mountain sides, with walls of smooth rock sheathed with a crust of hard ice and snow, quite unscalable.

"In places they were almost perpendicular. Rarely did they offer a crevice to serve as foot or hand hold, and jutting points and firm set bowlders were too widely scattered to be of much help.

"In this his native land the Eskimo has a decided advantage over the white hunter. His lifetime of experience has taught him to scale these ice clad heights with a nimbleness and ease that are astounding. He is quite fearless, and even the mountain sheep is not his superior as a climber.

"As if by magic and with little apparent effort the two Eskimos flew up the slippery walls, far outstripping me. How they did it I shall never know. Now and again I was forced to cut steps in the ice or I should inevitably have lost my footing and been hurled downward several hundred feet to the rocks beneath.

"I was astonished even at my own progress, and when I paused to glance behind me I felt a momentary panic. But there was no turning back, and one look robbed me of any desire to try it.

"The Eskimo has no conception of distance. He is endowed with certain artistic instincts which enable him to draw a fairly good map of a coast line with which he is thoroughly familiar, but he cannot tell you how far it is from one point to another. Often when Eskimos told me a place we were bound for was very close at hand it developed that we were far from it. This they are never sure of and cannot indicate.

"The Eskimos have a white man 'stung to death' from every point of view. They not only can go to sleep promptly, but sleep soundly and well as they travel when circumstances permit. They get sustenance, too, by eating hard frozen walrus and seal meat or blubber. This I could never do, for it is so strong in flavor that it invariably nauseated me, though I did succeed very well with raw hare or deer's meat when I had it."

BLUNDERING REPORTERS.

Mistakes That Mangled the Speakers' Words and Feelings.

"Drunkenness is folly!" earnestly exclaimed Bishop Magee in the house of lords on a celebrated occasion. How horrified was the prelate to read in the papers next morning that he had given utterance to the very bacchanalian sentiment, "Drunkenness is jolly!"

Lord Salisbury was a master phrasemaker, but one of his best points was spoiled when a careless reporter turned his reference to "manacles and Manitoba" into the meaningless "manacles and men at the bar."

Sir William Harcourt was badly misquoted once. "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" he exclaimed upon the platform, but a country paper had it: "Great Dinah! What a farce is this!"

Lack of knowledge of familiar quotations is a prolific source of misreporting. For instance, a speaker once made use of the well known lines from Milton's "L'Allegro:"

But come, thou goddess, fair and free,
In heaven yclept Euphrosyne.

The country reporter deputed to "take him down" was in despair. He could not make head or tail of this mysterious utterance. But, following the sound as far as possible, he seized his pen and produced the following gem:

But come, thou goddess, fair and free,
In heaven she crept and frose her knee.

The speaker was taken down in more senses than one.—London Answers.

The darker the cloud the brighter the sun when he breaks through the rift.

A Constipation Remedy Free

There is no action of your daily life of greater importance than to see that your bowels move. They should move at least once a day naturally, and by that is meant without any help. If they do not move at least once a day you can consider yourself constipated and it is time you did something about it.

You will be glad to know there is a way out of the difficulty. Lemuel Landerdale, an old soldier at Quincy, Ill., Elmer McMillan, of Speed, Mo., Mrs. Monahan, of Stonewall, Miss., and many others were as you are now. But one day they awoke to the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was curing their friends, so they bought it too and it cured them. Today they are loud in praise of it.

What Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin did for them it should do for you. Surely your constipation is no worse than theirs, one of whom had it since '61. It only remains for you to realize that salts are of but temporary good, and what you want is a permanent cure; that purgative tablets, cathartic pills and such violent things make a great show of doing something, but do nothing that is lasting. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific preparation, a laxative-tonic, a mild syrupy liquid that contains ingredients that not only cure the constipation, but tone the intestinal muscles so that they learn again to work without help. A bottle can be bought of any druggist for the small price of 50 cents, and there is a dollar size for families who have already found out its wonderful value in stomach, liver and bowel troubles, in old or young.

Send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you so that you can test it before buying.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug co.

Why Hindoos Don't Go Mad.

Why are there so few lunatic asylums and so small a proportion of insane persons in India? That is a question which many a traveler has wonderingly asked. The Hindoos regulate their lives entirely in accordance with their religion—that is, their working, eating, sleeping, as well as what we usually regard as our "life" in the religious sense of the word. Everything is arranged for them, and they follow the rules now just as they did 2,000 years ago. This constant observance of the same rules for twenty centuries has molded the brains of the race into one shape, as it were, and, although their rites are queer enough, yet there is but an occasional example of that striking deviation from the common which is called insanity in countries inhabited by the white race. They are fatalists too. With them it is a case of "what is to be will be" carried to the extreme. This has in time given them the power to take all things calmly and so freed them from the anxiety that drives so many white men into the lunatic asylums.

Bad and Good Georgie!

Naughty Georgie Washington—
What do you s'pose he's gone and done?
He chopped his father's cherry tree.
Oh, that was bad as bad can be!

But truthful Georgie Washington
Told his pa what he had done.
"I cannot tell a lie!" cried he.
And that was good as good can be.
—Philadelphia Record.

Can Walk Now.

Many people in the Southern States have been cured of Kidney and Bladder diseases after physicians have failed, by using U-RA-CURA. Mr. J. Gallual, of Cleveland, Ala., writes: "I can recommend your U-RA-CURA to neighbors. It has done me wonderful good. I am on my eighth bottle and can walk now. I was past walking only when they helped me—suffered from Kidney and Bladder troubles. I am grateful to U-RA-CURA. Druggists sell this incomparable remedy at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Try it and be convinced.

The Medicinal Value of Whiskey

is admitted by the highest medical authorities. Indeed for many slight disorders it is a safe and certain cure. But to be effective, it must be the genuine, pure, natural article like

Sunny Brook
THE PURE FOOD
Whiskey

SUNNY BROOK is unsurpassed as a wholesome, pleasant stimulant or an invigorating healthful tonic. Every drop is distilled, aged and bottled under the direct supervision of U. S. Government Inspectors and its absolute purity and unobjectionable make its use perfectly safe and free from harmful effects. The "Green Government Bonds" over the cork of each bottle states the correct age, proof and quantity.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

4—FULL QUARTS—$5
BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	Chattanooga, Tenn
M. Markstein	123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	630 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St. "
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd.	541 Magazine St. "
Estate of Charles Foshoy	511 Rampart St. "
Groll Trading Co.	Pensacola, Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn
Brooks & Villar	Pensacola, Fla
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the SOUTHERN RURALIST is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The RURALIST pays $20.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 100,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; F. J. Merriam, Garden Department; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station, Agriculture Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment Station, Dairying; Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock Department; Dr. C. A. Cary, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural College, Veterinary Department; Judge F. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Mrs. F. J. Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.

By special arrangement with the SOUTHERN RURALIST we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

THINK OF
Mexican Mustang Liniment
AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU.

Relief from pain that might otherwise cause you hours of agony.

Tired out muscles eased up and made ready for another day's work.

Lameness in the back and shoulders promptly cured and stiff joints limbered up.

Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Mashes rendered painless and quickly healed.

Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica robbed of their anguish and banished forever.

Ulcers, Old Sores and Open Wounds healed promptly and permanently.

The first application of Mexican Mustang Liniment subdues the pain but it continues its work until every quivering nerve is soothed and quieted.

The great penetrating power of this famous remedy enables it to do this quickly and positively.

In all cases of Sprains, Bruises or Lameness, Mexican Mustang Liniment should be rubbed in persistently.

The antiseptic qualities of this old reliable household remedy make it safe and sure.

Prices 25c., 50c., $1.00 per bottle. For sale by all Druggists. LYON MFG. CO. 41 to 45 So. 5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

BUILDING A STONE FENCE.

Connecticut Farmer Tells How to Utilize Bowlders That Are in the Way.

One of the most picturesque sights in New England is the stone wall. The utilization of some stones which otherwise incumber the ground for the construction of barriers necessary to farm life used to be a leading industry in New England before the advent of the barb wire fence. Even now many farmers attend their stone fences just to get rid of the rocks. And there are plenty of rocks in other parts of the country that can be used to the same useful purpose.

Here, however, is a brave farmer, F. H. Plumb of Tolland county, Conn., who goes further than picking up and piling stones. He believes in breaking up bowlders and using the fragments for fence material. Says Mr. Plumb:

As occasional bowlder here and there in a level, fertile field ought not to dishearten any robust, enthusiastic farmer from breaking them up and clearing them away. Dynamite, a sledge, a few chains and a steady yoke of oxen or team of horses will work wonders in a short time in many a field.

A knowledge of rocks, however, will prove of great assistance before work of any kind with them is undertaken. Some are apparently as hard as flint; others so soft they can almost be crushed between the fingers. Some have a grain similar to a log so they may be split by wedges and half pounds quite straight and true. Others will hammer or split into all sorts of forms and sizes. But there are few stones a stone mason cannot trim into any form he desires.

If we closely examine a bowlder, say, three to six feet long, we may notice it has a grain its entire length and all the way through.

A STONE WALL FENCE.

I noticed my stonemason would take a drill twelve inches long and three-quarters of an inch in diameter and, with a two or three pound hammer mounted on a twenty inch handle, drill a hole six inches deep in the bowlder in a few minutes, depending on the hardness of the stone. Then along the same seam of the rock another hole was drilled, and perhaps another and another, these holes being about six inches apart.

Half rounds and a wedge were then inserted in each hole, the wedges gently started, and then the entire length of wedges driven home evenly by beans of a twelve pound sledge. With this treatment the big hard rocks seemed to generally split evenly and straight through. If they did not, after the rock was split a few heavy blows with the big sledge would knock off any protruding pieces.

But there is a knack in knocking a stone to pieces or trimming the stone with the side of a sledge hammer or of the cutting edge that takes time, thought and observation to acquire.

My job was this: Extending easterly along the roadway from my house was an old tumble down wall that was the most unsightly place to my family on the entire farm. The land inside the wall is about ideal for a rank growth of timothy, and plenty of stones of all sizes, from a pebble to enormous bowlders, were there.

The smaller bowlders, such as a yoke of cattle could draw on a stone boat, and all the smaller stones the boys and myself had picked off after the plowing of the past three springs we had hauled along the wall. Of course this made the old wall look even worse than before, and all sorts of weeds and brush began to grow up among it. As the wall lay, it was made up of stones of all sizes, many so big they had to be split or broken and used as foundation pieces before work could be begun.

Ordinarily for a new wall a strip is plowed and dug out just below the wall line. As my wall was only to be rebuilt this was unnecessary, for I had a good foundation.

My wall was laid with a straight face on the road side, while on the field side rough cobbles without a straight face were set up at a slant of about one foot to the four foot wall.

In no part of the wall were the stones just thrown or dumped in. Every stone was placed one at a time, no matter how small, and so placed that it would rest firmly on its base, with as little rocking or looseness as possible.

I will put up in this careful manner ought to last several generations.

Record Corn Yield.

In a corn growing contest in North Carolina 227 bushels were grown on one acre. It is believed that this is the official record in this country.

alue of Whiskey
edical authorities. Indeed for fe and certain cure. But to be e, pure, natural article like

y Brook
RE FOOD
skey

ased as a wholesome, pleasant ful tonic. Every drop is distilled, supervision of U. S. Government d mellowness make its use perfectly
The "Green Government Stamp"
he correct age, proof and quantity.
AY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

QUARTS—$5
S PREPAID llowing Distributors:

Chattanooga, Tenn
23 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
upitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
2 Chartres St. "
1 Magazine St "
11 Rampart St "
Pensacola, Fla.
Memphis, Tenn
Pensacola, Fla
Jacksonville, Fla.

SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
SHIPPED C. O. D.

in Your Home
THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the SOUTHERN RURALIST is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The RURALIST pays $20.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

NTS AND STAFF WR[ITERS]
al Editor: F. J. Merriam, G[a.] Georgia Experiment Statio[n]
bby, Georgia Experiment [Sta.]
ment Station, Live Stock D[ept.] nce, Alabama Agricultural [Col.]
all, Poultry Department; M[r.] ... Mery or social in every number.

year's subscription to the man who will take T.
Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.
SOUTHERN RURALIST we are able to offer
ubscription to this paper at

ern Ruralist for $1.00.

iment

ation of Mexican Musubdues the pain but it k until every quivering
and quieted.

etrating power of this enables it to do this itively.

Sprains, Bruises or Lame-
Mustang Liniment
d in persistently.

qualities of this old relia-medy make it safe and

5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

BUILDING A STONE FENCE.

Connecticut Farmer Tells How to Utilize Bowlders That Are in the Way.

One of the most picturesque sights in New England is the stone wall fence. The utilization of loose stones, which otherwise incumber the ground, for the construction of barriers necessary to farm life used to be a leading industry in New England before the advent of the barb wire fence. Even now many farmers extend their stone fences just to get rid of the rocks. And there are plenty of rocks in other parts of the country that can be used to the same useful purpose.

Here, however, is a brave farmer, F. H. Plumb of Tolland county, Conn., who goes further than picking up and piling stones. He believes in breaking up bowlders and using the fragments for fence material. Says Mr. Plumb:

An occasional bowlder here and there in a level, fertile field ought not to disheaten any robust, enthusiastic farmer from breaking them up and clearing them away. Dynamite, a sledge, a few chains and a steady yoke of oxen or team of horses will work wonders in a short time in many a field.

A knowledge of rocks, however, will prove of great assistance before work of any kind with them is undertaken. Some are apparently as hard as flint; others so soft they can almost be crushed between the fingers. Some have a grain similar to a log so they may be split by wedges and half rounds quite straight and true. Others will hammer or split into all sorts of forms and sizes. But there are few stones a stone mason cannot trim into any form he desires.

If we closely examine a bowlder, say, three to six feet long, we may notice it has a grain its entire length and all the way through.

A STONE WALL FENCE.

I noticed my stonemason would take a drill twelve inches long and three-quarters of an inch in diameter and, with a two or three pound hammer mounted on a twenty inch handle, drill a hole six inches deep in the bowlder in a few minutes, depending on the hardness of the stone. Then along the same seam of the rock another hole was drilled, and perhaps another and another, these holes being about six inches apart.

Half rounds and a wedge were then inserted in each hole, the wedges gently started, and then the entire length of wedges driven home evenly by means of a twelve pound sledge. With this treatment the big hard rocks seemed to generally split evenly and straight through. If they did not, after the rock was split a few heavy blows with the big sledge would knock off any protruding pieces.

But there is a knack in knocking a stone to pieces or trimming the stone with the side of a sledge hammer or of its cutting edge that takes time, thought and observation to acquire.

My job was this: Extending easterly along the roadway from my house was an old tumble down wall that was the most unsightly place to my family on the entire farm. The land inside the wall is about ideal for a rank growth of timothy, and plenty of stones of all sizes, from a pebble to enormous bowlders, were there.

The smaller bowlders, such as a yoke of cattle could draw on a stone boat, and all the smaller stones the boys and myself had picked off after the plowing of the past three springs and hauled along the wall. Of course this made the old wall look even worse than before, and all sorts of weeds and brush began to grow up among it.

As the wall lay, it was made up of stones of all sizes, many so big they had to be split or broken and used as foundation pieces before work could be begun.

Ordinarily for a new wall a strip is plowed and dug out just below the frost line. As my wall was only to be rebuilt this was unnecessary, for I had a good foundation.

My wall was laid with a straight face on the road side, while on the field side rough cobbles without a straight face were set up at a slant of about one foot to the four foot wall.

In no part of the wall were the stones just thrown or dumped in. Every stone was placed one at a time, no matter how small, and so placed that it rested firmly on its base, with as little tipping or looseness as possible.

A wall put up in this careful manner ought to last several generations.

Record Corn Yield.

In a corn growing contest in North Carolina 227 bushels were grown on one acre. It is believed that this breaks official records in this country.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson X.—First Quarter, For March 6, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. viii, 2-17. Memory Verses, 2, 3—Golden Text, Matt. viii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Dr. Scofield says in his notes on these chapters that the King, having in chapters v-vii declared the principles of the kingdom, makes proof in chapters viii and ix of his power to banish from the earth the consequences of sin and to control the elements of nature. He also says that the word "Lord" in verse 2 is used 663 times in the New Testament as the divine title of Jesus the Christ and is equivalent to the title "Adonai" in the Old Testament (Matt. iii, 3; iv, 7, 10; xxii, 43, 45). In future when quoting from these notes from his new edition of the Bible I will give his initials, C. I. S.

In speaking of the kingdom the Spirit says through the prophet, "The inhabitant shall not say I am sick; the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity;" "They shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away" (Isa. xxxiii, 24; xxxv, 10). The kingdom of heaven, according to Dan. ii, 44, being at hand in the person and presence of the king, as declared by John the Baptist, Jesus Himself and the apostles (chapters iii, 2; iv, 17; x, 7), the King declares His power by a manifestation of several features of the kingdom. As we contemplate the righteousness of the kingdom as set forth in chapters v to vii and then the actual condition of things as they are about us in the world it is certainly a coming down to a much lower level, but it is to lift people up by the power of the King and His kingdom, and the multitudes are ready to hear of such a kingdom. Every form of physical suffering is suggestive of some disease of the soul, but nothing is quite so strikingly suggestive of sin as leprosy, which is so fully described in Lev. xiii and xiv. Sin is at the root of all our troubles. Can this man who in His teaching claims to be God do anything with leprosy? This leper believes that He can, but is not certain that He will. How the reply of Jesus must have filled him with an indescribable joy, "I will; be thou clean!" But these words came with the touch of Jesus, and with the touch and the words came the cleansing and the health immediately, and the outcast could return to his home and friends as a well man. That he may not think that his healer is in any sense contrary to the law of Moses he is told to show himself to the priest and offer the gift commanded. Well may we sing, "Unto Him that loveth us and hath washed us from our sins in His own blood."

His fame is spreading (are we helping to make Him known?), and now it is a centurion from Capernaum who has a servant sick of the palsy, grievously tormented. Luke, who was a physician, says that the man was ready to die, so that he must have been very sick. He also tells us that this servant was dear unto him and also that first of all the elders of the Jews came to Jesus on his behalf, saying that the centurion was worthy, that he loved the Jews and had built them a synagogue (Luke vii, 1-5). Jesus knew the centurion, as He knows all men and needs no testimony from any one concerning anybody (John ii, 24, 25), and He knew him to be a man with no thought of his own worthiness (verse 8 and Luke vii, 6, 7). He said, "I will come and heal him," and He went with them. As He neared the house the centurion sent friends to say that he did not consider himself worthy to have Jesus enter under his roof; but, inasmuch as he knew what it meant to obey and be obeyed, if Jesus would only say the word he was sure that his servant would be healed. Jesus marveled at the man and said to those who followed, "Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith: no, not in Israel" (verse 10). His word for the centurion was, "As thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee," and those who had been sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole. Such faith on the part of a gentile led the Lord Jesus to speak of the kingdom into which many gentiles from all the world will enter, while many who think they are entitled to the kingdom will be shut out by their unbelief.

The next instance of His power is in the house of Simon Peter, whose wife's mother is sick of a fever, but just the touch of His hand dispels the fever, and she is seen ministering unto them. Sin paralyzes our bodies or consumes them with burning, destroying desire, but He who takes away the result of sin by being made sin for us can also deliver from every manifestation of sin to the intent that we may minister unto Him. At even He cast out evil spirits from many with His word and healed all that were sick and thus fulfilled a word in Isaiah, "Himself took our infirmities and bare our sicknesses" (16, 17).

It is often asked, Is the health of the body included in the atonement? We reply that the same great sacrifice which takes away our sins makes us sure of a perfect body just like His risen body, which shall never again be weak or sick or old or die, but that will be in the kingdom. All of His power which is seen in bodies now is but a foretaste of that which will be fully seen when He comes.

POWER CONCRETE MIXER.

Homemade Device That Is Useful on the Farm.

Of interest to farmers who need cement for any purpose, such as laying floors or walks or making posts, is a bulletin issued by the Colorado experiment station which tells of mixing concrete by machinery and prints the accompanying illustration of a homemade mixer, which is described thus:

Two pieces of 4 by 6 form the sills. Upon these two, uprights about three feet high are fastened. A one and one-half inch pipe passes through holes bored in the top of the uprights. Upon this pipe the mixing box is turned, and through the pipe the water is added to the mixture at the desired time. The water is poured in at the top of the upright pipe and flows down and out through holes which are drilled in the lower side of it. The other end of the pipe is closed by a wooden plug.

POWER CONCRETE MIXER.

The ends of the box are made of pieces of 2 by 8 bolted together. A hole bored in the center of each end forms the bearings. The sides of the box are made of one inch lumber and are simply nailed to the ends with twelvepenny nails. One-half of the box is made so that it can be detached and lifted off when the mixer is to be filled or emptied. The detachable half is secured to the other half by means of strong hooks so placed that by slipping this half about an inch to one side all of the hooks are loosened at once. After it is in position the removable portion is held in place by means of a barn door latch.

The driving gear is simple, but very effective. It consists of the rim taken from the wheel of an old rubber tire buggy. With the tire removed the grooved rim makes a very satisfactory wheel upon which to run a three-quarter inch rope belt. The belt is driven by a small sheave pulley, which is fastened to the countershaft. A belt tightener is used upon the rope, and by using a very loose belt the tightener is made to act as a friction clutch. This particular mixer is driven by a two horse gasoline engine, which is belted to the countershaft. The engine runs continuously, and the mixer is started and stopped by means of the belt tightener.

Many other systems of driving might have been used in place of the rope belt. The main gear of an old self binder makes an excellent gear for a mixer. An old mower gear may also be put to good use in this connection. It is not necessary to have the mixer driven by an engine or horse power. A crank may be attached and the machine turned by hand. Many prefer turning such a machine rather than mixing the concrete with a shovel.

CITY MEN FOR FARMS.

Many Would Make Good Hired Hands if They Had Chance.

Many farmers throughout the country find it a difficult matter to get hired hands, while in the great cities there are thousands of men out of work. The problem of inducing some of the down and outs of city life to go out on the farms is claiming the attention of social students.

A commission of the New York legislature recently has been making an inquiry into the matter, though it has not taken up the subject exhaustively. John Mitchell, the noted labor leader, was present at one of the sessions and made suggestions.

The chief trouble seems to be that those in the cities who are always deep in poverty know nothing of country life, seldom if ever having seen the green fields. They were born to their conditions and know nothing else.

Thousands of these men, no doubt, if they should be taken out and given jobs on farms would return to the city as soon as they earned money enough. That is because the city sights and sounds have become second nature to them. They would pine for the filth and furore of their native element.

But, on the other hand, there is no doubt that many men in the cities would welcome a chance to get away to the country for themselves and their families and would develop into excellent farm hands. The problem is to put these men in touch with farmers who need them.

Diseases of Fowls.

Most of the diseases that afflict fowls are the result of carelessness and indifference on the part of the owner as regards the surroundings and conditions of his poultry. No poultry will show to advantage on the credit side of the cash account unless they are healthy and well cared for. How to prevent disease should be the watchword rather than how to cure disease.

Beef and Dairy Cattle.

When a dairyman has faced the actual practice of selling cows from his herd for beef he will not feel encouraged over the outlook of combining beef and dairy qualities in the same herd. There is a popular prejudice against eating beef from an old, played out dairy cow, and there is no advantage in trying to combine the two qualities in one animal.

COLDS FROM EXPOSURE

to all kinds of inclement weather are of such common occurrence that they are not generally considered dangerous. This is a great mistake. Serious illness often follows in the wake of a neglected cold.

DR. D. JAYNE'S Expectorant has been successful for seventy-eight years in curing Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis, and Pleurisy. It is also a standard remedy for Croup, Whooping-Cough, Inflammation of the Lungs or Chest and Asthma.

Cure your cold now—go to your druggist's and get a bottle of Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant. Three sizes, $1.00, 50c. and 25c.

Dr. D. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge will build you up splendidly if "run down" from a severe cold.

That Beef Boycott.

Now there comes the startling rumor that the ultimate consumer, in a grim and surly humor, rising up his piece to speak,
Says, b'jings, he's getting tired, the commandment has expired, and no longer he's required to present the other cheek!
So with gracious condescension you will kindly give attention while he makes his little mention of his purpose, which, in brief,
Is to make a speedy trial of a bit of self denial and, despite the trust's decrial, quit the vice of eating beef!
—Chicago Tribune.

She Understood.

She looked at the well filled shelves.

"Are all these new books?" she asked.

"Yes," he answered.

"And how many are really worth reading?"

"Madam," he replied, "do you ask me as a bookseller or as a friend?"

She looked at him and understood and went away empty handed.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Handicapped.

The people in the flat next door
Are kindly, but
They harbor that decided bore,
A barking mutt.
But little peace are we enjoying.
A barking dog is most annoying.

The rules forbid it, as they know,
So says the lease.
If we complained he'd have to go,
And we'd get peace.
The landlord would uphold us, maybe,
But we can't kick; we have a baby.
—Kansas City Journal.

The Country Store.

"There seem to be a great many captains among those loiterers around the stove," ventured the coffee drummer.

"Yes, stranger," laughed the old storekeeper; "they are all captains."

"And I suppose you could find all kinds of captains among them."

"Yes, excepting captains of industry."—Chicago News.

Aeroplane Fighters.

Will there be fighting aeroplanes
And deadly stuff that fiercely rains
On helpless cities far below,
On shattered ranks of fleeing foe?

Why, they are fighting even now—
They're mixing in a noisy row—
They fight for gold and not for fame,
About the patents each doth claim.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

These Three.

"What are the three known dimensions?" asked the teacher at the night school.

"The world, the flesh and the devil!" gasped the shaggy haired pupil, taken by surprise and unable at the moment to get his mental bearings.—Chicago Tribune.

Saves Doctors' Bills.

Mr. Louis M. Kent, of Homersville-Ala., joins in with a mighty throng as follows: "GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR is a great saver of doctor bills. I have tried it and know what I am talking about. I have used it for constipation headache, colds, etc., and it has never failed to do all I expected. If used intelligently and at the right time, it will do all that is claimed for it. I shall keep GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR in the house as long as I can get it. Druggists sell it in enameled tin boxes at 25 cents per box.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala., postoffice, for week ending Feb. 26, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

B. Kessler, Lee Odea, Ernest McClendon, S. J. Evans.

LADIES' LIST.

Mrs. Lizzie Gardner.

These letters will be sent to the dead Letter office, Mar. 12, 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY Postmaster

FIELD-GROWN ROSE PLANTS

Our Field Grown Rose Plants are now ready for delivery and this is the proper time for planting. We have 25,000 of the finest Bush and Climbing Roses ever grown in the South, including seventy varieties.

Bush Roses $2.50 per dozen; $15.00 per 100.
Climbing Roses $3.50 per dozen.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season. Cut flowers, walking bouquets, and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor
City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200 MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP
Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Gumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.
First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.
W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

WELLS Bored and Drilled
T. B. TEEL
Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells
CLANTON, ALA.

WHEN PLANTS ARE FROZEN.

Hints on Restoring Window Garden Flowers to Health.

During the winter the amateur in gardening has much to contend with, and not the least of the evils is frost, especially where an endeavor is made to keep more or less tender plants through the cold, dull months in a poorly heated greenhouse or frame.

Fortunately science has come to our aid and taught us a few things concerning the effects of frost on tender plants, and with these principles fully grasped we are in a position to combat frost. Plants which are kept as dry as possible during a spell of frosty weather without being allowed to suffer from this cause will withstand successfully far more frost than the same kind of plants whose tissues are gorged with liquid, and science has also taught us that the greatest mischief is caused by rapid thawing.

To grasp the above facts it may be as well before proceeding further to just consider briefly what really happens when a plant gets frozen. It is now generally known that a plant, like the human body, is made up of tiny cells, each of which, of course, has its own walls. Under ordinary conditions and when a plant has abundance of moisture at its disposal these cells are turgid with liquid. Now, when liquid becomes frozen it is one of the laws of nature that expansion takes place, and in the case of that in the plant cells no exception to this law is made. This expansion, then, results in a rupture of the plant cell walls, which under ordinary conditions of thawing causes the plant to collapse.

It has been proved that when a plant is thawed very slowly the plant cells are able to absorb the moisture which has been forced by expansion through the cell walls, and the rupture is to a great extent made good.

Assuming that the plants have not been watered more often than is absolutely necessary and that one morning we visit the greenhouse or frames to find that frost has reached them, we know that if they are to be saved thawing must be done very slowly. First of all, we must take care that the heating apparatus, if any is used, does not get into working order again, and if there is any likelihood of a burst of sunshine shade the structure with thick mats or anything else that can be quickly secured. Then procure an abundant supply of ice cold water and syringe or otherwise drench the plants with this until frost is gradually removed from the tissues. This will probably mean very cold hands and chattering teeth, but it is either this or losing the plants. For several days subsequently the plants should be kept as cool as possible without allowing frost to reach them again.

Cows Need Good Care.

Don't try to keep too many cows if your farm is small. Keep a few good ones and care for them well. Sometimes good cows and good feed may produce poor results if the management is not right.—Homestead.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands.
Office: Room 1, Court House.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I. HOPKINS
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
CLANTON

Directory of Clanton Baptist Church.

Preaching at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on 1st and 3d Sunday.
Prayer Service at 7:30 p.m. every Thursday.
Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. every Sunday. W. S. Watkins, Supt.
Communion Service 1st Sunday in January, April, July and October.
Ladies' Aid society at 3 p.m. on Monday after the 3d Sunday, Mrs. W. T. Cotten, President.
All members are cordially requested to be regular and prompt in their attendance. The public are cordially invited and strangers will find a hearty welcome. P. H. Hopkins, Pastor.

Early Iron Works.

In 1658 Captain Thomas Clarke, in company with John Winthrop and others, put in operation an "iron works" at New Haven, Conn. This enterprise embraced a blast furnace and a refinery forge.

India's Salt Tax.

Representing an average annual payment of 2½ pence per head, a tax on salt is one of the sources of England's revenue in India.

Ram Bux, British Loafer.

A Hindoo baker's assistant in Bombay, on setting up in business for himself, bethought him of catering for the English community as well as for the native one. With this end in view he had the following notification painted over his doorway: "Ram Bux solicits respectful patronage. He is a first class British loafer."

Houses in France.

It has been estimated that there are fewer than a hundred wooden dwelling houses throughout all France. Stone and plaster are the usual materials.

A Month Without a Full Moon.

The month of February, 1866, was the most remarkable month in the world's history. January had two full moons, and so had March, but February had none. This had not occurred since the creation of the world, and, according to some astronomers, the same thing may not occur again for a period of 2,500,000,000 years.

A Plague of Sand.

Sand is the curse of Portuguese East Africa. It blocks the rivers and harbors and stretches in a vast sea toward the interior, effectually cutting off the coast towns from the highlands. Besides, it makes the problem of transportation the bugbear of the planter.

The Word "Mile."

The word "mile" is derived from the Latin "mille," a thousand. A thousand paces of a marching soldier made the old Roman mile.

The Stormy Petrel.

A bird of immense wing power is the tiny stormy petrel, the smallest webfooted bird known. It belongs to every sea, and, although so seeming frail, it braves the utmost fury of the storm, skimming with incredible velocity the trough of the waves and gliding rapidly over their snowy crests. Petrels have been observed 2,000 miles from nearest land.

A Pauper Prince.

In a guidebook of Venice, compiled for strangers, is this notice: "When visiting this palace strangers should show themselves especially generous in their tips, as the prince who occupies this palace has no other means of support than to share in the money given to his domestics."

Saved A Soldier's Life.

Facing death from shot and shell in the civil war was more agreeable to J. A. Stone, of Kemp, Tex., than facing it from what doctors said was consumption. "I contracted a stubborn cold" he writes, "that developed a cough, that stuck to me in spite of all remedies for years. My weight ran down to 130 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. I now weigh 178 pounds." For Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hemorrhage, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough and lung trouble, its supreme. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in nearly every city and town in the United States and Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable. Latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

PATENTS NEW HAY PRESS.

Makes Two Bales at Time and Averages Six Hundred Bales a Day.

Theodule Guidry, a resident of Church Point, La., who for many years has been interested in farming and improving the devices used by farmers, has received a patent on a new double baler hay press. This press is unique in its construction, having done away with the large springs ordinarily in use on such balers and decreased the draft to a minimum. Experiments with models have demonstrated a capacity of fifty or sixty bales an hour.

It is constructed with a baling chamber on both ends of the press and compresses the hay by a plunger working on a crank shaft past the feed box on each end. The crank shaft is connected to a beam to which one horse is hitched for power, and at each round of the horse a stroke is made on two different bales, one on each end. It is possible with this model to get a bale of any desired weight, the same being controlled by two springs attached to a movable side of the baler which regulates the compression of bales.

Mr. Guidry says he thinks the baler will beat anything on the market for speed and simplicity, and he is now negotiating with manufacturing companies for its construction and sale.

Orchards Worth $1,000 Per Acre.

A feature at a recent fruit show was an exhibit of Nova Scotia apples and a printed statement showing the profits of fruit growing in that province, especially in the Cornwallis and Annapolis provinces. The average estimate of cultivating, fertilising, spraying and pruning per acre was $25, and the cost of picking and packing the fruit is estimated at 50 cents per barrel. The yield reported from eight to ten orchards shows an average for the past five years of from 100 to 165 barrels of shipping apples per acre, sold at an average price varying from $1.90 to $2.50 per barrel during the five years. The gross returns per acre range from $190 to $304 and the net returns from $117 to $219. The average net returns for all the orchards for the five years were $174 per acre, a sum sufficient to pay 15.75 per cent on $1,000. Accordingly a valuation of $1,000 per acre for these orchards seems not excessive.

Quick Improvement of Sweet Corn.

As a result of several years' selection Nelson S. Stone of Massachusetts reported last season sweet corn which matured nearly a week earlier than other early kinds which he had tried, and the ears were almost double the size of other early varieties. The improvement was made by choosing the earliest ears and then using those grains that grew on the middle of the cob and then still further selecting the largest and best shaped grains.

A Dozen Eggs.

The Teacher—How many eggs are there in a dozen? The Pupil—Five fresh ones, five doubtful ones and two bad ones.—Cleveland Leader.

PALMETTO LANDS
Palmetto Homes
Palmetto, Florida.

We are moving crops that are crops, which is the kind of crops PALMETTO LANDS raise.

Come and see us.
Write that you are coming to

FREDERIC P. LADD,
Board of Trade,
PALMETTO, FLORIDA

N. B. You can raise fancy vegetables, at fancy prices, on PALMETTO LANDS.

THE TEXAS MONSTER

Barnett's Home Made 4-Wheeled COTTON CHOPPER

Works Across the Rows the Right Way.
PATENTED APRIL 31, 1908.

I desire to call your attention to this Great Labor Saver. The Chopper that does Execution to Grass and Weeds, in fact, it does the work of eight men. After looking around for a time, I have decided to go right direct to the cotton planter and sell him the right to make this chopper for his own use for One Dollar. This right is good for 17 years from the 21st day of April, 1908. I will say here that I have complied with all the laws of the patent office and I further say that this chopper does all I claim for it or your money back.

J. S. BARNETT
131 East Canton Street, DALLAS, TEXAS

A Few Sayings of Washington.

"The most certain way to make a man your enemy is to tell him you esteem him such."

"May our country never want props to support the glorious fabric."

"We must take human nature as we find it; perfection falls not to the share of mortals."

"Let us as a nation be just."

"It is much easier at all times to prevent an evil than to rectify mistakes."

"Let your promotion result from your own application and merit, not from the labors of others."

"The welfare of our country is the great object to which our cares and efforts should be directed."

"Think before you speak; pronounce not imperfectly nor bring out your words too hastily, but orderly and distinctly."

"Speak not evil of the absent; it is unjust."

A Picture Proverb.

There is a well known proverb to be found in this picture which every boy and girl should live up to.

A Waterloo Relic.

Among the curios of Windsor castle is a chair made out of the trunk of the famous elm by which Wellington stood at the battle of Waterloo.

Irish Moss.

The seaweed known as Irish moss is used to some extent as a food by the peasantry along the coasts; also as a jelly for invalids and as a stiffening for calico in the printing process.

A Boon to Suffering Women.

Thousands of women suffer distress peculiar to their sex on account of irregularities and the failure of the organs to perform their natural functions. The great Southern remedy—VIN-O VITÆ—comes to the relief of suffering women by toning up their whole system, insuring regularity, a good appetite and good digestion. At the change of life it will prove itself a friend indeed. Young girls will find it valuable in assisting them to reach a healthy, robust and vigorous womanhood. For the various kinds of female irregularities, VIN O VITÆ has few equals and no superiors. Druggists sell it at $1.00 per bottle. Manufactured by Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

It's Easy to Stop Pain

"I use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for Neuralgia, LaGrippe and all pains. I don't intend to be without them, for I find ready relief in them for everything I use them for."
MRS. L. F. MILLER,
120 W. 6th St., Davenport, Ia.

All Pain

"In my family Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are used for headache, colic and other pains, and always give relief at once."
THOS. R. FOWLER,
R. D. No. 3, Dunn, N. C.

Sold by druggists everywhere, who are authorized to return price of first package if they fail to benefit.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

GENUINE OLIVER CHILLED PLOWS

The "GENUINE OLIVER" Steel Beam Plow, like all other articles which have gained a national reputation strictly on merit, has imitations.

But there is but one "GENUINE OLIVER" plow and it bears this Trade Mark. All others are imitations.

THE "GENUINE OLIVER" lasts longer, runs easier, and gives better satisfaction than any other plow made.

When you buy a plow be sure to get the Genuine. No use buying an imitation when you can get the real article. Wherever plowing is done in the civilized world you will find the old Original Genuine OLIVER Plows.

North and South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and the Islands of the Sea, are members of the OLIVER BROTHERHOOD, and each testifies to the superior qualities of the OLIVER PLOW.

From January to January the GENUINE OLIVER is at work somewhere—increasing the prosperity of the country. It is by far the most popular plow on the market to day.

COME IN AND LET US TELL YOU THE REASON WHY!

If its Hardware We have it!

GAMBLE HARDWARE CO.

If we have it, It's the Best!

CLANTON, WETUMPKA, ALEXANDER CITY

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORNE

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The name of W. H. Killing[illegible] worth of Jemison is being mentio[illegible] as a probable candidate for Repre[illegible]sentative in the Legislature, a[illegible] we believe with a little encourage[illegible]ment he will come forward [illegible] would make a good representati[illegible] in the lower house and we hope [illegible] will take the matter under conside[illegible]ation.

But seven weeks from next Mo[illegible] day and the primary is upon [illegible] The political condition in Chil[illegible] county at the present time is mo[illegible] promising of Democratic succe[illegible]tion for the last few years. W[illegible] the considerable increase in [illegible] electorate and the natural de[illegible] for change the Democratic party [illegible] the county is hopeful for succ[illegible] and to place the county again[illegible] line with the dominant party.

Judge Pearson, in his pleas[illegible] and agreeable way, has made [illegible] excellent impression upon the p[illegible]ple of this Circuit, and his inva[illegible]ble politeness and courtesy to [illegible] who come in contact with him [illegible] bring him many votes.

For Clerk of the Circuit Co[illegible] what more eligible young man [illegible] be found than Hugh M. Simps[illegible] Fully qualified in every partic[illegible] to fill the office, he brings in [illegible] candidacy a showing for the yo[illegible] men of Chilton for the future. [illegible] time is ripe for the young men [illegible] Chilton to push to the front.

It takes a man of nerve and b[illegible] bone to make a good Sheriff, [illegible] this Lee Hayes has proved he p[illegible]ossess in an excellent degree. S[illegible] eral years ago he made a cap[illegible] reputation as a faithful and fear[illegible] Sheriff and he may be depen[illegible] upon to do so again.

The Hon. Emmett O'Neal [illegible] making a stirring campaign [illegible] Governor, and on the second [illegible] of May he will be duly nomina[illegible] and virtually elected—a great [illegible] ward for his eminent service[illegible] the cause of the common peopl[illegible]

A faithful and conscientious [illegible] vant of the people Senator B[illegible] head has proven himself to be, [illegible] in seeing an endorsement to [illegible] high position he is well within [illegible] rights. The Senator is expecte[illegible] be at the good roads meetin[illegible] Montgomery next week; he [illegible] always taken an active interes[illegible] the good roads movement and [illegible] been a great help in the work [illegible] complished.

The Hon. Scott Sayre, of M[illegible] gomery, believes that as he [illegible] elected Judge of this circuit in [illegible] but was debarred from ente[illegible] upon the duties of the office [illegible] decision of the Supreme Court [illegible] the circuit was unconstitutiona[illegible] should again be elected in acc[illegible]ance with the first decision of [illegible] voters. He is a fine lawyer [illegible] would doubtless make an exce[illegible] judge.

Your Chances.

The little chances linger and r[illegible] but the great chances come and g[illegible] never come again. If we could [illegible] back over the lives of the peop[illegible] whom we are surrounded, how [illegible] great and rich opportunities wou[illegible] see that they have permitted to [illegible] by them unimproved!

A Line on Bjerkeyne.

Lawson—What sort of man is Bj[illegible]kyne, anyway?

Dawson—Well, his wife always [illegible] with him when he buys a su[illegible] clothes—Somerville Journal.

The Consultation.

"My wife always consults me [illegible] every article of attire she buys—[illegible] hats, shoes, gloves, everything."

"My wife does, too—that is, she [illegible] me for the money."

Nicholson Bros & Co.
The Clothes Makers
Baltimore and New York

It's Easy to Stop Pain

TAKE ONE OF THESE LITTLE TABLETS AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

"I use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for Neuralgia, LaGrippe and all pains. I don't intend to be without them, for I find ready relief in them for everything I use them for."
MRS. L. F. MILLER,
120 W. 6th St., Davenport, Ia.

All Pain

"In my family Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are used for headache, colic and other pains, and always give relief at once."
THOS. R. FOWLER,
R. D. No. 3, Dunn, N. C.

Sold by druggists everywhere, who are authorized to return price of first package if they fail to benefit.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

OWS

e all other articles

rit, has imitations

his

n any other plow

Wherever plowing is

we have it,
It's the Best!

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 10, 1910 | No. 23.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The name of W. H. Killingsworth of Jemison is being mentioned as a probable candidate for Representative in the Legislature, and we believe with a little encouragement he will come forward. He would make a good representative in the lower house and we hope he will take the matter under consideration.

But seven weeks from next Monday and the primary is upon us. The political condition in Chilton county at the present time is more promising of Democratic success than for the last few years. With the considerable increase in the electorate and the natural desire for change the Democratic party of the county is hopeful for success and to place the county again in line with the dominant party.

Judge Pearson, in his pleasant and agreeable way, has made an excellent impression upon the people of this Circuit, and his invariable politeness and courtesy to all who come in contact with him will bring him many votes.

For Clerk of the Circuit Court what more eligible young man can be found than Hugh M. Simpson? Fully qualified in every particular to fill the office, he brings in his candidacy a showing for the young men of Chilton for the future. The time is ripe for the young men of Chilton to push to the front.

It takes a man of nerve and backbone to make a good Sheriff, and this Lee Hayes has proved he possesses in an excellent degree. Several years ago he made a capital reputation as a faithful and fearless Sheriff and he may be depended upon to do so again.

The Hon. Emmett O'Neal is making a stirring campaign for Governor, and on the second day of May he will be duly nominated and virtually elected--a great reward for his eminent services to the cause of the common people.

A faithful and conscientious servant of the people Senator Bankhead has proven himself to be, and in asking an endorsement to his high position he is well within his rights. The Senator is expected to be at the good roads meeting in Montgomery next week; he has always taken an active interest in the good roads movement and has been a great help in the work accomplished.

The Hon. Scott Sayre, of Montgomery, believes that as he was elected Judge of this circuit in 1904 but was debarred from entering upon the duties of the office by a decision of the Supreme Court that the circuit was unconstitutional, he should again be elected in accordance with the first decision of the voters. He is a fine lawyer and would doubtless make an excellent judge.

Your Chances.

The little chances linger and return, but the great chances come and go and never come again. If we could look back over the lives of the people by whom we are surrounded, how many great and rich opportunities would we see that they have permitted to drift by them unimproved!

A Line on Bjenkyns.

Lawson—What sort of man is Bjenkyns anyway?

Dawson—Well, his wife always goes with him when he buys a suit of clothes.—Somerville Journal.

The Consultation.

"My wife always consults me about every article of attire she buys—frocks, hats, shoes, gloves, everything."

"My wife does, too—that is, she asks me for the money."

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS OCTOBER 18, 1909.

RESOURCES.			LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts		$25,339 64	Capital Stock Paid in		$15,000 00
Overdrafts		1,800 54	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid		13,575 76
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank		13,750 00	Individual Deposits subject to
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures		4,461 42	Check	$60,005 49
Other Real Estate		147 50	Savings Deposits	9,418 80
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$14,502 33		Cashier's Checks	101 92
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	3,793 17		Bills Payable	5,000 00
Currency	6,990 00				74,526 71
Gold	1,085 00
Silver, Nickles and Pennies	1,606 98
Checks and Cash Items	264 00
		27,561 35
Total		$93,059 45	Total		$93,059 45

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said bank.
JNO. A. THOMAS, Cashier.
Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 23d day of October, 1909.
J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. CALLEN
SAMUEL KAUFMAN } Directors.
M. L. GREIL

THE UP-BUILDING OF THIS BANK

is due to the fact that we have ample capital and that we have adhered to a policy which has been conservative, yet along progressive lines. We offer to our customers modern facilities for the prompt and proper transaction of their financial affairs, ample vault and safe room for storing and safe-guarding of their money, notes, insurance policies and other valuable papers, and such liberality of treatment as is consistent with prudent banking.

YOUR account is cordially solicited.

THE CLANTON BANK
CLANTON, ALA.

WANTED.

NOTICE—Agents wanted who can make big salaries. See our display "Ad" in this issue. American Mutual Benefit Life Association of Alabama, Montgomery, Ala.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably bring relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, headache, biliousness, dizziness, sallowness of the skin and dyspepsia. Sold by all druggists.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Hanlen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service, Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

For Diseases of the Skin.

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barbers' itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the itching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone should take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

Indigestion.

This trouble usually arises from a disordered liver. If you will arouse the liver to throw off the effete accumulations through the proper channels, you will soon feel better, your appetite will improve, and the whole man will be more wide awake and healthy. For this purpose St. Joseph's Liver Regulator is a fine remedy. Try it and be convinced of its wonderful efficacy. Druggists and general merchants sell it, liquid, 50 cents a bottle; powdered, in tin boxes, 25 cents a box. See advertisement in this paper.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Maplesville, March, 7, 1910

It has been a long time since I attempted to write for publication, but as this is the year of political interest in our State I think I will say a few words. Candidates are coming out now asking for nominations for offices in both Democratic and Republican parties, and I guess each fellow thinks he is worthy of the position he aspires to. Now, fellow citizens, I have no axe to grind, am not an aspirant to any office, but would like to see this campaign conducted upon honest, gentlemanly principles for once in my life. Let us not have any mud slinging, lieing or misrepresentations of any kind; in fact, let us have candidates who are honorable men, whose former character is above reproach. Let us not recognize men for office whose names have been stained by acts unbecoming and that no gentleman would be guilty of. Let us be very careful as regards the character and purity of our parties. Let us not stain the purity of our political parties by allowing low-graded men to hold office in our beloved counties. Let us not sacrifice pure principle for party sake, but stand together like men and say that we will support no man whose name would be a stigma on the party; no man whose honor has ever been questioned. There are men who have been arraigned in the courts of this county (Chilton) for low-graded, dishonorable conduct, and a jury of twelve men have said that they are guilty. Now, I say to our citizens, if you are a friend to your county, yourself, or to those little ones whom God has intrusted to your care, if you are men who appreciate the gifts of God which you enjoy every day, you will not blight your county by putting one of these men in office. Don't listen to misrepresentations and falsehoods circulated by other candidates who cannot electioneer on their own good merits, because they have none, but go around over the county bemeaning and slandering their opponents. You notice that I refer to our children. Some may ask why I do this. Surely there is not a father or mother here who does not wish their children to be honorable men and women. Every parent knows, or should know, that children watch things more closely than we generally suppose; therefore we should be very careful as to our lives in their presence, and when we pick up and put in honorable positions persons who they know have not lived an upright life, they will at once say why should I be so careful as to my deportment in life? I see that people who lead lives of impurity are honored to high positions, therefore it isn't worth while for me to live so carefully, for I see there is no distinction between the honorable and the dishonorable. Now I think I have said enough. Would like to hear from some one else on this subject.

R. E. ROPER.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by all druggists.

The man who seeks your friendship has a motive in view; the woman who does so has two or three of them.

HON. E. B. DEASON
Candidate for Judge of Probate

Hon. E. B. Deason, or 'Lige, as he is popularly known, is one of Chilton's most progressive young men. By industry and perseverance under difficult circumstances he has forged to the front, and the indications are that he will continue to be a leader in the county of his birth. His experience as Clerk of the Circuit Court, as well as his incumbency as Probate Judge, render him peculiarly eligible to again fill the latter position, and we hope to see him duly nominated and elected.

Thorsby.

The Thorsby Bank has moved into its fine new building and has everything in shape for doing a good business.

Our farmers are doing well and looking for a good crop year. Dairying is among our choicest industries.

Silos are all the go now and several have been creted by our enterprising farmers.

SILO.

$1,000 REWARD.

The L. & N. Railroad Company offer a reward of One Thousand Dollars for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who misplaced the switch at Goree, Elmore County, Alabama, on Wednesday night, February 23rd, 1910, resulting in the derailment of fast passenger train No. 4.

Subscribe for The Banner.

THE ONLY BAKING POWDER MADE FROM ROYAL GRAPE CREAM OF TARTAR

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure

NOTICE.

The Commissioners Court of Chilton County hereby offers in cooperation with the State Commissioner of Agriculture, the following prizes:

For the best acre of Corn $25.00.
For the best acre of Wheat $15.00.
For the best acre of Oats $15.00.
For the best acre of Sweet Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Irish Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Hay $25.00.

Parties entering contest must give their names to Judge of Probate not later than May 1 of this year.

There will be no charges for entering the contest.

The rules governing contest will be given out later.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

Cox Chapel.

Editor Banner—Will you allow me a small space to say a few words? Health of this community is very good at present.

We are having some pretty bad rainy weather.

The farmers are preparing for another crop.

Our Sunday school at this place is progressing nicely.

Rev. J. W. Simmons filled his regular appointment last third Sunday. We all like our pastor very much and we also like our Sunday school superintendent, Mr. Mack Cox.

There was a Sunday school convention at Randolph last Sunday. Had a large crowd and plenty of dinner on the ground.

With best wishes to the Editor and the many readers of the Banner.

NOBODY'S DARLING.

FARMERS UNION

The Chilton County Farmers' Union will meet with Providence Local No. 215, 7 miles east of Clanton, on Monday and Tuesday, March 14-15, 1910.

Public speaking first day by State Lecturer, O. P. Ford, Hon. J. A. Wilkinson and a man from the Georgia division of the Farmers' Union.

Let me urge that every farmer who is interested in more scientific methods of agriculture and farm life in general, attend this meeting. Delegates and others coming by rail to Clanton will be met by conveyances if they will notify Bro. W. H. Robinson, Clanton, Route 1, five days in advance.

Yours for business,
J. M. SMITH, County Sec.

An Awful Eruption

of a volcano excites brief interest, and your interest in skin eruptions will be as short, if you use Bucklen's Arnica Salve, their quickest cure. Even the worst boils, ulcers, or fever sores are soon healed by it. Best for Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sore Lips, Chapped Hands, Chilblains and Piles. It gives instant relief. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Administration Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned was on the 19th day of February, 1910, appointed as the administratrix of the estate of I. S. Gerald, deceased, by the Probate Court of Chilton county, Alabama; that letters of administration in the premises were issued to her by said court on the day of her said appointment; and that all persons having claims against the estate of the said I. S. Gerald, deceased, are hereby notified to present the same within the time allowed by law or the same will be barred.

This the 3rd day of March, 1910.

HATTIE M. GERALD,
Administratrix.

One Doctor—Only One

No sense in running from one doctor to another! Select the best one, then stand by him. No sense either in trying this thing, that thing, for your cough. Carefully, deliberately select the best cough medicine, then take it. Stick to it. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for throat and lung troubles. Sold for nearly seventy years. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Why try this thing, that thing, for your constipation? Why not stick to the good old reliable family laxative—Ayer's Pills? Ask your doctor if he approves this advice.

GIRLS FIGHT DUEL FOR LOVE OF MAN

FIRE FIVE SHOTS FROM PISTOLS UNTIL ONE FALLS WOUNDED.

STUDENT CAUSE OF QUARREL

Rivalry Leads to Hatred and Young Women, Accompanied by Female Seconds, Go to Woods to Settle with Code of Honor.

Berlin.—A duel between female medical students has occurred at Przemerlik, on the Silesian frontier.

Olga Metzeroff and Ilonea Ilnotsky quarreled over their common love for a dashing young medical student named Brightener, who made love to both, but engaging himself to neither. The rivalry caused hatred between the girls. Blows were exchanged.

"Advanced" women that they are, they hold themselves by the standards of male chivalry, consequently the Ilnotsky girl who was the recipient of the first blow in the hand to hand fight, sent two other female students as her seconds to Olga Metzeroff, who also obtained two. The four seconds arranged that the duel should be fought on German territory to avoid the Austrian police.

The conditions were that pistol shots at 15 paces should be exchanged until one of the combatants was disabled. Three days were spent in practicing shooting and then the dueling party crossed the frontier at sunrise and proceeded to a spot in a forest. The combatants took their positions and one of the seconds gave the signal.

The duellists exchanged four shots before either was hit. At the fifth shot the Metzeroff girl received a wound in the left shoulder and fell fainting in the snow. Her wound was bandaged and she was conveyed back to Austria. Her recovery is certain.

Wounded by the Fifth Shot.

The victorious combatant received an enthusiastic ovation from her fellow students.

WILD DOGS IN OKLAHOMA

Farmers Have Organized in Muskogee County to Wipe Out the Beasts.

Fort Gibson, Okla.—In McClain township, a heavily wooded, rough section of Muskogee county, the farmers have organized for the purpose of wiping out the wild dogs that have been making raids on the live stock of the township and killing sheep and hogs by the score.

Two years ago two tramp dogs appeared in the wilder section of that portion. They brought forth whelps and these have grown to be great vicious dogs that have always run wild, with all the cunning of the coyote and the fierceness of the timber wolf, added to which is an uncanny knowledge of the habits of men. They are never seen in the day time and never approach a house except at night and then with the utmost caution. They kill pigs and sheep and whatever else they dare attack when driven by hunger.

Longest Masonry Span.

The longest masonry span in the world is said to be the Grafton bridge, now being completed by the city of Auckland, New Zealand. It is 910 feet long and 40 feet wide, and the middle arch has a span of 320 feet, and a roadway elevation of 147 feet above the lowest part of the valley which it crosses.

Land and Water Automobile.

The French war office has recently acquired an automobile which is capable of being instantly changed from a land to a water machine. It has a speed of 40 kilometers on land and 12 kilometers in the water. It can carry four persons, and is actuated by a 14-horse power motor.

TREED BY A MAD BULL; NEARLY FREEZE TO DEATH

THREE FARMERS HELD PRISONERS FOR SEVERAL HOURS IN FRIGID WEATHER.

Bay Port, Mich.—Treed by a vicious bull, Albert Brown, a farmer near Caseville, and his two hired men, spent several anxious hours and nearly perished in the frigid blasts from Wild Fowl bay before they were rescued.

The bull had escaped from the barnyard and the men undertook to chase him into the inclosure. Instead of complying, the angry bovine made a dash for the men and they dashed for the nearest trees.

They had just time enough to pull themselves into the protecting branches of a couple of saplings out of reach of the bull's attacks.

The Angry Bovine Made a Dash for the Man.

The bull adopted waiting tactics, seeming to know that his intended victims would be compelled to come off their perches or freeze to death. But a man with a cutter came along the road and proved their salvation.

They hailed him, informing him of their predicament. The man was compelled to drive five miles to obtain a rifle.

Returning, he shot the bull and liberated the treed trio, who were so stiff with the cold they could scarcely move.

NEW PISTOL DOESN'T KILL

Cartridge of Cayenne and Lycopodium Causes Man Hit to Lose Senses Short Time.

London.—A pistol which renders the person fired at unconscious without injuring him was described at Bow street.

The cartridges contain a little gunpowder, burned cayenne pepper and lycopodium, a substance extracted from moss. The fumes of the burned pepper and lyconopium cause the person fired at to lose consciousness for a time.

"It has been felt for a long time," said Henry Stanbridge, a Sheffield gunmaker, "that such a pistol would be very useful, especially to women cyclists. Many people who travel on unfrequented roads are afraid to use an ordinary pistol, and are, therefore, at the mercy of dangerous men."

Charles Watson of Jessel chambers, Chancery lane, was summoned for selling these pistols without ascertaining whether the purchasers possessed gun licenses. He contended that no license was needed in the case of such a weapon, and the hearing was adjourned in order that experiments might be made.

Deadly "Spotted Fever."

One of the most malignant and fatal diseases known to attack man has made its appearance within the last few years in the mountainous regions of Montana and adjacent Rocky mountain states. It is called "spotted fever"—though by no means to be confused with epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis, which commonly goes by that name. The malady is entirely new—unheard of, that is to say, up to 25 years ago. For quite a while no attention was paid to it by the health authorities, save locally, but of late it has been killing so many people that the federal government, appealed to for aid, is doing its best to find out the cause of the mischief, and, if possible, to discover a remedy. With this end in view, the public health service has sent several of its experts to Bitter Root valley, which has been the scene of the most serious epidemics of the disease.—Technical World Magazine.

"Snake Stones."

In some of the Hebrides islands great faith is had in perforated, water-worn stones called "snake stones." These are dipped in tepid water, which then is given to cattle which have been bitten by snakes. If no stone can be obtained the head of an adder dipped in the water gives just as good results. An eel's skin is worn as a garter around the naked leg is a fine preventive of cramps, and in some localities it is equally good as a bandage for a sprained limb.

PROSPECT FOR QUIET NIGHT

Hotel Guest Was to Have Lively Company During the Hours of Slumber.

There is something fearful in too much attention and overdone hospitality is one of its worst forms. One can fancy the consternation of the tired guest in this story, which happened away in the backwoods of Arkansas. A tourist going over the state on horseback stopped for the night at one of the popular "hotels" of a certain locality.

The hotel was a log and slab affair of three rooms and the same number of beds, but the proprietor was the proud parent of nine wild and woolly looking sons of under 12 years of age. After a supper of "hog and hom'ny" the host said to one of the boys:

"Come, Billy, get the broom straws."

Nine broom straws of unequal lengths were produced by "Billy." The father hid them in his hand in such a manner that only an end of each straw could be seen. Then each boy drew a straw.

"Ha! ha!" said the merry parent, jovially. "Bill, you an' Buck an' 'Lige git the short ones."

"What does that mean?" asked the guest, whose look of amusement faded away when his host said:

"Mean? Why, that's a little way we have o' settling which three of 'em shall sleep with anybody that happens to stop overnight with us.

"I 'spect you'll find Buck and Bill and 'Lige mighty lively bedfellers, but don't you be afeard to give 'em a warming up with your boot or a bed slat if they git to training too high.

"Go 'long, boys, an' pile in with this gent, and mind that you behave yourselves."—Youth's Companion.

WOULDN'T BREAK HIS RULE

Elderly Widower Who Certainly Might Be Said to Be "Set in His Ways."

Mrs. Henry de la Pasture, the popular writer, was talking about marriage.

"A pretty girl," said Mrs de la Pasture, "couldn't make a better resolution for 1910 than not to marry an old man, no matter what his wealth. She might also resolve not to marry a widower. Widowers are, as you Americans say, so set in their ways.

"They tell about a pretty girl of 20 who married a rich widower of 50. He was very much a widower. The girl was, in fact, his fourth wife.

"Well, on the return from the honeymoon, the husband, after dinner, took up his hat, overcoat and umbrella.

"The wife, beautiful in a white decollete gown that was no whiter than her shoulders, said:

"'Where are you going, dear?'

"He gave her a stern look and answered coldly:

"'My dear, I am not in the habit of telling my wives where I am going every time I step out of the house.'"

Let the Dining Room Be Cheerful.

How often we find commonplace dining rooms in the homes of well-bred people—dining rooms that are not only humdrum, but have a depressing atmosphere, which could really be avoided if certain fundamental rules were adhered to. It is most important, when furnishing a dining room, to have it cheerful—in fact, it is of even more consequence than that it should be artistic. In a cheerful dining room you are sure to find optimists; in a gloomy one, misanthropes. The cheerful dining room must have an exposure that gives plenty of light, as well as air. Nothing plays such an important part in the decoration of a room as the window treatment. We need never be afraid of too much light and glare, because the brilliancy of a sunny exposure can always be softened by a restful color scheme of walls and woodwork, and tempered by a judicious form of curtain treatment.—Suburban Life.

Led by the Nose.

An analytical chemist was retained as a skilled witness some years ago, where there are questions of analytical chemistry. There was one case where a farmer had bought some artificial manure, and he was being sued for the price of it. He resisted payment on the ground that the material had none of the qualities of manure at all. The expert chemist was one of the witnesses, and had stated that, although the substance had the smell, it had none of the chemical qualities of manure. Under cross-examination he was asked, if that was so, how did he account for hundreds of the best farmers having taken the manure for many years. "They must have been led by the nose," returned the witness.

Wren and New Years.

Had old custom but survived, the wren would have been in great request to-day, especially in Ireland and Wales. The new year would have seen processions, each headed by a wren in a lantern. For it was formerly the custom to carry a lantern, tastefully decorated with ribbons, and containing a wren, round each hamlet and village, and make calls on dwellers in cottage and hall. The bearers, swinging the lantern at each door, would favor all whom it might concern with a song and receive a monetary reward. Another industry gone!

A Trunk Rummager.

"How did you come to give that new man such a responsible place in your millinery department? Has his experience justified it?"

"Yes," answered the merchant. "He used to be a customs inspector."

DEER ATTACKS A WOMAN; MASTIFFS SAVE HER LIFE

DOGS FIGHT WOUNDED BUCK TO THE DEATH WHILE MRS. TAYLOR LOOKS ON.

Johnson City, Me.—"I never cared for dogs, and always feared them, but now I love them," said Mrs. Thomas Taylor, a bride of three months, whose life was saved a few days ago by two mastiffs owned by Edward Taylor, her husband's brother.

Mrs. Taylor had been spending the afternoon at the home of her husband's parents, and it was growing dusk when she started to her own home, carrying a basket of fruit.

Between her own home and that of her father-in-law is a short stretch of woodland. Deer have been seen in the vicinity lately, and hunters have shot at several though, so far as known, none had been killed.

Then Began a Battle Between the Buck and the Dogs.

Although Mrs. Taylor insisted that she was not afraid to go home alone, her mother-in-law insisted that she take the two dogs along with her for protection. None of the men of the family was at home, and the elder Mrs. Taylor was unable to accompany her even part of the way.

So Mrs. Taylor started out, the dogs following at her heels. The first part of the journey was without incident, and Mrs. Taylor was more than half way through the woods when she heard a noise ahead of her. The bushes were rattling, and in an instant a large buck sprang into the clearing. Blood was streaming from the side of the deer, and he snorted with rage.

The dogs had fallen behind, in fact, Mrs. Taylor says she had forgotten that they were with her.

The wounded buck lowered his head and pawed the snow.

Recovering from her first shock of fear, the woman, as might be expected from one of her sex, screamed.

The scream attracted the dogs and they came with a rush.

As the dogs bounded into the clearing the deer rushed at Mrs. Taylor. She sprang behind the only tree that stood in the cleared space and the deer rushed past her.

Then began a battle between the buck and the dogs.

The combat lasted several minutes, and both dogs were badly scarred before they brought the wounded buck to earth. Just as the battle was finished the hunters who had shot the deer appeared on the scene. They said they had shot the animal nearly an hour earlier and had been trailing him through the snow.

HOW LAND PRICES GO UP

Site of New Kansas City Bank Once Sold for Eight Cents—That Was in 1836.

If you and I had been on the job in Kansas City in 1836—that's not so awfully long ago, either—we could have made a fortune for our heirs—if we had put our weekly pay envelope in real estate investments. When Watt Webb and W. S. Webb bought 25 feet of ground next to the Commerce building on the west side of Walnut street between Ninth and Tenth streets from the Ridge estate a few days ago as a site for a new building for the Missouri Savings bank, they paid at the rate of $4,200 a front foot for it. The deed will be filed for record one day this week. Then an architect will be chosen to prepare plans for a new two-story bank building.

"Our abstract goes back to 1836," said W. S. Webb, cashier of the bank, yesterday, according to the Kansas City Times. "Henry Chiles received a patent from the government for the land in that year. He paid $1.25 an acre for 40 acres, which lie between what are now Ninth and Tenth streets. The 25 feet for the bank site is one-fifteenth of an acre in area. So it cost in 1836 about eight cents. In 1841, the year my father, Watt Webb, was born the land sold for $4,400, or 66.2-3 cents for the 25 feet. It passed to Thomas Smart, who deeded it to his daughter and son-in-law, Mrs. I. M. Ridge and Dr. Ridge, in 1857. There have been few changes in its ownership."

ON BEING A GOOD SPORT

Many Others There Are Besides Those Who Indulge in Contests on Athletic Fields.

The marks of a good sport in any athletic game are easily recognizable. In golf he plays his ball exactly where it lies and carefully observes every rule safeguarding the rights of his opponent and other players on the course. In tennis he never calls a ball "out" if there is the slightest doubt about it, preferring the loss of a point to the loss of his self-respect. In baseball or football he keeps constantly in mind the fact that he is a gentleman and gives his opponent credit for being as well bred, no matter how keen the competition or how great the temptation to resort to questionable methods of play.

Not that the athletic fields have a monopoly of the good sports. Far from it. Every mother who is uncomplainingly denying herself for the benefit of her children is a good sport. So is every father who pinches so that John may go to the Tech. So is every physician who cares for the poor and takes for pay the satisfaction of helping somebody. And the nurse who "turns night time into day time," but without the recompense of good fellowship or "the good song ringing clear." And the school teacher who mothers hundreds of children to their everlasting benefit, but herself is mother to none.—From Nautilus.

TAXES IN THE OLDEN TIME

In the Reign of George the Third One Could Not Even Escape Them by Dying.

For taxes out of the common one must turn back to the days of George III. For in the reign of that monarch one was almost forced to "die beyond one's means." The army and the navy were in urgent need of money and the chancellor was at his wits' end. He thought of the dead and gravely suggested a tax on coffins. Which proposal recalls the day when one could not be born without involving a proud parent in a tax. A graduated tax. The birth of an eldest son, for instance, cost a duke as much as £30, whereas a cottager was forced to pay only two shillings. To be born with a silver spoon in the mouth cost money in those days!

Not only was there once a tax on hair powder, but hair itself has been called upon to pay its due share to the revenue. For beards were, at various times, taxed in England. Henry VIII. graduated his levy according to the status of the wearer, the sheriff of Canterbury, for instance, having to pay three shillings four pence for his beard, and Elizabeth fixed the same sum for every beard of over a fortnight's growth.

Keeping a Friendship.

"Time was," remarked a man prominent in Cleveland financial circles, "when if a close friend had come to me and wanted to obtain a personal loan and offered to give me his ring or his watch or his wife for security, I wouldn't have taken any security. I would have insisted that we were too good friends for that and if I lent him money at all it would have been without any collateral.

"Now I'm older and know more of the workings of human nature than I did then. If a close friend comes to me to-day to borrow money and offers to put up his ring or his watch or his wife for security I'll accept the security. For if I do not and he isn't able to pay me back shortly he'll begin to avoid me and from there it is only another step until he'll hate me. So long as he has given me security, however, whether he pays me or not, he does not feel under obligations to me and I retain his friendship and good will."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Eye Strain in School.

A little boy or girl totally blind is an extremely pathetic sight, but next to this is a child wearing spectacles to piece out its defective eyesight. Yet such cases are declared by doctors to be on the increase, and they claim that many of them are caused by the eye strain to which those under ten years of age are subjected in the schools. A number of years ago a crusade was begun against nursemaids, older sisters and even reckless mothers who would expose babies' eyes to the direct glare of the sun when taking the helpless infants out for an airing in baby carriages. That crusade is by no means ended yet, and many a courageous woman will to-day stop a baby carriage whose occupant's unprotected eyes are being blinded by the sun, and will instruct the attendant to either shut out the light or wheel the carriage in another direction.

How Glass Affects Bacteria.

From the investigations of a German scientist, it appears that bacteria are affected favorably or otherwise by the character of the glass containing the water in which they are suspended. Marked differences in the behavior of cholera germs were noted, according to the kind of glass composing the vessels used. The degree of alkalinity imparted by the glass to the water is believed to be an important factor in these experiments.

Consolation.

"That candidate insists that he was defeated by the trusts."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "whenever a man gets the worst of it he likes to console himself with the idea that he had a mighty big antagonist."

TRICKS OF NEW JERSEY PETS

Canary Bird, Collie Dog and Mouse Are Real Wonders—Some of Their Performances.

Montclair, N. J.—A bird, a dog and a mouse interested Montclair naturalists.

At the home of Mrs. Charles Herring, on Elm street, a sweet-voiced canary that invariably burst into song at noon was silent. Mrs. Herring thought that the bird was ill, but her daughter Maud noticed that the big clock which faced the bird's cage had run down and denoted eight o'clock instead of 12. As the girl turned the hands forward to the correct moment the bird gave one glance at the clock and then burst into its noon-tolled trills.

Bryan, a collie that makes his home at the barn of the Montclair Construction Company, like all the other dogs of Montclair, has been muzzled for the last few weeks in compliance with the order of Mayor Crawford. The wire muzzle was a sore affliction to Bryan, and he made repeated attempts to rid himself of the incumbrance.

According to veracious chronicle the dog saw some plumbers heating metal over a gasoline burned at a house near the barn. After the men left, the dog was seen to approach the stove and gingerly extend his muzzle over the blaze. The intense heat scorched the hair of the dog, but Bryan heroically persisted until he had brought one of the wires of his muzzle to a white heat.

Persons who reported the incident say the dog waited until the heated wire became brittle and then he snapped it against a stone. The wire was shattered and the muzzle fell from the dog's jaws.

At the greenery of E. D. Rose on Orange road employes have been missing packages of seeds for some time. A mouse was detected stealing a package of lettuce seed. The rodent was traced to its lair, where it had concealed no less than 29 packages of seeds.

SEEK DELAY IN BERLIN SHOW

Americans May Not Be Able to Get Their Exhibits Ready on Scheduled Time.

Berlin.—Whether the projected American exposition in Berlin will not have to be postponed several months and perhaps a year is a question receiving serious attention in local business circles. The German-American business men taking an interest in the enterprise, which is scheduled to open in June, are strongly impressed by the fact that to assemble a creditable display in the limited time remaining will require superhuman exertion unless the preparatory work of collecting exhibits in America has made far more progress than is apparent.

Although the exposition project was launched with a flourish of trumpets and its list of patrons contains many illustrious names, including those of Prince Henry and J. Pierpont Morgan, there is a singular lack of information both here and on the other side about it.

Neither at the American consulate, the American embassy nor at the office of the American Association of Commerce are officials able to give out satisfactorily definite data regarding progress in the work of getting exhibitors or the extent to which the American business world is responding to the initiative of the German founders of the enterprise. About 15 American firms represented in Germany have announced their willingness to participate.

Baron von Brandenstein, one of the promoters, has returned from America and reports that enough exhibitors have been secured to fill 3,000 of the available 8,000 square meters of flooring space. Strong doubts are expressed, however, whether even this will make it advisable to open the exhibition on the intended date. Some of the business men here openly favor a postponement until 1911.

DIRTY HANDS CAUSE TYPHOID

More Dangerous Than Water as Conveyor of Dread Disease, Says Scientist.

Paris.—"One of the chief causes of epidemics of typhoid fever is dirty hands," Prof. Vincent of the Valdegrace Military hospital announces in a report just made to the Academy of Medicine. Prof. Vincent, noted for his research on typhoid, asserts that many cooks and kitchen helpers are transporters of typhoid germs.

They communicate the disease by washing meats, vegetables and dishes with hands on which typhoid bacilli swarm. Water and milk are not great carriers of germs, as is supposed, but the human hands that carry the water and milk are, he states.

In his report Prof. Vincent urges that the hands of cooks and scullions be disinfected before they go to work. He says, too, it is comparatively easy for a physician to discover the persons from whom a patient caught typhoid fever.

Bridegroom Is Generous.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—"What is the fee?" inquired a groom whom the Espy justice of peace, Squire Bogert, had just married.

"The law allows us 50 cents," replied the squire, not desiring to commit himself.

"Well, if the law allows you 50 cents," rejoined the groom, "here is a quarter; that will make it 75."

TWO OF THE LATEST JACKETS

Exceedingly Smart and Stylish Are These Outdoor Garments in Serge and Cloth.

The first is a suitable style for serge. It is quite plain and semi-fitting, the sides being fitted in slightly at the waist. Black satin is used for facing the cuffs and long roll collar below this the fastening is formed by one large jet button.

Hat of felt, with black satin ribbon taken round the crown, and a jet buckle and feather at the side.

Materials required: Two and a quarter yards 48 inches wide, ¼ yard satin.

In the second sketch we show a smartly cut jacket of cloth to match the skirt with which it is worn. It is also semi-fitting and is made with the fronts and lower edge cut in one piece, then joined to the other part by a wrapped seam. Black velvet forms the collar, revers and cuffs, edged with striped silk cut on the cross. Small velvet-covered buttons are used as fastening.

Hat of black velvet, with two large quills at the side.

Materials required: Two and a half yards cloth 48 inches wide, 5 buttons, ¼ yard velvet, ⅛ yard striped silk.

POINTS ON COLOR HARMONY

Little List of the Combinations Which Intensify or Quarrel with Each Other.

The following general rules on color effects for decoration may be helpful to those women who may not have given thought to the subject:

Red and violet do not accord well.

Orange and yellow accord incomparably better than red and orange.

Orange and green do not accord well.

Orange and violet accord passably.

Yellow and green form an agreeable combination.

Greenish yellow and violet blend nicely.

The arrangement of yellow and blue is more agreeable than that of yellow and green, but it is less lively.

Green and blue produce an indifferent effect, but better when the colors are deep.

Green and violet, especially when light, form a combination preferable to green and blue.

Red and blue intensify each other.

Orange-yellow, when placed by the side of indigo, increases its intensity and vice versa.

Yellow and indigo combine perfectly.

Red and orange do not accord well.

Red and yellow accord pretty well, especially if the red is purple-red, rather than scarlet, and the yellow rather greenish than orange.

Red and blue accord passably, especially if the red inclines rather to violet than crimson.

Blue and violet accord badly.

In

"I had a mishap at fix," writes Mrs. Georgi "I was unconscio would have fainting sp headache, heart palpitat "I suffered greatly life and had 3 doctors, to try Cardui. "Since taking Card all my housework."

Take C

J 41

The

Do not allow yours get in so bad you woul Better take Cardui still in moderately good and keep you in tip to In this way your t ually grow smaller inst up-grade instead of th arrive at the north pole. Get a bottle at you

TRICKS OF NEW JERSEY PETS

Canary Bird, Collie Dog and Mouse Are Real Wonders—Some of Their Performances.

Montclair, N. J.—A bird, a dog and a mouse interested Montclair naturalists.

At the home of Mrs. Charles Herring, on Elm street, a sweet-voiced canary that invariably burst into song every noon was silent. Mrs. Herring thought that the bird was ill, but her daughter Maud noticed that the big clock which faced the bird's cage had run down and denoted eight o'clock instead of 12. As the girl turned the hands forward to the correct moment the bird gave one glance at the clock and then burst into its accustomed trills.

Bryan, a collie that makes his home in the barn of the Montclair Construction Company, like all the other dogs in Montclair, has been muzzled for the last few weeks in compliance with the order of Mayor Crawford. The wire muzzle was a sore affliction to Bryan and he made repeated attempts to rid himself of the incumbrance.

According to veracious chronicle the dog saw some plumbers heating metal over a gasoline burned at a house near the barn. After the men left, the dog was seen to approach the stove and gingerly extend his muzzle over the blaze. The intense heat scorched the hair of the dog, but Bryan heroically persisted until he had brought one of the wires of his muzzle to a white heat.

Persons who reported the incident say the dog waited until the heated wire became brittle and then he rapped it against a stone. The wire was shattered and the muzzle fell from the dog's jaws.

At the greenery of E. D. Rose on Orange road employes have been missing packages of seeds for some time. A mouse was detected stealing a package of lettuce seed. The rodent was traced to its lair, where it had concealed no less than 20 packages of seeds.

WEEK DELAY IN BERLIN SHOW

Americans May Not Be Able to Get Their Exhibits Ready on Scheduled Time.

Berlin.—Whether the projected American exposition in Berlin will not have to be postponed several months and perhaps a year is a question receiving serious attention in local business circles. The German-American business men taking an interest in the enterprise, which is scheduled to open in June, are strongly impressed by the fact that to assemble a creditable display in the limited time remaining will require superhuman exertion unless the preparatory work of collecting exhibits in America has made far more progress than is apparent.

Although the exposition project was launched with a flourish of trumpets and its list of patrons contains many illustrious names, including those of Prince Henry and J. Pierpont Morgan, there is a singular lack of information both here and on the other side about it.

Neither at the American consulate, the American embassy nor at the office of the American Association of Commerce are officials able to give out satisfactorily definite data regarding progress in the work of getting exhibitors or the extent to which the American business world is responding to the initiative of the German founders of the enterprise. About 15 American firms represented in Germany have announced their willingness to participate.

Baron von Brandenstein, one of the promoters, has returned from America and reports that enough exhibitors have been secured to fill 3,000 of the available 8,000 square meters of floor-ing space. Strong doubts are expressed, however, whether even this will make it advisable to open the exhibition on the intended date. Some of the business men here openly favor a postponement until 1911.

DIRTY HANDS CAUSE TYPHOID

More Dangerous Than Water as Conveyor of Dread Disease, Says Scientist.

Paris.—"One of the chief causes of epidemics of typhoid fever is dirty hands," Prof. Vincent of the Valde-Grace Military hospital announces in a report just made to the Academy of Medicine. Prof. Vincent, noted for his research on typhoid, asserts that many cooks and kitchen helpers are transporters of typhoid germs.

They communicate the disease by washing meats, vegetables and dishes with hands on which typhoid bacilli swarm. Water and milk are not great carriers of germs, as is supposed, but the human hands that carry the water and milk are, he states.

In his report Prof. Vincent urges that the hands of cooks and scullions be disinfected before they go to work. He says, too, it is comparatively easy for a physician to discover the persons from whom a patient caught typhoid fever.

Bridegroom Is Generous.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—"What is the fee?" inquired a groom whom the Espy justice of peace, Squire Bogert, had just married.

"The law allows us 50 cents," replied the squire, not desiring to commit himself.

"Well, if the law allows you 50 cents," rejoined the groom, "here is a quarter; that will make it 75."

TWO OF THE LATEST JACKETS

Exceedingly Smart and Stylish Are These Outdoor Garments in Serge and Cloth.

The first is a suitable style for serge. It is quite plain and semi-fitting, the sides being fitted in slightly at the waist. Black satin is used for facing the cuffs and long roll collar; below this the fastening is formed by one large jet button.

Hat of felt, with black satin ribbon taken round the crown, and a jet buckle and feather at the side.

Materials required: Two and a quarter yards 48 inches wide, ¾ yard satin.

In the second sketch we show a smartly cut jacket of cloth to match skirt with which it is worn; it is also semi-fitting and is made with the fronts and lower edge cut in one and then joined to the other part by a wrapped seam. Black velvet forms the collar, revers and cuffs, edged with striped silk cut on the cross. Small velvet-covered buttons are used as fastening.

Hat of black velvet, with two large quills at the side.

Materials required: Two and a half yards cloth 48 inches wide, 5 buttons, ¾ yard velvet, ⅛ yard striped silk.

POINTS ON COLOR HARMONY

Little List of the Combinations Which Intensify or Quarrel with Each Other.

The following general rules on color effects for decoration may be helpful to those women who may not have given thought to the subject:

Red and violet do not accord well.

Orange and yellow accord incomparably better than red and orange.

Orange and green do not accord well.

Orange and violet accord passably.

Yellow and green form an agreeable combination.

Greenish yellow and violet blend nicely.

The arrangement of yellow and blue is more agreeable than that of yellow and green, but it is less lively.

Green and blue produce an indifferent effect, but better when the colors are deep.

Green and violet, especially when light, form a combination preferable to green and blue.

Red and blue intensify each other.

Orange-yellow, when placed by the side of indigo, increases its intensity and vice versa.

Yellow and indigo combine perfectly.

Red and orange do not accord well.

Red and yellow accord pretty well, especially if the red is purple-red, rather than scarlet, and the yellow rather greenish than orange.

Red and blue accord passably, especially if the red inclines rather to scarlet than crimson.

Blue and violet accord badly.

Diplomatic.

The late Lord Savile used to say that high diplomatists had always to be on their guard against intriguing women, mainly Russian agents, who would use any wile to extract information. During the Russo-Turkish war, when Europe was always on the verge of a crisis and Russian statesmen were most anxious to know what England would do under given circumstances, a lady came up to him suddenly at a ball and said:

"I hear that the Russians have made a forced march and entered Constantinople," hoping, no doubt, that he would be surprised into some indiscreet expression.

He merely replied:

"Indeed! And I suppose the sultan has conferred on them the order of the Turkish bath!"

The lady continued gravely:

"And they say in Paris that if England does not interfere the eastern question is settled in favor of Russia."

"And that," replied his excellency, "is, I suppose, the new judgment of Paris."

The Raising of Rice.

The cultivation of rice extends back into the dim past, and there are no authentic records as to when it first began. Evidence points, however, to the Chinese having been among the earliest people to cultivate it, and such great value was attached to it that in the annual ceremonial sowing of important plants inaugurated by the Emperor Chianong so far back in the past as 2800 B. C. the rice had to be sown only by the emperor himself, while the four other plants of the ceremony might be sown by the princes of his family. In India rice has been cultivated from time immemorial. It was introduced at an early period into Syria, Egypt and other parts of northern Africa. In more modern times rice has been sown in Spain, France and Italy, the first cultivation in the last named country being stated to have been near Pisa in 1468. The plant is believed to have been introduced into America in 1647, when Sir William Berkeley raised a crop of sixteen bushels from half a bushel of seed.

Taught Him a Lesson.

"Why don't you give your wife an allowance?"

"I tried that once, and she spent it before I could borrow it back."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It belongs to great men to have great defects.—French Proverb.

Grapes and Peaches.

The grape has more sugar in it than any other fruit, nearly fifteen parts in a hundred being sugar. The peach has least, only 1½ per cent.

Turkish Methods.

In Turkey nothing can be done without a bribe, but with a bribe, if it be only big enough, anything can be done, except, perhaps, the publication of correct news in a Turkish paper.

Wings of a Gnat.

The wings of a gnat vibrate at the rate of 15,000 times a second, this observation having been recorded through the use of an ingenious musical instrument.

An Old Time Winter.

It was so cold in New York part of the winter of 1779 that residents in the vicinity were compelled to cut down the tall trees that stood at what is now the head of Wall street to make kindling wood.

A Queer Cure.

At Loch Carron, Scotland, a certain cure for erysipelas is to cut off half of the ear of a cat and let the blood from either half drop on the inflamed parts.

No Substitute.

Accept no substitute for Foley's Honey and Tar. It is the best and safest remedy for coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Contains no opiates and no harmful drugs. Remember the name, Foley's Honey and Tar, and accept no substitutes. Upchurch Drug Co.

IN PRINCESS STYLE

MISSES' COSTUMES NEARLY ALL ALONG THAT ORDER.

One-Piece Ideas Will Be Distinctly Popular This Spring—Illustration Shows Partially Belted Jacket Worth Copying.

The princess dress is to be considered to a great extent for misses this spring. There is scarcely a new costume for dressy purposes which is not a one-piece affair of some sort, and the cut or trimming which brings a straight line about the hips is still observed.

The coats of the suits are distinctly short, and one charming and becoming arrangement is to belt in one-half of the waist to the figure. This belting may be either at the back or front, but wherever it is the portion left loose does not look in the least awkward.

The smart hat for the growing girl is growing broader in the brim, but the structure still sets low on the head. This involves considerable amplitude of crown, and crowns are in great, hard bells or in soft puff shapes. Some of the finer of the early hats for misses show quite splendid ostrich feathers put on at the left side of the hat trimming to equal the smart and durable possibilities of ribbon, which is still lavishly used.

The frocks, coats and hats of the smaller fry have, if anything, increased in simplicity. For girls from six to ten there are some delightful little one-piece frocks made loose from a yoke and caught low down with a button belt, or else in a definite bodice and skirt, with the dress belt very narrow and falling to the top of the hips. Spring coats for these little ladies are in reefer shape, or else they are hip length or three-quarter sacques. The stylish hat for the small girl is definitely big, and not infrequently it is a broadish mushroom, under which the little face seems half lost.

The new dress materials include among the wools many diagonals in tender spring colors, chicory, a delicate green, as well as many unnameable shades of soft brown showing in these. Checks and stripes appear largely in the wash materials, and for these, with both color and white, Hamburg embroidery is still much used.

With some charming muslins in delicate childish patterns are often displayed little parasols of silk, flowered or plain, with pinked-frill edges, or with quilled lace borders. These will go with the dainty muslins, which will be lavish with lace and ribbon.

The illustration displays a short, partially belted jacket, which could be developed from a stout gown material, or be in the form of a separate wrap. The style is called the Russian blouse, and, as illustrated, the coat is in a light-weight cloth, in pale tan, with collar, cuffs and belt in a matching ottoman silk. The deep, square collar will be found very becoming to a slight figure, as would also the fish-tail cut of the bottom of the front of the coat. If liked the belt could be carried all around the waist, and the back also cut in a fish-tail curve.

Size 16 years requires five yards of material 27 inches wide, or 2¾ yards in 42-inch width.

Mary Dean

The Untrimmed Hat.

The prevailing fashion for having an entirely plain hat on the head is interesting and artistic, but one should not adopt the fashion without knowing its dangers. They are these: That unless the hat has exquisite lines, which means perfection of cut and shape, it looks ungainly.

One must pay as much for the shape of the trim in a hat of this kind as for trimmings. Too few women realize this.

Easy Way to Put Cotton in Quilts.

I have discovered that time and patience may be saved when putting cotton in quilts if the cotton is first rolled about an ordinary yardstick. Spread the cotton out on a large table or the floor, roll on the stick, then transfer to the quilt foundation and unroll.—The Delineator.

A Far Look.

Three visitors traveling in the Isle of Man thought they would visit Snaefell, the king of Manx mountains. When walking up toward the mountain they espied an old shepherd coming toward them. They thought they would take a rise out of him, so one accosted him, saying:

"They tell me, old man, you can see England, Scotland, Ireland and even as far as America from the top of this mountain."

"Oh, yes!" said the old man. "If you will come with me I will show you much farther than America."

So, chuckling to themselves, they decided to follow him. After trudging for about half an hour up the mountain side in a boiling sun they began to feel rather fagged and kept asking the shepherd how much farther they had to go.

He kept urging them on a little farther until at last the three visitors lay down on the grass and said they would go no farther for any sight.

"Now," said the old man, "if you will sit here long enough you will see the moon."

Buried on His Horse.

Lord Dacre, who died fighting for the Lancastrians at Towton, England, in 1461, directed that if he were killed in the battle his favorite war horse should be buried in the same grave with him. According to his wishes, when his interment took place in Saxon churchyard after the battle a tremendous grave was dug, and in it the warrior was buried, seated upright on his horse. For centuries reflections were cast upon the accuracy of this tradition, but some years ago while excavations were being made close by the reputed burial place of Lord Dacre the pick of a digger struck into a great bone, and upon further search being made the skull of a big horse was brought to the surface. As this was found almost at the very spot under which the body of Lord Dacre was said to lie it was accepted as confirmation of the tradition, particularly as the skull was found to be standing vertically in the soil. The skull was replaced carefully in its original position and the excavation filled up.

How Good News Spreads.

"I am 70 years old and travel most of the time," writes B. F. Tolson, of Elizabethtown, Ky. "Everywhere I go I recommend Electric Bitters, because I owe my excellent health and vitality to them. They effect a cure every time." They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run-down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health that's a daily joy. Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

ELDER HENRY CUNNINGHAM

Recommends

Vinol

For Weak, Run-Down People.

"I was run down and weak from indigestion and general debility, also suffered from vertigo. I saw a cod liver preparation called Vinol advertised and decided to give it a trial, and the results were most gratifying. After taking two bottles I regained my strength, and am now feeling unusually well." — HENRY CUNNINGHAM, Elder Baptist Church, Kinston, N.C.

Vinol contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron. Vinol contains no oil, and is by far the Best Strengthening Tonic obtainable. We return your money without question if Vinol does not accomplish all we claim for it.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades, Crockery, Glass and Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies

We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

$1.75 The 1910 Subscription Offer—The Best Offer Made for the New Year $1.75

THE TRI-WEEKLY ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

AND

THE BANNER

together with the superb alternate FREE OFFERS of UNCLE REMUS'S HOME MAGAZINE; or HUMAN LIFE; or THE SOUTHERN RURALIST, a splendid agricultural paper; or TALKS FROM FARMERS TO FARMERS, an epitome of farm wisdom, worth its weight in gold. Your choice of one, only $1.75

THE TRI-WEEKLY CONSTITUTION MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, FRIDAY, THREE TIMES A WEEK. THE NEWSIEST, BEST, BRIGHTEST AND BIGGEST SOUTHERN NEWSPAPER. ALMOST A DAILY, YET AT THE PRICE OF A WEEKLY. ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

or The Weekly Constitution—once a week, with each of the above (except that The Weekly Constitution is substituted for the Tri-Weekly)—all for one year for only $1.40. The Tri-Weekly Constitution presents at the sweeping view the whole area of events. The news of the country, state, nation, and the world is given in each complete issue. Each week the departments of Farm and Farmers, Woman's Kingdom, Rural Free Delivery, Poultry and others of wide interest, edited by experts, appeal directly to those addressed.

The Weekly Constitution contains all these special features and the difference between it and The Tri-Weekly is that the one is issued once a week (on Monday only) and the other three times a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

If you want The Constitution alone, without any clubbing offers, you can get The Tri-Weekly Constitution at $1 per year, or The Weekly at 50c per year, by addressing The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. One sample copy sent free on request, giving with it six of your neighbors.

The Constitution Is the Paper for Rural Free Delivery Routes

A club of 40 or 50 or more will keep an R. F. D. route above the minimum average required for daily mail service. It is the great news purveyor of the whole Southland, as good in the gulf states as on the Atlantic seaboard.

Clubbed with The Atlanta Constitution, we have the superb FREE OFFERS shown from which you may make your choice of one:

(1) Uncle Remus's Home Magazine—Founded by Joel Chandler Harris, the prince of all story writers, author of Uncle Remus folk-lore and other sketches. It is the magazine of the whole Southland, it is as broad as the nation in its scope and its success is confined to no section.

(2) Human Life, of Boston, Mass., a monthly magazine of current and interesting biography. It is about folks, people in the public eye now, that you want to know about, and it is of absorbing interest from cover to cover. Be sure to subscribe now in time to get the next great issue.

(3) Talks From Farmers to Farmers, a symposium of Southern farm knowledge that should be in the hands of every practical farmer, young or old. The articles have all appeared in Tri-Weekly Constitution under same title and made one of the greatest features of this splendid farmers' paper. It will be mailed to you immediately upon receipt of order.

(4) The Southern Ruralist, one of the best agricultural papers in the south. It is a semi-monthly edited by a farmer on his own farm, and is intensely practical and helpful.

Our Great Proposition

Remember, our paper one year, and THE TRI-WEEKLY CONSTITUTION, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, three times a week, for one year, and your selection of one from the four alternate free offers, all for $1.75; or the whole combination (except that The Weekly Constitution is substituted for the Tri-Weekly) for only..$1.40

Send at once. Get right on. Don't miss a copy. Address all orders for above combination to

THE BANNER, Clanton, Ala.

In Bad Fix

"I had a mishap at the age of 41, which left me in bad fix," writes Mrs. Georgia Usher, of Conyers, Ga. "I was unconscious for three days, and after that I would have fainting spells, dizziness, nervousness, sick headache, heart palpitation and many strange feelings. "I suffered greatly with ailments due to the change of life and had 3 doctors, but they did no good, so I concluded to try Cardui. "Since taking Cardui, I am so much better and can do all my housework."

Take CARDUI

J 41

The Woman's Tonic

Do not allow yourself to get into a bad fix. You might get in so bad you would find it hard to get out. Better take Cardui while there is time, while you are still in moderately good health, just to conserve your strength and keep you in tip top condition. In this way your troubles, whatever they are, will gradually grow smaller instead of larger—you will be on the up-grade instead of the down—and by and bye you will arrive at the north pole of perfect health. Get a bottle at your druggists' today.

THE BANNER

FRANK CRIGHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patient truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR CIRCUIT SOLICITOR.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. LOYD TATE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Solicitor of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, including the counties of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

D. D. ASKEW.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Sheriff of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

LEE HAYES.

FOR JUDGE OF PROBATE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Judge of Probate of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

E. B. DEASON.

FOR CIRCUIT CLERK.

I announce myself as a candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

HUGH M. SIMPSON.

FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Judge of the Fifteenth Judical Circuit of Alabama, composed of the counties of Autauga, Elmore, Chilton and Montgomery, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries.

W. W. PEARSON.

FOR STATE SENATOR.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Senator from the Fifteenth Senatorial District of Alabama, subject to the action of the Democratic primary to be held on the 2nd day of May, 1910.

THOS. A. CURRY.

FOR CONGRESS.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Representative from the Fourth District of Alabama to Congress, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

F. L. BLACKMON.

FOR JUDGE OF THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

SCOTT SAYRE.

THOS. A. CURRY.

Up to the present time Chilton county has never furnished a State Senator, and the announcement of this gentleman's candidacy for that office will be hailed with satisfaction by the voters of the county. Mr. Curry is well adapted for the position — thoroughly acquainted with the district, his legal knowledge and general acquirements will make him an admirable representative of the people. As chairman of the Democratic executive committee, he rendered good service and we have no doubt but that the voters of the fifteenth district will gladly rally to his support.

HON. SCOTT SAYRE.

The announcement of this gentleman for Judge of the fifteenth circuit has been expected for some time and addf great interest to the race. In the election of 1906 he was duly elected, but the law creating the circuit was declared void and Gov. Comer appointed Judge Pearson to the office. Mr. Sayre again appeals to the people to elect him.

F. L. BLACKMON.

There appears to be little or no probability of opposition to the candidacy of Mr. F. L. Blackmon, of Anniston, for Representative in Congress from this, the Fourth Congressional district, whose announcement appears elsewhere in this issue and doubtless he will be the unanimous nominee of the Democratic party. Mr. Blackmon as State Senator from his district made an excellent reputation, which justly fits him for the more arduous service in Congress. He will make a fine successor to the popular Congresman Craig.

Attorney General Garber has given out the following statement in regard to his contemplated race for Congress in the Fourth District:—

"I have been urged by many citizens of the Fourth District to announce my candidacy for Congress Many assurances of support have come to me for which I am deeply grateful and which demand a public statement of my decision.

For sometime I have desired to represent the people of my district in Congress, believing that I could serve them to their advantage The apportunity does now appear unfavorable, but after mature deliberation I have decided, with regret, that I cannot at this time enter the contest. I regard public office to be in the highest sense a public trust. The exacting duties of the office of Attorney General would prevent me from making the active, personal campaign which at present seems necessary.

I wish to thank my friends throughout the district for their generous offers of support and to assure them of my sincere appreciation of their confidence in my ability to serve them in this important office."

John B. Knox of Anniston has come out in a lengthy tirade against the other two gentlemen who are candidates for United States senator, and announces his candidacy for this high office. We have thought all along that Mr. Knox was a man of senatorial size but since reading his manifesto we are forced to the conclusion that he has already been honored more than he deserved Saying unkind things of an opponent is not the mark of a statesman.—Marion County News, Feb. 24, 1910.

That was a mighty fine piece of writing of Hon. John B. Knox, a gem of English composition; and Mr. Knox is a mighty fine man, smart as a whip, that's undeniable but we think with all seriousness that to make a senatorial campaign on the bing gate of a gubernatorial band wagon is out of all precedent

Mr. O'Neal will be the next governor of the great state of Alabama, we predict, and the Citizen is for him, first, last and all the time, but John H. Bankhead is running for U. S. Senate, and not for governor, and the Citizen is for him, as we think he should have it. He is the wheel horse in the senate and wields a powerful influence that no new member could possibly hope to have in years to come.—Scottsboro Citizen.

Foley's Kidney Remed will cure any case of Kidney or Bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Upchurch Drug Co.

This is the trade-mark which is found on every bottle of the genuine

Scott's Emulsion

the standard Cod Liver Oil preparation of the world. Nothing equals it to build up the weak and wasted bodies of young and old.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION.

Something of vast proportions will be the meeting in Montgomery March 14 15, and 16 of the Alabama Good Roads Association According to advices which are being daily received by Secretary E H. Hyman, of the Montgomery Commercial Club, the sessions are expected to be of more than State-wide effect. In keeping with the national movement for better roads, the Montgomery meeting is calculated to give an impetus to the general scheme that will make the movement felt over the entire United States.

Hyman considers that he is more than fortunate in being able to secure the attendance of J. E. Pennybacker, of the United States bureau of agriculture. Mr. Pennybacker will be here on the 14, 15 and 16th of March, and will bring with him several other government officials who are most vitally interested in good roads. Mr. Pennybacker will bring his full set of moving pictures and films displaying "Road Building in all its phases." Hundreds of large pictures on display.

Senator J. H. Bankhead has signified his intention of being on hand on one of the days to lend his efforts in the direction of making the Montgomery meeting a success, while the Senator, at the same time has given notice that he expects to bring several congressional representatives with him. Judging from these acceptances, accordingly, the meeting is expected to be fully high class, a fact which will make the meeting forceful and earnest. The further fact that the meeting will be held in Montgomery county assures confidence in the undertaking.

The following have been appointed delegates to the Good Roads Association to be held at Montgomery, Ala. on the 14, 15, and 16, of March, 1910.

Jemison, W. H. Conway, S. E Waudrup, W. H. Killingsworth.

Riderville, T. G. Milling, J. H. Ramsey,

Clanton, W. T. Moban, Jack Gentry, John H. Dennis, J. N. Dennis, W. C. Edler, B. F. Higgins, Jr. Walter Popwell, M. F. Lett, W. H. Gillespie, Moses Robinson, J. M. Mims.

Verbena, F. A. Gulledge.

Maplesville, T. U. Crumpton, W. Y. Nix.

Thorsby, G. C. Michelson, John L. Winslow. L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

April 15th-17th, 1910, the Alabama Christian Endeavor Union will hold its twentieth annual convention in the First Presbyterian church at Anniston, Ala, and will be entertained by the Endeavorers of Anniston and Oxford.

Recently two new societies have been organized in Anniston and a city C. E Union has begun its existance. The workers of these two cities are taking hold of the preparation of these coming meetings with enthusiasm and a great convention is assured.

Entertainment will be furnished free to all the delegates who attend this gathering.

Speakers of prominence are being secured.

An excellent chorus has been organized and is now working up the musical features of the convention.

Mr. Karl Lehmann of Boston, Mass., Interstate Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor is now touring the state, holding rallies and conferences and organizing new societies in the various towns visited. He will conclude his work at the convention in Anniston and leave immediately for Tennessee where he is to conduct a similar campaign.

Ever Christian Endeavor society should plan to send delegates to this convention.

When Children Smoked.

Jorevin de Rochefort, who published in Paris in 1671 an account of his travels in England, tells the following:

"While we were walking about the town (Worcester) he asked me if it was the custom in France as in England that when the children went to school they carried in their satchel with their books a pipe of tobacco, which their mothers took care to fill early in the morning, it serving them instead of breakfast, and that at the accustomed hour every one laid aside his book to light his pipe, the master smoking with them and teaching them how to hold their pipes and draw in the tobacco."

In England at the time of the great plague it was reported that no one living in a tobaconist's house fell sick of the disease. This caused a great demand for tobacco. Hearne says in his diary, "I remember that I heard formerly Tom Rogers, who was yeoman beadle, say that when he was a schoolboy at Eton that year when the plague raged all the boys of that school were obliged to smoke every morning and that he was never whipped so much in his life as he was one morning for not smoking."

Pleasdale

Our school is progressing nicely under the careful management of Prof. R. A. Smith.

On Friday, Feb. 25, we had the pleasure of enjoying the greatest feast of good things, consisting of readings, recitations, poems, essays and compositions, that we have listened to in a long time.

At 1:30 p m. we assembled at the school house, and for about two hours we were enjoyably entertained There were, in all, 39 pieces delivered.

First was the welcome address, by Miss Glennie Thompson, followed by a composition by Miss Mattie Miller on "The evils of snuff-dipping."

We would give the entire program, but it would be asking too much space, so will give only a few.

Compositions on the subject of "Temperance and intemperance" were read by the Misses Leila Driver, Alice Wyatt, Susie Wilson, Lillie Miller, Annie Mae Driver and Glennie Thompson.

A dialogue of questions on "Temperance with Bible answers" was given by the Messrs. Jean Wyatt and Lake Thompson.

The poems by the Misses Carrie Brand and Lizzie Driver were excellent.

A selection was rendered by Miss Belle Brand, which was highly enjoyed by all present. And last, but not least, was a recitation by Mr. Tam Miller, which from beginning to end filled the house with laughter.

All the small pupils delivered their recitations nicely, which speaks well for Prof. Smith in the training of his pupils. He is a good teacher and all his pupils have learned to love him. He deserves much for the way and manner in which he and his pupils so royally entertained us during our visit.

A talk was made by Prof. Mack Wyatt, which was full of good thoughts for every one.

A most inspiring talk was made by Prof. Smith, in which he expressed his and the pupils thanks for our presence, assured us of their appreciation of our visit.

We were then dismissed and all went home with hearts gladdened for having visited the school, for altogether it was a day long to be remembered. A VISITOR.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all druggists.

PROGRAM

District No. 3 Convention, at Collins Chapel, second Sunday in March, 1910.

9:30 a.m Song and devotional services. The Sunday conditions of this district, by president.

10:10. The possibilities of the young men's organized class, by J. A. Hunter.

10:40. The primary problem by Mrs. S. E. Norton.

11:30. Call roll of churches and get report of Sunday schools.

1:30 p m. The teacher training class, by Rev. C. W. Snyder

2. How can the Sunday school attendance be increased? by Judge L. H. Reynolds. The moral effect of the Sunday school on the young people, by A. Horn.

3. Relation of the Church and Sunday school, by Rev. W. P. Lowery.

We want all Sunday school workers to come and take part in the discussion. All believers in Sunday school are invited and it is especially requested for all superintendents to be present, and don't forget to elect delegates and see that they come.

J. BICE, President.
Miss ROBERTA COLLINS, Sec.

And It Did.

"Roll on, thou mighty ocean!"
The poet wrote his song.
Ah, well, the bard has had his way.
For ever since that fateful day
The ocean has, in ceaseless play,
Been rolling right along!
—Chicago Tribune.

Poor Old Ocean.

"What do you suppose, Algernon," the young thing asked, "is the reason the ocean is salty?"

"I am sure I don't know," drawled Algy, "unless it is because there are so many codfish in it."—Success Mag.

Stubborn As Mules

are liver and bowels sometimes; seem to balk without cause. Then there's trouble—Loss of Appetite—Indigestion, Nervousness, Despondency Headache. But such troubles flee before Dr. King's New Life Pills, the world's best Stomach and Liver remedy. So easy. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

There is more to a Fertilizer than Analyses

The mere mixing of materials to obtain analysis requires no special knowledge. The value of a fertilizer lies in the source from which the plant food is obtained.

Each ingredient in Royster goods is selected with a view of supplying the plant from sprouting until harvest. The plant is not overfed at one time and starved at another. Twenty-five years experience goes with every bag.

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

Sold by reliable dealers throughout the South.

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO.

CLANTON, ALA.

For Fine Millinery and Notions

CALL ON

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Mrs. Clara Mullins, their manager, has just returned from the Northern markets with the best and most up-to date line of Millinery ever brought to Clanton, and solicits your trade. When in town make our store your headquarters. Respectfully,

CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

FREE INSURANCE!

A policy with our Company insures you against high prices. No high salaried officials to pay, no national campaign funds to contribute to, no object in view save the protection of the widow and orphans at the lowest possible cost compatible with absolute safety. The officers selected are among the most substantial, conservative and conscientious business men. We furnish insurance to both men and women at a price so low that it is within the reach of all. Old established Company. Each policy limited to one thousand dollars.

COST.

Ages 16 to 30	$4.20
Ages 30 to 46	$5.00
Ages 40 to 50	$6.00
Ages 50 to 55	$7.00
Ages 55 to 60	$8.00

Agents wanted in every County in Alabama, Big Commissions.
Furnish reference and write for particulars.

American Mutual Benefit Life Association of Alabama
HOME OFFICE
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

TOWN ITEMS.

...Circuit Court meets second Monday...January, first Monday in April, May ...in June, second Monday in July ...Monday in August and first Monday ...October.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...to day.....14 @ 14½
...same date last year 8½ @ 10c
...Unmerchanted to date
...House receipts
...5 p.m. Wednesday....5936

Arkie Roper of Montgomery ...Sunday in Clanton with ...

W. R. Jackson of Jemison ...town a day or two this ...

...and Mrs. J. O Johnson of ...ingham are visiting the for...mother, Mrs. Belle George

...J. O. Middleton attended ...eption given by the senior ...of the Central Female College ...riday night at Tuscaloosa.

...J. C. Merchant, who has a ...chool at Cane Creek, was in ...last Saturday.

M. H. Henderson of Ver...as in town Monday.

W. M. Walker and Mr. ...of Easley were visitors here ...

W. F. Robuck of Billingsley ...pleasant caller Monday.

B. J. Sessions of Route 5 ...e of our welcome visitors ...y.

John Edwards of Route 3 ...a pleasant call Friday.

D. H. Mullins of Jemison ...own Friday.

...L. Driver of Verbena was ...last Thursday.

Mabel Hall, of Louisville, ...rived last Sunday, and will ...the Clanton Millinery Co, ...on as head trimmer.

...to the opening of the ...Millinery Co., which will ...e on Thursday and Friday, ...7 and 18.

Dovie Roper has accepted a ...with Higgins, the Jeweler ...cian, as book-keeper and ...clerk.

...oals follows a cold but ...llows the use of Foley's ...and Tar which stops the ...oals the lungs and expels ...rom the system. Upchurch ...

...use is showing the prettiest ...of Millinery, collars, jabots ...ornaments ever shown in ...call and see her, she will ...d to show you her line. ...very reasonable.

...ura Beasley of Jemison ...wn Tuesday.

...N. Langston of Jemison ...tor here Tuesday.

...en Franklin and Miss ...gletree were visitors here ...

...rtha Pyron has returned ...it of several days to her ...Horace Fulton in Mont ...

...C. Matthews and Mrs. ...hurch spent Thursday in ...m.

...Nell Mullins and Minnie ...isited the capital city ...

...race Fulton of Montgom...ding a few days with ...Mr. and Mrs. Pyron.

...oway of Sylacauga was ...re Wednesday.

...froe Mullins is in Mont...here her baby is under ...

...Higgins and son, Bert, ...day in Montgomery.

...Robinson and family ...ay with his parents, Mr. ...ses Robinson.

...Turban Crowns call on ...llinery Co.

...licenses have been issued ...the Probate Judge to ...g persons.

...Watson and Miss Lela ...erry.

...John, Williams and ...bard; Ed Harvell and ...

LISTEN!

...is here for cleaning ...and beautifying our ...ttle Matting or an Art ...few Rugs is economy ...ng of looks comfort. ...es not only wear out ...many colds and some...nia is contracted by ...a house with damp ...

...d special prices on ...

...'S CASH STORE

more tilizer alyses

ixing of n analy-special e value s in the hich the tained.
ient in selected upplying prouting
The plant at one d at an-ty-five goes with s throughout uano Co.

/A.

S & CO.

ALA.

and Notions

ILLINERY CO.

has just returned from the up-to date line of Millinery r trade. When in town make fully,

NTON MILLINERY CO.

RANCE!

you against high prices. No campaign funds to contribute th, widow and orphans at absolute safety. The officers conservative and conscientious both men and women at a f all. Old established Com nd dollars.

- $4.00
- $5.00
- $6.00
- $7.00
- $8.00

abama, Big Commissions.
e for particulars.

Association of Alabama ICE
RY, ALA.

TOWN ITEMS.

...oners' court meets second Mon-
...ebruary, first Monday in April, third
... in June, second Monday in July
... Monday in August and first Monday
...tember.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...to day.....14 @ 14½c
...same date last year 9½ @ 10c
...Deliveries to date
...Warehouse receipts
...at 5 p.m. Wednesday....5936

...Arkie Roper of Montgomery
...Sunday in Clanton with
...ds.

...W R. Jackson of Jemison
...in town a day or two this
...k.

...and Mrs. J. O. Johnson of ...ingham are visiting the for-...mother, Mrs. Belle George.

...J. O. Middleton attended
...ception given by the senior
...of the Central Female College
...Friday night at Tuscaloosa.

...J. C. Merchant, who has a ...school at Cane Creek, was in ...last Saturday.

...M. H. Henderson of Ver-
...was in town Monday.

...W. M. Walker and Mr.
...of Easley were visitors here
...day.

...W. F. Robuck of Billingsley
...pleasant caller Monday.

...B. J. Sessions of Route 5
...one of our welcome visitors
...day.

...John Edwards of Route 3
...a pleasant call Friday.

...D. H. Mullins of Jemison
...town Friday.

...J. L. Driver of Verbena was ...last Thursday.

...Mabel Hall, of Louisville,
...rrived last Sunday, and will
...h the Clanton Millinery Co.,
...son as head trimmer.

...to the opening of the ...Millinery Co., which will
...ce on Thursday and Friday,
...17 and 18.

...Dovie Roper has accepted a
...with Higgins, the Jeweler
...ician, as book-keeper and
...t clerk.

...onia follows a cold but
...ollows the use of Foley's
...and Tar which stops the ...heals the lungs and expels
...from the system. Upchurch

...Muse is showing the pret-
...of Millinery, collars, jobots
...ornaments ever shown in
...; call and see her, she will
...ed to show you her line.
...e very reasonable.

...ura Beasley of Jemison
...own Tuesday.

...N. Langston of Jemison
...itor here Tuesday.

...Ben Franklin and Miss
...gletree were visitors here

...Martha Pyron has returned
...visit of several days to her
...Horace Fulton in Mont

...C. Matthews and Mrs.
...church spent Thursday in
...am.

...Nell Mullins and Minnie
...visited the capital city

...orace Fulton of Montgom-
...nding a few days with
...s Mr. and Mrs. Pyron.

...loway of Sylacauga was
...ere Wednesday.

...nfroe Mullins is in Mont-
...there her baby is under

...y Higgins and son, Bert,
...day in Montgomery.

...Robinson and family
...day with his parents, Mr.
...Moses Robinson.

...Turbin Crowns call on
...linery Co.

...licenses have been issued
...y the Probate Judge to
...ng persons.

...s Watson and Miss Lela
...Berry.

...John Williams and
...board. Ed Harvell and
...r.

LISTEN!

...s here for cleaning
...and beautifying our ...little Matting or an Art
...a few Rugs is economy
...ing of looks comfort.
...does not only wear out
...t many colds and some-
...monia is contracted by
...a house with damp

...find special prices on
...at

...R'S CASH STORE.

New Goods

We have them in beautiful disolay!

Call in and look around! Anv time!

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

CLANTON

"HELLO PEOPLE"

We can supply the wants of all
Have a look in the store and see
Save money on each purchase
And we guarantee satisfaction
Records of the past prove
That our past and future
Orders will be filled
Right to the dot.
At a live and let live price
FONE 317

W. H. SARTOR

Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

CLANTON, ALA.

B. E. JONES — CRIT JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF

Drv Goods. Shoes, Hats, Notions

FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully

B. E. JONES & BRO.

CLANTON, ALA.

Announcement Extraordinary!

GREAT CASH REALIZATION SALE!!!

Merchandise Doomed to the Slaughter!!

The citizens of Chilton county are to be treated to the greatest bargain event that ever took place in the history of her mercantile life.

On FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25th, C. W. REYNOLDS will throw upon the market the largest aggregation of General and Staple Merchandise ever collected under one roof in this good county of Chilton.

Genuine bargains in all departments at astonishingly low prices.

On THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, our store will be closed during the entire day to enable our clerks to mark all goods in plain figures; no goods will be sold to any one on this day.

We have calculated the amount we are able to lose on this tremendous sale and have accordingly "cut out" the profits and much of the cost.

EVERY ARTICLE OF MERCHANDISE
is to be slaughtered.

WE ARE DETERMINED NOT TO RESERVE
goods of any kind or character if price inducements will move them.

FOR FULL THIRTY DAYS AND THIRTY NIGHTS
beginning Friday, February 25th, and continuing through Friday, March 25th, this gigantic slaughtering carnival will run.

PROFITS ARE ACTUALLY EMASCULATED
and in many instances, too numerous to mention. COST is eliminated.

WHATEVER YOUR WANTS OR NECESSITIES
we can fill them, and at prices so surprisingly below what you have always paid for the same goods as to make you feel as if we had presented them to you.

SEE OUR BIG CIRCULAR
which gives you an idea of some of the bargains we are to offer you during this memorable sale. With such a large and diversified stock it would be impossible to enumerate even a small part of the bargains, but the CIRCULAR will enable you to form some kind of an estimate of the great PARLIAMENT of cut prices here inaugurated.

SAVE YOUR CASH FOR THIS SALE
do not be deceived into believing that you can get bargains "just as good or just as cheap" elsewhere for it cannot be done. OTHERS MAY strive to imitate, but not one can equal the sales put on under our personal supervision.

REMEMBER THE DATE AND REMEMBER THE PLACE

February 25th to March 25th, 1910

CHARLES W. REYNOLDS

CLANTON, ALA.

Geo. G. Ehrenberg, C. E.

CIVIL, MINING & MUNICIPAL ENGINEER

County Surveyor Chilton County

BRIERFIELD, ALA.

Personal.

Mrs. Gilchrist of Verbena was in town Monday.

Mr. Tom Smith and family of Mountain Creek visited his parents last Thursday.

Rev. F. M. Wood of Selma is spending a few days in Clanton.

A woman's glory may be in her hair, but it is a good plan to keep it tied up when she is cooking.

A Pleasant Physic.

When you want a pleasant physic give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial. They are mild and gentle in their action and always produce a pleasant cathartic effect. Call at all druggists for a free sample.

Mr. John Patton is quoted in the Age-Herald as saying: "More corn and small grain is being planted than ever before. Many of the farmers are also interested in growing more grasses and raising better cattle and stock. Chilton county will come as near as any other county in the state to producing its own feedstuffs."

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye for ever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back of the head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3 50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this:

Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1141 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home

MISS M. MUSE

Has spent one week in Nashville and one in St. Louis selecting her stock of Spring Millinery, which is the prettiest that she has ever brought to this market. Her line of Children's Hats is especially attractive, and she has a beautiful line of jobots, Turban Pins, Hair Goods and Turban Caps for the new arrangement of the hair. She will be assisted again by Mrs. Phillips, and they solicit the patronage of their friends and customers, and will spare no pains in satisfying your taste and your pocket book.

MISS MINNIE MUSE

CLANTON, ALA.

Special Notice

TO THE FARMERS

We have on hand 50 PLOW STOCKS complete, which we are closing out at $1.25, regular price, and to each purson who buys one we will give 1 PAIR OF 50 CENT HAMES FREE.

Only a few left. Come Quick.

A. HEADLEY & CO.

CORNER SECOND AVE., AT DEPOT.

CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—

A. M. JOHNSON'S CASH GROCERY STORE

THORSBY, ALA.

FOR BARGAINS IN

Staple and Fancy Groceries

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER Office

Attention Farmers!

It is now planting time and we wish that you see the John Deere Cotton and Corn Planter and the Cole comlination Planters before you begin planting.

These Planters do excelleut work; distribute the seed regularly and in line; saves labor and time and you cannot well afford to be without them.

The Seay and the Howard Fertilizer Distributors do splendid work and are the most successful Distributors on the market and fully guaranteed.

We carry the largest assortment of Tools and Farm Implements you will find anywhere and will be pleased to show them to you at any time.

If it's Hardware We have it! GAMBLE HARDWARE CO. If we have it It's the best!

CLANTON, WETUMPKA, ALEXANDER CITY

Engaged to Three

By Donald Allen

(Copyright, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.)

For two years Mr. Enos Jackson had been driving over a certain route in the state of New Jersey and selling sewing machines. He was a widower, over 50 years old, and he had a heart in his bosom. He sold the best machine at the cheapest price; he gave credit; he was pleasant to the wives and sympathetic to the widows. He had a paternal air, and he had venerable whiskers. Everybody liked "Pap Jackson," as he came to be called, and "Pap" liked everybody in turn.

There were three widows on the agent's route, and just how he came to fall in love with the Widow Turner and propose for her hand was a matter not quite clear to him. He thought it over many times, but the clew always eluded him. However, the fact remained that he was in love, and had proposed and been accepted. Things had gone that far and then stuck. He wanted to marry and meant to marry, but there was no particular hurry about it. Money was rather tight, and it would be wiser to wait until dollar bills could be picked up in the road.

The Widow Turner was a very nice widow. She had a good farm and a comfortable house, and if she was in any hurry to clinch the bargain she was a woman and couldn't say so. That's where her sex is helpless, except now and then one. Enos got around once in ten days, and he threw out hints about next month, and six months and next year, and so things went on.

The Widow Turner lived at the southern end of the route. It one day struck "Pap" that he ought to get engaged to a widow at the northern end of the route to sort of balance things. He therefore asked the Widow Shevlin if she would marry him, and she said she would. In her case, also, there was no great hurry about it. She, too, had a farm and was getting along all right. Once in awhile, as the wind toyed with his venerable whiskers while the old horse jogged along, Enos fell to wondering how he was going to marry both widows without getting himself into the toils of the law, but he didn't let it worry him. His business was to sell sewing machines on the installment plan. One day, when his whiskers had blown off sideways over a front wheel, he suddenly checked the horse and exclaimed:

"By John, but why not! Of course I will!"

It had just occurred to him that as he was engaged to a widow at either end of the route he ought to be engaged to one in the middle of it to preserve the geometrical relation of things. He was then within half a mile of the Widow Smithson's house, and he hastened the gait of his horse.

"Nothing to-day, Pap," said the widow as she opened the door to his knock.

"Oh, but I think there is, widder—I think there is," he replied, as he bustled in. "Widder, I've been liking you a long time."

"I hadn't suspected it."

"But it's the truth, and now I'm going to ask you to marry me. It's rather sudden, but you ain't going to faint away over it."

"Yes, it's rather sudden, but if you are in earnest—"

"Never more so in my life. If you don't say yes I'll go and hang myself."

The widow bit her thumb and blushed, and said she guessed she would, and that settled it. Enos did not press her to name the day. He did not say whether it was to be next month or 40 years hence. He simply kissed her and said "all right," and went out and pursued his way, and she did not see him again for a fortnight.

It is to be supposed that a man engaged to three widows at once would have had some solemn moments, but such was not the case with Enos Jackson. He went right on being happy and trusting to the luck of a sewing machine agent. For six months he kept those widows guessing. Three widows within five miles of each other, and yet none of them heard he was engaged to the other!

Nemesis may be slow, but she is sure. So are some widows. It was the center widow, Mrs. Smithson, who first got a hint of what was going on. She lay low for Pap. On his next call she spiked him right to the floor. This was in the forenoon, and she informed him that he must appear with a minister by five in the afternoon or the engagement would be off and a breach-of-promise suit be on. Enos was rather glad to hear her say so. It seemed to settle things. He promised to be back on time, and when the hour arrived the widow was dressed for the occasion. No Pap and no preacher. She waited one hour and then removed her wedding dress and loaded an old shotgun used to menace hen-hawks. Next day she would go on a quiet hunt for the man with the whiskers.

The widow was saved the trouble. Soon after daylight Enos showed up. He had been to a village seven miles away to get hair and whiskers colored a jet black. The change was tremendous. It was like painting a straw-stack with lampblack. The venerable whiskers glinted green, blue and black in the morning sun.

"Sit down," commanded the widow, after looking him over.

He sat, and she went to the wash-house, filled a tub of water, handed down a gallon of soft soap, and returning to Enos, she took him by the ear and led him out and said:

"Soap—scrub—rinse—scour!"

It was ten o'clock in the forenoon before the last of the dye had disappeared. When Enos announced the glad news, he was taken by the ear and led to the smokehouse and pushed in and the door locked on him.

"What are you going to do?" he called through the door.

"Keep you safe until I get back!" was the reply.

Then the widow drove three miles and got a preacher and picked up two witnesses on her way back, and Pap was brought from the smokehouse and stood up to become a married man. To the surprise of the widow he didn't flunk. On the contrary, he appeared in the best of spirits and announced that it was a load off his mind. An hour after the preacher had gone and the happy couple had the house to themselves a whirl of dust came up the road and a buggy stopped at the gate. Then the door was opened to the Widow Turner. Her jaw was set. The news of the contemplated marriage had reached her. She stood before the parental Pap with venerable whiskers, her arms akimbo, and she was about to open on him when the bride came forward to say:

"No use—you are too late. You may take the spring calf out in the yard, if you want damages, but you'll get no more. You must be a queer sort of widow to lo. a man slip through your hands in this way."

The widow was yet in sight down the road when another dust cloud came from the opposite direction, and another widow appeared. It was the Widow Shevlin. She had begun to say things when the bride interrupted with:

"He's mine, and talk won't help things. You had more chances than I did, and if you didn't take advantage of them it's not my fault. I suppose you want damages, and you can pick out six of my Leghorn hens to take back with you."

And when the second widow and the squeaking hens had disappeared up the road old Pap rubbed his hands together and smiled on his bride and said:

"You are really a wonderful woman—wonderful. It's so easy that I wish I'd been engaged to two more!"

SAN FRANCISCO'S BIG BEAR

Monarch of the Woods Is Still Unconquered, Though Long a Captive.

Previous to being placed in his present home, Monarch, the biggest captive bear in the world, resided in a cage in Woodward Gardens, San Francisco, where he remained three or four years. He was fretful for months, after being robbed of his freedom, and dangerous to approach when he realized he could not escape.

His aptitude in discovering the weak places in his cage, together with his wonderful agility and tremendous strength, made imperative the construction of a second and much stronger cage than was used to confine bears, lions and large animals.

There he would sulk in a sullen rage, but gradually succumbed in a slight degree to the advances of his keeper and tolerated the presence of the man who brought him food. The enterprising newspaper publisher who purchased Monarch from Kelly presented the bear to Golden Gate park, where of late years he has greatly increased in bulk.

Monarch is the perfection of ursine grace notwithstanding his huge size, and is the presumably proud father of twin cubs about four years old, who, it is believed, may grow in time as large as he. The mother is a large silver tip grizzly. Though a captive, Monarch still remains unconquered.—Wide World Magazine.

Looking Far Ahead.

"Of course you will learn something about that man's financial circumstances before you consent to marry him?" said the solicitous friend.

"Oh, yes," replied the New York woman. "I shall go further than that and ascertain just what his ideas are about a reasonable alimony allowance."

A Wholesale Worrier.

"I'm worrying about that comet."

"Better worry about your rent."

"Never mind the rent. When I borrow trouble, I borrow a good-sized batch."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HIS TRAGIC DREAM.

A Grim Ghost Story That Comes From the Netherlands.

The following remarkable ghost story is told of two brothers, members of a distinguished family in Friesland, a province of the Netherlands: The young men were officers in the same regiment, and their only fault—a certain rash valor, so different from the quiet prudence so characteristic of their nation—made their comrades almost idolize them.

These young officers were exceedingly anxious to see a ghost and took a great deal of pains to plunge into all sorts of gloomy places in the hope of finding them tenanted by beings from the other world. At last they seemed to find the orthodox old castle with its haunted room. Everybody bore witness to the horrible sights and sounds nightly to be seen and heard therein, and these young gentlemen determined to pass the night there.

It was Christmas eve, and they provided themselves with a good supper and a bottle of wine each, a fire, lights and loaded pistols. The hours wore on. No ghost was seen; no ghostly sounds were heard. The younger brother, wrapped closely in his warm cloak, laid his head on the table and deliberately resigned himself to a comfortable sleep. The elder brother, though exceedingly weary, determined to remain awake and await the issue of events.

After awhile a noise roused him from a reverie into which he had fallen. He raised his eyes and beheld the wall opening in front of his seat. Through the opening glided a tall figure in white, who signed to him to follow.

The rose and followed the figure through long, damp, dark passages till they reached a large, brilliantly lighted room where a ball was going on. Above the strains of music and the din of voices pierced a strange, sharp, clicking sound, like the notes of castanets.

Bewildered and dazzled by this sudden transition from darkness and silence to this gay festive scene, it was some moments before he could collect his senses, but he was shocked by perceiving that these gayly dressed ladies and their richly uniformed cavaliers were skeletons, and the curious sound that impressed him so strangely was the clicking of fleshless jaws!

The figure at his side ordered him to take a partner from this hideous throng, which he refused to do. Irritated at this refusal, the figure raised his arm to strike, but the officer instantly leveled at him the pistol he had continued to grasp and discharged it full in his face.

With the shock and report he started to his feet. The white figure, the ballroom, the fearful, ghastly dancers, all had vanished, and he was in the room where he had supped, but his brother lay dying at his side.

He had shot him in his dream and awakened only to receive his last utterance. From that awful Christmas night he was an altered man. All the gayety had gone out of his life, all the sunshine had faded from his days, and after a few years of unavailing anguish of remorse he found himself unable to bear the burden of his regrets and put an end to his life.

Suiting the Action to the Word.

How very tiresome is the man
Who always is explaining, "Can You beat it?"
I hate that phrase. It makes me swear,
I duck and dodge, but everywhere
I meet it.

"Beat it, beat it if you can!"
It's awful, but I have a plan
To meet it.
The moment some one asks me that
For answer I put on my hat
And beat it.
—Kansas City Times.

Would Have Cost Him His Life.

Oscar Bowman, Lebanon, Ky., writes: I have used Foley's Kidney Remedy and take great pleasure in stating it cured me permanently of kidney disease which certainly would have cost me my life." Upchurch Drug co

Cures Dyspepsia; Trial Is Free

It is a popular mistake that only wealthy people who eat rich and highly-spiced foods suffer from dyspepsia, or, as it is also known, indigestion. The laborer in the street, the worker in the field also finds himself a victim of this disorder. Among the very greatest sufferers from it are women.

Dyspepsia is indicated by a constant feeling of lasiness, by loss of appetite and troubled sleep, by sour stomach and distress after eating, by bad complexion and lusterless eyes.

There is no surer and speedier cure for this trouble than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which dyspeptics have been using successfully for twenty years. This great herb laxative compound cured Capt. Clark, of Buffalo, Ia., of dyspepsia and sour stomach that he had had for forty years, or until the lucky day that he heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It cured Joel Adams, of Montgomery, Ala., after suffering continuously for sixteen months. These are only a few of the many. But it is not expensive to be cured with this grand remedy, as it can be bought at any drug store in a 50-cent or $1 bottle.

Your very neighbors are probably lifelong users of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, but if you want to know without expense what it will do for you personally, send your name to Dr. Caldwell and he will be glad to send you a free trial bottle. He is actually anxious to have you make a test of his remedy.

Thousands of families everywhere keep it in the house against such an emergency as constipation, sour stomach, indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia, heartburn, torpid liver etc., which may come on a member of the family any day. It is pleasant to the taste, acts gently and does not gripe. It is the great children's laxative tonic.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug co

The Fishing Otter.

The otter used by Scottish poachers is one of the most deadly fishing instruments known. In some waters it is far more effective than a net. It may be described as a water kite, which serves to take out over the water a line bearing fifty or more flies. The otter itself is a floating piece of board leaded along one side to keep it upright. The poacher walks along the side of the loch or river, letting out the fly decorated line as he goes, the otter board gradually working out toward the center. An enormous area of water is fished at one time and numbers of fish are killed.

A Drop of Water.

A gallon of distilled water weighs 8.339 pounds, and, there being four quarts to the gallon, and two pints to the quart, and sixteen fluid ounces to the pint, and two tablespoonfuls to the fluid ounce, and four teaspoonfuls to the tablespoon, and forty-five drops to the teaspoon, a drop of water weighs 0.00018057 pound, slightly more.

Another Crediter.

Blobbs—Harduppe says he owes everything to his wife. Slobbs—Harduppe is a double distilled prevaricator. He owes $10 to me.—Philadelphia Record.

Sheer the sheep but don't [illegible] —Spanish Proverb.

Can Walk Now.

Many people in the Southern States have been cured of Kidney and Bladder diseases after physicians have failed, by using U RA CURA. Mr. J Gallual, of Cleveland, Ala. writes: "I can recommend your U RA-CURA to neighbors. It has done me wonderful good. I am on my eighth bottle and can walk now. I was past walking only when they helped me—suffered from Kidney and Bladder troubles. I am grateful to U RA CURA. Druggists sell this incomparable remedy at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Try it and be convinced.

Whiskey for the Sick Room

should be selected with the greatest care, as much depends upon its rich, nutritious properties and absolute purity. You can always rely upon

Sunny Brook
THE PURE FOOD
Whiskey

answering every requirement. It is distilled, aged and bottled with special care and for the express purpose of being used as a healthful stimulant or tonic in the home. SUNNY BROOK Bottled in Bond is U. S. Government standard (100%) proof and every bottle bears the "Green Government Stamp" showing the correct age and quantity.

Insist on getting the genuine, accept no substitute.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jessamine Co., Ky.

4 FULL QUARTS $5
BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	Chattanooga, Tenn.
M. Markstein	123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	636 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St.
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd	541 Magazine St.
Estate of Charles Feahney	611 Pampart Pl.
Groll Trading Co.	Pensacola,
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar	Pensacola, Fla.
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 100,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper of the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. [illegible] have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about Southern Ruralist is the Prize Essays, which are published on the first of each month. The Ruralist pays $20.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Truck Farming, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; F. J. Merriam, Garden Department; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station, Horticultural Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock Department; Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock Department; Professor C. A. Cary, Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural College, Veterinary Department; Judge F. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Mrs. F. J. Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one. By special arrangement with the Southern Ruralist we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00

THINK OF
Mexican Mustang Liniment
AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU.

Relief from pain that might otherwise cause you hours of agony.

Tired out muscles eased up and made ready for another day's work.

Lameness in the back and shoulders promptly cured and stiff joints limbered up.

Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Mashes rendered painless and quickly healed.

Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica robbed of their anguish and banished forever.

Ulcers, Old Sores and Open Wounds healed promptly and permanently.

The first application of Mexican Mustang Liniment subdues the pain but it continues its work until every quivering nerve is soothed and quieted.

The great penetrating power of this famous remedy enables it to do this quickly and positively.

In all cases of Sprains, Bruises or Lameness, Mexican Mustang Liniment should be rubbed in persistently.

The antiseptic qualities of this old reliable household remedy make it safe and sure.

Prices 25c., 50c., $1.00 per bottle. For sale by all Druggists. LYON MFG. CO. 41 to 45 So. 5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

MAKE YOUR OWN CALABASH.

[illegible] Farmer Can Grow the Gourd and Transform It Into a Pipe.

Do you want a calabash pipe? If so you needn't pay a dealer from $1 to $5 for one. Grow it and make it yourself. After you have grown the gourd you can make the pipe in about an hour at a cost of half a dollar. So says the bureau of plant industry at Washington. And your homemade calabash, if you take proper pains in the making, will be just as artistic and satisfactory as the expensive imported one.

The calabash is made from a South African gourd. Until recently this gourd was not grown elsewhere, but [illegible] American consul at Cape Town,

CALABASH PIPE GOURDS.

[illegible] Washington, sent some of the calabash seeds to the department of agriculture in 1903. Since then the government has discovered by experimentation that the calabash will grow almost anywhere in the United States. The gourd seed is planted about like [illegible] seeds and at the same period. It grows luxuriantly, each vine producing many gourds. Not all of them are suitable for pipe material. Many are blighted by insect bites or other [illegible]. Most of the gourds crook their own necks in growing. If the grower wants a pipe neck with artistic kinks he can get what he wants by bending the pliable neck in the way it is desired for it to grow and by waiting until the gourd matures.

Cut off the big end of the gourd at a point indicated for your pipe bowl's top. Clean out the pith. Cut the neck end and make a little hole with your knife blade. Get a curved pipe mouthpiece with a screw thread. [illegible] from any old pipe will do, but it should be carefully boiled beforehand to cleanse it from nicotine deposits. Screw the thread into the opening in the neck of your gourd. If you want an inner pipe bowl that can be taken out for cleaning, you can buy a clay one, such as is used in meerschaums, at a tobacconist's store. A little plaster of paris poured into the gourd bowl and the inner bowl will hold pressed down flush with the top. The cut off gourd will make the inner bowl fit snugly. Don't leave it in the plaster of paris more than three minutes when fitting, for if you do it will set hard and be permanently useless. Take it out after two or three minutes, when the plaster is partly [illegible].

After the plaster dries thoroughly [illegible] the inner bowl back, get a pipeful of good tobacco, light a match, place

CALABASH PIPES.

[illegible] in your mouth, puff away and dream of auld lang syne or [illegible] in the air. You are now a cultivator, qualified and passed by the United States government.

Uncle Sam says the farmers must imagine that they can make a big [illegible] by growing calabashes and that the gourds for pipe material [illegible] are imported now at from 25 [illegible] to $2 a dozen. It is the necessary hand work in making the pipes [illegible] causes them to be expensive [illegible] you have to buy them. No two [illegible] are of the same shape or size. Consequently all the cutting and fitting must be done by hand. It is [illegible] while for a smoker to have a pipe which he has made himself.

the Sick Room greatest care, as much depends properties and absolute purity.

yBrook
URE FOOD
skey
t. It is distilled, aged and bot-he express purpose of being used as a e home. SUNNY BROOK Bottled in ord (100%) proof and every bottle bears
" showing the correct age and quantity.
genuine, accept no substitute.
LLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

QUARTS—$5
ESS PREPAID
e following Distributors:

Chattanooga, Te[nn]
123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O. choupitoulas St., New Orleans, La
212 Chartres St.
641 Magazine St.
611 Rampart St.
Pensacola, Fla.
Mobile, Tenn.
Jacksonville, Fla.

SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
SHIPPED C. O. D.

t in Your Home

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper the South today. It covers every partment of the farm and home.
have examined it carefully, and co
sider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
the most valuable premium we offer our readers. It comes twice month—24 times a year. A sam copy will be mailed free to any on request.

The most valuable thing about Southern Ruralist is the Prize S cials, which are published on the of each month. The Ruralist p $20.00 each month for the best cles from its subscribers on spe subjects, such as Fall Plowing, P try, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gard
ing, Growing, Corn, Raisi
Dairying, etc. These articles co from every part of the country. T are written by men who do the w and give actual experience. Th will help you as nothing else will.

ENTS AND STAFF WRIT
ltural Editor; F. J. Merriam, Gar
n, Georgia Experiment Station, loughby, Georgia Experiment S
periment Station, Live Stock C
Science, Alabama Agricultural College,
Marshall, Poultry Department; Mrs. F. J. story or serial in every number.

of a year's subscription to the man who will ALIST.
thern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of the Southern Ruralist we are able to r's subscription to this paper at uthern Ruralist for $1.00

niment
U.

plication of Mexican Mus-nt subdues the pain but it work until every quivering hed and quieted.

penetrating power of this dy enables it to do this positively.

of Sprains, Bruises or Lame-can Mustang Liniment bbed in persistently.

tic qualities of this old reliad remedy make it safe and

So. 5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

MAKE YOUR OWN CALABASH.

Any Farmer Can Grow the Gourd and Transform It Into a Pipe.

Do you want a calabash pipe? If so, you needn't pay a dealer from $5 to $10 for one. Grow it and make it yourself. After you have grown the gourd you can make the pipe in about half an hour at a cost of half a dollar. So says the bureau of plant industry at Washington. And your home-made calabash, if you take proper pains in the making, will be just as artistic and satisfactory as the expensive imported one.

The calabash is made from a South African gourd. Until recently this gourd was not grown elsewhere, but the American consul at Cape Town,

CALABASH PIPE GOURDS.

L. Washington, sent some of the calabash seeds to the department of agriculture in 1906. Since then the government has discovered by experimentation that the calabash will grow almost anywhere in the United States. The gourd seed is planted about like cotton seeds and at the same period. It grows luxuriantly, each vine producing many gourds. Not all of them are suitable for pipe material. Many are blighted by insect bites or other causes. Most of the gourds crook their own necks in growing. If the grower wants a pipe neck with artificial kinks he can get what he wants by bending the pliable neck in the way it is desired for it to grow and then waiting until the gourd matures.

Cut off the big end of the gourd at the point indicated for your pipe bowl's top. Clean out the pith. Cut off the neck end and make a little hole through it with your knife blade. Get a curved wood mouthpiece with a screw thread. One from any old pipe will do, but it should be carefully boiled beforehand to cleanse it from nicotine deposits. Screw the thread into the opening in the neck of your gourd. If you want an inner pipe bowl that can be taken out for cleaning, you can buy a clay one, such as is used in meerschaums, at a tobacconist's store. A little plaster of paris poured into the calabash bowl and the inner bowl then pressed down flush with the top of the cut off gourd will make the inner bowl fit snugly. Don't leave it in the plaster of paris more than three minutes when fitting, for if you do it will set hard and be permanently fixed. Take it out after two or three minutes, when the plaster is partly set.

After the plaster dries thoroughly fill the inner bowl back, get a pipeful of good tobacco, light a match, place it in your mouth, puff away and in dreams of auld lang syne or figure in the air. You are now a calabasher, qualified and passed by the United States government.

CALABASH PIPES.

Uncle Sam says the farmers must not imagine that they can make a big name by growing calabashes and selling the gourds for pipe material. Pipes are imported now at from 25 cents to $2 a dozen. It is the necessary hand work in making the pipes that causes them to be expensive when you have to buy them. No two pipes are of the same shape or size. Frequently all the cutting and fitting must be done by hand. It is worth while for a smoker to have a pipe which he has made himself.

GRASS LAND "MINING."

Hay Farming Gradually Extracts Fertility From the Soil.

Hay farming is sometimes called mining the land because it is supposed to gradually remove and exhaust the fertility of the farm in the same way that mining removes the ore supplies. Yet production of hay for market purposes seems to be more and more popular of late years, owing partly to the high prices of hay and to the better understanding of the use of agricultural chemicals for hay production. Hay farming with chemicals as commonly practiced no doubt removes more fertility than it restores, but the process is very slow and no doubt highly profitable under right conditions.

The owner of fertile, moist grass land might well say with the mine owner that he cannot afford to leave too much ore in the ground or too much fertility in the soil, but prefers to sell it and have the value at interest. Fertile, moist land will often continue producing good, profitable crops of market hay for an ordinary working lifetime. In England, where the climate is very favorable to grass, a sod is often kept fifty years without breaking. Not much land in this country will stand cropping so long to one specialty, but natural grass land will stand the process a very long time.

To exhaust the land as little as possible it is necessary not to scrimp in top dressing, but to put back the greater part of the fertility that is taken out by the crop, returning it in the form of manure or chemicals, or both combined. If the land is top dressed enough to keep the crop large, but not extra large, say about two tons per acre the first cutting, while the second cutting is not mowed nor fed off, but allowed to stay and decay on the land, a good deal of fertility and vegetable matter will be returned to the soil, and this course may be kept up a long time, especially on soil which is deep and fertile—as for instance, a piece of swale which has been draintiled three and one-half to four feet below the surface. Such soil is often almost perfect for grass—a genuine hay mine, so to speak—and with right treatment will continue to return a big income for twenty years or more.

The plan of hay farming with chemicals has its attractions, especially for the oldish man who desires to get rid of the care of live stock and to cut down his labor outgo to the lowest possible amount. With good grass land it is considered that the plan of moderate top dressing with chemicals brings a larger income for the labor employed than any other system of management. Frequent plowing will give a larger average crop with an equal amount of fertilizer, but it costs more to produce and is more work to harvest.

Origin of Flower Names.

It is interesting to know how certain flowers got their names. Many were named after individuals. For instance, fuchsias were so called because they were discovered by Leonard Fuchs. Dahlias were named for Andre Dahl, who brought them from Peru. The camellia was so called for a missionary named Kamel, who brought some magnificent specimens of the flower to France from Japan. He called it the Rose of Japan, but his friends changed it to camellia. Magnolias were named in honor of Professor Magnol de Montpellier, who first brought the beautiful tree to France from America and Asia. Because they trembled with the wind is the meaning of anemones. The Latin word to wash is lavare, and lavender received its name because the Romans put the flowers into the water when they washed to perfume their hands.

A Palace of Pumpkins.

The illustration shows an exhibit of pumpkins as it was seen at an Ohio agricultural fair last fall in Hillsboro. The "palace" was so large that refreshments were served inside of it. The pumpkins were arranged in colors and shapes so as to make a very attractive display. At Independence, Mo., a similar "palace" was erected, and on the last day a band of famous colored cooks took possession and turned pumpkins into pies, thousands of which were given away. Doubtless these cooks impressed the value of the pumpkin crop upon the people deeper than any scientific agriculturist could have done.

THE HOUSE OF PUMPKINS.

A Good Fertilizer.

The value of sulphate of ammonia as a fertilizer was demonstrated in some German tests where marsh lands were fertilized with nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia. With both oats and beets the plants receiving sulphate yielded much more than those receiving nitrate. These results indicate that on marsh lands a liberal supply of the sulphate of ammonia may be advantageously substituted for nitrate of soda and confirms the wisdom of the practice in Germany.

THE MIGHTY WORKS

Sunday School Lesson for March 13, 1910

Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 8:23-34. Memory verses, 24-26.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him?"—Matt. 8:27.

TIME.—Autumn of A. D. 28; perhaps two months after the Sermon on the Mount.

PLACE.—The eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee, southeast of Capernaum, where there were towns called Gadara, and Gersa, or Gergesa.

Suggestion and Practical Thought

1. The Storm on the Lake. Christ's Word of Peace.—Vs. 23-27. After a long, weary day of varied labor for bringing men into the kingdom of heaven Jesus, followed by his disciples, entered into a ship. Soon Jesus lay down on a pillow "in the hinder part of the boat" (Mark) and fell into the deep, sweet sleep of natural exhaustion. 24. And, behold, there arose a great tempest in the sea. Mark and Luke call it a furious storm, a hurricane.

25. "And his disciples came to him." This shows they had faith in him, although it was feeble. "Lord, save us: we perish."

He first rebuked the disciples, and then "rebuked the winds," as a master rebukes his servant for disobedience. Mark quotes his own words, "Peace, be still:" "Peace" to the winds; and "the wind ceased" (Mark). "And there was a great calm."

27. The men marveled. Meaning the disciples, and other sailors if any were in the boat (see Mark 4:36). "What manner of man is this?" The inconceivable wonder of arresting a hurricane was a new revelation of Jesus' power even to his disciples.

II. The Restoration of the Demoniac.—Vs. 28-34. Jesus is able to destroy the most disastrous powers that are ruining the bodies and souls of men. He gives the victory over the principalities and powers, rulers of the darkness of the world, and spiritual wickedness in high places (Eph. 6:11, 12). "When he was come to the other side" in safe sailing after the storm was over, doubtless in the early morning. "There met him two," one of which was the more prominent and remarkable, and hence is alone mentioned by Mark and Luke.

"Possessed with devils." Better, demons. Mark calls them "unclean spirits." "Coming out of the tombs." Caves cut in hillsides, and a natural resort under the circumstances. There were no asylums for such persons.

"Exceeding fierce." One of the worst, most incurable cases. Luke says they wore no clothes, and Mark that they had such insane strength that fetters and chains were not strong enough to bind them, and that no man could tame them. No wonder that "no man might pass by that way."

29. "And . . . they, running to him from afar, and prostrating themselves before him (Mark), cried out, with a loud voice (Luke), 'What have we (the unclean spirits) to do with thee?'"

30. There was a good way off," at the foot of the mountains (Mark), "an herd of many swine feeding," about 2,000 (Mark).

31. "Suffer us to go away into the herd of swine. How demons could enter into swine we do not know, but it is more of a mystery than the connection of mind with body in us. "There is no scientific objection to demoniacal possession of brutes."

32. He said unto them, Go, i. e., do as you wish; I will not hinder you, my business is to save the man, not property. It was property held at the expense of bad moral influences upon the community, like liquor saloons in our country. Jesus did not order the demons to go into the swine. He simply let things take their natural course, and held that no amount of property, in the scales of heaven, can weigh against the soul of a man or child. A message that is needed today.

Christ tells us that those who believe in him shall do greater works than he, and it is true that Christ in his Christianity is doing on a far larger scale the works of Christ than it was possible for him to do in Palestine. The kindly feeling, the desire to help, the increased skill, which spring up under Christianity as flowers grow in the sunshine, have made Christ's works through his people greater than those he wrought on earth. They are not miracles, but are better than the power of miracles, as the prolonged sunshine is better than a flash of lightning.

Lack Development.

The world is full of half-developed lives; men and women who are competent in spots, as strong in some things as they are weak in others, brilliant as some of their ways and walking in darkness as to others; the man of affairs loses vision, the philosopher loses practical sense, the scientist becomes an animated, soulless scalpel, and all for the want of an aim that would preserve balance and harmony in the life.

The McCormick family of Chicago has increased its gift to the Presbyterian theological seminary which bears its name to the extent of $14,000 a year for ten years to come.

During the past 40 years the churches of Sweden have increased their foreign mission gifts by 1,000 per cent. The king of Sweden has been active in this movement.

The veteran Baptist missionary in China, Rev. Dr. William Ashmore, died recently in Toledo, O. He was half a century in the foreign field.

IF YOUR CHILD NEEDS A TONIC

—if your little boy or girl is delicate and sickly—go to the nearest druggist and get a bottle of

Dr. D. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge

This splendid tonic has been successful for four generations in making sickly children strong and healthy, and effectively expelling worms.

It is likewise a natural tonic for adults, and restores lasting health and strength to "run-down" systems by toning up the stomach and other digestive organs.

Sold by All Druggists—2 sizes, 50c. and $1.00.

Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant is the most reliable remedy for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, and Pleurisy.

The Waiter's Tip.

"Splitting a five dollar bill with a waiter when you reach a hotel and promising him the other piece when you leave if well served is a poor game," said a veteran waiter in one of New York's biggest hotels.

"A man tried it on me once, and it made me sore. I took pains to serve him poorly, showing that I did not care for his money. I was so careless that when he was leaving he refused me the other half. I had him sized up for a cheap skate, so I pointed out to him that the piece he had was no good to him as it was and offered to buy it from him for $2. He thought deeply a minute and declined. Then I offered to sell my half for $3. Somehow or other this appealed to him, and he bought it and seemed happy. I'll bet he hasn't stopped figuring out yet whether he won or lost. One thing he's sure of—he didn't tip the waiter."—New York Sun.

A Gentle Hint.

A certain butcher is renowned among his contemporaries for the quaintness and originality of some of his remarks. On a road leading to a neighboring parish he one day met a gentleman who at the time owed him for some meat. After a salutation the gentleman remarked:

"That's a fine fat dog you have, Alexander."

"Sae weel he may, sir," was the reply, "for he has an easy conscience and is oot o' debt, and that's mair than you or I can say."

The hint was taken, and the butcher got his money next day.—London Answers.

Waiting to Find Out.

Cincinnati Tourist (who for the first time has just entered a restaurant in Paris)—Have you ordered? St. Louis Tourist (who has reached the table some minutes before and who looks up from a French bill of fare)—Yes. Cincinnati Tourist—What did you order? St. Louis Tourist (impatiently)—How do I know?—Chicago News.

The Funny Doctor.

Dr. McCree—My dear Mrs. Goodman, how could you bring out a young child on such a day as this with such a strong east wind blowing? Mrs. Goodman—Ah, doctor, you will always have your little joke. How can a child of this age possibly know what wind it is?—London Answers.

Saves Doctors' Bills.

Mr. Louis M. Kent, of Homersville, Ala., joins in with a mighty throng as follows: "GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR is a great saver of doctor bills. I have tried it and know what I am talking about. I have used it for constipation, headache, colds, etc., and it has never failed to do all I expected. If used intelligently and at the right time, will do all that is claimed for it. I shall keep GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR in the house as long as I can get it. Druggists sell it in sealed tin boxes at 25 cents per box.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala., postoffice, for week ending Mar. 5, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST

P. L. Wright, Charles Turnbull, Rev. T. S. Rinley, J. G. Paton, H. W. McDaniel, W. B. Livecoak, J. C. Brown (2).

LADIES' LIST

Miss Lizzie Mims, Mrs. Mary Jane Smith, Miss L. W. Price, Mrs. Emma Patterson, Miss Rosie Green, Mrs. Minnie Cooper.

These letters will be sent to the dead Letter office, Mar. 19, 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY Postmaster

FIELD-GROWN ROSE PLANTS

Our Field Grown Rose Plants are now ready for delivery and this is the proper time for planting. We have 25,000 of the finest Bush and Climbing Roses ever grown in the South, including seventy varieties.

Bush Roses $2.50 per dozen; $15.00 per 100.
Climbing Roses $3.50 per dozen.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season. Cut flowers, walking bouquets, and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor
City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 200 MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP

Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Cumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.

First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.

W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

WELLS Bored and Drilled

T. B. TEEL

Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells

CLANTON, ALA.

To Gauge His Wife's Temper.

"I heard about a peculiar case of henpecked husband recently," said a young woman the other day.

"What was it?" her friend inquired.

"There is a man who has some difficulty in gauging his wife's temper. At times she is considerate of his welfare, and at other times—well, he rather thinks that married life is a failure.

"He has a peculiar manner of finding out the state of his wife's feeling toward him. In the evening when he returns home from work he never steps into the house without going through a sort of ceremony. First he throws his hat in the house, and then he seats himself on the steps and waits. If five minutes pass without the hat being thrown out again he enters and generally finds his wife very agreeable. However, if the hat is thrown out again the unfortunate man seeks hospitality for the night somewhere else rather than brave the anger of his helpmeet."

Perfectly Cool.

Mr. Figg—Gasser says he kept perfectly cool last night when that burglar got into the house. Mrs. Figg—So his wife told me. She found him trying to hide in the refrigerator.—Boston Transcript.

Food and Fresh Air.

You can live forty days without food, but you cannot live four minutes without air. These things being true, is it wise to stuff ourselves with food and starve ourselves for want of air?

Not Always.

Tommy—Pop, what is the difference between a probability and a possibility? Tommy's Pop—A probability, my son, is something you want to happen.—Philadelphia Record.

A Night Alarm.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the metallic cough of croup. Careful mothers keep Foley's Honey and Tar in the house and give it at the first sign of danger. Foley's Honey and Tar has saved many little lives. No opiates. Upchurch Drug Co.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands.
Office Room 1, Court House.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I. HOPKINS
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
Office Rooms 5 and 6.
CLANTON

Directory of Clanton Baptist Church.
Preaching at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. 1st and 3d Sundays.
Prayer Service at 7:30 p.m. every Thursday.
Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. every Sunday. W. L. Mullins, Supt.
Communion Service 1st Sunday in January, April, July and October.
Ladies Aid society at 3 p.m. on Monday after the 3d Sunday. Mrs. W. T. Chiles, President.
All members are earnestly requested to be regular and prompt in their attendance, the public are cordially invited and strangers will find a hearty welcome. P. H. WOODS, Pastor.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS
WITH Dr. King's New Discovery
FOR COUGHS COLDS
PRICE 50c & $1.00. Trial Bottle Free
AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.
GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash
BIBLES.
Bibles at Cost for Cash
BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us

RAINBOW
TRADE-MARK REGISTERED

THE LATEST AND GREATEST BRANDS

Complete Fertilizer, Phosphates and Potashes

All shipments from Montgomery

CAPACITY UNLIMITED

Private tracks in factory connecting with all railroads. No delays. Prompt-ness assured. The newest broom does the cleanest sweep. COTTON SEED MEAL, BLOOD, FISH NITRATE, ONE OR ALL IN COMBINATION FOR ARKANSAS GRADE.

Plant food from the sprouting of the seed to maturity. Destined to be the most popular brands ever offered. Unqualified merit and twenty-five years' practical experience shows us how to do it. Free Premiums galore. Wagons, Buggies, Saddles and Plows. Ask your dealer.

MARKS & GAYLE
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Dictionary Lore.

"Poison" and "potion" are doublets, the former being an older form of the latter. Both are derived from the Latin "potare," to drink, and "poison" in its original sense signified merely something to drink.

While the word "human" used as meaning "a human being" is now only colloquial or humorous, Lowell in the introduction to the "Biglow Papers" chided Bartlett for including it in his "Dictionary of Americanisms" and remarked that it was Chapman's habitual phrase in his translation of Homer and that it is found also in the old play of "The Hog Hath Lost His Pearl."—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

A Flame Combination.

If a small quantity of chlorate of potash be powdered and mixed with an equal quantity of powdered sugar a candle may be lighted by means of the mixture without matches.

Place a little of it in the depression around the wick of a candle that has been previously used and then touch the mixture with a glass rod the end of which has been dipped in oil of vitriol. It will burst into flame, lighting the candle.

An Evasive Answer.

"We dined at Mrs. Crankleigh's last night."

"I suppose you had a good dinner."

"Well, we found out that Mrs. Crankleigh is an active member of the society for boycotting all the high priced foodstuffs."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Saved A Soldier's Life.

Facing death from shot and shell in the civil war was more agreeable to J. A. Stone, of Kemp, Tex., than facing it from what doctors said was consumption. "I contracted a stubborn cold" he writes, "that developed a cough, that stuck to me in spite of all remedies for years. My weight ran down to 130 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. I now weigh 178 pounds." For Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hemorrhage, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough and lung trouble, its supreme. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

STRANGE COMPANIONS.

The "Happy Family" and a Kitten and a Hawk.

The first public exhibition of a "happy family" in England was given about fifty years ago, when there were shown a monkey, a cat, several rats and three or four pigeons in one cage. The monkey was on excellent terms with the cat so long as puss would allow him to warm himself by cuddling her; otherwise he would show his vexation by slyly giving her tail a nip with his teeth.

The birds perched on the cat's back and pecked at her fur, and the rats were as friendly with their natural enemy as if she were one of their own sort.

A lady walking in the Isle of Wight observed a little kitten curled up on a mossy bank taking a midday nap. As she stopped to stroke it a hawk swooped down and, pouncing upon the kitten, hid it from sight.

The lady, fearing for the life of the kitten, tried to rescue it, but the hawk firmly faced her, stood at bay and refused to move. She hastened to a fisherman's cottage and told the inmates of the impending tragedy.

"It's always so," they said, laughing. "That hawk always comes down if any one goes near the kitten. He has taken to it and stays near at hand to watch whenever it goes to sleep."

The lady, greatly interested, made further inquiry and learned that the kitten's mother had died, after which the nursling was missed for several days. One day the hawk was seen about the cottage picking up scraps of meat and carrying them to the roof of the cottage.

The fisherman climbed up and found the lost kitten nestled in a hole in the thatch and thriving under the care of its strange foster father. It was brought down and restored to the cottage, but the hawk would not resign his charge and was always at hand to rescue the kitten from the caresses of strangers.—Philadelphia North American.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are safe, sure and reliable, and have been praised by thousands of women who have been restored to health through their gentle and and curative properties. Sold by all druggists.

That Necessary Magazine

—for the thinking man—for the professional man—for the busy business man—and his family; in short, it's for You

25 cents per copy

$3.00 a year

The Review of Reviews

first, because it is a necessity—that is the rule in magazine buying of America's intellectual aristocracy. It is indispensable to the busy business man, who must keep abreast of the times, because it gives him the real news of the day in concise, readable form; it is invaluable to the thinking man, who demands only the truth and then draws his own conclusions, because it gives him just plain, straight facts.

¶ It is helpful to the whole family. In it you will find a monthly picture of men and affairs by Dr. Albert Shaw, in his comprehensive editorial, "Progress of the World;" a clever cartoon history of the month; book reviews; the gist of the best which has appeared in the other magazines and newspapers of the world; pithy character sketches; and interesting articles on the all-important topics of the day. Authoritative, non-partisan, timely and very much to the point, "it's a liberal education," is the way subscribers express it.

OUR 1909-10 CATALOGUE

of all American magazines is a money-saver. You can't afford to order for next year without first seeing it. If you appreciate superior agency service, and demand maximum magazine value for the fewest dollars, write for it—today. It's free to YOU.

The Review of Reviews Company, New York

PALMETTO LANDS
Palmetto Homes
Palmetto, Florida.

We are moving crops that are crops, which is the kind of crops PALMETTO LANDS raise.

Come and see us.
Write that you are coming to

FREDERIC P. LADD,
Board of Trade,
PALMETTO, FLORIDA

N. B. You can raise fancy vegetables, at fancy prices, on PALMETTO LANDS.

THE TEXAS MONSTER

Barnett's Home Made 4-Wheeled COTTON CHOPPER

Works Across the Rows the Right Way.

PATENTED APRIL 31, 1908.

I desire to call your attention to this Great Labor Saver. The Chopper that does Execution to Grass and Weeds, in fact, it does the work of eight men. After looking around for a time, I have decided to go right direct to the cotton planter and sell him the right to make this chopper for his own use for One Dollar. This right is good for 17 years from the 21st day of April, 1908. I will say here that I have complied with all the laws of the patent office and I further say that this chopper does all I claim for it or your money back.

J. S. BARNETT

131 East Canton Street, DALLAS, TEXAS

Twenty-five Years of It.

"Why do people have silver weddings, pa?"

"Just to show to the world what their powers of endurance have been."—Judge.

Fate's Differences.

In life some fearful contrasts lurk.
Each has its own position.
Some men are born to go to work
And some to go a-fishing.
—Philadelphia Ledger.

Love—Its Way.

"Do you think love goes where it's sent?"

"Yes, if properly expressed."—Judge.

The Optimist.

He built his airy castle high,
Just kept right on a-piling
Until it tumbled—then the guy
Crawled from under smiling.
—Chicago News.

"Mary Ann Hubbie."

I once knew a woman named Mary Ann Hubbie,
And this woman always was looking for trouble—
She was looking all day from the time she got up
To the candlelight hour when she sat down to sup.
She would look all around her and search high and low,
Just looking for trouble wherever she would go.

And you may be sure that this Mary Ann Hubbie
Had more than her share of what people call trouble.
—Deborah E. Olds in St. Nicholas.

Capt. Bogardus again hits the Bull's Eye.

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says:—"I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well known kidney medicines all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and often times a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers." Upchurch Drug Co.

THE SILVANDO.

Queer Whistling Language of the Canary Island Natives.

In Gomera, one of the smallest of the Canary islands, the silvando, or whistling language, survives. A correspondent writes: "A traveler must land at the little port of San Sebastian and there find a muleteer from the interior. With him he must ride up the steep bridle paths that wind through the mountains. When no longer any living thing is within sight and the wilderness is only broken by the crimson flower of the cactus growing in the clefts of the rock, the muleteer dismounts, sets his forefingers together at a right angle and places them in his mouth. An arrow of piercing sounds shoots across the ravines and up the stony terraces into the fastnesses of the mountains. A moment's pause and there comes a thin, almost uncanny, answering whistle from far away. Conversation begins and, as the sounds rise and fall, are staccatoed or drawn out, so they are faithfully echoed and transmitted by the hills.

"Then comes the ghostly reply, and then question and answer follow without hesitation or misunderstanding. Perhaps the stranger will ask, 'What are you doing there?' Answer: 'There is a traveler with me. Can you bring us a fresh one?' 'Yes, I can. Do you want anything else?' 'You might bring some milk along if you have any,' and so on. That the conversation is correctly interpreted is presently confirmed by the arrival of the mule and the milk, and the distance that separated the parties to the dialogue turns out to be about three miles.

"Long notes and short notes, rising and falling tones, go to make this marvelous means of communication. No record is to be found of its origin or history, and it will be a thousand pities if scientific investigation is not made before the silvando is added to the list of dead languages, as assuredly it will be within the next two or three generations."—Chicago News.

Side Lights on History.

Peter the Great had started in to learn the ship carpenter's trade.

"I would have shipped as a sailor before the mast," he explained, "only I don't like the idea of being called 'old salt Peter.'"

Warning the jackies that "shiver my timbers" would be considered lese majesty and punished as such, he proceeded to chase the shavings along the workbench.—Chicago Tribune.

QUESTIONS.

Editor Banner:—Please allow me another short space in your columns this week to answer some questions regarding the Teacher Training class.

The following questions have been and may be asked me by mail: Please let me answer them briefly.

1. Where shall we have the training class? I answer, in a separate corner, or class room of the church.

2. When shall we have the lesson? Have your lesson in Teachers Training at the regular Sunday school hour, omitting the conventional lesson. Now you may not like to do this, but in course of time it will pay a hundred fold.

3. What shall we study? Just study earnestly the Bible and about the Bible, the school and about the school, the pupil and about the pupil, and your ownself and soul. A guide to these studies is found in the book "Training the Teacher," and others.

4. Who will teach our class? Now you have me. This is what we lack—teachers. What we lack is what we want, and if have them we must train them. Well, just get a person who is willing, and is wide-awake to teach the class, and a person of God. Through this person God will teach the class.

5. How shall we get this class started? Bring the question up in Sunday school, get a number of young people, age anywhere from 10 to 25, to promise to take the work, then select your leader, place of meeting, send here for your books (50 cents each) then go to work and pray for results. Now there are other questions but I must not intrude on the kindness of our Editor. These should be answered at greater length, but would take too much space.

Let all who read this, ask God to help us become more interested in this problem.

Yours devotedly,
JEROME O. WILLIAMS.
East Lake, Ala.

A Boon to Suffering Women.

Thousands of women suffer distress peculiar to their sex on account of irregularities and the failure of the organs to perform their natural functions. The great Southern remedy—VIN O VITAE—comes to the relief of suffering women by toning up their whole system, insuring regularity, a good appetite and good digestion. At the change of life it will prove itself a friend indeed. Young girls will find it valuable in assisting them to reach a healthy, robust and vigorous womanhood. For the various kinds of female irregularities, VIN O VITAE has few equals and no superiors. Druggists sell it at $1.00 per bottle. Manufactured by Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Queer Creatures.

There are microscopic creatures which live in roof gutters and on the bark of trees and are known as water bears and wheel animalculae. If allowed to dry up under the microscope they can be seen to shrivel into shapeless masses, which may be kept for years uninjured in the dried state. On being placed, after this long interval, in water they gradually plump up, resume their proper shape and move about in search of food just as if nothing had happened. Much the same is true for the minute worms which, from the substances in which they live, are known as paste and vinegar eels. Well known is the famous case of the desert snail which, retracted into its shell, was fastened to a tablet in the British museum and showed no sign of life for seven years, when one morning it was found crawling hungrily about the glass case that formed its prison.—Westminster Gazette.

Saluting With the Hat.

Before the invention of wigs the hat was rarely removed except to salute others, especially royal personages. It was worn at table when ladies or persons of rank were present. Except when saluting royalty it was the custom merely to raise the hand to the hat somewhat after the manner of a military salute. When it became the mode to wear a profusion of false hair the hat was less needed as a protection for the head and was carried under the arm.

A Retiary.

A retiary was the name of a Roman gladiator armed in a peculiar way. He was furnished with a trident and net, with no more covering than a short tunic, and with these implements he endeavored to entangle and dispatch his adversary, who was called a secutor (from sequi, to follow) and was armed with a helmet, a shield and a sword. The name of the first is pronounced as if spelled re-shi-a-ry, the accent on the first syllable.

Improving on Euclid.

The Pioneer of Allahabad tells stories of some "kindergarten" classes in the English army. Among the definitions given in an examination is one of a circle peculiarly happy, which gives a freshness to Euclid. It is, "A straight line which starts at a certain point and gets back to the same point as quickly as possible."

Do You Have Headache

TAKE ONE OF THESE LITTLE TABLETS AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

"My first experience with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills was a sample package handed me. They relieved the pain so promptly that I have never been without them since. I have given them to many friends when they had headache and they never failed to relieve them. I have suffered with neuralgia in my head and the first one I took relieved me. They have cured me of neuralgia. I would not be without them."
MISS LILLIE B. COLLINS
R. F. D. No. 1, Salem, Va.

Sold by druggists everywhere, who are authorized to return price of first package if they fail to benefit.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 AND 15 CENTS MORE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50 A YEAR

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in every city and town in the United States, Canada, or by mail direct. More used than any other make. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable for best styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, home adornment, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium outfit and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

This is an exact representation of the carton containing a bottle of St. Joseph's Liquid Liver Regulator, but much larger than this illustration. Is printed in black ink on a yellow ground. Druggists and general merchants sell it at 50 cents a bottle, or you can get it direct from us at the same price. It is a delightful liver medicine—prompt, effective, and exceedingly pleasant to the taste. Try just one bottle to satisfy yourself—and you'll buy more.

GERSTLE MEDICINE CO.
Chattanooga, Tenn.

VOL. XVIII

THE MAN ON THE CORNE

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Spring openings are all the go. Gardens are opening, farmers are making ready, stores are putting on new supplies and, in particular, millinery stores are ready to display their beautiful contents.

The banks of Chilton county are in fine condition as you may note from their statements in this issue. Good substantial banks denote the prosperity of the people.

Mr. J. T. Watts, of the U. S. department of Agriculture, was in town Wednesday morning, in company with W. H. Conway, on their return from the County Alliance at Providence. These gentlemen are doing good work in Chilton which demonstrate its value as they go along.

Our Safety Valves.

The invention of the safety valve for steam engines has saved thousands of lives and millions of dollars in property. It is an invention that stands prominently to the front in this age of mechanical progress. Nature supplied us each with a safety valve which for effectiveness works better than any made by man. If we did not have this safety valve we could not live twenty-four hours. The safety valve is the perspirative, or sweat, gland, and to make sure that we should not run short of the supply she has furnished the body with over two and a half millions of them. If our temperature rose 7 or 8 degrees we should die within a few hours, and yet we could not run, row, indulge in any athletic exercises or even walk safely any distance without increasing our temperature to the danger point if we had no safety valve provided ingeniously by nature.

Paddy's Cat.

An Irishman fresh from the "old sod" secured a job with a lumber crew in the Minnesota woods. While sound asleep in his bunk one night a lynx slipped in at the open window and espied Paddy's brindle whiskers and promptly pounced on its supposed enemy. A terrific contest ensued, during which Paddy's clothing was reduced to ribbons, but ending happily with the brawny son of Erin secured a strangle hold on the beast and heaved it bodily through the window.

He was instantly surrounded by a score of excited and admiring woodsmen. After examining himself carefully Paddy straightened up slowly and remarked with distinct emphasis:

"Bedad, if I knew th' dom mon owned that cat I'd be after ramming me fisht down th' throat av 'im wud thot!"—Judge's Library.

The Tail of a Fish.

A fish's tail is its wings. Owing to the machinery of muscle set along the spine and to its cleaving form a trout or salmon can dart through the water at a tremendous pace, though its rapid flights, unlike the bird's, are not long ones. It is soon tired. The whale is not so friendly to flight as the fish. The stroke of the fish's tail is one of great power, and by means of it and the writhing, snakelike flexion of the body a high speed is reached. The strength behind this speed is shown in the way a fish or sea mammal on leaving the water will raise its tail and slap the ground or boat.

Roundabout Bribery.

At one old time British election a candidate won by means of an umbrella. Sheer absence of mind caused the elector to leave the gamp behind at the house at which he called to cast his vote, and of course when it was returned to the voter a sovereign was only a suitable reward for honesty.

Impatience.

"Impatience," said Uncle Eben, "is generally de feelin' you has when you wants somebody else to hurry up an' make up fuh de time you's been wastin'."—Washington Star.

A SUDDEN CALL

Mr. Charley Wilson, aged about eighteen years, who had the honorable duty of attending his father's funeral two weeks ago, was taken sick a few days since and expired Thursday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock.

He was a youth of promise, and had been down to Montgomery a couple of weeks ago to purchase some mules, and bringing them back to Clanton, one of them threw him, which resulted in some internal injury from which he died. He was buried with his father Wednesday, sympathizing friends following him to his last resting place.

Do You Have Headache

TAKE ONE OF THESE LITTLE TABLETS AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

"My first experience with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills was a sample package handed me. They relieved the pain so promptly that I have never been without them since. I have given them to many friends when they had headache and they never failed to relieve them. I have suffered with neuralgia in my head and the first one I took relieved me. They have cured me of neuralgia. I would not be without them."
MISS LILLIE B. COLLINS
R. F. D. No. 1, Salem, Va.

Sold by druggists everywhere, who are authorized to return price of first package if they fail to benefit.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

McCALL PATTERNS 10 AND 15 CENTS NONE HIGHER

McCALL'S MAGAZINE 50 A YEAR INCLUDING A FREE PATTERN

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity, reliability nearly 40 years. Sold in every city and town in the United States, Canada, or by mail direct. More sold than any other make. Send for free catalog.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million a month. Invaluable for its latest styles, patterns, dressmaking, millinery, plain sewing, fancy needlework, hairdressing, etiquette, good stories, etc. Only 50 cents a year (worth double), including a free pattern. Subscribe today, or send for sample copy.

WONDERFUL INDUCEMENTS
to Agents. Postal brings premium catalog and new cash prize offers. Address
THE McCALL CO., 238 to 248 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

This is an exact representation of the carton containing a bottle of St. Joseph's Liquid Liver Regulator, but is much larger than this illustration, and printed in black ink on a yellow carton. Druggists and general merchants sell it at 50 cents a bottle, or you can get it direct from us at the same price. This is a delightful liver medicine—prompt, effective, and exceedingly pleasant to the taste. Try just one bottle to satisfy yourself—and you'll buy more.

GERSTLE MEDICINE CO.
Chattanooga, Tenn.

Circuit Clerk

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII | CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1910 | No. 24

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Spring openings are all the go. Gardens are opening, farmers are making ready, stores are putting in new supplies and, in particular, millinery stores are ready to display their beautiful contents.

The banks of Chilton county are in fine condition as you may note from their statements in this issue. Good substantial banks denote the prosperity of the people.

Mr. J. T. Watts, of the U. S. department of Agriculture, was in town Wednesday morning, in company with W. H. Conway, on their return from the County Alliance at Providence. These gentlemen are doing good work in Chilton which demonstrate its value as they go along.

Our Safety Valves.

The invention of the safety valve for steam engines has saved thousands of lives and millions of dollars in property. It is an invention that stands prominently to the front in this age of mechanical progress. But nature supplied us each with a safety valve which for effectiveness works better than any made by man. If we did not have this safety valve we could not live twenty-four hours. This safety valve is the perspirative, or sweat, gland, and to make sure that we should not run short of the supply she has furnished the body with some two and a half millions of them. If our temperature rose 7 or 8 degrees we should die within a few hours, and yet we could not run, row, indulge in any athletic exercises or even walk safely any distance without increasing our temperature to the danger point if we had no safety valve provided so ingeniously by nature.

Paddy's Cat.

An Irishman fresh from the "ould sod" secured a job with a lumbering crew in the Minnesota woods. While sound asleep in his bunk one night a lynx slipped in at the open window, espied Paddy's brindle whiskers and promptly pounced on its supposed enemy. A terrific contest ensued, during which Paddy's clothing was reduced to ribbons, but ending happily when the brawny son of Erin secured a half nelson on the beast and heaved it bodily through the window.

He was instantly surrounded by a score of excited and admiring woodsmen. After examining himself critically Paddy straightened up slowly and remarked with distinct emphasis:

"Bedad, if I knew th' dom mon thot owned thot cat I'd be afther rammin' me fisht down th' throat av 'im—I wud thot!"—Judge's Library.

The Tail of a Fish.

A fish's tail is its wings. Owing to the machinery of muscle set along its spine and to its cleaving form a trout or salmon can dart through the water at a tremendous pace, though its rapid flights, unlike the bird's, are not long ones. It is soon tired. The water is not so friendly to flight as the air. The stroke of the fish's tail is one of great power, and by means of it and the writhing, snakelike flexion of the body a high speed is reached. The strength behind this speed is shown in the way a fish or sea mammal out of the water will raise its tail and strike the ground or boat.

Roundabout Bribery.

At one old time British election a candidate won by means of an umbrella. Sheer absence of mind caused him to leave the gamp behind at every house at which he called to canvass, and of course when it was returned by the voter a sovereign was only a suitable reward for honesty.

Impatience.

"Impatience," said Uncle Eben, "is ginerally de feelin' you has when you wants somebody else to hurry an' make up foh de time you's been wastin'."—Washington Star.

A SUDDEN CALL

Mr. Charley Wilson, aged only eighteen years, who had the sad duty of attending his father's funeral two weeks ago, was taken sick a few days since and expired Tuesday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock.

He was a youth of promise, and had been down to Montgomery a couple of weeks ago to purchase some mules, and bringing them back to Clanton, one of them threw him, which resulted in some internal injury from which he died. He was buried with his father Wednesday, sympathizing friends following him to his last resting place.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE REOPLES SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS MARCH 8, 1910.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$69,397 22	Capital Stock Paid in	$15,000 00
Demand Loans	4,640 00	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	14,254 27
Overdrafts	1,376 68	Individual Deposits subject to Check	26,027 15
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	12,700 00	Time Certificates	7,500 00
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	4,057 00	Cashier's Checks	600 77
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	4,371 60
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	5,804 54
Currency	2,400 00
Gold	105 00
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,027 00
Checks and Cash Items	709 35
	13,008 13
Total	$68,681 77	Total	$68,681 77

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Before me came Jno. A. Thomas, Cashier of the Peoples Savings Bank, of Clanton, Ala., who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said bank.
Jno. A. THOMAS, Cashier.
Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 11th day of March, 1910.
J. R. MULLINS, Notary Public.

Attest:
W. T. GALLEN
SAMUEL KAUFMAN } Directors.
M. L. GRELL

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE CLANTON BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS MARCH 8, 1910.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$ 91,333 65	Capital Stock Paid in	$ 15,000 00
Demand Loans	17,333 33	Surplus Fund	10,000 00
Overdrafts	5,333 67	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	11,250 94
Banking House, Furniture and Fixtures	10,000 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$121,333 33
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank	3,666 33	Time Certificates	13,666 33
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$20,000 10	Cashier's Checks	750 00
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	13,333 71
Currency	6,666 00
Gold	666 00
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,467 30
Checks and Cash Items	3 0 70
	35,666 33
Total	$170,666 66	Total	$170,666 66

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of The Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.
E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.
Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 14th day of March, 1910.
E. M. DEARON, Notary Public.

Attest:
J. N. WILSON
P. A. KRUKER } Directors.
W. H. SARTOR

CORRESPONDENCE.

Clanton, March 12, 1910.

Editor Banner:—I have noticed the correspondence as to the possibilities of the coming election, and being one that is interested in the welfare of my county and state, I desire to state some of my views as to the men who shall represent us by filling the various offices of our county, and in my brief communication I desire to consider especially the representative which we shall send to the legislative halls to make our laws and stand for the benefit of our county.

Now I have no new name to consider I just desire to indorse the name presented by one of the correspondents a few weeks ago. This young man whom we all remember is Mr. Howard Roper. I do not know whether Mr. Roper intends to run for representative but I think he is a posible candidate, and I desire to reccommend him as being well qualified for the high office. Mr. Roper is a good debater and will prove to be a good campaign speaker and if he runs will be an honor to his party and if elected an honor to his county. He has showed his faithfulness to his party by his good work in the democratic club of beat fifteen, of which he was among its founders I believe Mr. Roper will stand for the rights of his people and bring about many reforms in our county, which are badly needed Sincerely,

RUFUS L. POPWELL.

Junction, Okla., March 14, 1910

Editor Banner—Please allow me a few lines in my old home paper. I am in Oklahoma and like it very much; it is a fine country for farming and stock raising and is healthy, and all kinds of people live here—good, bad and indifferent. With best wishes to my old friends and the dear old Banner, I remain,

Yours respectfully,
JOHN T. PENTON.

Shiloh

Editor Banner—I come again asking for space in the dear old Banner to say a few words in regard to the closing of the school at this place. Prof E. C. Popwell closed one of the most successful schools we have ever had at this place. While we have had some good teachers, none of them was the equal of Prof Popwell. To hear the recitations rendered by those little boys and little girls was evidence that he had done his work well. While the program was not on the big scale, for the reason that the school had become very small in numbers as well as small in size, all the larger children having been put to work on the farm or moved away, but the program was carried out in a way that showed that Prof. Popwell is the right man in the right place. Any community who needs a good teacher would do well to secure his services.

Politics is very quiet in this part of the county, but I guess the political pot will begin to boil soon.

Success to the Banner.

A. W. POWELL.

Arrested as Accessories.

Two negroes were arrested Tuesday by Sheriff Catts at Rushton, charged with murder of a negro woman, whose body was found in a pond. Dr. Gragg who made an examination of the body said it had probably been in the water for about two months. The two negros were placed in jail.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE THORSBY SAVINGS BANK, LOCATED AT THORSBY, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS MARCH 8, 1910.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts	$34,500 70	Capital Stock Paid in	$15,000.00
Overdrafts	171.35	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	617.00
Banking House	2,000.00	Dues Unpaid Dividends	777.00
Furniture and Fixtures	1,700.67	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$15,000.00
Due from Banks and Bankers in this State	$4,021.00	Sight Deposits	2,300.41
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	1,000.00	Demand Certificates	166.00
Currency	1,741.00	Time Certificates	6,000.21
Gold	170.00	Cashier's Checks	415.10
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	168.00
Checks and Cash Items	560.00
	12,499.45
Total	$41,637.80	Total	$41,637.80

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Before me came Guy H. Gerald, Cashier of Thorsby Savings Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said Bank.
GUY H. GERALD, Cashier.
Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 14th day of March, 1910.
JAS. W. COLLINS, Clerk of Circuit Court.

Attest:
M. J. BARRETT
A. K. HORN } Directors
J. J. STANLEY

PROGRAM

for Mulberry District Sunday School Convention, to be held with Bethlem church on 2d Sunday in April.

9:30 a.m. Devotional exercises.

10. Roll call and delegates enrolled.

Our aim in Sunday school work, W. T. Herod, J. H. Williams.

10:50. What hinders my Sunday school, by superintendents and others of schools.

11:20. Echoes from State Convention, county secretary, Miss Mary C. Gibeo.

12. Dinner, handshaking and friend-making.

1 p.m. Some Sunday school helps, Walter Kendrick, T. E. Williams.

1:45. Teacher training course, district president and others.

2:30. Enrichments from Bible study, J. L. Dersmus, J. D. Desson.

3. A Sunday-school "vision."

We earnestly request and urge that each Sunday school in Beats 8, 15 and Kincheon, all send some one to this meeting. We have tried to get some splendid subjects and speakers Let us all come and spend a good day talking about the Lord's work. Devotedly,

JEROME O WILLIAMS, Dis. Pres.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by all druggists.

Subscribe for The Banner.

Gene Creek.

Our Sunday school is moving upward, and we hope it will still keep moving onward.

Miss Belle Brand was with us in our Sunday school Sunday morning we are always glad to see her out, and wish she would come and be with us every Sunday.

The little baby of Mr. and Mrs Posie Marcus, is some better at this writing.

Misses Annie Mae Driver and Maggie Knox, attended the burial at Mountain Springs Sunday evening.

There will be preaching at Mountain Springs next Sunday at eleven o'clock a.m; everybody invited to attend.

We are sorry to say that Miss M. Mims is no better at this writing.

The Misses Gentrys attended the burial at Mountain Springs Sunday evening.

Wishing much love and happiness to the Banner and its readers.

SOME ONE'S DARLING.

Subscribe for The Banner.

Administration Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned was on the 19th day of February, 1910, appointed as the administratrix of the estate of I. S. Gerald, deceased, by the Probate Court of Chilton county, Alabama; that letters of administration in the premises were issued to her by said court on the day of her said appointment; and that all persons having claims against the estate of the said I. S. Gerald, deceased, are hereby notified to present the same within the time allowed by law or the same will be barred.

This the 3rd day of March, 1910.

HATTIE M. GERALD,
Administratrix.

NOTICE.

The Commissioners Court of Chilton County hereby offers in cooperation with the State Commissioner of Agriculture, the following prizes:

For the best acre of Corn $25.00.
For the best acre of Wheat $15 00
For the best acre of Oats $15.00.
For the best acre of Sweet Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Irish Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Hay $2'. 00.

Parties entering contest must give their names to Judge of Probate not later than May 1 of this year.

There will be no charges for entering the contest.

The rules governing contest will be given out later.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

Highland.

A play, "The last will and Testament of Mrs. Willis," will be given at Highland Saturday night, March 26. Gas lights. Admission, ten cents. The proceeds to be used in furnishing the school room.

You are cordially invited to attend.

THE PLAYERS.

Stanton.

Editor Banner:—Please allow me a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words. Our Sunday school is progressing nicely.

I'm sorry to say that Mr. Earnest Fitts is going to move to Plantersville.

We had a quartlery meeting at the M. E. church Saturday and Sunday; we had dinner on the ground Saturday; everybody had dinner and plenty of it.

The Elder preached a fine sermon Sunday.

Miss May Cox, of Stanton, has gone to Tuscaloosa.

Miss Fannie Young, of Stanton has gone to Selma. How we miss the girls.

I will ring off for this time for fear of the waste basket.

LITTLE BROWN EYED GIRL.

COUNTY FAIR NOTICE.

All persons who are interested in a county Fair, there will be a meeting at the Court House on the 26th of March at 11 a.m. Everybody is requested to attend who feel an interest in the matter.

W. H. CONWAY,
Pres, Chilton Co, Fair Ass'n.

An Awful Eruption

of a volcano excites brief interest, and your interest in skin eruptions will be as short, if you use Bucklen's Arnica Salve, their quickest cure. Even the worst boils, ulcers, or fever sores are soon healed by it. Best for Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sore Lips, Chapped Hands, Chilblains and Piles. It gives instant relief. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Subscribe for The Banner.

WANTED.

FOR SALE—150 bushels Sweet Potatoes, pure Dooley Yams. Parties wanting them for seed had better call at once. J. W. STANFIELD, Clanton, Ala.

LOST—Between Clanton and Albert Headley's old store, one Ladies' Hat in blue box. Any one finding same, please notify me, W. O. DURRIN, Clanton, Ala.

WELL'S DISTEMPER CURE, guaranteed. Write J. P. GRAY & SON, Jemison, Ala.

NOTICE—Agents wanted who can make big salaries. See our display "Ad" in this issue. American Mutual Benefit Life Association of Alabama, Montgomery, Ala.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably bring relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, headache, biliousness, dizziness, sallowness of the skin and dyspepsia. Sold by all druggists.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Hanlen old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

For Diseases of the Skin.

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barbers' itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the itching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone should take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two papers make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

Indigestion.

This trouble usually arises from a disordered liver. If you will arouse the liver to throw off the waste accumulations through the proper channels, you will soon feel better, your appetite will improve, and the whole man will be more wide awake and healthy. For this purpose St. Joseph's Liver Regulator is a fine remedy. Try it and be convinced of its wonderful efficacy. Druggists and general merchants sell it, liquid, 50 cents a bottle; powdered, in tin boxes, 25 cents a box. See advertisement in this paper.

Why Take Alcohol?

Are you thin, pale, easily tired, lack your usual vigor and strength? Then your digestion must be poor, your blood thin, your nerves weak. You need a tonic and alterative. You need Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. We believe your doctor would endorse these statements, or we would not make them. Ask him and find out. Follow his advice. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The endorsement of your doctor will certainly greatly increase your confidence in Ayer's Pills as a family laxative. Liver pills. All vegetable. Ask your doctor about them.

TRAIN IS WRECKED BY AN ELEPHANT

BIG BEAST AFTER CRASH FIGHTS BULLETS FOR TWO HOURS.

ENGINE RUNS INTO HERD

Torches Light the Tracks in an African Jungle to Keep Off Lions While Men Tackle the Enraged and Injured Brute.

Johannesburg.—An extraordinary accident recently befell a Rhodesian train on the journey from Victoria Falls to Bulawayo.

Passing through jungle country in the darkness the engine crashed into a herd of elephants. A huge bull received the full force of the impact.

The engine was derailed, the cowcatcher being buckled up like scrap-iron and twisted back under the front wheels.

Through the violence of the collision the passengers were thrown in all directions, and a wild rush was made for the coach doors. About a hundred Kaffirs who were on the train were ordered out to make bonfires, and soon these were blazing on both sides of the track.

Then the electrician tapped the telegraph wires and sent word to the nearest station to send a wrecking crew and "jacks" for raising the engine.

According to a Johannesburg man who was among the passengers, great difficulty was experienced in disposing of the elephant, which was entangled in the wheels. "For two solid hours they potted the poor brute, but it wouldn't die," he said. "It was furious and lashing with its trunk and blowing sand all over the place.

"They could not get near enough to see the extent of its injuries; one hind leg seemed to be under the train, between wheels, and the other was through the side of a Kaffir truck.

"People were afraid it might kick itself free and charge the crowd. Several times it tried to rise. Finally it died. It was a huge bull, 11 feet high, measuring 25 feet from the tip of the trunk. Its tail was cut off, and its two hind legs were fearfully smashed.

"They had great difficulty in disentangling it from the train. Ropes were put round the forelegs and all the Kaffirs and many of the passengers had to pull and tug for a long time.

"At last an engine and truck came along the line; the implements were gotten out and they tackled the engine. It had plowed its way into the sand, and the wheels were nearly buried.

For Two Solid Hours They Potted the Poor Beast.

"We were there for 13 hours. Bonfires were kept up all the night to keep off lions, which might be attracted by the smell of carrion." Another of the elephants was injured, but got away.

Navigation Under Difficulties.

Navigation of the North Canadian river as far up as Woodward has always been beset with many trials and dangers. The steamship City of Woodward, which started on a down river cruise several days ago, is having a hard time. Here is part of the daily log, in the neighborhood of Alston: "Nothing more was sighted until we reached the railroad bridge at Alston, where we rammed pier 3, knocking it fully six inches out of plumb. The next encounter was a sandbar, which was soon overcome, and we proceeded on down-stream, only to encounter 23 more sandbars in rapid succession. Having got clear of these we succeeded in picking up a barbed wire fence, which was a lucky event, for the posts were used for firewood. Things moved on smoothly from this time on, except on one occasion, when the ship attempted to climb a tree."—Kansas City Times.

Aye, There's the Rub.

The trouble with blessings that come disguised is that the disguise is always so perfect.—New York Times.

TURNED TABLES ON ROOT

Secretary's Familiar Little Remark Didn't Seem as Funny as It Used To.

Senator Depew told a little story on himself and Senator Root in his speech at the dinner in Washington to Mr Root by the New York Republican congressional delegation.

"When Root was secretary of state," said Senator Depew, "I went over to see him and asked him if he couldn't do something for me in the line of consular appointments. He said: 'Senator, I'm sorry, I would like do something for New York, but (and Mr. Root picked up a paper from his desk) I see that New York's quota is now exceeded by 14 per cent.'

"Well," continued Senator Depew, "I kept going to see Senator Root for a year. Every time I went to see him he would remind me that New York's quota was exceeded by 14 per cent. Finally I said: 'Mr. Secretary, I think you're a great statesman, but your mathematics are inclined to be automatic.'

"After Mr. Knox became secretary of state," Senator Depew said, when the laughter had subsided, "Senator Root went up to see him about consular appointments. 'I'm sorry,' said Mr. Knox, 'but (and he turned to a document file) I find that New York's quota is now exceeded by 14 per cent.'"

BOY'S LOVE OF ADVENTURE

Not the Slightest Reason for Alarm If He Looks Forward to the Life of a Pirate.

The love of adventure is an expression of boyhood's abounding vitality; there is always hope for the boy who looks forward to being a pirate and carrying the Jolly Roger through the seven seas—provided that at the same time his mind is making acquaintance with other aspects of life which may finally prove almost as desirable as piracy, declares a writer in the Delineator.

A child's nonsense is his mind's play and safety valve, which may be developed into a sense of humor that will help to keep him sane, or degenerate into a mere habit of foolish and cruel practical joking. His curiosity may prove a key wherewith to unlock stores of wisdom, or a means of purveying base and even vile things to his mind, while his sentiment—and we may be sure that it is present in the average boy's strangely assorted spiritual baggage—may sink to a sentimentality which shall sap his manhood or be refined into an attribute of honor and devotion.

Baby "Owns" All Holland.

It is questionable whether there is a royal child so adored as the little Princess Juliana of Holland, whose birth set all hearts at rest in that little kingdom. It is painful to think of the disruption of the state had Wilhelmina remained childless, but now all, from the mother to the humblest subject, are blest indeed. The little princess is nearly eight months old, is and has been from the first a vigorous and promising child; the queen is said to exercise the most constant and jealous oversight of everything that pertains to her welfare. The cutting of the first tooth of the little princess was known all over Holland as soon as it was through and inquiries as to its health and its growth in every way, mentally as well as physically, is of the greatest importance. It is noted as an instance of the kindness of heart of the queen that when the child was baptized all of the queen's former instructors were present. They are now white-haired men, but greatly gratified to be so remembered.

Kossuth Disciple's Wealth to Poor.

A few days ago, at the age of 82, there died at Zombor, in Hungary, one of Kossuth's followers named Stefan Komjovits, who had always led an eccentric existence and had been regarded as a man of merely moderate means. But on his death his will showed that he was one of the richest men in his province and had husbanded his wealth chiefly for the purpose of distributing it at his death in benefiting his fellow citizens.

His bequests include 80 morgen of land and 60,000 kronen for an institute for the blind, 200 morgen and 400,000 kronen for a school, 1,200 morgen and 30,000 kronen for a cadet training institution and 250,000 kronen for a church.

Two hundred and fifty thousand kronen was left to a priest, his servant and stewards receive 200,000 each, and 120 other persons 3,000 kronen each.—Lokal Anzeiger.

A Bit of Negro Humor.

Robert Edeson tells the following story of a negro servant that is worth repeating:

One day last summer, Mr. Edeson noticed that Lindy was in an unusually good humor while doing her work—singing all the time. He called her in the room and saw she was arrayed in colors that would have shamed Solomon, including as they did all the bright hues of the rainbow.

"Lindy," said he, "why are you so happy to-day?" This evoked the reply: "Marse Bob,' I just buried my fourth husband yesterday." "You did," said Mr. Edeson. "Well, it seems to me that it would be more befitting you to array yourself in garments of a somber hue."

"Dat's alright," said Lindy, "but I'm one of dose folks dat caries dere grief in de heart instead of on dere clothes."—Utica Observer.

DEVICE IN CANE THIEF'S FORTUNE

WALKING STICK USED IN ROBBING BANKS FINALLY BRINGS ARREST.

CLEVER ARTIST ARRESTED

William Golswey Is Caught by the Paris Police While Trying to Make Away with a Large Bundle of Bank Notes.

Paris.—After a full month of anxiety, amounting almost to panic, Parisian bankers can breathe again. For one of the smoothest Anglo-American bank sharps, William Golswey, has been laid by the heels at last.

All the detective force of the French capital, admittedly a smart set of sleuths, failed to get on to the track of the money fiend. Then, at his last throw, the rogue overreached himself. He had cleaned up $100,000 and made every big bank but one a victim. So he made up his mind to complete the conquest.

That is where he made his mistake, for, as a further proof that "great minds think alike" at times, Monsieur Hamard, chief of the Parisian detectives, figured on the same line of action. So the great detective made his plans to checkmate the player on the criminal side of the board. But it was chance that gave him the lead, for all that.

The thefts had always been made just before the bank closed, when the itinerant cashiers were paying in the day's receipts. Although they were careful to assure themselves nobody was standing near them when they were verifying their accounts, the head cashier found in each case a large part of the money missing. So disturbing were these occurrences that several unfortunate clerks gave up their employment in despair at the suspicion attaching to them.

Success made Golswey reckless. He determined to attempt his final "coup" at the Comptoir d'Escompte, in the Place de l'Opera.

Hamard and his men had been waiting there for a week before their patience was at last rewarded. It was Saturday, and one of the bank's messengers was emptying his bag on the counter, when the great detective, disguised as a plumber, noticed a faultlessly dressed foreigner standing about three yards from the counter.

The visitor's attitude seemed above suspicion. He paid no attention to what was going on near him, being apparently busily engaged in checking some accounts. His elegant gold-knobbed stick was lying on the counter, near the bundles of notes which had been counted by the bank messenger.

Realizing that it was impossible for any one to steal money at a distance of three yards, the detective came to the conclusion he had spent another fruitless day, and was going off, when his eye caught the shining knob of the Englishman's stick.

Reached Into the Teller's Window.

Then the strange thing happened that surprised even a Parisian detective. The elegant foreigner picked up his cane by the lower end, the golden knob opened and a thin steel rod slowly emerged. The end of the steel rod split in two and turned into a pair of pincers. With these pincers the artful one seized a bundle of notes and withdrew them into the interior of the hollow stick. The golden knob slowly closed.

A few seconds later the crook closed up his pocketbook and was hurrying off when he felt a vicelike grip on his arm. Seeing half a dozen officials guarding the only exit, he offered no resistance and was taken to the detective headquarters, where he made a complete confession.

Golswey had $20,000 on him when he was arrested. From letters seized by the police it is clear that Golswey belongs to a gang of international thieves, who, after a successful criminal record in England and America, intended to operate on the same lines in France, Germany and Belgium.

RATCATCHER ISSUES A DEFI

London's New Official Offers to Capture One Thousand Rodents in Three Nights.

London.—It seems that the gruesome freemasonry which binds European official executioners together causing them to intermarry and inherit the profession, is not without its parallel among ratcatchers. Hence John Jarvis, who has just been appointed official ratcatcher to the London county council at a salary of $243.12 a year, is a ratcatcher by inheritance and instinct quite as much as he is by profession.

Since 1803 each male member of his family has devoted his life to catching rats, and so it was with the greatest confidence that Jarvis issued a challenge to all the ratcatchers in the kingdom to catch more of the vermin in a given time than any man living, provided that neither dogs nor ferrets were employed in the hunt. Furthermore, he said that with the assistance of his uncle, Mr. J. Dalton, he would undertake to catch 1,000 rats in three nights.

As Jarvis made these challenges he fondled half a dozen tame white rats, while his seven-year-old daughter at his side played with a couple of ferrets. "I have no son to carry on the business," he said, "but Kit, there, and her younger sister both know pretty well all there is to know about catching rats.

"The means I use for catching them alive is a family secret, known only to my people for the last four generations. I won't tell you exactly what that secret is, but I don't mind letting you know that it acts very much in the same way as chloroform does on a human being. Over my back I fling a huge sack, connected with a trap-door arrangement at my side. I wear noiseless boots and black clothes.

"As I walk down the passages with a bull's-eye lantern attached to my side the rats, scared by the light, scamper past me. As they run I can pick them up left or right hand and drop them into the trap-door. Gradually they work their way around to the sack on my back. My! How they fight! Sometimes when I fancy I have a hundred I find half of them are killed by the time I arrive home."

JAPAN SENDS GIFT OF ROSES

Many Other Nations Will Be Represented in Portland Fete for Queen of Flowers.

Portland, Ore.—Japanese roses are to blossom in Portland parks and squares. Under the shadow of Mount Hood they will thrive as they do in their own islands, with stately Fujiyama looking down upon them.

The Japanese people of Yokohama have just presented Portland with 170 rosebushes of native Japanese growth that are now on the way here for the annual rose-planting fete. The roses will be set out in the public squares.

Many nations will be represented in the rose-planting exercises. Holland has sent an orange rose, emblematic of the dominance of the house of Orange in national affairs. France and Germany will be represented by splendid plants that will show the pre-eminence of those countries in rose culture and it is hoped to get a bush from Persia, where old Omar so long ago sung the beauties of the queen flower. Other nations, through resident consuls, will present the city with the flowering shrubs.

MONEY HIDDEN UNDER CARPET

Son Finds $3,400 in Small Bills Left by Mother, Who Was Thought Penniless.

South Norwalk, Conn.—When Mrs. Frank A. Slavin died it was thought she did not have a cent. The kitchen carpet was taken up and two layers of small bills, which almost covered the entire floor, were discovered.

There was nearly a bushel of them when piled up, and they amounted to $3,400. Her son, Charles A. Slavin, was about to vacate the house and stood in the doorway debating whether to take up or leave the kitchen carpet. He thought it might do to cover the dog kennel, and so he pulled it up.

To Have a New Face.

St. Louis, Mo.—When Thomas Herbert leaves the city hospital he will have a brand-new face. Half a dozen physicians and surgeons are now making it for him, and they promise such an improvement over the face that nature gave him that even his best girl will not know him.

While driving a wagon Wednesday Herbert fell off and a wheel passed over his face. The hospital physicians found 33 fractures in the bones in his face. In fixing him up it was necessary to remodel his face entirely along new lines. They are now wiring the bones so they will knit, readjusting the flesh so as to give the face symmetry and character.

Judge Is Charitable.

Richmond, Va.—Moved by the pathetic testimony of Hunter Ingram, a 14-year-old boy, brought before him in police court the other day, charged with having stolen a loaf of bread, which the youngster said he wanted to take to his mother, who was starving, Judge John J. Crutchfield ordered a collection taken up in court for the boy and his mother. Passing around the hat, the bailiff obtained from those present in court the sum of $15, the judge having dropped in a crisp five-dollar note. The case against Ingram was dismissed.

T[illegible] OSTLERS

...st Trial Marks End of Lawlessness in Dakota.

Days of Organized Gangs of Cattle Thieves Believed by Veteran Officers to Be Thing of the Past —Members Driven Out.

Minto, N. D.—Four men whose experience in the pursuit and capture of horse rustlers, bank robbers and bold-up artists of the roughest kind dates back for over ten years met the other day in Minot at the trial of the Williams county horse stealing cases, which it is expected will mark the end of organized rustling in North Dakota. S. J. Small, sheriff of Valley county, Mont., has been in office seven years and prior to that time had kept in touch with the work in his county. "Sid" Bennett, his deputy, has proved invaluable through his knowledge of the country in which the gangs worked and his acquaintance with their habits and ethics, gleaned from 15 years of ranching in Montana.

Marshall Wells, now acting in Valley county, but formerly of the United States Indian service, has a record that dates back for 20 years and no "bad man" of the northwest has been forgotten by this veteran of the service.

To Sheriff E. B. Olson of Williams county, N. D., the last of the quartet, is due the credit for the capture of what is believed will prove to be the last of the rustlers. Sheriff Olson assumed his duties with the object in view of wiping out the rustlers.

"It is far different now," send one of the Montana officers, reminiscently. "The days of Jack Ryan, Dick Jones, Smith and Parker and Fuqua have passed into history and while there is an occasional lapse of memory on the part of some farmer and some lonely horse is turned into the wrong pasture, there will never be any of the sensational round-ups of from 30 to 50 head or the excitement of the night runs.

"The old timers had a system that could not be worked now. They were all old men in that part of the state. We could tell who had done the job, but the next thing was to capture him. All gangs had their friendly ranches, where the stolen property could be hidden and the men secure rest and shelter. In the country along the Little Muddy and on the border of the states were three camps that were seldom successfully raided.

"Rebranding was common in those days. A figure five would be changed to a letter B, a half-moon would be embellished with a letter or a character and it took a skillful eye to detect the change. In many cases we would kill the horse so as to examine the inside of the hide.

"In order to get information we had to resort to many peculiar methods. At one time I acted as a bartender in a saloon three weeks so as to watch a suspected rustler that I afterwards landed. Often the officials hired out to ranchers under assumed names so as to get in with the gang.

"Many amusing incidents happened in the capture of these men. I remember eight years ago, when Kid Trailer, who has just been found guilty here, was arrested for the theft of some grain and harness. Constable John Moore made the arrest. Trailer was scheduled to play at a dance given by Ed Sherman that night and Sherman made a complaint to Dick Jones, who was known as 'Gentleman Dick.' Jones saddled his horse, held up the constable and freed Kid and took him back to play for the dance.

"Jones kidnaped a deputy sheriff named King, keeping him for three weeks at menial labor. King escaped and posse after posse started after Jones, who had hidden in his dugout in the Popular country.

"Bird and Elg were the last two government men on the trail and were notified to return when they sighted him. They established themselves at Handy's ranch when Jones rode up and asked for shelter. The first night he slept with a six-shooter in each hand. In the morning he watered his horse with the two deputies in front of him and it was not until breakfast was served that he became careless. Bird was cooking flapjacks and Jones sat with his back toward him and his gun resting in his lap. Bird saw his chance and grabbing a rifle, poked it into Jones' back. Jones reached for his gun and was shot instantly."

Tommy Ryan, who single-handed held up the Crosby bank two years ago, is supposed to be on the Pacific coast. Fuqua, a Montana man, charged with the theft of 36 head of horses, was captured in California by Sheriff Small, but on the way back jumped through a car window and escaped. The sheriff followed him through the opening, but lost him on the plains.

The conviction of Kid Trailer will end organized rustling in the northwest, it is believed. There was a time when Ward county was as badly infested with these gangs as Williams county was later, and as Montana is in some parts now. But the day of the organized rustler is fast passing.

Earn $2,000 or Stay Wifeless.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Rev. Wright Gibson, pastor of the McKees Rocks Presbyterian church, has notified engaged couples among his parishioners that he will not unite any couples unless the intended bridegroom could prove his income was at least $2,000 a year.

CHINESE ADEPT FAN MA[illegible]

Consul Pontius, at Swatow, Tells Interesting Story of Industry in Peng-Chow District.

Washington.—Mr. Albert W. P[illegible] the American consul at Swatow, has an interesting report of how the[illegible] these fans are made. Fan-making [illegible] as it is of origin so ancient in [illegible] era China that no one knows [illegible] was started. Tradition has it [illegible] first fans were made in the [illegible] lage of Peng-Chow, of Amoy [illegible] is about three miles from [illegible] For hundreds of years only the [illegible] in the different villages through [illegible] the country spread, were the [illegible] makers, but so great is the [illegible] now for these cheap fans, used as [illegible] are by the millions for advertising [illegible] purposes that nearly every man, [illegible] an and child works all day and [illegible] the night at fan-making.

The industry is almost confined [illegible] the Peng-Chow district, because [illegible] abounds a particular kind of bamboo especially suitable for the ribs and [illegible] handle of the fan.

The manufacture of the fan is [illegible] simple. For the frame the split bamboo is repeatedly rived until [illegible] piece is sufficiently slender and [illegible] ble. These thread-like pieces of [illegible] boo are arranged in a row, attached [illegible] each other by a thread passed [illegible] whe through the middle. This [illegible] is fastened to a semi-circular strip [illegible] bamboo giving the fan its shape. [illegible] ribs are then slightly heated and [illegible] at the ends. The fan has now the [illegible] culiar and characteristic shape at the top. Very flimsy [illegible] gauze is then pasted on the face, [illegible] a kind of tissue-like paper on the back. After the handle is attached, the [illegible] der of the fan is black varnished [illegible] the gauze is coated with a chalk-[illegible] water mixture. The handles are [illegible] of bamboo, various kinds of hard wood, bone and ivory. The hand painting [illegible] the fans is cleverly done, in some instances being works of art. The medium quality fan retails for 25 cents Mexican (ten cents gold), better grades one to four dollars Mexican (40 cents to $1.60). The amount now exported yearly amounts to about $30,000. The fan trade of late has shown a decrease due to the importation of Japanese straw fans, which have met with a favorable demand.

NEW SPRINGS CURE ALL ILLS

Fountain in Town of St. Ives, in Cornwall, Rivals That Sought by Ponce de Leon.

London.—The folks in the quiet little seaside town of St. Ives, in Cornwall, are planning great things in the future. They contend that they will prove how some of the miraculous cures of history were obtained by sufferers from physical ills. They have found a "radium spring," which, they argue, is about as near that fountain of perpetual youth for which Ponce de Leon made certain researches as anything yet invented.

By the same argument it is insisted that any person suffering from anything, from bad debts to chilblains, can take a swim in the spring and come forth ready to challenge the winner of the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

St. Ives is in the center of the radium mining district, and this spring, containing a large percentage of radio activity, was recently discovered in the Trenwith mines. Norman White-house, the noted chemist, analyzed the water, and his report was confirmed by Sir Walter Ramsay.

"I have found," says the former, "that the springs exhibit radio-activity to an abnormal extent, even when compared with the waters of the most noted spas. In fact, the water of Trenwith is 26 times as active as that of Harrowgate and about seven times that of Bath."

As a result of this sudden awakening the quiet residents of St. Ives can conjure up visions of their town growing into a world center of health and longevity guaranties.

BELT CONTAINS MANY HIDES

Southern Sawmill Company Has Largest and Most Expensive Ever Made in Country.

New York.—The largest and most expensive leather belt ever made has just been completed in New York for the Great Southern Lumber Company of Bogalusa, La.

It is of three-ply leather, 240 feet long, six feet wide, and it took the hides of 540 Texas steers to furnish the material. It has been shipped to the owners, the express charges being $243.07. The belt is intended for driving the large band saw. Its extraordinary length is due to the fact that the ground conditions of the mill are such that the engine has to be a good distance from the mill proper. If a belt that long was made any thinner or narrower it would not stand the resistance it encounters.

A Cure for Chilblains.

Paris.—The French Academy of Science has issued, with all solemnity, to an expectant world a method of curing and preventing chilblains.

It is a very simple method. Hold your hand in the air for a few minutes and wriggle the fingers. Do this about ten times a day. Your chilblains, even cracked ones, will disappear, and the application of a little grease will help them to do so.

The remedy has two distinct advantages. It is quite inexpensive, and it is not dangerous to life. And how delightful it is to feel that the big-wigs of the French Academy of Science concern themselves with such a powerful trifle as our chilblains!

...Y TO REMODEL A SUIT

...e of Renovation Purchase No Problem in These Days of Expert Dyeing and Cleaning.

...e course, every one likes to have a new suit each season, but four suits [illegible] year need one is quite a mean and a reproach to a conscientious man. It is often wiser and more satisfactory to remodel a last year's suit than to buy a new one.

...f good material should give two or three seasons of hard service if it is handled in the right manner. It should always be cleaned, turned or pressed so that the most fastidious woman can satisfy herself as to its absolute freshness.

...A new lining, new cuff and collar [illegible] ing for a coat and a general overhauling for a skirt will put a last season's suit quite in order if one only [illegible] ds using it for hard backing and [illegible] y days.

...If the suit must make a present appearance in good society one may have to go to a little more trouble. It should be recut, the sleeves made up to date and the neck open in a collar, etc., made to answer to the last word on smart tailoring.

THEATER WAIST.

...is entirely new and original [illegible] is of black mousseline de soie [illegible] with wide tucks and trimmed [illegible] the neck with embroidery. [illegible] er this is a drapery of black lace [illegible] red with little gold balls and fastened at the shoulders with motifs of [illegible]

Names on Stationery.

...ere is a new fashion in writing [illegible]. It consists in using the name [illegible] which you are best known engraved in a color across the top of it. [illegible] you use to intimate friends, and [illegible] the paper with address and initials [illegible] for formal use.

...ether it is pretty or not is a question. It is fashionable among the few to start new things and drop them [illegible] the world adopts them.

...ere is no denying that it gives a [illegible] of intimacy to receive a note [illegible] en on a sheet of paper that bears [illegible] diminutive of a formal first name, [illegible] en a nickname, engraved across [illegible] irst sheet.

To Smooth Out Wrinkles.

...Inability to draw attention from [illegible] pleasantness." Thus has worry been defined. See if you cannot prove the converse to be true. Such a course [illegible] one of the best ways that you can [illegible] ver of smoothing out wrinkles [illegible] of cultivating attractiveness.

No Substitute

...cept no substitute for Foley's Honey and Tar. It is the best and [illegible] remedy for coughs, colds, [illegible] and lung troubles. Contains [illegible] ates and no harmful drugs. [illegible] the name, Foley's Honey and Tar, and accept no substitutes. [illegible] urch Drug Co.

After The

"I am much pleased, to be able to tell you for what Cardui has done for me," writes Mrs. Gilliland, of Siler City, N. C. "Last February, I had the worst spell I had shape. Before that, I had suffered trouble, for ten years, and nothing I took "At last, I began to take Cardui. Three bottles, but it has done me more good than all the doctors or than any other medicine I ever took.

Take CA[illegible]

[illegible] 42

The Woman

For the after-effects of any kind of La Grip, Cardui is the best tonic you can take. It builds strength, steadies the nerves, increases appetite, regulates irregularities, and restores the natural glow of health.

Cardui is your best friend, in every way. Think of the thousands of women it has helped! What could possibly prove this better? Remember you cannot get the same ingredients in any other medicine, and you cannot get Cardui at any drug store except in the sealed packages.

Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent free.

CHINESE ADEPT FAN MAKE

Consul Poetius, at Swatow, Tells Interesting Story of Industry in Peng-Chow District.

Washington.—Mr Albert W. Fe... the American consul at Swatow, ... an interesting report of how the C... fans are made. Fan-making, h... is of origin so ancient in ... ers China that no one knows when ... was started. Tradition has it that ... first fans were made in the little ... lage of Peng-Chow, at Ampoa, which is about three miles from Swa... For hundreds of years only the ... in the different villages through which the industry spread. Were the ... makers, but so great is the demand now for these cheap fans, used as they are by the millions for advertising purposes that nearly every man, woman and child works all day and ... the night at fan-making.

The industry is almost confined to the Peng Chow district, because here abounds a particular kind of bamboo especially suitable for the ribs and ... handle of the fan.

The manufacture of the fan is very simple. For the frame the split bamboo is repeatedly rived until each piece is sufficiently slender and flexible. These thread-like pieces of bamboo are arranged in a row, attached to each other by a thread passed crosswise through the middle. This thread is fastened to a semi-circular strip of bamboo giving the fan its shape. The ribs are then slightly heated and bent at the ends. The fan has now the peculiar and characteristic "shell-like" shape at the top. Very flimsy silk gauze is then pasted on the face, and a kind of tissue-like paper on the back. After the handle is attached, the border of the fan is black varnished and the gauze is coated with a chalk-and-water mixture. The handles are made of bamboo, various kinds of hard wood, bone and ivory. The hand painting on the fans is cleverly done, in some instances being works of art. The medium quality fan retails for 25 cents Mexican (ten cents gold). Better grades one to four dollars Mexican (40 cents to $1.60). The amount now exported yearly amounts to about $30,000. This fan trade of late has shown a decrease due to the importation of Japanese straw fans, which have met with a favorable demand.

NEW SPRINGS CURE ALL ILLS

Fountain in Town of St. Ives, in Cornwall, Rivals That Sought by Ponce de Leon.

London.—The folks in the quiet little seaside town of St. Ives, in Cornwall, are planning great things for the future. They contend that they will prove how some of the miraculous cures of history were obtained by sufferers from physical ills. They have found a "radium spring," which, they argue, is about as near that fountain of perpetual youth for which Ponce de Leon made certain researches as anything yet invented.

By the same argument it is insisted that any person suffering from anything from bad debts to chilblains can take a swim in the spring and come forth ready to challenge the winner of the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

St. Ives is in the center of the radium mining district, and this spring, containing a large percentage of radio activity, was recently discovered in the Trenwith mines. Norman White-house, the noted chemist, analyzed the water, and his report was confirmed by Sir Walter Ramsay.

"I have found," says the former, "that the springs exhibit radio-activity to an abnormal extent, even when compared with the waters of the most noted spas. In fact, the water of Trenwith is 26 times as active as that of Harrowgate and about seven times that of Bath."

As a result of this sudden awakening the quiet residents of St. Ives conjure up visions of their town growing into a world center of health and longevity guaranties.

BELT CONTAINS MANY HIDES

Southern Sawmill Company Gets Largest and Most Expensive Ever Made in Country.

New York.—The largest and most expensive leather belt ever made has just been completed in New York for the Great Southern Lumber Company of Bogalusa, La.

It is of three-ply leather, 240 feet long, six feet wide, and it took the hides of 540 Texas steers to furnish the material. It has been shipped to the owners, the express charges being $243.07. The belt is intended for driving the large band saw. Its extraordinary length is due to the fact that the ground conditions of the mill are such that the engine has to be a good distance from the mill proper. If a belt that long was made any thinner or narrower it would not stand the resistance it encounters.

A Cure for Chilblains.

Paris.—The French Academy of Science has issued, with all solemnity, to an expectant world a method of curing and preventing chilblains.

It is a very simple method. Hold your hand in the air for a few minutes and wriggle the fingers. Do this about ten times a day. Your chilblains, even cracked ones, will disappear, aided the application of a little grease will help them to do so.

The remedy has two distinct advantages. It is quite inexpensive, and it is not dangerous to life. And how delightful it is to feel that the big-wigs of the French Academy of Science concern themselves with such a painful trifle as our chilblains!

EASY TO REMODEL A SUIT

Time of Renovation Furnishes No Problem in These Days of Expert Dyeing and Cleaning.

Of course, every one likes to have a new suit each season, but four suits a year soon land one in quite a mess of half-worn clothes that are a burden and a reproach to a conscientious person. It is often wiser and more satisfactory to remodel a last year's suit than to buy a new one.

If the good material should give two or three seasons of hard service if it is properly handled in the right manner. It must always be cleaned, turned or pressed so that the most fastidious woman can satisfy herself as to its absolute freshness.

A new lining, new cuff and collar and facing for a coat and a general overhauling for a skirt will put a last year's suit quite in order if one only intends using it for hard hacking and every days.

But if the suit must make a presentable appearance in good society one will have to go to a little more trouble. It should be recut, the sleeves made up to date and the neck opened, collar, etc., made to answer to the last word on smart tailoring.

THEATER WAIST.

This entirely new and original model is of black mousseline de soie made with wide tucks and trimmed around the neck with embroidery. Over this is a drapery of black lace bordered with little gold balls and fastened at the shoulders with motifs of Names on Stationery.

There is a new fashion in writing paper. It consists in using the name which you are best known by, printed in a color across the top of it. Then you use to intimate friends, and have the paper with address and initials for formal use.

Whether it is pretty or not is a question. It is fashionable among the few who start new things and drop them when the world adopts them.

There is no denying that it gives a sense of intimacy to receive a note written on a sheet of paper that bears the diminutive of a formal first name, even a nickname, engraved across the first sheet.

To Smooth Out Wrinkles.

Inability to draw attention from unpleasantness." Thus has worry been defined. See if you cannot prove the converse to be true. Such a course is one of the best ways that you can discover of smoothing out wrinkles and of cultivating attractiveness.

No Substitute.

Accept no substitute for Foley's Honey and Tar. It is the best and safest remedy for coughs, colds, croup and lung troubles. Contains no opiates and no harmful drugs. Remember the name, Foley's Honey and Tar, and accept no substitutes. Upchurch Drug Co

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Household Wisdom.

To keep kitchen tables white scrub them well with cold water, soap and a little silver sand. Do not use hot water on tables, as it turns them yellow.

Stewed figs or prunes will be found much richer if the fruit is soaked for several hours before stewing. They should be stewed in the same water in which soaked.

Be careful where you place your dressing tables and mirrors. Sunlight will destroy the finest bevel French plate, and it is impossible to restore the backing without considerable expense. Dampness will destroy it in the same manner.

Baked Hash of Rice and Beef.

Take one cupful of cooked beef, one cupful of cooked rice, one cupful of milk, one egg, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper. Chop the meat, but not too fine. Put the milk on the fire and when hot add all the other ingredients except the egg. Stir for one minute, remove from the fire and add the egg, well beaten. Turn the hash into a baking dish and bake twenty minutes till very brown. Serve in the same dish.

Frying Lore.

To prepare breadcrumbs quickly dry bread in the oven after crusts have been removed, then run through the meat chopper, sift and put away in glass jars. The reason many fried things have a flat taste, though the mixture may be highly seasoned, is that the seasoning of the breadcrumbs has been neglected. Always mix the crumbs with salt, pepper and, if desired, a drop or two of onion juice before molding.

Strawberry Coupe.

Fill sherbet glasses with vanilla ice cream to within a fourth of the distance from the top. Then cover the cream with a spoonful of strawberry preserve and one or two of whipped cream. The coupe may be prepared at the table by the housewife herself, the vanilla cream being placed before her on a small platter with the whipped cream and the preserve in two glass bowls beside it.

Improved Refrigerator.

An improved kind of refrigerator invented by a Georgia man is shown herewith. In place of the row of shelves with which the ordinary refrigerator is equipped, this new ice chest has a series of drawers, which swing in and out and which make the articles kept within much easier of access. The ice compartment is at the top, as in most other types, and alongside it in one corner is a row of shelves which lift up and on which may be kept those things which should be close to the ice. The lower part of the refrigerator is equipped with drawers, which swing in and out on a hinge at one side. They are rounded at one end and come out only a certain distance. That part of the bottom of the drawer which extends outside when the latter is moved to the limit of its outward range is solid, the other segment being perforated to permit the cold air to pass through more readily.

ICEBOX WITH SWING DRAWERS.

After The Grippe

"I am much pleased, to be able to write and thank you for what Cardui has done for me," writes Mrs. Sarah J. Gilliland, of Siler City, N. C.

"Last February, I had the Grippe, which left me in bad shape. Before that, I had been bothered with female trouble, for ten years, and nothing seemed to cure it.

"At last, I began to take Cardui. I have taken only three bottles, but it has done me more good than all the doctors or than any other medicine I ever took."

Take CARDUI

J 42

The Woman's Tonic

For the after-effects of any serious illness, like the Grip, Cardui is the best tonic you can use.

It builds strength, steadies the nerves, improves the appetite, regulates irregularities and helps bring back the natural glow of health.

Cardui is your best friend, if you only knew it.

Think of the thousands of ladies whom Cardui has helped! What could possibly prevent it from helping you?

Remember you cannot get the benefit of the Cardui ingredients in any other medicine, for they are not for sale in any drug store except in the Cardui bottle. Try Cardui.

Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for Special Instructions, and 64-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent free.

SIMPLE, BUT PRETTY BONNET FOR BABY.

Easy to Make, Using Any Kind of Wool and a Suitable Hook—Crimson Is Probably the Best Color.

This little bonnet is quite easy to work, and any kind of wool and a suitable hook may be used.

Our model is in crimson Andalusian (2 ozs. of this wool being required) and worked with a No. 16 bone hook.

Work a chain ten inches in length, turn and work a double crochet in each stitch to end of chain, turn with one chain, and work back again, taking up the back thread only: continue working to and fro in this manner—always turning with one chain, and using the back thread only—until the work is 21 inches long, work along the last row with single crochet and fasten off.

Fold the work exactly in the middle, placing the two ends together, join one side of the work from the fold to the lower edge of the bonnet (forming a kind of hood).

Make a running of thread just inside the seam, from the fold to within five inches of the lower edge and draw it up into a space of two inches.

Make another running across the back of the bonnet four inches on other side of the seam, and three inches from the lower edge to draw it into the neck.

For the edging.

Commence at the seam, hang the wrong side of the bonnet towards the worker, and work a double crochet in the nearest stitch, *, pass two, work five trebles with a chain between each in the next, pass two, a double crochet in the next, and repeat from * all round the work, and finish by working three chain into every other stitch of the previous row. Fold back about two inches of the front, and put a stitch at the top to keep it in position.

Sew on strings and fix the bow as shown.

SEASON'S STYLES IN GLOVES

Color and Buttons Vary According to the Time of Day They Are Worn.

Instead of wearing pure white gloves in the afternoon the fashionable woman is inclining toward a delicate pearl shade or pale apricot and tan colorings.

She is choosing for motor wear the "chevrette" of elbow length with a strap at the wrist to pull the leather together. This is generally lined with fur or wool.

Women find it hard to approve of the sharp dividing line between long sleeves and short gloves, and are wearing with afternoon toilets longer shapes, which pass in wrinkled fullness over the cuffs.

Gloves of two-button lengths are worn with coat suits. The buttons are very large and are made of mother-of-pearl.

For driving mocha gloves in pale colorings, which, strange to say, wear much better than the dark ones, are popular.

Of course, the evening gloves are virtually the same. Long white glace, with occasionally a decoration to carry out the scheme of the gown, are worn.

By their gloves you will know the well-dressed women.

Sweet spirits of nitre is used for slight fevers.

Use witch hazel salve for sores, bruises, burns, abscesses, etc.

Carbolic salve or zinc ointment may be used for flesh wounds, boils, etc.

Camphorated oil is ideal for the relief of sprains and is a mild counter-irritant for sore throat.

For a cold in the head a roll of medicated cotton will be valuable. A small piece placed in each nostril will give instant relief.

Dainty Ruffle Condemned.

The dainty little ruffle that suits so well a pretty head, making it look like a flower rising from its calyx, is condemned by fashion. The wired lace or net collar now stops abruptly, and has a most unfinished look to eyes accustomed to the ruffle. But fashion must have change, even if it be for the worse.

FOR THE CHILDREN

An Amusing Trick.

This trick should be announced as an easy way of doubling any one's fortune. "You will soon see," the performer may remark to his audience, "that this is a much better way of making money than to work for it. I wonder that the government has not adopted this plan of increasing the coinage of a country instead of clinging to the old method of turning it out from the mint."

The performer then takes a common drinking glass three-quarters full of water, drops a quarter into the water, covers the top of the glass with a plate and quickly turns the glass with the plate on top of it, so that the plate is on that bottom. The performer then sets the plate with the upturned glass on a table for everybody to see, and to the delight of all the quarter has doubled.

"There," says the performer—"how much easier it is to keep on piling up money in this way than to toil for it long hours every day."

The appearance of the double quarter is due to the refraction of the rays in water, a principle of physics which all boys and girls who are well along in their studies will understand.

Naming Cities.

This is a lively pastime for quick witted people, young or old. The players are seated in a circle, and the leader says: "I shall name a city and then count ten slowly. The one on my right must name another city beginning with the last letter of the city I name." For instance, the first city called may be Chicago; the next player may say Omaha and the next Atlanta, the next Adrian, then Newbern, New York, and so on.

After a few times round cities seem to grow scarce, and the fun increases. Prizes may be given for the best and quickest thinkers and forfeits demanded from those who fail.

How Good News Spreads.

"I am 70 years old and travel most of the time," writes B. F. Folsom, of Elizabethtown, Ky. "Everywhere I go I recommend Electric Bitters, because I owe my excellent health and vitality to them. They effect a cure every time." They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run-down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health that's a daily joy. Try them. Only 50c. Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co

WARREN TOPPAN, Lynn, Mass.

Cured of severe compound cold and cough by

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

Your Money Back If You Are Not Satisfied.

UPCHURCH DRUG CO., Clanton.

FURNITURE

Stoves, Trunks, Clocks, Lamps Carpets, Matting, Rugs, Shades, Crockery, Glass and Tinware

House Furnishing Goods of all Kinds
Sewing Machines and Supplies

We sell cheap for cash or on easy payments

5 AND 10 cENT COUNTERS

Davis Semi-Paste Paint
Palmer's Roofing Paint

GIVE US A TRIAL

CLANTON FURNITURE COMPANY

T. L. CARTER, Proprietor

$1.75 The 1910 Subscription Offer—The Best Offer Made for the New Year $1.75

THE TRI-WEEKLY ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

AND

THE BANNER

together with the superb alternate FREE OFFERS of UNCLE REMUS'S HOME MAGAZINE; or HUMAN LIFE; or THE SOUTHERN RURALIST, a splendid agricultural paper; or TALKS FROM FARMERS TO FARMERS, an epitome of farm wisdom, worth its weight in gold. Your choice of one, only $1.75

THE TRI-WEEKLY CONSTITUTION MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, FRIDAY, THREE TIMES A WEEK. THE NEWSIEST, BEST, BRIGHTEST AND BIGGEST SOUTHERN NEWSPAPER. ALMOST A DAILY, YET AT THE PRICE OF A WEEKLY. ONE DOLLAR A YEAR

or The Weekly Constitution—once a week, with each of the above (except that The Weekly Constitution is substituted for the Tri-Weekly)—all for one year for only $1.40. The Tri-Weekly Constitution presents at the sweeping view the whole area of events. The news of the country, state, nation, and the world is given in each complete issue. Each week the departments of Farm and Farmers, Woman's Kingdom, Rural Free Delivery, Poultry and others of wide interest, edited by experts, appeal directly to those addressed.

The Weekly Constitution contains all these special features and the difference between it and The Tri-Weekly is that the one is issued once a week (on Monday only) and the other three times a week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

If you want The Constitution alone, without any clubbing offers, you can get The Tri-Weekly Constitution at $1 per year, or The Weekly at 50c per year, by addressing The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. One sample copy sent free on request, giving with it six of your neighbors.

The Constitution Is the Paper for Rural Free Delivery Routes

A club of 40 or 50 or more will keep an R. F. D. route above the minimum average required for daily mail service. It is the great news purveyor of the whole Southland, as good in the gulf states as on the Atlantic seaboard.

Clubbed with The Atlanta Constitution, we have the superb FREE OFFERS shown from which you may make your choice of one:

(1) Uncle Remus's Home Magazine—Founded by Joel Chandler Harris, the prince of all story writers, author of Uncle Remus folk-lore and other sketches. It is the magazine of the whole Southland, it is as broad as the nation in its scope and its species is confined to no section.

(2) Human Life, of Boston, Mass., a monthly magazine of current and interesting biography. It is about folks, people in the public eye now, that you want to know about, and it is of absorbing interest from cover to cover. Be sure to subscribe now in time to get the next great issue.

(3) Talks From Farmers to Farmers, a symposium of Southern farm knowledge that should be in the hands of every practical farmer, young or old. The articles have all appeared in Tri-Weekly Constitution under same title and made one of the greatest features of this splendid farmers' paper. It will be mailed to you immediately upon receipt of order.

(4) The Southern Ruralist, one of the best agricultural papers in the south. It is a semi-monthly edited by a farmer on his own farm, and is intensely practical and helpful.

Our Great Proposition

Remember, our paper one year, and THE TRI-WEEKLY CONSTITUTION, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, three times a week, for one year, and your selection of one from the four alternate free offers, all for $1.75; or the whole combination (except that The Weekly Constitution is substituted for the Tri-Weekly) for only..$1.40

Send at once. Get right on. Don't miss a copy. Address all orders for above combination to

THE BANNER, Clanton, Ala.

THE BANNER

FRANK CRICHTON, Editor and Publisher

Entered at the Post Office at Clanton, Ala., as second class mail matter.

"Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain.
Here patriot truth her glorious precepts draw,
Pledged to religion, liberty and law."

Subscription yearly - - - $1.00
Invariably in Advance.

Address all communications to
THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR CIRCUIT SOLICITOR.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the office of Solicitor of the 15th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, subject to the action of the next Democratic Primary.

Respectfully,
F. Loyd Tate.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Solicitor of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, including the counties of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

D. D. Askew.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Sheriff of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Lee Hayes.

FOR JUDGE OF PROBATE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Judge of Probate of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

E. B. Deason.

FOR CIRCUIT CLERK.

I announce myself as a candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Hugh M. Simpson.

FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Judge of the Fifteenth Judical Circuit of Alabama, composed of the counties of Autauga, Elmore, Chilton and Montgomery, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries.

W. W. Pearson.

FOR STATE SENATOR.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Senator from the Fifteenth Senatorial District of Alabama, subject to the action of the Democratic primary to be held on the 2nd day of May, 1910.

Thos. A. Curry.

FOR CONGRESS.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Representative from the Fourth District of Alabama to Congress, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

F. L. Blackmon.

FOR JUDGE OF THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Scott Sayre.

FOR SHERIFF.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for Sheriff of Chilton Co, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

John S. Catts.

JOHN S. CATTS.

Our present Sheriff, who was appointed by Gov. Comer to succeed the late deceased — is seeking an endorsement by the Democratic voters, and asks them for the nomination at the primary. Mr. Catts has an experience of the office which should aid him in the future if the voters see fit to give him the nomination.

She Got It All.

"Do you give your wife an allowance?"

"Yes."

"How much do you allow her?"

"Don't you think it is rather impertinent for you to ask what my salary is?"—Houston Post.

Friendly Advice.

Mrs. Jawback—The doctor says I must sleep with my mouth shut. How can I get into the habit? Mr. Jawback—Try practicing it when you are awake.—Cleveland Leader.

HON JOHN A. LUSK

Candidate for Associate Railroad Commissioner is a friend of the people. In the Senate he introduced and secured the passage of the 2 ½ cent passenger rate; the Prompt Settlement Act; the Anti-Pass Act; the Through Bill of Lading Act and many other laws for the protection of the people against unjust treatment by the Railroads.

He is filling the unexpired term of Major J. G. Harris as Railroad Commissioner, and asks that he be given the usual Democratic endorsement of a full term.

He stands for the fair and just enforcement of all laws. He is in favor of better equipment, buildings, accommodations and service by the railroads to the people.

When you ride 2 ½ cents remember that he led the fight to make it this. Fairness entitles Mr. Lusk to a full term. It is Democratic and all he asks is what is usually accorded by the party.

Foley's Kidney Remedy will cure any case of Kidney or Bladder trouble that is not beyond the reach of medicine. No medicine can do more. Upchurch Drug Co.

Game of Blacksmith.

Any number of boys and girls may take part in this game. The first thing to do is to "count out," as in hide and seek. Then the one who is counted out stands in the middle of a ring formed by the rest of the children playing. Next the person counted out, who is the blacksmith, tells the other boys and girls to drop their hands and stand still as mice. When the blacksmith is not looking the other players may move, but they must be careful not to let the blacksmith see them move. If he sees them move he can chase them, and when he catches one he must hold him while he calls out, "One, two, three, blacksmith!" The one caught must now help the one that is "it," the rest going through the same performance as when the blacksmith caught him. The first one caught is always "it" for the next game. Each one caught must help the blacksmith till all are caught. The blacksmith can tag no one until he has seen him move.

The Martyrs of the Air.

Death comes to daring spirits
Who wing the blue.
The sparrow's fall is heeded.
Will man's be too?
—New York Sun.

A Common Weakness.

Landlady—Yes; I must confess I have a weakness for coffee.

Boarder—It must be sympathetic. The coffee has the same quality.—Cleveland Leader.

The Peach.

May is a peach, they say.
Well, she is one, I'll own—
Her face is like its blush;
Her heart within—a stone.

A 50-cent bottle of

Scott's Emulsion

given in half-teaspoon doses four times a day, mixed in its bottle, will last a year-old baby nearly a month, and four bottles over three months, and will make the baby strong and well and will lay the foundation for a healthy, robust boy or girl.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

Send 10c., name of paper and this ad. for our beautiful Savings Bank and Child's Sketch-Book. Each bank contains a Good Luck Penny.

SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, N. Y.

Jackson's Chapel.

Editor Banner:—Please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words. We are having some fine weather for farming now, and farmers are taking advantage of it too. Our school is getting very small, at this place, on the account of such fine weather. The children are having to stop school to make ready for a new crop. Our Sunday school is getting very small too. It seems that we just can't keep our boys in our Sunday school. Boys, you would be thought much more of if you would only do your duty in Sunday school work. If it don't do you any good, I'm quite sure it won't do you harm, but it will do you much good.

We are very sorry to say that the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Weldon, last Sunday morning at 2 o'clock, and took away their loving little baby who had been sick for about two months. Weep not, dear father and mother, your dear one is not dead but just sleepeth. It is our loss but heaven's gain.

Some of our boys and girls went to Collins Chapel last Sunday, and reported a nice time; and others from this community went to Bethel and reported a nice time.

Mr. Arthur Wilson from Cane Creek made a flying visit down the road, somewhere Sunday evening.

Some of our boys reported a nice time at the dance Saturday night.

Folks, Easter is soon going to be here; get your eggs ready and we will have a big egg hunt.

Two Sweethearts.

IN MEMORY.

On Wednesday, March 9, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Thompson and took from them their loving grandson, Robert. He was only sick about nine days. All that a faithful physician, relatives and friends could do was not to raise him again. He leaves one sister, one brother and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss. No one on earth can fill dear Robert's place. He was just in the bloom of life, and it was so hard for his friends to give him up, but we feel sure that he is a white uringed angel in heaven with his mother and father who have gone on before. We have nothing of this world's consolation to offer. We don't feel that we could say anything that would fill the vacancy of this dear loved one, or ease your aching hearts. We must be prepared and live such a life that when we are called to go we can meet dear Robert in that fair land. Weep not, dear loved ones, he is not dead he is only sleeping.'

He was laid to rest in the Mountain Springs cemetery to a wait the coming of the judgment morning.

One of his friends.

Fully nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by all druggists.

ENDEAVOR CONVENTION.

April 15th-17th, 1910, the Alabama Christian Endeavor Union will hold its twentieth annual convention in the First Presbyterian church at Anniston, Ala., and will be entertained by the Endeavorers of Anniston and Oxford.

Recently two new societies have been organized in Anniston and a city C. E Union has begun its existance. The workers of these two cities are taking hold of the preperation of these coming meetings with enthusiasm and a great convention is assured.

Entertainment will be furnished free to all the delegates who attend this gathering.

Speakers of prominence are being secured.

An excellent chorus has been organized and is now working up the mutical features of the convention.

Mr. Karl Lehmann of Boston, Mass., Interstate Field Secretary of Christian Endeavor is now touring the state, holding rallies and conferences and organizing new societies in the various towns visited. He will conclude his work at the convention in Anniston and leave immediately for Tennessee where he is to conduct a similar campaign.

Ever Christian Endeavor society should plan to send delegates to this convention.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are safe, sure and reliable, and have been praised by thousands of women who have been restored to health through their gentle aid and curative properties. Sold by all druggists.

MINOOKA PUBLIC SCHOOL.

On the fourth of March the school closed at this place. It is gratifying to the entire community to know we have had the pleasure and opportunity of receiving the able service of Prof J Orman Dickinson. The closing day was emphasized by an interesting programme carefully prepared and rendered in a manner that brought joy to every heart present.

At two o'clock a students reception was given in the school building. This was quite an enjoyable feature of the day. Students and visitors participated in several indoor games. After enjoying several moments of such pleasure, refreshments were served by two accomplished young students, Misses Mayo Crim and Pearl McPherson. The reception was closed by a farewell address to the students by Prof. Dickinson. It was attentively listened to by every student. For thirty minutes words of earnest advice fell from a tongue trained by culture and education, based on sound principle. Should every student comply with the advice given in that eloquent address, more boys and girls would wear laurels of success in a higher altitude of life, and enjoy the great pleasure that flows from the fountain of knowledge.

At three o'clock the students were given a recess until 7 p.m. At that hour a large audience had assembled to witness the closing exercises of the school. When the curtains rose the audience beheld a living picture of a promising future in the bright faces that first appeared on the stage. This scene within itself gave evidence that we have received the best service that can possibly be given by one serving in the capacity of a teacher. The stage was elaborately decorated with national bunting, colors, flags, wreaths of cedar, flowers and palms. After a brief welcome address, the programme was impressively rendered. Every exercise was given with a degree of ease and gracefulness. The perfect rendition of each exercise gave evidence of careful training, accompanied by ability, energy and patience. The evening was highly enjoyed by the entire assembly. The emotions of every person was transfered from scenes of humor to those of pathos. At one instant the house was in a roar of laughter; at another the emotions were carried into feelings of deep subliminty. Mouths were stretched with laughter; eyes dimmed with tears.

The programme consisted of songs, recitations, declamations, monologues, and plays. The exercise was closed by an educational address by Prof. Dickinson. It was instructive, logical, and to the point. He earnestly appealed to the people to continue the great work, emphasizing the importance of intellectual training. He has been a great educational factor in our school, and we hope to be honored with his service the next scholastic year. After two years of efficient work, he leaves us a school properly organized, and our boys and girls marching up the path of intellectual achievement. From a personal knowledge, Prof. Dickinson possesses the high principles of manhood nurtured by culture, and education; he is an educator of ability and a Christian gentleman. Wherever he may go, it is the desire of his many friends, that he will meet with crowning success in whatever he may undertake. We wish him well, and implore the guidance of a divine power to enable him to continue the great work which he is so efficiently doing.

W. R. Houlditch,
Chairman Board of Trustees,
O. R. Vest, Secretary.
A. M. Rhodes.

Pretty Hard on Him.

Money market ain't a joke,
As any one can see,
Fer when they say it's "easy"
It's pretty hard on me!

I allus am suspicious,
I'm allus up a tree,
Fer when they say it's "easy"
It's pretty hard on me!
—Atlanta Constitution.

A Future Nuisance.

"Borrowing trouble again, are you? What's the matter now?"

"I was just wondering how it will be possible to keep unmannerly people from spitting overboard when everybody gets to flying."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mary's Mutton.

Mary had a little lamb
That filled her mind with grief.
She knew she'd get a better price
Had it been made of beef.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Stubborn As Mules

are liver and bowels sometimes; seem to balk without cause. Then there's trouble—Loss of Appetite—Indigestion, Nervousness, Despondency, Headache. But such troubles fly before Dr. King's New Life Pills, the world's best Stomach and Liver remedy. So easy. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Are You Honest?

With your land when for the sake of saving a few dollars you use a fertilizer whose only recommendation is its analysis. It requires no special knowledge to mix materials to analyses. The value of a fertilizer lies in the materials used, so as not to over feed the plant at one time and starve at another. This is why Royster brands are so popular. Every ingredient has its particular work to do. Twenty-five years experience in making goods for Southern crops has enabled us to know what is required.

See that trade mark is on every bag

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

F. S. Royster Guano Co.
NORFOLK, VA.

J. C. JONES & CO'

CLANTON, ALA.

For Fine Millinery and Notions

CALL ON

THE CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

Mrs, Clara Mullins, their manager, has just returned from the Northern markets with the best and most up-to date line of Millinery ever brought to Clanton, and solicits your trade. When in town make our store your headquarters. Respectfully,

CLANTON MILLINERY CO.

FREE INSURANCE!

A policy with our Company insures you against high prices. No high salaried officials to pay, no national campaign funds to contribute to, no object in view save the protection of the widow and orphans at the lowest possible cost compatible with absolute safety. The officers selected are among the most substantial, conservative and conscientious business men. We furnish insurance to both men and women at a price so low that it is within the reach of all. Old established Company. Each policy limited to one thousand dollars.

	COST.
Ages 16 to 30	$4.20
Ages 30 to 40	$5.00
Ages 40 to 50	$6.00
Ages 50 to 55	$7.00
Ages 55 to 60	$8.00

Agents wanted in every County in Alabama. Big Commissions
Furnish reference and write for particulars.

American Mutual Benefit Life Association of Alabama
HOME OFFICE
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Emmet O'Neal States His Position On Issues Confronting Voters

Candidate for Governor Does Not Mince Words In Telling Where He Stands. Pledges Himself to the Enforcement of Laws.

Believes the Recent Election Was a Vote of Want of Confidence in Administration—Would Return to Conservatism.

Col. Emmet O'Neal, of Florence, today makes public his views on questions before the people of the state. In making his formal announcement for governor of Alabama, he takes occasion to state plainly his attitude on leading questions now confronting the voters. His statement is as follows:

"In formally announcing my candidacy for nomination to the office of governor of Alabama, subject to the action of the democratic party, I deem it proper to submit my views on pending issues; as under the primary election system, candidates are nominated for state offices before party platforms are officially formulated.

"The office to which I aspire is the most important within the gift of the people and the incumbent has it within his power to advance or to retard to a marked degree the prosperity and welfare of the state.

"I pledge myself if nominated and elected to adhere strictly to the constitutional oath to enforce the laws as placed upon the statute books, and to so administer the duties of the office as to restore tranquility to our state and to secure to every interest equal and exact justice under the law.

"The legislature which convened in extraordinary session last summer submitted to the people within the earliest period allowed by the constitution an amendment to our organic law which precipitated a strenuous and bitter political campaign. A number of the representative men of the state who opposed this amendment met in conference at Montgomery and organized a campaign against its adoption. The platform of principles on which the defenders of the constitution overwhelmed the amendists declare that it was not their purpose to seek the restoration of the saloon in any place in Alabama nor to repeal the prohibition statutes if en on our books, but affirmed that these statutes were entitled to a full and fair trial. This declaration, made in good faith by a body of men composed of the representative citizenship of the state, one of the most notable and distinguished which has ever met in our capital, whose patriotism and sincerity can not be questioned, commits those who took part in that conference and in the campaign following it, to give these statutes a full and fair trial. Time and experience alone can demonstrate whether the policy now existing is a success or a failure. The vast majority of our people, those who advocate, as well as those who doubt the wisdom of statewide prohibition, seek the same end, the promotion of temperance and sobriety among our people. The laws constitutionally enacted to carry out this policy must be enforced as long as the people of Alabama, in the exercise of their sovereign power of self government, see fit to keep them on the statute books and until they express their will through the legislative department to revise, modify or repeal them.

"Certain provisions of the Carmichael and Fuller bills were criticised by most of the anti amendment speakers as violations of the constitution, but it is the province of our supreme court to determine these questions in the orderly course of judicial procedure and to their judgement we must all bow in submission. The constitution of the state provides that the right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate. Even though our supreme court should sustain that provision of the Fuller bill which gives the right of trial by jury on appeal where no jury is provided for in the trial court, it is still, in my judgment, a dangerous and unwarranted departure from the spirit and intent of the constitution. I am utterly opposed to the policy which would single out the violator in one class of offenses and deny to him those safeguards accorded to all others charged with crime however treacherous the crime might be. Our constitution really guarded the right of trial by jury as a shield of the citizen against tyranny and oppression, and the experience of ages has shown that it is the wisest mode yet devised to secure the impartial administration of our criminal laws. To trial by judge without a jury for the purpose of securing a conviction be adopted in one class of cases that system would be extended until the right of trial by jury is virtually abolished. No man charged with crime should be convicted except upon the verdict of a petit jury. Public servants doubt the wisdom of the action of withdrawing from the grand juries their discretion to indict or not in one class of misdemeanors and in authorizing prosecution by information. It is contrary to the genius of the common law and to the spirit of our constitutions. Certainly the integrity of the laws prohibiting the sale of liquor in Alabama will not be affected by compliance both with the spirit and the meaning of the constitution.

"Another lesson taught by the recent election was that the provision in the bill of rights which protects the citizen against unreasonable searches and seizures should be maintained in full force.

"The bitterness, acrimony and interferences with business incident to the recent election is to be deplored, but compensation is found in the renewed expression of the people's loyalty to those inalienable and reserved rights which are protected by our constitution against legislative encroachments.

"With the defeat of the amendment, with both sides to the recent controversy agreeing that the established policy of prohibition was entitled to a full and fair trial, it was to be hoped that this question would be removed from the domain of politics, and then our people would be allowed to address their thoughts to other important issues; yet if the utterances of the leaders of the amendment campaign are entitled to consideration, this hope is vain. They are unwilling to accept as final the verdict of the people as recently expressed and they seek to force the state into a renewal of the contest. I am sanguine that they will not be sustained by the large body of sincere men who supported the amendment from honest convictions, but they still have power to menace the peace and tranquility of the state.

Railroads.

"The result of the last state election showed that the consensus of public opinion in this state favored a more strict and systematic regulation and control of our common carriers engaged in intrastate trade. The constitution of the state makes all railroads not used for private purposes public highways, and subjects them to the paramount authority of the state. They are subject to state control, but such control must be exercised with due regard for constitutional guarantees for the protection of property.

"Railroads are not only essential and necessary factors in modern business, commercial and social life, but our development and progress demands additional transportation facilities. The public has a right to require from the public service corporations just and impartial services, without rebates, discriminations or extortions. They, on the other hand, are entitled to just and fair treatment and to the equal protection of the laws. There is no disposition on the part of our people to prevent those who have invested their earnings and savings in the stock of these public service corporations from receiving just and reasonable, and even liberal, compensation. But fair treatment by the state carries with it a reciprocal obligation of a just, efficient, impartial and courteous service, which, it has been truly said, 'brings its own reward in the creation of a generous public favor, the safest shield against hostile laws.' However, the fight of conservatism in the state, which disapproves of all laws which are harsh, retaliatory or inspired by a spirit of hostility, it is hoped will not be misinterpreted by our public corporations as authorizing hurtful discriminations or unjust tariff rates. It is a source of congratulation that we are happily approaching an era of much desired, of better feeling between the railroads and the people, 'an era of equal rights under just and impartial laws.'

"To develop our enormous resources and to insure steady employment of labor, we need more capital. To induce the investment of new capital in our borders, we must guarantee to the citizens of other states investing here the same rights and the same protection accorded to capital invested by our own people, no more and no less.

"I believe that the next democratic platform to be adopted in this state would correctly express the sentiments of our people should it pledge not only to citizens of this state, but to citizens of all other states, that all capital invested in legitimate enterprises in Alabama, whether foreign or domestic, corporate or private, shall have the equal protection of the laws and the equal friendly consideration of those who administer the laws.

Economy in Public Expenditures.

"The present legislature at its various sessions has made appropriations which have exceeded the current revenues of the state, and the treasury will again be confronted with a deficit next fall. The revenues of the state are restricted by a constitutional provision fixing a maximum rate for state taxation, but in many cases the burdens of taxation have been increased by means of larger assessed valuations.

"We should not exceed our income, and should use every possible effort to avoid increasing the burdens of taxation. We should pursue such a policy as would attract outside capital and convert idle property into productive property. The immediate result of this policy would be a large population, more employment for labor and a natural increase in taxable values which would augment the revenues of the state to an extent which would wipe out the annual deficit in the course of two or three years. Meanwhile the strictest economy compatible with the public welfare is imperative.

Public Education.

"The state has already made notable advances in the cause of public education. There should be no backward step. Every means within our power should be used to increase our educational facilities, and to advance our public school system, so that Alabama can take her proper rank among her sister states in the matter of public education.

Confederate Soldiers.

"Taking as she did first rank in war, it is my earnest hope that Alabama, now in her days of peace and prosperity, should take precedence of her sister states of the south in the munificence and liberality of her appropriations for the support and comfort of the Confederate soldier, whose glory is the richest heritage of a great people.

Continued to Fifth Column.

Greeting!

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF ALABAMA:

In presenting for your consideration the candidacy of Hon. Emmet O'Neal, of the County of Lauderdale, for the Democratic nomination for Governor, we do so with confidence in your patriotic desire for the welfare of the State, which welfare can best be assured by the executive direction of a strong, conservative force, splendidly personified in the honorable record of this distinguished Alabamian.

Confidence in the success of this candidacy is based upon an appreciation of the intelligence of the people, their desire for peace, progress and prosperity; their determination to give safe direction to the management of this great commonwealth, and to rescue it finally and forever from any and all tendencies and dangers which may have threatened, harassed and jeopardized its peace, its comfort and its promise of future greatness and glory.

We believe Hon. Emmet O'Neal truly represents the conservative, and yet progressive thought of the State, which is demanding, with a loud voice, a halt in the policies adopted the past few years by the Executive and Legislative branches of our State Government, which have proven expensive blunders, overburdening the tax-payers of the State, frightening capital and paralyzing industry.

We point with pride to the loyal verdict of the people at the polls last November, which resented the efforts of those who sought to write in the organic law of the State an amendment, which, to the great majority, appeared to be an effort "to invade the rights of the citizens in their homes and subject them to the humiliation of search and seizure."

We remember, with a degree of rejoicing, that a great conference of Alabamians, then loyal to the State, held at Montgomery on the 15th day of last September, the position and views of the Hon. Emmet O'Neal were adopted and promulgated, and now, having the seal of approval stamped upon them by on overwhelming majority of the voters of the State, are in perfect consonance with the platform of our distinguished candidate.

That conference at Montgomery emphasized the following; and patriotic consistency would seem to demand loyal adherence to the principles thus enunciated:

"That we criticise the efforts of those who encouraged the submission of said amendment at an enormous expense to the State, and at a time when it is entirely unnecessary, especially in view of the fact that it could have been submitted at the general election to be held next year, and by that time the people could have formed clearer views as to its efficacy or wisdom. If the prohibition statutes are to be enforced, no constitutional provision is essential; and if not, or cannot be enforced, there should not be any constitutional provision on the subject."

And again:

"We call special attention to the second section of the proposed amendment, which is as follows:

"'Nothing in the Constitution of Alabama shall be construed to prevent the Legislature, under police power, from designating places where such liquors may not be stored or kept.'

"We view this section with alarm, as an indication of a purpose by future laws to invade the rights of the citizens in their homes, however remote such homes may be from business centers, and to subject them to the humiliation of search and seizure."

The supporters of Hon. Emmet O'Neal insist upon it that these utterances have been passed upon, and the amendment defeated by the protesting will of the people of Alabama, no matter by whom they were framed or originally uttered; and that the presentation of the name of any man for the high office of Governor, who urged the proposition by pen, by tongue and by bitter invective and warfare against the view of a majority of the people of Alabama, is a political paradox without precedent, unequalled in inconsistency and audacity, by any political proposition ever submitted to a free people.

We do not believe the people will so far underestimate the glory of that victory, or prove themselves so ungrateful, as to desert the leadership which achieved it and place the banner in the hands of one who "ENCOURAGED SAID AMENDMENT AT AN ENORMOUS EXPENSE TO THE STATE AND AT A TIME WHEN IT WAS ENTIRELY UNNECESSARY."

We present the name of Hon. Emmet O'Neal as the embodiment of those great qualities of mind and heart so essential to the manhood of a worthy Governor.

An Alabamian by birth and education, he loves his state.

The son of an ex-Confederate soldier and of an ex-Governor, he bears a name which will draw all Alabamians close to him.

A lawyer by profession, he is competent to pilot the helm of state.

A Democrat by inheritance, training and many years of devotion to party service, he is of and from the people; liberal in his views and broad in his generosity.

An upright, moral citizen, he is a lover of home and family.

A devoted son of Alabama, he will, as Governor, do honor to the position.

Very respectfully,

J. LEE LONG, Chairman.

O'Neal Campaign Committee.

Weatherly Gives Support to O'Neal; Tells Why He Should be Elected

Predicts O'Neal Will Be Nominated and Elected and Will Make One of the Best Governors Alabama Has Ever Had.

The claims of Emmet O'Neal for the governorship of Alabama could not be more clearly nor more forcibly set forth than in the clear, concise words of James Weatherly, one of his most enthusiastic supporters.

Mr. Weatherly comes out strongly for a fighter, not a quitter, and reviews Mr. O'Neal's record which has been one of high standards, and open conviction. Here is Mr. Weatherly's letter:

Birmingham, Ala., February 9, 1910.
To Hon. Thomas H. Molton, Chairman O'Neal Campaign Committee.

Sir: In response to your request, I hereby make this public statement of my reasons for advocating the nomination of the Hon. Emmett O'Neal as the democratic candidate for governor of Alabama.

When it was attempted by the extreme prohibitionists to incorporate in the constitution an amendment which not only prohibited the sale or giving away of intoxicating liquors, but conferred unlimited power on the the legislature to declare all intoxicating liquors contraband, without regard to place or use, Mr. O'Neal was among the first to discern the danger, and it was mainly through his efforts that an organization in opposition to the amendment was effected, which resulted in the overwhelming defeat of the amendment.

In the anti amendment campaign Mr. O'Neal took a leading, if not the leading part in opposition. He went everywhere in the state educating the people, and his efforts in that behalf were perhaps more effective than those of any other single campaigner in that memorable anti-amendment contest.

If we, who opposed that emendment as involving a menace to individual liberty as guaranteed in our bill of rights, were right in our judgment, then Mr. O'Neal is entitled to the credit of having waved the first danger signal, of having been one of the leaders in organizing against the amendment, and, perhaps, the principal factor in achieving its defeat.

Is it anything but right and just that those who were opposed to the amendment should give due credit to Mr. O'Neal for this great victory for personal liberty? It seems to me that his great fight against this dangerous proposition should be recognized and rewarded.

During the campaign Mr. O'Neal stood squarely on the declaration of principles put forth in the Montgomery conference, which he helped to organize against the amendment. That declaration contained two fundamental propositions: First, that the amendment was not only unwise and inexpedient, but involved a fundamental departure from the true principles of popular government; second, that the laws on the statute books to prohibit the sale or other disposition of intoxicating liquor in Alabama must be faithfully and honestly executed and upheld.

The amendment having been defeated on this declaration of principles, Mr. O'Neal, as a candidate for governor, stands squarely on those principles. He is irrevocably opposed to any change in our constitution or laws that would permit or empower the invasion of private homes, or personal liberty, under color of law. In this he has proved his faith by his works. Some others have not. He is now, as he was throughout the late campaign, for executing and upholding the laws as they exist on the statute books, and this will be his policy as governor.

I do not doubt that, should an [illegible] be made during his administra[tion] which God forbid—to gratify son[e] and strange reform in the fun[da]tal law of the land, like the la[te] ceased prohibition amendm[ent] would not be frightened or s[tart] his feet by any hue and cry, [however] well organized; nor would he [tamely] suffer himself to be pushed [from] cal action by noisy bands o[f self-called] reformers. He would hav[e the grit] and the backbone to stan[d squarely] by the old landmarks of liber[ty].

The people should rem[ember those] who stood by them in [the hour of] need; they should weigh [and ponder] the character, the temperament and the past history of those [who are seek]ing to be made governor. By their votes, and sift out the man of purpose and conviction and courage and vote for him.

The people like a fighter and do not like a quitter.

Mr. O'Neal is a conservative man by temperament, yet he is keenly alive, intellectually alert to the quickening life of a progressive state, such as Alabama. He is not a pessimist. He has never contented himself doing the work at hand quietly and well. Such conduct deserves recognition in these days of bombast, exploitation and windy dem[agogy].

As a member of the [constitutional] convention, whose action [restricted] elective franchise from [those who] purged it of its viciousness, [he] was always deeply in earnest, tremendously active, always outspoken; and always on the ground. Mr. O'Neal has the intellectual temperament. He [reads] of political questions on [which] and his writings in the magazines [exhibit] habit care and thoughtfulness of discrimination, as well as a knowledge of our constitution and political history. I do not hesitate to say his record will compare most favorably with that of any of his distinguished opponents for this office.

Mr. O'Neal thinks that the people are tired of politics and want a rest, at least, from new and strange and agitating questions. Nevertheless, he feels a just pride in this great and growing state and looks to its future with abounding hope. He will, with courage, by all means in his power, by the upbuilding of Alabama's vast material intrests, the increase of her wealth and population, the education of her children and the general welfare of her people.

He will belong to no [faction] of men, individual or [corporation]. He is ambitious to make a worthy [Alabama] governor, and to leave for his [administration] a record that will go down in history as sound, business like, safeguarded, efficient and honorable.

I predict that Mr. O'Neal will be nominated and elected, and that he will make one of the best governors Alabama has ever had.

Very truly yours,
JAMES WEATHERLY.

EMMET O'NEAL STATES HIS POSITION.

Continued from Second Column.

Agricultural Interests.

"With a soil capable of producing every variety of product known to the temperate zone, notwithstanding our marvelous industrial and manufacturing development, agriculture constitutes the chief ocupation of a majority of our people and it is upon the industry and intelligence of our farmers that rests our chief sources of wealth and power. We should not forget that Alabama in common with her sister states of the south possesses a monopoly of a product upon which largely rests the commercial supremacy of the nation. The completion of the Panama canal, saving the long hauls from the cotton fields of the south across the Atlantic ocean and via the Suez canal to the teeming millions of the Orient, will enormously increase the consumption and demand for cotton and cotton goods, and enhance the value of this important product. It is the imperative duty of the state to foster and increase the power and usefulness of the department of agriculture and give greater encouragement to industrial education and improved methods of farming.

Public Roads.

"While we have made marked progress in the improvement of our public roads and highways, the present system is utterly inadequate. It should be the duty of the legislature to adopt such laws as will place Alabama alongside other states where greater progress has been made in this important matter. No state has such abundant and cheap material for road building, and no public expenditure will bring more munificent returns.

Other Questions.

"There are other questions of importance, the discussion of which would unduly lengthen this paper, but which will receive proper attention during the campaign.

"The executive may recommend legislation, but the duty of making the law rests with the legislature. Our state constitution forbids in expressed terms one department from encroaching upon the duties of the other, and recognizes the supremacy and independence of each, within its proper sphere, being safeguards [of] republican government.

"The result of the recent election meant more than the defeat of the amendment. It was a protest against extreme, intemperate and radical legislation; against extravagance and waste in public expenditures, and against the political turmoil and agitation into which the state has been plunged by the ambition and schemes of selfish politicians. It was a vote of want of confidence in the present administration and a demand for a return to that spirit of conservatism which, while wisely progressive, refuses to embark the state in every half-considered legislative experiment or dangerous innovation, but moves with justice, moderation and impartiality as its guide, security to every legitimate interest the equal protection of the law. It was a protest against legislative encroachments and trespass upon those reserved rights of the people which in the language of the constitution, 'shall remain inviolate.' The verdict of the people so clearly expressed should be accepted in good faith.

"No state possesses such resources or offers such generous opportunities to enterprises and labor as Alabama. Power and wealth lie at our door. Our navigable streams and water courses furnish enormous power, which will be harnessed and applied to the uses of commerce, yet as has been truly said, 'when the harvest from the field, the cattle from the hills and the ores from the earth shall have been weighed, counted and valued, will turn from them all to crown with the highest honor that state that has most promoted education, justice and patriotism among its people.' With malice toward none, with charity for all,' I submit my claims to the party whose principles I have always been attached, and in whose service I have since manhood faithfully and earnestly labored.

"EMMET O'NEAL."

GLIMPSE OF THE HOME LIFE OF COLONEL EMMET O'NEAL

COL EMMET O'NEAL

MRS. EMMET O'NEAL

HOME OF EMMET O'NEAL

KIRKMAN O'NEAL

MISS OLIVIA O'NEAL

olonel O'Neal Was Born In Lauderdale and Two Interesting Children, a Son and Daughter, Make Up Most Ideal Family Circle.

Home Life is Simple and Democratic.
Intimate Study of Political Leader.

in the Age Herald.

Simplicity of Life

Is Plain Citizen

Miss Olivia O'Neal.

Hears Brooks Lawrence

A True Helpmeet

O'NEAL HOTLY REPLIES

TO COLONEL MALLORY'S CAMPAIGN MANAGER

Declares No One Has Appointed Him

Son of Governor O'Neal

TOWN ITEMS.

...ioners' court meets second Mon... February, first Monday in April, first ... of June, second Monday in July ... Monday in August and first Monday ...ember.

CLANTON COTTON MART
...to day.....14½ @ 14¾c
...ame date last year 9½ @ 10c
...ales recorded to date
...Warehouse receipts
...5 p.m. Wednesday....5936

...STRAY.—About three weeks ago, ...ge Bull Dog; white except a ...brindle on tip of right ear ...ers to L. E. GULLAHORN and ...reward.

...J. Scott, who successfully ...ted a photo studio in Birm... ...m for 12 years, will open a ...class studio in Clanton, in the ...olds building as soon as the ...sary remodelling is completed.

...Mrs. D. R. Jackson of Randolph ...a few days with friends in ...on this week.

...Mr. Tom Thornton of Birming... ...is spending a few days with ...sister Miss Rosa Thornton.

...Miss Minnie Muse is having her ...al spring opening to day ...nday.

...Miss Johnson of Jemison spent a ...days with Mrs. Jno. A. ...ss last week.

...ome to the opening of the ...n Millinery Co., which will ...place on Thursday and Friday, ...th 17 and 18.

...Mr. Walter Perry of Blocton was ...itor to the family of Rev. F. ...Woods last week.

...Mr. R. H. Nelson of Selma was ...come visitor here Sunday.

...all on Miss Minnie Muse for ...latest thing in neck wear turban ...turban pins, belting, belt ...etc.

...Mr. A. M. Gowan spent Monday ...in Birmingham.

...Mr. A. J. Tyus, wife and daugh... ...were visitors here Saturday.

...Mrs. Renfroe Mullins and child ...ned home from Montgomery ...day.

...Mr. Jesse Woodyard of Birming... ...spent Sunday in Clanton.

...Misses Marvin and Will Wilson ...are attending school at High... ...Home, came here to attend the ...al of their brother, Mr. Charlie ...on.

...Miss Eula Wilson returned to her ...in Birmingham Sunday after ...pleasant visit to her cousin Miss ...r Palmer.

...pneumonia follows a cold but ...follows the use of Foley's ...and Tar which stops the ...heals the lungs and expels ...it from the system. Upchurch ...Co.

...Miss Nellie Dominy of Union ...is visiting her aunt, Mrs. ...Giles.

...Mr. Gus Carlee of Riderville was ...some visitor here Monday.

...Mr. Heath visited the capital ...Monday.

...Misses Daisy Norris, Miss Dawson ...and Harris from Mountain ...were visitors to Clanton ...Monday.

...Mr. Golder Palmer returned ...Monday from Birmingham.

...Miss Bertha Sorrell, of Birming... ...visiting her aunt, Mrs. ...Mat Calera.

...Mr. Frank Crichton and wife ...Monday in Birmingham.

...Mr. M. Adams of Thorsby ...visitor here Sunday.

...Mr. Adams of Thorsby was in ...Thursday.

...New Turban Crowns call on ...Millinery Co.

...licenses have been issued ...by the Probate Judge to ...ing persons.

...J. Tyus and Mrs. Maggie ...Mr. E. F. Sewell and Miss ...Roseberry; Mr. E. F. ...and Miss Eliza J. Gains; ...N. Henson and Miss ...Williams.

...George Williams and ...Hendrick; Carter Terrell ...Wooley.

LISTEN!

...ce is here for cleaning ...and beautifying our ...little Matting or an Art ...a few Rugs is economy ...thing of looks comfort. ...does not only wear out ...but many colds and some... ...monia is contracted by ...a house with damp ...

...find special prices on ...at.

...ER'S CASH STORE

New Goods

We have them in beautiful display!

Call in and look around! Any time!

E. M. PINCKARD & CO.

CLANTON

"SAY"

Our Spring line is complete in all departments and awaits your inspection.

"SAY," Shoe styles, right up to the minute. Thank you. Come in!

All at a live and let live price. 16 ounces to the pound.

Your friend,

W. H. SARTOR

Cor. 2d Ave and 7th St.

CLANTON, ALA.

B. E. JONES — CHIT JONES

B. E. JONES & BRO.

WE KEEP A NICE SELECTION OF

Dry Goods. Shoes, Hats, Notions

FAMILY GROCERIES, ETC.

and will be pleased at your patronage.

Respectfully

B. E. JONES & BRO.

CLANTON, ALA.

Announcement Extraordinary!

GREAT CASH REALIZATION SALE!!!

Merchandise Doomed to the Slaughter!!

The citizens of Chilton county are to be treated to the greatest bargain event that ever took place in the history of her mercantile life.

On FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25th, C. W. REYNOLDS will throw upon the market the largest aggregation of General and Staple Merchandise ever collected under one roof in this good county of Chilton.

Genuine bargains in all departments at astonishingly low prices.

On THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, our store will be closed during the entire day to enable our clerks to mark all goods in plain figures; no goods will be sold to any one on this day.

We have calculated the amount we are able to lose on this tremendous sale and have accordingly "cut out" the profits and much of the cost.

EVERY ARTICLE OF MERCHANDISE

is to be slaughtered.

WE ARE DETERMINED NOT TO RESERVE

goods of any kind or character if price inducements will move them.

FOR FULL THIRTY DAYS AND THIRTY NIGHTS

beginning Friday, February 25th, and continuing through Friday March 25th, this gigantic slaughtering carnival will run.

PROFITS ARE ACTUALLY EMASCULATED

and in many instances, too numerous to mention. COST is eliminated

WHATEVER YOUR WANTS OR NECESSITIES

we can fill them, and at prices so surprisingly below what you have always paid for the same goods as to make you feel as if we had presented them to you.

SEE OUR BIG CIRCULAR

which gives you an idea of some of the bargains we are to offer you during this memorable sale. With such a large and diversified stock it would be impossible to enumerate even a small part of the bargains but the CIRCULAR will enable you to form some kind of an estimate of the great PARLIAMENT of cut prices here inaugurated.

SAVE YOUR CASH FOR THIS SALE

do not be deceived into believing that you can get bargains "just as good or just as cheap" elsewhere for it cannot be done. OTHERS MAY strive to imitate, but not one can equal the sales put on under our personal supervision.

REMEMBER THE DATE AND REMEMBER THE PLACE

February 25th to March 25th, 1910

CHARLES W. REYNOLDS

CLANTON, ALA.

Geo. G. Ehrenborg, C. E.

CIVIL, MINING & MUNICIPAL ENGINEER

County Surveyor Chilton County

BRIERFIELD, ALA.

Personal.

Be sure and go to hear Frank Allen Peake, the noted Lecturer and versatile Entertainer who will give Clanton three evenings this week the 16 17 and 18, under the auspices of the Baptist and Methodist Ladies Aid Societys.

We hope Clanton will show its appreciation of a high grade Entertainment, by giving Mr. Peake a full house. He will use the Clanton academy to get the use of a piano for the musical part of the programme.

Mr. A. J. Penton, of Verbena, was a pleasant caller Saturday.

Mr. G. W. Willis of Route No. 1 was a welcome visitor Friday.

The powder puff removes more tear stains from the average woman's face than sympathy ever could.

A Pleasant Physic.

When you want a pleasant physic give Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets a trial. They are mild and gentle in their action and always produce a pleasant cathartic effect. Call at all druggists for a free sample.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back of the head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3 50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this:

Dr. A. E. Robinson, K 1141 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

MISS M. MUSE

Has spent one week in New York and one in St. Louis selecting her stock of Spring Millinery, which is the prettiest that she has ever brought to this market. Her line of Children's Hats is especially attractive, and she has a beautiful line of Jabots, Turban Pins, Hair Goods and Turban Caps for the new arrangement of the hair. She will be assisted again by Mrs. Phillips, and they solicit the patronage of their friends and customers, and will spare no pains in satisfying your taste and your pocket book

MISS MINNIE MUSE

CLANTON, ALA.

Special Notice

TO THE FARMERS

We have on hand 50 PLOW STOCKS complete, which we are closing out at $1.25, regular price, and to each purson who buys one we will give 1 PAIR OF 50 CENT HAMES FREE. Only a few left. Come Quick.

A. HEADLEY & CO.

CORNER SECOND AVE., AT DEPOT.

CLANTON, ALA.

—GO TO—

A. M. JOHNSON'S CASH GROCERY STORE

THORSBY, ALA.

FOR BARGAINS IN

Staple and Fancy Groceries

Job Printing cheap at THE BANNER Office

Attention Farmers!

It is now planting time and we wish that you see the John Deere Cotton and Corn Planter and the Cole comlination Planters before you begin planting.

These Planters do excellent work; distribute the seed regularly and in line; saves labor and time and you cannot well afford to be without them.

The Seay and the Howard Fertilizer Distributors do splendid work and are the most successful Distributors on the market and fully guaranteed.

We carry the largest assortment of Tools and Farm Implements you will find anywhere and will be pleased to show them to you at any time.

If it's Hardware We have it! GAMBLE HARDWARE CO. If we have it It's the le!

CLANTON, WETUMPKA, ALEXANDER CITY

How Love Came to Harriet

By Temple Bailey

(Copyright, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.)

Harriet threw her books on the couch and said in a tone of disgust: "Everything is so different this year, and horrid—"

Mazie looked up languidly. "What's the matter?"

Harriet sat down on the foot of the couch. "Well, last year all the girls were just jolly and simple and natural, and now they've all come back in love. Four of them engaged, and the rest—mooning."

Mazie laughed. "Well, they are old enough, aren't they?" she demanded. "This is their senior year."

"Yes, they are old enough," Harriet admitted, "but I don't see why they wanted to tie themselves up, and now they can't talk of anything but romance and roses, and they are always writing letters. Even you, Mazie, when I begin to talk on sensible subjects, your eyes get dreamy, and before I know it you are asking me if I don't like blue-eyed men better than brown-eyed ones."

Mazie blushed. "You'll know how it is yourself some day, Harriet."

"If I do," said Harriet, fiercely, "no one will know a thing about it. I'll keep it to myself, and not go around looking like a dying calf."

Mazie's laughter rippled. "You couldn't hide it, Harry—no woman can."

"Well, you see," Harriet said, "but I'm not going to fall in love—I'm going to stick strictly to books and let boys alone."

"Of course," said Mazie, demurely. "I wish you joy, Harriet."

They studied in silence for awhile, then Harriet said, "I am going for a walk—want to go, Mazie?"

Mazie's eyes twinkled. "I've got a letter to write, Harriet."

"To Bob?" Harriet demanded.

"Yes."

"But you wrote to him yesterday."

"Why not?"

"Oh, you are hopeless," said Harriet, and flung herself out of the room.

On the way downstairs she met four dreamy maidens, each of whom refused her invitation to walk, and Harriet laughed and joked and teased, but when at last she was out on the snowy path her eyes were full of tears. It was not easy to make new friends, and last year she had had such close companionship.

She went down the Lake road, head up, cheeks red, trying to walk off the blues that oppressed her.

And because her head was up she slipped on an icy stretch of ground, twisted her ankle and fell in a forlorn heap.

And there a plodding old farmer, with his plodding team, found her, a half hour later, half frozen in the middle of the road.

"I called and called," Harriet said, "and I couldn't make anybody hear."

"There wasn't anybody to hear," said the old man. "I was on my way to the mill, but they ain't many goes this way—"

"If you could take me to the—" Harriet began, as she tried to stand up, and then, before she could finish her sentence, she fainted dead away.

"Hum," said the old man, and rubbed his stubby chin. Then he loaded her into the wagon like a sack of meal, and never stopped driving until he had reached the office of the only doctor in the town.

When Harriet opened her eyes, some one was saying: "It's a pretty bad sprain; she'll have to stay here for some time."

Harriet's eyes came open with a snap.

"I've got to get back," she said, with decision.

The doctor laughed—a mellow laugh that Harriet liked.

"You are going to stay here for ten days."

"But they won't allow it—the faculty, I mean—the girls have to be in the dormitory every night."

"I telephoned up to the college," the doctor said, "and they are going to send one of the teachers to stay with you."

He had a way with him that seemed to settle things, and Harriet found herself acquiescing meekly.

"Well, I'm glad it's one of the teachers you sent for," she remarked, "and not one of the girls."

"Why?"

"Because the girls are all in love. It's a perfect epidemic. If you had a cure for hearts you could get a good practice up there in the dormitory."

"They wouldn't employ me," his amused glance met her. "They don't want to be cured."

"Well, they are silly," Harriet said.

"No," he contradicted, "they are not."

She looked up quickly. "But they are so young—and there's so much in life besides love."

"There is nothing in life," he told her gravely, "but love—love of one's fellow men, love of God, the love of family, of friends, and, greatest of all, the love of the lover for the woman who shares his life."

Harriet was thrilled by the way he said it. His wife must be a happy woman she thought.

She said as much to Miss Flick, the little English teacher, when they had been in the doctor's home for over a week. "How happy his wife must be."

For Dr. Redmond was one of the men who, in a selfish world, forgot himself and lived only for the poor souls who depended upon him. Night and day he toiled, glorying in his opportunities, never too tired nor too busy to give himself for others.

Harriet thought of the boys she had known—nice fellows, but occupied with having a good time. She decided that if she ever married she would choose a man like the doctor.

She wondered what kind of woman his wife might be, and complained to Miss Flick. "The doctor's wife hasn't been in to see once."

"My dear," Miss Flick exclaimed, "he isn't married."

"But the maid spoke of Mrs. Redmond."

"That was his mother who was over for the day."

"Oh," said Harriet.

Of course, everybody knows what happened. Harriet fell in love with Dr. Redmond.

"But no one shall ever guess," she resolved, bravely.

But that night as she lay on the couch in the living room, with Miss Flick downstairs, eating her dinner, the doctor came in.

"Better, little girl?" he asked.

"Yes," Harriet's tone was subdued.

He sat down beside the couch. "You'll be well enough to go back to-morrow," he said, "and I know you want to get at your studies."

Studies! Harriet had forgotten that such things as books existed.

"Oh, yes, of course," she stammered.

He gazed into the fire, his grave eyes intent on the dancing flames. "I shall miss you—" he said at last.

Harriet caught her breath. "It has been nice to be here."

He turned to her suddenly. "I wish I might say to you all that's in my heart," he said. "I'm such a lonely old fellow, and you fit in somehow—into my life. You are so straightforward and sweet—and dear—Harriet."

And then he asked her to marry him, and Harriet, man-hating Harriet, said "Yes."

"But you mustn't tell any one," she warned him, "not a soul shall know until spring."

She went back to school the next day, arriving at three o'clock. And at five she wrote a note. At seven, as she sat studying with Mazie, she caught the eyes of her roommate fixed upon her. "Harriet," Mazie said, reproachfully, "I don't believe you know a word in that book—it's upside down."

And Harriet blushed.

Mazie came and sat down on the stool at her friend's feet. "And you are different, somehow," she went on; "if it was anybody else, I should say you were in love."

And then Harriet confessed, unexpectedly, "I am. And, oh, Mazie, he is the dearest thing."

And Mazie, having kissed her, triumphantly remarked: "I told you, Harriet—I told you you would be like any other girl when love really came."

Caught by Sun.

"I've got an old straw hat," said the impecunious girl, "that I wear out in the rain, never anything else, and when it is raining the darned old thing looks very well, humid, you know, with the straw soaking nicely and the big black bow doing the same.

"Well, it rained this morning and I went out in my old hat. Then, just as my luck would have it, about noon it quit and the sun came out bright as you please, brighter than usual, it seemed to me, and there I was in broad daylight in my old black straw hat. That wasn't enough mortification, but I must go shopping in it. Do you know, I sat at that stocking counter for three-quarters of an hour before the stylish girl in black and blonde hair would even notice that I was there? When she did finally wait on me she kept looking at my hat so hard I nearly broke down and cried. Never again! That hat goes to my washerwoman for a present.

Expansion.

"So your wife is a suffragette?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton.

"Why does she want to vote?"

"I don't think Henrietta really desires to vote. She's merely tired of talking to me. She wants a larger and more intelligent audience."

An Off-Hand Archaeologist.

"I wonder what these figures signify?" said the professors.

"Those carved representations of fighting men?"

"Yes."

"Oh, you've probably gotten hold of some prehistoric sport page."

A Fish With Teeth on His Tongue.

The biggest of fresh water fishes, the "arapaima" of the Amazon, in South America, which grows to six feet in length, has teeth on its tongue, so that the latter resembles the file and is used as such. Some kinds of trout also have the same peculiarity. Fishes that swallow their prey entire have their teeth so supported on flexible bases as to bend backward, but not forward, in order that their victims shall not escape after they have been once seized. In ages gone by there were ferocious sharks, seventy feet in length, such as would make a mouthful of you without blinking. Plenty of their teeth have been found which are five inches long, whereas the biggest of the teeth belonging to sharks that exist at the present day are one and a half inches long. Speaking of extinct creatures reminds us that all of the early birds—those of early geological times, that is—had teeth, with which they captured the early worms of the same period. Being descendant from reptiles, it is natural that they should possess a dental equipment, but when they ceased to be carnivorous they had no teeth any longer.

Perhaps.

"I don't have no opinion of these newfangled women's notions," said Mr. Hyde when his wife timidly expressed her desire to join the Woman's Self Improvement society.

"But we learn so much there," ventured Mrs. Hyde.

"Don't believe it!" snapped Mr. Hyde. "Women don't know much, that's a fact, but let 'em stick to their domestic duties and learn them. That's my opinion. Let 'em follow St. Paul's injunction—stay at home and ask their husbands if they want to know anything."

"But, John"—

"I've settled it, and that's enough, Jane."

"But, John, that's what women have been doing all this time, and perhaps that's the reason they don't know much."

And then Mr. Hyde threw his boot at the cat and boxed Freddy's ears for grinning.—Pearson's.

An Eye to Business.

One day a man with a case full of handbills entered a restaurant in Cincinnati run by an astute old German.

"Vot haf you dere?" the latter asked as he observed the man about to display several of the bills on his walls.

"Railway circulars—excursion."

"Oh, ho," exclaimed the proprietor, "one of dose cheap ten day exgursions! Go avay cheaper vot you stay at home, eh?"

"Exactly," said the bill man.

"Und you vant to hang dem up here?"

"Certainly. You've no objection?"

"I haf most clear objections," said the German decidedly. "Dake dem avay! Do you dake me for a fool, man, dot I vould vant my customers to read dose bills und den go avay und eat at some cheap place for ten days?"—Detroit Free Press.

The Ladder.

"Yes; I began at the bottom of the ladder, and now look at me!"

"But you admit, do you, that somebody else provided the ladder?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Nothing So Sordid.

Young love its little quarrels has,
Its passing grief,
But not upon such subjects as
The price of beef.
—Pittsburg Post.

Circumstantial Evidence.

"De Villers has quit scorching."

"Machine all in?"

"Nope; he's dead."

"Oh, that doesn't prove anything!"—Harper's Weekly.

Would Have Cost Him His Life.

Oscar Bowman, Lebanon, Ky., writes: I have used Foley's Kidney Remedy and take great pleasure in saying it cured me permanently of kidney disease which certainly would have cost me my life." Upchurch Drug Co.

Best Stomach Remedy Free

It is an old saying that if the stomach is sound the whole body is safe, because so much depends upon the proper working of the stomach. Many persons find themselves with a disorder of the stomach which produces dyspepsia or a peculiar state of biliousness.

If you suffer from both stomach trouble and constipation you are on the way to a very serious disease. From just such conditions come appendicitis, rheumatism, skin diseases and similar disorders, because the waste matter that should have been dispelled from the system through the bowels has found its way into the blood and vitiated it. What is needed at this point is not simply a violent cathartic tablet or salt, which usually does more harm than good, but a gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which people have been using for these ailments for nearly a quarter of a century. It cured J. C. Lanham, of Warrensburg, Mo., of stomach trouble of long standing, also William Voll, of 903 Ellison St., Louisville, Ky., who had the trouble for fifteen years.

However, if you have stomach trouble you want to know from personal experience what Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will do for you. If so, send your name to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you. You are urged to send for the free bottle, as the results from it will be the best recommendation of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Then you will do as over two million people did last year—go to your druggist and buy a regular bottle at 50 cents or $1, according to the size you prefer. We could mention hundreds and hundreds of families who are never without it. You can never tell when some member of the family will need a laxative, and then no time should be lost taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 500 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

For sale by Upchurch Drug co

The Fun of the Farce.

It is related that the manager of a theater consented to hear in his room a young man who had an unfortunate impediment in his speech read a short farce, the sole condition being that it should not occupy more time than it took to finish the cigar the manager had just lit. They both started, the one reading, the other smoking, but as the mild Havana gradually grew shorter the worse the young author spluttered. They finished together. Of course the question was immediately put, "What do you think of it?"

"Well," replied the manager, "it's not a half bad idea. Father, mother, lover, daughter, all stuttering, will be novel!"

The author, furious, exclaimed: "They don't stammer! It is only my misfortune."

"Oh, then, the play isn't funny at all! Sorry that I can't accept it," returned the manager.

Its Origin.

Fair Cleopatra held the adder,
And as it to her clung
She smiled, though pale and sadder,
And gently whispered, "Stung!"
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Cause For Congratulation.

"Say," said the friend, "I'm in need of a little money."

"Bully for you, old man. I congratulate you," replied the other. "You're ten times better off than I am. I need a whole lot of it."—Detroit Free Press.

Can Walk Now.

Many people in the Southern States have been cured of Kidney and Bladder diseases after physicians have failed, by using U R A CURA. Mr. J. Gallual, of Cleveland, Ala., writes: "I can recommend your U. R A. URA to neighbors. It has done me wonderful good. I am on my eighth bottle and can walk now. I was at first walking only when they helped me—suffered from Kidney and Bladder troubles. I am grateful to U R A CURA. Druggists sell it. It is a reputable remedy at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Try it and be convinced.

Pure Whiskey Often Prevents Sickness

Many a serious sickness has been checked in time by the judicious use of

Sunny Brook
THE PURE FOOD
Whiskey

As a healthful tonic for home use or a wholesome stimulant in case of accidents or sudden illness, it has no equal. No home should be without it. Its moderate use is highly beneficial to those who are ailing and it will increase the vigor of those who are well. Genuine SUNNY BROOK Pure Food Whiskey is U. S. Standard (100%) proof and every bottle bears the "Government Green Stamp" showing the correct age and measure.

SUNNY BROOK DISTILLERY CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

4—FULL QUARTS—$5
BY EXPRESS PREPAID

From any of the following Distributors:

Paul Heyman	Chattanooga, Tenn.
M. Marbstein	123 Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
L. G. Daniel & Co.	636 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.
H. Scott Liquor Co.	210-212 Chartres St. "
S. Funkenstein Co., Ltd.	541 Magazine St. "
Estate of Charles Feahney	511 Pampart St. "
Orell Trading Co.	Pensacola Fla.
Sam Baumgarten & Co.	Memphis, Tenn.
Brooks & Villar	Pensacola, Fla.
L. Loeb Whiskey Co.	Jacksonville, Fla.

SHIPPED IN PLAIN BOXES. SEND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
NO GOODS SHIPPED C. O. D.

You Need it in Your Home

THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the SOUTHERN RURALIST is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The RURALIST pays $20.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

THE SOUTHERN RURALIST
Subscription Price $1.00 a year. It goes to 100,000 homes already. You should belong to this big family.

REGULAR DEPARTMENTS AND STAFF WRITERS

Dr. H. E. Stockbridge Agricultural Editor; P. J. Merriam, Ge... ...ture ment; Professor T. H. McHatton, Georgia Experiment Station ...dairy; Department; Professor C. L. Willoughby, Georgia Experiment ... ...; Dr. Professor P. N. Flint, Georgia Experiment Station, Live Stock D... Professor Veterinary Science, Alabama Agricultural C...ge, Veterinary Department; Judge F. J. Marshall, Poultry Department; Mrs. P. J. Merriam, Home Department. A good story or serial in every number.

Every issue is worth the price of a year's subscription to the man who will take and read THE SOUTHERN RURALIST.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The Southern Ruralist free or two papers for the price of one.

By special arrangement with the SOUTHERN RURALIST we are able to offer it to our friends free with a year's subscription to this paper at

The Banner and Southern Ruralist for $1.00.

THINK OF
Mexican Mustang Liniment
AND WHAT IT MEANS TO YOU.

Relief from pain that might otherwise cause you hours of agony.

Tired out muscles eased up and made ready for another day's work.

Lameness in the back and shoulders promptly cured and stiff joints limbered up.

Burns, Scalds, Cuts and Mashes rendered painless and quickly healed.

Rheumatism, Lumbago and Sciatica robbed of their anguish and banished forever.

Ulcers, Old Sores and Open Wounds healed promptly and permanently.

The first application of Mexican Mustang Liniment subdues the pain but it continues its work until every quivering nerve is soothed and quieted.

The great penetrating power of this famous remedy enables it to do this quickly and positively.

In all cases of Sprains, Bruises or Lameness, Mexican Mustang Liniment should be rubbed in persistently.

The antiseptic qualities of this old reliable household remedy make it safe and sure.

Prices 25c., 50c., $1.00 per bottle. For sale by all Druggists. LYON MFG. CO. 41 to 45 So. 5th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

FIGHTING POTATO CANKER.

Canada Sends Warning Dreaded European Scourge Has Crossed Sea.

The serious potato blight known as "black scab," "warty disease" and "potato canker," which has ravaged the potato fields of Europe for thirteen years, has appeared on the American continent, in Newfoundland. Farmers in the United States are warned to look out for it and to make every effort to stamp it out at the first sign of its appearance. The extraordinary rapidity with which the potato canker has spread over nearly the whole of Europe and the virulence of the disease combine to make the Canadian department of agriculture fearful lest the infected seed, imported from across the sea to Newfoundland, should find its way southward and give the canker a foothold on lower Canadian and American soil.

This disease wherever it is permitted to establish itself, makes the successful cultivation of potatoes extremely difficult. There is said to be no hope of saving a crop that is once attacked. Moreover, when a crop is destroyed by this blight the ground re mains infected, so that for at least six years it is impossible to grow a crop of potatoes.

POTATO BLIGHT.

Where the disease is prevalent practically no healthy tubers will develop. The tubers, when lifted, show signs of various degrees of injury. Some appear on casual examination to be sound. But the "eyes" of the tubers should be carefully examined. These are the places where the disease is first noticeable. The eyes of affected tubers show an abnormal development of the dormant shoot. A careful and trained observer can easily recognize the presence of the disease in this stage. At the same time it is in this condition that the disease is most likely to escape detection and to be spread by means of infected tubers used for seed. In the earlier stages of the disease the eyes will be found to be slightly protruding in the form of ... single or compound group of ... nodules varying from the size of ... pin's head to that of a pea.

When a grower finds his crop attacked he may hesitate to destroy it, ... tubers which appear sound or but ... be affected, although total destruction would be the best means of preventing the spread of the disease, yet those tubers may be collected, boiled and fed to pigs. Under no circumstances should unboiled or decayed potatoes be given as food, not only because the feeding value is sure to be reduced, but mainly because they are still capable of germinating after passing through the body of an animal. In removing the potatoes from the field the greatest precaution should be taken to clean thoroughly and disinfect one's boots and the farm ... and implements used.

BADLY DISEASED TUBERS.

The process of disinfecting may be carried out on boards laid on the field ... that no reinfection takes place afterward. The grower should then proceed to dig a hole in the field and collect ... refuse from the vines and all diseased tubers. The potato straw should be destroyed by fire, but the tubers ... too wet to burn, may be dealt ... as follows: The hole that has been dug must be big enough to hold the tubers collected. It should then be covered with a layer six inches ... of unslaked lime, then a portion of the tubers may be thrown in and covered by another layer of unslaked lime, and so on till the hole is filled. The last layer should be formed, of lime, by the lime. In this manner the tubers are put out of harm's way. Under no circumstances should seed ... tubers from a diseased crop be used.

revents Sickness
n checked in time by the

Brook
FOOD
key or a wholesome stimulant in e no equal. No home should be beneficial to those who are ailing who are well. Genuine SUNNY standard, 100% proof and every Stamp" showing the correct age

CO., Jefferson Co., Ky.

UARTS—$5
PREPAID

ving Distributors:

Chattanooga, Tenn.
Sycamore St., Cincinnati, O.
Bienville St., New Orleans, La.
Chartres St. "
Magazine St. "
Pampart St. "
Pensacola Fla.
Memphis, Tenn.
Pensacola, Fla.
Jacksonville, Fla.

ND REMITTANCE WITH YOUR ORDER.
PED C. O. D.

n Your Home
THE
Southern Ruralist
OF ATLANTA, GA.

Is the Greatest Agricultural Paper in the South today. It covers every department of the farm and home. We have examined it carefully, and consider THE SOUTHERN RURALIST the most valuable premium we can offer our readers. It comes twice a month—24 times a year. A sample copy will be mailed free to any one on request.

The most valuable thing about the Southern Ruralist is the Prize Specials, which are published on the first of each month. The Ruralist pays $2.00 each month for the best articles from its subscribers on special subjects, such as Fall Plowing, Poultry, Fertilizers, Farm Tools, Gardening, Fruit Growing, Stock Raising, Dairying, etc. These articles come from every part of the country. They are written by men who do the work and give actual experience. They will help you as nothing else will.

TS AND STAFF WRI S
Editor; F. J. Merriam, Ge ri-rgia Experiment Station ture y, Georgia Experiment airy; nt Station, Live Stock De Dr.
, Alabama Agricultural College, Veter-
, Poultry Department; Mrs. F. J. Mer-or serial in every number.

ear's subscription to the man who will take uralist free or two papers for the price of one.
Southern Ruralist we are able to offer scription to this paper at rn Ruralist for $1.00.

iment
tion of Mexican Mus-ldines the pain but it s until every quivering
and quieted.
trating power of this enables it to do this ively.
brains, Bruises or Lame-
Mustang Liniment
in persistently.
ualities of this old relia-medy make it safe and
th St., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

Farm and Garden

FIGHTING POTATO CANKER.

Canada Sends Warning Dreaded European Scourge Has Crossed Sea.

The serious potato blight known as "black scab," "warty disease" and "potato canker," which has ravaged the potato fields of Europe for thirteen years, has appeared on the American continent, in Newfoundland. Farmers in the United States are warned to look out for it and to make every effort to stamp it out at the first sign of its appearance. The extraordinary rapidity with which the potato canker has spread over nearly the whole of Europe and the virulence of the disease combine to make the Canadian department of agriculture fearful lest the infected seed, imported from across the sea to Newfoundland, should find its way southward and give the canker a foothold on lower Canadian and American soil.

This disease, wherever it is permitted to establish itself, makes the successful cultivation of potatoes extremely difficult. There is said to be no hope of saving a crop that is once attacked. Moreover, when a crop is destroyed by this blight the ground remains infected, so that for at least six years it is impossible to grow a crop of potatoes.

POTATO BLIGHT.

Where the disease is prevalent practically no healthy tubers will develop. The tubers, when lifted, show signs of various degrees of injury. Some appear on casual examination to be sound. But the "eyes" of the tubers should be carefully examined. Those are the places where the disease is first noticeable. The eyes of affected tubers show an abnormal development of the dormant shoot. A careful untrained observer can easily recognize the presence of the disease in this stage. At the same time it is in this condition that the disease is most likely to escape detection and to be spread by means of infected tubers used for seed. In the earlier stages of the disease the eyes will be found to be slightly protruding in the form of a single or compound group of small bodies varying from the size of a pin's head to that of a pea.

When a grower finds his crop attacked he may hesitate to destroy potatoes which appear sound or but little affected, although total destruction would be the best means of preventing the spread of the disease, yet those tubers may be collected, boiled and be fed to pigs. Under no circumstances should unboiled or decayed potatoes be given as food, not only because the feeding value is sure to be reduced, but mainly because the spores are still capable of germinating after passing through the body of an animal. In removing the potatoes from the field the greatest precaution should be taken to clean thoroughly and disinfect one's boots and the farm carts and implements used.

BADLY DISEASED TUBERS.

The process of disinfecting may be carried out on boards laid on the field, so that no reinfection takes place afterward. The grower should then proceed to dig a hole in the field and collect all refuse from the vines and all diseased tubers. The potato straw should be destroyed by fire, but the tubers, being too wet to burn, may be dealt with as follows: The hole that has been dug must be big enough to hold all the tubers collected. It should then be covered with a layer six inches deep of unslaked lime, then a portion of the tubers may be thrown in and covered by another layer of unslaked lime, and so on till the hole is filled. The last layer should be formed, of course, by the lime. In this manner the tubers are put out of harm's way. Under no circumstances should seed potatoes from a diseased crop be used.

PLEA FOR THE TOAD.

Indiana Entomologist Says Little Frog Eats Bad Insects.

B. W. Douglass, state entomologist for Indiana, who is the bitter foe of every insect that lives on the fruit and foliage of the state and the friend of every agent that tends to destroy such pests, is out with a plea to the farmers and gardeners to protect the American toad, or Mr. Bufo Americana, to be explicit. In making laws to protect insect eating birds, observes Mr. Douglass, no one has ever proposed to prevent legally the enthusiastic small boy from killing as many toads as he cares to. The plea will appear in the annual report from the entomological department, which has gone to the state printer and which Mr. Douglass hopes to have in the hands of a large number of farmers and gardeners by the time early spring preparations begin for the 1910 crops.

"As a matter of fact," says Mr. Douglass, "the common toad does more to rid our fields and gardens of noxious insects than many of the feathered songsters of which we hear so much. But simply that he is ugly—emphatically and most unmistakably ugly—the toad has all manner of defamation and libel heaped upon him.

"Early superstitions have charged the toad with about all the vicious qualities possible for one creature to possess. Some of these traditions, however, are of such a nature as to render the toad an individual to be avoided rather than to be sought and killed. But in spite of his ugliness the little animal is about as harmless as any we can find in our woods and fields, and as a destroyer of insects his value has been established beyond a doubt. Ninety-eight per cent of the food of the toad consists of animal matter, and of this the greater part is injurious insects."

Mr. Douglass advances the idea that farmers and gardeners should provide artificial ponds or water places in their fields and gardens where the toad may breed. The little animal possesses the home instinct and when taken from the ponds or creeks and placed in a garden or field is likely to desert his new quarters and return to the old. To obviate this Mr. Douglass believes the gardeners and farmers should provide breeding places in order to make the fields and gardens the actual home of the toads.

In addition to the good which may result from having the toads feel at home in the fields and gardens, Mr. Douglass sees another good in the hatchery idea—that of robbing the children of their propensity for slaying the toads whenever they find them. He believes that the average boy, by watching the development of the little animal through the tadpole stage to that of the adult toad, will soon have a scientific interest in the toad which will insure it life and protection. This protection, the entomologist observes, is something the farmer and gardener cannot afford to disregard in these days of constant and rapid increase of insects which prey upon farm and garden products.

OUR 1909 BUMPER CROP.

How It Would Look In Bulk Alongside a City Skyscraper.

Last year's crops in America, while not establishing a record, were considerably in excess of the previous year. The corn was the bulkiest of the products. Next to corn came the production of oats with a huge total of nearly a billion bushels, while wheat came next, sufficient to supply every man, woman and child in this country with a loaf and a half of bread per day.

OUR BUMPER 1909 CROP.

The United States led the world in the production of corn.

The previous year Russia's oat production was greater, but last year's estimate was 176,000,000 bushels more for the United States than that of 1908.

Dairy Profits.

Profits in dairying do not depend so much upon the number of cows kept, as upon the kind. This fact is being more and more as the dairy increases. One way to increase the acreage of a farm is to increase the fertility of the soil of the farm. Similarly one way to increase a dairy herd is to increase the cows' producing power.

An Aged Hen.

At Hazelhurst, Mass., there was buried with appropriate ceremonies by Mrs. Miles Cannon and her children their favorite hen, Polly, seventeen years old. She was believed to be the oldest hen in the world. According to Polly's owner, she laid more than 3,000 eggs and raised thirty-five broods of chickens.

Dairy Products of France.

France possesses 50,000,000 head of cattle, worth $800,000,000, and the industries of raising them and their products, such as milk, cheese and butter, maintain about half the population of France.

A Paralytic Forgiven and Healed

Sunday School Lesson for March 28, 1910

Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—Matthew 9:13. Memory verse, 2.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"The Son of Man hath power on earth to forgive sins."—Matt. 9:6.

TIME of this incident, by comparison with the more historical order of Mark and Luke (Matthew's order here is logical rather than historical) is May or June A. D. 28, several weeks before the Sermon on the Mount.

PLACE.—Capernaum, in a private house.

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

A House in Capernaum. Jesus Preaching the Gospel.—V. 2. Mark 2:1, 2; Luke 5:17. The scene is pictured more fully by Mark and Luke.

An oriental house. The common houses are usually of one story, with a flat roof and outside stairs to the roof, for during the heat of the summer the family always sleep there.

The better houses consist of an open courtyard, in which is frequently a fountain or a well. This is surrounded on three sides by rooms with bare, almost windowless walls on the outside, "with narrow doorway in the center opening into the courtyard, to which there is no other access. Round three sides of this open square are attached chambers, sometimes wholly or partially inclosed, sometimes with only pillars supporting the roof, between which curtains may be hung. The principal or reception room is on the side facing the entrance." At one end of this room is a raised platform.

The audience. We see here gathered a great number of people thronging the house with oriental freedom, crowding and pressing around the doors in their eagerness to hear the young teacher and miracle worker, who was creating no little excitement.

The preacher. We see Jesus preaching to these crowds, either in the central room or under the covered veranda, and not only preaching, but healing (Luke).

While the services are proceeding we look up the street and see a company of men approaching. One of them is paralyzed, either having lost the use of his limbs by ordinary paralysis or more probably having them drawn together in a cramped and painful position, as we have several times seen persons. Four men were carrying this man on some kind of a litter, on which was laid his bed, consisting of a padded quilt or "comforter." These men all had faith in the healing power of Jesus, faith built upon the foundations of fact.

When this little band arrived at the house they could not enter on account of the crowd. This was a new test of their faith. But they were enterprising and ingenious and, undiscouraged, they carried the sick man up the outside stairs upon the low roof of the house; they broke a hole through the roof of branches and earth and, taking the mattress by the four corners, let the man down among the audience in front of Jesus.

We now see the surprise of the audience as the sick man is let down through the ceiling in front of Jesus.

"Jesus seeing their faith," through which only could the man receive the blessings Jesus had to give. "Be of good cheer," take courage, all you desire in your heart, and more, is awaiting you.

"Thy sins be (are) forgiven thee." Jesus gives him the greater blessing first, the foundation blessing of his whole life, without which the blessing of healing would be small and temporary.

"And he arose," and took up his bed, and in the presence of the assembly (Mark), "departed to his house," a living, unimpeachable witness to Jesus that he was the Messiah, doing precisely what the Messiah naturally would do.

Jesus is still doing directly for us to-day the same kind of works he did in Palestine. There still are faith cures. Still more are enabled so to live that health is the fruit of their Christian living.

If Jesus is largely working through his disciples. They are doing in various ways the same kinds of work which Jesus did, the works which Jesus taught were the marks of those who are to be welcomed into the kingdom of heaven (Matthew 25), doing them in his name, as when the cup of cold water was given.

The Need of Growth.

Every sorrow should leave behind it some touch of sanctity, and every joy should bring the blush and bloom of the beauty of holiness; and every day should see some advance toward the realization of the Christian character. If I have to look back and say that ten years ago I was more like Christ than I am to-day, it is high time I began to search for the reason of the decline. It is high time I discovered the point at which the disease entered, which prevented the dominance of the Christ life, and paralyzed my faculties, and robbed me of my power. There should be growth; and growth into likeness of Christ.—Rev. G. Campbell Morgan.

Obedience.

The crowning grace of the Christian life is obedience. Nothing can displace it in the heart. To learn the will of God, and then to be willing to do his commands will lead the soul out into peace, joy and satisfaction. "The loftiest attainment to which any child of redeeming grace can spare this side of heaven," said Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, "is to do the will of the Master."

Every man's task is his life preserver.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

If You Work Outdoors

Any cold you contract should be cured without delay, and driven entirely out of the system—unless you wish to invite an attack of Pleurisy or Pneumonia.

Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant is known as the most successful preparation ever discovered for Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis, Inflammation of the Lungs or Chest, Pleurisy, Asthma and diseases of similar nature. This famous remedy has been dispensed for over 78 years, and is sold by all druggists, in three size bottles, $1.00, 50c and 25c.

Dr. D. Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge is a splendid building-up tonic for systems weakened by Coughs or Colds.

In the Nick of Time.

The steamer was on the point of leaving, and the passengers lounged on the deck and waited for the start. At length one of them espied a cab in the far distance, and it soon became evident that the driver was doing his level best to catch the boat.

Already the sailors' hands were on the gangways, and the cab's chances looked small indeed. Then a sportive passenger wagered a sovereign to a shilling that he would miss it. The offer was taken, and at once the deck became a scene of wild excitement.

"He'll miss it!"

"No; he'll just do it!"

"Come on!"

"He won't do it!"

"Yes, he will. He's done it! Hurrah!"

In the very nick of time the cab arrived, its occupant sprang out and ran up the one gangway left.

"Cast off!" he cried.

It was the captain.—Pearson's Weekly.

An East Indian Verdict.

In a case in one of our Indian courts a jury had before it evidence that could not be in any way shaken. When the concluding stage had been reached the following interchange of conversation took place between the judge and his colleagues in the administration of justice:

"Gentlemen, are you ready to give your verdict?"

"Yes."

"What is your verdict?"

"Our answer is, sir, that you can do as you like with the men that have confessed, but we acquit all the rest."

"But is it possible that you have weighed the evidence?"

"Evidence like this can always be fabricated."

"Do you find that as regards these prisoners it has been fabricated?"

"Evidence can be fabricated."

"So the evidence is untrustworthy?"

"Unless a man confesses who can tell he is guilty?"—Bombay Gazette.

Washing the Capitol's Face.

The United States capitol receives its annual bath a short time before congress convenes, the toilet articles used consisting of about 2,500 feet of hose in the expert hands of one company of the fire department. Powerful streams of water at high pressure remove dust, spider webs, insects of all kinds, birds' nests and other foreign substances from the many crevices.

Saves Doctors' Bills.

Mr. Louis M. Kent, of Homersville, Ala., joins in with a mighty throng as follows: "GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR is a great saver of doctor bills. I have tried it and know what I am talking about. I have used it for constipation, headache, colds, etc., and it has never failed to do all I expected. If used intelligently and at the right time, it will do all that is claimed for it. I shall keep GRANGER'S LIVER REGULATOR in the house as long as I can get it. Druggists sell it in sealed tin boxes at 25 cents per box.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

List of Letters remaining uncalled for in Clanton, Ala. postoffice, for week ending Mar. 12, 1910. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised" and give date. One cent must be paid on each letter.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

A. W. Moore, Dan Ekley, Seaborn Wilkins, J. E. Miner, H. R. Teel, Willie Yates, James Ramsom, J. M. Dykes, Square Cooper.

LADIES' LIST.

Annie Lee Dobbins, Mrs. M. J. Jordan, Mrs. Kate Harris.

These letters will be sent to the dead Letter office, Mar. 26, 1910, if not delivered before.

F. O. DUDLEY, Postmaster.

FIELD-GROWN ROSE PLANTS

Our Field Crown Rose Plants are now ready for delivery and this is the proper time for planting. We have 25,000 of the finest Bush and Climbing Roses ever grown in the South, including seventy varieties.

Bush Roses $2.50 per dozen; $15.00 per 100.
Climbing Roses $3.50 per dozen.

Also all kinds of decorative and blooming plants in season. Cut flowers, walking bouquets, and funeral offerings shipped on short notice.

ROSEMONT GARDENS, Florists
W. S. PATERSON, Proprietor
City store: 116 DEXTER AVE.
Long Distance Telephone No. 900
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

BLACKSMITH SHOP
Horse Shoeing, General Repair Work, Saw Cumming; Machinery Repaired Promptly.
First Class Work and Prices Reasonable. Try me.
W. E. MADDOX
CLANTON, ALA.

WELLS Bored and Drilled
T. B. TEEL
Contractor and Driller of Deep Water Wells
CLANTON, ALA.

The Simple Life

has for its basis PERFECT HEALTH. The clear brain, the healthy stomach, the bodily organs exercising in harmony, are the first essentials of a Simple Life—

A LIFE OF PEACE AND SATISFACTION.

No one can know the pure delight of simple living whose nervous system is kept in a state of tension by Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Biliousness and other diseases due to inaction of the liver.

The Simple Way to seek the Simple life is to seek the remedy for these conditions. This remedy has been found in our great product—

ST. JOSEPH'S Liver Regulator
(In Both Liquid and Powder Form.)

It has made life brighter and happiness and peace possible when all was dark and distressed. It reaches the centers of life and purifies them. It encourages the liver, stomach and bowels to a freer and more natural activity.

It is the Simple Way to a Simple Life of Health, Peace, Contentment.

Many persons attest this fact who have realized its truth by actual experience.

St. Joseph's Liquid Liver Regulator is prompt in action, exceedingly palatable and pleasant to the taste. It is sold by druggists and dealers at 50 cents a bottle.

St. Joseph's Liver Regulator in powder form is put up in tight tin boxes and retails at 25 cents a box, five boxes for a dollar. It may be taken dry or made into a tea or bitters. Full directions accompany every bottle and box.

Gerstle Medicine Co.
Chattanooga, Tenn.

A Night Alarm.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the metallic cough of croup. Careful mother keep Foley's Honey and Tar in the house and give it at the first sign of danger. Foley's Honey and Tar has saved many little lives. No opiates. Upchurch Drug Co.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

TIPTON MULLINS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.

WILLIAM M. ADAMS
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Practice in all Courts. Long time loans negotiated on improved farm lands.
Office Room 1, Court House.
Clanton - - Ala.

ROBERT H. KNOX
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
Clanton - - Ala.
Will practice in all the State and Federal

DR. P. I. HOPKINS
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON
EYE, EAR, NOSE AND THROAT
Office Hours 10 to 12 a.m.
CLANTON

Directory of Clanton Baptist Church.

Preaching at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on 1st and 3d Sundays.
Prayer Service at 7:30 p.m. every Thursday.
Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. every Sunday. W. L. Mullins, Supt.
Communion Service 1st Sunday in January, April, July and October.
Ladies Aid Society at 3 p.m. on Monday after the 3d Sunday. Mrs. W. T. Chilton, President.
All members are earnestly requested to be regular and prompt in their attendance, the public are cordially invited and strangers will find a hearty welcome. P. H. WOODS, Pastor.

KILL THE COUGH AND CURE THE LUNGS
WITH Dr. King's New Discovery
FOR COUGHS COLDS PRICE 50c & $1.00 Trial Bottle Free
AND ALL THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES.
GUARANTEED SATISFACTORY OR MONEY REFUNDED.

ALABAMA BIBLE SOCIETY
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Bibles at Cost for Cash
BIBLES.
Bibles at Cost for Cash
BIBLES.

The Alabama Bible Society wishes to supply you with Bibles. You can get from us any style binding or type at the publishers' cost price. We do not sell except for CASH. Write us.

EASTER
IS HERE

and it's time to be thinking about your Spring Suit.

The Best Dressers Dress at RICE'S

WHY NOT YOU?

You will have the advantage of the Largest Stock in the State to select from and you cannot buy better goods for your money anywhere.

SUITS $10.00 and up.

WE WILL REFUND YOUR RAILROAD FARE.

ALEX RICE

MONTGOMERY . . . . . ALABAMA

"Your money's worth or your money back."

Small Change.

"It's three years since I was in this city," said the stranger as he finished his dinner. "City looks the same."

"I don't find much change," remarked the waiter as he took up the dime that was left from the two dollar bill.—New York Journal.

Glass Cleaning Hint.

Place pulverized pumice stone between the layers of a folded piece of soft muslin and stitch around the edge to keep the powder from spilling. Wipe lamp chimneys or windows with this dry cloth, and they will become clean and sparkling almost instantly. Enough powder will remain in the cloth to use several times.

A Laundry Hint.

Few people know how to hang sheets properly upon the line. Shake them well while still wet and hang them with the hems together and the hem edge pinned to the line. This prevents flapping the corners and lessens the wear and tear, while the sheet will need less pulling into shape for the ironing.

Easy to Guess?

Sometimes I'm fast,
Sometimes I'm slow.
I have a round face
And two hands, and so
You'll guess I'm a watch,
With a key to lock it.
But I'm not. I'm a boy,
With two hands in my pocket.
—Youth's Companion.

THE THORSBY MILLINERY

MRS MYRTLE VAUTAR

will have her Millinery Opening March 24th, 25th and 26th.

She will also give Souvenir Pictures with each purchase on those days.

Has a display of Trimmed and Untrimmed Hats, Baby Caps, Flowers, etc.

Call and see them on the second floor, over Mr. Stanley's store.

Remember the dates, March 24, 25 & 26.

Mrs. MYRTLE VAUTAR
Thorsby, Alabama

THE TEXAS MONSTER

Barnett's Home Made 4-Wheeled COTTON CHOPPER

Works Across the Rows the Right Way.

PATENTED APRIL 31, 1908

I desire to call your attention to this Great Labor Saver. The Chopper that does Execution to Grass and Weeds, in fact, it does the work of eight men. After looking around for a time, I have decided to go right direct to the cotton planter and sell him the right to make this chopper for his own use for One Dollar. This right is good for 17 years from the 21st day of April, 1908. I will say here that I have complied with all the laws of the patent office and I further say that this chopper does all I claim for it or your money back.

J. S. BARNETT

131 East Canton Street, DALLAS, TEXAS

Apple Snow.

Peel and grate one large apple and sprinkle over it one small cupful of powdered sugar. Break into this the whites of two eggs and beat for about half an hour. Heap this into a glass dish and pour a smooth custard around it, or serve in individual glass dishes.

Capt. Bogardus again hits the Bull's Eye.

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says:—"I have suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and have used several well known kidney medicines all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley's Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley's Kidney Pills I was subjected to severe backache and pains in my kidneys with suppression and often times a cloudy voiding. While upon arising in the morning I would get dull headache. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and once more feel like my own self. All this I owe solely to Foley's Kidney Pills and always recommend them to my fellow sufferers." Upchurch Drug Co.

An Alliteration Game.

Provide each player with pencil and paper and every two minutes give out a letter. During the two minutes each player is to write a sensible sentence, each word of which begins with the letter given out. If "S" is given out, some one might write, "Simple Susan sat sewing skillfully," or the like. When as many letters have been given out as there are players, each player must read one sentence. Any one with a sentence longer than the one read aloud marks his sentence, beginning with the same letter as the one read, plus; with a sentence shorter, minus. The one with the most plus marks is the winner.

Questions and Answers.

Why is a book like a king? Because it has many pages.

When are two apples alike? When pared.

What time should an innkeeper visit a foundry? When he wants a barmaid.

Why was Blackstone like a vegetable? Because he was a common-tater (commentator).

Why is an author a strange animal? Because he is the owner of many tales and they all emanate from his head.

Sartorial.

"Ever go to that tailor?"

"Yes. Most expensive man. I got two suits from him—a dress suit and a lawsuit."—Lippincott's.

Pleased His Majesty.

The dark monarch from sunny Africa was being shown over an engineering establishment in an English city by the manager, who in explaining the working of certain machinery unfortunately got his coattails caught in it and in a moment was being whirled round at so many revolutions per minute. Luckily for the manager, his garments were unequal to the strain of more than a few revolutions, and he was hurled, disheveled and dazed, at the feet of the visitor.

That exalted personage roared with laughter and said something to his interpreter.

"Sah," said that functionary to the manager, "his majesty say he am berry pleased with de trick an' will you please do it again?"—Sketchy Bits.

Bees and Ants.

Bees will place their honeycombs in any place regularly or irregularly shaped, and when they come to corners and angles they seem to stop and consider. Then they vary the shape of the cell, so that the space is exactly filled. It could not be done more satisfactorily if the whole thing had been worked out on paper beforehand. Ants make hard and smooth roads and drive tunnels compared to which man's efforts in making such things are insignificant.

Jock Scored.

"Well, Jock," said a laird to one of his tenants, "you are getting very bent. Why don't you stand up straight like me, man?"

"Eh, mon," replied Jock, "ye see that field of corn o'er there? Weel, ye'll notice that the full heids hang doon an' the empty eens stan' stracht up."—London Telegraph.

A Good Washing Fluid.

Take equal parts of household ammonia and turpentine. Shake well and then when boiling clothes put two tablespoonfuls of the liquid into the boiler.

Waldorf Salad.

Tart apples and celery chopped fine and served on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Saved A Soldier's Life.

Facing death from shot and shell in the civil war was more agreeable than J. A. Stone, of Kemp, Tex., is facing it from what doctors call a dread consumption. "I contracted a terrible cold" he writes, "that developed a cough, that stuck to me in spite of all remedies for years. My weight ran down to 130 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. I now weigh 178 pounds." For Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Asthma, Hemorrhage, Hoarseness, Croup, Whooping Cough and lung trouble, it's supreme. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug Co.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution of the Chancery Court of county, Alabama, and to me whereby I am commanded to sum out of a certain judgment recently obtained against Lapsage and others now of Thomas E Lapsage and others levied upon the following estate as the property of the as E Lapsage, to-wit:

The nw ¼ and n ½ of nw 1-4 of nw 1-4 of Section 15; the ne 1-4 of Section 16; the s ½ of ne 1-4 of ne 1-4, and ne 1-4 of nw 1-4 19; the nw 1-4, and ne 1-4 of s ½ of ne 1-4, and s ½ of ne 1-4 21; the n 1-2 of nw 1-4 and ne 1-4, and e ½ of sw 1-4 of Section w ½ of ne 1-4 and w 1-4 of ne 1-4 tion 25; the e 1-2 of ne 1-4 and ne 1-4 of nw 1-4 of Section 35. All of said being in Township 21 of Range Chilton county, Alabama.

Therefore, according to said mand, I shall expose for sale at auction, all the right, title and of the above named Thomas E. L in and to the above described Monday, the 18th day of April during the legal hours of sale Court House door in Clanton, county, Alabama.

Dated at Clanton, Alabama, 15th day of March, 1910.

J. S. Curry
Sheriff of Chilton county, Ala.

$1,000 REWARD.

The L. & N. Railroad Co. offer a reward of One Thousand Dollars for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who displaced the switch at Goree, Knox County, Alabama, on Wednesday night, February 23rd, 1910, resulting in the derailment of fast passenger train No. 4.

A Boon to Suffering Women.

Thousands of women suffer daily from peculiar to their sex, such as irregularities and the failure of the organs to perform their natural functions. The great Southern remedy—VINO VITAE—comes to the relief of suffering women by toning up their whole system, creating vitality, a good appetite and perfect digestion. At the change of life it will prove itself a friend indeed. Young girls who find it valuable in assisting them to reach a healthy, robust and vigorous womanhood. For the various kinds of female irregularities, VINO VITAE has no equals and no competitors. Druggists sell it at $1.00 per bottle. Manufactured by Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Notice to Non-Resident

The State of Alabama, Chilton county. In Chancery Court, 7th District, Northeastern Division, No. 202. In Vacation, 1910

P Ludwig, Complainant, vs. Gaunt Crebs, et al, Defendants.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of S. A. Graham, that the Defendants, Gaunt Crebs and Lightie Crebs, are residents of the State of Alabama, reside in a place unknown to affiant, and further that in the belief of affiant, the Defendants, Gaunt Crebs and Lightie Crebs are over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks requiring the said Gaunt Crebs and Lightie Crebs, to appear, plead or demur to the bill of complaint in the above cause on or before the 18th day of April, 1910, and failing so to do within thirty days after the service of this summons a decree pro confesso will be taken against them in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 14th day of March, 1910. H. M. Simpson
Register in Chancery.

After La Grippe

"I had suffered several weeks with LaGrippe. Had pains in my head and eyes. It felt as though there was a heavy weight on the top of my head, until it seemed that my brain would burst. I was so nervous that I could not rest or sleep. When I dozed off I would awake with a sudden jerking of my whole body. Dr. Miles' Nervine, Heart Remedy and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me. A number of friends have since realized the same benefits."

MRS. ALVIN H. LOCK
Seabrook, N.

The after effects of LaGrippe are often more serious than the disease, as it leaves the system in a weakened condition which invites more serious troubles such as pneumonia, etc.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine should be taken for some time to thoroughly restore the strength.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle does not benefit your druggist will return your money.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

THE BANNER

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XVIII — CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1910 — No. 25

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution [illegible] of the Chancery Court of [illegible] county, Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make [illegible] out of a certain judgment [illegible] recently obtained against [illegible] Lapsage and others out of the [illegible] chattels, lands and tenements of [illegible] Thomas K. Lapsage and others, I have levied upon the following described real estate as the property of the said [illegible] K. Lapsage, to-wit:

The nw ¼ and the s ½ of ne ¼ of section 9; the n ½ of nw ¼ of section 9; the ne ¼ of nw ¼ and nw ¼ of nw ¼, and the s ½ of nw ¼ of section 15; the ne ¼ of ne ¼ of section 16; the s ½ of ne ¼, and the n ½ of ne ¼, and the nw ¼, and ne ¼ of nw ¼ of section 21; the s ½ of ne ¼, and ne ¼ of ne ¼, and the s ½ of ne ¼ and s ½ of nw ¼ of section 22; the w ½ of ne ¼ and w ½ of nw ¼ of section 23; the e ½ of ne ¼, and the n ½ of ne ¼ and se ¼ of nw ¼ of section 35. All of said being in Township [illegible] of Range [illegible] Chilton county, Alabama.

Therefore, according to said [illegible] command, I am to expose for sale, at public auction, all the right, title and interest of the above named Thomas K. Lapsage in and to the above described lands on Monday, the 18th day of April, 1910, during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Chilton county, Alabama.

Dated at Clanton, Alabama, this the 15th day of March, 1910.

J. S. CATTS,
Sheriff of Chilton county, Ala.

$1,000 REWARD.

The L. & N. Railroad Company will offer a reward of One Thousand Dollars for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who misplaced the switch at Goree, Elmore County, Alabama, on Wednesday night, February 23rd, 1910, resulting in the derailment of fast passenger train No. 4.

A Boon to Suffering Women.

Thousands of women suffer distress peculiar to their sex because of irregularities and the failure of the organs to perform their natural functions. The great Southern remedy—VINO OVINE—comes to the relief of suffering women by toning up their whole system, creating a good appetite and promoting digestion. At the change of life it will prove itself a friend indeed. Young girls will find it valuable in assisting them to reach a healthful and vigorous womanhood. For the various kinds of female irregularities, VINO OVINE has no equal. Druggists sell it at $1.00 per bottle. Manufactured by Granger Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Notice to Non-Resident.

[illegible] the State of Alabama, Chilton county. [illegible] Chancery Court, 7th District, Northeastern Division, No. 204. In Vacation, 1910.

P. Ludwig, Complainant, vs. Gaunt Crebs et al, Defendants.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of [illegible] A. Graham that the Defendants Gaunt Crebs and Lightie Crebs, are residents of the State of Alabama, [illegible] in a place unknown to affiant, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendants, Gaunt Crebs and Lightie Crebs are over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks requiring the said Gaunt Crebs and Lightie Crebs, to answer, demur or demur to the bill of complaint in the above cause on or before the first day of April, 1910, and failing so to do within thirty days after the service of the summons a decree pro confesso will be taken against them to said cause.

Witness my hand, this 14th day of March, 1910.

H. M. SIMPSON,
Register in Chancery.

After La Grippe

"I had suffered several weeks with LaGrippe. Had pains in my head and eyes. It felt as though there was a heavy weight on the top of my head, until it seemed that my brain would burst. I was so nervous that I could not rest or sleep. When I dozed off I would awake with a sudden jerking of my whole body. Dr. Miles' Nervine, Heart Remedy and Nerve and Liver Pills cured me. A number of my friends have since realized the same benefits."

MRS. ALVIN H. LOCKS,
Seabrook, N. H.

The after effects of LaGrippe are often more serious than the disease, as it leaves the system in a weakened condition and invites more serious troubles such as pneumonia, etc.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine should be taken for some time to thoroughly restore nerve strength.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle does not benefit your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The Hon. Frank Julian was in Clanton on Monday, making friends and votes in his candidacy for Associate Railroad Commissioner. Mr. Julian has been sick, and this was his first outing on his recovery. As Secretary of State he has made an excellent reputation, and doubtless he will enhance it as Railroad Commissioner.

If you don't happen to know Charley Greer, of Perry county, you miss knowing a good man, a genial companion, a pleasant fellow, a sturdy friend, and the very man for Secretary of State, for which position he is a candidate. If you do know him, you are safe to vote for him, and if you don't, take my word for it and vote for him anyway.

Our two friends, F. Loyd Tate and D. D. Askew, both equally well known to the people of Chilton county, are quietly going along with their candidacy for Solicitor of the Fifteenth Circuit. Each of them has friends and it will take the second day of May to determine which can get the most votes.

Hon. F. L. Blackmon, candidate for Congress from this district, and Hon. Thos. A. Curry, candidate for State Senator, are alike in one respect, neither has any opposition. Lucky candidates!

Lee Hayes and John S. Catts, Sheriff, have a fair field and no favor, and the best man will get the nomination. Then comes the tug of war.

The two other of the lucky candidates are Hon. E. B. Deason, who runs alone for Probate Judge, and Hon. H. M. Simpson for Clerk of the Circuit Court. It is up to them to make good after nomination day.

The dignity of the office of Judge does not permit an active canvass before the two candidates for the friendship of the fifteenth circuit must primarily rely upon the favor of their friends. Judge W. W. Pearson will be proud of the nomination, as Hon. Scott Sayre, who was defeated in 1904, and thrown out by decision of the Supreme Court on the constitutionality of the act creating the circuit, desires the settlement of the votes at the coming primary.

The people of the Democrats of Chilton are going to allow the opportunity to elect a Representative in the Legislature go by without a vote? There is a fine chance for a good man to be elected if he will only come forward. We need a mighty representative man, a man of good common sense who is guided by his convictions.

The County Commissioners have been elected in November, and it is hardly to be supposed that the people are going to allow these important positions to be filled without making an attempt to put in two good Democrats.

Now comes ex-Sheriff Morgan in the race, and this puts a new zinger into the county campaign. That he will stir up matters, without saying, and his competitors need to open their eyes.

The summer school for teachers will be held at the Clanton High School commencing June 15, offering a chance to teachers wishing to perfect themselves for the examination. Read the advertisement on page 8.

BEGIN 1910

WITH A FIRM RESOLVE TO BETTER

YOUR FINANCIAL CONDITION

Make up your mind to connect with the starting point of increased power and increasing income—a GROWING account at this bank.

A GROWING bank account has a real and tangible value over and above the amount of actual money deposited.

It creates greater confidence, a better standing and an increased prestige in the community for the depositor.

Our service is yours to command.

PEOPLES SAVINGS BANK

CLANTON, ALA.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE CLANTON BANK, LOCATED AT CLANTON, ALA., AT THE CLOSE OF BUSINESS MARCH 8, 1910.

RESOURCES.			LIABILITIES.
Loans and Discounts		$ 61,322 06	Capital Stock Paid in	$ 15,000 00
Demand Loans		17,356 69	Surplus Fund	10,000 00
Overdrafts		2,326 67	Undivided Profits, less Current Expenses and Taxes Paid	11,650 04
Bonds and Stocks owned by the Bank		10,000 00	Individual Deposits subject to Check	$121,322 10
Furniture and Fixtures		3,650 32	Time Certificates	13,032 10
Due from Banks and Bankers in this town	$24,022 10		Cashier's Checks	710 04
Due from Banks and Bankers in other States	12,322 75			134,994 24
Currency	6,250 00
Gold	925 00
Silver, Nickels and Pennies	1,407 10
Checks and Cash Items	250 70
		45,430 32
Total		$170,994 99	Total	$170,994 99

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

Before me came E. A. Matthews, Cashier of The Clanton Bank, who being duly sworn, says that the above and foregoing statement is a true condition of said Bank, as shown by the books on file in said bank.

E. A. MATTHEWS, Cashier.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 16th day of March, 1910.

R. DEASON, Notary Public.

Attest:
P. B. WILSON
N. A. KRUKER
W. M. BARTON
} Directors.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Clanton, March 23rd, 1910

To the people of Clanton:—

Before my departure for Wetumpka I desire to say to you that I appreciate very much your kind hospitality to myself and family during my brief stay with you, and that I regret exceedingly to leave Clanton, but since Mr. C. Fenn Jones has purchased an interest with the Gamble Hardware Co., the services of both Mr. Jones and myself are not specially needed here, and the president of our company wishes that I go to Wetumpka and act as Sales Manager of our store there.

I also wish to thank the public for the very liberal patronage given us since I have been manager of the "Clanton Store" and trust they will call on us in future for every thing they need in the hardware line and be assured they will be treated courteously and given full value for their money.

Yours truly,
L. A. COLLINS.

Pinedale.

The health of this community is not very good.

The school at this place, taught by Prof. R. A. Smith, closed last Friday, and we are sure sorry to see him leave us; he is a fine teacher. I can truthfully say that he is as good a teacher as we have ever had at this place and has treated his pupils with more respect than any other. He will be with us again in the summer and we hope to have him with us longer. I hope he enjoyed his stay with us, and we would gladly welcome him back in our community any time.

We had several visitors at our school Friday evening, and among them were Misses Mae and Ruby Williamson, Lillian and Sallie Driver and also Mr. Cabe Motes and sister Miss Louella. We are sorry we didn't have any better entertainment for them than we did have, but will try to do better next time.

Prof. Smith and sister, Miss Dovie, attended the singing at Mrs. Miller's last Friday night.

The singing at Mr. Popwell's Sunday night was all O. K.

I will close, wishing the Banner much success. SCHOOL GIRL.

Fairview

Editor Banner:—Realizing that the primary election is drawing near, and that we have some important work to do before that time, we have called a meeting of the democratic club of beat number 15, to be held at this place Saturday night March 26th. We urge every member, who can, to be present and invite everybody to come and bring your friends.

J. D. SIMS, President.
RUFUS L. POPWELL, Secretary.

MARRIED

at the residence of Mr. Bud Mims, Sunday, March 13, 1910, Mr. E. F. Sewell and Miss Lillie B. Roseberry. It was a beautiful evening for the marriage. Miss Lillie is an attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Roseberry and was dressed in white silk. Mr. Sewell is the son of Mrs. Henry Sewell, and is a nice and sober young man. I wish them happiness and joy for life.

LULA R.

Some people do not try to reach the top because they consider the bottom safer.

Jemison

Editor Banner:—Please let me say a few words in your paper. Saw milling is fine. The farmers is at work every day going up the mountains and vallies for that is all the kind of land they have to farm on up here. I guess the saw mill camp will move in a few days.

I think our lumber haulers have about played out.

Listen, I would like to know what is the matter with the crossroads, I havent heard from them in a long time. Well I guess I had better ring off for this time.

THE BLOCKMAN.

PROGRAM

for Mulberry District Sunday School Convention, to be held with Bethsalem church on 2d Sunday in April.

9:30 a.m. Devotional exercise.

10. Roll call and delegates enrolled.

Our aim in Sunday school work, W. T. Herod, J. H. Williams.

10:30. What hinders my Sunday school, by superintendents and others of schools.

11:30. Echoes from State Convention, county secretary, Miss Mary C. Gibeo.

12. Dinner, handshaking and friend-making.

1 p.m. Some Sunday school helps, Walter Kendrick, T. E. Williams.

1:45. Teacher training course, district president and others.

2:30. Enrichments from Bible study, J. L. Deasmus, J. D. Deason.

3. A Sunday-school "vision."

We earnestly request and urge that each Sunday school in Beats 8, 15 and Kincheon, all send some one to this meeting. We have tried to get some splendid subjects and speakers. Let us all come and spend a good day talking about the Lord's work. Devotedly,

JEROME O. WILLIAMS, Dis. Pres.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by all druggists.

A woman seems to think her husband is to blame for everything—or if he isn't he ought to be.

Evergreen

Editor Banner:—Please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words.

Health is fairly good in this community.

Bro. Rodgers filled his regular appointment here Sunday week and preached excellent sermons.

I am glad to know that our Sunday school at this place is increasing. It seems that the people of the community have got interested in the work.

Our literary school is progressing nicely. We have organized a society and meet every Friday afternoon. This is the first one that has ever been here, but by work we can make it a good one. First, we take the little things around and do them and keep trying to get to higher place in life. We will be glad to have visitors any time, it will help our feelings as pupils and are sure it will help the teachers. We as boys and girls ought to strive to get an education, for I pity the boy or girl without one. You may get discouraged, but just keep trying until you reach the front, then when you look back over your life you will be glad you got an education. You may make a living without it but oh, how hard it will be. While you are in school, go for the good, don't go just to get to sit by a certian girl and talk to her about her brother or brothers and study the boys instead of the books. But just get down to studying with good common sense and study over the matter seriously and see if you can't come to conclusion that it would be wrong to always study about them. Give your heart, mind and body to the work and see if you don't succeed.

Respectfully,
A SOCIETY MEMBER.

Pinedale.

There will be preaching at Mountain Springs Sunday at eleven a.m. Everybody is invited to attend.

Among those who attended the burial at Mountain Spring today were Misses Annie May Driver and Maggie Knox.

We are glad to say that Miss Airlean Mims is better at this writing.

The school at Pinedale closed Friday, March 18.

TWO LONESOME GIRLS.

Subscribe for The Banner.

NOTICE.

The Commissioners Court of Chilton County hereby offers in cooperation with the State Commissioner of Agriculture, the following prizes:

For the best acre of Corn $25.00.
For the best acre of Wheat $15.00
For the best acre of Oats $15.00.
For the best acre of Sweet Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Irish Potatoes $10.00.
For the best acre of Hay $25.00.

Parties entering contest must give their names to Judge of Probate not later than May 1 of this year.

There will be no charges for entering the contest.

The rules governing contest will be given out later.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

Notice of Appointment as Administrator.

Estate of Walter D. Lawrence, deceased. Letters of Administration on the estate of said decedent having been granted to the undersigned on the 10th day of March, 1910, by the Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Judge of the Probate Court of Chilton county, Ala., notice is hereby given, that all persons having claims against said estate are required to present the same within the time allowed by law, or the same will be barred.

ELOISE LAWRENCE,
Administratrix.
Craig & Craig, Attorneys,
Selma, Ala.

Cane Creek.

Editor Banner:—Please allow us a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words. Health of this community is very good at present. Our Sunday school is progressing nicely.

The farmers are nearly all busy planting corn now.

Miss Daisy Killgore was at Sunday school last Sunday; hope she will come often.

There will be preaching at this place next Saturday and Sunday by Rev. Deason; everybody is invited.

With best wishes to the Banner and its many readers.

TWO HILL BILLIES.

COUNTY FAIR NOTICE.

All persons who are interested in a county Fair, there will be a meeting at the Court House on the 26th of March at 11 a.m. Everybody is requested to attend who feel an interest in the matter.

W. H. CONWAY,
Pres, Chilton Co, Fair Ass'n.

An Awful Eruption

of a volcano excites brief interest, and your interest in skin eruptions will be as short, if you use Bucklen's Arnica Salve, their quickest cure. Even the worst boils, ulcers, or fever sores are soon healed by it. Best for Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sore Lips, Chapped Hands, Chilblains and Piles. It gives instant relief. 25c at Upchurch Drug Co.

Subscribe for The Banner.

WANTED.

FOR SALE—150 bushels Sweet Potatoes, pure Dooley Yams. Parties wanting them for seed had better call at once. J. W. STANFIELD, Clanton, Ala.

LOST—Between Clanton and Albert Headley's old store, one Ladies' Hat in blue box. Any one finding same, please notify me. W. O. DURDIN, Clanton, Ala.

WELL'S DISTEMPER CURE, guaranteed. Write J. P. GENTRY & SON, Jemison, Ala.

NOTICE—Agents wanted who can make big salaries. See our display "Ad" in this issue. American Mutual Benefit Life Association of Alabama, Montgomery, Ala.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

Warranty deeds and Mortgage Blanks, Waive Notes and Receipt books on sale at the Banner office.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably bring relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, headache, biliousness, dizziness, sallowness of the skin and dyspepsia. Sold by all druggists.

WATER GROUND MEAL.

To the Public: I am prepared to grind your Corn. Your patronage solicited. Good meal and fair treatment guaranteed. Give me a trial and you will be pleased. Will grind six days in the week. Am located at the Hanlon old mill place, 2½ miles south of Cooper and 3½ west of Verbena.

I also have thoroughbred Poland China Boar and Jersey Bull. Boar is now ready for service; Bull will be in about two months.

Yours to serve,
J. F. WILLIAMS, Verbena, Ala.

For Diseases of the Skin.

Nearly all diseases of the skin such as eczema, tetter, salt rheum and barbers' itch, are characterized by an intense itching and smarting, which often makes life a burden and disturbs sleep and rest. Quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Salve. It allays the itching and smarting almost instantly. Many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all druggists.

A CASH OFFER.

The Banner has made a special clubbing rate with The Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal by which we will furnish both papers for one year for the regular subscription price, $1.00. The Commercial Appeal is one of the largest and best papers in the South and we hope to receive many new subscriptions on this offer; $1.00 cash for both papers. Everyone shoul take their home paper first for the local news, and then a general weekly for the news of the world. These two pap rs make a strong combination. Both papers $1.00.

Indigestion.

This trouble usually arises from a disordered liver. If you will arouse the liver to throw off the effete accumulations through the proper channels, you will soon feel better, your appetite will improve, and the whole man will be more wide awake and healthy. For this purpose St. Joseph's Liver Regulator is a fine remedy. Try it and be convinced of its wonderful efficacy. Druggists and general merchants sell it, liquid, 50 cents a bottle, powdered, in tin boxes, 25 cents a box. See advertisement in this paper.

For Coughs and Colds

Troubled with a cough? A hard cold, bronchitis, or some chronic lung trouble? There is a medicine made for just these cases—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Your doctor knows all about it. Ask him what he thinks of it. No medicine can ever take the place of your doctor. Keep in close touch with him, consult him frequently, trust him fully. No alcohol in this cough medicine. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Ayer's Pills. Sugar-coated. All vegetable. Act directly on the liver. Gently laxative. Dose, one pill. Sold for nearly sixty years. Ask your doctor about them.

NORWAY'S NEW ROAD

Christiania-Bergen Rail Line Across Mountains Complete1.

Eastern and Western Parts of the Kingdom Have Easy Means of Communication—Event of Much Importance.

Christiania. — The opening of the railway across the mountains from Christiania to Bergen recently by King Haakon was an event in the history of this country of far wider importance than any one not well acquainted with Norway, geographically and topographically, would be able to appreciate. Norway is divided into three isolated parts by the Dovre mountain and by the broad and wild range of mountains that bear successively the names of Fyelfjeld and Langfjeldene. The overland route between Bergen and Christiania was even more than the route to Trondhjem, a great hindrance to traffic passing as it does for a considerable distance over mountains of a height of 6,000 feet and more.

Although Norway was united into one kingdom as early as 872 by King Harold Haarfager and has remained united ever since, the natural splitting up of the country into the western, northern and eastern districts has inevitably to some extent impaired the feeling of unity in the nation. And the barriers which nature had raised between the districts have formed very serious obstacles to personal cooperation for the development of the economic resources of the country. The consequence has been that the progress has been considerably slower than it might otherwise have been.

Good roads were constructed in the principal overland routes in the beginning of the last century, and they represented an immense improvement on the ancient trails which had been possible only on foot or on horseback. But a journey of several days in a carriage was expensive and entailed great loss of time and, in the winter time, severe hardships. In 1880 the railroad to Trondhjem was completed. Thus the great barrier between the northern parts and the southeastern parts of the country were overcome. The highest point of this road does not lie [illegible] feet above sea level, but many people thought it could not be kept open in the winter time. This fear proved groundless and the road turned out to be a very lucrative national investment, although it has not as yet paid directly in the form of dividends; it has done better than that by greatly accelerating the development of the Trondhjem district and of Nordland and Finmarken.

In 1872 investigations were commenced with the view of discovering the best line for a railway between Christiania and Bergen, and in 1874 the storthing voted the first part of an eventual Bergen-Christiania railway, the selection from Bergen to Voss. But to the general public the continuation seemed impossible and more like one of Asbjornsen's fairy tales than anything else, for the field explorations had more than confirmed the popular conception that the difficulties to be overcome were truly formidable. The railway which has just been opened follows practically the line which the engineers traced in 1874. From Voss to Opset, a distance of about 50 kilometers (35 miles), it rises with steep gradients from 339 to 5,100 feet, and, rising further to a maximum height of nearly 8,000 feet, it passes altogether a distance of more than 100 kilometers through high mountains, coming down to 4,800 feet at Gjello. And in these inhospitable regions it was found necessary to bore the Gravehals tunnel, not less than 5,311 yards long, besides a number of shorter tunnels.

For 19 years the engineers continued their exploration work, and meanwhile a national determination was slowly forming that the task of uniting eastern and western Norway should be undertaken in spite of all obstacles. In 1894 the storthing decided upon the construction of a railway from Voss to Taugevaud, and in 1898 the continuation of the line through Hallingdal to the junction point on the Christiania-Gjovik railroad, Roa, was decided.

As a preparation, transport roads had to be constructed and barracks for engineers and workmen built; 500,000 kroner ($135,000) had to be spent on transport roads alone. The Gravehals tunnel was constructed by a private contracting firm; the rest of the work was done directly by the state. The whole road was built exclusively by Norwegian engineers and workmen. The contractors on the big tunnel once made an experiment with Italian workmen, but they very soon proved so far inferior to the Norwegians that they had to be sent home after a few weeks' trial.

The railroad has a length of 492 kilometers (300 miles) and there are 178 tunnels, aggregating 36,682 meters (119,250 feet). The total cost amounted to 54,000,000 kroner ($14,580,000). It has been necessary to put up wooden walls at many exposed points. There are three rotary snow plows of American system, these having proved far superior to other patents which have been tried. By their help and the wooden walls it is believed that the traffic may be carried on as regularly as on any other railway.

False hair is going up in price. A dealer says it is following beefsteak. We expect it will not get into the better

MAINTAIN PRICE FOR COTTON

Alabama Planter Urges Farmers to Keep Product Off of Market Until 15 Cents Is Reached.

Right now I think is the crucial moment for the cotton farmer to use his wits and show the world he is awake to his own interest to some extent at least.

There is not a shadow of doubt but the present crop is the shortest cotton crop we have had in many years, writes an Alabama cotton planter in Southern Cultivator.

Now, my dear brother farmer, are we going to throw to the four winds of the earth the opportunity we have in our hands or are we going to do like all other classes or occupations of men would do and get what is coming to us?

Already we hear reports from the southern portion of the cotton belt that the farmers are rushing their cotton on the market. Cotton is richly worth 15 cents this season, and we should do all in our power to secure this price to the producer, for certainly it will go to the farmers' hands.

There are always some farmers who are so situated they have to sell, but this can be greatly reduced if they would only try to arrange to hold the cotton off the market. In this section of the cotton belt we can carry our cotton to the warehouse, take the certificate to the bank and borrow about ten cents a pound on our cotton which will only cost about one dollar a bale for 60 days; then we can renew for 60 days more at the same price. In these four months cotton will go from its present price of about 12 cents to at least 15 cents, or a gain of $15 a bale. This rise is just as certain to come as the cotton is held off the market as it should be. I don't hear of or read of any sections of the cotton belt where the banks will not accept cotton certificates as collateral for loans. Oh, some say, there is a mortgage on my cotton, so I will have to sell it. This is just what plays the havoc—this idea that we must sell because there is a mortgage on it. In nine cases out of ten a man can borrow enough money on his cotton to pay off the mortgage and this is the very thing to do.

I have been very much in hopes the Farmers' union would turn all its energies during this fall and winter to getting the farmers to market his cotton on the right principles this fall; and if it could succeed in doing this what a lasting benefit it would be to the people! Two years ago it was no doubt the cause of the people holding their cotton and did much good, as the price was fairly good all through the season. But last year the people apparently paid no attention to the cries of the union and rushed the stuff on the market so fast until nearly all the crop was sold from 8½ to 9 cents. I had only five bales and I made $50 by keeping these five bales and if I can keep five bales off the market there is no reason why hundreds of thousands of farmers cannot do the same thing.

I have been watching the crop reports very close and I never have seen so many dead certain reasons for a short crop. Drouth has ruined the chances Texas had for a crop, and drouth has cut the crop short in all the states. One thing we see very little said about is the acreage. In the spring at planting time the government reported a slightly less acreage than last year, but after this report was made the floods and excessive rains all over the belt except Texas caused thousands upon thousands of cotton fields to be abandoned because grass soon got it where it was not worth working out. This land which was reckoned in the acreage is not producing a bale. Another great reason for a short crop is there is no top crop anywhere. Another reason is the boll weevil has been very aggressive in all his territory. And one of the greatest of all is the size of cotton bolls this season. I have never seen in all my life so many small, faulty bolls on the cotton as there are this year.

When I begin to think of how I have changed my own little farm affairs in the past year, I can't help wondering why other farmers don't do the same thing, as it has been quite easy.

One year ago I had two hogs to make my meat and lard the following year and also lacked 100 bushels corn to do me. This year has been the poorest crop year here in nine years, but I have twice as many hogs as I can use and corn to fatten them, more hay and fodder than all my stock can use.

Another thing I want to warn the cotton farmer about and that is not to give his seed to the oil mills. They will be just as short as cotton is and $25 a ton would not be an excessive price on such a crop as this.

To Encourage Egg Laying.

In order to get hens in prime condition to produce fertile eggs you are required to follow as closely after nature's plan as possible. Provide them with a liberal amount of green food, together with animal food at least twice each week. If you cannot give them a large, roomy yard, release them from confinement at least an hour each day.

Milk from Average Cow.

The average cow milks well for six years, or until she is eight years old. Did you ever think what a small increase in her milking capacity for this time would amount to? It might be $20 or $60, or enough to buy a new

GIRL WITH A PISTOL KILLS A GRIZZLY BEAR

MAID OF THE MOUNTAINS RISKS HER OWN LIFE TO SAVE PERILED SURVEYOR.

Columbus, Mont.—Alone, and armed only with a small revolver, Ellen McGoorty, 17 years old and pretty, saved the life of John French, a surveyor, by killing a grizzly bear which had attacked him.

In order to kill the animal, which was a giant of its species, the girl had to step close to the side of the infuriated monster, which was crushing the life out of French, and press her pistol against its head. In its dying struggles the bear scratched Miss McGoorty severely about the arms.

She Rushed Forward at the Risk of Her Life.

French is a member of a party that has been at work in the Stillwater canyon, above Nye, 25 miles from here, for several weeks. While alone a mile from camp, he came upon the grizzly and slightly wounded it.

The animal, maddened by pain, dashed at him, and before French could save himself he was clasped in the bear's paws, where his life was being crushed out.

Miss McGoorty, who lives with her aged aunt in a small cabin in the canyon, where she has a copper mine, had heard the shot and had gone to investigate. Seeing the bear seize the man, she rushed forward and, at the risk of her life, placed the muzzle of her 38 revolver against the bear's head and fired. The bear released the man, and after a few struggles sank down dead.

French, who was badly torn and crushed, was taken to Nye, where he is being cared for. He will recover.

This is not the first time the girl has had use for a "gun." She has for several years lived in a cabin near her copper claim, which several persons have tried to "jump." Ellen has had several fights with them, and a few months ago stood off and put to flight a party of five, which had tried to make her vacate. The mine was left her by her father who was killed in Cooke, Mont., several years ago.

BOUGHT BABY; BURIED IT

Strange Charge Against Montana Woman Who Does Not Deny Purchasing the Child.

Butte, Mont.—Having purchased a four-months-old baby for $25, and then having buried it under six inches of sand on an island in Yellowstone river, is the charge against Mrs. George Thompson, under arrest in Livingston jail.

Chief of Police Donahue of Livingston is investigating.

Last October Mrs. Thompson took the child from this city to Livingston, where she carried it into a store wrapped in a silk skirt. There she bought clothes for it.

Later she was seen to cross the bridge to the island and return without the baby.

The child's body was afterwards found buried under the sand.

Mrs. Thompson does not deny buying the baby, nor does she deny buying clothing for it.

Short-Lived Notoriety.

Marietta Wolff, once the cook in the home of Mme. Steinheil, whose acquittal on the charge of murder was, in a great measure, due to Mrs. Wolff's testimony, has found a new occupation. She has become a professional bill poster in Paris. On one of the recent "notable people" postcards published in that city she is shown as a smiling, elderly, plump woman carrying a ladder. A cap is set jauntily over one ear and the poster bag hangs at one side, held by a broad strap over the shoulder. The fact that she goes about her business unnoticed, says a Paris letter, shows that people have forgotten another celebrated case.

Youthful Army Chief.

Gen. Leonard Wood, now chief of staff, is the youngest American general officer, with the exception of Gen. Funston. He still has 13 years of active service before him. Only two general officers of 1904, Miles and Merritt, are living, and they are both on the retired list.

SEES KIN IN PHOTO

Chimpanzee Recognizes the Picture of One of Its Kind.

Gazed Intently at Features and, with Evident Recognition, Implants an Card Affectionate Kiss and Hands Back.

Harrisburg, Pa.—An incident suggestive of Darwin's theory of man's monkey ancestry occurred here in the remarkably "human" conduct of a trained chimpanzee exhibited before Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, state commissioner of health, and eminent among American zoologists and scientists.

This anthropoid, "Lady Betty," by name, was seated in the commissioner's private office calmly smoking a cigarette when Dr. Dixon, merely to see what the effect might be, handed her a photograph of one of her own species—a copy of one in the collection presented the American Academy of Natural Sciences by Dr. Thomas Biddle.

"Lady Betty" took the picture in her right "hand," turned in her seat to get the most favorable light upon it, gazed intently at the features, and then, with every indication of pleased recognition, pressed it to her lips, implanting upon it an affectionate kiss.

After which she gracefully handed it to the scientist, leaving him and the office assistants who were witnesses of the proceedings amazed at such an exhibition of human attributes.

"I picked up the photograph," said Dr. Dixon, "and handed it to her. She took the picture, turned it around carefully to get it in the right position and moved her body into first one position and then another, in order to get the proper light upon the picture. She studied that photograph as intelligently as any human being could have done. Suddenly she kissed it.

"In succession the photographs of a gorilla and other anthropoids were given her. She looked at them, but made no such move of recognition or affection."

Accompanied by her owner and trainer, "Lady Betty" had entered the room with grace and dignity and without a word of command, had walked up to Dr. Dixon and shaken hands with him. He asked her to be seated and she took a chair beside his desk.

Her trainer then asked if she would like to smoke, and in response to an affirmative nod, he gave her a cigarette and a match. Deftly she struck a light, and after making the desired use of it, blew it out. Then she looked around for some place to put the burnt stick, of which she was relieved by the trainer.

It was at this juncture that Dr. Dixon thought of the photographs in his desk. His long association with the Philadelphia zoological gardens, of which he has for many years been vice president, has brought him in contact with many members of the monkey family, and he has made a special study of the alleged relationship between that group of animals and human beings. That he had no thought of in any way arousing "Lady Betty's" interest in the photograph is best evidenced by his own statement:

"I simply passed her the picture in a spirit of curiosity," he said. "The result of my act was as amazing to me as to the others near by. So far as I or any of those at hand could observe, the trainer made no sign to the chimpanzee, and even if he had, the animal was so engrossed with the picture as not to have caught any signal that might have been given. Certainly no word was spoken.

"It was all as naturally human as if I had handed a picture of some person to a relative sitting where 'Lady Betty' sat. It would seem to me to evidence a form of affection unknown among any but human beings, and I regard it as the most remarkable experience I have ever had with an anthropoid."

The refined manners of the chimpanzee especially impressed Dr. Dixon. At no time did she commit the slightest breach of the strict etiquette which governs the drawing-room. When others were speaking she made no effort to obtrude herself upon their attention, her manners being equal to the best current in society, and she acted as a model which many men and women could emulate to advantage.

"As she was leaving," said Dr. Dixon, "she took my hand most graciously. I said 'good-by,' and she very evidently endeavored to imitate me, working her lips and mumbling. The lack of development of the center of speech, which we know to exist in the chimpanzee, accounts for the mumbling, but there was the palpable attempt to emulate the persons of whom she was taking leave."

Poor Students Average Better.

Chicago.—Students who work their way through the University of Chicago have a better scholarship average than their classmates who do not, according to Dean George E. Vincent of the university. Of 300 students who earned tuition by doing student service last year, only three fell below passing grade.

Lower Car Steps in Chicago.

Chicago.—Chicago women have won their fight for lower car steps. Fifty new cars for The City Railway Company, now being built in Philadelphia, will be constructed so that the platforms will be at least one and one-half inches lower than the present platforms.

There is more to a Fertilizer than Analyses

The mere mixing of materials to obtain analysis requires no special knowledge. The value of a fertilizer lies in the source from which the plant food is obtained.

Each ingredient in Royster goods is selected with a view of supplying the plant from sprouting until harvest. The plant is not overfed at one time and starved at another. Twenty-five years experience goes with every bag.

TRADE MARK F.S.R. REGISTERED

Sold by reliable dealers throughout the South.

F. S. Royster Guano Co.

NORFOLK, VA.

ALL EAGER FOR FINE LACE

American Women of Fashion Are Constantly Adding to Already Extensive Collections.

Possessing the great advantage, in the eyes of women of fashion, that it cannot become cheap and common, fine lace is more in evidence than ever this season. Mrs. Joseph Stickney recently created a stir by appearing in a gown of point d'Alencon, which is an exact copy in color and design of the famous robe which the city of Liege presented to Empress Eugenie for her trousseau. Mrs. Richardson Clover also has one or two lace gowns of rare beauty. Mrs. George Dewey is an inveterate collector of old laces, and the value of her store is said to run into thousands of dollars. The collection of Queen Margherita of Italy probably is the most costly and extensive in the world, not excepting those of any of the other reigning queens of Europe. Many of her pieces are examples of the product of the earliest looms, while others, the handiwork of nuns long before modern looms were introduced, are the remains of vestments and robes originally confiscated from the church. In her desire to promote the art of reproducing ancient lace among the peasants of Calabria, Queen Margherita has permitted many of her rarest pieces to be copied. Several of these came into the possession of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, and were presented by her to her niece on the occasion of her marriage to the earl of Granard.—New York Times.

That Jersey Devil Again.

Staunton, Va.—Report comes from Hightown that David Meeze has just seen what some declare is the famous Jersey devil, which was reported to have first been seen in New Jersey, whence it gets its name. Meeze says that the strange bird or beast was flying directly over him and had a head like a horse and feet and legs like a mule. It soars along on great red wings. It is said that the animal was seen in West Virginia some months ago. It is supposed to live in the mountains, feeding on bear and deer. It is the most extraordinary combination of beast and bird ever seen in these parts.

Gives Old Faneuil Rafter.

Philadelphia. — Sergt. Edwin R. Snow of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, came here the other day with a piece of the original oak rafter of Faneuil hall, which he presented to the city of Philadelphia to be placed in Independence hall.

Sergt. Snow said the relic was a present from the famous old hall of Boston to the famous old hall in Philadelphia."

MACHINE FOR BASHFUL

Allays All Doubt as to Opening for "Popping the Question" Successful Test.

Philadelphia.—Here is a [illegible] ought to send thrills of joy [illegible] hearts of bashful men who have been able to muster up nerve enough to "pop the question."

Just take the girl on an evening visit to the laboratories of the psychological clinic of the University of Pennsylvania, which is in charge of Dr. Lightner Witmer, head of the department of psychology. Then place her hand in a machine which you will notice is labeled a "psychograph" or "phymograph," or something that may be, and step into the adjoining room to await developments.

While her hand rests on the machine some one whispers in an audible voice your name, perhaps "Reginald" or what it may be, while you keep your eye on the machine.

What the machine does is to register on a piece of paper a curve which designates with mathematical correctness the very emotion caused her to experience. If the curve sinks despairingly down toward the bottom of the paper, which is the "proposal machine" the case is stock's rather low with the girl. If, however, the line fairly [illegible] bobs toward the top of the paper everything's all right.

PUPILS ARE RAISING

Object of Movement Is to Provide Outdoor Occupation for the Children.

Portland, Ore.—Portland children are being interested in poultry raising. Prizes are offered for the best chickens. An association of the young poultry fanciers has been formed under the direction of the local Y. M. C. A. and the agricultural college, and a great interest is being shown in the work by youngsters.

Objects of the movement are to provide school children are to provide useful outdoor occupation during their school hours and in this way to stimulate egg and poultry production.

Chicken raising is not new, but it is being neglected. Creating interest among the children it is thought the evil will be overcome in time.

TY CUSHION FOR PINS

ive and Useful Little Trifle to ...e in the Accompanying Sketch.

...ry simple, dainty, and decora... little pincushion is the subject of ...mpanying sketch, and it is ... that may be very easily car...

...t. It is three-cornered in shape, ...vered with pale green satin em... ...ed with a cluster of conventiona... wild roses in their natural ... of pale pink covering. ... cushion is tied with gold cord ... new and pretty way, each ... up into loops on either side. ...here is a long double loop of ...finished at the top with a bunch ...all loops by which the cushion ...be suspended from the post of ...oking-glass or a nail in the wall. ... ribbons might be used in place ...e gold cord if preferred. The ...n from which our sketch was ... measured about six inches ... the widest part.

TRIMMING MUCH LIKED

...and Silver Adornment That the ...akers Guarantee Will Not Tarnish.

...s all very well for girls to be told ...their $10-a-yard gold trimming is ...h when it is tarnished; they ... like blackened metal, and they ... will. A slight look of age, a ...y perceptible rust look is not ob...ionable, but the trouble is that ...ure blackens metal. And the ... from floors and in our atmo...e blackens all the gold and silver ...on skirts. Costly as this rage of ... is, it is not durable. The high ...rices of these trimmings cannot ...ntee them against that blighting

...efore a more acceptable kind of ...and silver trimming is offered ...designers find it more satisfac... to their customers. All the metal ...d on or painted on glass. It is ...ame process used with Christmas ...ornaments, and is not more ex...ve than the other kind.

Fresh Air for Eyes.

...ess a girl sleeps in a room which ...roughly ventilated she cannot ex... to have bright eyes, for fresh air ...e lungs is one of the first requis... to clearness of eyes.

...n in extremely cold weather the ...ws must be opened as wide as ... would be in summer. The bed, ...ver, must be so protected that ...es not blow directly upon it, nor ... there be a draft. Either of ... two conditions would be likely ...ke one take cold.

No Substitute.

...ept no substitute for Foley's ...y and Tar. It is the best and ... remedy for coughs, colds, ... and lung troubles. Contains ...iates and no harmful drugs. ...mber the name, Foley's Honey ...r, and accept no substitutes. ...reb Drug Co.

Pale-Faced W...

You ladies, who have pale fa... ...ark circles under eyes, drawn ... ...ut expressions, you need a tonic.

The tonic you need is Cardui, ... It is the best tonic for women ...re specifically adapted for wome... ...he womanly organs and help to ... ...itality to the worn-out womanly ...

Cardui is a vegetable medi... ...tals, no iron, no potassium, no ... ...erous, or habit-forming drugs of ... It is perfectly harmless and safe

Take CA...

...43

The Woman's ...

"After my doctor had done all ... ...erties Mrs. Wm. Hilliard, of Mounta... ...ui, on the advice of a friend, an... "Before taking Cardui, I ha... ...oubles for five years, but since takin... "I think there is some of the b... ...et I ever saw." Your druggist ...

...Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga ... ...Medicine Co., and 64-page book, "Home T... is more Fertilizer Analyses

ere mixing of o obtain analyes no special
. The value
zen lies in the om which the
is obtained. ingredient in oods is selected w of supplying from sprouting est. The plant erfed at one starved at an-
Twenty-five rience goes with

TRADE MARK
F.S.R.
REGISTERED

le dealers throughout he South.

ister Guano Co.
ROEK, VA.

...TY CUSHION FOR PINS

...tive and Useful Little Trifle Is Shown in the Accompanying Sketch.

...very simple, dainty, and decora... little pincushion is the subject of ...accompanying sketch, and it is ...ings that may be very easily car...

...ut. It is three-cornered in shape, ...overed with pale green satin em...ered with a cluster of convention... wild roses in their natural ...s of pale pink covering.

...e cushion is tied with gold cords ...new and pretty way, gath... up into loops on either side. ...there is a long double loop of ...finished at the top with a bunch ...all loops by which the cushion ...be suspended from the post of ...looking glass or a nail in the wall. ...ribbons might be used in place ...the gold cord if preferred. The ...ion from which our sketch was ...measured about six inches ...the widest part.

...W TRIMMING MUCH LIKED

...d and Silver Adornment That the Makers Guarantee Will Not Tarnish.

...s all very well for girls to be told ...their $10-a-yard gold trimming is ...sh when it is tarnished; they ...like blackened metal, and they ...will. A slight look of age, a ...ly perceptible rust look is not ob...ionable, but the trouble is that ...ure blackens metal. And the ...from floors and in our atmo...re blackens all the gold and silver ...on skirts. Costly as this rage of ...l is it is not durable. The high... prices of these trimmings cannot ...antee them against that blighting ...

...erefore a more acceptable kind of ...and silver trimming is offered. ...designers find it more satisfac... to their customers. All the metal ...ld on or painted on glass. It is ...ame process used with Christmas ...ornaments, and is not more ex...ive than the other kind.

Fresh Air for Eyes.

...nless a girl sleeps in a room which ...roughly ventilated she cannot ex... to have bright eyes, for fresh air ...e lungs is one of the first requis... to clearness of eyes.

...en in extremely cold weather the ...ows must be opened as wide as ...would be in summer. The bed, ...ever, must be so protected that ...does not blow directly upon it, nor ...there be a draft. Either of ...e two conditions would be likely ...ake one take cold.

No Substitute.

...cept no substitute for Foley's ...ey and Tar. It is the best and ...remedy for coughs, colds, ...d and lung troubles. Contains ...iates and no harmful drugs ...ember the name, Foley's Honey ...Tar, and accept no substitutes. ...urch Drug Co.

A Collector's Bargain.

Lord Spencer of Althorp, one of the greatest of book collectors, was at home only in his own field. One day in browsing about Bond street, London, he went into the shop of a dealer in bric-a-brac. The dealer, who knew him by sight, said persuasively:

"Here is a fine bit of pottery which your lordship really ought to have, and you shall have it very cheap—only 2 guineas."

So Lord Spencer bought it and took it home and set it in a high place. One day a connoisseur of china paid him a visit, and Lord Spencer showed his bargain.

"What did you give for it?" asked the connoisseur.

"Two guineas," answered Spencer rather proudly.

"H'm!" said the connoisseur. "At that price the marmalade should have been included."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, that precious piece of yours is nothing more or less than a shilling marmalade pot with a green thistle painted on it."

Silencing the Questioners.

A French gentlemna who had been with M. de Talleyrand for twenty years accompanied him to the congress at Vienna after Napoleon's exile to Elba. People naturally concluded that this long intimacy had made him familiar with a number of particulars of the minister's life and bearing also upon the events with which he had been mixed up. Worried with questions, the friend invariably replied that he knew nothing, but the questioners would not be satisfied and returned to the charge.

"Very well," finally said Talleyrand's confidant: "I'll tell you a peculiar and altogether unknown fact in connection with M. de Talleyrand. Since Louis XV. he's the only man who can open a soft boiled egg with one backward stroke of his knife without spilling a drop of the contents of the shell. That is the only peculiarity I know in connection with him."

Discretion had scored a decisive victory. From that moment the questions ceased.

The Sting of Ingratitude.

A young physician in the east side, New York city, spends much time in charitable practice, says the Newark Star. In fact, he sometimes gives to a poor patient enough money to pay for prescriptions. "I'm not getting rich," he explains, "but I simply can't see them suffer for medicines that may put them on their feet again."

Not many days ago the doctor had occasion to visit a woman who occupied one small tenement room with her three children. After making out a prescription he gave her $2, telling her to buy the medicine and to use the change for needed food. On the following day as he was about to enter the tenement for a second call he met the ten-year-old daughter of the patient.

"How is your mother?" he inquired of the child.

"Oh, she's all well!" was the answer. "She took the $2 and got a real doctor."

When to Stop Advertising.

An English journal requested a number of the largest advertisers to give their opinions concerning the best time to stop advertising, and the following replies were received:

When the population ceases to multiply and the generation that crowded on after you and never heard of you stops coming on.

When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours that you have better goods and lower prices than they can get anywhere else.

When you stop making fortunes solely through the direct use of this mighty agent.

When younger and fresher houses in your line cease starting up.

When you would rather have your own way and fall than take advice and win.—Nashville American.

He Knew.

Wife—I wonder why there are no marriages in heaven? Husband—Because it is heaven, of course.—Illustrated Bits.

A WOMAN'S VALOR

Major Hardy, Captain Mason and myself were the three senior officers on the staff of a general officer. Our tent was pitched upon a damp, uneven piece of ground. Mason was the first to break the long silence.

"Well, for my part," quoth he, "I don't believe one word of women enlisting and serving as soldiers. Every paper you take up is full of some such trash. The other day at inspection Jay, the assistant surgeon of the Forty-ninth, said he'd bet that splendid boy of his that one of the corporals in Company A of the Tenth was a woman. I haven't seen him since to inquire, but I never should have thought of suspecting the man—the woman, I mean."

Hardy did not reply.

"Mason," said I, "do you remember at Bull Run, when we were both in the Seventh infantry, what a splendid young fellow we had for a color sergeant? How gallantly he defended his flag and then how almost miraculously he saved Colonel Blair's life in the charge!"

"Indeed I do!" replied the captain, with enthusiasm, starting to his feet as he spoke. "It was the most gallant action performed that day. Why, doctor, his hands were all shattered to pieces by a ball passing through them as he grasped the flag, yet he managed to hold it by pressing it to his breast with his arms, though he must have suffered awful agony. Blair said he had given up ever getting out of that scrape alive when this fellow came dashing along and, throwing himself between him and the enemy, received in his own body the ball intended for the colonel. I never saw a man feel anything as Blair did that."

"You never surmised that the color sergeant of the Seventh was a woman?" I asked quietly.

"By George! Do you really mean it, doctor?" exclaimed Mason in astonishment, and even the quiet Hardy started up from his board and looked at me to see if I were in earnest.

